RELIEF: WHERE WILL IT LEAD?

That is the question Dale Miller asks in the current issue of The Texas Weekly, and more people are now putting that query forward than are not. It is not only being asked in Texas but in every state in the union. Mr. Miller says that "international cooperation" should be given a chance to prove itself. By that, we take it, he means that the United States, instead of trying to pull itself out of the depression by its bootstraps, should try to create markets for the maximum amount of industrial and agricultural products it can produce. This is about the only recovery method the nation has not tried. It would involve correcting tariff evils and "international cooperation" on a world-wide scale. Is it because it is an doctrine and not a new-fangled idea that the nation has not tried it? Mr. Miller writes:

The history of government experiments under the New Deal has encompassed a series of grim paradoxes. Last May reemployment reached its highest peak since the depression began, more than 5,000,000 of the 13,000,000 unemployed having been returned to work; but during the same month federal relief expenditures climbed to a new high record, also. Only a few days ago a government spokesman reviewed the blessings of the New Deal and claimed recovery was at hand, while a news story in an adjoining column recounted the growing relief rolls and declared that the administration is to be faced with the task this winter of feeding 23,000,000 people. Business has made considerable gains from the nadir of depression, yet breadlines have grown also. The wheels of industry are whirring with renewed vigor, yet through the cacophony of industrial activity the dirge of human suffering is pounding in a rising crescendo. Every step upward toward recovery seemingly has been paralleled by a plunge deeper into the depths of depression.

When the New Deal moved as a mighty phalanx against the depression the stirring battle cry was raised that the nation was at war. Heavy expenditures were made and made again, being justified because the battle against the depression was as vital as that against any tangible foe. Few raised their voices in protest against so laudable an aim, and few would raise them now. But it is treason to question the course of battle when every attack is repulsed, when the billions poured into the fight are instantly absorbed and the need for more billions continues to remain? No one will begrudge the effort to buy back prosperity, if prosperity can be bought. But more than thirteen billions of dollars have been added to the national debt within the last year and a half, a balanced budget is clearly remote, and, most alarming of all, the need of more expenditures not only remains but is greatly intensified. Here in Texas the twenty millions for relief will soon be exhausted, and talk is being heard of further bond issues amounting to $30,000,000 or $50,000,000. And no reassurance has come from Washington that these funds will not be needed. Indeed, how can such reassurance come? The drain on the national treasury is more pronounced than our own. One crisis precipitates another—and no one can foresee the end.

Groping in the dark for an answer to this grave problem we can discern two impressions which stand out clearly. One is that the simultaneous gains experienced in employment and relief rolls, paradoxical as that condition may seem to be, can be explained by the regrettable fact that much of the recovery enjoyed thus far has been synthetically created and sustained by heavy government expenditures. And the theory that this synthetic recovery would generate sufficient economic activity to produce actual recovery has not borne fruit. The billions that produced synthetic recovery must now be followed by billions more, and growing relief rolls in all parts of the nation bear mute testimony to the fact that the quicksands of depression have not been crossed.

It is time to wonder if the crisis has not now reached such perilous proportions that the administration should begin to question the wisdom, not of any particular experiment, but of the entire trend of recovery legislation. The only cure for unemployment is employment, and no serious official recognition has yet been given the thought that the employment of millions of Americans will not be assured until the markets which consumed the products they produced can be restored. For years The Texas Weekly has resisted the trend toward narrow economic nationalism, but has acceded to the popular clamor in the belief that the fallacies of such a program, to be plainly exposed, should prove themselves in practice. But how much more proof is necessary? With the national debt soaring to giddy heights, and with relief rolls growing to unprecedented proportions, is it too much to hope that a program of patient international cooperation be given at least a chance to prove itself?

The cost of living took a drop for a short while recently, so ask your wife what she did with the money she saved by it.

Well, one good thing that came out of going off the gold standard was that it afforded a means of catching the Lindbergh ransom suspect.

