Passengers safe, hijackers dead in China's first plane heist

PEKING (AP) - All 80 passengers aboard a hijacked Chinese airliner, including about 20 Americans, were reported safe today after crew members and angry passengers overpowered the five young air pirates in a fierce struggle.

The official Xinhua news agency said the five hijackers were captured alive. However, foreign sources in Shanghai said some of the American passengers reported three or four of them were fatally injured in the struggle, and only one or two were breathing when the plane landed.

Japanese sources in Shanghai reported earlier that Japanese passengers told them all five hijackers were The co-pilot and the navigator were reported slightly Xinhua said the plane, which was on a domestic flight from the ancient capital of Xian to Shanghai, landed safely in the coastal metropolis Sunday afternoon nearly three hours after five Chinese men commandeered it about 80 miles west of Shanghai.

The passengers reportedly said the hijackers were all in

It was the first hijacking attempt reported in China.

Most of the American passengers were reported to be older tourists returning from a visit to Xian, 390 miles west of Shanghai and a leading tourist attraction because of the 2,000-year-old life-size terra cotta warriors and horses unearthed there.

The passengers' identities were not available, and they could not be reached in Shanghai Chinese officials gave no more information about the incident today, but Japanese sources in Shanghai said Japanese passengers on the plane reported t he hijackers exploded a bomb in a forward toilet. A photograph taken by a Japanese passenger on another airliner at the Shanghai airport showed a hole in the forward part of the fuselage of the Soviet-made, four-prop Ilyushin 18 airliner.

Sources in Shanghai said Americans and Japanese among the passengers gave this account of the incident:

The five hijackers were armed with knives and explosive Two of them stormed into the cabin and demanded that t plane fly to Taiwan, seat of the rival Chinese National government. The pilot agreed but circled Shanghai for abo 21/2 hours, and the hijackers did not tumble to the deception

When the plane's fuel was about to run out, the co-pi went to the back of the plane and talked with some of t Chinese passengers. Shortly after, he, other crew member and about 15 of the Chinese passengers rushed the hijacke and overpowered them.

New whole food co-op may be good for you

By DAVID CHRISTENSON Staff Writer

Janet Bilyeu of White Deer and Sandy Brady of Pampa are trying to make the Pampa area a little healthier.

The two are trying to found a whole foods buying cooperative here, Bilyeu said, with a first meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at 2218 Williston.

The term "whole foods" will probably need some explanation in Pampa, Bilyeu said, because this popular dietary phenomenon has not reached many in this area.

"We hesitate to use the terms 'natural foods' or 'health foods.' Bilyeu said. "Some people think to be into health foods you have to be a Whole foods, she said, are like any foods available in grocery stores, with some significant additions and subtractions.

Much of the food purchased in supermarkets is processed with added sugar and salt, and often loses nutritional value at the factory

Whole foods are simply that: whole.

These foods are produced and distributed using only natural preservatives, and contain no artificial additives or vitamins.

Few have added salt content, or at least "salt is not a standard," Bilyeu said.

Most are not sweetened with sugar, and, when sweetening is necessary, honey is usually used for easier digestion.

Growers of fruits, grains and vegetables for the whole food market avoid using pesticides and commercial weed - killing chemicals on their crops.

Whole foods buyers do not sacrifice variety, either, according to Bilyeu.

The cooperative members would be able to buy "everything you can use except meat and some vegetables," Bilyeu said.

The menu would include various flours, such as rye, whole wheat, and unbleached flour. Fresh fruits and vegetables would be available

Some canned fruits and vegetables would be offered too, as would milk, yogurt and "greatcheeses," according to Bilyeu.

And, although the special shipping for cooperative members would raise the cost a bit, members could buy food in bulk and store it, she said

Concern for health seems to be the main reason for the whole foods movement in the United States. because many folks are becoming wary of the effects of processed, pre - cooked, and pre - sweetened edibles.

Bilveu said taste is another reason, however.

"Whole food takes some getting used to" after years of convenience cooking, but "it's hard to go back after eating whole foods a while,

It is possible for a watchful shopper to buy whole foods in supermarkets in Pampa, Bilyeu said, but not in bulk and not with a wide selection of them.

She said the Pampa enthusiast would probably pay more in a supermarket for whole foods than he would buying as part of a cooperative, because of the limited distribution of them to larger

Bilyeu wasn't definite about the terms of membership in the cooperative, but she said the financial questions would be ironed out in the first meeting. She also emphasized that attending Tuesday's meeting would not obligate anyone to join the member - owned, and probably require membership fees, she said.

The membership system has not been decided on vet, nor did she know if memberships would either be renewed yearly or be on a lifetime basis.

Every member would probably work about one day a month, she said. Terms of the work would be individualized; that is, some members would be required to sort orders at a ctral location and homebound members could work in their own houses

"Everyone will have a job," Bilyeu said, and there would be no permanent employees

Two men held after spree

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police say a San Antonio woman used a cigarette lighter to burn through ropes that bound her to a tree after two men killed her husband, raped her repeatedly and then abandoned her because they were hungry

Two men were jailed Sunday night on charges of aggravated kidnapping and aggravated rape in connection with the two-day spree that began Friday morning at the couple's northwest San Antonio home, authorities said.

Josephine Williams, 46, was abandoned at Lake Medina and freed herself Saturday, said Joe Gonzalez, a dispatcher with the Medina County Sheriff's Department.

The body of Robert E. Williams, 48, was discovered about 1:40 a.m. Sunday in a gulch near New-Braunfels

Arrested about 11 p.m. Saturday at the Williams' house were George Pittman, 37, and Frances Chandler, 41, both of San Antonio. Both were being held in lieu of $60,000 bond, set by acting night magistrate Alan Warrick. Antonio police said two men came to the Williams house Friday morning and asked about a car for sale.

