Citizens Bank and Trust is changing ownership

By ANTHONY HANDLES
Managing Editor

Controlling interest in Citizens Bank and Trust Company in Pampa has been sold to David Warren, Jr., a Borger banker with family ties in Pampa. Pending approval of various state and federal agencies, Warren has agreed to purchase the shares in the bank belonging to Pampa Bancshares, Inc., represented by J.W. "Jim" Campbell, J.W. "Joe" Gordon, Jr., and Rex McKay, Jr.

Warren's holding company, Athena Bancshares Corporation, will assume the majority ownership sometime before Jan. 31, 1983, the principals in the transfer revealed.

Warren is president and chairman of the board of Panhandle Bank and Trust Company in Borger.

There are no changes expected in the personnel at the bank. Warren told The Pampa News this morning Campbell and Gordon, along with former owner Floyd E. Imel, will remain on the board of directors of the bank, and Rex McKay will stay on as president of the company.

"We think there's a good crew there," Warren said, "and we don't want to foul things up."

Warren bought the bank, he said, because Pampa has a history of steady growth.

"Pampa is one of the most solid communities in the Panhandle," Warren said. "It has been consistent in its growth, and we are very optimistic about its future."

"Also, I have family ties in Pampa, and we feel very comfortable there."

Warren is married to the former Naneen Campbell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W.L. Campbell, a longtime dentist who still resides in Pampa. Warren was born in Pampa 51 years ago when his parents, David M. and Alvah Warren were living here. Warren also served on the board of Citizens Bank and Trust in 1976 and 1977.

Campbell and Gordon feel Warren's purchase (for an undisclosed amount) means transferring the principal ownership into good hands and will be a good move for the 6,000 depositors Citizens has currently.

McKay said of the sale, "Dave Warren is a fine banker. His track record speaks for itself. I look forward to working with him."

Campbell and Gordon, longtime partners and friends in ranching, banking and other interests, have been involved directly in the operation of the bank since they purchased the majority interest in the company from Imel in Nov. 1975.

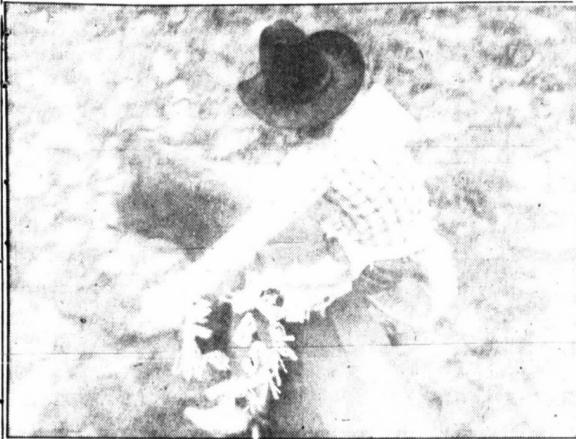

The story of the bank, Joe Gordon said, was really the story of Floyd Imel, who took over the running of a faltering

Kids and stock mixed it up Wednesday

No matter how they plow it ...

... no matter how they try

... arena dirt comes flying up

... and tries to hurt a guy

Brad Shadle came out of chute 2 Wednesday night riding high on an exploding brown brahma (top photo) and bit the dust belly-first behind the bull, still reaching for the rope. When the Clarendon boy rolled over, gritting his teeth against the hurt, the Lefors EMTs and rodeo officials were checking his legs for broken bones. Rodeo takes tough cowboys — and Brad walked out of the arena (bottom photo) with some helping arms around him, a layer of bruises on his hide, no score, and a lot of sand in his jeans. It was rain, pain and fame as the kids gave it all they had

The bulls were big enough for the big boys at the Kid Pony Show this year.

Doug Devoll of Pampa was the only rider of 21 13- and 14-year-old riders to hang on for the full six seconds, and half the 15-year-olds tumbled before the bell.

Wednesday night, directors said they brought in bigger brahmas to the Top O' Texas rodeo grounds because some young riders last year complained that their yearling bulls were too small for a good round ride.

Kim Ramby of Borger was stepped on by his brahma in the last event of the evening and taken to Pampa Community Hospital by ambulance; he was released after treatment for minor injuries.

The first rain on a Kid Pony Show in at least six years made the arena slippery in front of the chutes and sent spectators scurrying for slickers and umbrellas, and a stiff wind made the roping more difficult than usual, but the teenagers rode on, their hair and horses wet, and completed all events on the last night of the three-day miniature rodeo.

Even before the rain, the golfette riders apparently found the golf ball greased at the far end of the arena. In Group V, Ronnie Vandever of Mobeetie, riding Gray, grabbed and sacked the ball in 11.2 seconds for the first-place buckle and Drew Thomas of Wheeler on Lucky took second with 13 seconds. Kelly Miller of Woodward, Ok., Larry Trimble of Wheeler and Doug Devoll missed the elusive ball.

The cowgirls riding in Group V snagged the ball more often, but except for the two top winners — Cathy Sue Taylor of Pampa on Susi in 11.26 and Robyn Craig of Woodward on Slack in 12.26 — turned in longer times than the boys. Deann Ingram of Pampa took third place on Sundance in 20.83 seconds. Some of the girls' horses danced away from the barrels. Penny Morgan talked her horse into behaving and came in fourth at 40.42 seconds.

Marci Horne of Pampa coaxed hers around the course for a time of 45.23. Leslie Leggett and Joyce Ray of Pampa and Johnna Hinton of Miami missed the ball — and Callie Smith of Dumas got the ball but dropped it.

"You're going to need a truck to take all those buckles back to Woodward," joked one of the judges handing out prizes and ribbons at the end of the evening. Kelly Miller of Woodward on Princess won the Group V boys' barrel race with 17.87 and Robyn Craig from Woodward won the girls' Group V barrel race on Sailor in 17.67. Kelly also won the Group V breakaway roping with a time of 4.89.

Three boys took rough tumbles in the Group V bull riding, and the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department EMTs waiting by the fence checked them over for injuries, pumped some air back into their lungs and helped them walk away for another ride. Second and third places in the event went by draw to Denny McLanahan of Canadian and Willie Cross of Pampa. Seven other Pampa boys hung on hard — Wade Newsome, Kyle Clark, Enoch Phetteplace, Brooke Furrh, Wade Helton, Bruce McMillian and Sean Rapstine — but didn't make the bell.

Billie Billingsley of McLean took the buckle on Group VI bulls with a score of 59. Buddy Webb of Canadian came second and Andy Guthrie of Wheeler third. James Smith of Pampa scored fourth with 49 on a brindle brahma. Jamie Pohnert of White Deer made fifth place with 46, and Jay Irvin of Pampa got a re-ride on a noisy big black bull for a score of 42.

Pampa cowgirls took second and third place in the Group V barrel race. Cathy Sue Taylor on Susi made the course in 18.58 seconds and Penny Morgan on Sue in 18.96.

Lee Ann Gentry of Stinnett on Rosie won the Group VI barrel buckle in 17.64. Tammy Clay of White Deer riding Koma was second with 17.71, and Robyn Coleman of Lefors on Grit took third with 18.04.

Randy Martin of Wheeler on Mickey won the Group I boys' ribbon roping. Billie Billingsley of McLean was second, and Kent McLaughlin of Mobeetie took third place on the draw after most of the boys' calves worked out of their ropes.

The Group VI tie-down roping buckle went to Tim Bartlett of Canadian with a time of 23.67. Billie Billingsley took second with 30.62 and Donnie Blackburn took third place by draw.

Leslie Leggett of Pampa on Tabby bobbled a pole in the pole bending but won the buckle with 22.94 seconds. Callie Smith of Dumas was second with 22.95, and Cathy Sue Taylor of Pampa took another prize with 24.27 seconds in third place.

Lee Ann Gentry and Rosie took their second buckle of the evening in Group VI pole bending with a time of 21.17. Brandie Parish of Pampa and Rawhide were a close second at 22.26, and another Woodward girl, Melissa Miller on Sooner, took third place with 22.50. Two Pampa girls — Sabrina Parker and Cathy Jinks — took time penalties for knocking down poles.

If he hadn't broken the barrier, Jimmy Uptergrove of Clarendon might have won the Group V breakaway roping. He snagged his calf in only 3.71 seconds but took a 10-second penalty. Eddy Douglas of Miami was second with 5.59 and Larry Trimble of Wheeler third with 8.71. Four boys' calves came untied within six seconds, which cost them their scores. But the buckle for the best time of that event went to Kelly Miller of Woodward for a time of 4.89 seconds.

James Smith of Pampa saddled Velvet and raced back to the score line a length ahead of Billie Billingsley to win the saddle race buckle.

And a Pampa girl took home the buckle for goat tying. Laura Horne on Classy in a fast 12.46 second. Dayla Hash of Canadian was close behind with 12.78, and Sissy Gideon of Skellytown was third with 17.16.

Even the rain couldn't spoil the fun.

Texas elevators

Some have ups and downs, but Pampa's in pretty good shape

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
And the Associated Press

A state housing official says a "calamity potential" exists for the thousands of people who ride elevators in Texas because most of the state's elevators are not subject to government inspection, but people in Pampa are in pretty good hands, it was learned.

"Imagine your risk in a major building in Dallas," said Roy Fewell, code and standards specialist for the Texas Community Affairs Housing Division.

"You could have an elevator collapse that was filled with people. You could have a lot of people killed or injured," he said.

Texas, one of the few states that does not require elevator inspections, has left it to cities to set up their own standards and inspection programs.

But few have, according to Walter G. Martin, state director of occupational safety.

Houston is the only major Texas city with an elevator inspection program, Martin said.

The City of Pampa has no such program outside normal building inspection in accordance with the city building code.

However, local buildings with elevator are contracted with Montgomery Elevator Company in Amarillo for elevator inspections.

The Combs - Worley building has both a passenger and a service elevator, and both are inspected twice a month.

The Hughes building's elevator is inspected once a month by Montgomery, and Coronado Community Hospital's four passenger elevators are inspected twice a month by the company.

Montgomery is also available for service to the elevators and can reach an elevator breakdown here in "less than two hours," according to a Combs - Worley building representative.

"Anybody can put up anything they want to in the state of Texas as far as an elevator is concerned," Martin said. "We have elevators in the state that have probably been in operation for 50 years that have probably never had a safety inspection."

An average of 15 people die each year and 400 others are injured in elevator accidents in the United States and Canada, according to officials of the Otis Elevator Co.

Officials say accidents involving Dallas' 2,500 elevators are rare. In 1976, a Dallas man fell to his death when he stepped out of an elevator that had stopped between floors.

Neither the city nor the state keeps records of elevator accidents.

Meanwhile, the state relies mostly on the industry to police itself — a situation that some industry experts believe dangerous.

"It's not the kind of thing that's going to kill a lot of people right now," said Robert Lauer, engineering vice president of Schindler Houghton Elevator Corp. of Toledo, Ohio. "But it'll make its mark in time."

The state made one attempt to regulate elevator safety, but abandoned the program under the mistaken belief the federal government supervised such programs, officials said.

In 1967, the Texas Legislature created the Texas Occupational Safety Board to draft rules to prevent elevator hazards. The board proposed regulations in 1973 that would have required building owners to have their elevators inspected annually by qualified mechanics.

The Legislature cut off funding for the program in 1974, believing that responsibility for such programs rested with the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

But the federal government relies on state and local governments to make sure elevators are safe, said Gil Sautler, regional OSHA administrator in Dallas.

OSHA only has the authority to check temporary elevators at construction sites, Sautler said.

Passenger elevator inspection "is either a state or local jurisdiction responsibility," Sautler said.

obituaries

GEORGE EDWARD LILLY

Memorial services for George Edward Lilly, 37, will be at 6 p.m. Saturday at the Gething Ranch, Laketon. The Rev. Joe L. Turner, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, officiating. Mr. Lilly died June 3 in Santa Barbara, Calif., of injuries suffered in an auto accident.

He was born Jan. 10, 1945 in Pampa. He attended the University of California at Davis and served in the U.S. Air Force as a psychiatrist specialist. At the time of his death he was self-employed. He was the great-grandson of area ranching pioneer Elizabeth Ellen Gething.

Survivors include a daughter, Janetta Lilly of the home; a son, Brad Lilly of the home; his mother and stepfather, Mary Gething Jones and Clifford F. Jones; a brother, W. Lilly, his grandmother, Palestine Drum; an uncle, William E. Gething, all of Pampa; and two cousins, Mark and Grant Gething.

The family requests no flowers be sent.

BERT NORTHROP

AMARILLO — Services for Bert Northrup, 67, will be at 11 a.m. Friday at Blackburn - Shaw Memorial Chapel, the Rev. Shad Rue, pastor of Paramount Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Llano Cemetery.

Mr. Northrup died Tuesday. He is survived by his wife, two sons, a daughter, a brother, two sisters and 10 grandchildren.

Mary Nelson's elevator

The doors never close on hospitality.

By DAVID CHRISTENSON Staff Writer

If you're tired of machines talking to you, demanding your money, and even thanking you afterwards in their tiny little voices, don't despair. The age of personal service is not over.