About New York

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—The checking and rechecking that goes on in public relief work now amounts almost to counter-espionage. So many loopholes crop up that the government must maintain a rigid vigilance to check these unscrupulous persons who accept relief when they actually are not entitled to it. One incident that came to light recently would have left executives in a state of high indignation had not their sense of humor prevailed. In examining check stubs, that is, checks that had been given out to needy persons, they came across a relief check that had been cashed in a bank in Austria. The "needy" person had gone home to Austria and was still receiving aid from the government. Needless to say they put a stop to that business in a hurry. I was talking to a man now nearly 50 who made a little money some years ago, but, unable to get employment, he has been forced to draw on his reserve until now he has less than $50 in the bank. He hasn't earned more than $25 in the last six months. Presently, this fund will be exhausted and then he doesn't know what he will do. I asked him if he had applied for relief and he said "Sure. But I've still got a dime or so, and until that is gone I can't swear the pauper's oath."

When you drive your own car and cross the Hudson by ferry you are assessed so much for every person in the car. But there were four in the car. Sweeping the interior of the car with a cold eye, the officer said: "What are you trying to do—get away with something? You got four people with you." "Without batting an eye one of the men in the back seat piped up: "That's all right, officer. I'm a stow-away." Spicy Yarn If you search diligently enough you will find a little spice shop tucked

STATE ADOPTS NEW METHOD IN DEATH FIGURES

Standing of Texas To Be Improved by New System

AUSTIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—Adoption of a new method of recording death statistics likely will correct apparent inconsistencies in death rates for given localities and improve the standing of Texas, as compared to other states, Dr. W. A. Davis, state registrar, predicts.

Simultaneously the new method will be employed by federal agencies to obtain a correct representation of state death rates.

The fundamental change will entail the crediting of a death, regardless of where it occurred, to the residence of the deceased.

Texas and many cities may appear healthier, in view of recorded deaths, as a result of the change, Dr. Davis said. He cited the influx of tubercular patients to Texas for treatment and the state's large Mexican population as two causes of a high death rate as shown under the previous system.

Discrepancies were noticeable. Tabulations indicated cities were less healthy than rural communities.

"That we knew was not true," commented Dr. Davis, "although we had a virtually complete record of deaths in both groups. So we looked to the reason."

"Take Temple and Bell county for an example. The county death rate in 1933 was 7.9 per 1,000 population. In Temple it was 16.8. The apparent conclusion would be that Temple's rate was unjustifiably raised because of deaths in its three big hospitals. Deaths in the hospitals were counted against the city, regardless of where the people came from.

"San Angelo, for instance, shows a death rate of 11.8 and Tom Green county 9.7. For Nolan county, however, the rate was 6.7 and for Sweetwater, 6.3. Surely there isn't that much difference between the healthiness of those two cities and counties. The reason is apparently that tuberculars go to Tom Green county for treatment after it is too late.

"Austin's 1933 death rate was 17.4 per 1,000 population and Travis county, 6.8. Austin's high rate doubtless was caused by deaths of

Marian Gordon by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: To save Cliff Gordon's life and earn money for his mother's attempt at suicide, Marian Gordon, reporter for the Morning Democrat, and her sister instead that Cliff's recently divorced wife, Silver, is a girl stricken to learn her former husband had shot himself. Now Marian has evidence that Silver is connected with a recent bribery case, and suppresses that, although Silver is making a play for Lon Glass, whom Marian loves. Marian, Lon and a friend are dining in Reno.

Chapter 13. SILVER AGAIN "Would you like to stop dancing?" Lon inquired solicitously. "No," she answered, "not ever."

"That's all right with me," Lon answered. "I might speak to the orchestra leader and suggest he arrange for relays of music."

"The sensible," chimed Marian, laughing. "Which you in my arms?" she queried, the smile on her face "impossible." Then a few moments later, "Jan, do you have to dance with Hamlin?"

"Of course, Lon, what a question to ask." "Well, I don't know that I like him."

"Yes you do." "Yes, I know I do, but I'd like him better if he didn't make such a play for you."

"Lon, he doesn't," and she smothered an impulse to add, "not half so much as you," but she was silent. "Yes he does, and I don't blame him, but if he tries to wrangle a ride home with us tomorrow, I'm going to..."

Marian couldn't resist the next impulse—"have shattered nerves?" she suggested, and she saw that he laughed heartily.

"Tan, did you like to keep on dancing for weeks?" "We might join a walkathon," she suggested.

"I've got a better idea... oh-oh, that's the finish." Marian danced with Hamlin next, a Hamlin who couldn't be roused to cheerfulness, despite the gay tone of the music.

"I feel guilty taking you out when you must be tired from last night's affair," she told him after several futile efforts to catch even a crooked smile.

