Happy Mother's Day

At 99 she studies assertiveness

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) — Ida Maude Burch is no stranger to continuing education. Her education began in the last century and continues today.

A great-grandmother approaching her 100th birthday in July, Mrs. Burch is currently enrolled in an assertiveness training class at Big Bend Community College.

She was graduated from high school at the turn of the century, and two years later got her degree from the University of Washington.

She says she took assertiveness training because, "why, I thought I might learn something."

"I enjoy the class. I enjoy being with the people," she said.

"Besides, she said, 'I guess I do let myself get bossed around a lot.'"

Mrs. Burch could have used some assertiveness training when she was graduated from the University of Washington in 1902 with a certificate in pharmacology.

"At that time they wouldn't hire women in Seattle as pharmacists," she said. "The only thing they'd let me do was make sodas and such, and I wasn't about to do that."

She never did practice pharmacology, and instead went to work in a millinery shop — "one of those high-tone places" — for several years.

In 1909, she married, and she and her husband moved to eastern Washington.

"My husband had a little apple ranch," she recalled. "It was a time when they told all and sundry they could make a fortune being apple farmers. It was all poppycock."

But the family survived, and today Mrs. Burch has three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Burch, who lives in Soap Lake north of here and about 75 miles southwest of Spokane, has taken other community college courses in the last several years, including ones in art and design, said her daughter and classmate, 69-year-old Jessie Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson, a former county extension agent, said nothing specific is planned yet for her mother's birthday on July 17. But the family will do something, and Mrs. Burch's church, the United Methodist church in Ephrata, is planning a celebration, she said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Burch works in her garden and practices her needlecraft, a skill learned when she was 82.

She takes no special credit for her longevity.

"That's no fault of mine," she said. "And the good Lord said so, so that's what it is. 'Course, I don't touch hard liquor or drugs.'"

Bird's eye view may aid Coast Guard rescues

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Coast Guard officials are hopeful pigeons will soon provide a bird's-eye view in searches for boating accident survivors.

Six pigeons have already been drafted into a federal test program that trains them to help helicopter crews spot colored debris, like orange life rings, researchers report.

"I thought it was just an amusing idea until I flew with the pigeons," said Coast Guard Lt. Ray J. Miller. "Now, I'm a believer."

British, Argentina brace for war

By Associated Press

Britain sent 20 more Harrier jet fighters to beef up its Falkland Islands armada Saturday and pressed the United States for additional refueling support. Argentina vowed to challenge Britain's expanded new war zone, and the United States predicted "new and terrible fighting" if U.N. peace efforts fail.

High winds swept the fog-shrouded Falklands area and no new battle action was reported for the islands 250 miles east of Argentina's southern tip. Argentine forces seized the Falklands from Britain April 2. There was speculation if U.N. talks collapse, British marines will storm the islands, possibly by Monday.

The Harriers were refueled by British tanker planes in the air en route from England and landed on Ascension Island after a nine-hour, 3,200-mile flight. They were expected either to fly to the Falklands armada 3,500 miles to the southwest, or be carried by the container ship Atlantic Conveyor.

Two Harriers were lost in bad weather Thursday and another was shot down over the Falklands capital of Stanley Tuesday. This left Britain with 17 Harriers aboard the carriers Hermes and Invincible, which normally have a capacity for six jets each.

Presumably the Atlantic Conveyor would serve as a makeshift carrier for the 20 new Harriers in the war zone, while the pilots take orders from the Invincible and the Hermes. The British government would not comment on the arrangements.

But the British have asked the United States for U.S. tanker planes to refuel British aircraft flying to the Falklands in line with the Reagan administration's offer of materiel support, and the request is under consideration.

Pentagon sources said the British want the tankers apparently to refuel C-130 transports flying between Britain and Ascension Island, where the United States has been refueling British planes en route to the South Atlantic under a longstanding agreement — but not warplanes for the Falklands, so far as is known.

Britain imposed a 200-mile air and sea blockade around the Falklands April 30, and last Sunday a British submarine torpedoed and sank the Argentine cruiser General Belgrano 36 miles outside the zone, leaving several hundred estimated dead. But a missile from an Argentine fighter-bomber blasted the British destroyer Sheffield Tuesday and 20 men were killed.

On Friday Britain extended the war zone by threatening to attack any Argentine warship or warplane found more than 12 miles from Argentina's 2,500-mile coast.

Argentina reacted Saturday by strengthening coastal defenses, and Maj. Gen. Jorge O. Garcia, commander of the Fifth Army Corps in Comodoro Rivadavia, 1,200 miles south of Buenos Aires, declared his forces "are ready to fight on any terrain and in any place."

Garcia said unspecified adjustments had been made in troop strength and that his forces were prepared to defend their position on the mainland as well as support 9,000 Argentine defenders on the Falklands, 620 miles southeast of Comodoro Rivadavia.

Argentine Defense Minister Amadeo Frugoli said the British war zone extension represented "another sign of the inflexibility and intransigence of the British government at a time when the United Nations secretary general is trying to find a solution to the conflict."

An Argentine Foreign Ministry communique said the British move "for all practical purposes amplifies the war zone to the entire South Atlantic."

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, asked by a reporter in New York if "this could be a make-or-break day" for finding a diplomatic solution, said, "Yes, I should say. I hope that today we are having...real progress or at least...we will know whether...there is reason for hope."

Perez de Cuellar talked first with Argentine Deputy Foreign Minister Enrique Ros, then with British Ambassador Anthony Parsons.

Asked if his job would not be made more difficult by Britain's new war zone, Perez de Cuellar said, "Well, I wouldn't say. What is important for me is that hostilities shouldn't take place in the area."

A senior Reagan administration official indicated that virtually the last hope of averting bloodier fighting over the islands lies with Perez de Cuellar's mediation effort.

The official, who requested anonymity, said the United States hopes that effort will succeed and it will do everything it can to help but that progress on a peaceful solution is not likely until the Argentine junta drops its insistence on sovereignty as part of any final settlement.

PREPARING A DEFENSE. These Argentine soldiers are shown as they prepare a defense for a possible attack by the British in photo made recently on the Falkland Islands. Both sides in the Falklands issue are standing at bay, but U.S. Secretary of State Haig reportedly has a pessimistic view of diplomatic efforts to resolve the conflict between the two countries.

Oil tax plan said 'far out'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that purports to reduce the federal debt by imposing a 30 percent tax on U.S. oil producers is so far out that a rebuttal is scarcely needed, Rep. Charles Wilson of Texas says.

The "National Crude Oil Profit-Sharing Act" was introduced Thursday by five congressmen from northern states. Among the sponsors is Rep. Bob Edgar, D-Pa., chairman of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition.

The bill would earmark 75 percent of the crude oil tax for the national deficit and the other 25 percent for a fund to finance more efficient fuel technology.

"This will never get out of committee. It probably will never be heard by committee. But it's another indication that the purpose of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition is not to pull itself up but to pull others down," Wilson said Friday.

Wilson is chairman of a coalition of congressmen from Sun Belt states. His remarks came in an afternoon press conference.

The legislation would require U.S. producers of crude oil to pay an amount equal to 30 percent of the value of each barrel directly to the U.S. Treasury.

"This is a very imaginative approach. I've never in 10 years in Congress heard anybody talk about a tax on American oil without a tax on Arab oil," Wilson said.

"It's so absurd it almost doesn't warrant a rebuttal. But the net result would be oil companies with foreign production would simply import more. And small independent producers would simply go out of business."

The bill, besides having no chance,

Long lines forming at World's Fair

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — World's Fair officials, disappointed at the opening-day crowd last weekend, now say "excellent" turnout has spawned a different problem — long lines at some pavilions.

More than 380,000 visits were made in the first seven days of the six-month energy exposition, and 700 buses of tour gives House leaders one more problem to worry about, Wilson said.

"This kind of aggravation makes it much more difficult for (House Speaker) Tip O'Neill and (Majority Leader) Jim Wright to get the Boll Weevils to work with them on the budget, when they've got this sort of thing happening."

Further, passage of the bill would cause consumers' gas bills to rise, not fall, Wilson said.

Domestic companies would pass along the increase to consumers, or Arab states would raise the price of their oil to the mandated U.S. price, he said.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, of Lubbock and Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, of Vernon called the proposal ridiculous. Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, of College Station agreed with Wilson the legislation has no chance of passing.

"It's an ill-conceived bill that would reduce the incentive to expand domestic production and increase the dependence on foreign oil," Gramm said.

"It's counter-productive and punitive, and it won't pass. We probably will have some sort of energy tax, but it certainly won't be that one."

The northern congressmen say new revenue sources are needed because of the soaring national deficit.

"In 1980, oil companies earned 40 percent of all industry profits in the country. I ask, who is best able to bear an additional tax burden?" Edgar said Thursday.

Edgar said the tax would replace revenues that will be lost when the windfall profits tax is phased out, beginning in 1987.

An estimated 30,000 Iraqis retreat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An estimated 30,000 Iraqi troops retreated south under a furious Iranian onslaught Saturday and regrouped near Iran's border close to the Shatt-al-Arab estuary in what appeared to be a major Iraqi defeat in the Persian Gulf war, battle communitaries said.

The official statements indicated that fighting along the southern end of the 300-mile war front was reaching a climactic point in the war that began with an Iraqi invasion 19 months ago aimed at seizing the Iranian east side of the Shatt, Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf.

In the initial stages of the war the Iraqis conquered about 7,720 square miles of western Iran. An Iranian offensive in March seized back 772 square miles of ground, and the latest onslaught — which began April 30 — took back another 425 square miles, Iraq said.

The Iraqis, who appeared to be driving for the Iraqi-controlled port of Khorramshahr on the Shatt-al-Arab waterway 400 miles southwest of Tehran, announced that two key highway towns — Hoveizeh and Hamid — had been "liberated" in the latest drive.

Hamid is a key stronghold on the 70-mile long main highway that links Ahvaz, the Iranian-held capital of southwestern Khuzistan province, with Khorramshahr, Iran's largest port before the war. Hoveizeh is 18 miles southwest of the Iranian-held town of Susangard on a road parallel to the main Ahvaz-Khorramshahr highway.

The official Iranian news agency reported that Iraqi tanks, personnel carriers and vehicles were smashed on both sides of the roads from Hoveizeh 18 miles south to Jofair and west to the Iraqi border where a huge marshland would likely stop any further Iranian advance.

Although reporters were barred from the war zone and independent confirmation was impossible to obtain,

Reagan challenging Soviets on missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will challenge the Soviet Union in a Mother's Day speech to dismantle nearly two-thirds of its land and sea-based missiles in a joint effort to reverse the nuclear arms race, U.S. officials said Saturday.

The president's proposal, to be outlined at his alma mater, Eureka College in Illinois, also would require sharp reductions in the U.S. strategic arsenal.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said Reagan would propose that the United States and the Soviet Union set common ceilings of 850 intercontinental ballistic missiles in land silos and on submarines. These missiles could be equipped with no more than 5,000 warheads.

Reagan's speech represents a U.S. effort to seize the political initiative

Iraq's high command indirectly conceded defeat by announcing that the "Mohammed al-Qasem" and "Usama" units staged a strategic retreat. The units were not further identified but were believed to be divisions with a strength of about 15,000 troops each.

"According to special considerations for ensuring stronger momentum to confront the enemy and destroy his from Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev. Responding to anti-nuclear sentiment in Europe and the United States, the Soviet leader has called for weapons freezes and cutbacks.

How the Soviets will respond to the president's proposal, which was circulated to the North Atlantic Treaty allies over the last few days, is unclear. Five years ago, they rejected outright former President Carter's call for deep reductions on both sides. But the Reagan administration believes that U.S. boosts in defense spending might soften Soviet opposition.

The new proposal is to be submitted to Soviet negotiators in Geneva this summer. The aim is a treaty to supersede the SALT II accord signed by Carter and Brezhnev in Vienna in 1979 setting ceilings on long-range missiles and strategic bombers.

Reagan, who has condemned that

If a pigeon sees orange, red or yellow objects, it pecks on a response key that sets off a tone and a light inside the cabin. When the pilot hears the tone, he checks the three lights to see which bird signalled and heads in the direction it was watching, he said.

"The pigeons themselves are very little trouble," said Simmons.

"All it takes to train them are little rewards of things like peas, barley and wheat once they complete their detection missions," he said. "That's hardly any cost."

Simmons said the Coast Guard eventually may train pigeons to spot objects of many different hues.

force in the region, it has been decided to withdraw these forces to new positions near the border," the communique carried by the official Iraqi News Agency stated.

A later Iraqi communique quoted a military spokesman as saying the withdrawal was made to reinforce troops around Khorramshahr. He said the Iraqis pulled out of positions near Ahvaz and Susangard for the move south.

treaty as "fatally flawed," is proposing much lower missile ceilings. In the meantime, the administration is informally committed to observing the SALT II restrictions so long as the Soviets honor them.

The reductions proposed by Reagan would be carried out over several years, the officials said. The United States and the Soviet Union would be free, meanwhile, to test and deploy nuclear weapons not curbed by the 1979 agreement.