Mary Nelson, the elevator operator at Pampa's Combs - Worley Building, has added that personal service to her corner of the city for 40 years.

Mary ran the original manual elevator in the 50-year-old building for about 15 years, after working about 5 years in the old Worley hospital.

The old elevator was replaced for passenger use by an automatic Otis in the 1960s, but Mary was kept on. She said the building's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carter, prefer the personal touch.

The manual elevator is still "running fine," he said, and is still used occasionally for service elevator needs.

The more recent elevator, with its original art-deco mauve color and rounded corners, has always worked well, she said, and has never broken down for more than an hour or two — par for the course for elevators.

She said it hasn't needed any major mechanical or cosmetic work since it was first installed. "We've taken real good care of our elevator," she said.

Mary's equipment in the new automatic elevator is a manual lever attachment for stopping and starting, a comfortable chair, and a friendly manner.

Mary greets her passengers with a friendly hello, and leaves them at the end of the ride with a "thank you."

Those who work in the building all know her by name, and she knows them — and their predecessors.

"Over the years, you know, you meet a lot of people, see a lot of faces," she said.

Mary knows the fortunes of the building, too. "I've been here 40 years and there's never been a vacancy for very long."

She said most of the earlier renters were doctors, but the new population is dominated by lawyers.

"There's always somebody coming and going," she said. Does she ever get bored? "Not really — people ask me all the time if I get tired, but I'm never bored unless it's not busy."

"The afternoons sometimes get kind of slow, but it's busy most of the time."

Mary said she has her workplace pretty well memorized, but she is not bored by her surroundings. "It's a beautiful, old building," she said.

As for the mechanics of the elevator,

Mary, like many workers, is not too curious, although she knows the basics of it.

The motor and main controls are at the top. The shaft is lighted — Mary said it is one of the few elevators around that still has safety lights at intervals in the shaft, and another one under the floor of the car.

Mary's controls are auxiliary controls. "There's a lot of little wires in here," she said, pointing at the polished metal panel.

Many people are uncomfortable on elevators, or even frightened of them, but Mary hasn't a touch of claustrophobia. "A lot of people won't ride the elevator at all," she said.

One woman who works in the building won't even get into the elevator, Mary said, and walks the stairs every day.

Once, she said, a windstorm blew down a power pole that feeds electricity to the elevator motor, and Mary was in the darkened little room for a half-an-hour.

At the time, she said, she was grateful that she was alone. "I knew there was nothing wrong with the elevator," she said, and it would have only been worse if she was accompanied by a nervous rider.

Her favorite part of the job is meeting people. "It's a nice job for me," she said. "I'm really happy that I have it."

New method can make grain elevators safe from explosion

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Academy of Sciences report says the nation's grain elevators have been rocked by more than 400 explosions since 1960, many of which could have been prevented by dust collection devices and better housekeeping.

But a trade organization says the report overlooks many efforts the grain industry has made to curb explosions, and a labor leader says the study falls short of getting at the basic causes.

Dust, which can be highly explosive under certain conditions, is caused by moving wheat, corn and other grain from one place to another, particularly when it is elevated or shifted from bin to bin.

Nearly 200 deaths have been reported in U.S. grain elevator explosions since 1960, including five in western Iowa three months ago.

A special study panel of the academy's National Research Council suggested several priority actions which it said could eliminate more than 90 percent of grain elevator dust explosions "if implemented either voluntarily or through federal regulation."

The recommended actions call for automatic suction and manual cleaning systems to remove dust within closed elevator spaces, other systems to reduce potential ignition sources, and safety training for employees.

Dust control was found to be the "most important and cost-effective step to reduce explosion hazards," the report said.

The report, which was released Wednesday, said many elevator employees who were interviewed after explosions "showed amazing ignorance about how dust explosions occur," and that "in almost every case, someone, generally an employee, does something that contributes directly to the occurrence of the explosion."

Employees of large grain-handling companies were much better informed than those at smaller facilities, the panel said. Employee education programs are particularly needed at 14,000 small facilities in the United States, it said.

The panel, which was comprised of experts from universities, industry and other sectors involved in the grain trade, determined that "a preventable accumulation and suspension of dust was the basic feature of every explosion" it examined.

"Dust on some surfaces such as floors, beams and ductwork, is readily visible and can be removed easily," the report said. "Unfortunately, housekeeping and maintenance often are given very low priority and usually are the first tasks postponed when there is a rush of business."

The panel said the elevator "leg" is the most frequent location of initial explosions and thus should be first in line for effective dust-control systems. "An elevator leg consists basically of a series of buckets attached to a movable cable or belt. It moves grain from the ground level to the top of the elevator's silos.

Most legs operate in narrow, vertical shafts and, when filled with airborne grain dust, can provide the potential fuel for explosions, the report said.

Therefore, it said, automatic dust collection devices such as pneumatic suction systems should be used in elevator legs and "at every point where grain falls through the air."

Other "first priority actions" recommended by the panel included:

—Rigorous preventive maintenance, especially on all parts of bucket elevators.

—A permit procedure for welding, cutting or other work involving open-flame equipment.

—A system to indicate slippage or faulty alignment of conveyor belts.

—Frequent checks of temperature and vibration of critical bearings.

—Grates or other devices to remove foreign objects from the incoming grain.

—Grounding of all conveying and electrical equipment.

The National Grain and Feed Association said it issued guidelines in January 1978 which embodied many of the academy panel's recommendations, including tighter housekeeping, preventive maintenance, training and education of elevator employees, and restrictions on welding and cutting operations.

Association president Alvin E. Oliver called attention to his organization's $1.4 million research program which has been looking into explosions the past four years. The panel's report, he said, failed to recognize this effort.

Robert Harbrant, president of the AFL-CIO's food and beverage trades department, said the report "should put to rest the myth that explosions cannot be prevented." However, Harbrant said the panel failed to explore all the reasons for the dust in the first place, including federal grain standards which permit a certain dust content in grain.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says that if Americans would develop a taste for grass-fattened lamb, it might help solve part of the nation's soil erosion problem.

But Americans prefer lamb chops from young sheep fattened on grain prior to slaughter. That grain is usually corn, a crop often grown in soil easily carried away by wind and rain.

Terry B. Kinney, administrator of the department's Agricultural Research Service, said Wednesday the erosion problem is one reason agency scientists are doing research on forage crops such as alfalfa for sheep production.

Another goal is to boost sheep output, which fell from 25 million animals in 1965 to half that by 1979. There have been small annual increases since then, which has brought encouragement to the U.S. sheep industry.

But one of the biggest challenges, he said, is that Americans generally have not accepted lamb to the degree they have accepted beef and pork, and they prefer animals fed grain.

Two research scientists at the University of Minnesota, Gordon C. Marten and Robert M. Jordan, are trying to develop lower-cost cropping systems aimed at reducing soil erosion and yet appeal to potential sheep producers.

If that can be done, Marten said, "We may be able to reduce the cost of producing sheep, increase production and consumption of lamb, and create markets for forages."

Marten acknowledged, however, that American consumer preference for grain-fattened lamb will be a major problem.

"In Australia and New Zealand, lamb producers simply market forage-fed lambs at a young age, when meat is tender," he said. "The lamb has nationwide acceptance. We hope this degree of acceptance can be achieved in the United States."

Britain is more lax on demands

LONDON (AP) — Britain has scaled down its demands for the release of 600 Argentine war prisoners still held following the Falkland Islands conflict.

The Defense Ministry said the prisoners, including Brig. Gen. Mario Benjamin Menendez, commander of Argentina's vanquished Falkland Islands invasion force, were being held aboard British ships moored off the Falklands capital of Stanley.

A spokesman said the ministry has not yet decided the destination of the prisoners. A government source said they might be brought 8,000 miles to Britain.

The British have returned 11,200 Argentines captured when the Argentines surrendered after the fall of the Stanley Garrison June 14. Argentina invaded the Falklands April 2 to assert its claim of sovereignty over the British colony 250 miles east of the Argentine mainland.

At first, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government said it would keep the other 600 prisoners — mostly officers and military specialists — until it received an "authoritative" Argentine statement that hostilities were over in the Falklands and their dependencies, and in the air-and-sea corridor between the islands and the Argentine mainland.

But Mrs. Thatcher's government has now watered this demand down to "positive indications" that the new Buenos Aires government considers the fighting over.

EPA will keep burning toxics

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency will send a research vessel to the Gulf of Mexico later this month to monitor the second ocean burnings of PCBs aboard an incinerator ship.

During the first disposal of almost 700,000 gallons of the toxic chemicals in December, the EPA relied only on on-board observers to record safety and efficiency levels, said Al Wastler, EPA marine protection chief in Washington. "This is just to make sure that all the data and all emissions are recorded properly," he said of the decision to send the Antelope to take air, water and biological samples from the site.

Wastler said scientists are reviewing data from the December operation but have found nothing that would jeopardize plans for more burns.

The incineration probably will begin in late July and take nine days to dispose of the 750,000 gallons, he said.

"We just had some additional data come in yesterday," Wastler said Wednesday. "I haven't really gotten into this but everything so far essentially confirms our expectations." PCBs are used as cooling agents for electrical transformers. Their manufacture was banned in 1977 after researchers discovered possible links to cancer and birth defects.

The chemicals do not break down easily and cannot be disposed of at landfills. The EPA considers ocean incineration safer than burnings on land and has designated one disposal site in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Vulcanus, equipped with German-built incinerators, is docked at Mobile, Ala., and has been loading its cargo since June. Wastler said the EPA is waiting to study final results of the first burn before given the ship permission to head to a disposal site 177 miles east of here.

Chemical Waste Management Inc. of Oakbrook, Ill., owns the Singapore-registered ship, which is managed by a Dutch company. The ship's owner has applied for permits to burn DDT, Silvex and a mixture of organic compounds in separate operations.

Some local officials and residents are upset that they did not know about the planned PCB burnings until after the official comment period ended.

The EPA refused to hold a formal hearing once the PCB permit had been approved but conducted an informal meeting in May here.

"What worries us is that they're going to burn it again and they're refusing to give us any information from the first time," said Ted Campagnolo, Cameron County assistant district attorney.

"Even at the meeting, they didn't give us anything of substance," he said. An observation report filed by TRW scientist Donald Ackerman said two of three samplings of the combustion efficiency were unacceptable, Campagnolo said.

The EPA required the ship to destroy no less than 99.9 percent of the material. Wastler said data shows a 99.99999 percent destruction rate.

Campagnolo said Ackerman also reported vibrations and problems with a camera that recorded efficiency ratings. He said the burning should have been halted when the camera went off.

Wastler confirmed the automatic camera malfunctioned but said the data also was recorded by hand.

U.S. envoy accused

Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan publicly accused U.S. presidential envoy Philip Habib today of backtracking on when to deploy peacekeepers in west Beirut and said that threatened "every other aspect" of talks on the evacuation of the PLO from the battered city.

The commission approval, Campbell said, is getting more difficult for state banks "since the Bert Lance affair" and is actually getting easier for the larger national banks.

"Even though a person such as Dave (Warren) has already been cleared with them to own the bank in Borger," Campbell said, "he still has to go through the whole thing again with this new arrangement."

Bert Lance, budget manager for President Jimmy Carter, resigned after certain irregularities were found with his banking business in Georgia.

At the same time, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev warned President Reagan that if U.S. Marines were sent into west Beirut "the Soviet Union would build its policy with consideration of this fact." He did not elaborate, but the Kremlin supports PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

Nine indicted in drug smuggling

DALLAS (AP) — A wealthy dairy farmer and eight other people have been indicted on drug smuggling charges in a case in which a witness was slain execution style, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael P. Heiskell. Named in the indictments returned Wednesday were millionaire dairy farmer William Tate, 49, his son, Terry Tate, 30, both of Sulphur Springs; Ira E. Borchardt, 34, who now is in jail on other drug charges; Kenneth S. Collins, 34, Dallas; Danny R. Bently, 41, Garland; John Handy Jones, 38, Dallas; James P. Noone, 32, Fort Worth; Glenn M. Rice Jr., 35, Arlington, and Wayne M. Satterwhite, 36, of Elgin.

The nine are accused of conspiring to smuggle 3,700 pounds of marijuana into the United States from Mexico, Heiskell said.

Terry Tate, Borchardt, Collins, Rice and Bently are also accused of smuggling 100 pounds of cocaine into the United States from Mexico.

Bluegrass festival at Mobeetie

OLD MOBEETIE — (Sp1) — Disc jockey Corky Mayberry will be present at the Old Mobeetie Bluegrass festival to be held July 23-25. Festival sponsors and Radio Station KGRO-KOMX have announced.

Mayberry, whose syndicated music show is heard nightly on the Pampa station, will present live reports from the festival, and possibly assist in emceeding the festival activities.

"What we're doing is just getting behind the festival and helping to promote it," said KGRO-KOMX manager Darrell Sehorn. The station is financing Mayberry's appearance at the festival.

Mayberry, a disc jockey for Los Angeles radio station KLAC, spent his early years in Canadian and Amarillo. His automated show is heard over stations across the country.

