British losses escalate plans for peace

By The Associated Press
Britain and the United States are working on a Falkland Islands peace plan, and the loss of British and Argentine lives makes a diplomatic solution urgent, British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym said today.

Pym told the House of Commons in London he had transmitted to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. a "constructive contribution" toward the plan.

"A vital ingredient of the ideas on which we are working is an early cease-fire and the prompt withdrawal of Argentine forces," Pym said. He did not provide any details.

Relatives of 87 crewmen aboard the British destroyer Sheffield were notified today that their men were dead, missing or wounded in an Argentine missile strike off the Falkland Islands.

The figures on the Sheffield casualties were given by government sources in London, where Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher called an emergency Cabinet session. Argentina, meanwhile, continued the search for about 360 crewmen missing from the General Belgrano, the cruiser torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine Sunday.

British press reports said a missile fired from a land-based Argentine fighter-bomber 24 miles away hit the control room of the 3,500-ton Sheffield early Tuesday afternoon, turning one of the Royal Navy's most modern warships into a raging inferno.

The British Defense Ministry said the crew was ordered to abandon ship "when there was no longer any hope of saving the ship," and Defense Minister John Nott told the House of Commons as many as 30 of the 270 crewmen may be lost.

Some British press reports said the ship, one of three destroyers in the British war fleet in the South Atlantic, had sunk. But a British reporter with the task force said it was still afloat and burning more than six hours after it was hit.

The Argentine government was silent about the Sheffield, although news of the attack was broadcast by Buenos Aires radio stations quoting foreign news reports. The joint chiefs of staff said in a communique early today that an "air incursion" against the British task force was carried out "with results that still are not known."

The communique said the attack occurred 60 miles southeast of the Falklands about 40 minutes before the Sheffield was reported hit.

British planes made two attacks Tuesday on airstrips in the Falklands. The British Defense Ministry said a Harrier jet was shot down and its pilot killed, while Argentina claimed two Harriers were downed.

The British said a long-range Vulcan bomber, presumably flying from Ascension Island, made a "successful" attack on the airfield at Stanley, the Falklands capital, in the morning and returned safely to its base.

The Argentine communique said the second attack was made in the afternoon by three Harrier jets on a dirt runway at Goose Green, 40 miles west of Stanley. Both airstrips were attacked by British planes Saturday in the first major strike of the air-sea offensive launched by Britain to recapture the island colony Argentina seized April 2.

Meanwhile, Argentina reported the rescue of at least 680 survivors from the cruiser General Belgrano, which a British submarine torpedoed and sank Sunday. The navy said it was "optimistic" that more would be found.

Shocked Britons reacted to the loss of the Sheffield with appeals for an end to the bloodshed and angry demands for retaliation that echoed those heard in the streets of Buenos Aires following the Belgrano sinking.

"Once blood is spilled, more blood is spilled," observed a Buenos Aires man. "That is not good for either side."

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. held an unscheduled three-hour meeting late Tuesday with British Ambassador Nicholas Henderson, prompting speculation of a new peace initiative including a British cease-fire proposal. But there was no indication from London of such a move.

The United States suspended its peace efforts last Friday, offered Britain military supplies and imposed military and economic sanctions against Argentina because of its refusal to budge on the Falklands sovereignty issue.

President Reagan sent a letter to several Latin American heads of state Tuesday explaining Argentina lost U.S. sympathies because it "made use of force to end its historic controversy with the United Kingdom."

The U.S. Embassy in Buenos Aires said a small, unspecified number of non-essential personnel and diplomats' dependents were being evacuated to Montevideo, Uruguay, because of rising anti-American sentiment in Argentina, where about 7,000 U.S. citizens live.

Meanwhile, an Argentine judge acquitted an American TV producer and three other members of a Canadian television crew held in southern Argentina as suspected spies, the official Argentine news agency TELAM reported.

The men had been confined to the city of Comodoro Rivadavia last month after taking pictures of military installations.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. said it expected three of the men — John Axelson, 30, and David Wilson, 42, of Toronto, and Lemuel S. Hillman, 34, of Chicago — to return to Toronto by Friday.

Area men killed in head-on crash

Two men were killed and two others were injured in a head-on crash around 8 p.m. Tuesday night, three miles east of Pampa on U.S. 60.

Danny R. Dyess, 29, of Miami, and Alfonso Ortega Gamez, 52, of Hereford, both were pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge.

Passengers in the Gamez vehicle, Manuel Sosa, 43, and Martin Victor Patino, 35, both of Hereford, were transported by ambulance to Coronado Community Hospital. Sosa was transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo where he is listed in fair condition. Patino is in fair condition under observation in the Intensive Care Unit at Coronado Community Hospital.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Norman Rushing said Dyess's Cadillac was eastbound on 60 when it crossed the center line and hit Gamez's westbound Ford pickup truck head on.

Rushing said the vehicles only traveled about ten feet from the point of impact.

Dyess had lived in Miami for a short time, according to officials.

Local arrangements for Dyess were by Carmichael - Whatley Funeral Directors. Final arrangements are pending with Fingerhut Funeral Directors of Fort Smith, Ark.

Services for Gamez are pending with Rix Funeral Directors of Hereford.

Mr. Gamez was a native of Winters, and was born Aug. 29, 1929.

He was a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Hereford and the Sheriff's Association.

Gamez is survived by his wife, Ester, of the home; four sons, six daughters, two brothers, six sisters, his mother, and nine grandchildren.

More rain expected tonight

Shamrock swims in four inches of rain

By FRED PARKER
City Editor

Thunderstorms passing through the southeastern portion of the Panhandle late Tuesday dumped nearly four inches of rain on Shamrock, with lesser amounts reported elsewhere, and weathermen are promising more of the severe weather for this afternoon and evening.

The heavy rainfall and forecasts of more heavy rain prompted the National Weather Service (NWS) to issue a flash flood watch for eastern counties of the Panhandle, but weathermen at the NWS office in Amarillo cancelled the watch shortly before 9 this morning.

Counties covered by the watch had included Gray, Collingsworth, Donley, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Roberts and Wheeler.

Although the flash flood watch was cancelled, weather forecasters said there "is a possibility of a few possibly severe thunderstorms in the eastern Panhandle area this afternoon."

The weather experts explained that the unstable atmospheric conditions over the area and a new cold front moving into the region this morning could combine to trigger the thunderstorms.

Forecasters said the probability of rain is 60 percent for this afternoon, 80 percent for tonight and 30 percent Thursday.

This afternoon's high temperature, as a result of the new cold front, is expected to be only in the middle 60s, weathermen said, down from Tuesday afternoon's local high of 87 degrees. This morning's low temperature was 59 degrees.

"If we get enough heating today, they're (thunderstorms) going to burst," one NWS forecaster stated this morning.

While almost four inches of rain fell at Shamrock late Tuesday, the Shamrock police department reported no damage resulted from flooding of low areas of the Wheeler County city. "It filled up the golf course lake," police said today.

A police spokesman this morning said the heavy rainfall sent water rushing through streams and low areas of the city, but most of it had drained by this morning. He noted, however, one portion of Interstate 40 still had water across the pavement at mid-morning.

While the heavy rainfall was flooding Shamrock, Pampa officially received .12 inch of moisture, although most of the city received only a few sprinkles. This brings the city's rainfall total for 1982 to 2.19 inches.

Rainfall reports from showers and thunderstorms - Wednesday afternoon and evening included: Lefors, 1.3 inch;

Canadian, .04; and Perryton, .59.

A tornado was sighted near the town of Quitaque last night and pea-size hail pelted the Midland - Odessa area early today.

Forecasters said a very moist and unstable air mass would remain over the eastern Panhandle through tonight. A cold front was pushing into the Panhandle to combine with the upper level disturbance to produce a few severe thunderstorms through tonight. As much as two to four inches of rain was forecast.

Widely scattered thunderstorms and showers were reported before dawn today from near Wichita Falls to Brownwood to Eagle Pass. The showers and thunderstorms were moving eastwards towards Central Texas.

Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy statewide today.

Prisoner found hanged in Pampa jail cell

A 42-year-old prisoner at the Pampa city jail hanged himself in a cell Tuesday night, according to police.

An autopsy is being performed today on Bobby Culberson, 217 Miami St., by forensic pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdmann of Childress.

According to police, Culberson was arrested around 7:55 p.m. Tuesday for public intoxication by Pampa officers Pack and Bishop.

Police said they were alerted by a citizen that Culberson was intoxicated inside a car on Gibson's parking lot.

Police said Culberson was arrested and booked into city jail, where he was placed in "the drunk tank" with another prisoner. Police said Culberson was observed talking with his cellmate around 8:30 p.m.

Then around two hours later, police said Corporal Jess Wallace made a routine jail check and found Culberson hanged with his shirt, which was tied around jail bars.

Police said Wallace cut the shirt and called for an ambulance.

The victim was transported by Metropolitan ambulance to Coronado Community Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge ordered an autopsy which began this morning.

Police said the Culberson's cellmate was asleep when the victim was discovered.

An investigation into the reported jail hanging is being conducted by Pampa detectives and Texas Ranger Bill Baten.

Services for Culberson are pending with Carmichael - Whatley Funeral Directors.

Pipeline repaired, lake water flows again

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Water through a damaged transmission pipeline from Lake Meredith to the Pampa water treatment plant should flow again today, but presently, the city does not want the water anyway.

Canadian River Municipal Water Authority General Manager John Williams said today that authority crews worked through the night to repair and refill the pipeline, which ruptured Friday morning, about 3 miles northwest of Skellytown.

Crews installed 64 feet of new 30-inch line where the break occurred. Williams said the filling process must be watched closely for air pockets. He said if a large pocket of air remained inside the line during refilling, the line "could blow clear out of the ground."

Williams said there are automatic air check valves at the top of every hill on the transmission pipe. The valves automatically expel air from the line, but they must be watched to ensure the valves are working.

The manager of the authority, which delivers Meredith water to Pampa and other cities on the system, said crews also are checking the line today for additional leaks.

Williams speculated Tuesday that the pipe was possibly damaged during original installation, and that the line additionally was corroded at its location through an old oil well dump pit.

Even though lake water will once again flow to the treatment plant, the city will not use it until a taste and odor problem in the surface water is resolved. City Manager Mack Wofford said the city will continue with 100 percent well water from nine city wells. Wofford said Tuesday that wells can supply current demand.