The men drove Mrs. Williams to Lake Medina in Medina County and raped her, finally abandoning her when they got hungry, she told police.

Williams' body has been sent to the Travis County Medical When told the car was no longer available, the men asked Examiners office for an autopsy.

Pampa firemen, police busy with drunks and arson over weekend

At 6:50 p.m. Saturday, firemen were called to 1128 Seneca, the Pampa home of Charles Cook

Cook said his storage shed was on fire, and three fire department units rushed to the scene

Firemen and police said the little wooden shed behind Cook's house was burned to the ground and "sustained heavy damage

It took firemen just a little more than one hour to put out the shed fire and ensure the flames did not spread to surrounding structures. Really, little is unusual about the shed fire, except what is listed as the cause of the blaze - arson.

Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said two children are suspected of intentionally starting the shed fire, but a motive is unknow today, he said.

Ryzman said it was not a case of kids playing with matches and accidentally starting a fire.

He said investigation of the arson fire is continuing today, and no arrects in

'Press' hotel in west Beirut thrives despite the ongoing war

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Windows are crisscrossed with masking tape to keep them from shattering during a shelling. Barrels, block off streets on each side of the building to keep car bombs away. The executive office suite contains a stock of assault rifles

The Commodore Hotel, home base for 175 foreign journalists covering Israel's invasion of Lebanon, is thriving despite the war in west Beirut where Palestinian guerrillas are trapped by encircling Israeli forces

'The Commodore operates better in war than in peace," said Yussef Nazzal, 39-year-old Jordanian proprietor of what has become a virtual international press center

The lobby, often strewn with television equipment, is a gathering place for members of Lebanon's parliament, officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization, relief workers, doctors, prominent Lebanese businessmen and the few remaining western diplomats left in the besieged Moslem sector of the capital.

Hotel policy requires that guns and grenades be checked at the reception desk, where Teletype and telex machines clatter almost around the clock.

An unspoken agreement has kept the Commodore a neutral zone, relatively free of interfactional shootouts and shelling exchanges. But the seven-story, 150-room hotel has not been entirely immune from violence, as a notice posted near the elevators indicates. "In case of shooting around the hotel, the management insists that neither television cameramen or photographers attempt to take pictures. This endangers not only their lives but those of the guests and staff. Those not prepared to cooperate may check out of the hotel."

The notice stemmed from a street battle early this month between two leftist Lebanese militias over a vacant apartment house nearby. The gunmen turne the weapons on photographers who tried to film the battle and a machine gun mounted on a pickup truck was aimed into the lobby, where patrons dived behind couches. "It is, without doubt, one of the most dangerous places in the world," said Nazzal. He explained in an interview that he stays on in west

Beirut because he likeh 7nd because of long-term friendships

"I'm thinking about having new T-shirts made to thank the press for saving west Beirut. The people her have the press to thank for saving their lives, and I satisfied my ego that I helped the press function to make that possible," said Nazzal, who acts as banker, press adviser and psychiatrist to his guests.

Nazzal said he has won over most local militias and guerrillas to the idea that the press coverage has helped stave off an Israeli onslaught into west Beirut through descriptions and pictures of destruction

"It has been a slow process but most of them now accept the press," he added. But in the early days of Israel's siege of the Palestinian enclave that began June 13 there were fears that extremist guerrilla factions might seize the journalists as hostages. Those fears led to the collection of 10 AK-47 rifles, 14 ammunition clips and a Beretta submachine gun in an alcove of Nazzal's office in the hotel. The most difficult task, however, has been keeping the journalists and 75 hotel staffers fed and finding enough fuel

"When the invasion started I could see it coming to Beirut and I thought of two things that were needed to keep this place alive: cash money, in the millions, and fuel," Nazzal said, adding that he has loaned his journalist clients four million Lebanese lira ($750,000) to date.

to keep the lights on and the Teletypes and telex machines

The cash also gives the Commodore priority on the black market, where steaks and fresh shrimp can still be purchased even if at four or five times the normal price. At times during the siege, Israel and its Maronite

Christian allies in east Beirut have cut off the water and power and blocked fuel and food trucks from entering west Nevertheless, a truck carrying 3,700 gallons of diesel oil for the hotel generator got through the blockade recently and the hotel staff brought in more by canvassing office and apartment buildings and buying up unused stocks at up to eight times the pre-invasion price of about 80 cents a gallon. A few hotels remain open but none caters to the foreign press like the Commodore, which still has a touch of class a concert pianist named Anwar Maatouk - and a sense of humor - a gray African parrot named Coco who whistles a perfect imitation of an incoming shell.

Morrow's last work his finest according to co-workers on film

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) - The pilot of a helicopter that crashed on a movie set, killing actor Vic Morrow and two children, says he has changed his mind and agreed to help review films of the stunt accident.

Meanwhile, Morrow was eulogized Sunday as an actor at the peak of the talents, who gave the best performance of his career for the "Twilight Zone" before being killed in a stunt for the movie's final scene.

The helicopter pilot, Darcey Wingo, initially refused to join federal and state investigators at a special showing scheduled today of what he called "th holocaust sequence," because he did not want to relive the ordeal.

Burn victim teeters on edge of reality

Rachel Schultz, a 7-year-old girl severely burned when a Pan American jetliner plowed through her Kenner, La., neighborhood, is "bouncing back and forth between reality," a hospital official here says.

The little girl was burned over 80 percent of her body and now is undergoing a series of operations at the Shriners Burn Institute here to remove the damaged

Now you can paddle your canoe through the Big Thicket Preserve

"The secret to guides is they don't lose their people," says naturalist Nick Rodes.

Rodes spends many of his weekends threading canoeists down the meandering waterways through the Big Thicket National Preserve.

He knows the perils and the pleasures of the 21/2-31/2 million acres of dense forest and waterways known as Big Thicket.

