Recovery operations

Operations continued Sunday into the recovery of bodies crushed beneath the rubble following Friday's Iraqi air attack on Hamadan, Iran. According to reports from Iraq 8,300 Iranian troops were killed and a large number captured in fighting over the past 24 hours. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran, Iraq war versions differ

By The Associated Press

Iraq claimed it killed, captured or expelled 100,000 Iranian troops for the second time since they crossed its border six days ago, but Iran claimed its legions regrouped inside Iraq after inflicting "crushing blows" on the Iraqis.

The official Iraqi News Agency said Sunday that 2,300 Iranians were killed and a large number were captured in fighting during the previous 24 hours near Basra, Iraq's second largest city 15 miles from the southwest Iranian border. The agency said surviving Iranian invaders stampeded in panic for home.

Two days after Iran's forces invaded on Tuesday, the Iraqis also claimed they had routed them. Iraq later conceded fighting still raged on its territory but contended its forces were driving the Iranians back.

Iraq claimed Sunday it crushed the invaders after luring them into an ambush and counter-attacking fiercely with ground troops and helicopter gunships.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said Sunday night that Iranian forces were consolidating positions inside Iraq after inflicting "crushing blows," killing or wounding 850 troops and destroying 116 tanks in "mopping-up operations."

Both nations routinely ban foreign correspondents from the front, making it impossible to verify rival claims. But Iraq let several overseas journalists tour the area near Basra on Sunday, and they reported seeing Iranian corpses, 800 prisoners and 20 captured tanks as evidence of an Iraqi victory.

A war bulletin carried by Iran's official news agency Sunday night said heavy fighting raged at the border town of Qasr-i-Shirin, recently retaken by Iran after Iraq announced withdrawal of its forces from Iranian territory last month. Iraq's communiques made no mention of this fighting but claimed Iraqi forces were striking the "remnants of the retreating Iranian forces."

After driving Iraqi forces out of southwest Iran, the Iranian forces broke a lull in the 22-month-old war on Tuesday by hurling troops and tanks at least six miles into Iraq.

plan to involve Kissinger in Middle East peace efforts.

Reagan and Shultz will meet at the White House Tuesday with Prince Saud al Faisal, foreign minister of Saudi Arabia, and Abdul Halim Khaddam, foreign minister of Syria.

Reagan was to confer later today with the National Security Council.

The administration has turned to the Arab world for help in finding a haven for the estimated 8,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas bottled up in west Beirut by Israel's invasion force.

While Reagan has offered to send American forces to Lebanon to aid in the evacuation of PLO fighters, no Arab country has offered the PLO refuge. In letters to the leaders of Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria, Reagan has asked for constructive ideas about the resettlement issue.

For their part, the Saudi and Syrian ministers plan to tell Reagan of their concern about Lebanon.

Lebanon radio said the Lebanese government expects Reagan to try to persuade Syria to take the guerrillas on a temporary basis, despite Syria's public insistence the PLO should remain in Lebanon.

Dutch radio quoted Khaddam, during a stopover in Amsterdam, as saying his country is willing to admit the PLO's leaders but won't shelter the 8,000 rank-and-file fighters.

Khaddam reiterated Syria's position that it was not in the PLO's best interest to leave Lebanon and said he would ask Reagan to "exert real pressure" on Israel to withdraw its troops. Dutch radio said.

Returning from a weekend at Camp David, Reagan said Sunday the administration had turned to Kissinger and other outside experts for their advice about the Middle East, which also is inflamed by the Iran-Iraq war.

"There have been no decisions or plans or anything of that kind," Reagan said, when asked if he would tap the former secretary of state for a special mission to the Middle East.

Secretary of State Shultz held a lengthy meeting Saturday with Kissinger. Reagan said Shultz and National Security Adviser William P. Clark had "asked a few people like that to come in and have a meeting and get their thoughts on what's going on."

Shultz, who was sworn in to office Friday, also met with Israeli Ambassador Moshe Arens and

Result of oil patch slowdown

Halliburton cuts force

By JEFF LANGLEY

The oil industry blues and slowdown knocked another 22 Pampans out of work, effective at midnight Saturday.

Halliburton Services cut 22 jobs here, due to a continued drop in drilling activity, company spokesmen said today.

Pampa District Manager Don Shepard said the layoffs were based on "pessimistic" company forecasts of drilling activity through the remainder of the year.

The company services new and existing wells, and any drop in drilling activity affects Halliburton Services operations, spokesmen said.

Servicing personnel were also cut in Perryton, Liberal, Kan.; Lamar, Colo.; and Clayton, N.M., Shepard said today. The total number of service employees cut is unknown, Wichita, Kan. Division Manager Homer Watson said. He said statistics from each location have not been totaled yet.

Shepard said the men cut here were informed of the lost jobs without notice Saturday.

"A decrease in drilling activity required a reduction in force. We had to trim the fat to get back to a profitable level of employment," Shepard said.

The district manager said the layoffs were based on "seniority, job performance and several other considerations."

Before the layoff, Halliburton Services employed 224 people here.

Shepard said the layoff does not affect company plans to build a new service facility in Pampa. The $3.9 million structure was nearly completed when it was wiped out by a tornado May 19th, but the company immediately began rebuilding the facility.

Shepard said the projected completion date for the new headquarters is sometime in December.

Watson said drilling activity is down about 25 percent from its all-time high last fall. He said most employees cut from servicing operations were "younger personnel" hired to meet peak demand.

He said it is unknown if Halliburton Services will cut more jobs, but said "We are encouraged things have bottomed out."

"We will continue to review activity at each location on a weekly basis," he said.

Watson blames slowing drilling activity on several factors, including the "high cost of money for investors and the so-called oil glut."

"These cumulative factors cause investors to take a wait-and-see attitude right now," he said.

However, Watson believes current oil stocks "have stabilized and are coming down a little."

The layoffs are the first for Halliburton Services since the industry slowdown, but the manufacturing division of Halliburton Corporation had already cut hundreds of jobs, including many at its facility in Amarillo.

The lost jobs at Halliburton here combine with nearly 200 job cuts at Pampa's Ingersoll-Rand Plant, a manufacturer of oil field equipment.

The local economy has also been jolted by a few job cuts at Serico, and Pampa's Celanese Chemical Company has announced as many as half of its more than 400 employees may be affected by labor cuts there.

Celanese has not announced layoffs yet, but is currently conducting a job study involving its total white-collar force.

Reagan, Marine band turning out for balanced budget rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — With personal help from President Reagan and the U.S. Marine Corps band on the steps of the Capitol, supporters of a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget say they will get the proposal through the Senate this week.

The politically-popular legislation, which appeared dead a few months ago, has been given new life in a congressional election year and will likely be sent to the states later this year for possible ratification as the 27th Amendment to the Constitution.

President Reagan was to make an unusual appearance at a rally today on the West Front of the Capitol to promote the amendment, which has 61 sponsors in the Senate and more than 200 in the House.

About 300 members of Congress were expected at the rally.

There is some opposition to the proposed amendment from those who say the economy and federal spending levels are too volatile to be controlled by a constitutional amendment. Others say the Constitution shouldn't be amended to conform to a currently popular economic theory.

The Senate opposition, which is expected to be brief but intense, will be led by Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the Democratic minority whip, and Charles McC Mathias Jr., R-Md., who has proposed a weaker alternative to the amendment.

Cranston, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," said appearing on the balanced budget amendment would require drastic readjustments that would "paralyze the government" and bring on a "very deep depression."