The Old Mobeetie Association will hold a planning meeting at 8 p.m. today at the museum-jail in Old Mobeetie.

Bribes 'way of life' in oil field

GIDDINGS, Texas (AP) — Bribes, thefts and kickbacks have become a way of life in the oil field business, says Lee County District Attorney Charles Sebesta.

"I hate to say that but it's true," Sebesta said after grand jurors indicted seven people on commercial bribery and perjury charges that stemmed from an investigation into an alleged oil field kickback scheme.

"This seems to be the way of life for a majority of these people rather than the exception," said Sebesta.

Grand jury foreman Randall Moore of Giddings said the panel's nine-month review of cases of oil field manipulations, thefts and kickback schemes was enlightening.

"Kickbacks just seem to be part of the game," Moore said.

The indictments returned Tuesday focused on the alleged activities of Waymon Curtis Lane, 40, of Carlsbad, N.M., a former purchasing agent for the Clajon gas pipeline company owned by Clayton Williams.

Sebesta estimated Clajon may have sustained losses of between $3 million and $8 million.

Grand jurors alleged Lane was paid bribes by Donnie Leon Key, 36, of Houston, the president of Southwest Valve and Fittings; and Durwood Platt, 62, of Conroe, the president of Oil and Gas Instruments Inc.

Lane was named in two indictments charging him with receiving bribes.

The indictments alleged Key and Platt gave Lane a car, pickup truck, television sets, video recorders, and other items in return for purchases of about $25 million for Clajon.

Sebesta and John Omohundro, director of security for the Williams companies in Midland, said they began the investigation in 1981 after an unidentified informant alleged Lane accepted payoffs from oil field suppliers.

Ruben Hope, Platt's attorney, said the lengthy civil and criminal proceedings against his client have almost put Platt out of business.

"It's a case of my 62-year-old client going out with a young man (Lane) and getting drunk with him, and Lane hit him up for a car," Hopes said. "And (Platt) did it. He's just that kind of guy."

Sam Wilson of Houston, Key's attorney, said his client would not comment on the charges.

Also indicted were Lane's wife Nancy, 39, charged as an accomplice to commercial bribery and for receiving a car; Robert Cole, 40, charged with delivering the car; Stephen Edward Post, 30, charged with delivering two shotguns to Lane; and Jimmy Earl Sheffield, 34, charged with perjury.

Panel suggests raising drinking age

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A task force appointed by Gov. Bill Clements to study traffic safety has taken the first step in an effort to raise the legal drinking age in Texas from 19 to 21.

A task force subcommittee, led by Austin Police Chief Frank Dyson, on Wednesday recommended the increased drinking age as part of an anti-drunk driving package.

Jim Adams, Department of Public Safety director and task force chairman, has said the panel would ask Clements to lobby the 1983 Legislature to raise the drinking age, which was hiked to 19 from 18 last year.

Adams told the task force he has received many letters concerning the increased drinking age and his backing for a ban on drinking alcoholic beverages while driving.

"It almost looks like some of us think it's written in the Texas Constitution you should be able to drive with a beer can in your hand," said Adams.

"It's dumb to drive while drinking and it should be against the law," he said.

Vernon With, regional alcohol specialist for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, told the task force that raising the drinking age and banning drinking while driving would be a "major advance" toward curtailing driving while intoxicated in Texas.

Dyson's subcommittee also called for revamped penalties for drunken driving. Many officials are concerned that current laws make it difficult to get a first conviction, and therefore more difficult to get subsequent convictions which carry stiffer penalties.

Under the subcommittee recommendation, first offense DWI would be punishable by a $200 to $2,000 fine, two days to two years in prison and up to one-year suspension of drivers license. The suspension could be waived in favor of mandatory completion of an alcohol education course.

Currently, first-offense DWI can bring a jail sentence of three days to two years in jail and a fine of $50 to $500.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A great little rodeo

If ever there was a barometer that tells whether or not a community is doing the right thing, the Kid - Pony Show that ended last night at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena in Pampa has to be an indicator that this community is doing right by its children.

And by watching the kids and their attitudes, it is plain those kids are also doing right by the community.

Now rodeo is a deadly serious business... ask any six - year - old who wears spurs... but it is also fun. It teaches courage, cooperation, determination, and... all too often for those of us who recall those early rides, humility.

The Kid - Pony Show is also this community's tribute to those young cowboys and cowgirls. It is produced as professionally as any rodeo this rodeo fan ever attended, and it does not mollycoddle or patronize the kids. It's as though they are saying, in effect, "If you want to rodeo, this is how it's done, so you might as well get used to it now."

And the young people did... just fine.

Among the dozens of youngsters observed riding, roping, eating dirt, falling off, and winning buckles, there were many emotions passed around.

They weren't all good emotions, either. There were a few tears here and there, and some real disappointments. But not once did we observe a single incident of poor sportsmanship.

When someone made a good run in the roping, he was congratulated by his competitors. When someone else missed his calf, or scooped up about half an acre of dirt in his shirt riding those yearling bulls, he was bucked up by his pals back at the chute.

The important thing was to try. And they did.

Every one of those kids deserved a buckle during the Kid - Pony Show, but even though the choice few top hands took home the metal, all of them took home the mettle that rodeo competition brings.

Good riding, kids.

And good going, those members of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association and members of the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department that made it such a safe and fun event for all of us. Anthony Randles

Dangerous eminent domain

Eminent domain is a concept from the Middle Ages, one that permitted a king to seize property and dispose of it as he saw fit. This notion lives today in America with the power of eminent domain vested with governments.

The danger it can pose is aptly illustrated by a ruling of the California Supreme Court that the city of Oakland can seek to apply eminent domain in order to acquire ownership and assets of the Oakland Raiders professional football team. The city initiated the suit to prevent the team from moving to Los Angeles. The case now goes to a lower court which will decide between the city and the team owners.

In considering the verdict, that court ought to heed the warning of Chief Justice Rose Bird, who concurred with the Supreme Court's ruling on technical points of law, but still expressed a dissent. She was troubled by this application because the "potential for abuse of such great power is boundless.

It most certainly is. By logical extension of this precedent a city might stop an industry from moving because it would be in the "public interest" to keep jobs from being lost. Or a city official with certain business interests could seek some pretext to apply eminent domain against competitors. Or local powers that be might find this newly defined eminent domain a handy tool to attempt to seize a newspaper or broadcast outlet that offends them.

As the laws of tomorrow are based on their precedents of today, the California ruling should make any liberty - loving person uneasy. Its implications would please a Soviet commissar and just about any other totalitarian.

Eminent domain today is different from that of olden times. It now involves a legal due process and compensation for an owner. But the principle of taking property against the will of an owner is hardly one that needs extension.

South Atlantic lesson

The Falklands - Malvinas war seems to be over, at least for the time being. The British won. The U.S. government supported the British. Did the U.S. gain anything from the conflict? Were there any real winners?

U.S. officials expended themselves trying to forestall the conflict from occurring, and to mediate it once it had begun. President Reagan, when he received word that Argentina planned to seize the islands, made a personal call to Argentine dictator Galtieri. During the Reagan administration, U.S. diplomacy had stressed the re - establishment of friendly relations with Argentina. But Reagan was unable to persuade Galtieri to call off his forces.

Secretary of State Haig traveled nearly 30,000 miles in an effort to prevent the outbreak of actual hostilities. His efforts, as could have been predicted, were to no avail.

Great Britain won the war, but the price was heavy. It cost well over a billion dollars, 243 men and several expensive ships. It is likely that the island garrison will have to be beefed up in the future. That effort may force a reduction in the British contribution to NATO in the near future.

For Argentina, the price of defeat may be a new government, perhaps better or worse than the present one, and continued domestic chaos.

The United States, by siding with the British, has probably done damage to its future relationships with countries in Latin America. It's impossible to guess how long it will take to mend inter - American relationships, or to predict whether they will soon achieve even the shaky status quo that prevailed before the war.

Ironically enough, through Secretary Haig's bungling of the vote in the U.N. security council, and through his gratuitous (and ignored) advice to the British about being magnanimous in victory, the seeds may have been sown for future U.S. - British disagreements or conflicts.

Perhaps the only winner in the conflict was the Soviet Union and its satrapy in Cuba. By mounting a muted propaganda campaign and sharing a tad of intelligence, it exploited and promoted latent anti-colonialist and anti - Yankee feelings in Latin America. The communists, or close allies, may yet emerge the winners in the turmoil that is engulfing Argentina.

The lesson for the United States is that, despite its superpower status, it is impotent to prevent, mediate, conciliate or resolve most small wars in today's world. If the Falklands - Malvinas crisis hadn't demonstrated the fact sufficiently, the Israeli invasion of Lebanon should have driven the point home.

There are forces in the world - including but not limited to national pride, territorial ambition, revenge, desire for security, and old-fashioned and newfangled imperialism - that will not yield to diplomatic phrases, saber - rattling or even missile - rattling from the U.S. State Department. Interventionism, whether through money, arms or diplomatic suasion, is likely to be futile but carry a hefty price.

Save bottles and environment

By ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) - After years of irrational and irresponsible opposition to a sensible conservation measure, the nation's soft - drink bottlers and beer brewers are being dragged into a new era of mandatory deposits on their bottles and cans.

Those deposits (typically 5 cents per container) provide a strong economic incentive for customers to return the bottles and cans for recycling or refilling - steps that substantially reduce air and water pollution, garbage volume, roadside litter and energy consumption.

Proponents of the "bottle bills" scored a major triumph in mid - June when New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey signed into law a mandatory deposit measure approved by both houses of the state legislature only a few weeks earlier.

Although the New York law will not go into effect until mid - 1983, six states already enforce similar procedures, two others will begin implementing them early next year and the residents of four more states will be asked to approve similar ballot initiatives when they vote this autumn.

Oregon adopted the country's first mandatory deposit law in 1972, followed by Vermont in 1973, Michigan and Iowa in 1978, Connecticut and Delaware in 1979 and Massachusetts in 1981.

Although most of those states are in the East, voters who participate in November elections in four Western states - California, Washington, Colorado and Arizona - probably will confront ballot initiatives on the subject.

Similar initiatives have been defeated in recent years in Ohio, Washington, Alaska and Nebraska because of generously funded propaganda campaigns mounted by the steel, aluminum, glass, beer and soft-drink industries.

The secret of industry success in each of those states has been the infusion of vast amounts of money to finance the dissemination of deceptive and misleading claims.

In Ohio, "bottle bill" opponents spent more than $1.5 million compared with less than $90,000 available to citizen groups supporting the measure. In Nebraska, $312,000 was expended by opponents compared with $13,000 spent by proponents.

Critics claim that bottles returned to stores without proper cleaning pose a serious health hazard because they are "a Disneyland for cockroaches and other vermin."

But a General Accounting Office study found that after more than 5,000 state health inspections in Maine, "no retailers were cited for sanitation violations related to the bottle law nor have any sanitation deficiencies been identified that could be attributed by the law."

Opponents have routinely offered dire predictions of massive layoffs because recycling reduces demand for new bottles and cans. In contrast with their claims of more than 800 job losses in Michigan, however, the GAO found a net gain of 4,600 jobs in implementation of the law.

A comprehensive report prepared for Carey by the New York Office of Development and Planning concluded that "severe job losses attributed elsewhere to 'bottle bills' have been exaggerated."

Production, transportation and cleaning of refillable bottles wastes energy, the critics claim. But the GAO says implementation of a nationwide mandatory deposit law will reduce energy consumption by 117 trillion British thermal units by 1985. A University of Pennsylvania study places the potential reduction at 226 trillion Btu.

States currently implementing a deposit law report a container return rate averaging about 90 percent, which translates into millions of bottles and cans no longer strewn about the landscape and a 6 percent reduction in the solid waste stream.

Because most of the states that initially embraced mandatory deposit laws had relatively small populations, opponents insisted that the approach would never work in densely populated states.

But Michigan already is experiencing considerable success, and it will be joined by Massachusetts in January and New York next July. The decade-long struggle may be coming to an end, especially if Californians approve the initiative in November.

Not guilty by reason of insanity

What's the answer to budget mess?

How many times in the past 22 years would you say that Congress has balanced the national budget?

A dozen? Not that many.
Half a dozen? Not that many.
Three? Not that many.

One? Right. Somebody slipped up once and the national budget actually was balanced.

In those other 21 years, the Congress passed a budget and the president signed it into law. As a result, the total national debt today is over one trillion dollars. Do you have any idea what one trillion dollars is? Neither does anyone else.

In Washington, our senators and representatives are on the verge of passing a budget for the upcoming fiscal year, and the planned deficit amounts to more than $100 billion.

That means that one out of every ten dollars the government will spend next year will be borrowed.

How can supposedly sane men and women go back to the planning boards year after year and come up with budgets that not only don't help solve the country's problems but contribute directly to them?

Of course it is an election year, and both senators and representatives are walking on eggs. They don't want to make anyone mad; therefore, they once again have tried to come up with a budget with something in it for everybody. And especially the staggering bill for it all.