The city, water authority and state health department all have taken city water samples for analysis at both public and private laboratories. The agencies are attempting to discover the cause of a musty taste and odor problem with Meredith water, and results from the latest tests were not available today.

The city suffered a break March 16 and a shutdown March 17 at the main line from the treatment plant to Pampa's water system. Wofford previously said the break and repairs to the city line have "absolutely no relationship" to taste and odor problems. Though most locations in the city reported absolutely no water pressure when repairs were made

March 17, Wofford maintains there never was a citywide total loss of pressure in the system.

Some residents in town have reported that they had slight pressure all day during the shutdown for repairs.

Officials have speculated the cause of Pampa's taste and odor problems result from an unusually high level of blue-green algae or actinomycetes, microorganisms which are not a health threat, contained in the surface water.

Some residents today reported muddy water at points on the system, possibly the result of present well pumping.

Wofford was unavailable for comment at press time today.

Phillips transfer, local construction unrelated

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Ault - Griggs Construction Co. of Amarillo is presently building five homes in Pampa, but Ray Ault, co-owner of the firm, said the construction is not directly connected with a transfer of Phillips employees to the area.

And Don Kremer, a spokesman for the Phillips Petroleum Department of Human Resources, said the reports of a definite influx of population from the phasing out of a refinery in Kansas City are somewhat inaccurate.

It has been reported in sources other than The Pampa News that 150 employees will be transferred from a Phillips refinery in Kansas City to the company's Borger plant, and that Ault - Griggs is building here to help absorb the incoming workers.

But Kremer said today plans for the Kansas City refinery are not definite yet, and the company hopes to sell the plant to another company rather than close it down.

The Kansas City refinery is old and does not have the capacity or diversification that the company requires, Kremer said, but the company is still "in the early stages of this whole thing."

The company began a $400 million modernization of its Borger plant about a year ago and will need more workers in Borger. The project is about 50 percent complete, according to Kremer.

But as to the company's connection with the Ault - Griggs construction projects, Kremer said "I really don't know how that thing started."

He said the construction firm probably approached a Phillips representative for information on possible new buyers, but Phillips has no business connection with Ault - Griggs, and is not anticipating any sudden or overwhelming influx of workers to the area.

If the Kansas City plant is phased out, he said, the transfer would be a gradual one that would begin a few months from now and probably end sometime in August.

Ault said the Ault - Griggs construction firm is building in two Pampa locations, with four houses in the $55,000 to $60,000 price range under construction in the Northeast addition on Sierra Street and one in the $130,000 range being built on Chestnut Street. The company also has options to buy 122 lots in the Northeast Addition.

However, Ault said, the possible Phillips transfer is only "one factor" in the company's considerations. He cited other local industries as factors, including possible expansions in Panhandle Industries and Ingersoll - Rand.

Ault said the construction has been active in Pampa for two years, and its decision was influenced by long-term considerations. He said the company hopes to build more "affordable" houses here in the $50,000 to $60,000 range in the future.

"We think that Pampa will end up more on the hub of industrial activity than towns in the surrounding area," Ault said.

Phillips has estimated 60 - 70 houses available in Borger right now, according to Kremer, and it probably would not be necessary for workers to live in Pampa.

If the Kansas City refinery were shut down, he said, it "might put a little bit of a strain on housing," but the company would still encourage employees to live in Borger.

"We feel prospects are very good for housing in Borger," he said.

Hightower makes barnstorm stop in Pampa

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Democratic Congressman Jack Hightower visited Pampa briefly Monday with his message of support for farmers and disdain for the big budget deficits proposed by the Reagan administration.

Getting an early start in his campaign for a fifth term as 13th District U.S. Representative, Hightower stopped for about an hour at Perry Lefors Airport Monday afternoon. The stop was one of nine on a "whirlwind barnstorming tour" of Hightower's district.

The congressman gave a short speech to about 20 people at the airport, including local Democratic notables and Hightower supporters, then answered questions from the group.

He was accompanied by his wife Colleen and by a campaign worker who was photographing and filming the event for campaign advertising.

Hightower said "We've got to recognize the very high priority of the problems of agriculture." He said it is historically true that economic depression begins on the farm.

Hightower said he opposes Reagan's cuts in farm programs. Earlier this year, Hightower helped form a coalition of congressmen from farm states that are working to pass emergency legislation to counteract the Reagan administration's farm policies.

On the economy, Hightower said he is a supply-side economist, but does not think President Reagan's supply-side policy will work in combination with budget deficits and high interest rates.

He said he would like to see federal spending cuts, but not cuts at the expense of farmers or Social Security recipients, or cuts that would compromise a strong national defense.

"But anyone who has spent some time in the service knows that not all that money is wisely spent," he said.

Hightower recommended cuts in foreign aid that is not "production oriented," and agreed with Reagan policy that some social programs should be cut.

In a bureaucracy, he said, spending tends to expand to fit the money available.

"If we cut back too much, we can correct that," he said. "If we don't cut enough, no one's going to tell us about it."

Hightower said he would like to see more federal land utilized, but not at the expense of national parks or recreational facilities.

He said he would like to see federal revenue increased in order to decrease the national debt by eliminating tax loopholes, but not by compromising deductions for charity and deductions for interest on home-buying loans.

He said he supports a constitutional amendment for a balanced budget, but only one that is "tight enough to be effective and loose enough to handle an emergency."

HELLO, I MUST BE GOING. Thirteenth District U.S. Representative Jack Hightower, on a whirlwind airplane tour of towns in the district, stopped for about an hour at the Perry Lefors Airport

Monday afternoon. He is seen here speaking to the Rev. Claude Cone (right), pastor of First Baptist Church.

Prosecutors taking only two days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors, ready to rest the first stage of their case against John W. Hinckley Jr., are taking less than two days to re-create what they portray as his cross-country odyssey to plot a presidential assassination.
 Chief prosecutor Roger M. Adelman said he would show a videotape of Hinckley shooting President Reagan and call seven additional witnesses today before ending his presentation.
 Then it will be the defense team's turn.
 Nine witnesses were summoned Monday to trace Hinckley's nine-month journey from a Lubbock, Texas, pawnshop, where he bought ammunition, to the gruesome scene outside the Washington Hilton Hotel last March 30 when he shot Reagan and three other men.
 Two of the witnesses who testified Tuesday were victims of bullets fired by Hinckley, but the young defendant never raised his head to face them.

 When the government finishes, the focus of the trial will shift dramatically from what Hinckley did last year to what he was thinking at the time.
 Psychiatrists hired by the defense will testify that he believed he was acting out the last scene in a love fantasy; that he wanted to kill Reagan to impress Jodie Foster, the actress who had spurned his mail and telephoned advances.
 The doctors will say he was insane at the time and thus should be absolved of legal responsibility for the crime. That is the sole defense: that Hinckley was insane and not responsible for what he did.
 The government then will present its own rebuttal psychiatrists to testify that Hinckley was sane, a procedure that may take up more time than the initial case outlined by the prosecution during the first two days of the trial.

 Hinckley faces life imprisonment if convicted in the 13-count indictment that charges him with attempting to kill the president, and assault with intent to kill while armed.
 Hinckley wore a tan suit to court Monday and at times smiled ever so slightly when talking to a defense lawyer, Gregory B. Craig.
 But he closed his eyes or stared at the defense table while Secret Service Agent Timothy McCarthy and former Washington policeman Thomas Delahanty relived the shooting.
 McCarthy took a bullet in the chest, but is back on the job as a White House body guard. Delahanty was shot in the back and retired on disability after never returning to his job.
 Hinckley's other victims, Reagan and White House Press Secretary James Brady, will not testify.

School board considers building repairs

BY JEFF LANGLEY Staff Writer
 At a regular meeting Tuesday, the Pampa school board hired new teachers, accepted employee resignations and asked its architect to prepare bids for several school repair projects.
 The board accepted pending resignations of former athletic director and present business office employee Loyd Waters, middle school science teacher and coach John Winters, high school vocational teacher Danny Carlson and high school counselor Pat Murray.
 The board hired new teachers Janet Garrison, Sam Porter, Mark Baumann, W.C. Wilson, Peggy Jo Karbo, Marilyn Wilson and Steve Schneider.
 The board made resolutions to instruct Lubbock architect Herbert Brasher to prepare specifications for bids for new roofs at Horace Mann and Wilson Elementary Schools, a partial new roof at Pampa High School and repair of the roof at Pampa Middle School. The bids for the project will be advertised May 18.

 The board wants two separate bids for the new roofs: a bid for standard materials and a bid for urethane roofing. The board will consider an energy conservation study before deciding which material is most cost efficient.
 Toward other renovation projects, the board approved a plan to repair ticket booths on the west side of the high school football stadium and approved repair projects for industrial arts and special education buildings.

The final repair resolution calls for a complete lock and security system for all Pampa schools and electrical repairs at the Pampa High School auditorium.
 Brasher will prepare specifications for those projects, which include a dimmer panel and other electrical work on the auditorium.
 Board President Ken Fields read a letter to the board from an out-of-state woman who complimented the state historian of band students during a recent band trip and contest in St. Louis. The woman said the students were well-dressed and courteous while eating supper at a restaurant. Fields saluted the "Pride of Pampa" for the good remarks.

Poland's military rulers reimpose curfew

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Police clashed with youths who destroyed buildings and erected barricades in the northwest Baltic port of Szczecin for the second night in a row, it was reported here today.
 Published reports gave few details of the unrest, which followed clashes Monday in more than a dozen Polish cities. The rioting was the most violent show of opposition to the government since martial law was declared last Dec. 13 and the independent union Solidarity suspended.
 Official reports said the authorities clamped a curfew back on Warsaw and Gliwice.
 In a surprise move, telephone lines in the capital and other cities reopened after being cut Monday night.
 The East German news agency ADN said restrictions also were imposed in Szczecin and Gdansk, the Baltic port where Solidarity was founded in August 1980 and site of big anti-government demonstrations Saturday and Monday.

 Meetings of student clubs and all public entertainment, including discotheques, were banned again.
 Gen. Cieslaw Kiszczak, the interior minister in the martial-law government, reported a second day of unrest Tuesday in Szczecin, the provincial capital 15 miles from the East German border. He gave no details.
 Kiszczak told Poland's parliament, the Sejm, that 1,372 people were detained Monday in riots in Warsaw and at least 13 other cities. He reported at least 72 policemen injured.