Cranston said it was ironic that the president who supported the amendment also proposed record federal deficits.

Reagan took note of that kind of criticism Sunday on his return from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md. "There have been giant budgets for 21 of the last 22 years that I didn't have anything to do with," Reagan said. "Now, we're going to try to turn the situation around."

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, also appearing on "Meet the Press," blamed Congress for budget deficits. "Congress is the culprit," he said. "We have always looked at expenditures first before we determine how much revenue the government has to expend...and then we try to make the revenues fit. That's why the process appears to be a sham sometimes."

In an interview, Mathias said the amendment is an attempt by Reagan and Congress to divert attention from the record budget deficit of more than $100 billion for fiscal 1983.

The president's appearance on the steps of the Capitol and the overwhelming support given the amendment in Congress is evidence "that this is the year for simple answers to complex questions," Mathias said.

If Congress really wanted to attack the deficit, he said, the House and Senate should eliminate some of the tax cuts enacted last year as part of the president's economic program.

In the Democratic-controlled House, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has labeled the amendment "an easy out in an election year. It's a cowardly way, but it's an easy way."

Similarly opposed is Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, who is certain to block or defeat action in the committee.

But Republican Barber Conable, R-N.Y., is leading an end run effort around the committee. He has obtained 104 of 218 necessary signatures on a petition to get the amendment directly to the House floor.

To clear the Congress, the amendment must attract a two-thirds vote in the House and Senate, then be ratified by 38 of the state legislatures.

Under the amendment, Congress would be required to match spending and taxes dollar for dollar for the annual federal budget unless 60 percent of the House and Senate approved exceptions for specific government programs.

Was D.A. right in accepting plea bargain with L.L. Jones?

Q and A

RITA SCHINDLER, schoolteacher, Pampa:
"I think so. I think she is truly remorseful and will be living with this guilt for the rest of her lifetime. Living with the guilt is punishment enough."

BILL FRY, retired, Pampa:
"If she hadn't been a woman, she wouldn't have got off that light. That's for sure. It tells me one thing... the D.A.'s office has a case load they have to dispose of."

LAVETA MILLER, laundry assistant, Pampa:
"I don't know why he would do that (plea bargain), unless she had children at home. That's the only reason I could think of. Unless he was paid off to let her go."

MARK KREBS, merchandising manager, Pampa:
"The D.A. shouldn't have. That is a cop-out on justice. What's to keep her from going to some other company and doing it again? Does this mean I'm free to do something like this, too?"

TONIA PORCHE, housewife, Pampa:
"I think letting her go was wrong. I think she should feel lucky she didn't get sentenced to prison. The whole thing was wrong."

(Ed. note: Leta Louise Jones faced attempted murder charges for poisoning the coffee of seven of her co-workers at Cabot Carbon Black. On the day she was to go to trial, the assistant district attorney agreed to let her plead guilty to assault, a lesser charge. She was fined and placed on probation.)

Taking the red tape out of taxes

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

It sounds too good to be true: A simple income tax system with lower rates for most people and more money for the U.S. Treasury.

It probably IS too good to be true. But that hasn't stopped the politicians from talking about some kind of flat-rate tax system and hearings on the subject have been scheduled in September.

The idea behind a flat-rate tax is neither new nor complicated. Supporters argue that lower tax rates, combined with fewer deductions, exemptions and loopholes, would make the system fairer. A fairer system, they say, would give people less incentive to cheat. And that would boost tax collections, since the Internal Revenue System now estimates that it loses about $95 billion a year in taxes on income that goes into the "underground" economy — income that generally is earned but never reported.

In its purest form, a flat-rate tax system would set a basic rate for all income over a relatively modest level. There would be no deductions or credits. No special tax treatment of certain types of income like capital gains. No depreciation schedules. No exempted income, meaning many people would have to report the value of things like employer-paid health insurance or Social Security benefits.

That kind of system, however, is highly unlikely. "Nobody is talking absolute flat rate," said Elsie Waters, director of research for the Tax Foundation, Inc., a non-profit, non-partisan research group in Washington, D.C.

Figuring out where you stand under the different proposals is difficult, because most are still in the planning stages.

British rail service resumes

LONDON (AP) — Rail service in Britain began returning to normal today after a 15-day-old strike by locomotive engineers collapsed because other unions would not support them.

But up to a million employees in National Health Service hospitals started a three-day strike over a pay claim, and security scandals threatened to undermine Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's increased public support due to victory in the Falkland Islands and her successful stand against the rail strikers.

"We don't expect all the drivers to turn up today," said a spokesman for the state-run British Rail, "because the ending of the strike on Sunday gave their union very little time to tell the members to go back to work. Hopefully, we shall be running most trains, but there are bound to be delays and cancellations."

The 24,000-member engineers union called off its strike against new work schedules when leaders of the 11.6 million-member Trades Union Congress — Britain's equivalent of the AFL-CIO — intervened with a compromise proposal and told the strikers other unions would not support them.

The other unions abandoned the engineers after British Rail chairman Sir Peter Parker threatened to shut down the 11,000-mile network by Wednesday, throwing more than 200,000 other railroad workers on the streets, if the strike continued.

Mrs. Thatcher refused to intervene in the dispute, and newspapers backing the government hailed the end of the strike as a victory for her.

The strikers in the 2,500 state-run hospitals included nurses, sterilizing staff, catering workers, porters, cleaners, laundryworkers and other non-medical personnel. Doctors stayed on the job, and the army and the police were on standby to fill in if ambulance services break down. All surgery except emergency operations was postponed.

The eight striking unions demanded a 12 percent increase in weekly wages ranging from $106 for cleaners to $153 for staff nurses. The government offered 7.5 percent to nurses and 6 percent to other workers in line with its anti-inflation strategy of holding raises in the public sector to 6 percent.

The health workers have been staging sporadic local actions since a national one-day strike May 19 and are threatening stronger action.

Besides the health strike, Mrs. Thatcher must also deal with scandals involving a vagabond who evaded guards and crept into Queen Elizabeth II's bedroom, and allegations of espionage at a top-secret communications center.

Michael Fagan, a 31-year-old homeless father of four, was scheduled to appear today at Bow Street magistrate's court, accused of entering Buckingham Palace June 7 and stealing a half bottle of wine.

Smoking cure has success, failure

NEVADA, Iowa (AP) — Two months ago, Donna Stoeffler was among 450 people who walked out of a mass hypnosis session and tossed their cigarettes into a fire, vowing never to smoke again.

Ms. Stoeffler quit for about three weeks before breaking down after "kind of a rough weekend," but the organizers of the "Great Nevada Smokeout" say more than one-third of the participants are still off cigarettes.

"I think this overall effect is extremely good," said hypnotist Greg States. "I would have liked a little higher number, but I'm pleased that more than one-third were able to completely quit smoking."

About 10 percent of this town's residents turned out for the session May 6. States, 31, runs professional hypnosis clinics in Des Moines to help smokers kick the habit and said the experiment was his first try at mass hypnosis.

Follow-up checks showed that 34 percent of the people who attended the session have given up cigarettes completely — much higher than the 20 percent to 25 percent success rates of other programs, he said.

Later in May, States conducted a similar experiment in Creston with 250 people. He claimed an even better success rate there, 43 percent.

Among those who kicked the habit completely in Nevada was Betty McKim, who said that saying goodbye to cigarettes was "sort of like giving up a special friend."

Many others quit for a while, then started again but have reduced their smoking, States said.

"Some people have cut from three packs a day to one or two cigarettes a day," he said. "We're real pleased with that."