The Soviets now have an estimated 2,348 land and sea-based long-range missiles. They would have to dismantle 1,498 — nearly two-thirds — to get down to the proposed ceiling.

The United States has 1,548 missiles in ground silos and on submarines. Less than half would have to be scrapped.

To reach a level of 5,000 warheads, the United States would have to dismantle some 2,150 and the Soviets about 2,100.

Alaskans make more money than other American citizens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans living in Alaska made more money last year, on the average, than residents of any other state, while those in Mississippi made the least, according to a government report released Saturday.

At the same time, the Commerce Department report said non-farm personal income in the United States grew only 1.8 percent in the last quarter of 1981, the smallest increase of any of the five preceding quarters.

In the state-by-state breakdown, the report said per capita personal income in Alaska was $14,190 last year, up 11.2 percent from the previous year.

Washington, D.C., was ranked the next highest at $13,487, followed by Connecticut at $12,995, and California at $12,057, the report said.

At the bottom of the scale was Mississippi, where per capita personal income was $7,256 last year, up 10.7 percent from 1980.

Overall, Americans had a per capita income last year of $10,517, an increase of 10.6 percent over the $9,511 of 1980, the report said.

The 11 states with the highest per capita personal incomes in 1981 were mostly in the urban areas of the Northeast and West, the report said.

"Most of the 19 states with low per capita personal incomes ... were in the Southeast and Rocky Mountain regions," it said.

The report also said that for the last three months of 1981, non-farm personal income in the United States was $2,459 billion, up 1.8 percent. Non-farm personal income rose 3 percent in the previous quarter.

Non-farm personal income rose the sharpest in the fourth quarter of last year in North Dakota, 3.6 percent; Nevada, 3.5 percent; Hawaii, 3.4 percent; Oklahoma, 3.3 percent; and Alaska, 3.2 percent.

"All of these states had large increases in federal government payrolls, and most had large increases in state and local government and non-durables manufacturing payrolls," said the report.

The smallest changes were registered in Delaware, down 0.5 percent; Wisconsin, up 0.7 percent; Michigan, up 0.2 percent; Indiana, up 0.8 percent, and Ohio, up 0.7 percent.

Here is the state-by-state breakdown of per capita personal income in 1981 and the percentage increase from the previous year:

- NEW ENGLAND: Connecticut, $12,995, 11.1 percent; Maine, $8,655, 10 percent; Massachusetts, $11,158, 10.3 percent; New Hampshire, $10,073, 10.5 percent; Rhode Island, $10,466, 11.1 percent; Vermont, $8,654, 10.8 percent.
- MIDEAST: Delaware, $11,279, 9.6 percent; District of Columbia, $13,487, 11.9 percent; Maryland, $11,534, 10.1 percent; New Jersey, $12,115, 10.6 percent; New York, $11,440, 11.6 percent; Pennsylvania, $10,373, 10 percent.

- GREAT LAKES: Illinois, $11,479, 9.5 percent; Indiana, $9,656, 8.2 percent; Michigan, $11,009, 10.5 percent; Ohio, $10,371, 9.6 percent; Wisconsin, $10,056, 6.8 percent.
- PLAINS: Iowa, $10,149, 9 percent; Kansas, $10,870, 10.2 percent; Minnesota, $10,747, 10.1 percent; Missouri, $9,876, 11.4 percent; Nebraska, $10,296, 13.3 percent; North Dakota, $10,525, 22 percent; South Dakota, $8,793, 12.5 percent.
- SOUTHEAST: Alabama, $8,200, 10.3 percent; Arkansas, $8,042, 11.9 percent; Florida, $10,050, 11.8 percent; Georgia, $8,960, 11.4 percent; Kentucky, $8,455, 10.3 percent; Louisiana, $9,486, 12.2 percent; Mississippi, $7,256, 10.7 percent; North Carolina, $8,679, 10.8 percent; South Carolina, $8,050, 10.8 percent; Tennessee, $8,604, 11.7 percent; Virginia, $10,445, 11 percent; West Virginia, $8,334, 6.7 percent.

- SOUTHWEST: Arizona, $9,693, 10 percent; New Mexico, $8,654, 9.9 percent; Oklahoma, $10,210, 12.6 percent; Texas, $10,743, 12.8 percent.
- ROCKY MOUNTAIN: Colorado, $11,142, 11.1 percent; Idaho, $8,906, 8.9 percent; Montana, $9,676, 11.8 percent; Utah, $8,307, 8.1 percent; Wyoming, $11,780, 8.3 percent.
- FAR WEST: California, $12,057, 10.3 percent; Nevada, $11,633, 8.5 percent; Oregon, $9,991, 7.5 percent; Washington, $11,266, 8.8 percent.

Democrats look like the winners in Congressional redistricting

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contrary to expectations a year ago, the Democrats appear to be the winners in the first big battle of the 1982 campaign — the redrawing of congressional district lines.

"Reapportionment, as it developed late in 1981 and early in 1982, hurt the Republican Party badly," said Rich Bond, deputy chairman of the Republican National Committee. "If it wasn't for that single fact, I think, regardless of economic factors, right now we could be singing a much rosier song than we are at the present time."

"I think we'll come out a shade ahead," said Joel Bradshaw, director of the Democratic National Committee's redistricting effort.

An Associated Press survey of redistricting efforts in the 50 states showed the Democrats with a three-to-five-seat edge as a result of the redrawn lines.

Just a year ago, Republicans were confident that redistricting would give them 13 new House seats in the next Congress. GOP campaign strategists saw redistricting as their best chance for breaking the historic pattern in which the party controlling the White House loses congressional seats in non-presidential election years.

The clearest irony in redistricting this year is the case of Rep. Phil Burton of California. The Democratic congressman drew up a redistricting plan for the state's 45 House seats that made it likely for his party to gain five seats in November.

With the Democrats in control of the legislature and governorship in California, the Burton plan was readily approved.

One of the people helped by the Burton plan was his brother, John, who represents an adjacent congressional district in the San Francisco Bay area. Phil Burton shifted some strongly Democratic precincts from his own district to his brother's. Then, John Burton decided not to run for re-election, and Phil Burton found himself facing a tough fight with many voters saying they thought the redistricting plan was unfair.

The Burton plan gave Republicans their first signal that redistricting might not go as they thought it would. They got another jolt in Texas.

GOP Gov. Bill Clements and a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats in the Texas Legislature developed a plan likely to give Republicans two of the three new seats assigned to the state and possibly some other districts as well.

But a federal court panel threw out the plan and drew its own. As a result, the Democrats are likely to win two of the three new seats and retain their old ones.

The Republicans appealed to the Supreme Court, which said the federal court in Texas shouldn't have drawn a new plan. But it allowed the new plan to remain in effect for the 1982 election.

Republicans had been encouraged by the 1980 Census figures, which showed Americans had continued to move out of northern cities, where Democrats had their base, to the GOP strongholds in the suburbs and the Sun Belt.

Eleven states gained seats in the House. The biggest winners are Florida, picking up four seats; Texas, which gained three; and California, getting two.

Of the 10 states that lost seats, the biggest losers are New York, down five, and Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania, which lost two each.

Democrats represent the 25 congressional districts that experienced the largest population losses in the 1970s. Ten of the big population losers are represented in Congress by blacks. A Hispanic, Robert Garcia, represents the South Bronx, N.Y., which lost the most population.

But under redistricting plans, no black or Hispanic is likely to lose his seat, according to the AP survey.

Republicans also have lost a majority of the court challenges to redistricting plans.

President campaigns to overcome ill will

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, viewed with suspicion and hostility by many blacks, is waging a new campaign to demonstrate sensitivity to the poor and minorities and overcome ill will generated by White House policy blunders.

Reagan is depicted by top aides as frustrated at his unpopularity among blacks, and angered by television and newspaper accounts that depict administration policies as unfair to the poor.

As a result, the president's schedulers are looking for forums, particularly those suitable for network television cameras, where Reagan can defend his policies and try to pair damaged relations.

"There is a new emphasis here," said David R. Gergen, an assistant to the president. "We're trying to deal in a substantive way and a symbolic way and with more sensitivity on issues that affect minorities. There has been a steady effort in the last few weeks."

For example, Reagan will make a visit Monday to a predominantly black school on Chicago's west side for a question-and-answer session with students. The president's advisers expect the questioning will be tough.

Reagan softened his stand on the Voting Rights Act last week and agreed to endorse a bipartisan compromise supported by civil rights groups. The same day, he made a surprise visit to the home of a black family that had been the target of a Ku Klux Klan cross burning.

"I came out to let you know that this isn't something that should happen in America," Reagan told Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Butler of College Park, Md.

Later this month, Reagan will attend a fund-raiser for Howard University, a predominantly black college in the District of Columbia.

Reagan also has dropped his opposition to appointing a presidential aide to deal with blacks, naming Melvin Bradley, a longtime aide, as special assistant to the president for the job. White House officials say the administration is considering appointing another black — someone well respected among minorities — to a high-ranking position.

Gergen acknowledged that Republican strategy for the 1982 elections is linked to the new policy toward blacks but denied that the elections are the driving force behind it.

Already, the White House sees dividends from recent actions.

Clues are sought in cookbook bomb death

NEW YORK (AP) — A bomb-rigged cookbook exploded and killed a Brooklyn community leader who received it in the mail, and an attached note warned her husband, "You're next," police said Saturday.

Two of the three .22-caliber bullets rigged in the hollowed-out cookbook delivered to Joan D. Kipp's doorstep Friday exploded in the her chest. Police have not come up with a motive.

"This was a classic mail bomb type of case," said U.S. Postal Service inspector Dan Mihalko, a bomb specialist. "There was extra postage to make sure it went through."

He said the package was addressed to Mrs. Kipp, 54, an officer of the non-partisan Bay Ridge Community Council and guidance supervisor for School District 20 in Brooklyn. Mrs. Kipp found the package, in a Sears, Roebuck and Co. envelope, Friday afternoon. A six-volt battery triggered gunpowder and the bullets when the book was opened.

Mihalko said a threatening note on the inside flap of the book was addressed to the victim's husband, marine engineer Howard Kipp. It warned: "Dear Howard: You're next," he said, but threatened that other members of the Kipp family would be "first." The Kippes have two grown children, Craig and Doreen.

Mihalko said the package was postmarked in Staten Island, a New York City borough just across the Verrazano Bridge from the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn, where the Kippes live.

"Everything is still open," Mihalko said, describing the investigation. Police and Postal Service inspectors were trying to find out exactly where the package was mailed and where the battery came from, he said.

"We're still looking for a motive," the inspector said.

Investigators did not have any suspects, said police officer John Clifford.

Police Detective John Votto said "every precaution is being taken" to protect the Kipp family. He declined to offer further details.

Neighbors of the Kipp family described the victim Saturday as a friendly woman who actively showed her concern for the Bay Ridge community, shown in the John Travolta film "Saturday Night Fever." It is known as a quiet, conservative, residential neighborhood filled with roomy, expensive homes and high-priced shore apartments.

Man in coma for month still not identified

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors at St. Joseph's Hospital keep hoping a young man known only as John Doe will awaken from a month-long coma and tell them his name.

The man was hit by an 18-wheel truck on April 8 while crossing a Houston freeway on foot. He was unconscious and suffered several fractures and a severe concussion. He has not awakened since.

The man seems to be in his 20s, is about 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighs about 160 pounds, said Betty Lee White, the hospital's director of public relations.

When wheeled into the emergency room, he had brown, shoulder-length hair and a bushy mustache, she said. His head and face were shaven during the medical treatment.

He was wearing a tee shirt, sneakers and work pants, and his pockets were empty except for a single piece of paper with a phone number, officials said. The found number was that of a used truck - tire store and no one there knew anything of the accident victim, police said.

Police said the mystery man had made a telephone call at a service station and talked briefly with workers there before he tried to cross the freeway in the midst of busy, late Thursday afternoon traffic.

Police took his fingerprints and ran them through a thorough identification process but found no trace of the prints in police or military files.

"There's absolutely nothing to distinguish this young guy from any other white, Anglo-Saxon type of guy," Ms. White said.

Workers at the service station said the man claimed to be an advance man for the Marshall Tucker band. But Ms. White said officials checked and, "The band said they had no advance man and no connection in any way with our John Doe."

Several people, with missing relatives have come to the hospital, but none has identified the John Doe.

His condition remains critical. He is being fed through a tube and receives some assistance in his breathing.

She said he is receiving care that typically would cost $600 to $1,000 a day.

Two store employees shot to death in robbery

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — A man who shot and killed two female convenience store employees during a robbery here was being sought by police Saturday, authorities said.

The shootings occurred at about 6:50 a.m. Saturday when an armed man robbed the store near Cannon Air Force Base of several hundred dollars, Curry County Chief Deputy Sheriff Jerry Harris said.

He identified the victims as night clerk Beverly Ann Keith and assistant manager Christy Lee Hopkins, both 25. Each woman had three children.