Rodes was hired as a consultant about eight years ago when the area conservationists wanted to open parts of the Big Thicket up to visitors. Many of the museum's programs are a result of his work

He was hired a few years later as museum director, but because of budget cuts the museum now employs only two people. Consequently Rodes guides canoeists strictly as a volunteer service.

.. The typical conservationists want to save land," Rodes says, "but they don't have over-the-horizon goals. Once you save it, what do you do with it? They didn't have any idea of what to do for visitors.

Work to preserve the wilderness of Big Thicket began in 1964. In 1974 it was officially set aside as a national preserve.

Visitor programs have expanded from simple hikes to combined canoe trips and hikes - and include just about everything in between. General trips are led by Rodes or Rick Puckitt. Close-up tours — catered to individual requests - are led by experts in many scientific fields: ornithology, botany, entomology, forest ecology, mycology, mamalogy, geography, geology herpetology, horticulture and aquatic biology.

Rodes, who teaches advanced biology at Kountze High School, molds his guide role to suit the characters of his followers. If they want to talk, he's an entertaining and skillful lecturer. ## Sharpstown scandal led to IRS investigation

DALLAS (AP) Encouraged by the number of Democrats whose political careers were scuttled by the Sharpstown scandal, the Nixon administration had the Internal Revenue Service investigate numerous politically active Texans, documents obtained by The Associated Press show. The investigation, which the IRS dubbed "Southwest Project," apparently was born after a top IRS official read an article about financier Frank Sharp in the December 1971 edition of Fortune, entitled "The Texas Banker Who Bought Politicians. Sharp was the key figure in the "Sharpstown Bank Scandal" of the early 1970s in Texas, which brought numerous charges against several top state political

The scandal also ended the careers of several prominent Democrats of the time, including Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, once considered a cinch for the governor's chair.

The Southwest Project was carried out during a two-year period and involved investigations of numerous political figures and contributors, documents

Attempts by The Associated Press to contact various IRS agents named in the documents were unsuccessful.

In a 1977 letter to attorneys representing one of the targets of the Southwest Project, then Commissioner of Internal Revenue Johnnie M. Walters said the probe 'probably" originated from the article, although he did not remember who suggested reading it.

Walters said he had been a subscriber to the magazine since the 1940s. Documents show the project was organized during meeting of IRS agents in Dallas on Feb. 15, 1972. The use of IRS investigations for political gain was one of the accusations lodged against President Nixon in an impeachment move in 1974. Article II of the Resolution of Impeachment accused the chief executive of using IRS tax audits to torment his political opponents.

In a memo, Albert Brisbin of the national IRS office said, "Our aim is to learn as much as we can about Texas political relationships, influence and possible Project," and Duval County. The documents show the "Sharp Project" referred to Sharp and alleged political payoffs connected with the financier. However, since the material was obtained under a Freedom of Information petition, the names of the contacts were blacked out.

Duval County, located in South Texas, was the target of a widespread federal and state investigation into corruption during the early 1970s. That probe resulted in numerous convictions against key leaders in the county and the dismantling of a decades-old political machine headed by George Parr. Parr, known as the "Duke of Duval," committed suicide after he was sentenced to five years in prison on an income tax evasion conviction. His nephew Archer Parr was convicted of perjury.

Archer Parr was not available for comment. But in December 1973, he alleged he was on a "Texas list" compiled by Republican leaders to diminish the ranks of prominent state

'Eventually, they'll get all of us." Archer Parr said then. "It's political. When the Republicans get in, we have this. It happened in the 1950s. The Republicans are in. It's a Republican vendetta."

U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions of San Antonio. who assisted in the prosecution of Archer Parr while serving as U.S. attorney, said he was not aware of "any project that would encompass that sort of thing (Southwest Project.)"

John Clark, who helped prosecute both Parrs, said he had heard of the Southwest

"I heard allegations about the Southwest Project ... And from time to time somebody has alleged that the Southwest Project had something to do with George Parr. I never heard of it from any government source," he Clark is now an associate justice of the Fourth Court of Appeals in San Antonio.

Documents show Southwest Project also had a category dubbed "miscellaneous areas," which included "a state senator involved in an isolated transaction, several representatives participating in nepotism, payroll padding and persons who give large political contributions which are not in line with their financial conditions per their tax returns.

By January 1973, the "state" power structure" was the most active area of the probe with 73 cases being considered by IRS agents.

Not only were IRS agents involved in Southwest Project. FBI agents were used to interview some witnesses. Another document said the IRS obtained information about a Galveston bank through the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Sharp, who didn't give any major testimony in the Sharpstown scandal after being granted immunity from prosecution, proved to be a frustration for the IRS

In a memo written on Sept: 17, 1973, an IRS agent said, This case is ready to close. However, Mr. Sharp has steadfastly refused to give any information pertaining to certain transactions. I am .. to find out if there is any recourse we might have in trying to get the immunity he received revoked since he will not cooperate in any way.

But the agents claimed to have learned much about alleged corruption in Texas government.

Jerry L. Stamps, intelligence supervisor for the project, listed the four main ways agents felt political payoffs had been made during the Sharpstown era: fees paid for services rendered by attorneys. political contributions not given for a specific purpose, good deals" in profitable stock and land transactions and loans made to politicians which were never repaid.

By May 1973, an IRS memo said the agents were looking into 446 tax returns involving 232 taxpayers. However, the documents did not reveal if any actual prosecutions were based on information garnered through the nvestigation.

The same memo said one major problem facing the nvestigation was "lack of interest and enthusiasm on, the part of some agents to dig into political cases."

In another report, an agent was quoted as saying he did not feel the project "was his audit function" and a supervisor bemoaned the 'reluctance of three special agents" to make inquiries concerning the probe.