States said the purpose of the smokeout was to gather data about the effectiveness of a single hypnosis session, and learn why some people didn't quit for good.

"We're going to really plunge into when they started again, how long they lasted, what caused them to start again," he said.

In the planning stages, States said, is another mass hypnosis session, this time with a followup session for those who need another boost.

"The goal of all this is it's going to be put in a manual," for others to use in helping people quit smoking, he said.

Nuclear-related exports to Argentina approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has reversed a Carter administration nuclear policy by authorizing the export of technology crucial to Argentina's aim of nuclear independence. The Washington Post said today.

The move was approved in secret by Energy Secretary James B. Edwards last year after an interdepartmental review, the Post said. It seriously undercut a longtime U.S. effort to pressure Argentina, which is led by a military government, to put all its nuclear program under international safeguards, the newspaper reported.

The administration has said Carter administration policies were too strict and that the United States needs to re-establish itself as a leading nuclear exporter in order to exercise influence over other countries' nuclear programs.

Organized search for flood victims suspended

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP) — Authorities have suspended the organized search for three people missing and presumed dead in the surge of water from a ruptured earthen dam in Rocky Mountain National Park.

"We now believe the bodies were swept out of the park, probably somewhere between the park boundaries and the town of Estes Park," about three miles away, park spokesman Mike Smithson said Sunday.

The dam broke Thursday morning, sending a surge of water down two river valleys and dumping a layer of silt along the main street of this resort community. The body of one camper was recovered.

Meanwhile, state officials drafted a request to President Reagan seeking disaster aid.

Pat Byrne, director of the state Division of Disaster Emergency Services, said a joint assessment by state and federal officials showed about $10 million in uninsured damage for businesses and individuals, and $7 million in damage to publicly owned lands and utilities.

"That doesn't count the cost to replace the Lawn Lake Dam... or what needs to be done to clean up Estes Lake or strengthening its dam," Byrne said.

Officials inside and outside the park said the search would not resume until new evidence surfaces.

"The river runoff is too high for searchers to go into the river," said Estes Park Police Chief Bob Ault. "About all they could do was walk up and down the river and look."

State will seek 23 percent teacher pay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Education and education commissioner Raymon Bynum will ask the 1983 Legislature for a 23 percent pay raise for teachers.

The proposed raise over two years is part of the $9.6 billion education budget approved by the board. It is $2 billion higher than the current two-year budget.

If the Legislature, which approved a 26 percent pay increase in 1981, OKs the raise, the average salary for Texas teachers will pass the national average for elementary and secondary teachers. The national average within the next two years is expected to be slightly more than $19,000.

"I really think we'll hit the national average next year and we'll go ahead of it," Bynum said.

He also said he is "convinced that we've got to increase salaries for beginning teachers."

The body of Steven See, 21, of Hilbert, Wis., was found Friday in Horseshoe Park, partly buried in debris. Still missing were Bridget Dorris, 20, of Arlington, Texas; Terry William Coates, 36, of Peoria, Ill., and an unidentified male in his mid-30s.

The victims were believed to have been swept downriver as they rushed to retrieve their gear after water poured from the ruptured dam.

The cause of the dam break has not been determined, but state engineers said a preliminary inspection indicated that water had been seeping through the structure for some time.

Explosion rocks chemical plant

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — An explosion and fire at a small petroleum refinery on the fringes of this Southeast Texas city injured at least 14 people. Forced the partial evacuation of a nursing home and sent up a thick plume of billowing black smoke.

Firefighters still were battling the blaze early today at the Chemical Exchange Industries plant, after the explosion ripped through the plant Sunday evening.

The extent of the injuries was not known. Baytown assistant city manager Larry Patterson said.

"We're still trying to determine what chemicals are involved here," Patterson said. He said they were not toxic.

"We now have determined only one tank was involved. We have determined that whatever is burning is diesel-based. It's under control so we're not worried," he said.

The explosion took place at 6:29 p.m., said Leila Bailey, a dispatcher with the Baytown Fire Department.

The blast blew out the windows of the St. James House, a nursing home, according to administrator Elizabeth Alexander. She said one man received four stitches after being hit by a shard of flying glass.

About 20 of the St. James' 86 patients were moved from the home after the explosion, Ms. Alexander said.

"We're evacuating because most of our rooms' windows have been blown out. As the crowd flies, we're about a quarter of a mile from the plant," she said.

The explosion also caused some damage to the windows of area businesses and troopers were dispatched to the scene to prevent looting and help route traffic, according to Larry Todd of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Patterson said the industrial section where the plant is located is bordered by a residential area, but said further evacuations would not be necessary.

Earlier, officials had feared a nearby ammonia tank would explode before they got the fire under control.

Patterson said four of the injured were airlifted to two hospitals by Life Flight, a helicopter rescue service affiliated with Hermann Hospital in Houston.

Life Flight communications supervisor Flora Walker said two people were taken to Hermann Hospital in Houston and two to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston for treatment of burns.

Ms. Walker said she did not know the extent of the burns. She said six other people also were admitted to Hermann.

A spokesman at John Sealy, who asked not to be identified, said both people admitted there were in critical condition.

Fireman burned in raging apartment fire

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — An Amarillo fireman remained in critical condition early today after a raging fire was sparked in the basement of an apartment building and roared up the stairs in a huge fireball.

The blaze engulfed Kenneth Caldwell, 29, and melted his protective clothing to his body, said district Fire Chief Buddy Wilkerson.

"It just roared up the stairs and engulfed him (Caldwell)," he said. "The heat was so intense it melted his helmet and his breathing mask, and his protective coat was scorched to his body."

"He had on the right protective clothing, but the fire was so intense it just couldn't handle it," Wilkerson said. "His helmet and everything was just a molten mass. You couldn't even recognize it as being a helmet."

Caldwell, who had been a firefighter less than two years, suffered second- and third-degree burns over 70 percent to 80 percent of his body, according to Northwest Texas Hospital nursing supervisor Linda Rollands.

He was transferred to the burn center at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, she said.

apartments today to continue investigating the cause of the Sunday blaze

About 21 residents of the 56-year-old, 24-unit Badger Apartments building were evacuated because of the raging, five-alarm fire, but no other serious injuries were reported, Wilkerson said.

Firefighters received the alarm about 3:24 a.m. Sunday, Wilkerson said, and the fire appeared to be a small, smoky blaze confined to the basement.

Caldwell went to the second floor to make sure residents had been safely evacuated and was standing by the stairs when the flames swept over him, the chief said.

Meat for hunters, disappointment for conservationists in Florida

THE EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP) — Hordes of hunters roaring through swamps on airboats and half-tracks killed more than 500 deer in the first day of a "mercy hunt," but animal protection groups fell far short of their goal to relocate 100 of the emaciated animals.

As night fell Sunday across the swampy Everglades, game wardens said hunters had shot and tagged 581 fawns, does and small bucks, while preservationists captured only 14 of the white-tailed deer.

The growl of distant thunder, the whine of airboats and the smell of broiling deer meat filled the roadside air as hunters returned from the sea of grass toting skinned and gutted animals. No arrests were made for violations of hunting rules, and there were no reports of injuries among the estimated 1,600 hunters.

Thigh-high water in the 10,000-acre swamp has covered grazing ground, and state game officials said the two-day hunt — aimed at killing 1,500 animals — is needed for the herd of 5,500 deer to avoid mass starvation.

"Good eating. Not bad for a low-down Bambi killer," declared Dick Kempton, a 37-year-old roofer from Homestead taking a swig of beer after game wardens at mile marker 72 hoisted a 71-pound doe he had felled onto a butcher's scale and read its weight aloud.