Harris said both victims apparently had been shot once in the head. One was pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Medical Investigator Joe Thomas, the other at the hospital at Cannon Air Force Base.

Harris said a witness who saw the man leave found the victims on the floor behind a counter.

Area law enforcement officers were searching north of Clovis Saturday for the man, Harris said.

Marine drowning inquiry is closed

DALLAS (AP) — Navy officials have closed an investigation into the drowning of a Marine Corps recruit last summer during training in San Diego.

A Navy spokesman announced Friday that Navy Secretary John Lehman was "satisfied that a thorough, comprehensive inquiry has been made into the events" that led to the drowning of Pvt. Randall Christian.

Christian enlisted the help of U.S. Reps. Jim Mattox, D-Dallas, and Richard White, D-El Paso, in requesting Lehman's review of two Marine investigations of the drowning.

Those investigations concluded that the recruit's death was an "unfortunate training accident," although several changes in water survival training were ordered after the second probe ended in December.

White says there was no deal with Temple

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White, Texas Democrats' choice for governor, says Buddy Temple's withdrawal from the race was not part of a secret deal as alleged by Gov. Bill Clements.

"I think that was a fantasy in the governor's mind," White said Friday. "For him to suggest that there was any exchange of funds I think was a terrible tragedy on his part."

White, confident of a November victory, said the general election would be a "tough race" that would cost him more than $4 million.

"The incumbent governor spent $3 million beating Duke Embs. I suspect he'll spend a lot of money in this campaign," said White.

Embs is the former San Antonio insurance man who was Clements' lone GOP opponent. Embs, a former mental patient, mounted a low-budget campaign and Clements pulled more than 90 percent of the vote.

"I am absolutely persuaded we are going to be elected in November," said White.

The nominee said the Democratic ticket is "well-balanced." The ticket includes Jim Hightower for agriculture commissioner and Ann Richards for treasurer. Both have reputations as liberals.

"There's something on the ticket for every political philosophy and that's really what the Democratic Party is all about. It's a big tent with a lot of different people in it," he said.

"We don't march in lock-step. We don't have a forced doctrine or creed," he added.

White criticized Clements as providing misguided leadership.

Lehman ruled April 29 that there is "no reason for further investigation" into the Dallas man's death during water survival training, said spokesman Lt. John Tull.

"The military, no matter how high up, seems to be of one mind," said the recruit's father, Artie Christian. "I still hope to get outside the military for a fair and impartial hearing. At this point I'm not very confident, but I'm going to do what I

Temple, who earned a June 5 runoff spot against White, pulled out of the race Thursday, saying he wanted to foster party unity. Clements said Temple and White cooked up a deal in a secret meeting.

At his Friday news conference, White said, "Buddy Temple is not for sale and can't be bought."

"We had a tough, hard-hitting primary. We debated the issues and took our campaigns directly to the people," said White. "Now that we've put this behind us, we are closing the ranks. We're proving once again that being a Democrat is more important than the temporary issues that may divide us."

White predicted Clements will have to fight "the most united party we've seen in 50 years."

Countering Clements' charges of a Democratic deal, White said the Texas Republican Party is a "puppet operation."

"They pull a string and out they come," he said.

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have.

The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season.

Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Seabed Treaty

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The Law of the Sea Treaty, which has been under negotiation for a number of years, should never be accepted by the U.S. Senate. It involves the greatest giveaway in history.

When the Reagan administration took office, it held up action on the treaty drafted under the Carter administration. The draft treaty was objected to because it was incompatible with U.S. economic and national security interests.

The House Republican Research Committee recently asserted that adoption of the treaty would advance the Third World notion of a New International Economic Order. "The intent of the NIEO," it said, "is to facilitate a global redistribution of wealth and political power from the developed to the underdeveloped nations of the world."

The Law of the Sea Treaty is the primary instrument for initiating this redistribution of wealth and power. The resources on the deep seabed, which only the advanced nations could develop, would be deemed the common heritage of all the countries in the U.N.

There was an alarm a few weeks ago because it was reported in the New York Times that "Swallowing ideology, the administration gave third-worlders their theory about the common ownership of ocean resources." Happily, it turned out to be a false alarm. Congress and the public should keep careful watch, however. There's always the danger that American interests will be scuttled in negotiations.

The treaty would concentrate enormous political and economic power in a new international regulatory body, the International Seabed Authority. It would control resource development on the seabed. Because of concessions made by the Carter administration, the Soviet Union would be assured of three seats on the Seabed Authority Council, while the U.S. would not be assured of even one seat. The United States, however, would be obligated to provide start-up funding for the Seabed Authority — 25 percent of the total funding.

Most incredible of all is the provision in the Seabed Treaty that seabed revenues would have to be shared with groups "who have not attained full independence." This means that revenues would go to such organizations as the Palestine Liberation Organization, a terrorist organization.

Thoughtful citizens in many advanced countries are aware of the peril in the Law of the Sea Treaty. Aims of Industry, a British free enterprise group, recently declared that "Britain should join the United States in rejecting or amending the draft text of the Law of the Sea Treaty." It said that the U.N. organization would "come to exercise an absolute monopoly over at least one half of the deep seabed resources of the world."

Prof. D.R. Denman, former head of land economy at Cambridge University, warned that under the treaty the Western industrialist "will be required to give his secrets away to his competitors and to train the competitors in the use of them against him." He also pointed out that "the voting powers of America would be the same as that of the Gambia or of Malta. Voting for the 36 members of the Seabed Council is deliberately pre-conditioned in favor of the developing countries and the Eastern Socialist European region."

The Republican Party platform warned of the Law of the Sea giveaway. This warning should remain operative. Indeed the Reagan administration should make clear to the world that it won't accept the notion of an International Seabed Authority. It should state in plain language that the ocean floor is not the common heritage of mankind but an undersea domain to which only maritime states have rights.

Today in history

Today is Sunday, May 9, the 129th day of 1982. There are 236 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On May 9, 1978, the bullet-riddled body of Italy's former Prime Minister Aldo Moro was found in parked car in Rome, 54 days after his abduction by Red Brigades terrorists.

On this date: In 1926, Americans Richard Byrd and Floyd Bennett became the first men to make an airplane flight over North Pole.

In 1933, about 25,000 books were thrown into a bonfire in Berlin in the first of the Nazi book-burnings.

In 1936, Italy annexed Ethiopia, and King Victor Emmanuel was proclaimed Emperor.

And in 1968, U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators assembled in Paris for preliminary talks aimed at ending the Vietnam War.

Ten years ago: Hundreds of U.S. planes and a naval force staged strikes at North Vietnam following the mining of its harbors.

Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter met in Geneva with Syria's President Hafez Assad on Middle East problems.

One year ago: More than 100 students walked out as Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. addressed the Syracuse University graduation class. Today's birthdays: CBS newsman Mike Wallace is 64 years old. Actress Candice Bergen is 36.

Thought For Today: Of all the things you wear, your expression is the most important. — John Ruskin, English writer-art critic (1819-1900).

OPINION PAGE

Look into Iran

Stansfield Turner, a retired Navy admiral, is calling for an investigation of the U.S. military rescue attempt that failed in the Iran desert two years ago.

The mission, on April 25, 1980, was an effort to retrieve the 53 American hostages held in Tehran. It was aborted after two of eight helicopters sent on the mission broke down and a third encountered a sand storm.

As the rescue team and aircraft were preparing to leave the desert site, a tragic accident occurred. A helicopter crashed into a transport plane, killing eight servicemen.

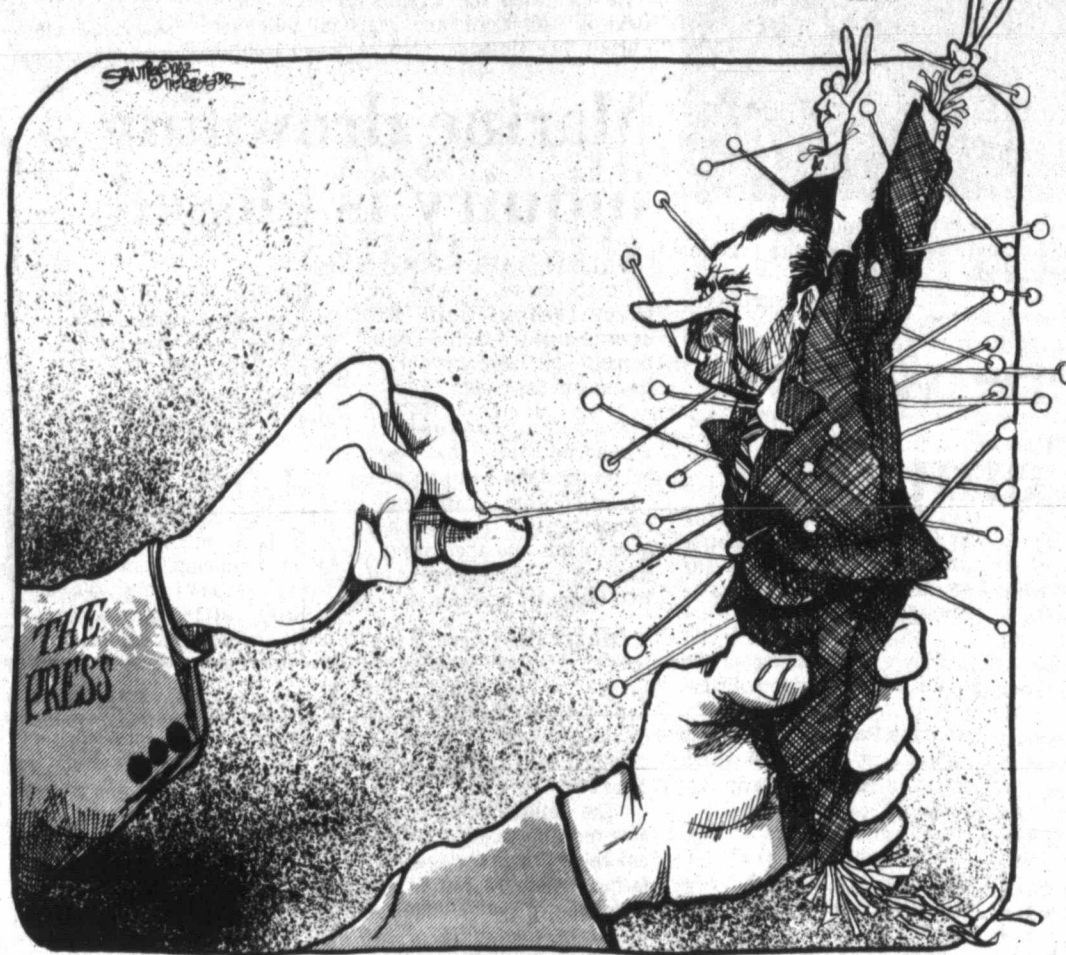

In the weeks after the accident, the maneuver was examined to determine what went wrong from a military standpoint. It was determined that overzealous concern for secrecy led to some of the misjudgements and operational problems.

There still are unanswered questions about tactics and equipment. And Adm. Turner, who was the head of the CIA when the raid was attempted, is right in suggesting an inquiry into the matter.

"The purpose would not be to look backward and cast blame," he said, "but to look forward and learn the lessons that surely lie buried in the raid."

We believe such an inquiry would be valuable. Much can be learned from mistakes.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor: Wonderful! Isn't it great to go in the kitchen, draw a glass full of good, clear, sweet, delicious Ogalalla water and drink it down with satisfaction. Then to draw another glass full and drink that too because the first one tasted so good!

This grand situation is surely temporary, but it prompts a nice memory. Before Lake Meredith we'd offer a visitor a glass of tap water with a look of expectancy on our face as we waited, with our figurative thumbs hooked in our suspenders, for the certain expression of delight. "Boy! That sure is good water," they'd say. And we'd say, "Yep, best water in the world — comes right out of that faucet."

Now I don't blame the city fathers as some do. If I'd been on the city commission about twenty years ago I'd have thought like they thought. They were told by professional city planners that the population of Pampa would be about 75,000 by 1980. They were also told that at the rate it was being pumped, there wouldn't be any Ogalalla water in 1980. On top of that, they didn't know Lake Meredith water would be bad water.

Given the information they had at the time, is it any wonder they went for Lake Meredith?

On the other hand, the current city commission has today's facts: (1) The city of Pampa is not a city of 75,000. (2) The Ogalalla aquifer still has water in it, and (3) Lake Meredith water is bad.

No doubt it would be expensive, but isn't it possible to just leave Lake Meredith disconnected unless it becomes an absolute necessity to use that water? I would be willing to pay significantly higher rates for good water. There would surely be an offsetting financial windfall in saved plumbing bills and perhaps in saved health costs.

Tuition Tax Credits

President Reagan redeemed a major pledge of his 1980 campaign recently when he proposed a tuition tax credit of up to $500 for parents of students in non-public schools.

The battle lines over this issue, a subject of congressional debate for years, are clearly drawn. Opponents, including many of those who draw their livelihood from public education, argue that tuition tax credits will drain talent and resources from an already troubled public school system.