The project was closed, according to the documents, after two years in February 1974 with the following observation by Jim R. Cheatham, listed as group manager of the investigation

The Hill may need a 'housecleaning'

Capitol Hill has never been immune to scandal, but the stories circulating about sex and drugs involving members of congress and teen - age pages are especially repugnant. The big question is whether the stories are true, and if so, who is involved.

The Justice Department and other law enforcement agencies so far have not been able to tie down the allegations to specific cases. Let's hope they are not wasting any time in their effort to clear the air. Charges of improper conduct with no names attached cast suspicion unfairly on the entire Congress and its staff.

A body of 435 representatives and 100 senators will have its quota of human failings, even if the people we elect to Congress are presumed to be a cut above average. The after hours peccadilloes of congressmen are one thing. Cocaine - dealing and homosexual acts with page boys in the Capitol and its offices are quite

The House ethics committee promises to look into this latest embarrassment. Both houses of Congress should take the occasion to review the arrangements for supervision of Capitol pages. The employment of youngsters to run errands for the House and Senate has a long and honorable tradition, but if the moral atmosphere in which they work is as bad as is now suspected. something's got to change.

Constitution of the United States, rather than the Declaration of Independence, as this country's basic document.

It is further surprising the number of people who regard the Declaration of Independence, and the Revolutionary War that followed, as rebellions against a foreign usurper and invader.

Since this nation recently observed the 206th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, it is a good time to set the two widely held misconceptions straight.

the first: The Declaration of Independence was signed "In Congress, July 4, 1776" as "The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America;' while the Constitution of the United states did not become effective until March 4, 1789, about 13 years later. The second misconception is equally faulty. George III of England, was no foreign interloper invading these shores, but the legal

> Thus the Declaration and following war were not rebellions against a foreign tyrant who had crossed the ocean and imposed his rule, but were a rebellion against a legally constituted government whose rule the colonists finally found to be intolerable. This comes through loud and clear in the second paragraph of the Declaration in which these words

Court takes step in defining goals

When Congress passed the Education for All Handicapped equalize the eudcational opportunity Children Act" in 1975 it began a revolution in public school systems throughout the country. New doors of educational opportunity were opened for children with problems keeping them out of the mainstream of education.

With the incentive of federal funds to cover part of the cost, many states embarked on new programs to provide schooling for the handicapped.

Now comes a decision from the U.S. Supreme Court that may well affect the degree of help that the parents of handicapped children can expect from local school districts under the terms of the federal law. The court ruled that a school district in New York is not required to provide a sign - language interpreter for a deaf child in a classroom with children who can hear in order to assure that the deaf child receives an education equal to that of the others.

The court seems to be saying that there is a limit to how far a school of handicapped children and those without handicaps. What Congress intended, wrote Justice William H. Rehnquist, is that each child have "a basic floor of opportunity.'

That is not unreasonable, but having said as much, the Supreme Court opens the way for uncertainty in applying its standard to specific cases. In San Diego, Calif., for instance, a legal quarrel has developed over the shoool district's obligation in the case of an emotionally - disturbed cild who appears to need treatment at home in order to function well at school.

The Supreme Court decision should not be taken as a retreat from goals of the 1975 Act, which remedied a sad deficiency in public education. But the court has taken what may be only a first step in defining those goals more clearly. Such definition is eded to keep the cost of educating the handicapped from overwhelming school district budgets.

They held a disarmament conference this summer and while a great many people came, to the surprise of none it came to nothing.

The United Nations General Assembly concluded five weeks of talk about the need to reduce world armaments, particularly of the nuclear variety, with an admission that it was powerless to do anything

It is questionable whether the exercise can even be written off as a good try. It was the work of the non - powers who constitute an overwhelming majority of U. N. membership but possess little themselves in the way of meaningful arms to discard.

The history of efforts to control national armaments through mutual agreement has few encouraging lessons. But what it does teach is that the powers that possess the weapons must be actively engaged.

That was not the case at the United Nations, in part because the larger powers were not inclined to debate their interests in a frum of 157 nembers most of which could contribute nothing but talk, and in larger part because the two members that most mattered were already engaged in discussions

Uncle Sam means well when he tries to stabilize marketplace economics but, almost invariably, for every inequity he seeks to correct he creates two more.

The farm price roller coaster is a wild ride, sometimes. But when Uncle Sam seeks to smooth out the dips .

Well, let me tell you about dairy farming.

City dudes have the illusion that cows give milk. A cow does not GIVE milk. Somebody has to go out to the barn and TAKE it away from her — twice a day. And for three generations now those somebodies have been working dark - to - dark for less than the national minimum wage.

Uncle Sam to the rescue! Uncle Sam decided to rescue dairy farmers with a price floor. Anytime farm milk was selling for less than a 'fair price" Government would pay that much for it - and buy it - and

Sounds logical, reasonable. Over the years that price has escalated to match the higher costs of dairy farming. Right now Government pays the diary farmer $13.10 a hundredweight for his surplus

And there is an increasing surplus. For on thing, this higher and higher 'guaranteed price' has encouraged diary farmers to feed more grain, produce more milk, even while per capita consumption of milk has been going down.

Now Uncle Sam has milk coming out of his ears — has piled up in storge 975 million pounds of dry milk, 365 million pounds of butter, 625 million pounds of

And Uncle Sam is continuing - with your money - to spend $5 million a day buying up dairy products.

Total cost to you — purchase price plus storage — was $46 million in 1979. It jumped to a billion dollars by 1980; this year it may top $2 billion.

Agriculture Secretary Block is fearful that the entire dairy price support program might collapse unless something is done now to restore balance.

What he suggests is that we give diary farmers a few months to cull their herds, voluntarily reduce production. If they do not, next January 1, instead of another increase in milk price supports, he would authorize a decrese - to $12 a hundredweight

He would limit any FHA loans which encourage increased production. He would meanwhile do everything possible to increase domestic and foreign markets for our milk.