The minister said nothing about casualties among the demonstrators, but many bleeding, battered protesters were seen in Warsaw.
 "The most serious incidents took place in Warsaw where police decided to disperse aggressive groups," Kiszczak said. "The incidents lasted until late night, and similar excesses were repeated today (Tuesday) in Szczecin."
Lefors school board to meet
 The Lefors Independent School District Board of Trustees will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. to discuss improvements in the Lefors district's special education and to consider a 15 percent penalty for delinquent taxes.
 District Superintendent Gerrell Julian said the Lefors district is not presently meeting state and federal standards for providing special education in the district.
 The Lefors district must provide such education within its own schools, he said. The district presently depends on education provided by Pampa schools for its students with severe learning disabilities.
 Julian said there are six Lefors special education students with learning disabilities who are now being bused to Pampa, and the Lefors district is paying about $5000 tuition annually to the Pampa district for the students.
 The 15 percent delinquent tax penalty, to be considered by the board is similar to the penalty imposed by the Pampa school board in April. The penalty would cover the fees of attorneys hired by the district to collect the delinquent taxes.
 Also on the board's agenda is a report on the results of state Basic Skills Tests given to all students in the district. The test results, covering mathematics, reading and writing skills, will be used by teachers to find the learning weaknesses of students, and reported to parents of students.

Ophthalmologist in Pampa

Dr. George Walters, a native of Pampa, has established practice as a Board Certified Ophthalmologist at Coronado Community Hospital.
 Ophthalmology is a medical specialty involving diagnosis and treatment of the eye.
 Walters is the first physician to open an office in the hospital's new Professional Office Building. Hospital officials are attempting to locate other specialists in gynecology, obstetrics and orthopedics to join the Coronado staff.

 Hospital Administrator Norman Knox said Walters has considerable experience in pediatric ophthalmology, with special interests in retinal pathology and retinal detachment surgery.

Walters is a graduate of Pampa High School and of West Texas State University. He graduated from the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.
 After completing a flexible internship at Louisiana State University Medical Center in Shreveport, Walters completed a three-year ophthalmology residency at Tulane School of Medicine in New Orleans.
 An Air Force veteran, Walters served as Chief of Ophthalmology at USAF Medical Center at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois. After his military service, he established a practice in Kentucky.
 Walters' wife, Kathryn, is from Canyon. She graduated with a bachelor's degree in speech therapy from WSTU. She has worked as a therapist in public schools in Kentucky.

Harding withdraws from re-election race

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — He began this year unopposed for re-election, but State Treasurer Warren G. Harding now says he cannot take any more and has withdrawn from the battle.

Harding, 61, made the announcement to a surprised Capitol press corps Tuesday. He said he could not continue to campaign and "subject my family to further hurt and grief."

Four candidates lined up to challenge Harding just days before the Feb. 1 filing deadline after news broke that a grand jury was investigating the treasurer's office.

Indicted April 23 on two felony counts of official misconduct accusing him of having two state employees work on his campaign, Harding polled a poor second in last Saturday's Democratic primary. But he did squeeze into a runoff with former Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards.

Harding's withdrawal means the race won't appear on the June 5 runoff ballot.

An hour after Harding told 8a Capitol news conference he was pulling out, Mrs. Richards was in the same room saying, "It feels good to be the first woman in 50 years to hold a statewide office in this state."

That was a little premature, since she still must face a Republican opponent: Millard Neptune, 71, was presumed to be a stalking horse for a stronger candidate who would step in later, but Neptune says he now likes the idea of staving in the race. Harding, accompanied by family members, read a brief statement and left without answering questions. He just pointed to a lapel pin and saying, "The flag of Texas — long may it fly." He would not say if he was resigning, but no letter of resignation was submitted to Gov. Bill Clements on Tuesday.

In his statement, Harding said, "While it is yet still possible for me to win, I cannot and will not engage in the kind of bitter campaign it would require."

"I would not subject anyone, opponents or otherwise, to what I and my family have been subjected to."

Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle issued a statement saying Harding's decision "was not part of any plea negotiation" and that it "does not affect" an ongoing investigation of Harding's office, which prosecutors say includes allegations of sexual harassment of treasurer's office employees by Harding.

The penalty for each official misconduct count ranges up to 10 years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

At her news conference, Mrs. Richards said that when she heard Harding had withdrawn, she "just couldn't believe it." About 20 of her supporters stood in the back of the room and broke into applause several times.

She read a telegram she sent Harding: "Dear Warren," it said, "I read your statement with understanding and sympathy. I pledge to you that as state treasurer, I will serve in that office in a manner that will be a source of pride to you and to all Texans. Your withdrawal today will help to unify the Democratic Party, and I am grateful to you for this act of dignity which means so much to me and my family."

Mrs. Richards said Harding should not have feared personal attacks in the runoff campaign.

"I insisted from the outset that this was going to be a clean campaign," Mrs. Richards said. "We were not going to get into what I call 'mudslinging' politics. I have never known from the very beginning the extent of Warren's problems. I just said I was not going to campaign on his indictment."

She suggested Harding's decision might have been a practical one, based on Saturday's results.

Judge refuses to release FBI report in Wood case

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Making public a statement El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra gave to FBI agents investigating U.S. District Judge John Wood's murder would prevent Chagra and four other defendants from getting a fair trial, according to a ruling by a federal judge.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions issued a nine-page ruling Tuesday that a federal magistrate was correct in closing to the public and press parts of a bond-reduction hearing for Chagra April 22 and 23.

"In conclusion, the court finds at this early stage of the proceedings that the rights of the press and public of access to this particular information at this time must yield to the superior right of the defendant to be tried by a fair and impartial jury." Sessions ruled.

Attorneys for The San Antonio Express, The San Antonio News, The San Antonio Light and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram successfully delayed the bond hearing until Sessions conducted another hearing required by the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Gannett Co. versus DePasquale.

The Gannett decision requires parties moving to close court proceedings to prove three elements: that an open hearing would create a serious threat to the defendant's right to fair trial, that alternatives such as change of venue would not adequately protect a defendant's fair trial rights, and that closing a hearing would be effective in protecting against the perceived harm to a defendant's right to a fair trial.

Sessions ruled in favor of the defense and against the four newspapers on all three Gannett issues.

He concluded that public dissemination of the evidence "would in reasonable likelihood create a serious threat to the fair trial rights of defendant Joseph Chagra and co-defendants."

Joe Chagra, 35; his brother, Jimmy Chagra, 37; Jimmy's wife, Elizabeth, 28; convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, 43, and his wife, Jo Ann Harrelson, 41, have been charged in connection with Wood's killing on May 29, 1979.

Joe Chagra, charged with conspiracy in Wood's death, is accused of advising his brother to pay Harrelson $250,000 to shoot Wood to prevent the judge from presiding at Jimmy Chagra's 1979 narcotics trial.

After Sessions ruled that U.S. Magistrate Robert O'Connor was correct in hearing the FBI statement in private, O'Connor finished the hearing in which the defense sought to lower Joe Chagra's bonds which total $1.6 million. O'Connor asked news reporters to leave the courtroom during the last five minutes of the bond hearing.

O'Connor said he would rule after he receives a pre-bond report from federal probation officers, perhaps later this week.

Dallas attorney Billy Ravkind, who said the sealed statement included discussions Joe Chagra had with the FBI last year to try to prevent his indictment, told O'Connor the $1.6 million in bonds was excessive.

"I feel it's very likely that the defendant (Joe Chagra) is going to be acquitted," Ravkind said. "The indictment charges not one single overt act and I suggest it's not charged because it's not there. I think the court should consider a reasonable bond. It's not an easy decision and not a popular one, but a proper one."

Energy minister says that setbacks will not derail goal

HOUSTON (AP) — Canada will become energy independent by 1990, despite the scuttling of a major synthetic fuel project and decreased activity by foreign-owned oil companies, a government official says.

"It will be from different sources than we originally anticipated, but we are still confident we will reach this goal," said Marc Lalonde, minister of Canada's energy, mines and resources.

Lalonde told the Offshore Technology Conference here

Tuesday that production from the Hibernia oil field off the Newfoundland coast will help Canada become energy self sufficient.

The conference, the largest annual trade show for oil industry equipment manufacturers, includes displays of equipment from 90 different countries. It is expected to attract more than 100,000 visitors to the Astro dome complex by closing time Thursday.

Lalonde predicted his country will be energy independent by the end of the decade, despite two recent setbacks.

Last week, subsidiaries of Royal Dutch-Shell Ltd. and Gulf Oil Corp. announced they were retreating from the world's largest synthetic fuel project designed to extract oil from tar sands in the Canadian province of Alberta.

Activity by foreign-owned oil firms also has dropped since the government of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau in 1980 imposed a policy designed to attain 50 percent ownership of oil companies operating in Canada.

Judge permits state inmates to transfer

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge says six inmates who recently testified against the Texas Department of Corrections may transfer to federal prisons.

Inmates Benny Earl Hudson, Chester Smith Jr., Robert White, Jack W. Thompson, Kelso Haynes and Donald R. Beasley testified at hearings earlier this year that "building tenders," or inmate guards, had been used at the prison.

In an order issued Tuesday, U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice gave the inmates the option of transferring to federal institutions.

Justice, who ordered the TDC to stop using inmates in supervisory positions, said a meeting would be called to explain the terms of transfers but set no date.

Justice also told TDC officials to explain by May 14 how they are complying with his order to provide each prisoner with 40 square feet of living space.

Rick Gray, executive assistant to Texas Attorney General Mark White, said the state will prove that "in every instance, there's more than 40 square feet per prisoner."

However, Donna Brorby, an attorney for the inmates, said that "with current inmate population figures, I don't think it's physically possible TDC is in compliance."

TDC officials reported recently inmate population had swelled to more than 33,000.

Justice issued a ruling in 1981, demanding the state make sweeping changes to improve conditions at its prison units.

Prison officials reported in March that the TDC is "utilizing 156 male dormitories providing an average of 41 square feet per inmate." But the judge noted in his order the state conceded that some of the dormitories when "considered individually" did not meet the minimum space requirement.