The American Civil Liberties Union, and others who have fought in the courts for decades to block any form of public aid to religious schools, will argue that tax credits are but another form of government subsidy in violation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of church and state.

Advocates, on the other hand, will weigh in with equally deep-felt arguments stressing themes like freedom of choice, the need to preserve pluralism in education, and equity for parents now paying both public school taxes and private school tuition.

In recent years, the debate has taken on additional forms related to school integration: Specifically, whether tuition tax credits will help white students flee integrated public schools in favor of presumably less integrated private schools.

And finally, some not necessarily moved by any of these arguments pro or con will take sides based purely on budgetary considerations — i.e., should even a relatively modest tax credit proposal be enacted at a time when Congress and the administration are wrestling with huge prospective deficits?

Sorting through all this, we are willing to admit that Mr. Reagan's rationale for a tuition tax credit plan is less than unchallengeable. Nevertheless, we think it is an idea whose time is rapidly approaching, and rightly so.

The grimmest truth in American education today is that many public schools, and especially those in the larger cities, have been failing for years to provide the discipline and quality instruction essential to a decent education. Efforts to correct these manifest deficiencies are under way, but they must butt head-on with entrenched bureaucracies and powerful vested interests resistant to change and reform.

Middle and upper class families have traditionally rescued their children by enrolling them in private schools, either secular or religious. They will continue to do so despite tuition charges ranging from a minimum of about $1,000 per student per year to perhaps $5,000 for the best private academies.

But that leaves the children of most poor and working class families trapped in schools that don't deserve to retain a de facto monopoly in the educational market. For many of these families, a tax credit of up to $500 per pupil per year will mean the difference between continued reliance on a substandard public school system and a chance for a better education at a private school.

If and when tuition tax credits become law, this country's public education establishment — including teachers' unions, school boards, colleges of education, and state and federal bureaucrats — may at last be driven to see that the public schools must reform or suffer a further exodus to private institutions. At that point, public schools may regain the public confidence they have so obviously forfeited during the last two decades.

Meanwhile, poor and working class families, including minorities, will be able to avail themselves of educational opportunities heretofore reserved for the wealthy and the middle class.

Whether Mr. Reagan's tuition tax credit is constitutional is a question that will inevitably be decided by the Supreme Court. Our own guess, and hope, is that it will survive constitutional scrutiny.

As to its impact on the deficit, the dollar totals are relatively modest. Were the plan enacted this year, it would cost some $4 billion through 1987. Were Congress to delay its implementation, as seems likely, the revenue loss would be even less.

The public schools shouldn't suffer inasmuch as most of their funds come from state and local taxes unaffected by a federal tax credit. Moreover, the transfer of a million or so pupils to private schools would enable public schools to reduce their budgets or, alternately, spend more on those pupils who remained.

In short, we think the burden of proof has now shifted to those who oppose tuition tax credits. Unless they can demonstrate a more persuasive case than that made to date, Congress would be well advised to give tuition tax credits a chance.

The Airline

By ART BUCHWALD

The airlines are in one of the most brutal price wars in history. They're all being killed, but no one will surrender.

It's gotten so that when you go to the airport, you never know anymore how much you're going to pay for a trip.

I went to National Airport the other day to take a plane to Miami, Florida. The lady wrote out my ticket. "That will be $50."

"It seems like a lot of money," I said. "Ah, yes, but it also entitles you to fly on to Karachi, Pakistan, for the same price."

"I don't want to go to Karachi," I told her. "Well, for $5 more you can go to Hong Kong, and stay at a hotel for three nights."

I was about to pay for the ticket, when I noticed the person at the next counter from another airline put up a sign.

It read, "Fly to Miami with us for $40 and have the use of a rental car for one week."

I told the lady to forget it, and I got in the other line.

While I was waiting, a man in a red jacket came up to me and whispered, "Can I talk to you for a moment?"

"I'll lose my place in line."

"You won't be sorry," he said. "Follow me around the corner." When we got out of sight of the counter, he said, "We'll take you to Miami for $25 and your family can go for free."

"My wife and children are at home," I said.

"We'll send a limousine for them and hold the plane."

It seemed like a pretty good deal, and I was about to take it, when a very attractive lady in a blue uniform came by and dropped her purse. I picked it up and handed it to her.

"Don't do anything until I talk to you in the bar," she said.

I excused myself from the man in the red jacket and followed her. We found a table and she took my hand in hers.

"I overheard you saying you were going to Miami," she purred.

"Yes," I said, as I nervously looked around.

"Why don't you fly with Snail Darter Airlines?"

"How much is it?" I asked.

"How much would you like to pay?"

"I hadn't thought about it," I admitted. "Would $15 be enough?"

"We can put you in first class for that. Here's a coupon. Go to our ticket counter and tell them Sally sent you."

"Thanks a lot. Can I pay for the drinks?"

"Of course not! When you fly First Class, they're on the house."

I picked up my suitcase and started heading for the Snail Darter Airlines counter. It was at the end of the terminal and as I was walking there, a young man, his head shaved, wearing a saffron robe, came up and stuck a carnation in my suit lapel hole.

"I gave to the Hari Khrisna (cq) at the office," I told him.

"I'm not a Hari Khrisna. I'm marketing vice president of Camelot Airlines. We're willing to make a deal."

"Do you fly to Miami?" I asked.

"Not usually, but in your case we'll make an exception."

"Snail Darter will fly me there for $15 first class," I warned him.

He said, "For $10 we'll take you there and wait for you until you're ready to come back."

"First class or tourist?"

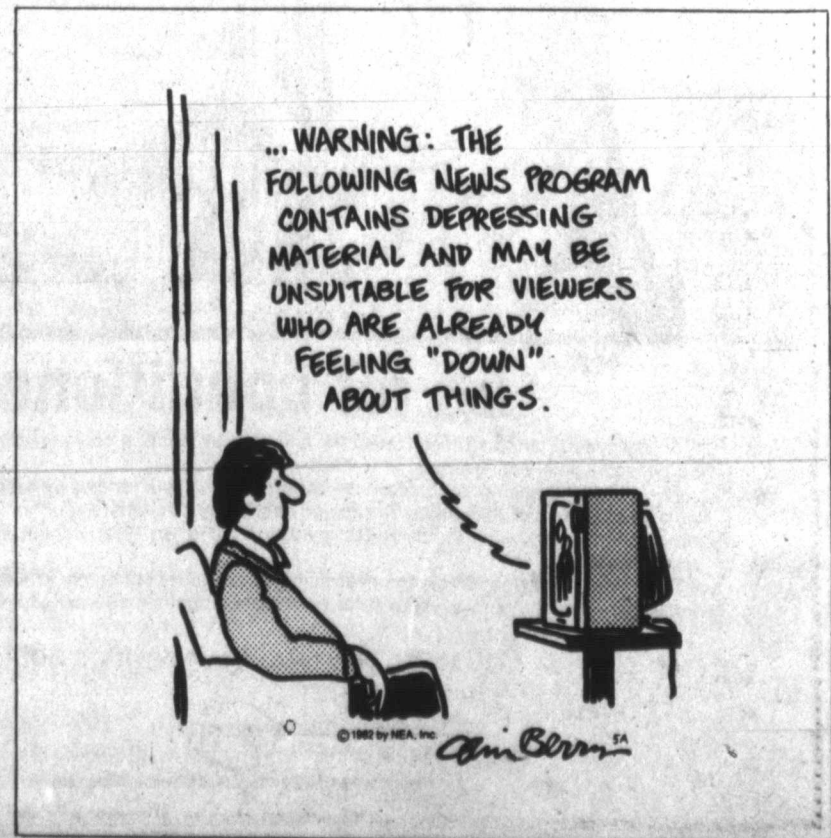

"If you hurry, you can sit in the copilot's seat!"

Under the circumstances it seemed like the best I could do so I gave him my credit card. He took a computer from underneath his robe and punched out my ticket.

"What about my luggage?" I asked him.

"Don't worry," he said, giving me a tag. "Frank Borman will deliver it to your hotel personally."

Stock market's rally resumes

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's spring rally has resumed in recent days, revived by news of a proposal to resolve the long standoff in Washington over the federal budget.

Prices of both stocks and bonds spurred upward after President Reagan reached a compromise budget plan Wednesday with Republican legislators that won approval of the Senate Budget Committee.

Democrats in Congress criticized the proposal. And Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said getting it through the Democratic-controlled House of Representatives is likely to be "a battle."

But investors responded to the news as a step toward resolution of a problem that has been regarded as a major obstacle to economic recovery and any substantial decline in interest rates.

Since mid-March, when the market made its lows for the year to date, stock traders appear to have been casting their financial votes in favor of the chances for an improved economy in the months ahead.

As Lee Idleman, director of research at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., put it recently, "if the market plays its traditional role as a leading indicator, the current rally may be pointing the way toward lower interest rates."

and a new cyclical upswing long before the politicians and the media get around to it." In the past week, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 20.84 to a 3½-month high of 869.20.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index gained 1.68 to 68.76, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 5.51 at 275.97.

Big Board volume averaged 59.75 million shares a day, against 53.41 million the week before.

Tangible evidence of an economic turnaround was still lacking as the week drew to a close. The Labor Department reported Friday that the unemployment rate jumped in April to a record post-war high of 9.4 percent.

But the figures, which closely matched advance estimates on Wall Street, produced little adverse reaction among investors.

Surgeons work to build child's face

MARYVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Nurse Thelma Perkins cried over the faceless infant girl in the hospital's intensive care nursery. Two years later, she and her husband became Alice's guardians.

They forced the frightened child to learn to sit and walk, and they patiently explain her condition to curious children, who fear "that the same thing can happen to them," Mrs. Perkins said.

Less pleasant encounters, usually with adults who sometimes scream or stare, are simply accepted.

"Their reaction to Alice is really their problem and they have to deal with it," she said.

Alice, now 6, is blind and can't see the stares. But because she can hear, she may be aware of the sharp intake of breath, the whispered words as people pass.

Alice's condition, a birth defect, is called a bi-lateral cleft face. Dr. John B. Lynch, a plastic surgeon at Nashville's Vanderbilt Hospital who is working to build her a face, says Alice is one of only six such cases ever recorded.

When Alice was born at Knoxville's University of Tennessee Hospital on Sept. 6, 1975, there was only a hole opening onto soft mucous membrane where her eyes, nose and mouth should have been. She had eyelids on the side of her head, and no eyes.

The child was taken to an intensive care unit, where she was seen by Mrs. Perkins, then a licensed practical nurse.

"I remember I cried that any little baby would have to be born like that," she said. "It was hard to see all those perfectly formed little babies struggle for life and then die and then to look at Alice and see how very well she was doing."

Because she had no palate, Alice had to be fed through a tube inserted in her face and carefully threaded into her esophagus.

After Alice went home with her mother, Mrs. Perkins kept in touch and helped the mother deal with the special problems the child presented.

Eventually, Alice's mother decided someone else should care for the child. At age 16 months, Alice became a ward of the state. Mrs. Perkins and her husband, Raymond, the parents of three grown children, became Alice's guardians. They have filed papers seeking to adopt Alice.

Alice had undergone surgery 11 times. She has gums, some teeth and a semblance of a nose built from a rib to be the correct size for an adult. Lynch has moved her eyelids to a more normal position and done cranial surgery to give her a more solid skull.

Doctors say the work won't be finished until Alice is 18 years old, and they estimate the total cost at more than $300,000. When it is over, they hope she will have a normal face.

The Tennessee Department of Human Services has contributed more than $60,000 to Alice's surgery. The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of which Perkins is a long-time member, has raised $23,000 of a goal of $100,000.

Dairy program overhaul likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he's optimistic Congress will go along with his plan to overhaul the government's dairy program but is getting little encouragement from some important farm groups.

The mainstay of Block's program is a proposal to change the law so that he would have discretionary authority to set milk price support levels. For years, those have been tied to set formulas reflecting costs of production and other factors.

Block, in announcing his proposal at a news conference on Wednesday, said the current program "has been extremely inflexible" and has provided automatic increases which farmers looked forward to and expanded milk production accordingly.

Under the proposal, the current milk support of $13.10 per hundredweight would remain in effect until Jan. 1, 1983, when it would be adjusted at Block's discretion.

"I would not anticipate going below $12 per hundredweight at that time," he said.

The discretionary authority sought by Block would give him the power to reduce or increase the support rate as much as he judged necessary to fit the market situation.

Block said his proposal can be approved by Congress because the dairy industry knows it has a problem and wants to help solve it.

RESISTANT PIGWEEDS?

Have pigweed (careless weed) in the Panhandles of Texas and Oklahoma developed resistance to postemergence applications of 2, 4 - D and Atrazine? Dr. A. F. Wiese, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Weed Researcher from Bushland, and Doc Tripp, Area Agronomist with Oklahoma Agricultural Extension Service at Guyton do not have research to prove it one way or the other, but poor control in fields for several summers makes the two specialists believe resistant pigweed is a good possibility.