It takes a courageous Agriculture secretary to recommend cutback. It will take gutsy lawmakers to acquiesce.

But the Dairy Price Support Program has become similar to Social Security. The esalation of costs built into the program for years ahead are creating an overburden which threatens the entire program with collapse.

In this respect, it is the antithesis of the U. The U. N. event invited attention, but couldn't overcome the obvious obstacle to attracting much - its essential futility. The history of U. S. Soviet arms talks suggests that progress is not: going to be swift, but that it is possible. Positive precedents are the nuclear test ban of 1963, the nuclear non - proliferation treaty of 1966, the strategic arms treaty — SALT I — of 1972 and the Vladivostok protocol of 1974, the basis of the unratified but observed SALT II.

After two decades, the two parties at least know each other and know that they can talk to each other and, given the right circumstances and will, rech agreements that both can live with. That, rather than the merit of the proposals actually on the tables at the moment, is the best thing the talks have going.

Can you remember all of those shots we had to receive prior to enrolling in school? Some children didn't know for sure what they meant. Perhaps it was like going through boot camp after enlisting in the army, preparing us for difficulties which lie ahead. It could have been a test to evaluate our maturity. If we cried, we weren't ready for school; if we grited our teeth and bore the pain, we could go to first grade. Most of us know what immunization purpose entailed, and we appreciate modern medicine. Sometimes we forget there is another essential quality in life which deserves equal attention.

One's concept of herself is that quality. All of our actions, feelings, behavior, and even our abilities are consistent with our self image. In order to be alive and creating beauty, it is important to have an adequate and realistic self image that you can live with daily. There is a special self within which is

Each of us has a "life instincy" which continues to work for health, happiness and all that makes for more life. Our responsibility is to let it perform as created - free. One's brain and nervous system constitute a goal - striving mechanism which operates automatically to achieve certain goals, "similar to a torpedo - steer it in the right direction, arrive on time." We have the ability to know where the target is, how to get there and accomplish our task — and — seek the target, discover its location and arrive. This built in guidance system protects a person from basic need deprivation.

Yet we are not on automatic alone. There are choices. It is important to desire life deeply, decide what you want unselfishly, what you don't want selectively and keep your mind on that which makes life meaningful. We are able to brings pain and anguish to our minds, we are equiped to personal success. change to fulfill our inner image. Sometimes a person's self image needs immunized

A necessary mental immunization is to be free of unhappiness, that which leads us to believe we are unworthy of feeling satisfied. In order to learn to immunize against this belief, happiness will be clearly understood and become a consistent part of daily living, by becoming less critical and more tolerant of those around us, especially their thoughts, feelings and mistakes, accept oneself for who I am, smile often, ignore discounts from other, be more cheerful, be friendly, believe your success is inevitable.

The experience of happiness helps us think clearer, perform better, feel healthier. Happiness is simply "a state of mind in which our thinking is pleasant a good share of the time." In being happy, it's happening now.

Another mental immunization plan for our self images is to be free from failure. Be too big a person to feel threatened. Be self reliant, responsible in attitude and less vulnerable to suggestion. Relax away emotional pains. Forgive yourself for poor performance, dishonesty within and a lack of trust elsewhere. The picture of failure is: insecurity, loneliness, uncertainty, resentments, emptiness and hopelessness. Failure is a mistaken belief that I'm an unworthy person. One's self image needs positive reassurance that he is worthwhile to himself and to those close by him.

Unfortunately, we cannot go to a mental health clinic and be immunized from unhappiness and failure because we are responsible for the way we feel about ourselves. Mental immunization comes from within, the feeling chamber of our

We each have six needs: to feel loved, to be secure, to be recognized, to actualize new experiences, be able to express ouselves creatively, to have self esteem and to know more of life. In order to be mentally healthy, believe in one's self and think creatively and do creative living. When we hunger for live life fully, our self images will be immunized against life deeply and seek out immunization from illnesses which destructive forces and open to build on the abilities we have for

How the new laws effect student benefits

Branch Manager

Pampa Social Security Office As a result of legislation enacted in mid - 1981, Social Security student benefits will be phased out for those attending post - secondary

When student benefits were first provided in 1965, the rationale was that young people, 18 to 22 years of age, who were full - time students were as much dependent on their parents for their support as were children under 18 years of age of disabled. It was assumed at the time that students lost a source of support when a parent retired, became disabled, or died. However, the benfits were not related to any educational expenses incurred, to school performance, or to financial

The situation today is markedly different from what it was 15 years ago. Since that time, a number of programs have been established to provide assistance to college students based on their own and their families' financial condition. Among the Federally funded edcational programs now available are the Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, supplemental educational Oportunity Grants, National Direct Student Loan program, and Guarnteed Student Loan Program. The change in the law will affect about 600,000 post - secondary school student - beneficiaries - 65 percent in 4 - year colleges and 23 percent in 2 - year colleges. The remainder attend technical, graduate,

The new law defines an educational institution as an elementary or secondary school. Benefits will not be paid to students who begin attending a post - secondary school after April 1982.

Benefits to students who were entitled as of August 1981 and were attending a post - secondary school before May 1982 will be phased out in order to minimize the financial impact on those whose plans for pursuing their education were based on receipt of Social Security benefits

Additional information about changes in the law regarding educational benefits can be obtained from any Social Security office.

QUESTION: My son is 18 and a high school student. He has been receiving student benefits since my husband died. Will he continue to receive them under the new

ANSWER: Benefits being paid to high school students will end at age 19, effective for months after July 1982.

QUESTION: My daughter became entitled to student benefits in September 1981. How long will she continue to receive these benefits? She is 20 years old and in college

ANSWER: If your daughter is a full - time college student, she can receive such benefits only through July 1982., Contact your Social Security office for more detailed information.