America's farmers personify strength

The strength of American agriculture lies not with the twists and turns of the Chicago Board of Trade, but with the farmer — an independent businessman struggling in a sea of troubles brought on by a recessive economy and a fickle mother nature.

As all businessmen, the farmer must offer a product for which there is sufficient demand to return a profit. But unlike most businessmen, the farmer's commodity often depends on environmental elements beyond his control.

Going into the 1982 growing season, farmers in the Ohio area are still healing from a painful 1981 harvest which served as a haunting reminder of the rain-soaked weeks that passed in May and June while their planters sat idle. The harvest produced lower yields than had been hoped.

Lower prices brought on by a bumper harvest in grain producing states of the Midwest compounded the problem of lower yields. The margin of profit thus reduced, less capital was available for planting the 1982 crop. And, high interest rates have increased farm debts.

Farmers also must contend with criticism from the other 96 percent of the nation's population. They often are blamed for rising food costs, yet their share of the profit from the end product is minimal.

Farmers, too, are consumers and pay the same price for the final product.

As American industry increasingly turns to advanced technology as a means of controlling time and cost demands, so must the farmer.

But farmers in Ohio are strong. They have endured difficult times before and they will again. Market and environmental considerations may cause some to leave the fields, but the majority will survive because of the farmer's unique combination of intelligence, hard work and love of the land.

Sunflower becomes more valued crop

The colorful sunflower, which nods in many gardens, may well become an important crop on Ohio farms. The seeds contain an oil that is increasingly prized, being similar to olive oil, and after the oil is extracted, the seeds become oilcake, which is valued for livestock and poultry.

Buckeye farmers grew 12,000 to 15,000 acres of sunflowers last year. Pillsbury & Co. bought sunflower seed last year for the first time and shipped at least one bargeload out of Cincinnati. The company has announced it will be buying again this year.

"Sunflowers are no miracle crop," warns Jim Green, Portage farmer and head of the world Sunflower Corp. However, they have advantages, he noted. If a long, wet spring makes it hard to put in soybeans, sunflowers, which require a shorter season, may be a good substitute. They may be a good second crop. They also have the merit of a deep tap root, like alfalfa, which loosens a tight soil.

There has been talk of a crushing plant for sunflower seed being built in Ohio, but it has not yet progressed beyond the talking stage. Meanwhile, Green's company is buying sunflower seed at Fostoria.

Farming today is a highly speculative business. It requires a large-scale operation and the ample capital for such an operation. But no matter how much capital you invest, crops are still at the mercy of the weather. An additional crop, especially one that has a short season and is not highly subject to pests, is attractive.

A good outlet for each crop is essential. For this reason, sunflower growers will welcome the moves toward the establishment of sunflower crushing and marketing facilities.

Too many 'klunks' as ambassadors?

Is President Reagan sacrificing statecraft to politics in his choice of ambassadors to represent the United States in foreign capitals? The American Foreign Service Association, an organization of present and former careerists in the State Department, thinks he is.

There is no denying that Mr. Reagan has filled more ambassadorships with "political" appointments than his recent predecessors saw fit to do. In the past, about 30 percent of a president's ambassadorial appointments have come from outside the ranks of career civil servants in the State Department.

Mr. Reagan so far has appointed 96 ambassadors, and 40 of them — or 42 percent — can be considered "political" appointments — usually Republicans and long-time Reagan supporters. This may irk career diplomats, but it is no basis for judging Mr. Reagan's approach to foreign relations or the quality of his appointments, singly or as a whole.

Indeed, the White House acknowledges that Mr. Reagan prefers to pick ambassadors from outside the government when he can find one with the right qualifications and interests for the post in question.

Obviously one qualification high on his list is that the ambassador will be someone he knows and can trust. As for the host countries, they should be pleased to welcome ambassadors who have a personal tie with the U.S. President — something the most experienced career diplomat may lack.

No president escapes criticism for his selection of ambassadors, regardless of how many appointments carry a "political" label. But there is a flavor of sour grapes in the complaints coming from the Foreign Service bureaucracy. Malcolm Toon, a careerist and former ambassador now retired, has accused the President of appointing "klunks" and "unqualified amateurs" to some key embassies — naming in particular London, Paris, Rome, and Mexico City. The course of U.S. relations with those countries will tell us more about the wisdom of Mr. Reagan's choices than trying to match them with Mr. Toon's standards of quality.

Besides, history suggests that the career Foreign Service is not immune to producing some real clunkers — or klunks, as Mr. Toon would have it.

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — When a presidential policy is universally assailed by experts whose ideological preferences range from conservative to liberal, the White House probably ought to pay attention to the criticism.

But President Reagan appears to be quite oblivious to the assessments of knowledgeable critics all across the political spectrum who have denigrated his energy policy as unworkable, short-sighted and potentially disastrous.

The extent to which responsible critics view the president's energy program as seriously flawed is illustrated by the concurrent distribution of two recent reports — one from a conservative "think tank" and one from a coalition of liberal and moderate public-interest organizations.

The conservative group is the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

A major power failure?

affiliated with Georgetown University here. Its book-length report is titled "The Critical Link: Energy and National Security in the 1980s."

The report issued by the coalition of energy, environmental, scientific, consumer and public-interest groups is considerably less ambitious but even more scathing in its analysis of "The Reagan Energy Plan: A Major Power Failure."

In discussing the imperative need for contingency planning to deal with likely energy crises in the future, the CSIS report says "President Reagan's program to achieve economic stability involves emasculating the Department of Energy, the most logical base for developing a response to threats to national energy security."

Noting that Reagan refuses to waiver from his absolute reliance upon "free market" mechanisms to allocate fuels — even in cases of major energy emergencies — CSIS says:

"It is dangerous not to have a (government-administered) backup plan should the market not work, however, because the initial reaction to a severe disruption of energy supplies will be panic."

Stressing the future importance of global energy security, the CSIS analysis is especially critical of Reagan:

"Despite the need for greater bilateral and multilateral international energy initiatives to deal with the energy crisis, there are disturbing indications that the Reagan administration may be retreating into an Energy Fortress America."

"Rather than moving forward and articulating a renewed approach to international energy policy such as was launched during the Ford and Carter administrations, this country seems to have retreated to an earlier era" under Reagan.

Finally, the CSIS report notes the need for increased emphasis on conservation — a major theme of the critique prepared by the coalition, which bluntly says "no evidence indicates that the Reagan administration understands the real nature of the energy problem."

Alleging that under the president's approach, "billions of dollars are (being) channeled into uneconomic and unproductive technologies," the coalition says the Reagan administration wrongly "believes that the nation's energy problem is one solely of increasing energy supply."

Among the sponsors of that report are the Federation for American Scientists, the Union of Concerned Scientists, the Costeau Society, the Environmental Defense Fund, Friends of the Earth, the National Audubon Society, the Sierra Club and the Natural Resources Defense Council.

The Reagan administration's 1983 budget proposals, the coalition notes, call for slashing energy-conservation programs by 98 percent from the 1980 level and cutting federal funding for renewable resources by 86 percent.

At the same time, the White House is pressing for continued heavy funding of the Clinch River Breeder Reactor, a project denounced by Office of Management and Budget Director David A. Stockman when he was a member of Congress as "totally incompatible with our free-market approach to energy."

When the Clinch River project was first proposed in 1970, it carried a price tag of $500 million. Twice that amount — $1 billion — already has been invested and the estimated cost of completion now stands at $3.5 billion.

"The Reagan administration," says one spokesman for the coalition, "is pouring billions of dollars into technological black holes that the private sector would never touch" while ignoring conservation and new energy sources.

Today in history

Today is Wednesday, May 5, the 125th day of 1982. There are 240 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On May 5, 1821, Napoleon Bonaparte died in exile on the island of St. Helena.

On this date: In 1570, Turkey declared war on Venice for refusing to surrender Cyprus.

In 1936, Italian forces occupied Addis Ababa, ending the Abyssinian (Ethiopian) war.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev angrily announced an American spy plane had been downed over the Soviet Union.

In 1978, the Red Brigades terrorist group announced in Italy they would carry out the death sentence against former Premier Aldo Moro, whose body was found two days later.

Russians back to potatoes?

By OSCAR COOLEY

Should the United States increase its production of nuclear weapons for defense? Ronald Reagan says, "Yes!" His budget reflects the opinion that we must have more such weapons to secure us against a sudden attack by Soviet Russia. But is such an attack likely?

Some want a mutual agreement by the U.S. and the USSR not to attack one another with nuclear weapons, but would the Russians keep such an agreement? Their track record in observing understandings is not good.

A more effective protection is the economic inferiority of Soviet Russia compared to the United States. There are signs that this is considerable. One is that Soviet consumers are being told by Moscow to eat less meat and dairy products and more potatoes and sugar — less expensive protein and more cheap carbohydrates. This indicates that meat, milk, butter and cheese are relatively scarce in Russia.

In this country, the government is not telling us to eat less of the nutritious high-protein foods, more starches and sugars. If it did, we would laugh — and buy another steak.

In fact, Washington recommends 5.78 pounds of poultry, meat and fish per week for a man, 4.12 pounds for a woman. In Russia the published 1981 norm, which was the force of law, was 172 pounds per person, or less than 3 1/2 pounds per week. These norms are sharply reduced from those of 5 years ago.

"It's back to potatoes and other high-calorie foods for soviet citizens in the coming years," said Yuri Markish, economist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

If Communist Russia cannot produce enough for its people to eat, is it likely to attack the United States?

The Russians like their meat. That they are grumbling at the restricted ration may well explain why the USSR increased its imports of farm products from $16.6 billion in 1980 to $20 billion last year, thinks Harlan J. Dirks, U.S. agricultural counselor in Moscow. He attributes only part of this rise to poor Soviet crops. "It is also due to the increasing demand by Soviet consumers for more and better food," he said. This is impelling the authorities to import more feed for livestock.

Reagan is being urged to restrict exports to Soviet Russia on the ground that this strengthens a country which is our rival and plots our destruction. American farmers would resent such restriction because it would cut the demand for their corn and cause a drop in prices, which are already hardly meeting their cost of production. They feel that what is good economy for them is also good for international relations. Much of Americans' distrust of the Soviets is due to a lack of understanding, thinks Henry Ziegler, who teaches the Russian language in an Ohio high school. He took part in an exchange of teachers with Soviet Russia and taught English at a high school in Moscow.