"You needn't be," he said, then added a moment later, "I wish it were as easy to coach people in life, as it is on the stage. There you can tell them what to do to gain desired effect, but in real life—" he shrugged his shoulders.

"Do you feel that I need coaching," she asked. "How should I know," was his slightly weary answer, "and my coaching wouldn't help. I know, I was properly coached and see what a mess I made of things. We are alike in one thing, we do what we think is right regardless of consequences... and then we suffer. I read in a philosophical magazine recently that anyone who has anything they wanted if they were willing to take what went with it, Silver wants luxuries... she gets them, but rebels against the troubles that come with them. I wanted a certain kind of life peace and beauty. I have it, but I've lost the love of my wife who wanted something else and was willing to pay the price, and you—"

"You'll demand what you want without compromise. If you can't have it unqualified, you'll take substitutes." He laughed a little to soften his statement, then said, "but this music isn't the proper accompaniment for such nonsense... think we'd better move along to our next stop after this dance."

They moved on to a huge bar, the silo converted into a bar, the stalls into private dining nooks. There was more food, more dancing. When the hour was late enough they began a round of the casinos. Lon and Marian too engrossed in each other to appreciate the glamour. Hamlin played recklessly and won amazing sums of money. Lon played carelessly and lost.

"Lucky in love," consoled Hamlin, and added "I always win when I feel as I do tonight."

"I should think it would pay you to feel that way," remarked Lon.

"That's where the laugh comes in," the other man remarked, "I don't need the money now."

Marian understood. Now that his wife's desertion had created the bitterness which seemed to bring money in its wake, she wasn't there to share the one thing that would have held her loyal to him.

They had reached an imposing looking building, the entrance a doorway of full length mirrors. Hamlin started to pilot Marian through the door swung open by a liveried attendant, but she turned her head about, but not before she had seen what he was doing.

"Nothing such here," he was saying, "suppose we go where we can dance. And I imagine you'll be wanting to get back to your hotel early."

Marian had paused. To the others she seemed engaged in the purely polite habit of priming before the most available mirror. In reality she was regarding the police which had deserted her when she looked into the gaming room to see Silver Gordon, the center of a gay crowd, feverishly raking in a pile of colored chips.

"Why had Hamlin turned away? Marian knew he had recognized Silver. Had he had Marian's interests at heart would he have done that, or would he have walked in to let Lon see for himself that this 'poor little thing' as Lon had called her was quite capable of forgetting the dying man who had been her husband, while she made merry with a crowd of friends."

Well, she could do it. She could insist upon seeing this famous nervous, she would show him the blank and fazed Silver, glowing over her winnings. Perhaps then he would understand why she had seemed so heartless at the cabin that morning. Perhaps then he would realize Silver had been acting a part.

Len Sutherland had said it was biologically impossible for women to be honorable with each other when a man was involved. Silver had no sense of honor. She knew Lon had driven to Reno to see Marian, and yet she had deliberately picked up Silver to catch a train, in order to trivegle a solitary ride with him. Why should she be shown any honor? After she had treated Cliff Gordon as she had, why be shown any consideration at all?

Marian knew that the highly principled Lon would be revolted by the Silver she had seen a moment ago. Why should she protect the girl against her own interest? (Copyright, 1934, by Jeanne Bowman) Tomorrow, Marian makes a sacrifice.

7 SACRAMENTS DISCUSSED AT LOCAL CHURCH

FATHER LEDWIG WILL CLOSE LECTURES THIS MORNING

Rev. Francis Ledwig concluded his series of lectures at Holy Souls church last evening to an audience which taxed the capacity of the church.

On Friday evening, speaking on the subject, "The Sacraments," he explained the sacramental system of seven sacraments. He explained that a sacrament is a visible sign instituted by Christ, signifying and producing sanctifying grace in the souls of men.

The New Testament mentions all of the seven sacraments more or less explicitly," declared Father Ledwig, "while it is true that, there is nowhere in its pages a list of them yet, there is no systematic statement of the teachings of Christ as one might expect to find a creed, a catechism, or manual of theology. Christ entrusted to His church all His seven sacraments just as He entrusted the Bible to her as keeping, but while she used daily these means of grace and salvation, she did not at once and immediately make an inventory of them."