This past summer several applicators ended up with poor control on several thousand acres. To make matters worse, retreating the fields did not kill the weeds. Poor control made farmers take a beating on yield. To top it off, the pesky weeds cost applicators because farmers were reluctant to pay for poor weed control jobs.

Wiese said there are several possible explanations for the phenomenon. Using one herbicide on the same field may have gradually killed out pigweed that are most sensitive to the herbicides and a population of tolerant weeds has developed.

According to the two specialists, there are many different kinds of species of pigweed, and no one knows if one species tolerates the herbicides better than others. "Over the years there has been a gradual change from redroot pigweed, which grows up to 30 inches to smooth pigweed and Palmer amaranth", Wiese said. These two pigweed species grow over six feet tall and will completely severely with the tallest sorghum hybrid. Wiese speculates that hard to kill pigweed may be natural crosses or hybrids between the two vigorous species.

Because the problem has everyone baffled, Wiese has planned research to solve the dilemma. Last fall Jon Green, a young weed scientist working with Wiese gathered seed from several fields in the northern part of the Panhandle of Texas where control was poor. He also gathered seed from redroot pigweed in a pasture at the Research laboratory at Bushland that have never been sprayed. In the summer of 1982, plants from these seed will be treated with 2, 4 - D and atrazine to check for differences. In addition, seed of several species will be gathered and checked for tolerance to the two herbicides.

If resistant pigweed are isolated, then research will determine herbicide rates or herbicide combinations that will control the pests.

FERTILIZE PONDS TO BOOST FISH YIELDS

An inorganic fertilizer, properly applied now, will more than double the pounds of fish a pond will produce in a year.

Fertilization is effective in ponds stocked with bass or catfish.

The increased fish production results from more phytoplankton (tiny green plants). The phytoplankton's increase provides more food for small fish and insects. In turn, they are eaten by larger fish, resulting in bigger fish for the fisherman.

Call the Extension office for reservations and also let me know if you can provide transportation. Also, mark June 22 — 4 - H Charm School; and July 6 — County Fashion Revue on your calendar.

HORSE PROJECT

The Gray County 4 - H Horse Project has scheduled a riding session at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena on May 16 at 5 p.m.

All members of this project are encouraged to participate in this learning activity.

Two other pigweed species that grow in the Southern Great Plains are tumble pigweed and prostrate pigweed. However, these two species are not likely to be the trouble makers according to the specialists. Tumble pigweed grows in a ball shape like Russian thistle, but seldom gets over three feet tall. Prostrate pigweed grows flat on the ground and from a distance is easily confused with puncturevine or goathead.

Astros edged by Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Bump Wills scored one run and drove in another and pitcher Dickie Noles knocked in a run Saturday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

It marked only the second time this season that the Cubs had won two games in a row.

Wills beat out a bunt single in the first inning, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on a single by Keith Moreland.

The Cubs added two unearned runs in the second inning. Junior Kennedy reached on an error by third baseman Ray Knight, went to third on a hit-and-run single by Ryne Sandberg and scored on Noles' sacrifice fly.

Steve Henderson then drew a walk off loser Joe Niekro, 3-2, and Sandberg scored on a single by Wills.

Noles, 4-3, was nicked for a run in the fourth when Alan Ashby singled and scored on a double by Phil Garner.

Tony Scott opened the Houston eighth with a pinch-hit single and Denny Walling walked. Willie Hernandez replaced Noles and got Terry Puhl to fly out as Scott advanced to third.

76ers out Bucks from NBA playoffs

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks insisted that Philadelphia's 1-3-1 trap defense hadn't surprised them.

But Maurice Cheeks' offense certainly did.

Cheeks, a point guard whose job normally is to set up scoring chances for his teammates, poured in 26 points Friday night to lead the 76ers to a 102-90 victory over Milwaukee, eliminating the Bucks from the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Bucks' inability to run their offense drew frequent booing from the Arena's capacity crowd of 11,052.

"We set up a 1-3-1 trap, which forced them to wind down the clock a lot," Erving said. "They wanted a b.t. begin with because they were short of people. But once you get over the halfcourt line, you don't have a lot of time to shoot if your initial pass is denied, and our trap did that several times."

Cheeks, constantly beating the Bucks' Brian Winters to the basket, sank 10 of 16 shots and passed for six assists as the 76ers won the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series four games to two.

"We wanted to make them use as much time as they possibly could, to force them to go to a perimeter game and keep it away from Bob Lanier inside," Cunningham said.

The 76ers advanced to the conference championship series against the Boston Celtics, starting Sunday in Boston.

"We set up a 1-3-1 trap, which forced them to wind down the clock a lot," Erving said. "They wanted a b.t. begin with because they were short of people. But once you get over the halfcourt line, you don't have a lot of time to shoot if your initial pass is denied, and our trap did that several times."

"Maurice was able to run wild," 76ers' forward Julius Erving said. "He ran by Briff fous on their big people. We made their guards work and our guards, Maurice and Andrew Toney, got a lot of point production for us."

"We set up a 1-3-1 trap, which forced them to wind down the clock a lot," Erving said. "They wanted a b.t. begin with because they were short of people. But once you get over the halfcourt line, you don't have a lot of time to shoot if your initial pass is denied, and our trap did that several times."

Cheeks, who had been averaging 13.4 points per game in the series, said 76ers' Coach Billy Cunningham had told him to drive to the basket.

"We set up a 1-3-1 trap, which forced them to wind down the clock a lot," Erving said. "They wanted a b.t. begin with because they were short of people. But once you get over the halfcourt line, you don't have a lot of time to shoot if your initial pass is denied, and our trap did that several times."

"It was stressed to me in the pregame warmups to go the basket more, to make Brian Winters play me," Cheeks said. "I utilized my quickness by going to the basket. When I did that, it opened up other things."

"We set up a 1-3-1 trap, which forced them to wind down the clock a lot," Erving said. "They wanted a b.t. begin with because they were short of people. But once you get over the halfcourt line, you don't have a lot of time to shoot if your initial pass is denied, and our trap did that several times."

Cunningham said that Cheeks "almost carried us by himself in the third quarter." But, Cunningham said, an even bigger factor was the 76ers' pressure defense, which time and again forced the Bucks to take hurried shots with the shot clock winding down to a few seconds.

"We set up a 1-3-1 trap, which forced them to wind down the clock a lot," Erving said. "They wanted a b.t. begin with because they were short of people. But once you get over the halfcourt line, you don't have a lot of time to shoot if your initial pass is denied, and our trap did that several times."

Shearer leads Houston Open by five

HOUSTON (AP) — Australian Bob Shearer, continuing a scorching sub-par shooting string, riddled the Woodlands Country Club East course with a 7-under-par 64 Saturday and streaked to a five-shot lead with a 200 after the third round of the $350,000 Houston Open.

Ed Sneed started the day with a two-stroke lead but Shearer birdied four of the first six holes, taking the lead on No. 5 with a birdie after Sneed bogeyed the same hole.

Sneed, coming off the worst slump of his career a year ago, finished with a steady even-par 71 to remain in contention in second place at 205.

sub-par rounds and a 16-under par total.

Shearer, 33, finished second at the rain-shortened New Orleans Open with three more sub-par rounds, had three of four rounds under par at the Byron Nelson Classic, and fired opening rounds of 69 and 67 prior to Saturday's par-breaker.

Shearer bogeyed the final two holes in Friday's second round for a 4-under par 67 after confronting a photographer on the previous hole. Shearer claimed the photographer clicked off his camera motor prior to his putt.

But he shook off any remnants of frustration from the start of Saturday's round and did not falter until he bogeyed at the par 5 590-yard No. 16 hole, his first over-par hole of the day.

Peter Oosterhuis, who started the day tied for second with Shearer, fired a 1-over par 72 to lead a group of three tied for third with 208. Peter Jacobsen shot a 68 and Danny Edwards had a 69 to join Oosterhuis.

Shearer is in the midst of the hottest streak of his career on the U.S. tour. He has earned almost as much money in the past three weeks as he has in any other full year competing in the U.S. Shearer's best year was $61,878 in 1978 and he has picked up $57,105 in the past three weeks.

A victory here would be worth $63,000.

Pampa drops loop games to Tascosa and Caprock

Tascosa posted a 12-7 victory over Pampa in a District 3-5A baseball game Friday at Optimist Park.

Tascosa lifted its record to 18-8 overall and 9-2 in league games. Tascosa trails district leading Amarillo High by one game.

Trailing, 12-4, Pampa started a comeback in the final inning when Lane Howard led off with a single. David McQueen walked and Charles Wuest doubled them both home. With one out, Wuest scored on wild pitch, but Devin Cross and Coyle Winborn grounded out to end the rally. Winborn had tripled earlier in the game.

Cree downs Grant Supply

Cree Companies broke away from Grant Supply for a 15-8 win Friday night in Babe Ruth baseball action at Optimist Park.

It was Cree's first win of the season against one setback. Grant suffered its first loss after two victories.

Cree took a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but Grant plated four runs in the second to take command.

It was Cree's turn again in the bottom of the second as they went on a five-run spree. Three runs crossed the plate on a two-rbi double by Cap Pitman and an rbi single by Jay Snow.

Snow knocked in another run in the third to expand

Cross and Mark Case also had hits for Pampa.

Jay Cleveland and Pat Ford had a double and single apiece for Tascosa.

Stacey Wellborn went the distance on the mound for the Rebels. Wade Barker started on the mound for Pampa, but was lifted in favor of Randy Skaggs in the fifth.

Barker was charged with the loss.

"We hit the ball much better," Pampa coach Gary Haynes said. "We were taking a lot of pitches the second game and their defense made some good plays on well-out balls to get out of jams."

Pampa falls to 2-21 overall and 0-11 in league play after dropping a Saturday twinbill to Caprock, 10-5 and 14-2.

Pampa had five hits, led by Cross who was two for three at the plate. Jeff Stewart delivered a three-run double while Randy Skaggs had a double and Barker a double.

Brian Bowen suffered the mound loss.

In the second game, Wuest, Brad Knutson and Ricky Baird had one hit each for the Harvesters.

Winborn was the losing pitcher.

"We hit the ball much better," Pampa coach Gary Haynes said. "We were taking a lot of pitches the second game and their defense made some good plays on well-out balls to get out of jams."

Pampa closes the season Monday afternoon with a single game at Palo Duro, starting at 4 p.m.

Cree's lead to 8-4. But Grant was far from finished. Grant scored four runs on three errors and a passed ball in the fourth to knot the score at 8-8.

Cree went ahead for good in the bottom of the fourth by scoring two runs, then added five more for insurance in the fifth before the game was called due to the 2:15 time limit. Winning pitcher was Raymond Wyatt, who entered the game in the fourth inning and retired four of the five batters he faced.

Pampa Hardware blanked the Lions Club, 13-0, Friday night to remain unbeaten at 2-0. The Lions are 0-1.

Area girls place at state meet

AUSTIN—Rose Williams and Kay Ford of White Deer placed fourth and fifth in their respective events Saturday at the Class 2A girls' state track meet.

Ford was timed at 2:22.0 to finish fifth in the 800. Beverly Castleberry of Frisco won the event in 2:15.4.

Williams ran a 59.3 in the 400 to take fourth. Tammy Breutigang of Temple Academy won with a 56.6. Marcie Cole of Canadian placed fifth with a 60.1.

In the 1600-meter relay, Panhandle placed second with a 4:02.7 while White Deer (Rose Williams, Tina Ford, Kay Ford and Lisa Hunter) were fourth with a 4:06.8. Frisco ran a 3:56.3 to win the relay event.

In Class 1A, Miami's 1600-meter relay team (Lori Gill, Karla Stone, Kasandra Bailey and Lisa Hinton), was clocked at 4:12.0 to finish fifth. Carlisle-Price won the event in 4:04.0.

Slaybaugh misses bid for another trip to state meet

Pampa's Randy Slaybaugh will not be returning to the Class 5A state track meet this year. He suffered a couple of off-days, something that happens to every outstanding athlete.

Slaybaugh, a state-meet qualifier last year in the discus, scratched on his first two tries Friday at the regional meet in Lubbock. He managed only 128-5 on his third prelim attempt, not enough to qualify him for the finals.

"Randy was warming up good with throws of 165 and 168, but when he got into the ring I think he just put too much pressure on himself,"

Pampa coach Wendall Palmer said.

Carl Chancellor of Odessa Permian won with a toss of 162-4.

Saturday in the shot put, Slaybaugh qualified with a 53-2, but placed sixth in the finals.

"He was warming up fair for the shot, but he just wasn't exploding," Palmer added. "They did have some good shot putters. There were some throws of 58-0."

Slaybaugh, a senior, had qualified for the regionals by winning both the discus and shot at the District 3-5A meet. He was the first Pampa athlete to qualify for the state meet since 1975 when he made the Austin trip last year.

"I thought Randy was the best discus thrower there, but it just wasn't his day," Palmer added.