"Everything that's written in American newspapers or portrayed on TV about the Russians is bad," he said. Outside of politics, the Russians are pretty much like people everywhere else. They like the theater, literature and music. Their schools stress the basic courses, and their teachers require study and homework by the kids.

Ziegler is right, and so is Reagan. Our policy toward the Soviets should be, in the words of Teddy Roosevelt, "Speak softly and carry a big stick."

By PAUL HARVEY

It has been interesting to watch the law-enforced equal employment opportunity. Where women still do not get equal pay, the trend is that way.

And I observe most "difference" in the second generation of women in business, industry, journalism.

The second generation is as capable as, or more than, the first — but is trending "softer" again. Some women in television news demonstrate excellence.

So, by now an amendment is symbolic more than it is substantive. Maybe with this gesture we males will merely expunge our own consciences.

What is boils down to, I suppose, is that what we are about NOT to do, in effect, will tell women that they are "not equal."

Your lawmakers, legislators, by now have heard all the arguments about what will happen if we do. I have heard the arguments, too.

But the bottom line has become: If nothing happens in the next eight weeks, you will have voted that women are NOT equal.

And it occurred to me, if tardily, that I really don't want to do that. And it occurred to me that you might not want to either.

The states which can make the difference within the next 60 days are Oklahoma, Illinois, Florida and North Carolina. Southern states.

Southern statesmen, characteristically more deferential toward women, have also been militant defenders of our Constitution as is. Our nation is forever in their debt for that.

But there are discrepancies in other states where the male-female relationship will not be adjudicated equitably unless there is constitutional authority.

Yet, I confess that is not the rationalization for my own late-hour reconsideration.

It was a sequence of things which have been happening in the news recently.

What finally moved me off dead center was perhaps more emotional than intellectual.

If I were a woman reading any day's paper, I would be resentful as all hell that our laws are so generous with everybody else...

We forgive criminals, embrace illegal immigrants, kowtow to the gimme-gimmes...

Any hophead can get a free ride through three layers of jurisprudence demanding his "rights" —

And constitutionally, I, a woman, don't rate as high as that sleazy night crawler!

And lawmakers — most of you lawyers — respectfully I ask that you think hard on this:

You are well aware of the almost biding persuasiveness of precedent. If you let this last chance pass, in any court of law henceforth, it can and will be argued:

"Your Honor, it has been decided in the case of the women versus the people in 1982 that women do not have equal rights under our law."

Thank you.

"Al, thanks for coming by. How's the ol' shuttle diplomacy comin' along?"

Arkansas roadblock provokes mixed reaction

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — Police say a 24-hour roadblock that netted more than 240 arrests was a success. But some out-of-staters who found themselves in the drunk tank of the St. Francis County Jail weren't sold on the idea.

State police manning the roadblock which ended at 6 p.m. Tuesday, arrested — among others — drunken drivers, speedy motorists, drug law violators and illegal Mexican aliens in a crackdown on traffic violators and vehicles carrying contraband. Officers also issued warnings to 205 motorists.

Officers set up the roadblock, which ended at 6 p.m. Tuesday, 1.5 miles east of this north Arkansas city.

Some motorists tossed marijuana out of cars on the westbound side of the interstate after they spotted the police check. "Come back out here in a month or two," one trooper said, "and we'll harvest the volunteer crop of marijuana that's going to be growing."

At first, the jail was so packed, offenders had to stay in a drunk tank. But by Tuesday night, most had posted bond, and jailers had moved the remaining 22 offenders to 30-by-50-foot cells that hold about 10 double bunk beds each. Forty other inmates also were in the jail, which has a capacity of about 75.

"It's just all comical to me," jailer E.J. Jones said in a telephone interview Tuesday night. "They just come in here and they'll be cussing because they're being locked up. I just cuss back at 'em and agree with them and blame it on the state troopers, and then that way we get to be friends."

Jones put in a 17-hour shift Monday and reported back to work seven hours later Tuesday. "It was pretty hectic," he said.

Among those arrested were 49 for drug-related infractions. Three narcotics agents said they used instinct in deciding which cars to search for drugs. But assisting them was Murfy, a dog who sniffed out caches of drugs.

Jones said almost everyone cooperated except for the offenders. "The ones charged with possession were the ones raising cane," he said. "They were just griping about having dogs out there sniffing. They said it wasn't legal and things like that."

Police arrested motorists from several states, including Alabama, California, Texas and Florida. "One bunch of them said it was the first time they ever run up on something like that," Jones said. "They said they weren't come back. They said if they'd known what was going to happen, they wouldn't have come to Arkansas."

Immigration officials picked up eight Mexicans arrested for being in the United States illegally. Jones said the Mexicans were carrying false identification and couldn't speak English well. "So, we just listed them all as John Does."

121 illegal aliens detained

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service agents have detained 121 illegal aliens in Brazos County, many of whom worked for local construction companies.

An INS spokesman said the raid on Tuesday was the largest here in five years. INS supervisor Juventino Garcia said the raid was not related to "Operation Jobs," a nationwide roundup last week that has drawn international criticism.

Garcia said the raid was also the second largest in his 81-county San Antonio district. Many of those detained were family members of workers, he said.

INS investigators, accompanied by Brazos County sheriff's deputies, began the raid early Tuesday morning. Agents said that they had captured 76 aliens by noon.

The prisoners were marched in pairs to jails, officers said. Garcia said 54 aliens and their family members were taken by bus to San Antonio, before traveling to Eagle Pass for return to Mexico.

VICTIM AT SESSION. Secret Service Agent Tim McCarthy faces reporters outside the United States Courthouse near the U.S. Capitol in Washington Tuesday after his testimony in the trial of accused presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. "I was trying to put myself between the area of apparent danger and the president," testified McCarthy of the March 30, 1981 shooting.

Bullock says his public image may have lost him votes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock says his own public image and his opponent's famous name might have accounted for the votes he lost in his Democratic primary victory.

At a Tuesday news conference, Bullock thanked reporters for helping voters figure out which Robert Calvert he was running against.

"You've had a Calvert on the ballot for 40 years in Texas," Bullock said.

The Calvert on the ballot Saturday was Robert C. Calvert of Hurst, who has never held elected office. Bullock said some voters might have confused that Robert Calvert with former Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert and the late Robert S. Calvert, who preceded Bullock as comptroller.

Bullock also said the 33 percent of the vote he lost could have been due to his own image.

"And then let's look at Bob Bullock's liabilities... a former lobbyist, an admitted alcoholic, a man who's got judgments against him, a man who some say abused his office over there."

"I believe I've read that in the newspapers and heard that on the television and radio a time or two. So I would hardly say that if you throw all the composite characteristics about what's been said about me into a computer you'd come out with just the big all-American man to be a candidate for public office."

"But I've done my job, and I think the people of Texas distinguish that from those names and those initials on that ballot," he said.

Robert C. Calvert — the one beaten by Bullock — will support Bullock's general election campaign against GOP nominee Sen. Mike Richards of Sugarland, according to the comptroller.

Robert W. Calvert, the former chief justice, also is a Bullock supporter.

And, Bullock said, "I would further hope that if Mr. Robert S. Calvert were still living, he would support me too."

Asked about his GOP opponent, Bullock said, "Who's Mike Richards?"

"My polls show only 17.7 percent of the people in Texas know him today," he said, adding that the poll showed a 78.6 percent name identification factor for Bullock.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals...call for in-Depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Gramm doesn't want unacceptable budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas says he hopes the Boll Weevils succeed in coming up with a good 1983 budget by working with House Budget Committee chairman Jim Jones, but he adds, "I'm prepared to work with anybody, anytime."

"I am not prepared to have this body choose between two unacceptable proposals. I intend to see that such a package is offered in the committee and is offered on the floor," said Gramm, a Democrat.

His comments came Tuesday afternoon after he and 19 other members of the Conservative Democratic Forum, also known as "Boll Weevils," agreed unanimously to work with Jones, D-Okla., toward a budget that "will meet the test of fiscal responsibility."

Gramm last year cast the lone dissenting Democratic vote in the Budget Committee to the budget legislation that was reported out of the panel. Later, he became the Democratic sponsor of President Reagan's budget legislation that became law, thanks to support from the Boll Weevils.

"I agree that our primary focus has to be with Jim Jones in the Budget Committee," Gramm said, "and if we can come out of the Budget Committee with a good package, that would be the most effective way of handling it," said Gramm, a former economics professor at Texas A&M.

Gramm made it plain he will be quick to offer his own proposal in committee and on the House floor if other plans result in too high a deficit or have other major flaws.

He said he spoke with officials at the White House last week after Reagan's budget negotiations with Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill broke off.

"They said the president would be contacting responsible Democrats, and that since they regarded CDF members as responsible Democrats they would be approaching us to see what we would and would not support," Gramm added.

The chairman of the Boll Weevils, R. Charles Stenholm of Texas, said he feels agreement on the 1983 budget will be reached within a week.

"This economy is sick, and I sense a feeling by many members of the Congress, of both parties, that we need to turn it around. That's why I continue to be optimistic we are going to be moving quickly," said Stenholm, a Stamford Democrat.

Weep not for the willow: it may have own defenses

SEATTLE (AP) — Certain trees may give off a chemical that acts as an early warning system to fellow members of their species in case of an insect attack, a scientist believes.

David Rhoades, a University of Washington zoology research associate, said in an interview Tuesday that he reached that conclusion after three years of studies on willows and alders.

The results of the studies were presented recently to the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society as part of a symposium on plants' natural protective mechanisms.

Rhoades said his theory could explain periodic surges and crashes in populations of insects that prey on trees.

He said discovery of the chemicals and their workings could bring benefit forest management and pest control.

"...if plants do generally communicate, or are sensitive to neighboring plants being attacked, and if you could see an attack on Douglas fir by tussock moths, you could turn the plants 'on prematurely' to deter the moths, Rhoades said.

Rhoades developed his theory after he and researchers from Finland and Switzerland set out to find the answer to the boom-and-bust populations of insects such as tent caterpillars. The search led to the insects' food supply — trees.

Rhoades and Lynn Erckmann, a research technician at the University of Washington, took leaves from willows and alders that were infested with tent caterpillars and fed them to tent caterpillars in a lab.

The scientists found that when trees were exposed to tent caterpillars their leaves produced chemicals that make greenery harder to digest.