On Saturday evening, Father Ledwig spoke on the subject, "Which is the True Church?" He pointed out that Christ set up a standard by which all men might tell which was the true church founded by him and declared that there are four marks which must determine the true church as founded by Christ. The true church must be apostolic, it must be one, it must be universal and it must be holy like its divine founder and make men holy who profess the true church and practice its teachings. The true church of Christ must be able to trace its history and line of succession from the time of Christ, through Peter and the other apostles in one unbroken and continuous line down to the present moment. It must teach the same doctrine that was taught by Christ and must teach that doctrine in every known part of the world and there must have been no change in that doctrine from the time of the apostles to the present hour. The true church must be universal and not circumscribed by any nation, group or movement. The church of Christ was founded for the men of all nations. His idea was not the setting up of a national church. The true church of Christ must so conduct itself in its teachings and ceremonies that it inspires men to holy things and to lives of sanctity else it cannot lay claim to being holy as was its founder, Jesus Christ.

Father Ledwig closes the week of religious services for the Catholic people in Holy Souls church this morning. He will preach at the 8 o'clock Mass on "Perseverance."

Father Ledwig is being assisted in his missionary work by the Hon. Dr. John Jos. Correll, Knight of the Holy Sepulchre and Papal Count. He is a writer and author and a student of world affairs. He has very recently completed a book on world peace, "World Peace and its Future," which is soon to come from the press. He has been active in Catholic church circles for many years and has the distinction of having had conferred upon him many decorations of merit by the Pope as well as rare and much prized decorations of many European countries. Among his many decorations, besides the ones mentioned above, he holds the Medal of Merit of the French Academy of Arts and Sciences, the Gold Star of the Pontifical Academy of Science of the Tiberialia of the Vatican and the Gold Medal of the Imperial and Royal Geographical Society of Paris.

Mrs. L. H. Green is spending this week-end with relatives in Lockney.

MARKET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—The stock market drifted through another session of extremely narrow fluctuations today, closing the week at about the same level from which it started on Monday.

Week-end lassitude pervaded most markets. A further spurt of nearly three cents in the British pound and a decline in grains attracted most interest in the absence of worthwhile movements in security prices.

United States government bonds firm. Otherwise markets gave no perceptible response to President Roosevelt's Roanoke, Va., speech, although his references to maintenance of government credit generally made a favorable impression. Wall Street had focused its attention on his scheduled address before bankers at Washington next Wednesday.

Volume shrank to 228,740 shares compared with 412,200 last Saturday. The Standard Statistics Co. reported that the market was only one-tenth of a point higher at 71.8. A week ago it stood at 72.2, having moved in the meanwhile, within a range of about one point. Liquidation in the grain market served to increase caution among wheat buyers. The May position in Chicago was down to around 97 1/2 cents. Other cereals joined the retreat, rye losing as much as 2 1/2 cents.

Cotton was unchanged to 20 cents. Accounts of fairly active retail demand for goods buoyed hopes of business prophets. Steel demand was said to be showing signs of a little expansion. On the whole, though, the trade news was not convincing enough to move potential buyers of shares into action.

KIWANIS' PENNY JAR CONTEST TO AID UNDERPRIVILEGED TOTS

The "Go Getters" of the Kiwanis club were leading the "Live Wires" in the penny jar contest at the close of the first week, according to Esburr Thompson, secretary. The club is divided into two groups for the month and each member has placed two penny jars in various business houses to collect money to help the underprivileged children's fund. Each penny turned in counts a point and the losing side will eat beans while the winners will eat turkey at the end of the contest.

Bob Selby was in charge of the program Friday and presented Miss Martin, junior high teacher, who introduced several of her pupils. values today melted away as a result of persistent liquidating sales on the part of holders whose hopes of higher prices had given out. Wheat in Chicago closed unsteady at the bottom figures both of the day and the week. 1 1/4-1 1/2 under yesterday's finish, May 97 1/2-98, corn 3 1/2-3 1/2 down, May 78 1/2-79, oats 3 1/2-3 1/2 off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents lower.

Further beneficial rains in domestic wheat territory southwest, northwest and over the central states, contributed to weakness of wheat values. In view of suspiciously early crop in this country, as well as the Argentine outlook, friends of higher prices made little headway with efforts based on authoritative trade estimates that the 1934 wheat production of the Canadian prairie provinces would total but 240,000,000 bushels against 263,000,000 bushels, the latest government forecast.