Wildlife preservationists — led by The Wildlife Fund's Cleveland Amory and the National Wildlife Rescue Team's Jack Kassewitz — rallied three miles to the east.

Under an agreement with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, protectionist groups have until noon Tuesday to capture 100 deer. If they fail, commission executive director Col. Robert Brantly said he will open another tract to hunters to reduce the size of the herd by another 750.

By 7 p.m., Amory and Kassewitz's 20 airboats were 86 deer short of their goal.

"Numbers aren't what's important," said Kassewitz, holding down a bucking 2-year-old doe in a van. "Saving animals is what's important. If we get one out, we've shown the world it can be done."

The captured animals were hooded, given a sedative and driven to an animal shelter or to Lion Country Safari park near West Palm Beach.

Two unidentified hunters rescued a 25-pound fawn from an isolated clump of trees, then turned it over to game officials for relocation.

"Even hunters have hearts," said game commission Lt. Bill Hampton.

The hunt had been stayed by U.S. District Judge Eugene Spellman at the request of animal protection groups, but he decided Saturday to let it proceed. The protection groups had argued that the deer could be relocated, but proponents of the hunt said previous efforts of that kind had not been very successful.

Hunters were ordered to gun for the weakest, smallest deer, increasing the survival chances of larger animals.

Friends won't reveal identity of driver

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police say their search for a man who killed four people with his pickup truck has been stymied by a lack of cooperation from two people injured during the hit-and-run and several other witnesses who apparently know the man.

San Antonio Homicide Det. Richard Urbanek said several people who police believe know the man will not reveal his name.

The search for the driver of the speeding blue-and-white truck that plowed twice into a crowd of people outside a bar continued Sunday with little success, Urbanek said.

"We just don't have anything new," he said.

Witnesses said the truck rammed a car, backed up and struck one of the victims, then went forward, made a U-turn and plowed through the people to ram the car a second time.

Four people were killed and two were injured in the incident early Saturday morning, Urbanek said police believe the attack was intentional.

Traffic officer E. Kelly, who initially worked on the investigation, said officials were hoping citizens would offer reward money for information leading to the arrest of the man.

"A lot of times the reward money does play an important part in the investigation," Kelly said. "If it drags on, and we're sort of to a dead-end, that's what we'd need to bring him out."

One of the four killed, Linda Coronado, 16, "pushed her date out of the way" before the truck hit her, Urbanek said.

The dead were identified as Mariano Morales, 29, Arturo Cordova, 25, and his brother Rudy Cordova, 17, and Ms. Coronado. All four were from San Antonio.

One man injured, identified as Juan Rios, was treated and released from a hospital. The second injured man, Danny Oyervides, 20, was admitted to Medical Center Hospital and later left against medical advice, a hospital spokesman said.

River waters fooled rafters, two missing

CARROLLTON, Texas (AP) — Dallas Park Police planned to resume dragging the Trinity River at daybreak today in a search for two men caught in swift under-currents Saturday when riding over a spillway on a makeshift raft.

Officials searching the river Sunday said the men are presumed to have drowned in the 50-foot-deep water.

The missing men were identified as Harold Kirk Paquette, 23, of Grapevine, Texas, and Robert William Nash, 20, of Dallas.

"We did some dragging, but the water is a little too swift," Patrolman L.D. Oliver of the Dallas Park Police said Sunday. "We're heading out at daybreak tomorrow."

Jim Burns was accompanying the two men over the spillway, but was thrown off the raft and managed to swim to shore.

He said the water flowing over the Carrollton dam at the Elm Fork of the Trinity in northwest Dallas County did not look turbulent.

"We only did it on the Styrofoam raft this one time," said Burns, sitting on the shore after the accident Saturday afternoon. "We thought it would be fun going over the waterfall. It didn't look very rough but it sucked us under."

Spring rains have swollen the river and caused dangerous conditions. The accident was the second of its kind this month and the third this year, officials said.

The two men missing originally were from Otter Lake, Mich., and moved to the Dallas area recently to look for jobs.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Good time to bring Israel aid to a halt

The fighting Israelis seem to have a rare formula at work for them. They have thousands of years of suffering in their background, clearly defined goals for the future, trained and hardened soldiers in service and much of the arsenal of the United States to back them up.

Every year, this country sends about $2 billion in arms to Israel. So, when fighting breaks out, you can be sure that the Israelis are well supplied with all of the implements of modern warfare.

The recent drive into Lebanon and the humiliating defeat of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) are ample evidence of the war machine that Israel has at hand.

Israel has grown tired of terrorist attacks. Now, it is able to spring back with guns ablaze even when a terrorist attack is minor.

"When someone steps on our foot, we chop off his head," said Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, chief of staff of the Israeli army. He was confirming reports of an Israeli buildup on the Lebanese border.

Then, an Israeli ambassador was shot in London. Israeli warplanes bombed Beirut and other Lebanese cities. Israeli Premier Menachem Begin said that the air raids were in retaliation for the shooting of the ambassador. Scores of men, women and children were killed. The PLO responded with rocket and artillery attacks across the border. One Israeli soldier was killed. And now the Israeli army has moved on to Beirut and has it surrounded. Thousands have died. The city of Sidon is a rubbish heap.

We recall the words of Secretary of State Alexander Haig in Chicago May 26: "Truly all of our ultimate hopes for peace depend in the end upon the achievement of mutual respect and friendly relations between Arab and Israeli. A heavy responsibility will be borne by those who darken these hopes without regard for either Israel's long-term interest or legitimate Palestinian aspirations."

The Mideast for as long as man has recorded his actions has been a battleground. Today, nothing has changed. Israel has won the most recent battles but, as someone once observed, the next dreadful thing to a battle lost is a battle won.

Rights leaders mistaken

One can only wonder at the folly of such leading civil rights groups as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the National Urban League in turning their backs on Clarence M. Pendleton Jr., the first black chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Both organizations pointedly refused to invite Pendleton to their annual conventions. They simply didn't want to hear what he had to say. What they hope to achieve by this is a confounding mystery.

The reason for NAACP and Urban League rebuffs are easier to fathom. Pendleton has put his finger on it: "I'm not invited, because I'm not trying to fight that man (President Reagan)." So, as he says, he is denied a platform to express what he believes and to tell where he's coming from.

In an ironic uncivil way, black civil rights activists have shut off a dialogue with the White House at the very time they must need it.

It is extremely shortsighted, we think, for minority leaders to turn a deaf ear to ideas other than their own and to reject all except their ideological clones. In a time of tidal change from economic recession and federal cutbacks, a thoughtful civil rights dialogue is needed. The NAACP and the Urban League ought to be listening now as outworn social experiments are falling by the wayside and new paths are being explored toward greater economic opportunity.

Pendleton's denunciation of affirmative action for having "turned us (blacks) into a generation of non-risk takers" is being supported by a lot of intellectual horsepower. New horizons are being described by such eminent black economists as Professor Thomas Sowell, senior fellow at the Hoover Institution of Stanford University and a member of the president's Economic Advisory Council, and Walter Williams, professor of economics at George Mason University and policy adviser to President Reagan.

The point is that, in rejecting dialogue with black conservatives, civil right activists deny instruction to themselves as well as to their perceived antagonists. And, if knowing the truth is a prerequisite for freedom, they risk much by abandoning a diligent and sometimes painful search for the truth.

Reducing all of this to a more pragmatic plane, can't the NAACP, the Urban League, and other civil rights groups remember the adage about how sugar captures so much more in this life than vinegar?