This country is on a downhill slide to oblivion unless Washington comes to its senses and starts eliminating the debt instead of adding to it more and more each year.

Back in the 1960s, the federal government took 16.7 percent of the credit available, leaving plenty for private citizens and business to use. In the seventies, that percentage went up to 25.4 percent. Do you know what it will be for this year? A whopping 53 percent!

Uncle Sam doesn't bother to ask the going interest rate. He just borrows... and pushes the rate up that much more. Few private individuals or companies can borrow when a 17 percent pricetag is lodged around the money to be borrowed.

What the U.S. government needs to do is get out of the business of competing with free enterprise. For instance, why does it need one-third of the land mass in the United States? Why doesn't it sell off some of this land and allow private enterprise to invest in it and, therefore, create legitimate tax dollars?

Why does the federal government need 405,000 buildings - 206 billion square feet of floor space? (This is the equivalent of four times the total office space in the 10 largest cities in the United States.)

Statistics have become so mind-boggling in Washington that they no longer have any meaning. The fact that every time the clock ticks the federal government is spending $23,000 doesn't mean a thing to the third - shift doffer or the auto mechanic. The finite mind no longer can grasp the enormity of the national debt or the seriousness of the problem.

It does no good, it seems, to send people to Washington on the basis of their promises. No sooner do they arrive than their stripes change and their votes go the other way.

President Reagan is not without fault, and he would be wise if he backed up somewhat on his defense posture. On the other hand, he warned of the mess that this country is in and said that trying to make corrections would not come without pain. He has tried to do this and has been criticized severely for it.

Whether or not he is successful depends on what the people want. What that is should be evident before this election year is over.

ART BUCHWALD

Get off the team

By ART BUCHWALD

The most repeated reason given for Al Haig's resignation is that he wasn't a "team player." For the Reagan administration this is a cardinal sin. But what does it really mean?

I went down into the White House locker room to talk to a member of the staff.

"I guess it won't be the same old club without Big Al," I said to him as he was bent over tying his shoe.

"We can play without him," my friend said. "Nobody is indispensable on this quad except the Gipper."

"I'm going to miss Big Al," I said. "He added a lot of life to this town. He may have had a short fuse, but to me I'll always remember him as 'The Vicar.'"

"You sportswriters never did know what was going on. Do you know when Al first came on the team, the Gipper was down here taking a shower, and Al handed him a game plan spelling out his own position?"

"I didn't know that," I admitted.

"Haig insisted on calling all the signals but no one ever understood a word he said."

"But the Gipper liked him, didn't he?"

"The Gipper likes everybody unless you wake him up when he's sleeping. But the Gipper had to do something. The team was fighting among themselves and the fans didn't know what was going on. So they blamed it on the Gipper because he's supposed to be captain of the team."

"Let me ask you the big question. Did Big Al jump, or was he pushed?"

"It was a little of both," the Reagan team player said. "We knew we had a problem on our hands early in the season when the Gipper got hurt in a game, and Big Al rushed up to the press box and announced that he was in charge. We couldn't believe it when we saw the films on TV. If we were confused, you can imagine what it did to the fans and other coaches in the league."

"Al gave us a lot to write about," I said regretfully. "The man had charisma."

"He also had a helluva temper. Every time we got in a huddle, he threatened to walk off the field if he didn't get the ball."

"Some of the sportswriters wrote the reason that Big Al was aceed was that Cap Weinberger kept tripping him."

"There was no love lost between Cap and Big Al but Haig antagonized everyone in Gipper's backfield, and pretty soon no one would block for him. They wouldn't even pick him up when he fell down."

"I noticed that. I was one of the reasons he was such good copy."

"I'll tell you what really did Big Al in. Remember when we all went over to play in the Summit Bowl at Versailles? Well first Al kept complaining about his room. When the game started, the Gipper wanted to hit all the NATO teams hard for playing ball with the Russians. But Big Al kept electing to pass. Then he fumbled on a crucial third down play at the United Nations, and finally when Israel started running all over Lebanon, Al announced on his own he was going down to referee the game. The Gipper wouldn't let him go, so he sulked for the rest of the trip."

"But doesn't the Gipper look bad when he fires the only guy on his team who seemed to know the score?"

"Al lacked the killer instinct. He talked tough, but he was never one to hit the Kremlin head - on. Every time someone on the team suggested throwing the long bomb, Al talked the Gipper into trying to gain a few yards on the ground."

"In Al's position he had to do that."

"You don't win the big ones if you're not willing to use the bomb," the White House man said.

"I guess Cap Weinberger will have a lot more to say about calling the plays."

"The Gipper likes Cap's style, and we're going to put all our strategy into defense."

"Which means there is more chance of using the bomb?"

"I'm not saying. We'd be crazy to give our game plan away in an election year."

Berry's World

Efforts made to coordinate probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Possible sexual misconduct and alleged use of cocaine on Capitol Hill are under investigation by both federal and local law enforcement agencies who are now getting together to coordinate their efforts.

A source who asked not to be identified said the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Justice Department and Washington, D.C., police met Wednesday at the local FBI field office to air differences about communication failures among the agencies.

The meeting explored "philosophical and moral questions" but reached no firm conclusions on the conduct of the investigation, said another source who asked to remain anonymous.

"They'll have to talk further on where they're going," he said. He said the participants expressed concern over unsubstantiated reports.

So far, no member of Congress has been named publicly in any of the investigations.

According to sources, a federal grand jury probing an alleged drug ring operating on Capitol Hill has not focused on any member of the House or Senate.

An FBI source, who asked not to be named, said he did not know of anyone from Congress being interviewed by the FBI in either the drug or sex scandal.

Members of Congress are said to have solicited homosexual sex with teen-age pages who are employed by Congress to run errands.

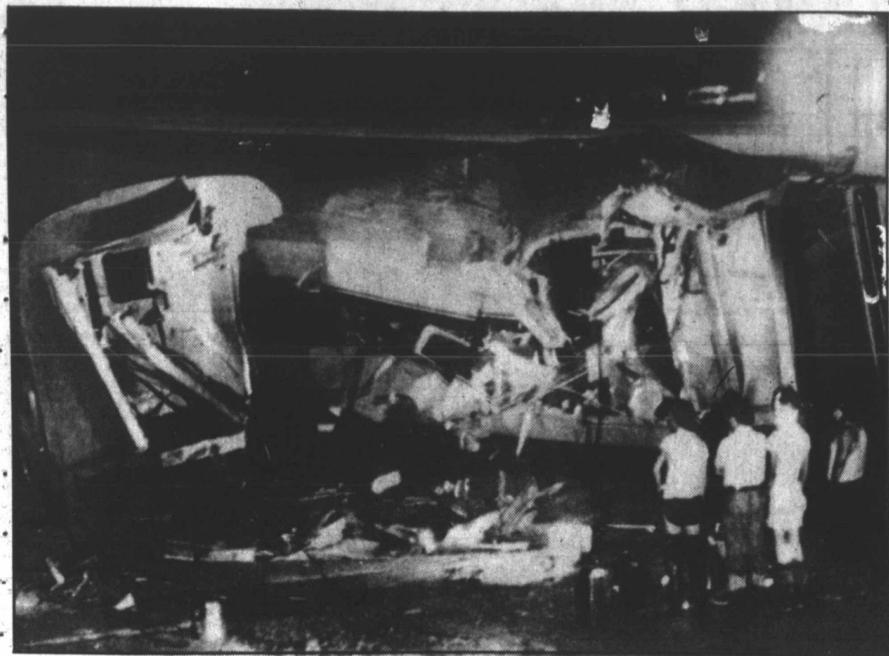

Leroy Williams, 18, former page, has been quoted in the Arkansas Gazette as saying he arranged sex between a member of Congress and a male prostitute and that he himself engaged in sex with two members of Congress whose identities were not disclosed.

Jack Russ, deputy House doorkeeper, called Williams a "pathological liar."

"The bottom line to Mr. Williams is this: he has a serious problem. He's a pathological liar," Russ said.

Other pages who have not been identified have been interviewed by investigators.

Although reports have tended to lump the drug and sex investigations together, sources said they have been proceeding largely apart from each other.

Disguised as clowns, bandits take $15,000 from armored car

McMURRAY, Pa. (AP) — The white-faced, baggy-clothed clowns at the shopping center amused children and parents alike, but the laughter ended when the performers abruptly pulled guns on armored car guards and made off with $15,000.

"Apparently they were very good clowns," FBI spokesman Jeff Kimball said after Wednesday's heist.

"They were entertaining kids and their parents for some time as they waited for the guards to come out."

The two clowns were performing for children in the Donaldson's Crossroads Shopping Center parking lot when the guards from Landmark Security Transport Inc. of Pittsburgh walked from a Mellon Bank branch at 1:30 p.m., Kimball said.

The clowns then approached "in a humorous fashion" and pulled out a sawed-off shotgun and a handgun, surprising the drivers, he said.

The costumed robbers were then joined by a man in street clothes, and the three forced the guards into the front of the armored car.

After binding the guards' eyes, mouth and hands with tape, the three men then drove for a short distance, ran the van off the road, down an embankment and into a tree, Kimball said. The guards were unhurt and freed themselves "within a very short time" after the gunmen fled, he said.

Mellon Bank spokeswoman Denise Davis said the guards had just dropped off a customer's night deposit bags when the heist occurred in the Washington County community of Peters Township, about 15 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Before going to the bank, the guards had picked up a bag of checks from a nearby savings and loan association and stopped for some cash from a liquor store.

"To the best of my knowledge, no Mellon money was involved," Ms. Davis said. A law enforcement official who asked not to be identified said $15,000 was stolen.

Kimball said the "novel" holdup was viewed by many who watched the clowns perform, including children.

"They just looked like clowns with white makeup and baggy costumes, like they were at the circus," said Madeline Carlson, 27.

Mountain goats face sterilization

SEATTLE (AP) — Mountain goats wandering on the snow-capped peaks of the Olympic Peninsula face chemical or surgical sterilization to curb their population in what a researcher says may become a necessity for worldwide wildlife management.

The animals, introduced to northwest Washington in 1925, have been protected from hunters since the area became Olympic National Park in 1938. The park's 700 goats now compete with deer, elk, marmots and other native wildlife for forage, severely damaging plant growth in some areas, said Don Jackson, assistant park superintendent.

Dr. Jim Foster, a veterinarian and curator of research at Seattle's Woodland Park Zoo, said a dozen goats will be caught for an experimental program later this month. Some of the goats will undergo tubal ligation — also used in humans — and others will be treated with implants or hormone injections to make them temporarily sterile.

Such fertility control measures would be especially beneficial in areas like Africa, where wildlife is plentiful but human needs for development and agriculture may take precedence, Foster said.

"Unfortunately, that is the way it has become," he said. "The smaller our Earth becomes as a result of population expansion and resource needs, the more we are going to have to be involved in management of wildlife species."

The most promising procedure for the goats is an implant, where synthetic progesterone is implanted in silicone under the skin of a female and absorbed over four years to prevent the animal from conceiving, Foster said. The simplest is a hormone injection, but it lasts only six months, he said.

The implant procedure is used in zoos to control pregnancy in some animals. Foster said mountain goats normally begin reproducing after age 3 and live to about 12, so the implants would render the goats infertile for about half their reproductive lives, while a tubal ligation would leave them completely sterile.

"I think we're going to gain a lot of information regarding potential for wildlife controls," said Foster, who will be assisted by Dr. Stephen Seager, reproductive physiologist with the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md.

Rangers at the 908,000-acre park are already in the second year of efforts to cut the herd. About 60 goats a year are being trapped with nets, then transplanted to areas of Washington, Utah and Idaho where mountain goats are native.

The National Park Service has indicated interest in ridding the park entirely of its goats, since they are not native to the area.

Two physicians jailed; third hunted in rape

BOSTON (AP) — Two physicians convicted of raping a nurse were in prison today, while a third doctor convicted in the case was being hunted as a fugitive who may have fled the country.

Superior Court Judge James McGuire refused to allow the two defendants who showed up in court Wednesday to remain free pending further appeal.

Defense attorneys tried to get the state Supreme Court to order a rehearing or to hold up sentencing, but the high court refused both requests without comment.

Another effort in federal court was expected today. The defendants are Drs. Arif Hussain, 31, a native of Pakistan who lives in Waterbury, Conn.; Alan Lefkowitz, 30, of Brookline, Mass.; and Eugene Sherry, 27, a New Zealander who had been living in New York.

Sherry failed to appear and an arrest warrant was issued. He previously had notified the district attorney's office that he would be unable to attend because of an illness in the family.

The Boston Herald American reported today that officials, fearing Sherry may have fled to New Zealand, plan to question Sherry's friends and his fiancée, Ann Blanche. Although Sherry's passport has been revoked, officials speculate he may have obtained an illegal passport or fled to Canada, the newspaper said.

Arguing Wednesday against a stay of sentence for the other two doctors, Traft said, "Any further stay would only encourage the two defendants...to follow Mr. Sherry's lead and leave the country."

Hussain and Lefkowitz were taken to the maximum-security Walpole State Prison, according to Correction Department spokesman Joe Landolfi.