Despite adverse weather which would tend to check corn movement, that grain and oats finally declined owing to sympathy with wheat. Talk of further arrivals of imported rye served as an unsettling factor in all grains.

Provisions eased a little as a result of weakness of cereals.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20 (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Cattle trade at midwestern markets this week was featured by a continued liberal movement of fed steers and yearlings and especially large quota of good to choice light weight steers and yearlings offered.

Practically all killing classes are weak to unevenly lower as compared with last Saturday with a general decline of 25-50 on good to choice light weight steers and yearlings. Stocker and feeder classes are unevenly steady to 25 lower with a week ago. Demand this week was narrow for fleshy feeders and somewhat improved on stockers. Aggregate receipts of commercial cattle at eleven markets were around 267,900 as compared with 252,167 last week and 264,413 at ten markets a year ago.

Hog prices at several markets are 5-15 higher than a week ago while others which were relatively high last week show losses of 10-25. Chicago had a closing top of 5.95. Total offerings were around 387,000, an increase of 45,000 over last week and 118,000 heavier than a year ago. Fat lambs are unevenly 10 to mostly 25 lower for the week while aged sheep and yearlings ruled steady to 25 lower. Feeding lambs at most centers were firm to slightly higher. The week's supply of commercial sheep totaled 437,300 against 520,823 last week and 442,854 a year ago.

A. A. U. W. GREW FROM A SMALL START IN 1882

Branches Are Now Organized Over Many Nations

The annual international dinner of the American Association of University Women's branch here, scheduled for Tuesday evening, calls attention to the history of this organization, which extends over the United States and has chapters in many foreign cities.

Organized in January of 1882, it was first known as the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. In the fall of 1881 a group of college women in Boston met to discuss the advisability of forming such an association.

At the first regular meeting on January 14, 1882, officers were elected and a constitution was adopted. At the second meeting in Boston there were 66 present, representing Smith, Vassar, Oberlin, Wellesley, Cornell, Boston University, the University of Wisconsin, and University of Michigan.

First activities of the organization were investigations into school conditions and educational facilities. Recommendations were made to school authorities in many cases affecting physical education of women, their place on college boards, and their right on faculties.

After this organization had been launched by Boston women, many similar groups were formed in the north and east. Women became interested in keeping up with college friends and continuing research after graduation from college.

In 1889 the Western Association of Collegiate Alumnae united with the original association, and in 1921 the Southern Association of College Women also joined the body and the present name was adopted. The first branch of the national organization was formed in Washington, D. C., on October 25, 1884.

IS MILESTONE IN CHAPTER'S HISTORY HERE

SPEAKER THIS YEAR IS L. F. SHEFFY OF W. T. S. T. C.

Starting their seventh year as a chapter here, members of the American Association of University Women review a record of accomplishments as they prepare for their annual international dinner Tuesday. It will start at 8 o'clock at Schneider hotel.

Each year of their history has seen a similar dinner, bringing an outstanding speaker from another city. This year L. F. Sheffy, head of the History Department at West Texas State Teachers college and widely known as an authority on West Texas pioneer lore as well as world history, will make the address.

The chapter here was organized as an A. A. U. W. College club, with about 125 members. The Amarillo A. A. U. W. branch was the sponsoring organization.

Scholarship Given. Immediately the group lent its cooperation to establishment of a public library here, and started a scholarship fund for high school girls. It has continued to assist the library and to award each year a scholarship to an outstanding girl in the senior class.

Entertaining senior girls and their mothers at a tea or dinner, bringing

NON-MEMBERS INVITED. The public is invited to the A. A. U. W.'s international dinner Tuesday evening, in accordance with the club's custom of sharing its feature speakers with all Pampa. Reservations must be made by noon Monday, and may be made by calling Mrs. J. A. Meek.

noteworthy speakers here each year for public meetings, encouraging local talent on programs, celebrating founders day with a program to which all other club presidents of the city are invited, and encouraging high school girls to continue their education, are some of the projects started and continued by the club.

Presidents of Chapter. Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar was the first president, and was succeeded by Mrs. George Wolfe, who left the city near the beginning of her term. Miss Fannie May, Arthur Teed, Mrs. E. C. Will, Mrs. J. B. Massa, and the present head, Mrs. C. A. Clark.