Palmer said he would like to make a decathlon athlete out of Slaybaugh.

"He would do fine in the decathlon because he can run, sprint and throw," Palmer added. "There would be only two or three oddball events that he would have to work at."

Palmer hopes to enter Slaybaugh in a federation meet at Wichita in June.

Rangers back on losing track

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)—Chuck Rainey and Mark Clear combined on a six-hitter and Jerry Remy scored the winning run after reaching base on an error in the sixth inning as the Boston Red Sox edged the Texas Rangers 2-1 Saturday night.

Rainey, 3-0, who gave way to Clear with one out in the eighth and a runner on third, struck out six, walked one and allowed all the Texas hits. Clear, who earned his fourth save, struck out Mark Wagner and George Wright to leave the potential tying run on third.

Texas' Jon Matlack, 0-2, getting his first start of the season, surrendered six hits and only one earned run. He struck out five and walked none.

Trailing 1-0, Boston scored its runs in the sixth. Reid Nichols opened with a single and Remy sacrificed, but was safe when first baseman Pat Putnam dropped the throw. Nichols went to third on the play and scored on a double by Dwight Evans. Remy scored when Jim Rice grounded out.

Texas scored in the fourth on Putnam's double and a single by Lamar Johnson.

Our goal is to have the parts you need in stock when you need them. And we generally meet that goal. But for those times when we don't have the part you need, we put our JD DART machine to work. It gives us a direct telephone connection to the John Deere parts system computer. We ask the computer about your part, and we get an answer—out loud in plain English. We can tell you in minutes where the part is, when it will be shipped, and approximately when it will arrive. We push a few buttons and the part is ordered complete with shipping instructions. You can plan your work schedule with confidence. We can plan ahead for the repair job. All thanks to the computer that talks back when the pressure is on!

BOND

Bond qualifies for 2A state track meet

ODESSA—Ricky Bond of Wheeler tossed the shot 52-2 for second place Friday at the regionals to qualify for the Class 2A boys' UIL state track meet.

Ricky Defosses of Baird beat Bond out with a 57-11 toss. Tim Grissom, also of Wheeler, placed fifth in the shot with a 46-5 throw.

Panhandle, another Pampa area team, qualified well enough to contend for the team title when action resumed Saturday. The Panthers qualified both relay teams (43.63 and 3:22.17), the latter the fastest of the day, Stacy Rusk in the 200 (22.65), Jody Wood in the intermediate hurdles (39.21), fastest among qualifiers) and quartermiler David Hawley (51.19).

In team standings, Baird grabbed the first-day lead with 20 points, while Jim Ned was second with 14. Panhandle scored eight points on the strength of Wood's second-place finish in the vault.

Wheeler was in a fourth-place tie with Stinnett and Seagraves with 10 points apiece.

Jennings third at state golf meet

AUSTIN—Wheeler's Mona Jennings placed third in the Class 2A medalist race with a total of 173 at the UIL state girls' golf tournament Friday at the Lions Municipal Course.

Janet Robbins of Three Rivers fired a 162 to take first place while Margaret Rice of Bullard had a 169 to place second.

Miss Jennings, a junior, was deadlocked with Paducah's Paula Weddle for third place going into Friday's final round. This was the first trip to the state tournament for Miss Jennings, who was fourth in the Class 2A regionals as a sophomore and third in the Class B regionals as a freshman.

This year she finished runnerup in the regional tournament to qualify for the Austin trip. She gained a measure of revenge in the state tournament against Miss Weddle, who won the regional title. Miss Weddle had a total of 174 to finish one behind Miss Jennings at the state meet.

Ganado shot a 725 to win the Class 2A team championship.

Other team winners were Salado, Class 1A; Boling, Class 3A; Jasper, Class 4A and Round Rock Westwood, Class 5A.

Houston's Williams denounces rumors

University of Houston guard Rob Williams, reacting to rumors concerning his off-court activities, says he will announce Wednesday if he intends to bypass his final year at college and enter the National Basketball Association draft in June.

Williams, a Cougar starter since his freshman year, has been trying to decide since the end of the season if he will enter the draft under the NBA's hardship ruling.

"After UH lost to eventual national champion North Carolina in the NCAA championship tournament, various rumors surfaced concerning Williams.

"I'm not married, I am not on drugs ... I did not stay out until 4:45 in the morning the night before the game with North Carolina," Williams said. "I don't understand where all these rumors are coming from. I've been trying very hard to make up my mind about what to do."

Williams had been unavailable for comment since the end of the basketball season.

Under NBA rules, Williams has until May 15 to declare himself available for the June 29 NBA draft.

The Coronado Community Hospital makes available The newly revised model of the Birthing Chair

By MARILYN POWERS

A "new" device dating back to Biblical times is now available for use at Coronado Community Hospital.

The birthing chair, which enables women to give birth in a vertical rather than a horizontal position, arrived in December 1981 and has already been put to use.

"We were one of the first hospitals in the state to have one," said Dr. Robert J. Phillips, head of obstetrics and pediatrics at the hospital. "I've delivered five babies so far, using it."

Hospital Corporation of America, which owns the Pampa hospital, bought the $5,000 fiberglass chair from Dallas distributor Edward Phillips Co. after it had been put on a list of requested equipment. Petitions signed by local residents asking for the chair convinced HCA that area mothers would use it.

Major advantages of the chair, which features adjustable footrests and handles for gripping, are both physical and psychological.

"You can get a lot more push. It's much easier to force your contractions. It's decreased the amount of time between the dilation of the cervix and the birth of the baby, the time known as the second stage of labor, by as much as 50 percent," Dr. Phillips said.

Size of the pelvic outlet is largest when the mother is upright, and research shows that a vertical position makes the labor more comfortable. Gravity aids in expulsion of the baby when the mother is sitting upright, and the muscles required to press down are free to work most efficiently.

Giving birth from an upright position also decreases the need to use forceps, a medical interference which may lead to oxygen deficiency in the baby, and lessens the need for pain medication, which can depress the baby's respiratory functions at birth.

The sitting posture also aids oxygen supply to the infant by reducing pressure on the mother's inferior vena cava, a major blood vessel that returns blood to the mother's heart and aids circulation during the birthing process.

By contrast, the lithotomy childbirth position, in which the mother is lying on her back with knees flexed, and immobility from being strapped down are situations which may lead to oxygen deficiency in a newborn. Research suggests that cerebral palsy, which is caused by a lack of oxygen to the brain during birth, may be more common among babies born to women lying down while birthing.

Psychological benefits of the chair are also important. The mother can see her baby born, and she feels she, rather than the doctor and medical staff, is in control of the birthing.

"I feel like it gives the lady a feeling that she has more control over the birthing process. Ladies have felt like they're kind of left out of the birthing process until recently, and they want more say - so," Dr. Phillips said.

One disadvantage of the chair is that it cannot accommodate every birthing situation. If removal of the infant by surgery, known as Cesarean section, becomes necessary, the mother must leave the chair and transfer to a table.

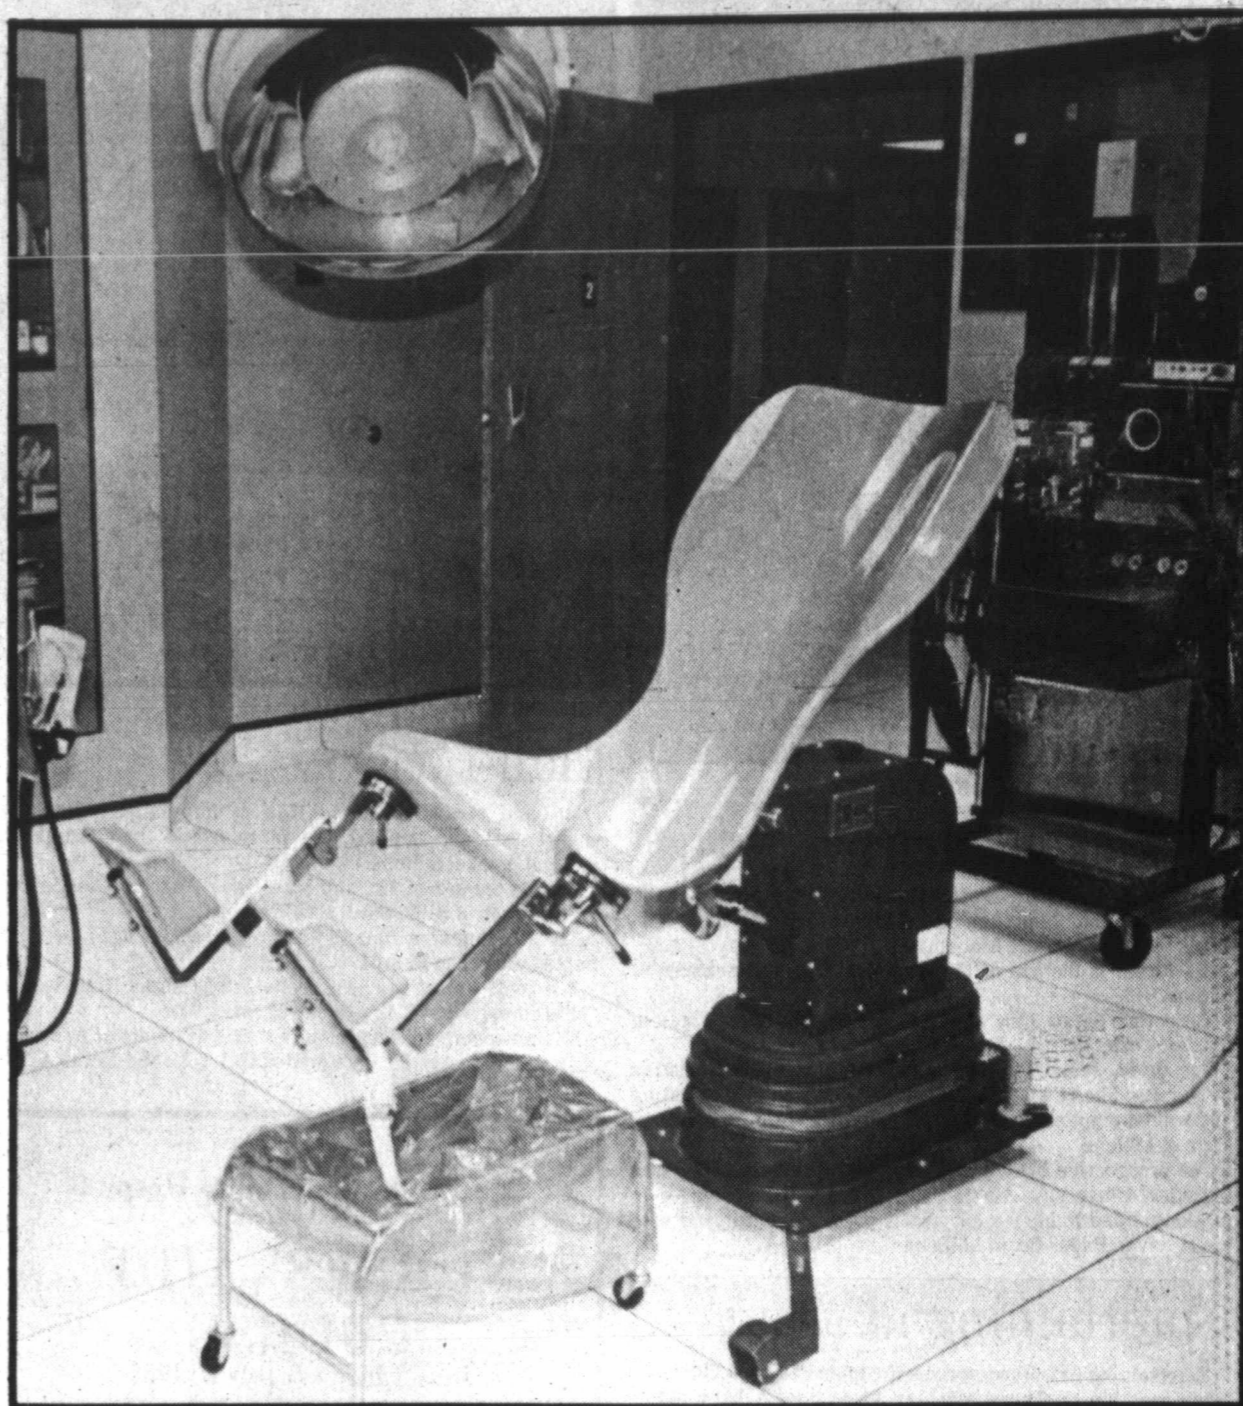

Whether or not the chair is used in a delivery is the decision of the mother and her doctor. Women who plan to give birth in the chair are advised to attend natural childbirth classes.

The modern birthing chair was developed from the wooden birthing stool or birthing bench, last used in the mid- to late-1800s. Birthing stools are mentioned in the Bible, when in Exodus 1:15-16, the king of Egypt orders the midwives: "As you aid the Hebrew women in childbirth, watch them on the birthstool; if it is a son, kill him; if it is a daughter, let her live."