Viet memorial designer upset with planned changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maya Ying Lin says she plans to appeal to the government's Fine Arts Commission to preserve her award-winning design for the nation's memorial to Vietnam veterans — and to reject changes she compares to a shattering noise in a peaceful glade.

Miss Lin, 22, a May architecture graduate of Yale, objects to the additions of a flagpole and a larger-than-life statue of three combat soldiers to her starkly dramatic abstract design, which was selected in a 1981 competition against 1,421 other designs.

"Its silence, its ability to move people and let them think their own thoughts — that's the memorial," Miss Lin said in a telephone interview from Exeter, N.H.

"It's like a still pond or a quiet glade in the woods; add something to it, add noise, add clutter, add anything and you begin to detract. Your mind gets drawn away."

But Jan Scruggs, 32, the former Vietnam infantryman who single-handedly persuaded Congress to give public land on the National Mall in Washington for the memorial, says the additions will please his fellow veterans — and that's what matters.

"We really fought for Maya's design, but we're happy with the compromise," says Scruggs, founder of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, which raised $6 million in contributions to build the monument.

"Some didn't like it because it was too abstract, too unconventional," Scruggs said of the original design. But now, he says, "The way it's done does not detract from the design. It makes it 100 percent better, much more beautiful."

Miss Lin's design called for a monument of two polished black granite walls, descending 10 feet into the ground and meeting in a wide "V" with the names of 57,692 Americans who died in the war and 2,500 still listed as missing chiseled into the walls.

One critic, Vietnam veteran Tom Carhart, called it a "black gash of shame and sorrow." Texas millionaire H. Ross Perot called it "a tombstone" and "a slap in the face." Another critic was Sen. Jeremiah Denton Jr., R-Ala., who spent 7½ years as a prisoner of North Vietnam.

Grady Clay, editor of Landscape Architecture magazine and chairman of the eight-man jury which selected Miss Lin's design, is joining in her appeal for rejection of the changes.

The Commission of Fine Arts, a federal agency, has not given final approval to the placement of the new elements. Miss Lin said she plans to attend the September meeting and appeal for her original concept.

CIA screening Casey's business

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA has set up a "screening arrangement" aimed at preventing CIA director William J. Casey from taking official actions for personal gain, but the new system still allows Casey to buy and sell stock at his discretion.

The new system was established in May, after Casey reported selling more than $600,000 in oil stock in 1981, a year when oil stock prices fell amid a worldwide glut. Also in 1981, the CIA reversed itself and predicted the Soviet Union would not be importing oil in the 1980s.

Government ethics chief J. Jackson Walter called the new plan a "good and thorough system" for policing possible conflicts of interest. But some senators and a Carter administration ethics adviser contend it offers little new protection against the CIA director's misusing information in his stock dealings.

The CIA director is one of a handful of top officials with broad access to U.S. intelligence information, including secret government estimates of world oil supplies. Casey is the only senior Reagan official with such access who neither set up a blind trust nor divested some of his holdings before taking office.

Under the screening arrangement, the deputy director John McMahon and other senior CIA officials are to be furnished regularly with a list of Casey's stock transactions.

If an official spots a potential conflict, he is to bring the matter to McMahon, who, in consultation with CIA general counsel Stanley Sporkin and his staff, will decide if Casey should be excluded from making a decision.

Or, McMahon and Sporkin can tell Casey that one of his holdings will be affected by an upcoming decision and let him decide whether to divest the holding or to excuse himself from the matter.

In an interview, Sporkin said he and McMahon would exclude Casey from any decisions involving major holdings and offer him the choice only when the holdings were very small. "I'm not going to let him get himself into trouble," Sporkin said.

Venezuela threatens to break pact

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI
AP Business Writer

Venezuela's oil minister is threatening to break OPEC's production-sharing agreement if other countries continue to violate a pact to produce no more than 17.5 million barrels a day total.

Meanwhile, a top U.S. official says foreign steel imports can't be blamed for all the problems facing the domestic steel industry.

Humberto Calderon Berti, the Venezuelan oil minister, told reporters Wednesday that at least three members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are violating individual production quotas agreed on last March. He spoke after a special meeting of an OPEC committee.

All 13 OPEC ministers are scheduled to meet Friday in a special session to consider the committee's recommendation that they maintain the current total output ceiling of 17.5 million barrels a day.

Addressing the problem of the depressed U.S. steel industry, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige told reporters that the economy and low productivity — not imports — are mostly to blame.

Baldrige, however, left for Brussels, Belgium, to discuss with Common Market officials the problem of European steel being sold in the United States more cheaply than domestic companies can produce it. The Commerce Department ruled last month that seven European countries were subsidizing exports to the United States in violation of U.S. law.

"Imports are not the chief cause of the steel industry's problems," Baldrige said. "They are one contributing cause. The chief causes are the generally bad state of the economy and low productivity."

Steel industry officials declined to comment on Baldrige's statements, but in the past they have said elimination of unfair imports would resolve nearly all their difficulties. Baldrige has said the U.S. steel industry could lose up to $1 billion in each remaining quarter of the year.

In related news, McLouth Steel Corp. received a 30-day extension on a financing agreement that has kept it in business since December. That will allow the company to continue its blast furnace operations until Aug. 31 and its manufacturing operations until Sept. 25.

McLouth has filed for protection from its creditors under federal bankruptcy laws.

In other economic news:

—A negotiator with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers said his 40,000-member union will strike this weekend over a contract dispute unless President Reagan intervenes. Negotiations with the rail lines broke down May 26.

Skyride lawsuits settled

DALLAS (AP) — Lawsuits filed by relatives of the man killed in the 1979 Swiss skyride accident at the State Fair of Texas have been settled with the family receiving a total of $6.1 million.

The wife and three daughters of Fred Millard, who died when the gondola car plunged to the fair's midway, won a $5.1 million award in state court Wednesday from the operator of ride, Steck and Staph Attractions.

Sandra Millard agreed on Tuesday to a $1 million settlement of her separate lawsuit against the fair and the ride's manufacturer, Von Roll Ltd.

State District Judge Charles Ben Howell awarded Mrs. Millard $2.4 million of the suit against Steck and Staph. The remaining $2.7 million was awarded to the three daughters.

Dear Abby
Don't let doggy down

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our 70s, on a retirement income and with a few health problems. My husband made a contribution to the political party of his choice during the election-year campaign, and now he is being solicited by every political cause, as well as every candidate running for Congress and even minor offices. We get letters by the boxful requesting contributions for any number of political causes — all marked "Urgent."

When our CPA made our tax returns in April, my husband had contributed over $500 (without my knowledge), of which only $200 was deductible. This made me furious because we cannot afford it.

I tried to talk to him about this, but it did no good. I even tried to keep some of that mail from him, but now he goes to the post office and picks it up there.

We even get long-distance telephone calls soliciting money for political causes and candidates. I am worried sick because at this rate my husband will have spent all our savings; then what will happen to us?

GOING BROKE

DEAR GOING: Tell your accountant that your husband tunes you out when you tell him he's spending too much on political causes, so he (the accountant) should get that message to him. (P.S. I hope you're both supporting the party that best takes care of its poor and elderly, because they could be you.)

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the woman who was invited to a bridal shower to be held in a church hall: The invitation read, "Dresses only, please." Her problem — she didn't even own a skirt or dress, but she had a "presentable" pantsuit.

I think it's absolutely gross that a woman would brag that she didn't even own a skirt or dress. She should simply decline the shower invitation and stay home. An "R.S.V.P." invitation does not obligate one to explain the reason for declining. Besides, her explanation would serve only to indicate that she is an ill-mannered clod to even consider coming to a church wearing pants.

APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: Before condemning all women who opt for pants instead of skirts, consider this: There are women who suffer from psoriasis — a chronic skin condition causing unsightly red patches on the legs. Then there are women who wear leg braces. In such cases, long skirts, pants or pajama outfits are a blessing.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very difficult decision to make concerning my dog, Sheba, a 7-year-old Great Dane who has been with me since her birth. She is getting old and set in her ways and she has bad hips.

I feel I would be betraying her if I sent her to "the great bound heaven in the sky," but I don't want to wake up some morning and find a 165-pound dead animal in my house. If I give her away, I know she will die of a broken heart. She's like a member of the family, but something has to be done. Should I have her put to sleep?

ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR ANIMAL LOVER: A veterinarian can tell you if Sheba's "bad hips" are giving her pain, and if they can be surgically repaired.

If Sheba can be kept alive without discomfort, keep her and love her — as she does you.

"The Best of Dear Abby," featuring Abby's best answers and favorite responses during the past 25 years, is now available. You can obtain a copy of this new best-selling book by sending $9.95 plus $1 for postage and handling to "The Best of Dear Abby," in care of this newspaper, 4400 Johnson Dr., Fairway, Kan. 66205. Going to brief lengths

NEW YORK (NEA) — When mainstream customers reject such ideas as knickers, shorts and the new versions of miniskirts, you can bet they'll find acceptance among juniors and teen-agers. That's happening now with brief-length fashions for spring and summer.

At Wrangler, they find young girls love their knickers of sheeting fabric, worn with a jungle floral print shirt. Merona Sport does a cotton twill "skort," combining shorts and miniskirt, worn with a striped cotton knit pullover and a two-color windbreaker. Most designers for juniors are doing elastic-waist running shorts and pleated walking shorts.

The new miniskirts are always either flared or gathered. At Trousers Up, the gathered mini comes in denim with floral cotton bands, and in white cotton knit with several rows of black, red and yellow rick-rack braid.

Shorts and culottes

Leisure fashions get 'active' look

NEW YORK (NEA) — Summer clothes for leisure wear take inspiration this year from fashions for active sports use. But they are less rugged than clothes that are really meant for tennis, golf or sailing, and are detailed in less practical ways.

Shorts have always been part of active sportswear, but now they're used with matched jackets, such as Gordon of Philadelphia's bomber jacket and tailored shorts in blue and white seersucker-striped Encon polyester, for a summer suit effect. Willi Smith for Willi Wear does boxer shorts and a tunic jacket in red cotton lined with white terry that shows when sleeve and leg edges are turned back.

Mary Ann Restivo pairs a sleeveless khaki cotton twill tunic top with black linen shorts. Piero Dimitri makes an antelope suede T-shirt in blocks of coral, sunflower yellow and pebble gray to go over silver gray silk shorts. Michael Katz' handpainted striped silk shorts go with a Chinese-styled blouse in blocks of teal, blue, pink, white, navy and gold.

As active sportswear, shorts, great for leisure outfits, expose legs to painful sunburn. Culottes are more protective, but when used for leisure styles, their tops are designed to look good, not to protect the skin. Tuffi-Lynn makes white duck flared culottes with a strapless top, rope-tied at the waist, in red and white rugby-striped Creslan jersey. It's a nautical look, but not for real boating.

Equally for leisure wear are short, flared culottes, such as Calvin Klein's khaki poplin mid-thigh split skirt with a multi-strap V-neck top. Claudia Reid does the mini-culotte in china blue and red cotton broadcloth, with a loose, wide-shouldered top. Sachi's striped short culottes are cut as full as a circular skirt, with a sailor-collared middy top.

Lengths in leisure separates vary as they do in all current fashion. Gitano's blue cotton suspender shorts are Bermuda length. Betsy Johnson's full-cut culottes, with string-tie waist, flare at mid-calf. Francesca Sterlacci for Penthouse combines white bubble-shape knee pants with a sleeveless, band-collared top in racing checks of red and white.

Pants for real sports are usually classic, but in leisure clothes they must have something unusual about them that says fashion. At Gregge Sport, white pique shorts with a nautical buttoned flap front go with a blue and white cotton shirt overlaid with a button-trimmed white bib front. Pinky & Dianne give their sporty T-shirt and tailored shorts the soft look of pink-striped white linen.

Longer culottes sometimes take on an Oriental look, as in Piero Dimitri's loose but straight midcalf pants and side-buttoned kimono top. At Arthur Chapnik, the same culotte is knee-length and pleated, with a pencil-striped cardigan jacket for a summer suit.

Romance Rules

NEW YORK (NEA) — There's more life in summer separates than a T-shirt top. When a simple skirt or culotte is enough for a hot day, spark it up with a really pretty blouse.

Name designers like their blouses in white silk organza, such as Halston's wrap blouse with billowy dolman sleeves, double-layered notched collar and satin cummerbund. Pauline Trigere's white organza blouse has a simple tie neck, drop shoulders and balloon sleeves. For her black linen culottes, Trigere makes a mandarin-collared white handkerchief linen blouse, with rows of black lace down the balloon sleeves and the body.

Even short-sleeved blouses get the romantic treatment from sportswear designers. Gitano's lavishly ruffled blouse with short lantern sleeves is in colorful cotton sheeting. Susan Hagen of Los Angeles does a fold-cut blouse, collarless and with drop cap sleeves, of white silk self-patterned in bamboo tracery. Helen Fabrikant uses white cotton lavishly embroidered in eyelet for short belled sleeves and a capelet yoke on her summer blouse.