The Pampa Social Securtiy Branch office is located at 125 S. Gillespie and the telephone number is 669 - 3381. Most Social Security business can be taken care on the phone.

Dear Abby

Informed children won't be silent victims of abuse By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a psychiatrist who works closely with a child development specialist in Bangor, Me. As an example of the power for good that your column has, we want to share this story:

Two years ago, a teacher in a nearby town gave her class an assignment to bring in a news item for class discussion. Expecting current events and human interest stories, the teacher was surprised when a quiet 12-year-old approached her desk with a clipping from your column about a girl who was being sexually abused (raped), and said, "This is happening to me."

The teacher and the school's guidance person obtained our help in providing supportive counseling during the difficult process in which the child was placed in foster care because her mother "stood by" her husband (the child's stepfather) and called her daughter a "lying bitch."

You have many young readers. We urge you to encourage children to seek help from their school guidance people, doctors or community health centers (listed in the Yellow Pages) if they are being involved sexually by adults. You may use our names or sign us, "Concerned Professionals."
LAWRENCE C. SALVESEN, M.D. PATRICIA SMITH RANZONI, M.Ed

DEAR CONCERNED: The importance of your message cannot be overstated. Whenever I publish a letter from someone who has been sexually abused as a child, I am inundated with letters from readers saying that this has happened to them. (Many confide that they had lived with that ugly secret for as long as 40 and 50 years - too ashamed to tell anybody.) It is the responsibility of adults to teach children (3and 4-year-olds are not too young to understand) that it is not OK for anyone to touch their private parts, and if someone does, the child should tell a trusted adult immediately. Stress that even if the person who has made these advances has threatened to "kill" her (or him - little boys are molested, too) the child must tell anyway and be assured she will be protected. Some facts: Today in the U.S. there is a one-in-four chance that a child will be the victim of incest, child molestation or rape by the time he or she reaches 18 years of age. Statistics tell us that 80 percent of the offenders had themselves been physically or sexually abused as children.

All 50 states now have reporting statutes, which are laws that require professionals who work with children to notify public authorities of instances of suspected child abuse (including physical, emotional, sexual) and sometimes neglect.

Children seldom lie about sexual abuse. Child molesters are rarely strangers. They are usually related to or living near the child, and are known and trusted by the child.

A child needs to tell a trusted adult if he (or she) has been molested; if not believed, the child should tell another adult, and still another adult until believed. A child needs to be assured that if he (or she) has been molested, the shame and blame belong to the adult - the child is the victim!

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

There isn't a person reading this column today who has not been released from a job.

This includes the author. It's a feeling to describe.

The pain isn't anything you can treat or put your finger on. but it's there. Sorta like being kicked by a horse in a phone. booth and there's no place to lie down and be sick and you don't have a dime to call someone.

There's a constant sensation of despair like being informed you've just won the lottery and you flushed your ticket down the toilet, or losing Wimbledon by a shoestring fault. You hold an imaginary gun to your head and fire six rounds of guilt every three hours: BOOM! I should never have confided in Ralph that the boss's

DEAR POLLY — The handiest helper to have under your kitchen sink is a spray bottle filled with half vinegar and half water. The mixture has many uses: 1) After cleaning your oven with regular oven cleaner, generously spray the surface of the interior and the racks with the vinegar-water surrace of the interior and the racks with the vinegar-water mixture. Wipe up with a damp sponge. This will eliminate smoking and odor from oven cleaner residue when you first use your oven again. 2) After washing dishes or after cleaning the sink, clean the chrome fixtures with a quick spray of the mixture. Keeps it sparkling like new. 3) Use the vinegar-water mixture to clean windows. It's inexpensive and you'll need nothing else. — V.A.W.

Medal winners include the walking wounded

Elisa Spitz still blinks at bright lights 21/2 weeks after suffering a concussion during skating practice. Greg Louganis spends much of his time explaining the lingering effects of a should injury, and fellow diver Bruce Kimball is just back in competition after n as the result of an automobile accident.

Yet these walking wounded were among the medal winners Sunday at the National Sports Festival. Spitz, 19, of Short Hills, N.J., teamed with Scott Gregory to win the ice dancing gold medal for the second year in a row.

She fell during a practice session earlier this month and suffered a concussion. Her vision was still blurred as late as last week, and it was doubtful the pair would participate.

"But we took it on a day-to-day basis and Luddy said let's try it," Spitz said. referring to their coach, Ron Ludington. The lights, she said, annoyed her during the competition at the Market Square Arena, but after her medal performance, she grinned and said: "It felt great.

Spitz-Gregory, from the Wilmington (Del.) Skate Club, were unanimous first-place choices after both Saturday's compulsory firgures and Sunday's free dance. The silver medal went to Renee Roca and Donald Adair, of Flatrock, Mich., while Susan Wayne of Haverford, Pa., and Joseph Druar of Rosemont, Pa., took the bronze. Louganis, a veteran at 22, won his second gold of the five-day-old festival, taking the men's platform diving title. The Festival was his first major competition since injuring the shoulder 10 months ago, and his 22-8.

performance put him on the U.S. team for this week's world championships in Ecuador. He earlier won the 3-meter springboard. Also making the team was Kimball, 19, a close friend of Louganis, who finished second in the platform competition Sunday. Doctors removed his spleen following the crash last October, in which he also suffered a cut liver, and it's been just seven weeks since he returned to diving

"I'm happy that we're both back," said Louganis, who was questioned repeatedly about his recuperation and the effects the shoulder injury might have on his chances for a world title. His answer was always the same: "I can't think about the injury, because then I might hurt it again.' Kimball said there had been "a few times when I had my doubts" about coming back from the crash. "I'm a more determined human being," he said. "If anything, it's made me a more determined person. It hasn't made me a more determined diver. I've learned there are more important things." Sunday was the busiest day of the 11-day-long Festival, being held this year for the fourth time, with competition in 23 of the 33 sports. And it completed a weekend in which 27 Festival records were smashed.