The growth rate of the lab caterpillars slowed, but caterpillars fed leaves from trees not yet hit with the pests didn't show slower growth.

The researchers made an additional discovery: Lab insects had a slower growth rate if they were fed leaves from willows that were not infested but lived near infested willows.

Leaves taken off trees about a mile away from infested trees didn't have the same slowing effect as did leaves from trees closer to the infested ones, the researchers said.

Two arrested in truck hijack

WINNIE, Texas (AP) — Two Houston-area men were jailed on $150,000 bonds each in connection with the hijacking of a tractor-trailer rig loaded with groceries and bound for a Port Arthur food store.

Warner Foster, 33, of Houston and Fred McCormick Jr., 34, of Humble were charged with aggravated robbery and appeared before Justice of the Peace Mary Dugat Tuesday. The two were transferred to the Jefferson County Jail in Beaumont.

The driver of the grocery truck apparently was forced to drive toward Beaumont, followed by a car, said David Hawthorne, chief deputy for the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department.

Hawthorne said the truck was stopped about 8:30 a.m. Tuesday after a chase by sheriff's officers from Jefferson and Chambers counties at Texas 124 and FM 1985, eight miles south of Winnie.

"The vehicles headed south on Texas 124," he said. "The suspect in the truck jumped (from) the truck and ran and was apprehended on foot."

Average person not topic in Reaganomics debates

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the running debate over Reaganomics, the vocabulary tends to run to extremes — the rich, the poor, the greedy, the needy. The "average" person doesn't seem to get mentioned very much.

That strikes a strange note in a country that is supposed

Republicans not very comfortable

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress belatedly begins drafting a new federal budget, Republicans are crowing that they have the Democrats in an election-year corner as advocates of increased spending and higher taxes.

Maybe so, but the Republican corner isn't very comfortable, either. The recession persists, unemployment is high, and the pollsters report President Reagan's job approval ratings down.

Those are not promising circumstances as Reagan seeks to reassemble his old team of congressional Republicans and conservative Democrats to pass the kind of budget he wants.

"I am convinced that we are in the trough, as it is called, of this recession, and that we will begin to see recovery in the second half of the year," Reagan said in his speech on the budget.

That may not be soon enough for Republican campaign purposes.

It takes three to make a budget, a president, the Senate and the House. Since the first two are Republican and the House is Democratic, the debate may become what all sides say they don't want: a sharply partisan debate that will have more to do with the coming elections than with economics.

Efforts at budget compromise collapsed after an April-long effort. Republican congressional leaders say they're going to try again. Rep. Richard Bollings, D-Mo., a key Democratic negotiator, said he still wants to work with the administration and the Republicans on a bipartisan budget.

Democratic congressional leaders say any acceptable compromise will have to be fair, by which they mean it must ease curbs and cuts on social spending. Reagan says it must be responsible, meaning spending has to be cut, defense appropriations maintained at levels that won't delay the rebuilding of the military, and "our tax reductions adopted last year must be preserved."

Each side blames the other for the record deficits now in prospect.

to have a vast middle class of "average" people.

Of course, averages that look sensible enough on a page of statistics can turn into absurdities in the real world. There are no families with 2.2 children, no households with 1.4 cars in the garage.

Stock traders will readily testify how sharply their individual experience can differ from what the market averages say.

And the captain who enters a harbor knowing only the average depth of the water can easily run his ship aground.

But surely the "average" person is a powerful force in the American economy, isn't he? The evidence suggests otherwise, according to Bryant Robey, editor of American Demographics magazine.

In 1980, Robey pointed out, the median family income in the United States was $17,709 a year. But only 13 percent of the nation's households actually had incomes of $15,000 to $20,000.

They were outnumbered both by families making more than $32,000, and by those making less than $10,000.

As the American economy has grown more and more complicated, the population figures indicate, it also has grown more fragmented.

"Because we live in vastly different economic circumstances," Robey wrote, "we perceive the world differently, we purchase different products, and we expect different policies from our political leaders."

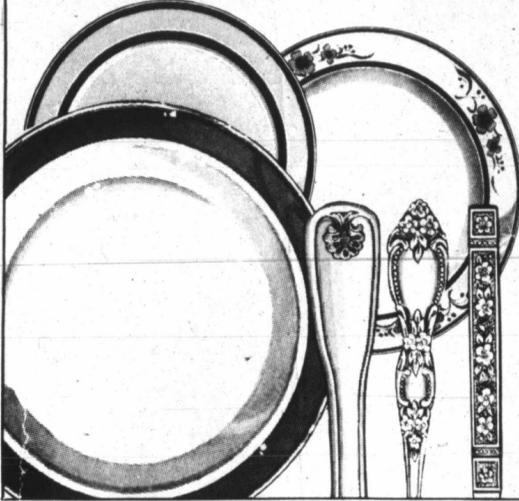

He noted that the government lists 13 percent of the country's households as poor — with income below $4,310 for a single person, or $8,450 for a family of four. Of the families receiving food stamps, says the Census Bureau, 37 percent have no financial assets other than the value of their homes.

"At the other end of the scale, most people making six-digit salaries probably feel affluent," Robey said. "But many among the 19 percent of U.S. households that have an annual income over $30,000 do not feel affluent at all — particularly if they are trying to send their children to college or buy a new automobile."

Cattle, hog prices up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says livestock producers "are showing the first sustainable positive feeding margins" in nearly three years, but stops short of predicting a major price boom in 1982.

Moreover, the department's Economic Research Service said Monday that the higher cattle and hog prices soon will be showing up at consumer meat counters.

By late April, hog prices were up by more than 25 percent since the first of the year, and steer prices by 15 percent, the department's Economic Research Service said.

"In spite of continued weakness in consumers' purchasing power, the primary reason for the higher animal prices is the sharp reduction in meat output that has resulted from poor feeding margins (profits)," the report said.

As the market prices of live animals rose, the middleman margins — also called the farm-to-retail price spread — became smaller. That was because wholesale and retail meat prices did not go up as rapidly as the prices paid for live cattle and hogs. Traditionally, retail prices "are usually less volatile" than livestock prices, the report said.

"Live animal prices have continued to rise in April," it said. "Consequently, higher prices and marketing charges will likely be passed on to consumers in coming months."

Total red meat and poultry production during the first quarter of 1982 dropped 3 percent from the same period of last year. During the rest of the year, output "will likely drop 4 to 5 percent from 1981," the report said.

Consumer spendable income is not expected to improve until after the July 1 tax cut. A further increase in spendable income should come from economic improvement later this year.

Meanwhile, according to the economists, retail meat prices are expected to rise through mid-summer, with beef and poultry prices probably stabilizing by August and September as supplies increase.

For the year, consumers probably will pay 3 percent to 4 percent more for beef and poultry than they did in 1981 and 10 percent to 12 percent more for pork, the report said.

Department economists say that on an all-cut basis, retail beef prices averaged a record $2.39 a pound in 1981. Pork was a record of more than $1.52 a pound.

Looking at the market situation, the report said the average price of choice steers on the Omaha, Neb., market averaged $63.36 per 100 pounds in the first quarter of this year and is expected to edge up to the $66 to $70 range in the remainder of 1982.

Hog prices at major markets were projected to hold fairly steady in the range of $53 to $57 per 100 pounds the remainder of the year, compared to $48.17 in the first three months.

Broiler prices were projected at a wholesale average of around 45 to 51 cents a pound, compared to 44.8 cents in the first quarter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public interest group has asked the Agriculture Department to stop requiring the Social Security numbers of needy families whose children get free or reduced-price school lunches.

Rodney E. Leonard, executive director of the Community Nutrition Institute, said the rule is an invasion of privacy and asked that states which comply with the order be told to cease gathering the information.

Leonard made his request in a letter to Agriculture Secretary John R. Block. The institute is a non-profit group active in consumer and food issues.

The department's Food and Nutrition Service's regional offices issued the order last December. There was no public announcement through normal Agriculture Department channels here.

Leonard said the rule sprang from a provision in last year's budget act, in which Congress decided that requiring the Social Security numbers as a condition for free or reduced-price school lunches would help curb abuses and track down violators.

Oatmeal-nut or raisin-bran cookies

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor
Brown-bagging is a way of life for millions of Americans. For some, taking lunch to work is a daily ritual. Others brown-bag occasionally.

Aside from the usual range of sandwiches, brown-baggers enjoy cottage cheese, fruits, strips of vegetables, hot soup and a sweet or two.

Oatmeal-nut or raisin-bran cookies travel well and fit into the brown-bagger's diet quite well, too. They're also good to have on hand for after-school snacks for youngsters to eat with fruit juice or milk.

OATMEAL-NUT COOKIES

- 3 cups quick oats
- 1 cup unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon

- 1 baking soda
- cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 3/4 cup real mayonnaise
- 1 egg
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 cup chopped walnuts

In medium bowl, stir together oats, flour, cinnamon and baking soda. In large bowl with mixer at high speed, beat sugar, mayonnaise, egg and vanilla 2 minutes. Reduce speed to low; beat in oats mixture until well-blended. Stir in walnuts.

Drop by level tablespoons 3 inches apart on greased cookie sheets. Bake in 350-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Immediately transfer to wire rack; cool. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 4 dozen cookies.

Raisin-Bran Cookies: Follow recipe for Oatmeal-Nut Cookies. Omit oats and walnuts. Use 3 cups bran cereal and 1 cup raisins.

Dear Abby

Woman's not the man she used to be

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman signed "Nervous in Northridge" caught my eye. She said she had a baby boy who was so beautiful that strangers used to stop her on the street and say, "That child is much too beautiful to be a boy, he should have been a girl!"

As a baby boy I was never particularly beautiful, but dating back to my earliest recollections, I always felt that I should have been a girl.

As I matured, those feelings became so strong and painful that I often considered suicide rather than living the rest of my life in the "wrong" sex.

When I was 31, I wrote to you about my problem and you recommended a Dr. Paul Walker, who practiced gender identification therapy in San Francisco.

I went to see him, and after several months, he confirmed that I was a bona fide transsexual. I decided to do whatever was necessary to become a woman physically. Dr. Walker explained what it entailed, and he guided me through the necessary stages.

The transition hasn't been easy, but it saved my life, and now I have a body that matches my mind and emotions. Best of all, I no longer have to pray to be a woman — I am one.