Problem solving up to individuals

One question we become oh so weary of hearing is "What is government going to do about this, that or some other problem?" Government through history has been primarily a force for creating problems, such as senseless warfare and famine, rather than a force for solution.

When solutions do arrive for human problems, the agent is almost always an individual, acting on his own initiative, whose unhindered creativity finds new paths. Cures for once-deadly diseases and advances in agriculture to end hunger are cases in point.

Thus we salute the efforts of the Affiliated Inventors Foundation Inc., a non-profit group that serves as a clearinghouse for inventors who seek patents on their ideas. Patent searches, advice on feasibility and marketing help are services provided by the Colorado Springs, Colo., foundation.

A number of inventors are at work on problems. Two we know of are looking for ways to recycle trash into useful products. One has a process for turning old tires into mats, and the other turns old cans into furniture. The import of their work may not be earth-shaking, but it has significance as a contribution to the general movement toward recycling.

What to do with waste and litter is an issue of increasing importance, and various sides are proposing legislative remedy. But we count on drawing boards, not legislative hoppers, to be the source of real remedies.

A legislator may propose an aim, but it usually takes an engineer, an inventor or scientific pioneer to make it practical. Every human advance we see before us today once was no more than a glimmer of thought. Governments deal in the use of force, but force is useless to promote creation.

In olden days, if a man like flowers, people thought he was a pansy. Not any more.

Male flower lovers are coming out of the closet. It has to do with male-female liberation, I think and our de-emphasis on the macho image.

Many women no longer hesitate to send flowers to men, and men accept them with aplomb.

A woman who owns a flower shop told me there are numerous occasions for picking posies for men: when a woman is invited to his place for dinner; when she wants to say thanks for a memorable evening; when she wants to say she's sorry they quarreled.

Women also send bouquets or plants for a man's birthday, his promotion, or

Saying it with flowers

when he moves to a new apartment or new office. The perennial favorite, of course, is the long-stemmed red rose. But the silver rose (actually, it's a shiny mauve) is a close second.

"We sell 75 silver roses a week," the flower shop owner said.

A single rose costs about $2.50 and most women have it delivered for an additional $2.50.

She noted a sizable increase this year in women-to-men orders for Valentine's and Father's Day.

"Our big-seller Valentine," she said, "was a tube glass double bud vase with long-stemmed roses and a silver Mylar balloon tied on with a red ribbon."

Balloons read "Kiss Me" or "I love you." The arrangement cost $15.

Popular for Father's Day were stately, orange tiger lilies in a sleek black vase.

Other florists pointed out that the trend is not limited to holidays or special events. One wife sends her lawyer husband a bouquet a week for his desk at the office. Another woman sends her boyfriend a clutch of carnations, so he can break off one a day for his lapel.

Women, the florists agree, pick flowers for men with big blooms and bold colors—lilies, birds-of-paradise, exotic orchids and the South African iris called freesia.

They select arrangements with props, too: wine baskets, coffee mugs and earthen pots.

If this trend continues, I'd like to see women become really imaginative and want to "say it with flowers" and a flair. Here are a few ideas:

— To wish Happy Birthday to an early morning jogger, how about morning glories?

— For Father's Day: poppies.

— For the bridegroom: tu-lips.

— For the guy who can't wait: impatiens.

— When he wins the bike race, congratulate him with a cyclamen.

— When he loses the marathon, chide him with creeping phlox.

— If you're afraid the relationship is cooling, try forget-me-nots.

— If he hasn't called in weeks, send bleeding hearts.

— To celebrate his vasectomy, baby's tears.

— After his divorce, bachelor buttons.

— If the evening was "yeck," deliver a yucca.

Democracy, Mexican style

By DON GRAFF

Without having to go to the bother of counting votes, Mexico has elected a new president.

He is Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado. The Mexican electoral commission assures that while it may be awhile before all the ballots from the July 4 election are tabulated and the official results released, he is definitely the president-elect.

While the delay in the count occasioned some muted dissatisfaction among the opposition, there is no reason to question the commission's word. De la Madrid is the candidate of the governing Institutional Revolutionary party, which has won every election since 1929. His victory was considered sealed a year ago when he was personally selected by outgoing President Jose Lopez Portillo, the traditional Mexican nominating process that does away with all the bother of party-splitting rival candidacies and unruly conventions.

The obvious question at this point is why the Mexicans go to the bother of a campaign and election at all. The traditional answer is that the process allows Mexicans to get to know the man who will be their next leader. And in this election, it gave candidate de la Madrid, an economics with no experience in practical politics and whose selection was something of a surprise, an opportunity to get to know Mexicans outside the higher reaches of government.

The Mexican process is not one that would be recognized as having much to do with democracy as understood north of the Rio Grande. With a self-perpetuating elite submitting its decisions for assured ratification by an obedient public, superficially it would appear to have more in common with the empty rituals of soviet-style people's democracies.

It would be wrong, however, for that reason to dismiss the Mexican system as nothing democratic by North American and West European definitions.

The important points are that it is the product of Mexican conditions and that it has worked in those conditions for half a century, containing the social violence and political instability that characterized independent Mexico throughout the previous century and enabling the country to begin to develop a modern economy.

For all its obvious flaws, which include growing corruption at the top, Mexicans have considerably more to show for their one-party democracy than do the military juntas that are such an unrewarding Latin tradition, or for that matter most of the presidential-style republics. Cut from the American pattern, the latter's democratic institutions are usually more ritual than substance and all too often facades for one-man rule.

The Mexican system is at least Mexico's own. As such, it has to be adaptable to changing Mexican conditions if it is to survive.

That has been the real issue of this election.

While the governing party's victory was never in question, there was more opposition this time than ever before—a total of six other parties, five of them newly registered and distributed across the political spectrum with the Communist-dominated Unified Socialist Party at the extreme left.

The proliferation has been encouraged by the government to provide political channels for dissent in an increasingly sophisticated population. It also has the effect, the government's more skeptical critics add, of splitting the opposition vote.

Whatever the motivation, the size of that opposition vote and its distribution are of intense interest not only to Mexicans.

There are no easy times for Mexico. Economic development has brought economic problems. Growth has been uneven. Having had difficulty absorbing sudden new oil wealth, the country has recently been hit with sagging prices and world demand. It is heavily in debt to foreign bankers and getting in deeper to continue financing ambitious industrial projects.

All of which makes this election and the electoral commission's final count of the results much more than academic exercises in democracy, Mexican style.

Mexicans have a lot riding on the resilience of their political system and its ability to evolve to meet the needs of an increasingly complex society.

So do their neighbors.

To heck with the poor

By PAUL HARVEY

Historically in our nation poor people were looked down upon, even by themselves.

Grandparents now living remember well the expression, "Poor people have poor ways."

Compassion for the poor was manifest mostly by church-sponsored charity, by Christmas food baskets and by Salvation Army soup kitchens.

It was politicians of the '30s who, for altruistic or pragmatic motives, began to relate their campaigns to "the poor," to "helping poor people."

And there is a compassion characteristic of most Americans which soon elevated "charity" to a "national obligation."

From that day to this, there has been no safer political posture than charity for poor people.

The word "charity," to outdistance the stigma, became "welfare."

More recently the word "welfare" as supplanted by the word "entitlements." Poor people were "entitled," they decided, to certain special privileges—untaxable unemployment pay, food stamps, medical care, child support, education, low rent.

Only recently have I begun to notice a backlash—at first subtle, then vigorous—an escalation of resentment against the voluntary poor.