The most spectacular record-breaker was Carl Lewis, who leaped 28 feet, 9 inches in the long jump Saturday night. It was the second-longest jump ever and the longest legal leap at sea

Racing pigeons keeps Carolina man bus

EDEN, N.C. (AP) - A flock of Claude Turner's homing pigeons sailed above the back yard, sometimes sweeping way out so that they skimmed the treetops and then, swooping in close, barely missing the tops of the low sheds.

Sometimes they fly like that for hours, Turner says, nodding his head in the direction of the birds. And it's that type of flying that keeps the birds in shape for Turner's unusual hobby — pigeon racing.

Turner, 50, has been raising homing pigeons for about five years in the back yard of his home in Eden's Draper section. He has been racing the birds for the past three years

He says he has about 200 Racing Homers - the only kind of pigeon he raises.

Turner, who works in the Morehead Memorial Hospital's maintenance department, and three other members of the Martinsville and Henry County (Va.) Pigeon Club, race their birds against each other, those in other pigeon racing clubs, and the clock.

There are two pigeon racing seasons: one for young birds - birds under 1 year old - and one for older birds. Old bird season starts in March and usually ends in June. Young bird season starts in September and runs into November

Members send their birds on eight to 10 races per season, Turner notes. Each owner will send about 15 birds each time. Most races take place on Sunday but longer races will extend from Saturday to Pigeon racing is no easy hobby. A member must measure the exact distance from his pigeon loft to the center of the road in front of his house. Then, using airline survey charts, the distance, down to the exact yard, is determined from his house to each point the pigeons will be flying from in the season's races.

Before races begin, club members hire a driver who loads their birds, sometimes along with several other clubs' birds, into an open-sided trailer and takes the pigeons to the point from where they are to race. Turner says.

After the birds have been turned loose at the specified point, bird owners wait at their homes for their first bird to arrive.

As soon as the first bird arrives, the owner removes a rubber band from the bird's leg that was attached prior to the race and puts it into a special timer that stamps the arrival time on the band. The timer then is sealed and cannot be opened without risk of disqualification before all members gather to determine the winner.

Club members meet after the race at the president's house, where all the clocks are opened. The winning pigeon is the bird with the best average speed, which is determined by dividing the number of miles by the number of hours it took the bird to make the trip.

During racing season, owners race their birds every week in races under 300 miles. Anytime a race is more than 300 miles, owners let birds rest up for two weeks before sending them out again. "Sending one over 300 miles is right hard of bird," Turner points out. Birds often fly eight hours without stopping and average speeds of 50 miles per hour, he says.

The secret of homing pigeons' knack for alw returning to their owner is simple.

"Wherever a homing pigeon is raised is where will stay," Turner says.

A Racing Homer's training starts early. Who bird is six to seven days old, his leg is banded wi metal ring that tells the date of his birth, number and the name of the owner's pigeon club

When birds are two to three months old, own start training them for short distances by tak them three to four miles away and having them back home. This distance is steadily increased u the bird can make it home from 50 to 75 miles aw Then he is ready to race. Turner says.

At the start of the racing season, races fr closer points are scheduled first so that birds use those places as reference points on longer trij Even though homing pigeons are known for th ability to find their way back to their owners. possibility of losing birds during trips is real.

'You really don't want to lose your birds, bu training them you will lose some," Turner says. Finding good birds that will stay with the own and race year after year is difficult.

"You have to raise maybe 100 birds to get f good ones out - just like people," Turner muses.

Jackson right at home with California

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

No matter where he is, Reggie Jackson feels right at home — as long as he's in first

With the California Angels 3,000 miles from home, beating the Yankees 6-4 in New York Sunday, Reggie and his teammates remained two games ahead of second-place Kansas City in the American League West.

'I've always been there." he said when someone mentioned his new club was in first place. "When I was with Oakland. I was in first place. When I was with the Yankees. I was in first. And ain't nothin' unusual about

But what about the new collection of stars Yankees boss George Steinbrenner has assembled — a fifth-place team - that didn't attract a record crowd until Reggie returned?

"I don't want to say anything," Jackson replied diplomatically. "I don't want to get involved in 'Reggie said this,' or 'Reggie said that.

And with Reggie back in New York for three games, the Yankees rang up a profitable weekend. No.44 attracted a paid attendance of 149,792, the most for any three-game series in the major leagues this year, the Yankees said.

"I want a thank-vou note from George," he said with a

Reggie owes the Yanks' pitchers a note of thanks. In 39 at-bats against them. Jackson garnered 15 hits — a .385 average — with five home runs and eight runs batted in.

In the rest of the AL, Boston beat Minnesota 5-0; Kansas City shaded Milwaukee 7-5; Chicago tripped Toronto 5-3, Baltimore beat Oakland 6-2. Cleveland downed Seattle 5-3 and, in a doubleheader. Detroit swept Texas 7-2 and Mickey Mahler got his fist AL win.

Pirates' Candelaria 4-hits Braves

AP Sports Writer

By KEN-RAPPOPORT

For several years now, John Candelaria of the Pittsburgh Pirates has been trying to live up to his masterful 1977 season.