Many summer blouses come in the colorful stripes much in vogue this year. Los Angeles designers in particular like such ideas as an awning-striped V-neck loose tunic in cotton netting, or a white-bordered striped shirt nautically laced up the front. It's pastel brushstroke stripes for an airy capelet-sleeved blouse at One Park Avenue.

Timely beauty tips for the summer scene

Pared down pretty

In warm humid weather, you may want to simplify your makeup routine. Here are some tips to keep your look soft and pretty. Combine two steps — foundation and moisturizer — into one by using a tinted moisturizer. Stroke it on cheeks, nose and forehead, then add some blushing gel for a little extra color. Instead of using eyeshadow, try a deep bronze base on your eyelids.

Then outline your eyes with a colored pencil, and apply mascara. For lips, opt for clear tinted gloss. At night, fluff gold-flecked powder over cheeks, eyes, forehead — everywhere! — for an instant evening dazzle.

Thigh high

Toning and strengthening your thighs is easy with this effective exercise — you'll really feel the pull where it counts. Kneel on the floor, on a mat or thick towel. Keep your knees about a hip-width apart, your arms straight out in front, forming a loose fist with your hands. Now, slowly lower your body back to your feet, as if you're about to sit on your heels. But just before touching your heels, stop, then slowly rise back to a kneeling position. Remember to keep your back straight, and use your arms for balance. Try to do the exercise at least 5 times, and work up to 10 repetitions.

Takes two to mango

When the urge for something frosty and delicious strikes, try this yummy mango yogurt treat. Start with a ripe small mango, remove the pit and skin, and cut it into chunks. Put the mango in the blender with a half-cup plain yogurt, 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, and a packet of artificial sweetener. Blend ingredients until smooth, then pour into a shallow pan. Cover and place in freezer. Stir once an hour to break up the ice crystals, until mixture is solid (about 3 hours). Before serving, thaw for about 10 minutes to soften. You'll have enough frozen yogurt for two delicious servings, only 73 calories each.

In the swim

With the proper care, your bathing suit will last you all summer long and still keep its good looks. First, make sure you buy a suit that truly fits; bathing suits are made to stretch, but if it has to stretch too far, it'll soon be worn out. To test for proper fit, insert thumbs under straps — you should be able to do so comfortably. Also, when applying suntan lotions, try to keep them on your skin, not your bathing suit — most lotions stain. Chlorine and strong sunlight can fade bright colors, so always rinse off after swimming with cool, clear water. Wash your suit in delicate soap, not harsh detergents, and allow to dry away from direct heat and sun.

Herbal info

Homemade facials and hair-care concoctions are more popular than ever, but the list of herbs can be confusing. Here's a list of common herbs to keep you informed. Chamomile is often used to soften skin in baths, or highlight blonde hair. Lavender smells heavenly, is often recommended as a relaxant in the bath. Peppermint, a brisk, aromatic herb, gently cleanses and cools the skin. Rosemary has astringent properties, and will add shine to dark hair. Witch hazel, which comes from the witch hazel bark, is another astringent good for soothing irritated, oily skin. Linden, a sweetly fragrant herb, is cooling and refreshing when added to the bath.

Scarf savvy

Beauty authority Irma Shorell thinks that the single most important fashion accessory is the scarf. "It's so versatile," she explained to Beauty Digest magazine. "You can wrap it around your neck, twist it around your waist, even drape it across your hips. Texture is important, too. Cotton is crisp and cool, silk is rich and luxurious, chiffon is sexy and seductive."

Pool cues

Exercise isn't boring when you do it in the pool, and the extra water resistance makes your workout doubly effective. Try these movements: stand in shallow water, with your legs apart, your hands resting on opposite knees. Now rise up on your toes, and try to Charleston as fast as you can. Or try this upper-arm toner: stand in shoulder-high water with your arms crossed, palms facing your body. Push your arms briskly back through the water, really using your elbows. While in the shoulder-high water, stretch your arms out and kick one leg up as high as you can, then bring it down and swing it back as far as you can. Repeat with the other leg.

Scrub-a-dub

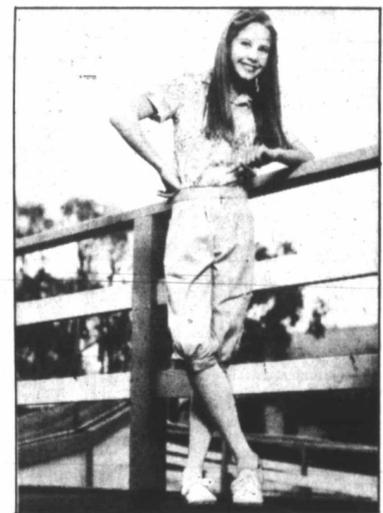

Oily skin needs a good scrub-down now and then to get rid of dead skin cells. Here's an excellent homemade skin-slougher you can whip up yourself. Mix a half-teaspoon of powdered zinc oxide (available in drug stores) with one teaspoon each of cornmeal and bran. Wet your face thoroughly, then massage the powdered mixture into your skin. Concentrate on those areas where oil is a problem, like your nose and forehead. Finally, rinse with lukewarm water, and pat face dry.

ACTIVE SPORTS influence summer leisure separates. Tuffi-Lynn of Bago uses drawstring waist to shape strapless top in red and white rugby-stripped Creslan jersey over white duck flared culottes for a nautical look that never leaves shore. Top about $16, culottes about $28.

ACTION LOOK influences summer leisure clothes, as in Gordon of Philadelphia's use of matching cuffed shorts and bomber jacket for a summer suit. Seersucker-stripped Eacron polyester is accented with red shoulder applique. About $116 for both pieces.

YOUTHFUL SPORTSWEAR follows fashion trends. Wrangler does knickers in sheeting fabric with tucks for ease. Knickers about $15; blouse about $11.

Has business lost faith in Reaganomics?

By Robert J. Wagman
WASHINGTON (NEA) — As liberal and conservative economists alike have pronounced Reaganomics a failure, the president and his aides have offered one consistent reply: It is still too early to tell; the program will work if it is only given a chance.

Now there has quietly appeared a new government report that gives more ammunition to critics of the administration's economic-recovery program.

The Commerce Department's latest Quarterly Survey of Business Investment finds that U.S. firms plan to invest fewer real dollars in 1982 than they did in 1981.

In a devastating blow to the administration's economic planners, the businesses say that they plan to invest $328 billion this year — which represents a 2.4 percent decrease from last year after the figures are adjusted for inflation.

The previous survey, which covered the last quarter of 1981, predicted an increase of about 8 percent this year. That finding was hailed as a sign that Reaganomics was starting to work.

The sharp reversal in investment expectations indicates a substantial slackening of confidence in the recovery by a majority of businesses. And confidence is at the heart of Reaganomics.

Remember last year's debate over the original round of budget and tax cuts? The administration's strongest argument was that once business saw that Washington was serious about reducing spending and controlling inflation, it would show its faith in the administration's economic policies by increasing its investment in capital assets.

This investment, coupled with an expected sharp increase in personal savings resulting from the three-stage tax cut, was to put the economy on the road not only to recovery but to new heights of prosperity.

Specifically, the administration predicted that business investment would rise by more than 10 percent a year for the next several years. Then investment would really take off so that by the end of fiscal 1986 it would reach an unprecedented level of almost 15 percent of the gross national product.

The argument was that, although some of the administration's proposals were clearly long-range, the positive effect of their approval by Congress would be felt much more quickly. That positive effect was to be the surge in business investment.

In short, the administration was promising a business-led recovery.

Administration spokesmen were quick to cite the earlier quarterly survey, which showed an inflation-adjusted increase in investment of 7.7 percent, as proof that their plan was starting to work. They predicted that this was only a start and that the actual increase as reflected in later surveys would be higher.

It appears that a combination of continued high interest rates and diminished business expectations has changed all of that. Not only did the new survey show a decline in planned investment, but private forecasters think that the next survey will show a drop of even greater dimensions.

Some private forecasters say that business investment for 1982 will be down between 6 percent and 8 percent in real terms. This represents a clear renunciation of Reaganomics by the business community.

So, administration spokesmen have changed their tune. Now they are predicting that the extra money that the second round of tax cuts will add to Americans' paychecks will produce a spending surge and, in turn, a consumer-led recovery.

Experts outside the government say that any such surge in consumer spending would bring back inflation with a vengeance, making any recovery short-lived.

Reagan tight lipped on Haig

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Shades of Jimmy Carter's "trust me" and Richard Nixon's "executive privilege" showed up at President Reagan's news conference last week. The president said he had told the American public all that he cared to tell about Alexander M. Haig Jr.'s resignation as secretary of state and there was no useful purpose in further discussion of the matter. That's not exactly what he said five days earlier when he told reporters at the White House, and a national television audience, that Haig was quitting. He avoided answering questions then by leaving the impression from the outset that he would deal with them at a news conference.

But when the news conference came around on Wednesday, Reagan — who has never been too shy to tell reporters that he won't discuss a certain subject because of its diplomatic sensitivity — was less than willing to shed any light on why the secretary decided to call it quits. He didn't mention delicate negotiations. He just said he wouldn't talk about Haig. In fact, in the days preceding the news conference his aides had been telling reporters Reagan hoped to avoid any lengthy discussion of the subject because he'd rather look ahead and not back.

Reagan, it seems, was taking a page from the books of Carter and Nixon. Carter built a successful presidential campaign on the theme of asking the American people to trust him to do the right thing. Nixon, seeking to avoid answering questions, created a fine art of the "executive privilege" claim. Neither he nor his top aides, he claimed, could be required to answer questions because no one had the authority to invade the privacy of the presidency. The Supreme Court ruled otherwise.

When the questions about Haig were addressed to the president last week, Reagan said: "I made a statement that I would have no further comments on that or take no questions on it."

When pressed by a reporter, who asked, "Don't you think that the American people deserve to know more of the reasons that led to the departure of Secretary Haig?" the president made it clear that he did not think they did.

"If I thought that there was something involved in this that the American people needed to know, with regard to their own welfare, then I would be frank with the American people and tell them."

Question: "Then you think that the entire explanation has been given as far as is necessary?"

Reagan: "Yes, I don't think there's anything that in any way would benefit the people to know or that will in any way affect their good judgment."

Inmate silent about group

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — James Michael Briddle wears the swastika and lightning bolt tattoo on his left forearm that is characteristic of the Aryan Brotherhood, a white supremacy group that operates within the prison system.

Briddle also admits to knowing convicted murderer Barry Mills, 33, reputed commissioner of the Brotherhood. Beyond that Briddle is silent.

"Listen to me, I don't fear the death penalty hanging over me," the 27-year-old Briddle said from his death row cell at the Texas Department of Correction Ellis Unit. "But I do fear a piece of steel in my belly. Let's not talk about the Brotherhood."

Briddle, convicted in the rope strangulation of Bo Banks of Houston in 1980, said he knew Mills when the two inmates were serving time at San Quentin prison in California.

"I was in Max B block at Quentin where the families were segregated, the Brotherhood, the Mexican Mafia and the others," Briddle said.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

July 8, 1982

You will be fortunate this coming year through participation in projects which others began. The contribution you will make will be both unique and necessary.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be dismayed by early signals today. Your luck improves as time ticks on. Give it an assist when you catch your second wind. Predictions of what's in store for you for each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Ventures or arrangements that you have which require a partner should work out rather well for you today. Solo efforts may not.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your financial prospects look brighter today, although you may not get an immediate yield from your efforts. However, they will trickle in soon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You need stimulating activities today in order to function at your best, so don't back away from challenge or competition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are capable of substantial accomplishments today, so if there is something important you wish to conclude, bring all your forces to bear.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to keep your schedule as flexible as possible today. If something better comes up than that which you've planned, you'll be able to take advantage of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your possibilities for profit look good today, but not necessarily from new ventures. Try to make the cash register ring from a proven source.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Success is likely today because you'll know how to reduce mountains to molehills and deal with them satisfactorily.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although a situation appears to be a negative one, your concerns should prove groundless today when you probe the matter more deeply.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your becoming manner in dealing with others today will win you admiration and respect. You might even turn an adversary into an ally!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Conditions should be right today to afford you opportunities to achieve two important goals. One pertains to your status, the other to your income.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's not that you'll be out to use people today, but good things could develop for you from your social contacts. Let those who like you help.

myrtle, madrone, vine maple and Pacific dogwood. Salmon and brook trout thrive in the pristine water.

It is not surprising that four
Indian tribes — the Hurok, Hupa, Tolowa and Karok — have prized the high country northeast of here for centuries, reserving it as a sacred place for training medicine men.

Nor is it surprising that lumber companies have long sought a way into this rugged area of northern California so they could haul its rare timbers to mills along the coast.

The Forest Service says the area could be used for both purposes. Later this summer, it will construct the final six-mile leg of the 55-mile Gasquet-Orleans Road, a project it claims will achieve that end.

But Indian leaders decry
the project, known as the GO Road, as "cultural genocide."
"Instead of killing us off,

they're destroying our cultural functions," says
Wait Lara, a Hurok Indian and logger whose family members worship in the high country.