FROM HARRY TO HARRIETTE

DEAR ABBY: Last week I received an engraved invitation to my niece's wedding. Enclosed was a mimeographed letter. When I read it I couldn't believe my eyes. It said: "Gift suggestion: Because the bride and groom have everything they need, an ideal gift would be something that can be put into a pocket or purse." (I later learned that this letter was included in all the invitations — not only to family members.)

Abby, the bride's family is extremely wealthy, but even if they were in modest circumstances, is it proper to send a "gift suggestion" along with an invitation?

I believe that a gift is just that — a gift — and I prefer to select a gift myself, but now I feel that I no longer have that option. How should I respond?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Ignore the "suggestion," and select your own gift. It is never proper to "suggest" a gift, unless, of course, the giver asks for suggestions.

DEAR ABBY: Mother's Day will soon be here, and I wish you would say something in your column to remind "young marrieds" to remember their mothers-in-law, too — even if it's only a card or a note. There were so many years when I should have remembered my mother-in-law, but I was too "busy."

This year I will send her a spray of flowers — to the cemetery — bitterly regretting that I failed to send her flowers while she was living. I should have appreciated her more, written her more about her grandchildren, whom she loved so much, and most of all I should have let her know how much I had grown to love her.

I hope others will not make the same mistake I made, because next year may be too late.

May - National Foot Health Month

Caution: Foot pain is not normal

AUSTIN - More than 11 million Texans will suffer foot problems at some point in their lives, according to figures released by the Texas Podiatry Association for National Foot Health Month, observed nationwide in May.

"Based on the fact that 87 percent of all Americans have foot problems, we actually consider this a conservative estimate for Texas," said Dr. James L. Nelson, president of the Texas Podiatry Association (TPA).

In an effort to reduce that figure, the TPA is alerting Texans this month to the fact that foot pain is not normal, and can usually be alleviated quickly and easily by a podiatrist. Unfortunately, since most people are used to living with their aching feet, few do anything to help themselves.

"It's a real problem," said Nelson. "The psychology of the American is, for some reason, to ignore foot pain. Yet, if we had one-tenth the pain in another part of our body, we'd run to the doctor to find out what's wrong. Foot problems can cause pain throughout the entire body, and have serious repercussions. We must educate people that foot pain can be greatly reduced, if not completely eradicated, by a podiatrist."

Such repercussions often include reduced job efficiency, reduced physical activity, increased headaches and backaches and, sometimes, complete immobility. Some sobering facts about feet include:

Clock Watching: Tired feet are a psychological killer. They can cause people to tire early on the job, become clock-watchers and be more susceptible to injury.

Athletic Injury: Improperly balanced feet can cause the entire body to shift its weight to a posture that favors the problem. When an athlete runs, his feet hit the ground 800 times per mile; therefore, every wrong move is repeated thousands of times in a long run.

Cranky Kids: Most foot deformities, such as flat feet and pronation are passed down from generation to generation as genetic weaknesses. Negligence in seeking proper care — especially for children — can aggravate the weakness and bring on the predisposed deformity. Since more than 40 percent of all children have foot problems by the time they're 6 years old.

Immobility: Senior citizens are becoming an even greater segment of the American public. If they are to live useful and satisfying lives, they must be mobile. Unfortunately, foot ailments, (often caused by arthritis), make it difficult and often impossible for them to work or participate in social activities.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

This coming year your opportunities are likely to come from situations in which you are already involved, rather than from new areas. Make the most of where you are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are contemplating a job change, don't act too hastily. Know what you are getting into before making a move and be sure it's a step up. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's possible that, lately, your social life hasn't been all you hoped it would be. Beginning now, rectify this by meeting and mingling with new groups.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before moving ahead with any new projects or ventures today, bring to a conclusion ones in which you're already involved. Let nothing overlap.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take affirmative action today regarding ideas or concepts you now have which you think could better your lot in life. Nothing ventured, nothing gained.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is a possibility you haven't fully explored or developed two channels which could add to your income or enhance your security. Do so now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ventures or enterprises you originate or personally direct have better-than-usual chances for success at this time, so don't wait on others to get the ball rolling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are blessed with keen intuition and perception, and often arrive at accurate conclusions through other than deductive methods. This could be true today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have a far greater influence over your peer group at this time than you may realize, so take care your input is positive rather than negative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Much can be done at this time to bring you closer to victory concerning two important goals. Proceed with vigor. Keep your targets in sight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Over the years you have acquired some valuable knowledge and skills. Perhaps you're not using them to maximum advantage. Look for better uses.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Don't be resistant to change at this time. Altering conditions which may appear to have no promise could be laden with hidden benefits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Decisions you make today that could affect others as well as yourself must be carefully considered. They could have far-reaching effects.

VOLLEYBALL COACH RESIGNS. Pampa High girls' volleyball coach Lynn Wolfe, shown discussing strategy with a player during a match this past season, has announced her resignation after 10 years at the Lady Harvesters' helm. Under coach Wolfe, the Lady Harvesters won District 3-5A titles in 1973, '74 and '77 and twice were district co-champions. Mrs. Wolfe said she plans to seek reassignment elsewhere in the Pampa school system. Harvester swim coach Jackie Stephens has also resigned, but she also plans to remain with the school system in a teaching position. No replacements have been named yet for the two coaches.

Region 1-1A tennis tourney opens today

Mark Higginbotham and Wayne Smith of Miami are among the doubles hopefuls competing in the Region 1-1A Tennis Tournament which opens today in Levelland.

The doubles crown has been left up for grabs. Only Steve Falcon of Sanderson, a member of last year's third-place winners, returns.

Tracy Britten of Groom will also be vying for a singles spot in next weekend's state tournament.

Brett Maxfield of Booker returns to defend his regional championship.

The finals are set for 10 a.m. Thursday.

Celtics, 76ers, Spurs can clinch conference semifinals tonight

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Celtics are always tough at home. Tonight they figure to be even tougher for the Washington Bullets.

"I hope they fall asleep and go off form," Washington guard Kevin Grevey says hopefully, "but I don't really think it'll happen."

Grevey reflects the popular opinion as the Bullets try to do the improbable — come back from a 1-3 deficit in their seven-game National Basketball Association Eastern playoff series.

If they are to overtake the league's defending champions, they'll have to start tonight at Boston Garden, where the Celtics had a 35-6 record during the regular season.

Ironically, the Bullets' only victory over the Celtics in this quarterfinal series — and their only win over Boston in the last 13 games — came in the Celtics' arena last Wednesday night.

A Celtics' win tonight will advance them to the Eastern finals, where they expect to meet the Philadelphia 76ers. The 76ers hold a 3-1 edge over the Milwaukee Bucks going into tonight's fifth game in Philadelphia.

In the other quarterfinal game, the San Antonio Spurs hope to clinch their Western series against the Seattle SuperSonics. A win tonight in Game 5 will put them into their division finals against the Los Angeles Lakers, which earlier swept the Phoenix Suns in four games.

"If we beat this team Wednesday," said

Boston forward Kevin McHale, "I'll be very thankful. They're making us play our best basketball... That team is so much better now than it was two months ago."

The 76ers expect to see Milwaukee try to clog the middle and keep Julius Erving from driving. The Bucks have been double-teaming Erving and jump shooter Andrew Toney, who has done a fine job replacing the injured Lionel Hollins in the 76ers' starting lineup.

Caldwell Jones, the 76ers' 7-foot forward who is counted upon for rebounding and defense, upset the Milwaukee game plan by scoring 20 points Sunday in Game 4, most of them on 15-foot jumpers.

Jones said he expects the Bucks to employ the same tactics.

"If I'm hitting," he says, "it takes the pressure off everybody else."

The San Antonio-Seattle series has been a tight one. All three of the Spurs' victories have been by two points.

"We're playing well, just not well enough to win," Seattle center Jack Sikma says. "We still feel we can take three (remaining) games, but we have to concentrate on one at a time."

"There can be no coasting," San Antonio guard George Gervin says. "I'm confident, but not cocky. There is no room for being cocky in this league. That will eat you up."

Gervin was perhaps remembering 1979, when the Spurs led the Bullets 3-1 and then lost the next three straight and the opportunity to play in the NBA finals for the first time.

Hometown favorite hopes to be crowd pleaser at Houston Open

HOUSTON (AP) — Hometown favorite Fred Couples was just warming up to the professional golf tour a year ago during the tour's annual stop at Woodlands Country Club for the Houston Open.

The former University of Houston star, hoping to impress the home crowd in his rookie season, had his moment of glory abruptly halted when he failed to make the cut.

But what a difference a year has made for the personable Seattle native, who lines up for a second try beginning Thursday on the carefully manicured 7,071-yard West course.

It was after the Houston Open last year that Couples started playing the way he had hoped to play here.

Couples broke from the gates after Houston last year with four top 10 finishes to earn $78,939, the most of any 1981 rookie. He finished 53rd overall to take his own out of the rabbit class for the 1982 tour.

The Scrubs and Super Goofs are not what their names imply going into the final three weeks of the season in the Harvester All-Stars Youth League at Harvester Lanes.

Both teams have impressive 31-13 records and are deadlocked for first place in the 10-team league. The Scrubs are led by Cliff Holland and his 169 average while Greg Vanderlinden paces the Super Goofs with a 134 average.

"Other Scrubs' members and their averages are Steve Seely 155, Greg Wilkins 154, Chris Leonard 147 and Robert Yearwood 143. Also bowling for the Super Goofs are Jon Roe 118, Zane Roe 112, Steven Minyard 98 and Regina Vanderlinden 60.

Vanderlinden owns high series (591) and Holland has high game (255) in the boys' division. In the girls' division, Kelli Wells of the Strike Ball Express has both high series (562) and high game (224).

Carolyn Hoskins has bowled eleven 600 series, including a high of 647, at Harvester Lanes. Grace Brent has collected nine 600 series and a high of 622. Faye Mayhall's 659 in November of 1978 has been high series in the women's division. Mrs. Mayhall has had three 600s.

Entry deadline is fast approaching for the third annual Pampa Merchants Classic at Harvester Lanes. Entry fee is $30 and may be submitted to tournament director Buddy Epperson or Harvester Lanes. The 10-game qualifying round is scheduled for 3 p.m. May 15 with the set for May 16, starting at 2 p.m.