He hasn't come close to that 20-5 record and National League-leading 2.34 earned run average - but Sunday at least, he looked like the same kind of pitcher 'That's as great as he can pitch," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner after the skinny left-hander hurled a four-hitter to lead the Pirates to an 8-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves. "He was in command all the way. "I think John Candelaria is one of the best pitchers in baseball," Tanner added. "I've thought that ever since I've been here. Since 1977, though, Candelaria has posted mediocre records of 12-11, 14-9, 11-14 and 2-2 last season, when he suffered an arm injury which knocked him out of action for most of the year. The New York-born southpaw has lost much of the velocity from his once-powerful fastball but still showed Sunday that his control was on target. "My location was good," said Candelaria, 7-4, who hurled his first complete game in two years and fired his first shutout since April 1978. "But I didn't have a good fastball. I'm a control pitcher. I don't have the strength in my arm yet." Candelaria's latest performance was helped by the Pirates defense, which turned over three double plays. The only other runner was picked off base so Candelaria pitched to the minimum Candelaria, who has given up only two earned runs in his last four starts, get the only run he needed in the second inning when Dave Parker tripled home a run. Pittsburgh blew the game open with a five-run spurt in the seventh inning, including a home run by Steve Nicosia.

Meanwhile, the Braves left for home still holding the best record in baseball but glad to have seen the last of the

George Hendrick's two-out double in the eighth inning scored Keith Hernandez from first base with the winning run as St. Louis nipped Houston. Hendrick's hit came off Don Sutton, 9-7, after the Astros had earned a 3-3 tie in the top of the eighth on Art Howe's RBI single Bruce Sutter, 7-5, the fourth St. Louis hurler, got the victory with 12-3 innings

Phillies 1, Dodgers 0

Steve Carlton pitched a five-hitter for his 50th career shutout as Philadelphia beat Los Angeles. The victory, which enablebdo remain in a virtual tie with St. Louis in the NL East, was Carlton's first in Los Angeles in 10 years. The last time he won in Dodger Stadium was

July 23, 1972. Manny Trillo, who tied a National League record for most consecutive errorless games, drove in the game's only run with a second-inning single off Jerry Reuss, 10-8. Bill Robinson, aboard on a fielder's choice, stole second and came home on Trillo's base Trillo played his 85th consecutive errorless game to tie an NL season record for second basemen set in 1970 by the New York Mets' Ken Boswell. Trillo has committed only one error this year, on a throw he made on the first ball he handled this season.

Giants 3, Expos 2 Chili Davis and Jack Clark belted run-scoring singles in the eighth inning. and San Francisco erupted for three unearned runs to stun Montreal.

Montreal's Scott Sanderson, 6-9; entered the eighth with a 1-0 lead and a three-hitter but was lifted in the midst of the Giants' game-breaking rally. Winner Rich Gale, 5-9, fell behind 1-0 in the second on Frank Taveras' sacrifice fly

Greg Minton took over in the ninth after Gale left the game for a; pinch-hitter and was touched for a leadoff homer by Andre Dawson, his 13th, concluding the scoring.

Padres 3, Mets 2 Tony Gwynn's RBI single in the 10th inning led San Diego over New York With one out, Tim Flannery drew walk off Neil Allen, 3-6. Pittman ran for Flannery and took third on Broderick Perkins' single. Allen then intentionally walked Gene Richards before Gwynn delivered his game-winning hit. Luis DeLeon, 4-3, got the victory with three innings in relief of John Montefusco. The Mets had gone ahead 2-1 in the top of the ninth on Mookie Wilson's home run before the Padres tied it in the bottom of the inning on Ruppert Jones' RBI single

Reds 2, Cubs 1 Alex Trevino whacked a pair of hits and drove in a run, and Bruce Berenyi fired a five-hitter to pace Cincinnati over Chicago

Trevino drove in Ron Oester with triple in the second inning that gave the Reds a 2-0 lead off Ferguson Jenkins 6-11.

Berenyi, 7-10, retired the first eight batters he faced before Jenkins singled in the third. Jenkins had two of the Cubs' hits, including an RBI single with two out in the fifth.

win was the eighth in nine races this for the filly and was worth $253,079 from otal purse of $728,085, the richest in the ar history of the race.

lden by jockey Bruce Pilkerton, Yankee broke sharply on the outside portion of ain-drenched track, then outdueled the ic-running filly Bartendress and tough Mr Master Bug with a devastating ng rush. artendress finished second, but was ualified and placed last because she ed right midway through the stretch and ded with Miss Azure Te Bug. The ualification moved Mr Master Bug up to nd and the pre-race favorite, Shaken Not red, was awarded third place.

was a costly mistake for Bartendress' er, Sam Henderson of Odessa, Texas. The ond place purse of $115,693 went to Mr ster Bug, with Bartendress collecting the h place money of $24,584.

t the wire Yankee Win edged out

Bartendress to boost her career earnings to $342,310. The filly is owned by Lewisville, Texas, horseman and veterinarian Jerry A. Rheudasil.

Yankee Win covered the 400 yards in 20:22 seconds. The victory was also Yankee Win's third straight following a disappointing seventh place finish in the Kansas Futurity six weeks ago at Ruidoso Downs.

Slightly overlooked despite her impressive credentials. Yankee Win paid $16.20, $5.80 and $3. Mr Master Bug returned $3.20 and $2.40 and Shaken Not Stirred returned $2.60. Shaken Not Stirred and Glo Billy Sims battled for the early lead before Yankee Win; Bartendress and Mr Master Bug took command of the chase in the final 200 yards. "She liked the mud and about 100 yards from the finish she was running second and moving well," said Pilkerton. Shaken Not Stirred, in losing for the first time in five races, earned $59,292 for owner Nerrel Bruney of Dennis, Texas, while No Tell Motel picked up $31,092 for the McDermott Ranch of Madisonville, Texas.

The order of finish after the top three included No Tell Motel, Speedy Hemp, Glo Billy Sims, Miss Squaw Hand, Favre Game. Miss Azure Te Bug and Bartendress.

The Rainbow Futurity is the second of the three rich races held annually at the small New Mexico track. The richest of the trio, the $2.5 million All-American Futurity, will be run on Labor Day.