The first tenet of civilization has been "you don't kick a man when he's down."

Now there is an increasing chorus of dues-paying Americans suggesting that may be just what some people need.

And at the crescendo of this backlash I read an editorial in the Florida Suncoast News.

Suncoast News editor Charles Reese says, "To heck with the poor."

Let me synopsise what he writes: "We've been talking about the poor as though they were some special species of human with inherent virtues."

I have been poor and let me tell you there is no virtue in it.

Poor people are a liability. They don't invest in their country, they are parasites, consuming what others produce.

Some people are poor through no fault of their own; just bad luck. But some people are lazy, dishonest and irresponsible and deserve to be poor forever.

Every decent poor person I've ever known hoped fervently that his poverty was temporary. He certainly didn't go around bragging about it. His goal was to become rich.

Now we hear poor people complain because they can't go to college. The poor are not supposed to go to college just as the poor are not supposed to vacation on the Riviera—unless they work their way there.

If he can, great. If he can't, that's tough luck.

Where does any poor person get off claiming he has a "right" to things he can't pay for, or even a right to luck?

People who used to be ashamed of being poor are now arrogant about it; they're enjoying it; to heck with them!

Only when poverty is the miserable state it should be will all Americans again be motivated to get back to work—any work any wage.

Mr. Reese sounds tough, but he means "the professional poor" and my mail from a lot of people includes a rising chorus of similar complaints.

Parents' maneuvers win in battle of the mails

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Worried Mom in Yorba Linda, Calif.," asking how to get her son who's away in the service to write regularly, triggered some memories across two generations.

Early in 1942, my mother put me on the train at the old Union Station in St. Paul, Minn. She kissed me goodbye and handed me a stack of postcards — all addressed to her. "I'll expect to hear from you every day," she said. Of course, I formed the habit of writing a postcard every day, and just when I was about to run out, another batch would arrive. Many years later when I put my oldest son on a Marine Corps transport for Vietnam, I handed him a bundle of postcards and gave him the same speech my mother had given me. It worked for him, too.

Then my second son joined the Navy, and I tried the old postcard trick on him. Heaven knows what happened to them. We never received one postcard!

He's been gone for 10 years, and he never writes; he telephones every three months instead. He's called from the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Japan, Australia, wherever the Pacific Fleet takes him.

Some folks just don't like to write. Right?

JOHN W. KELLOGG

DEAR JOHN: Right!

DEAR ABBY: Know how I got my son to write when he was away in the service? I sent an urgent telegram to his commanding officer saying we had not heard from our son for so long we wanted to know if he was dead or alive.

We heard from our son shortly after, begging us never to do that again! We didn't have to — he became a fairly regular correspondent after that.

MA AND PA IN BUFFALO

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Worried Mom" that if she wants a letter from one of her kids to do what we did: Write a letter and add a P.S., "Enclosed is a check." (Then "forget" to enclose a check.)

Invariably you will get a letter immediately telling you that there was no check in the envelope.

MOTHER OF SIX IN PORT ANGELES, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: Here's one for "Worried Mom": When our son was in the Navy in the '60s, we, too, were worried sick because he never wrote. Finally I devised a letter to him as follows:

I am sick ( ).
I am well ( ).
I have been hurt ( ).
I had some time off and went to ( ).
I have not been away from the base, but ( ).
Etc.

I wrote a whole page of multiple choice statements and all he had to do was fill in the blanks.

He got such a big kick out of it he called us — from Alaska, and he's been calling ever since. Expensive, but satisfying.

months. Please use your command authority to make him (her) write to at least let us know if he (she) is all right."

I always used the same method in dealing with these delinquents. I would call them into my office and ask them to tell me something about their families. After hearing their words of praise and admiration, I would present the letter from the concerned parents and ask, "Don't you think they deserve better than this?"

The answers ranged from a young man's lame, "I don't have a pencil," to a young woman shedding tears all over the place and promising to write faithfully forever after.

My method must have worked because I can't remember ever having received more than one letter from the same parents.

The most memorable letter was received shortly before my retirement. My commander routinely handed me one of those "Please-tell-my-son-to-write" letters to take care of, and yes, it was from my mother!

RETIRED TOPKICK

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the grandmother signed "Had Enough," who wrote about the deplorable way her daughter was raising and feeding her children. You advised her to contact social service agencies — because her daughter and son-in-law were, in fact, abusing the children. I just want to urge her to please follow through on your advice.

I was one of six children. And while we were not beaten constantly, we were abused. We lived in filth, had improper food, poor clothing, and a mother who was present but uncaring. (Our father had left us.)

I often wanted to report my home situation to the authorities, but I was young and frightened, and didn't know what might happen to us if I did.

Twelve years (and two nervous breakdowns) later, I realized I'd been carrying the guilt of that impossible situation around with me ever since. I finally realized that a 13-year-old child couldn't be responsible for the situation. But what about the people who surrounded us and did nothing when they should have — especially my grandparents? They saw the negligence, and while professing to "love" us, did nothing. I see now that it wasn't love — and my anger has diminished both my love and respect for them.

So, Abby, please tell "Had Enough" even more emphatically to follow through on your advice. She'll be doing everyone in her daughter's family a favor.

FREE AT LAST IN DENVER

DEAR FREE: Fortunately, today almost every community has a hot line to report child abuse cases, and the children themselves are being taught to report any mistreatment they may suffer.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What Causes Back Pain?

Aside from headache, backache is America's most common health complaint.

Mr. Jones' car was bumped from behind. He suffers back pain. Mr. Miller lifted a heavy box at work. He suffers back pain. Mrs. Boswell is expecting a child. She suffers back pain.

Not all back problems are due to severe strains or dramatic accidents. There are times when a relatively innocent act such as stepping off a curbstone or lifting a pencil from the floor is sufficient cause for back pain. Unexpected, awkward and off-balance movements of any kind can cause back pain and sciatica. This is because the pain may be the symptom of a spinal disorder compounded by structural weakness.

Pains of mysterious origin may be caused by spinal insults. Sometimes the symptoms of the back problem appear immediately, allowing the victim to correlate cause and effect. However, sometimes days or even months pass before pain appears, causing the victim to seek treatment for conditions other than the causative spinal disorder.

Persistent or recurring aches in the lower back and limbs may suggest a possible lower spinal or pelvic problem. This often requires a structural correction of the cause in order to relieve the condition. Although drugs may hide the pain temporarily, the spine and sacroiliac must be aligned to its proper position for normal function.

If you suffer from back pain, it would be wise to consult a doctor of chiropractic. He has made a special study of conditions related to the sacroiliac, spine and nervous system. He seeks to not only locate the problem and give relief from symptoms, but also to correct the fundamental cause as well as offer preventive, rehabilitation, and maintenance counsel.

At Wit's End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

My husband came into the kitchen the other night, dipped his spoon into a bowl and said, "Ummm. Tastes terrific. What is it?"

I said, "Chicken, bacon bits, onions and kidneys."

"What do you call it?"

"The dog's dinner. We're having beans and franks. Geked wash up."

"Do I want to know what's in this bottle filled with brown fluid?"

"It's a new beverage for dogs who are 'sick of drinking just water.' It's flavored with beef."

"That's quite a jump for someone who drinks from a dog toilet," he said. "Besides, how do you know your dog is sick of drinking just water? Does he say, 'Yuuuck,' and spit it out?"

My husband had a point. We've never had a dog who sang, talked, wrote notes or communicated with us in any way.

"We just have to trust someone," I said.