Mrs. M. A. Finney was sent the first year as representative to a sectional meeting at Fort Worth. Representative Mrs. Arthur Teed, sectional, and a national meeting has been a part of the club program. Miss May, present state secretary of the association, has appeared on the program of two state conventions, and Mrs. Hunkapillar has served as chairman of a state nominating committee.

Holds to Standards. Three years ago the organization became an authorized A. A. U. W. branch, dropping the College Women's club and accepting to membership only those eligible by standards of the national organization. When the Council of Women's clubs was formed here, the A. A. U. W. joined it and has cooperated in its civic undertakings.

Among the speakers who have appeared here at international dinners, entertainments, and sectional or other occasions under auspices of the club are Miss Hattie Anderson of the West Texas Teachers college faculty; Miss Geraldine Greene, dean of women at that college; Dr. I. N. McCash, president of Phillips University at Enid, Okla.; Mrs. Ruth DeLash, librarian of the Potter county library; Gene Howe of the Amarillo News-Globe; Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Tech; and Josh Lee of Oklahoma university.

When the state convention was entertained at Amarillo two years ago, the Pampa branch was hostess at a tea which brought it wide notice.

Study groups have been maintained, conferences have been conducted with groups and individual girls in the high school, and other activities carried on by the women who at the same time were united for social and cultural purposes.

Cheese Is Made In Club Lesson

Cottage cheese, as commonly made at home from sour milk with or without cream, is a nutritious food, said Miss Ruby Adams, county demonstration agent, when she gave a cheese demonstration Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Roy Tinsley for Priscilla club members.

She demonstrated cottage cheese made with rennet, an inexpensive food containing almost all the protein in fat of the milk from which it was made.

Posters picturing cottage cheese as a palatable addition to the diet were exhibited. Cottage cheese alone, seasoned in various ways, or used in the preparation of a number of dishes was discussed by members.

A short business session preceded the plate lunch, when Mrs. C. A. Tignor poured tea to Mmes. John Lawler, Fox, Cobb, Green, Clyde Carruth, Ira Spearman, Guy Farrington, W. D. Benton, Norman Walberg, Joe Lewis, J. M. Daugherty, Miss Donnie Lee Stroope, and the hostess.

'GHOSTS' TO BE AT L'NORA AT MIDNIGHT

LI HO CHANG COMING TO THEATER ON TOMORROW

Li Ho Chang's spiritualistic ghost show will come to the LaNora theater at midnight Monday for one engagement only. Children will not be admitted. Ladies should have escorts. So says the LaNora management.

Li Ho Chang has this to say about his own show: "In bat-like darkness... seeking to pierce the veil which shrouds the living from those evil forces dwelling beyond the natural... an attempt to re-unite all bonds that Death has broken. Is it possible to pierce the veil of Death and establish communications between separate planes of existence? Are dreams a hectic warnings. Can the dead be coaxed back from the grave?"

Furthermore Mr. Li Ho Chang says his show "is positively the most weird, uncanny, and nerve-debilitating performance ever before offered in the theater. It brings you face to face with the supernatural. The sole purpose of this séance is to delve into the supernatural. To learn things which we have no right to know. Since we can't learn these things by natural means we must resort to deeper, darker, more mysterious ways of finding out... and midnight is the proper time. At the time when power of darkness and evil reign. This is not an amusement for skeptics. Learn the secrets of life beyond the grave. Bridge the mystic chasm and listen to the messages of the departed. They walk for you; you can feel their icy fingers clutching at your throats. Skeletons that float before your eyes; skulls that loat and mock you from ghostly pedestals." So says Mr. Li Ho Chang.

JANET GAYNOR AND AYRES TO BE AT LANORA

ROMANTIC COMEDY TO OPEN AT THEATER TODAY

By DAVID DALLAS. "Servant's Entrance," a typical family entertainment, featuring Janet Gaynor and Lew Ayres, opens today at the La Nora theater for a three day run.

These two popular players are reunited for the first time since "State Fair" in a simple but charming story. The speculators of this film will have the opportunity to laugh at the troubles as they thrill to the romance of the madcap lovers. It is an old, old story about a rich girl in love with a poor boy, yet you will enjoy this picture regardless of your age. Walter Connolly and Sparks play important roles. Sparks plays the role of a typical frozen faced newspaper man.