Entry deadline is May 13 or when 40 entries are accepted. First priority will be given to bowlers who entered the Classic last year.

Allie Brandt, a professional bowler who set a world record which still stands when he rolled an 886 series in 1939 at Lockport, N.Y., died in Lockport April 17 after being stricken at his home. He was 79.

Brandt rolled a 297-289-300 series on Oct. 25, 1939, scoring 33 out of a possible 36 strikes. Brandt was elected to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame in 1960. He was a charter member of the Professional Bowlers Association.

Vada McLaughlin of Borger holds down third place in the Class A all-events division at the Texas Women's Bowling Association (TWBA) Tournament in Lubbock.

McLaughlin had a nine-game total of 1,652.

The tournament has been going for six weeks.

Pittsburgh ends Atlanta's road streak

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

All good things must come to an end...like the Atlanta Braves' unbeaten road streak.

And all bad things must come to an end, too...like Tom Seaver's winless skein.

After missing much of spring training with a pulled thigh muscle and a severe virus and then dropping his first three starts, Seaver finally recorded his first victory of the season Tuesday night, holding Houston to four hits and one run in seven innings as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Astros 5-2.

"I had some consistency. I had decent control and decent movement on the ball," said Seaver, who blanked the Astros on two hits until the seventh, using off-speed pitches early, then going to his fast ball. "I started to get tired in the sixth inning. I felt some fatigue setting in. I felt a little wobbly."

Meanwhile, the Braves finally lost after winning their first nine road games, bowing to the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-4.

In other National League games, Los Angeles edged New York 2-1, San Diego trimmed Montreal 7-3, Philadelphia whipped San Francisco 9-4 and St. Louis Cardinals beat Chicago 7-4.

Cesar Cedeno and Dan Driessen collected three hits apiece to pace the Reds' attack against Houston. Cedeno singled home a pair of runs in the first inning. Driessen and Johnny Bench added RBI singles and Wayne Krenchicki delivered a sacrifice fly, while Seaver and Tom Hume checked the Astros on six hits.

Pirates 8, Braves 4
Mike Easler hit the first grand slam home run of his career to cap a five-run third inning and Omar Moreno collected four hits, scored three times and stole two bases as Pittsburgh halted a four-game losing streak. The Braves wasted home runs by Dale Murphy, Glenn Hubbard and Bob Horner. Rookie Joe Cogley was the losing pitcher.

Dodgers 2, Mets 1
Dusty Baker's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning broke a 1-1 tie. Fernando Valenzuela, who snapped a personal two-game losing streak with a seven-hitter, set up the winning run with a leadoff single off relief ace Neil Allen. Steve Sax sacrificed and when Allen threw wildly past first the runners went to second and third.

At that point, Derrel Thomas ran for Valenzuela and Steve Garvey was intentionally walked to load the bases. Baker, who started the night hitless in 17 at-bats, lofted a long fly ball to center over the drawn-in Mets' outfield for the winning run. Mookie Wilson of the Mets had four hits, the first batter ever to get that many in a game off Valenzuela, but New York's John Stearns went hitless in four at-bats to snap his hitting streak at 15 games, longest in the majors this season.

Padres 7, Expos 3
First-inning home runs by Garry Templeton and Sixto Lezcano helped unbeaten Tim Lollar, who went 61-3 in innings, to his third victory of the season — the Padres have won all six games he has started — while winless Ray Burris suffered his fifth defeat.

Templeton's first home run as a Padre came on an 0-2 pitch from Burris and followed a one-out single by Juan Bonilla. After Ruppert Jones beat out a bunt but was caught stealing, Lezcano hit his third homer for a 3-0 lead. The Expos got a run in the fifth on Tim Wallach's homer, San Diego picked up two unearned runs in its half of the inning on throwing errors by Burris and Montreal catcher Gary Carter.

Phillies 9, Giants 4
Steve Carlton won his third straight game after starting the season by losing four in a row, striking out 10 batters in seven innings and hitting a three-run homer. Philadelphia's George Vukovich hit his first home run of the season, a three-run blast in the fifth off Rich Gale to break a 4-4 tie and the Phillies won their third game in a row for the first time this season.

Rangers continue losing streak

DETROIT (AP) — A sullen silence hung over the visitors' clubhouse in Tiger Stadium as Texas Manager Don Zimmer tried to explain the play that extended the Rangers' losing streak to 10 games.

The Rangers had every reason to be dejected after committing three errors Tuesday night and dropping a 3-3 decision to Detroit, despite battling back from a 3-1 deficit.

Suddenly a tremendous explosion of sound rocked the room, startling Zimmer and reporters in his small office.

"Don't get excited," Zimmer said. "It's a wonder somebody ain't done it by now."

Later, a blue metal trainer's trunk — filled with bottles and jars — lay battered and beaten in the middle of the dressing room floor, where it had been flung. Just who caused the commotion was in dispute.

It really didn't matter. The hurt of the Rangers' worst streak since 1976 obviously was deep. They had wasted a combined four-hit pitching effort by Frank Tanana and Danny Darwin, 2-1.

"What can I say, Tanana went out and pitched good again," Zimmer lamented.

"They get one run because we miss the cutoff man and they get the game-winner unearned because (Kirk) Gibson makes a terrific slide to take out our second baseman on a double play ball."

With the score tied 3-3, Chet Lemon led off the Detroit eighth with a walk and went to second when Darwin walked Gibson intentionally. Larry Herndon grounded to Buddy Bell at third who flipped to second baseman Doug Flynn, forcing Gibson. But Gibson's slide wiped out Flynn, whose wild throw to first for an error allowed Lemon to score the winning run.

Flynn had to be carried from the field on a stretcher, but he later walked from the stadium and was driven to Henry Ford Hospital for further examination of his right shoulder. Flynn said later by telephone he didn't think his shoulder was broken.

"That's what Gibby does," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "He looks to get down there and break up the double play. That's what put you in left field.

"What's going to happen is guys are going to start clearing out of there (when Gibson's coming down the line at them). It's already happening."

Texas grabbed a 1-0 lead on rookie George Wright's

first-inning home run.

Lance Parrish evened it in the Detroit fourth with his third homer of the season — a solo shot. John Wockenuss then walked and scored on Tom Brookens' double.

JACK HIGHTOWER
13TH DISTRICT TEXAS

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
WASHINGTON, D. C. 20515

Dear Friends,

It has been my honor to serve as your Congressman for almost eight years now. Before that, I served for twelve years in the Texas House and Senate. I am now grateful for your continued support and for the faith you've shown in re-electing me as your advocate in Washington.

This year, I again need your help to continue our effort to provide you competent, personalized representation. With your help, I want to continue the fight to cut runaway government spending, balance the budget, rebuild our national defense and restore the economy to health. As a member of the House Appropriations Committee, I am in a unique position to translate your concerns into action.

I've traveled continually throughout our huge district and know many of you and your families on a first-name basis. I've answered thousands of your letters, visited you at home and at work, and spoken to your organizations. I've fought hard to find solutions for your problems. And I've spoken for you in the halls of Congress and throughout the large, impersonal federal bureaucracy.

We've accomplished a great deal together. There is still much to be done. We must reduce the federal deficit and balance the budget to lower interest rates and provide a stable, productive economy. We must strengthen the pillars that support the basic economy of the 13th Congressional District: agriculture, energy and ranching and we must eliminate the excessive federal tax bite for the petroleum industry. We must lower the record defense rates that are strangling our small businesses. We must strengthen our defense so that no hostile nation can threaten the precious freedom we've won at so great a cost. And we must continue the fight to make government the Servant, not the Master, of our people.

The key issues in the November election are these:

1. Who has the personal experience, the knowledge of the district, and the legislative ability to fight and win your battles in Congress?
2. Who has the kind of respect and influence with the leaders of both parties in Washington and Austin that ensures your voice is heard?
3. Who has a proven record of legislative and personal accomplishment that will benefit the people of the 13th District of Texas?

We face difficult times, both as individuals and as a Nation. We do not expect to find any easy answers to the problems of our economy, or to the troubling domestic and foreign issues we face.

But I believe our greatest days are yet to come. Competence. An Open Door. Solid, responsible, respected representation.

My pledge to you is simple: Honest, tireless service. Competence. An Open Door. Solid, responsible, respected representation.

As we open our campaign, I know that I will be talking to many of you in the coming days. I will also be listening.

I ask for your continued faith, support and vote in the November election.

Sincerely,
Jack Hightower

The king of swing, Benny Goodman, celebrated his 73rd birthday at a Long Island radio station with some old friends.

Suffolk County Executive Peter Cahalan, who was present at the celebration Tuesday, proclaimed the day "Benny Goodman Day."

Goodman, who lives in Stamford, Conn., said he plays mostly in combos now, but said it was possible he would get back into big bands again.

He noted there was an increased interest in jazz. "People are getting out on the dance floor again," he said.

"At the party, he was paid a surprise visit by Arthur Rollini, a resident of Shirley, N.Y., who was a member of Goodman's swing band.

Former President Richard Nixon made a return visit to Disney World where eight years ago he told the nation: "I am not a crook."

"You haven't seen the world until you've seen Disney World," Nixon said Tuesday as he toured Disneyland's East Coast version with his wife, Pat, daughters Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox, two grandchildren, and friend Bebe Rebozo.

On Nov. 17, 1973, Nixon made his declaration of innocence while visiting the park during the Watergate scandal. Nine months later he resigned.

"Nixon, posing for photographs with Mickey Mouse, said the dispute over the Falkland Islands "should have been settled by diplomacy."

"He termed Argentina's ruling just "unreasonable," and said that "if the British hadn't met this challenge they and the whole world would have paid a great price in the future."

JERUSALEM (AP)

Prime Minister Menachem Begin got a visit from an odd couple — Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau.

The two movie stars, leading a Hollywood group Tuesday on a visit sponsored by the United Jewish Appeal, spent 20 minutes with the Israeli premier just after a stormy session in parliament dealing with Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)

Kate Jackson, 33, the former Charlie's Angel most recently seen in the movie "Making Love," has been married in a private ceremony to New York business executive David Greenwald, says a spokeswoman for the actress.

The marriage was held last Saturday in Miss Jackson's Beverly Hills home.

Spokeswoman Ronni Chasen said Tuesday. She said the two had known each other about a year.