And trust we have. During the last five or ten years, I've seen the selection of dog food grow from a couple bags of nuggets by the grass seed near the door to an entire aisle of options. On blind faith, I've lugged in cheese and beef pellets, dry food that turns sensuous in its own gravy, jerky snacks, liver - flavored cookies, bones that whiten their teeth and cans of gourmet dog food to combat boredom.

"Let me ask you a question," said my husband. "Has this dog ever gotten excited about any dog products touted on television?"

"You know the only time he reacts to anything on TV is when he goes to bed during PBS pledge week."

"He doesn't care," said my husband. "For all we know, he's probably a vegetarian and doesn't know how to tell us. We could throw him a raw potato every day and he'd be happy as a clam." He tilted the bottle of beef - flavored drink, took a sip and winced.

"What did you expect?" I sighed. "Gusto?"

"Whattya wanta bet? The only way he'll drink it is out of the toilet."

Counselor's Corner

Look within

By DAVE BRUMMETT, MDiv

Some people are of the opinion that the tennis star, John McEnroe, is a pouty baby, a young man who should have had a good, sound whipping when he was a boy. John can throw the wildest temper tantrums, embarrassing most of those watching. With an attitude like that, how can he be such a good tennis player?

Perhaps his internal dialogue (one's judgement of one's self) is different. Even though he expresses disagreement outwardly, John McEnroe has the ability to reassemble himself for the next serve and play professionally. He seems to place himself in a category of fairness, equality and trust. When a competitor hits a serve and John believes it is within the playing court, and the judge calls it out of play, he will complain as harshly as when his shot appears to land safely. Fairness is present, no advantage is worthwhile unearned. Equality is recognized and trust of his opponent and the officials is of value. If a judge, who is out of position,

Another success is to accept and respect myself and those with whom I associate. Whenever you are tired, I take out the trash, change the flat tire, drive us home. If I have a headache, you will fix dinner, turn the bed covers down, adjust the air conditioner. This is a way of accepting and respecting myself and you too.

Success is to feel happy, satisfied and at peace within myself. It is having dreams, goals, ideas and making them happen. Telling others how I feel and what I want is a sign of a positive attitude and self worth. To have my own beliefs, ideas and values without apology is a sign of good mental health.

Negativism can be recognized across a wide domain. It resembles an illness, failure, despair. Monday morning blues, no birthday party, loosing, a hailed out crop. A negative attitude takes a considerable amount of energy because it is so time consuming. Sad and depressed people are not enjoyable to be around, and time is wasted when we're around their complaints.

A person with a positive attitude is easy to accompany on a trip, to a movie, in a restaurant, across the street, at work, during a traffic jam, while waiting for a train to pass. It's like a welcome home, a thank you from a loved one, a warm fire in winter, a feeling of well being, a child's smile, a hug and a kiss from mom and dad. These examples are useful to each of us. Positive attitudes are contagious.

Once a compliment is felt, it makes a person want to do it again, and better. As I send you a happy letter, a response is returned sooner. When someone you met several months ago remembers your name, a positive impression is made. One's attitude can mean the difference in your mental health and the mental health of someone you know.

You have the right to feel good about yourself and those with whom you live. Use a positive attitude and the internal dialogue will be fair, equal and trusting.

Now you know the reason why John McEnroe is the best tennis player in the world. He thinks, believes and uses a positive internal attitude.

Fourth Time

Tom Watson smiles and looks at the trophy for the fourth time in his career. Watson's total score was 284 with a four under par for the final round, winning him the trophy for the fourth time in his career.

Watson wins fourth British Open crown

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Watson, British Open champion for the fourth time, has only one major golf title left to win now, and that's the PGA. "Everybody will say it's the one I haven't won," Watson said after finishing one stroke ahead of Nick Price of South Africa and Peter Oosterhuis of Britain in a nail-biting finish Sunday on the Royal Troon links.

"Well, what about Arnold Palmer? It was the only major he never won." But Watson, who has won the U.S. and British Opens within a few weeks, will be out to fill the gap and win the PGA at Tulsa, Okla., the first week in August.

"I will be taking ten days of rest and recreation," he said. "Then I will start preparing for the next big one."

When Watson reached Troon's 18th tee he was two strokes behind Price, who had been going strong all day around the 7,067-yard par-72 course. Watson finished with a 2-under-par 70 for a total of 284 and then waited patiently in the clubhouse with his wife Linda beside him.

Price, a 25-year-old South African who had come unheralded to the Open, gave way under the strain of the close finish. He made double bogey at the 15th, taking four to reach the green, and another bogey at the 17th and tossed the lead into Watson's lap. He finished with a 73 and a 283 total.

Price tied for second with Peter Oosterhuis of England, who birdied the final hole for a 70.

American tourist Tom Purtzer came on with a 69 and tied for fourth at 282. He shared the spot with Nick Faldo of England, Masahiro Kuramoto of Japan and Des Smyth of Ireland. Faldo also had a 69. Kuramoto a closing 71 and Smyth 73.

Watson is the second man since World War II to win the British Open four times. All his triumphs have been on Scottish links. He previously won at Carnoustie in 1975, Turnberry in 1977 and Muirfield in 1980.

Watson is the first golfer since Tom Morris Jr. in 1872 to win four British Open titles on Scottish courses.

He is the fifth golfer to win the U.S. and British Opens in the same year. The others were Americans — Bobby Jones in 1930, Gene Sarazen in 1932, Ben Hogan in 1953 and Lee Trevino in 1971.

Treacherous winds blowing in from the Firth of Clyde and turning right round, sometimes in a day, made the 1982 British Open a seesaw drama.

For two days Bobby Clampett, 22, looked certain winner with rounds of 67 and 66 in difficult conditions. At the end of the second day he was seven strokes ahead of Watson.

But, on the third day, the wind reached a vicious peak and blew Clampett's dreams askew. He bogeyed the last round one stroke ahead of Price and three ahead of Watson.

Price looked a likely winner after he had birdied the 10th, 11th and 12th holes to lead Watson by two.

AL roundup

Kansas City snaps seven-game losing streak

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

Any way you look at it, the Kansas City Royals finally did things right again.

Derek Botelho, making his major league debut after toiling for 5½ years in the minors, combined with Mike Armstrong on a three-hitter as Kansas City snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 9-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox Sunday. George Brett, Jerry Martin and U.L. Washington homered to highlight the Royals' 15-hit attack against three Red Sox pitchers.

"I'm on a cloud; I feel super," said Botelho after allowing three singles in seven innings and becoming the first right-hander to start a game for Kansas City since June 24.

"It's been a long time since we got a win from anybody, never mind from a right-hander," quipped Kansas City Manager Dick Howser. "I knew it was just a matter of time. It's nice to get a shutout, but any way that you get a win is nice."

Brett hit his 11th home run of the season in the first inning to give Kansas City a 1-0 lead and the Royals increased the margin to 6-0 when they chased John Tudor, 6-7, in their five-run third.

Willie Wilson led off the inning with a double and scored on Washington's first homer of the year. After Amos Otis walked, Hal McRae singled and Martin doubled for another run. Luis Aponte replaced Tudor and, after an intentional walk to Willie Aikens, Frank White blooped a single to score two more runs.

Kansas City added another run in the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Otis and two more in the eighth on Martin's eighth homer.

In other American League games, Milwaukee beat Chicago 9-3, New York ripped Oakland 7-3, Baltimore edged Seattle 4-3, Toronto nipped Texas

5-4 in 10 innings, Minnesota beat Detroit 6-1 and Cleveland downed California 5-4.