A cartoon, news-reel, and Cab Calloway in "Hi De Ho" makes the short program an ideal one.

The mid-week program Wednesday and Thursday will bring to the La Nora Universal's surprise hit of the season—"Wake Up and Dream" which features Russ Columbo, June Knight, and Rodger Pryor. This picture is full of action, comedy and romance.

"The Six Day Bike Rider" which has already been the talk of the town among the younger set due to the "bike parade" staged at the La Nora last week end will bring to Pampa big mouthed Joe E. Brown. The picture is not only uproariously funny but presents some of the biggest thrills ever shown on the screen. The situations are unusual and hilarious enough to shake the kids and grown-ups alike with laughter. The picture will open Friday for a two day run only.

The Rex theater offers three unusual pictures this week. "The Crime of Helen Stanley," with the action laid in Hollywood in a large moving picture studio. In the cast are Ralph Bellamy, Shirley Grey and Gail Patrick. This unusual story written by Charles Condon, noted author, is one of the most authentic articles on screen production. This mystery tale, which tells the murder of Helen Stanley, movie star, shows practically every phase of screen production. This picture is sure to prove interesting to all movie fans.

The story ranges from the stockyards in Chicago to the plains of Arizona. Of interest to the public will be shown the recent great fire which took place in the Chicago stockyards some time back.

Buck Jones has always been popular in Pampa—and to you Buck Jones fans—here's some "dope": He was born at Vincennes, Indiana, and moved to Oklahoma when he was a young boy. He grew up in the service in the cavalry, on the Mexican border and in the Philippines. Later he joined the 101 Ranch Shows and Ringling Brothers. He has been in pictures since 1917—and to the ladies—he married Odell Osborne, famous wire walker in 1915!

PITT CRUSHED BY MINNESOTA IN 15 MINUTES

MIGHTY SWEDS SCORE ON PANTHERS IN 4TH PERIOD

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Staff Writer

PITT STADIUM, Pittsburgh, Oct. 29 — A slumbering golden giant—Minnesota's mighty offense—awoke with a start late today and in fifteen brief, thrill-soaked minutes, crushed Pittsburgh 13 to 7, knocked the Panthers out of the national title hunt for the second straight year, and trundled off toward new triumphs with 64,850 staring and gasping.

Like the ten thousand Swedes who jumped out of the weeds at the battle of Copenhagen, the burly Norsemen rose as if from ambush in that final quarter, and in two tremendous blasts, scored two touchdowns, turned a defeat into victory, and paraded off unbeaten in the title race, as dangerous an eleven as the country-side.

Through the first two periods, Minnesota never had possession of the ball past its own 22-yard line. In fact had hold of it only eight time all told in the first half. Only a magnificent defense in the crucial moments had kept the Panthers even seven points at bay—the result of a 64-yard lateral from Larry Weinstein to Mike Nicklack and Weinstein's perfect kick for the extra point in the final seconds of the half.

It wasn't a bit better in the third until Bob Larue, a heroic figure in Pitt's attack all day, muffed a pass from center for a 20-yard loss and Miller Munjas, a phenomenal kicker, bobbed another for ten yards in kick formation, and the panthers were back on their own three-yard line.

The slumbering golden giant stirred, took heart, and as Stanislaus Kostka, center, had possession of the ball, Kostka smashed the shakles for the first time. As the third quarter ended, Kostka smashed the Pitt line twice for gains of eight and nine yards and the first first down Minnesota had been able to score.

On the Norse comeback roared into full being, it was a slight indeed to behold. On the first play of the fourth quarter Alphonse, on a neat reverse, broke through the line and raced 22 yards over the Pitt goal, scoring starting up and being the score as Bill Beyer, one of the best guards Pittsburgh, home of mighty linemen, ever saw, booted the placement point.

Together, with the minutes ticking fast away, Lung swung into stride beside Kostka, and in short, but tremendous bursts, he started back the third Pitt forwards ripped 47 yards to the Panther 17. There Quarterback Glen Seidel faded back took the pass from center, tossed a lateral to Kostka, who in turn tossed back to Lund, with the Pitt ends and center, but during the game, Lund found his big end, Bob Tenner, loose on the ten-yard line and hurled him a perfect forward pass. Tenner had only ten yards to go to score.