The upright birthing position, whether standing, kneeling, squatting or sitting, was popular worldwide. When the birthing chair was used, the husband stood behind the chair to give physical and moral support, while the midwife knelt in front to assist in the actual delivery.

As doctors replaced midwives, the birthing chair was seen as a symbol of "outdated" midwifery. Also, having the mother lie down made it easier and more convenient for the physician attending a birth. And as female "emancipators" of the 19th century sought to deliver women from painful childbirth, natural birthing methods were replaced by beds, straps and anesthesia.

"It has lived up to its advertised promises. Ladies who have used it have done well," Dr. Phillips said of the chair.

INFANT MESSAGE INSTRUCTOR, Linda Sekura with sons, Michael, 6 months, and Stephen, 20 months.

An old practice gains respect: Infant Massage

By MARILYN POWERS

The massage has long been associated with less-than-honorable activities between the masseuse and her customers, men depicted as going to a massage parlor with something entirely different than a back rub in mind.

But one form of massage really is just that — a massage — and can be beneficial for both the 'masseuse' and her 'customer.' This is known as the infant massage, an activity for mothers and their babies, aged infant to 2 years.

Instruction in this technique is now being offered in Pampa by Linda Sekura, herself the mother of two boys aged 20 months and 6 months. She began teaching the workshop on Monday, April 26, with sessions scheduled for one and one-half hours per day each Monday and Tuesday morning in her home at 125 N. Nelson. Each two-day workshop is $23, and the fee includes cost of a packet of information which those attending may take home with them.

The purpose of the workshop is to help mothers and their babies learn the different parts of the body and how the infant can relax each part, "from his nose to his toes," Mrs. Sekura said. Massages for every part of the body are taught, along with when to massage, oils to use and the importance of verbal communication.

Massage helps relieve tension in both the mother and the baby, and helps new mothers learn how to handle babies, Mrs. Sekura said.

"It helps take away the fear of handling a new baby if you're a first-time mother," she said.

Massage is also good for colicky babies. Stomach and leg massages help move gas bubbles down and out, and the activity also helps release tension before going to sleep.

Massaging is also an aid to circulation.

Mrs. Sekura recommends cold-pressed fruit oils in her workshop, rather than other oils which are extracted by a heat process. The natural fruit oils are extracted by pressure.

Massaging should be done with the baby's clothing removed. The infant may enjoy being placed in a patch of sunlight near a window during the activity.

Mrs. Sekura first learned about infant massage through books she read on the subject. She got the idea for the workshop after using the techniques successfully on her own children and receiving favorable reactions from friends to whom she'd taught the massages. She began offering the workshop to the public at Easter and has had several phone calls from interested mothers.

The course, which also provides a way for new mothers to meet each other, is limited to four to five mothers and their babies per workshop.

Mrs. Sekura is herself an advocate of natural methods of childbirth and child care. She was among those who petitioned to get the new birthing chair at Coronado Community Hospital, collecting 63 signatures.

"Unfortunately, I delivered (younger son) before the chair got there. But I had my baby in the labor room with my husband there beside me, and went home four hours later," she said.

Mrs. Sekura takes her philosophy on infant massage from a quote by natural childbirth advocate, Dr. Frederick Leboyer: "Being touched and caressed, being massaged, is food for the infant. Food as necessary as vitamins, minerals and proteins."

Wilson Elementary 3rd graders explain What is a Mother?

WILSON ELEMENTARY
MRS. JERRY DAVIS' THIRD GRADE
WHAT IS A MOTHER?

A mother is a person that loves boys and girls all over the world. A mother is kind and she's always around when you need her. Sometimes when you want to go some where, she lets you go. She is not mean like other mothers are.

Byrill Wootne

A mother is a person who puts a roof over your head and cleans house for her family, a person who cooks supper and makes beds for you to sleep in and works hard to raise you. She loves you very much and she spansks you because she loves you. If you think she doesn't love you, you are wrong because she certainly does and you know what? When my mom spanked me I thought she didn't love me but then she and dad talked it over with me and I understand now, when I get a spanking it hurts but I know they still love me.

Jessica Smillie

A mother is a person who loves you, cares about you and feeds you and sometimes even cleans your room. You ought to care about her since she does all these things for you. I think a mother is a person that needs you, loves you and cares about you.

Mrs. Parker, my mother, had a baby April 23, 1982 at 6:30 p.m. and she did this for the whole family. A mother is a person who puts a shelter over you, buys clothes for you and she cleans your room for you.

My mother does a lot for my sister and I. My mother is a gentle, sweet mother and a special one too. I hope she loves me and my family because we love her. Your mother is always there when you need her.

Michelle Luster

A mother is a person who helps you with your homework, cleans the clothes I get dirty, and she's the doctor when you're hurt and the maid when you're at school. She takes you places and does things for you, she gives you money and buys things for you. She's the greatest thing in the whole wide world. She has long dark brown hair, tall and pretty and to me she's awful skinny!

Lynette Winkleman

WILSON ELEMENTARY
MRS. SOKOLOSKY'S THIRD GRADE

A mother is a person who takes me anywhere I want to go and gets me anything I want. A beautiful mother who cares, always makes sure I always have fun everywhere I go. That is sweet and nice always.

ReDonna Elkins

A mother is a person who is nice and kind. My mother's name is Janet, she has blue eyes and brown hair. She takes me to the movie on Sundays, plays games with me, rides bikes with me, and cooks supper with me. She is a nice mother!

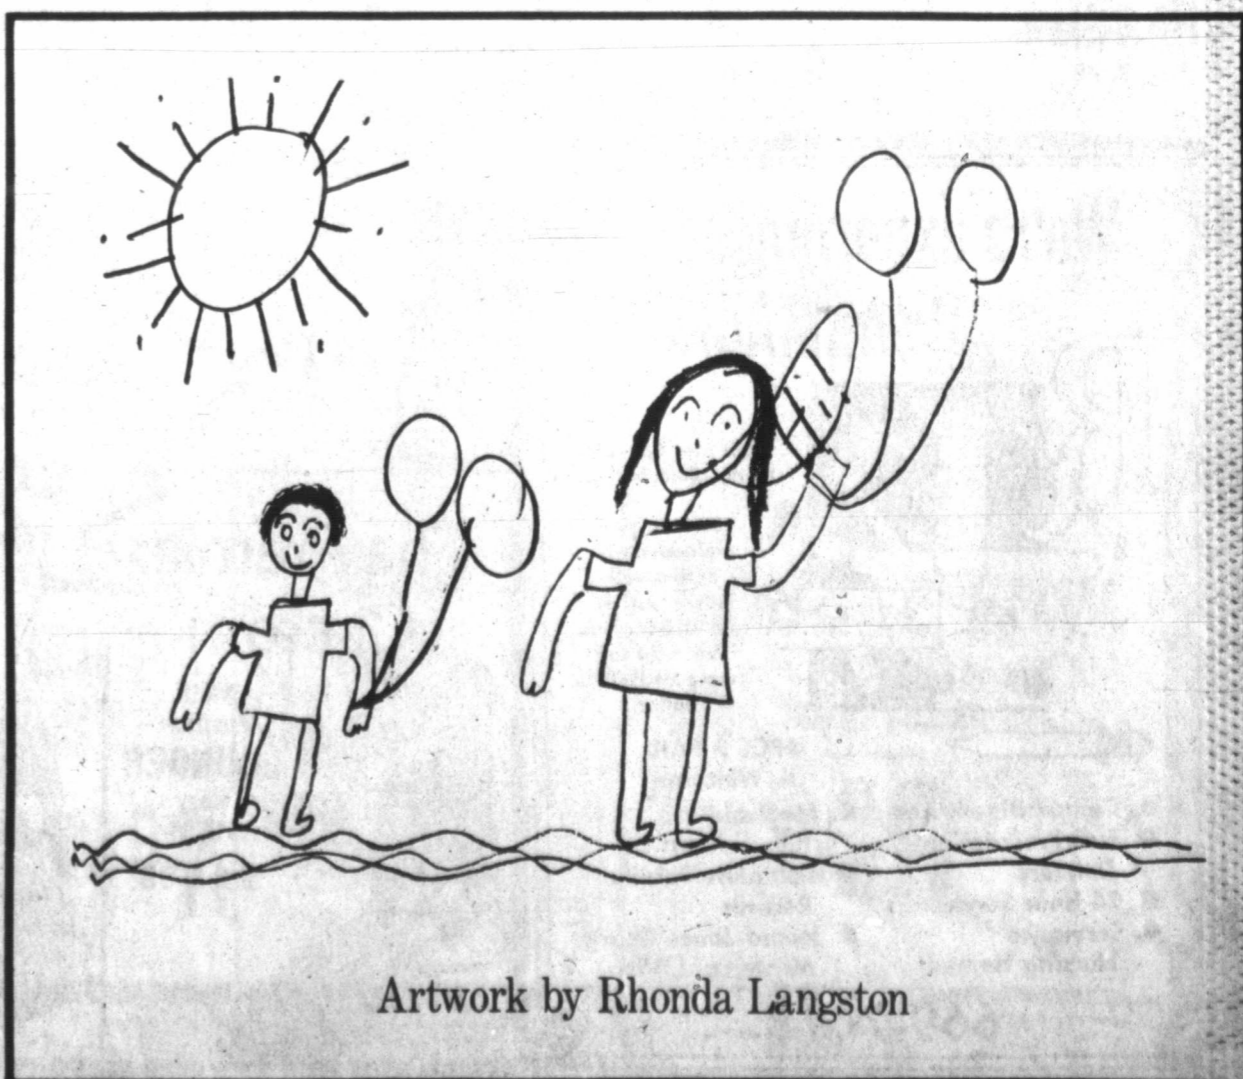

Rhonda Langston

A mother is a person who takes care of me when I'm sick and helps our soccer team. She is sometimes mad when I make bad grades, but she always loves me. I get mad at her sometimes too, but I always love her. When I make good grades, she lets me pick out my supper, last time I picked meatballs. My mom makes delicious pumpkin pie and fried chicken.

Love, Will Hacker

A mother is a person who is kind and happy. A hard worker even though she doesn't have to leave the house, because she works hard at home. She washes the dishes, sets the table and cleans the house. She isn't careless, she makes some of my clothes, and helps me with my work. Now after I've written all of this I know what a mother is. A mother is someone to love.

Homerker's News

Protect children from poison

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Every year more children die from accidents than from birth defects or disease. Just last weekend in the Pampa area, seven children came in contact with poisonous substances. Fortunately, all were treated in time and suffered no serious injury or death.

Children are the prime victims of accidents for many reasons. However, two factors — individual behavior and a hazardous environment — are responsible for most accidents. During the first and second year of life, poisoning is one of the most common accidents.

Poison - Proof Your Home
Every year thousands of children are poisoned by hazardous household substances. Medicines, furniture polish, lighter fluid, turpentine. They are only a few of the numerous potentially dangerous products commonly found in the home. Here are a few suggestions to help you to poison-proof your home:

- (1) One key to poison prevention in the home is keeping all medicines and other hazardous products locked up when not in use.
- (2) Don't depend on close supervision. It's impossible to watch a child every minute and children can move very quickly.
- (3) Always read the warning labels on hazardous products. These labels will tell you the seriousness of the danger and list all hazardous ingredients. If a child is accidentally poisoned, the first thing a doctor needs to know is the identity of the poison. The label will also tell you what immediate first aid you can give.

- (4) Keep all hazardous products in their original containers. Never store them in cups, soda bottles, or other containers that would normally contain food or drink.
- (5) Avoid taking medicines in a child's presence. Children imitate adults, particularly their parents.
- (6) Call any medicine by its proper name. Never suggest that medicine is "candy".
- (7) Promptly dispose of prescription drugs by flushing them down the toilet once the illness for which they were prescribed is over.
- (8) Do not store any other hazardous products with medicines that are to be taken internally. There are many look-alike containers on the market.
- (9) Be careful when using a hazardous product. Always keep it out of children's reach. If you are interrupted while using the product, take it with you.

Insecticides and Pesticides
The U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that 10,000 children are treated in hospital emergency rooms every year after being poisoned by insecticides, pesticides or similar products. These accidents can be prevented.

Store all pesticides and insecticides out of the reach of children. Always read a product's warning label. Remember that a less toxic product may do the job as well as a highly toxic product. Do not spread pesticides or insecticides in areas where children or pets could touch or eat them.

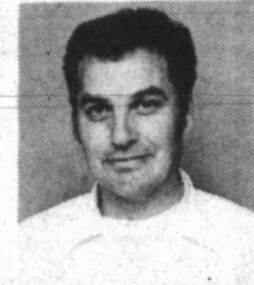

Poison Prevention Packaging
A wide variety of drugs, hazardous household products, pesticides, and insecticides are now required to be packaged in containers with safety closures that are very difficult for most children to open. Remember to keep the product in its safety packaging. Close the container properly after use, resealing the safety feature.

Remember that most children cannot open poison-prevention packaging, but some can. Safety closures will help, but they can't do the whole job of protecting children.