Jack Norton, a Hupa who teaches ethnic studies at nearby Humboldt State University, agrees.

"You can destroy a people just as effectively by mentally committing genocide as you can physically," Norton said. "If you destroy a people's religious dignity, worth and purpose, you destroy them."

The medicine men, called shamans, have been the traditional leaders of the tribes, which do not have chiefs.

The strongest incentive for building the road through Humboldt and Del Norte counties is the jobs it will provide. The unemployment rate hit 18 percent in Humboldt County this spring.
It passed 28 percent in Del
Norte County.

The Forest Service predicts
the road will create 203 jobs.
When Del Norte County
residents voted in a June 1980 referendum, the vote went 4-to-1 in favor of completing the road.

Right now, Forest Service officials say the Indians are the only ones benefiting from the Blue Creek region.

"We're directed by Congress to manage this thing for multiple use and benefits for all people," said
Richard Ferneau,
environmental coordinator for the Six Rivers National Forest.

To establish "multiple use," the Forest Service has approved a master plan for "the Blue Creek unit." The road will open up the country.
The plan will tell which areas can be clear cut and which must be preserved.

Ferneau notes the Indian
"power sites" — sacred areas with names like Doctor Rock and Medicine Mountain — will be protected by half-mile buffer zones.

The Indians say buffer zones won't do the job. To them "the whole country is sacred," says Norton.

SACRED INDIAN COUNTRY. Chimney Rock is in the heart of sacred Indian land threatened by a Forest Service plan to build a road for logging, which Indian leaders say, would create a cultural genocide for Hupas, Hurok and other tribes. The lands are located in Humboldt and Del Norte counties of California. (AP Laserphoto)

Prince's family tree lively

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

WINDSOR, England (AP) — When he's old enough to look up his family tree, Prince William Arthur Philip Louis, first born of Prince Charles and Princess Diana of Wales and second in line to the British throne, is in for some lively learning.

Britain's last King William — William IV, who succeeded his brother George IV in 1830 — was a dotty old admiral who never expected to be king but added to the merriment at Windsor Castle by arriving with his 10 illegitimate children by the matronly actress Dorothea Jordan, along with their wives, husbands, children and servants.

William clearly enjoyed being king. He welcomed the public to go riding and strolling about the Home Park, the private hunting preserve of the old Saxon kings where President Reagan and the queen took their recent morning canter. William was a most hospitable monarch, entertaining an average 2,000 guests a week. The only hitch to these royal freebies was that King William had this passion for giving speeches, long, boring ones sometimes lacking in tact and short on logic and elegant diction.

Queen Adelaide, whom he married after finally breaking with the very motherly actress, was not regarded as a reigning beauty. Despite the lack of domestic tranquility, the sailor-king and his German hausfrau led an orderly palace life. William, who came to the throne at 65 and reigned only seven years, always regarded himself as a salty character, even referring to his horses as "my ships," but there is some question how good a sailor he actually was.

Lord Nelson, the greatest sea hero of the age, had a high regard for him: "Above all, he is a seaman, which you would hardly suppose."

Not knowing what else to do with him, since he was third in the line of succession behind his brothers George and Frederick, his father, mad old King George III, packed William off to sea at age 13. He was amiable and fond of practical jokes but a bit of a Queeg when strutting the quarter deck. He once had his first mate clapped in irons in a dispute over where the laundry should be hung on the flagship and sentenced a German portrait painter, whom he had invited aboard but quarreled with, to "a stinging dozen on that part of the body called the seat of honour."

He let the Lords of the Admiralty know who his father was, once sailing home to England for Christmas in violation of fleet orders to winter in Quebec.

William, to whom the nickname "Silly Billy" was soon attached, lost an early girl friend, Polly Finch, to nautical ennui. She left him because she could no longer put up with his reading aloud from "The Lives of the Admirals" every evening.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ALL STARS. The eight players named to the American League's starting team for the 1982 All-Star game in Montreal next Tuesday are Rollie Fingers of the Milwaukee Brewers, Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals, Floyd Bannister of the Seattle Mariners, Jim Clancy of the Toronto Blue Jays, Dennis Eckersley and Mark Clear of the Boston Red Sox, Ron Guidry and Rich (Goose) Gossage of the New York Yankees.

Relief pitchers head AL All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Relief aces Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals and Rollie Fingers of the Milwaukee Brewers head the eight-man pitching staff selected today for the American League All-Stars.

Oakland Manager Billy Martin and AL President Lee MacPhail also chose two other bullpen specialists, Mark Clear of Boston and Rich Gossage of the New York Yankees for the staff that will go against the National League Tuesday night in Montreal.

Joining the four relievers are starters Dennis Eckersley of Boston, Jim Clancy of Toronto, Ron Guidry of New York and Floyd Bannister of Seattle.

The National League also named an eight-man staff Wednesday, including Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, who leads the major leagues with 12 victories, and Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, an 11-game winner. Also on the NL staff are Steve Rogers of Montreal, who leads the league with 2.04 earned run average, Phil Niekro of Atlanta, Cincinnati teammates Mario Soto and Tom Hume, Steve Howe of Los Angeles and Greg Minton of San Francisco.

Two Braves relievers who did not make the NL squad had some sour words about their omission.

"I deserved to be on it," said Gene Garber. "I'm having the type of a year that I think I should be on it, and I really don't think any National League reliever is having a better year."

"I can't believe it," said Steve Bedrosian. "Who was choosing the team? Lasorda? That figures."

Bedrosian was referring to Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda, who along with NL officials selected the All-Star pitchers.

Among those on the AL staff, Quisenberry, 4-3 with a 2.13 earned run average, leads the majors with 22 saves this season.

Fingers, 5-5 with a 2.50 ERA, has 16 saves and won the AL Cy Young and Most Valuable Player awards last year when he won six games, saved 28 and posted a 1.04 ERA. His 288 career saves are more than any man in history. He was the losing pitcher in the 1981 All-Star Game, won by the National League 5-4 at Cleveland.

Gossage, selected to an All-Star team for the ninth time, was the loser in the 1978 Game when he gave up four runs in one inning as the NL won 7-3. He is 3-3 with 15 saves and a 2.45 ERA. Clear is 6-3 with 11 saves and a 1.92 ERA.

Eckersley, 9-6 with a 3.25 ERA, is the top winner on the AL staff as Martin chose to pass up Chicago's LaMarr Hoyt and Milwaukee's Pete Vuckovich, both 10-game winners. He has three shutouts and is expected to be the AL starting pitcher, although Martin will not formalize his selection until Monday when he announces his batting order.

Guidry is 8-3 with a 3.53 ERA. Bannister is 8-4 with a 2.85 ERA and leads the league with 106 strikeouts. Clancy is 7-5 with a 3.33 ERA.

Guidry and Bannister are the lone left-handers on the team.

Astros' Sambito to miss three months

HOUSTON (AP) — Elbow surgery on Houston Astros' pitcher Joe Sambito was more complicated than doctors first anticipated, a team spokesman said.

Sambito, once the ace of the Astros' star-crossed relief corps, was recovering at Los Angeles' Centinela Hospital today after undergoing surgery Wednesday, said Astros spokesman Mike Ryan.

Doctors originally had planned to remove a bone chip from Sambito's left elbow, Ryan said.

But the medial collateral ligament also had to be replaced by a tendon from the right leg and the ulna nerve in the elbow relocated, Ryan said.

"Everyone had been prepared for this so it didn't come as a great shock," Ryan said.

Sambito, 29, of Treasure Island, Fla., will be hospitalized three to four days, Ryan said. Sambito will not be allowed to pitch for at least three months, he said.

The six-year veteran has not pitched since an April 27 game against St. Louis and has been on the disabled list since May 20.

As one of the best left-handed relievers in the major league, Sambito had 68 saves and a 2.40 earned run average.

AL roundup

Baines hits three homers as White Sox blank Tigers, 7-0

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer
Harold Baines may be little a reluctant when it comes to taking a bow. Dave Winfield isn't.

Baines belted three consecutive home runs Wednesday night, capping the binge with an eighth-inning grand slam, as the Chicago White Sox routed the Detroit Tigers 7-0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Lamp.

Winfield, who has been on a home run barrage of his own over the last nine games, slammed a three-run shot in the first inning as the New York Yankees edged Oakland 5-3 and denied Billy Martin his 1,000th career victory as a manager.

It was the first time the 23-year-old Baines had ever hit three home runs in a game, but his reaction was rather restrained.

"It felt good inside, but I didn't jump up and down," said Baines, who added that his teammates "practically pushed me up the stairs" to acknowledge the cheers of the crowd after the grand slam.

Winfield wasn't asked by the Oakland crowd to take a bow, but he took the opportunity to lash out at Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, who criticized the outfielder as failing to live up to "superstar status."

"I think he spoke too soon," said Winfield of Steinbrenner's comments. "But I want to make it clear to everyone, that this isn't a motivation tool for me."

Winfield also was upset by his failure to gain a starting spot on the American League All-Star team, selected by the fans.

"I'd have voted for me to play," said Winfield, who is hitting .308 with 15 home runs.

In other AL games, Boston downed Texas 8-5, Minnesota outlasted Milwaukee 11-8, Kansas City nipped Toronto 3-1, Seattle defeated Baltimore 8-7 and Cleveland got by California 8-6.

Baines started his home run barrage with a leadoff shot in the fifth inning off Detroit starter Jerry Ujdr to give the White Sox a 1-0 lead. He increased the margin to 2-0 with his eighth home run of the season in the seventh inning, another leadoff blast off Ujdr, 1-5.

Lamp, 6-3, struck out seven and walked none in going the distance for only the second time this season.

Yankees 5, A's 3
Roger Erickson, 6-7, worked seven innings, scattering six hits and striking out six in picking up the victory.

Winfield drilled his 15th homer deep into the left field stands after a leadoff single by Willie Randolph and a walk to Ken Griffey to give the Yankees a 3-0 lead.

Oakland made it 3-1 in bottom of the first on Rickey Henderson's triple and Dwayne Murphy's groundout. They added an unearned run in the fifth. Jeff Burroughs hit a pinch hit homer for the A's in the eighth.

The Yankees added two runs in the eighth when Jerry Mumphrey delivered a bases-loaded single.

Twins 11, Brewers 8
Gary Gaetti slammed a three-run homer to highlight a six-run second inning as Minnesota pounded out 15 hits and outlasted Milwaukee to post its fourth victory in the last five games.

The Twins, who have the worst record in the majors this season, also got a two-run homer from Tim Laudner.

Robin Yount and Ted Simmons crashed two-run homers for the Brewers, who slipped into second place in the AL East, a game behind Boston.

Red Sox 8, Rangers 5
Dwight Evans and Jim Rice crashed consecutive fifth-inning home runs to lead a 16-hit barrage and Boston withstood a five-run Texas ninth inning to move back into first place in the AL East.

Boston broke a scoreless tie in the fifth against Texas starter Charlie Hough, 7-6, as Jerry Remy singled. Evans crashed his 10th homer and Rice followed with his 12th.

Boston added four more runs in the seventh and another in the ninth before Texas rallied on Larry Parrish's second grand slam in four days and Bill Stein's pinch homer off reliever Mark Clear.

Indians 8, Angels 6
Rick Waits pitched five-hit ball for six innings to pick up his first victory of the season and Von Hayes belted a two-run homer as Cleveland edged California, extending the Angels' losing streak to eight games and snapping the Tribe's five-game skid.

California scored five runs in the seventh on a two-run homer by Fred Lynn and Reggie Jackson's three-run shot off Dan Spillner, who recorded his 10th save. It was Jackson's 18th of the season and his third in the last five games.

Royals 3, Blue Jays 1
Larry Gura tossed a four-hitter and Willie Aikens and Jerry Martin slammed solo home runs as Kansas City posted its sixth victory in the last seven games.

Gura, 10-4, struck out two and walked one, while giving up Jesse Barfield's seventh home run of the season. Hard-luck Blue Jays starter Jim Clancy, 7-6, yielded five hits in taking the loss.

Mariners 8, Orioles 7
Todd Cruz delivered a two-out, ninth-inning single to score pinch-runner Bobby Brown with the winning run as Seattle beat Baltimore.

The victory pushed the Mariners six games over .500, their best mark ever, at 44-38, giving Seattle its 25th come-from-behind victory.

Baltimore took a 3-0 lead in the second inning off an RBI single by Joe Nolan and Al Bumbry's two-run single. John Lowenstein added a three-run homer in the third.

Seniors Open tees off today

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An ailing back may hurt Billy Casper in his bid to get even with Arnold Palmer in the U.S. Senior Open golf tournament.

Casper, who lost last year to Palmer in a three-way playoff, twisted his back earlier this week while hoisting luggage from an automobile trunk.

"Some of us aren't smart enough to have others lift the luggage," he explained.

But Casper, 51, did not seem to be bothered by the back in practice rounds Tuesday and Wednesday. The tournament, which runs through Sunday, starts today. Casper has the reputation of being one of the best putters ever to play the game.

But he said driving might be the key to victory on the par-71, 6,489-yard Portland Golf Club course.