Bevan missed that punt but the damage was done. The victory Pitt clinched with a 20-yard pass, Larue making up for his vital fumble by running all the way from his goal to the 40-yard line in three plays, then passing to Rooker—at mid-field. But he tried one pass too many. Vernon Levor, Gopher back, intercepted it, and the ball game was done as far as the Panthers were concerned.

He attributed the chaotic condition of the price structure directly to the huge "leak" from East Texas—a leak caused by failure of refiners who can obtain illegally produced oil to co-operate with others and purchasers interested in stability.

Some of the "hot oil" refiners, he said, do not like to be associated with codes and others are "just selfish." The spot-market price of gasoline stood today at about 2 1/2 cents, a gallon, at the dock, without 5-cent state tax, contrasted with the 5-cent price a group of major purchasing companies was willing to pay independent refiners for their surplus, in hopes of attaining stability.

Green said he doubted that the cargo of the two tankers landed recently near New York was bought "at much more than 2 cents a gallon."

GORILLAS ARE 13-13 VICTORS OVER WHEELER

PAMPANS TRAIL 13 TO 6 AT HALF, THEN COME TO LIFE

The Pampa high school Gorillas came to life in the second half to open their 1934 season at home with a 19 to 13 win over the Class B Wheeler Mustangs at Harvester field Thursday afternoon. The Gorillas had lost three hard battles away from home before breaking into the win column.

Trailing 13 to 6 at the half, Coach Harry Kelley gave his Gorillas some fatherly advice and they went back onto the field and played real football. The boys appeared bewildered during the first half as they let Wheeler get through for two touchdowns, the last on a short intercepted pass, with 20 seconds to go until the whistle for the half.

The Gorillas opened the scoring in the first quarter when Showers, fullback, crashed through for a touchdown after Barker and Stevens had done some nice ball carrying to place the ball in scoring position. Wheeler came back to score early in the second quarter on a pass. Tate to Shirley. Wheeler scored again at the half when Newkirk, left tackle, intercepted a wild pass on the line of scrimmage and raced 45 yards untouched to score. Tate passed to A. Weeks, right end, for the extra point. Weeks laid out on the sideline to snare the pass for extra point.

Showing some of their best football of the season, the Gorillas came back in the third quarter to score. Showers crashed through the line and then cut back for 12 yards and a touchdown. He added the extra point. The final Gorilla touchdown came near the end of the game when Hamlett, big Gorilla guard, blocked a punt near the Wheeler goal line. Foster carried the ball across for the counter.

Coach Kelley had to use a patched lineup because of injuries and sickness. Wheeler played ragged football, excepting in the second quarter when they scored both their touchdowns.

The Gorillas do not have a game for next week but Coach Kelley is trying to schedule one.

bill, Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston declared failure properly to preserve and to mark the home of Stephen F. Austin, the "Father of Texas," in Brazoria county was a "damnable crime."

Reviewing the history of Brazoria, Galveston and Chambers counties, Holbrook urged the committee to rewrite the bill to provide historical celebrations from the time and place "from whence sprang the men and inspiration" which effected Texas independence from Mexico.

T. N. Carswell of Abilene advocated an eight-point program for West Texas which would depict Indian life, the era of Spanish exploration, frontier days, the cattlemen's era, farming, religious and higher education development, women's participation in development of Texas and historical pageants. He promised West Texas would match a $50,000 state appropriation.

Boys Treated In Princely Style At State Fair

The five Gray county 4-H club boys who attended the State Fair at Dallas last week returned with stories of excellent treatment and much benefit. The boys were taken to Dallas by George W. Briggs, manager of the Board of City Development. The expenses were defrayed by the Kiwanis and Lions clubs and the B. C. D.

The boys were selected as leaders in their club activities during the last year. The trip was made Monday and Tuesday morning the boys were taken with groups from other clubs to the fair where they judged stock and received instructions from many well known specialists. Tuesday afternoon was spent at the races and Tuesday night at the show in the Coliseum.

Wednesday morning the boys were again taken to the fair where they visited exhibits and studied. They attended fair attractions in the afternoon and a theater at night. Thursday was mostly for fun with the return Friday.

Boys making the trip were Ernest Oakley and Herbert Castleberry, Alamed, J. L. Jones, Grandview, Burl Glass, Jr., Eldridge, and Bill Wilson, McLean.