Dear Abby Daughter's gift is breath of fresh air

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: One week ago today I gave up cigarettes for good. It's got to be the hardest thing I have ever done, but I've got it licked this time.

Why? Because my mother and I quit together. This is my chance to do something very important (for someone I love very much, and I know if I stick to it, so will she).

We have both tried to quit before, but failed. This time it is working because even though I am not as hooked as my mother, I'm quitting more for her sake than my own.

What better gift could we give each other? Happy Mother's Day!

L. GAYLE SMARRITO, CHERRY HILLS, N.J.

DEAR L. GAYLE: Beautiful! Please send a progress report in September, and if you're still "clean," have I got a present for you!

...

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will use my letter on Mother's Day as a tribute to all those brave, unselfish mothers who gave up their babies.

I am a new mother whose heart is overflowing with gratitude to a 15-year-old girl I have never seen. I understand that she is a beautiful, intelligent person who became pregnant accidentally and decided on her own that her baby should have a better life than she was able to provide, so she put up the baby for adoption.

As soon as our son is able to understand, I shall tell him about his "real" mother and what a courageous person she is.

In the meantime, I pray daily for her well-being and good fortune. Sign me...

BLESSED

DEAR BLESSED: Thank you for an appropriate letter for Mother's Day. I agree that giving up a child for its own good is the ultimate in unselfishness. God bless those mothers who did.

...

Rape Prevention

A seminar, Women Against Rape, will be held Monday, May 10 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church.

The seminar is sponsored by the Make America Better Committee of the Pampa Board of Realtors.

Dianne Bosch of the Amarillo Police Dept. will conduct the seminar. Mrs. Bosch is an investigative training officer for the police department.

Mrs. Bosch's training with Amarillo Hospital District, while she was employed for two years as a nurse at the Amarillo Psychiatric Pavilion, comes in handy in the seminars and helps her talk about a taboo subject. "It is a traumatic subject. It is not something you talk about over the dinner table. Usually when someone talks about it, it has just happened to them."

This coming year, hobbies or interests you deem to be labors of love could provide a new source of income for you. Others will express an interest in your work if they know it's for sale.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Treat others generously today, but also retain your practical judgment. Don't give away something you may later need yourself. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be wary of making impulsive commitments today. Promises made in haste might not be well thought out. They could prove difficult to honor later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're likely to be a trifle restless today. It's best to find industrious ways to utilize your time. Select projects which are artistic or creative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) At social gatherings today, direct your conversation to topics of general interest rather than to those which are important only to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your effectiveness as a promoter or salesperson will be diluted today if you fail to know when to stop selling. Keep your presentation brief and succinct.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It would be wise not to discuss matters which should be kept between you and your mate in front of others today. Work them out yourselves.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're tackling a do-it-yourself project today, be sure you know what you're doing or you might waste both your time and money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you normally enjoy having others around — in fact, the larger the group the better — today you might just want to be with your special someone. Three could be a crowd.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to make this a day of total fun and relaxation. Temporary shelve projects which are identified with your workaday world. You need a change.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Avoid gossip types today. They will get under your skin and be even more annoying than usual. Chum around with friends who only say nice things to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be appreciative of the good things that happen to you today. Don't be envious of others, even if they appear to be better off than you. Chances are they aren't.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In dealing with loved ones today let your heart rule your head, even if they do things of which you may disapprove. Kindness, works, criticism doesn't.

Dyan Cannon reshapes her life and her image

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — People magazine once said that the film, "The Last of Sheila," could have been the last of Dyan Cannon, who starred in it.

Following the release of the film in 1973, the actress took to her bed for a month, upset that the script and movie were so different. Then she literally dropped out — for four years.

But like the legendary Phoenix, Miss Cannon has risen from the ashes of an ailing career, soaring with a new image and a new future.

"I just feel like my life has just begun," she says. "I feel like I'm just touching the surface. And more important than a career was understanding peace and maintaining it."

The 43-year-old Miss Cannon spent those four years when she was out of the Hollywood scene discovering and exploring her own peace of mind. The experience has been a good one, she says. Dyan Cannon has discovered Dyan Cannon and she likes what she sees.

Unlike Myra Bruhl, the skittery hysteric she plays in her current film, "Deathtrap," Miss Cannon is relaxed as she talks about her new image and reshaped career. She doesn't spit out her words in machine gun rapid fire. Instead, they seep out slowly and languidly, like sand slipping through fingers.

"In order to understand the now in my life, I had to understand the then," she says. "I'm not sure if everyone has to. I don't like to feel bad in order to feel good. I don't think that's necessary."

Exploring "the then" showed Miss Cannon that her image in film was that of a scatterbrained floosie. Up until then, she had played in "The Rise and Fall of Legs Diamond," "Doctors' Wives," "The Love Machine," "The Anderson Tapes," "Shamus" and "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice," for which she received an Academy Award nomination for her role of Alice.

"I withdrew from the Hollywood scene because I was devastated with the way the work was coming out," she said. "I didn't like the way women were treated. 'I'm a total workaholic,' she says. 'I like to keep my instrument in tune. I don't have to work to be happy, but I enjoy it. I enjoy it much more than going to parties. I know a balance is important, but I'm just being honest about it.'"

Miss Cannon packed herself off to the Women's Directing Workshop of the American Film Institute during her four-year hiatus. What emerged in 1976 was a poignant short feature on adolescent sexuality, "Number One." It was nominated for an Academy Award.

"Had I not stopped and listened to that voice, I could not have written or directed 'Number One,'" she said.

INSIDE STORY. Derek Jacobi pauses during taping of the upcoming five-hour miniseries "Inside the Third Reich," in which Jacobi stars as Adolf Hitler. The miniseries, to be shown on ABC Sunday and Monday, is based on the autobiography of Nazi war criminal Albert Speer. (AP Laserphoto)

'Smurfs' is a hit

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What's blue and cuddly, stands three apples high and has suddenly turned third-place NBC into a powerhouse on Saturday mornings?

If you answered the Smurfs then you've got a smurfet record.

The animated series, based on a set of 20-year-old French books, has provided NBC with a badly needed hit. The Smurfs lifted NBC out of the Saturday-morning cellar and made them No. 1. They even caused the network to abandon plans to expand "The Today Show" to Saturday.

The show is feeding, and in turn being fed by, a $150 million boom in Smurf dolls, figurines, puppets, pins, pajamas, clothing, posters, school bags, lunch boxes, cups, stationery, records and books. It's the biggest thing since Snoopy and the Peanuts gang.

The amazing thing about the success of the Smurfs is that it's a delightful show. The usual history of Saturday morning programming for children is that the bad drives out the good. But the show is well done, offers good values, and every Smurf, from Papa to Brainy to Grouchy to the lone female, Smurfette, has a distinct personality. All of them are menaced by the only human in the show, the evil Gargamel and his nasty cat, Azrael.

The Smurfs were created in 1958 by a Belgian cartoonist named Pierre "Peyo" Culliford. They were known only in Europe until a Smurf promotion campaign by a British oil company attracted an American novelty company in 1978.

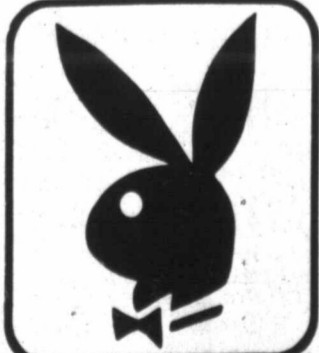

The merchandising is, in fact, responsible for the series. Fred Silverman, then president of NBC, became intrigued when he saw his daughter playing with her Smurfs. Silverman turned the idea over to Hanna-Barbera.

"I'm still trying to figure out why it took off," says executive producer Joe Barbera. Barbera and his partner, William Hanna, run the General Motors of television animation. Their shows include "The Flintstones" and "Yogi Bear."

"I remember we had another animated series that didn't work. We had had to eliminate the villain. That was it. Gargamel and Azrael the cat are the villains. I think that's what makes the show work. Kids have never seen anything like this before. This is what life is all about. When they grow up they're going to meet all kinds of problems and I think they should learn about it and prepare for it."

Lucy Johnson, NBC's head of children's and daytime programming, says, "You ask yourself why they're popular. You study it and end up saying you don't know. It's an indefinable chemistry and charisma that the kids relate to."

Roommates share their winnings

EATONTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Four computer engineers who went gambling armed with a secret betting system are taking the $186,000 they won and doing what might be expected of the mathematically minded: They're dividing it. The roommates captured three gambling contests in five weeks, and narrowly missed adding $25,000 to the pot at a Friday night contest in Atlantic City.

"We got lucky," said Dave Waring, considered the gambling mastermind by his roommates. But he admitted the group has a secret system that uses their math skills and "analytical minds."

Waring said the roommates don't use computers to enhance their chances. But the same skills used in working with computers helped at the table, he said.

All four have extensive backgrounds in mathematics and probability. Bill Weidner, president of the Sands Casino in Atlantic City, where the men added to their pot, said he doesn't object to whatever system they've been using.

"If they have a system, I'm not convinced it's the greatest system in the world," he said.

One of the bunch, David Gatenby, came in second in Friday's final $25,000-round of the Sands World Championship of Casino Games, in which players stake $5,000 to compete in baccarat, craps, roulette and blackjack.

The night before, Gatenby picked up $31,998 winning the baccarat division of the Sands tournament. Another roommate, Michael Meyer, won the craps division Wednesday night, adding close to $80,000 and beating 117 other gamblers. It was the second time in his life Meyer had shot craps.

But Meyer's luck — or system — failed him Friday. He lost his stake in the final round. Gatenby and Meyer, both 24, Waring, 29, and John Lertola, 24, are computer engineers for Bell Laboratories in Holmdel.

"We agreed to split the winnings four ways when we started this," Waring said Friday morning after staying up late celebrating their winnings.

Lertola is the only one of the group who has yet to win a pot. Waring won $75,000 last month when he came out on top of a craps tournament sponsored by Resorts International Hotel Casino.

Oil glut appears to be fading

By ROBERT BURNS AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The oil glut is drying up — and with it, the chances for a collapse in oil prices.

That's a startling turnaround from two months ago when the oversupply, estimated then at about 3 million barrels a day, showed little sign of disappearing before next year.

Indeed, world oil prices were falling rapidly. Many analysts then were predicting that oil prices would drop to $25 a barrel, or lower. Some were saying the collapse would put OPEC out of the picture.

But now it appears the glut is going away quicker than the experts had figured. A consensus seems to be emerging in oil industry circles that OPEC will succeed in retaining its current price system for the rest of 1982.

For U.S. consumers that will mean stable, or perhaps slightly higher, prices for gasoline and other oil products over the next few months, analysts say.

Economists at Standard Oil Co. of California, one of the world's biggest oil producers, said this past week they expected the glut to be gone by July 1. They also said official OPEC prices will hold through the year.

L.G. Rawl, senior vice president at Exxon Corp., told securities analysts Tuesday that he estimated oil inventories had dropped to 100 million barrels above normal levels from 500 million barrels above normal last summer.

"The signs are they will be close to normal by summer," Rawl said.

One of the clearest signs of a turnaround in the oil markets is the steady increase in prices for oil sold on the spot market, where crude and refined products are sold in individual cargoes to the highest bidder.

C. Halsey Peckworth, editorial director at the trade journal Platt's Oilgram Price Report, said Friday he calculated the average spot market price for all OPEC oil at $31.69 a barrel for the past week. That is nearly $2.50 a barrel higher than a month earlier, when the average was $29.24 a barrel.

Prices are rising not in response to a major pickup in demand but because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has taken about 2 million barrels of oil a day out of the market.

Dillard Spriggs, president of Petroleum Analysis Ltd., a New York-based consulting firm, assigns the main responsibility for halting the market's decline to Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter.

The Saudis, whose production accounts for about 40 percent of OPEC output, probably have reduced their production to about 6 million barrels a day, Spriggs said. That compares with their ceiling of 7 million barrels daily and their year-long production of about 10 million barrels a day.

A look at Texas

By The Associated Press HOUSTON (AP) — A married couple sued 10 manufacturers of DES for $2.1 million Friday, claiming each firm should have known the drug they made, marketed and promoted was carcinogenic.

Joyce and Paul Tautenhahn filed the suit in federal court and retained the option of naming up to 100 other manufacturers for "negligent, wrongful acts and omissions" that caused Mrs. Tautenhahn's cancer.

Mrs. Tautenhahn, 26, was exposed to DES, a diethylstilbestrol, because her mother took it to prevent a miscarriage, the suit said.

In June 1980, doctors told Mrs. Tautenhahn she had cancer of the cervix. She underwent a radical hysterectomy which had a "devastating impact on her mental as well as physical well-being," the suit said.

Jack Rawitscher, the couple's attorney, said it may be necessary to name other drug companies in the class action suit because of the difficulty in establishing responsibility. HOUSTON (AP) — Reaganomics has been replaced by "Reaga-mortis" and depression has become repression, says the national president of the AFL-CIO.