"This is a tremendous driving course," Casper said. "They lengthened 18, which I don't necessarily agree with, and 15 (a par-4 at 460 yards) is going to eliminate a lot of short hitters."

The spirit is willing and the flesh is not so weak after all as Pampa's Lou Allred won the 35-39 age division last weekend in the Pepsi Challenge 10-K race last weekend in Amarillo.

Jeff Poole, who won the Fighting Heart football award this past season, has also been selected as a 1982 national award winner by the United States Achievement Academy.

It's not a cheap award. The Academy recognizes only five percent of all American High School students each year. Criteria for selection is based on academic performance, leadership qualities, citizenship and, among other things, the recommendation of a teacher.

Poole's name will be listed in the Academy's official yearbook, published nationally.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Poole and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gallimore.

According to Pro Football Weekly, Kenneth Sims of the University of Texas and Walter Abercrombie of Baylor will make the National Football League's All-Rookie team.

Sims, a defensive lineman, was drafted by the New England Patriots, and Abercrombie, a running back, went with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Sims is considered a Mean Joe Greene-type, and Abercrombie is expected to start in the Steeler backfield because he can run inside or outside, can cut, catch, block and fake.

Flashback: July 1977. Mike Coulter struck out 13 and hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning to give the Pampa All-Stars a 3-2 win over Dumas in the opening round of the District 1 Babe Ruth baseball tournament.

Pampa routs Top Of Texas in district tournament opener

The Pampa All-Stars routed Top Of Texas, 14-4, in five innings Wednesday night in the opening round of the District 1 Babe Ruth baseball tournament at Optimist Park.

Pampa goes against Canyon, a 26-24 winner over Dumas last night, in the winner's bracket at 9 p.m. tonight.

John Thomas allowed just three hits while striking out 10 and walking seven for Pampa.

Pampa had five-run innings in the third and fifth frames to put away Top Of Texas. Top of Texas scored all its runs in the fourth inning.

Alfredo Hernandez, Ken Wagoner and Mike Lynn led Pampa's hitting attack with two singles each. Cliff Medley, John Hazle and John Thomas also had hits for Pampa.

The finals of the double-elimination tournament will be played Saturday, starting at 6:30 p.m. A win tonight would put Pampa into the finals.

Sutton reaches milestone as Astros defeat Cubs

HOUSTON (AP) — Astros right-hander Don Sutton, not contented with the exclusive club he joined with his 250th major league victory, has set his sights on the lofty pitching achievement of baseball's grand old man.

Sutton pitched a four-hitter Wednesday night and led the Astros to a 5-1 win over the Chicago Cubs. His next milestone will be to match the record of Gaylord Perry, baseball's only active 300-game winner.

"I'd like to go for 300. Now that Gaylord Perry has surpassed that milestone, there's a lot of attention about it," Sutton said.

"It's nice to be included among the bona fide contenders," said Sutton, who became the 33rd pitcher in major league history to reach the 250-victory mark.

Sutton's four-hitter gave him a career mark of 250-188. The 37-year-old right-hander struck out four batters and walked just two for the win.

Sutton said catchers deserve much of the limelight pitchers receive when milestones are passed.

"There are two parts to pitching," he said. "One is deciding what to throw, and the other is throwing it. If you're in 'sync' with your catcher, it just makes life a lot easier."

Sutton recorded his ninth win of the season with help from Astros' bats.

Terry Puhl opened the Astros' fourth with a single and scored on Phil Garner's sixth home run of the year. Houston made it 3-0 in the sixth when Dickie Thon doubled, moved to third on Puhl's fly ball, and scored on Allen Ripley's wild pitch.

An RBI double by the Cubs' Jay Johnstone cut the Astros lead to 3-1 in the seventh, but Houston's Jose Cruz singled home two more insurance runs in the eighth.

Chicago hurler Allen Ripley, 3-1, gave up seven hits, including a two-run homer by Phil Garner. Ripley also hurt himself with a run-scoring wild pitch in the sixth inning.

"He did well, except for those two bad pitches," said Cubs' manager Lee Elia.

Britten wins title

Tracy Britten of Groom and Valentin Vilanueva of Lakeview won the high school boys doubles title Monday at the Lakeview Open Tennis Tournament.

The pair teamed up to defeat Dusty Byers and Oran Don Mollof of Lakeview, 6-4, 6-2, in the finals.

Britten also reached the finals in singles, but fell to Lynn Bartlett, Wellington, 6-2, 7-5.

Italy, Poland meet today in World Cup semifinals

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Italy, Poland, West Germany and France — all a bit dazed by their success — took their shots at getting to the final of the 12th World Cup soccer tournament. Italy and Poland met today at Barcelona in one semifinal match, while France and West Germany played at Seville.

The winners will meet Sunday in Madrid for the championship.

Raiders ready for LA move

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Though the move may not be permanent, Al Davis is ready to take his Oakland Raiders to Los Angeles for the 1982 National Football League season.

Davis, the managing general partner of the Raiders, signed a 10-year agreement Wednesday with the Coliseum Commission to make the move.

He also has a practice field once the season begins and the approval of his players to make the switch, although it means hardships for many of them.

Davis will start selling season tickets before the month is over and in the future will build luxury boxes for the elite among his club's followers.

The commission, by a 7-1 vote, approved an agreement for a 10-year lease for the Raiders to replace the departed Los Angeles Rams, who left the Coliseum in 1980 to move to nearby Anaheim. And in court, there was action to call the club the Los Angeles Raiders.

An advance of $6.7 million, on a loan basis, was part of the pact approved to move the Raiders from the 54,000-seat Oakland Coliseum to the L.A. Coliseum, which seats 90,000.

The switch has been avidly opposed by the NFL, which lost an anti-trust suit in federal court last May 7 and is appealing. Also pending is an eminent domain suit by the City of Oakland, which claims that the Raiders are part of its personal property.

Davis, thwarted in a proposed move in 1980 by NFL court action, said, "I hope now this is the last step to move the Raiders to L.A. for 1982."

Both the University of Southern California and UCLA, who play their home games at the Coliseum, voiced objections to the agreement, mainly because luxury boxes will delete some seats between the goal lines.

News Briefs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Travis County Republican Party reports it spent more than $8,000 to log the votes of 28 people in the June 5 runoff election. All that was at stake were six precinct chairmen. There were no state or county races on the ballot.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Another look may be taken at claims that payment of President Reagan's $22.44 annual state pension violates the U.S. Constitution.

The matter is being referred to the board of the Public Employees' Retirement System following the allegation Wednesday by the Sacramento Urban League.

The Constitution says a president shall be paid a salary while in office and "shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them."

U.S. Attorney General William French Smith already has approved the payments, saying the pension is not an "emolument" or gain from an employment position.

NEW YORK (AP) — An Afghan guerrilla leader says his colleagues need help if they are to maintain a prolonged fight against Soviet forces in Afghanistan.

Hassan Gailani, commander of the 150,000-member National Islamic Front, said Wednesday in an interview that the rebels have more fighters than they have guns.

"We will not be able to keep fighting for more than three years unless we get arms and supplies from abroad," Gailani said.

Soviet troops entered Afghanistan in December 1979 in an action the Soviets described as necessary to help quell a rebellion against a Marxist, Soviet-supported government.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Detectives say a man who wounded a police officer, then killed his wife and himself had been hospitalized for being paranoid about the police.

David Goldblatt Arien, 41, was a former Air Force doctor who had been institutionalized seven times for mental problems that included a phobia about policemen, detectives said Wednesday.

Arien and his wife, Jonelle, 36, died Tuesday after a gunfight involving police Sgt. John Scott Macaulay, who had attempted to question them in a robbery followup, officers said.

Names in the News

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Kim Alexis, the fashion model billed as the "Face of the 80s," got a warm welcome home by friends and neighbors who remembered her as a high school swimmer and musician who was going to be a pharmacist.

More than 100 people turned out for a Wednesday reception at which she was given the key to the city.

Miss Alexis, 21, entered modeling school at the suggestion of the photographer who took her graduation photos, and has appeared more than 100 times on the covers of magazines like Cosmopolitan, Vogue, Bazaar, and Glamour.

Last March, a cosmetics company dubbed her "The Face of the 80s."

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — The son of former federal budget director Bert Lance has been cleared after a drunken-driving arrest in this southeast Tennessee town, officials said.

A Bradley County grand jury on Tuesday found insufficient evidence to support the drunken-driving accusation against Thomas Lance.

Police arrested the 30-year-old Lance, of Calhoun, Ga., about 1:30 a.m. May 28. Officer Ron Martin, who arrested Lance, said he saw Lance's car weaving and headed along the wrong side of the street.

Bert Lance served as President Carter's budget director, but resigned after questions were raised about some of his actions as head of a Georgia bank.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Patrick McGoochan faces court action on charges of drunken driving, driving with a suspended license and driving without a license.

McGoochan was stopped by police on July 1, and charges were filed Wednesday, said Assistant City Attorney Schuyler Sprowles. An arraignment in West Los Angeles Municipal Court was scheduled for today.

McGoochan, 54, starred in two British-made TV series, "Secret Agent" and "The Prisoner," and in two movies, "Silver Streak" and "Ice Station Zebra."

SPOLETO, Italy (AP) — Dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov is returning to the stage following a five-month absence caused by damage to cartilage in his right knee.

Baryshnikov, artistic director of the American Ballet Theater, will join Susan Jaffe today to perform "Other Dances," a 10-minute work created by Jerome Robbins in 1976 for Baryshnikov and Natalia Makarova.

The dance will be part of the Silver Jubilee edition of Giancarlo Menotti's Spoleto Festival of Two Worlds.

Attic too full? go underground

EDITOR'S NOTE — Sometimes, there's no place to go but down. Underground. A number of groups, from government agencies to business corporations, are digging deep into the depths of Pennsylvania to store their records and files, in the hope they'll be protected there from theft and natural disaster.

By JOHN BRONSON
Associated Press Writer

BOYERS, Pa. (AP) — Secreted deep under a wooded western Pennsylvania hillside are millions of documents and miles of computer tape detailing the vital records of citizens and corporations alike.

The data are stored for safekeeping in a cavernous limestone mine about 55 miles north of Pittsburgh. The labyrinth of roadways and vaults, carved from rock was abandoned in 1952 by a steel company and taken over by National Underground Storage, Inc. (NUS).

Today, more than 960 clients — from the First National Bank of Slippery Rock, Pa., to several federal agencies that prefer anonymity — have turned the old mine into a gigantic underground filing cabinet.

"I didn't know there was this much paper in the whole world until I got here," says NUS president Arthur Black.

Standing in the aisle of a 1,500-square-foot room, Black is dwarfed by row upon row of gray metal shelves, filled from floor to ceiling with neatly stacked cardboard boxes.

"There are 50,000 boxes in here. And each box holds 3,000 documents, 8½-by-11 inches. That's 150 million documents in this one room, and we can find any one of them within five minutes," he says.

Much of what's deposited in the mine 220 feet down is mundane — canceled checks, tax papers, personnel files, birth and death records, duplicate computer tapes and the like. But there are also plans for nuclear power plants, grades for Ohio State University students and videotapes of all of Mike Douglas' television talk shows.

NUS will not, however, store items of intrinsic value like art works or gold bullion. "That changes the nature of the security here," Black says.

Security, of course, is the prime reason that records are shipped here from all 50 states.

Back in the Cold War days of the 1950s, the fear of nuclear fallout prompted clients to go underground with their vital papers and tapes. In fact, NUS' first advertising brochure featured a mushroom cloud from an atomic blast on the cover.

"Today, companies are protecting their records against such things as fire, flood, earthquakes, hurricanes, dissident employees, terrorists and that sort of thing," Black says.

"Also, if a company loses its computer and doesn't have a backup, it can be fatal." With its limited accessibility, the mine is an "impregnable fortress," according to the company's advertising.

Its rural location is so unobtrusive that it's difficult to find even with a map.

Inside, the rough-hewn walls are spray-painted silver to reflect light and seal the limestone. It makes the place look like the set of a marooned-in-space science-fiction movie.

A musty draft blows constantly at the portal. It is created by two huge fans that circulate 200,000 cubic feet of air per minute in the 80-acre mine, of which 15 acres are developed.

The 56-degree temperature is constant in the tunnels, but at more comfortable levels in the rooms where work is being done. The mine's natural humidity of 95 percent is lowered to about 35 percent in the storage areas.

Electric carts and an occasional truck or car rumble through the honeycombed passages, each clearly marked with signs and protected at various points with firefighting alarms and equipment.

About 650 people work in the mine, most of them federal government employees. In an emergency, Black says everyone can be evacuated in eight minutes.

In all, there are 35 records centers in the mine, some of which are operated privately with NUS acting simply as the landlord.

But the company also operates a records center where clients can store their records in private vaults or have NUS do all the handling, including reference, retrieval, duplicating, storage, transmission and destruction at the end of a specified time.

Converting the mine into a records center was a brainstorm conceived by Larry Yont, a former records manager for U.S. Steel Corp. When the company decided to abandon the limestone mine, Yont persuaded the steelmaker to store its documents there and suggested that other space be leased commercially.