Brewers 9, White Sox 3

Don Money, Charlie Moore and Jim Gantner delivered run-scoring singles in a six-run second and Milwaukee collected 14 hits in extending its winning streak to eight games.

Randy Lerch, 7-5, who gave up single runs in the first and second innings, worked seven innings in posting his fourth straight victory.

Gorman Thomas walked and Ben Oglivie was hit by a pitch to start the second. Money, Moore and Gantner followed with their RBI singles to give the Brewers a 3-2 lead. After a force out and a sacrifice fly, Cecil Cooper chased White Sox starter Richard Barnes, 0-1, with an RBI triple, and Ted Simmons, who had a two-run single in the eighth, capped the inning with a run-scoring single.

Aurelio Rodriguez homered for Chicago, which has lost five straight.

Yankees 7, A's 3

Rick Cerone knocked in two runs, one with his first home run since April 13, and Ron Guidry and Rudy May combined on a five-hitter as New York won its fourth straight game and the A's suffered their fifth consecutive loss.

Guidry, 9-4, allowed one earned run in 6-1/3 innings, yielding all five A's hits. May pitched the last 22-3 innings, striking out three.

New York took a 2-0 lead in the second on Roy Smalley's RBI single and Cerone's sacrifice fly. They made it 3-0 in the third on an RBI triple by Dave Winfield. Cerone, who missed 53 games this year with a broken left thumb, homered in the fourth.

Jeff Burroughs hit his sixth homer of the season for the A's.

Orioles 4, Mariners 3

Ken Singleton cracked a three-run homer and Sammy Stewart stopped Seattle on one-hit over the final 4-3 innings in relief of starter Jim Palmer as Baltimore won for the fifth time in six games.

Singleton hit his seventh homer in the third inning following two walks by Seattle's Mike Moore, 4-7. The Orioles had taken a 1-0 lead in the second on Jim Dwyer's sacrifice fly.

Blue Jays 5, Rangers 4

Alfredo Griffin ripped a two-out RBI single in the 10th inning as Toronto defeated Texas to complete a four-game sweep.

Griffin lined the hit off Danny Darwin, 6-4, to score pinch runner Anthony Johnson from second base and help Joey McLaughlin, 8-3, picked up his sixth straight victory in relief.

Texas tied the game in the ninth on Bill Stein's pinch-hit double. Dave Hostetler drove in the Rangers' first three runs, two with his 13th homer. Jesse Barfield had a two-run homer for Toronto.

Indians 4, Angels 4

Bill Nahorodny pinch hit a two-out, two-run double in the bottom of the ninth inning as Cleveland downed California.

Doug Corbett, 1-9, walked Ron Hassey and pinch-hitter Carl Pagel in the ninth and Nahorodny drilled reliever Andy Hassler's first pitch to right-center, scoring pinch runner Rodney Craig with the tying run and Pagel with the winner.

Ed Glynn, 4-0, worked three innings to earn his second victory in as many days over Corbett. Doug DeCinces knocked in three runs with a pair of home runs, while Bobby Grich added a solo shot for the Angels. Toby Harrah homered for Cleveland.

Houston wins three of four from Reds

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros are still a long way from first place in the National League Western Division, but they finally may be turning things around.

And to hear third baseman Ray Knight, they still have a shot at the divisional title.

Houston defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 Sunday, giving the Astros three wins in a four-game series and a 9-5 record in the month of July.

Houston remains 14½ games behind first-place Atlanta and nine games under 500. But a turnaround in the Astros' pitching is giving them reason to hope, they say.

Left-hander Bob Knepper, 4-10, won his second straight start Sunday with a five-hitter, and gave manager Bill Virdon the ninth complete game in the club's last 12 starts.

"By far, this was our best overall series," Knepper said. "We didn't make the mistakes that had been killing us. We took advantage of the offensive opportunities and got good pitching." The pitching impressed Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner.

"They have as fine a starting staff as in all of baseball," Tanner said. "They have a good solid ball club."

In Class B singles, Barbara Hinnant of Amarillo defeated Patty Christian of Amarillo, 6-3, 6-1, in the finals.

In Class B doubles, Flo Hill and Kristi Brown of Amarillo defeated Susan King and Letha Strickland of Amarillo, 6-4, 6-4, in the finals. King and Strickland, however, won the 35 doubles title with a 6-2, 2-6, 6-0 decision over Betty Herrman and Nancy Stocking.

American League wins area tournament

BORGER—The Pampa American League All-Stars owned Hi Plains West, 6-4, Saturday night to win the Area One Little League baseball title.

Pampa had lost to the same team, 8-2, Friday to force a final confrontation.

Winning pitcher was Jesse DeLeon, who allowed seven hits while striking out nine and walking one. Shawn Harris led Pampa at the plate with two hits.

Kerry Brown added one hit.

Scott Grisham had three hits to lead High Plains. Del Smith was the losing pitcher as he had to have relief help from Lance Cross. Smith gave up seven hits while Cross yielded one hit while striking out three and walking two. Smith walked three and didn't have a strikeout.

Pampa advances to district competition this week at Dumas. They meet Dumas at 8 p.m. tonight in first-round action. The finals of the four-team tournament will be played at 7 p.m. Friday.

'Lots' of suspects in mansion slayings

ILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Police reported no progress in the investigation of the shot deaths of aerospace neer Courtlandt Gross, his wife and their live-in id, killed at their mansion Philadelphia's posh Main e suburbs.

Sheehan, commanding officer of Lower Merion Township detectives, in charge of the investigation, refused to say if more than one weapon was used in the killings or if any money was taken.

Funeral services were scheduled Tuesday for Gross, the retired board chairman of Lockheed Corp., and his wife. Officials said the bodies were sprawled on the floor of one of two kitchens in the two-story stucco mansion, which is worth an estimated $1 million. An adjacent property is owned by Dr. Richard Davis, the brother of first lady Nancy Reagan.

MICHAEL REAGAN

Autopsies revealed that all three had been shot in the head, Garcia said. He said the bullets caused the only wounds inflicted on the three. "They were not beaten or molested," he said.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) President Reagan's son Michael, competing Wednesday in a 1,027-mile race up the Mississippi River, says he hopes to break the 72 record for the run between New Orleans and St. Louis.

Circus with Prince Rainier last year. "It felt just like summer stock," he said in an interview in the current edition of People magazine. "Everyone was really enthusiastic and a little crazy."

Reagan has asked for advice from the record holder, Bill Tedford of Little Rock, who completed the 327-mile run in 26 hours and 40 minutes. He averaged 40 mph, including nine stops for fueling.

Davidson said he hopes the troupe will restore some of the aura that Catalina Island enjoyed 50 years ago. "As you turn 40," he added, "you get bored with the run of things in your life. You want to push things to the limit a little more."

Reagan has asked for advice from the record holder, Bill Tedford of Little Rock, who completed the 327-mile run in 26 hours and 40 minutes. He averaged 40 mph, including nine stops for fueling.

Davidson is a host on the ABC television series "That's Incredible." His syndicated talk show was recently canceled after two seasons.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Miss Florida, Deanna K. Pitman, will keep her title and be eligible to compete in the Miss America pageant despite her arrest on drunken driving charges, says a state pageant official.

As of this moment, Deanna Pitman is Miss Florida and I don't expect that to change," Bill Wolfe, chairman of the pageant board, said Sunday. "She's only been arrested, not convicted."

Miss Pitman, 22, was alone in her car when it crashed Friday into a mailbox near Altamonte Springs.
