

Fight...rah, rah, rah... Kill...rah, rah, rah...Fight, Kill, Win!

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — Grunting and groaning, stomping and slashing, a platoon from C Company tests the power of an ancient formula for kindling a fighting spirit in listless soldiers: the war dance.

"The war dance has been used for thousands of years to develop tranquility and courage and tenacity in warriors," says Johnny Kai, a retired Army officer and former Green Beret.

Kai, 49, who teaches the 21-step dance to the soldiers under a contract with the Army, says it is designed to develop "combat chemistry."

"It keeps it interesting," said Pvt. Donny Davis, 18, of Danville, Ill., one of the 30 or so soldiers in the platoon from C Company of the 39th Infantry's 2nd Battalion dancing along the Nisqually River, where they had been building rope bridges.

Training can get monotonous and mundane, said Capt. Robert Simmons, commander of C Company. "This livens it up. The troops get psyched up."

Kai explains, "For three to five seconds, whether it's football or combat, in the crucial moments a person must be energized and be alive. When the ball is snapped, you have three to five seconds of intense activity. It's the same in combat."

"It's the chemical effect," he said. "We want to develop combat chemistry."

Kai has taught similar techniques to Green Berets and football players.

As C Company pounds out its dance, which combines boxing, martial arts, football and wrestling moves, another company of soldiers working nearby hoots and jeers.

Lt. Bill Rice, 23, a C Company platoon leader, said the razzing is a normal, jealous response of those who aren't part of the experimental program.

"Our war dance is better than sitting around telling dirty jokes and discussing the latest issue of Playboy," he said.

The war dance is just one of the programs C Company is testing for the Army. Unlike most soldiers, who part company after basic training, the soldiers in C Company will spend their Army careers together.

The "regimental" plan, as it's called, tests the theory that soldiers who remain together will be happier and will fight better.

The experiment is nicknamed COHORT, for Cohesion Operational Readiness and Training. "You can train the men the way you want to," said Staff Sgt. Dennis Pagan in Rice's platoon.

Man hired as chief appraiser backs out of his new job

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Gray County may or may not have trouble developing a tax appraisal district in the next year — depending on who you talk to.

County Judge Carl Kennedy announced Monday that the man hired to be chief appraiser for Gray County, A.K. Monroe of Palestine, had turned down the job because of responsibilities in his own county.

Monroe is chief appraiser for Henderson County, and backed out of the Gray County job in order to handle legal problems in his office in Henderson.

He was to become chief appraiser here July 12, but appraisal board chairman Jimmy Wilkerson said Monroe was reluctant to "leave his county with a mess."

Wilkerson did not know what sort of legal problems Monroe was having.

State law requires that a single appraisal office must begin handling property appraisals for all 10 county taxing entities by January 1, 1983.

In order to begin the appraisal district's work, the chief appraiser must develop his budget and seek approval of it, review the records of properties in the area and estimate values of properties on site.

Now Gray County must hire a new man for the job, and Wilkerson said the board is reviewing the 15 applications they received before to find a new prospect.

"I don't anticipate any problem," Wilkerson said, and he still expects field appraisals of property to begin this summer under the new chief for next year's tax rolls.

Such appraisals will not begin until a new chief appraiser is hired, he said, and he has no estimate on how long it will take to find another man for the job.

But Kenneth Graber, of the state property tax board in Austin, said "as a general rule of thumb, since the tax roll has to be completed in May of 1983, you have to have at least a year to develop it."

Graber said other counties have been in the same position since the state law required the central appraisal office.

"Several counties are going to be late this year in getting their tax rolls certified," he said, and they have run into "practical problems."

If the development of the board is late, tax rolls might be late, he said, and "if the roll is delayed, they don't have the ability to get the tax statements out on time."

Some counties, he said, have had to borrow money to meet their budgets because taxes were not returned until after the end of the fiscal year.

And, he said, "the more you try to compact the time period for developing the appraisal district's tax rolls, the more potential there is for uneven appraisals."

Graber said some counties have, in hindsight, discovered they could have been more fair in their property value estimates if they hadn't been rushed.

Homeowners have also complained to officials in counties that have experienced delays, he said, because "people are used to paying taxes in the year they were appraised for them."

Wilkerson said he does not consider the delay a problem, however, and the development of the tax roll should proceed on schedule here.

Margie Gray, Gray County's tax assessor, said no trouble with the delay has reached her office yet.

"For this year, we're fine," she said, "but for 1983, I don't know."

I-R gets $1 million building bond

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

During a special meeting Monday, Gray County Commissioners approved a $1 million industrial revenue bond issue for a major construction project at Ingersoll-Rand.

Industrial revenue bonds are approved by the county and issued by private companies.

The county approval does not hold the county liable for payment of the bonds, according to Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy.

However, the county approval allows a federal tax exemption to bond buyers, making them a more valuable commodity on the bond market, Kennedy said.

The construction bonds for Ingersoll-Rand will finance major renovation and construction at the Pampa plant.

In other action, commissioners heard a pre-construction report on paving improvements at Perry-Lefors Airport.

Using money from a Texas Aeronautics Commission grant, commissioners previously awarded the airport paving bid to local contractor

Lewis Construction Company, which submitted the low bid of $49,992.

Consulting engineer for the project is the firm of Merriman and Barber.

The TAC airport grant will provide up to $50,000 for the project, not to exceed 75 percent of the total project cost.

Gray County pays the remainder of the project cost.

The hangar area at the airport will be given an overlay paving for the first time since 1955. Other areas of the facility will be seal coated.

Also Monday, commissioners delayed consideration of hospital insurance for county employees. Kennedy said bids for the insurance have not been received.

In other action, commissioners convened as a Board of Equalization in connection with appraisal of oil and mineral properties in the county.

Second arson case puzzles police

By DAVID CHRISTENSON

Pampa police are investigating a second arson in addition to Saturday's storage shed fire.

At 9:30 a.m. Monday, firemen were called to an apartment building at 301 S. Ballard to quench a blaze that began on the roof of the structure.

There was very minor damage to that building, and firemen had the blaze out in ten minutes.

D.L. Dorsey, owner of the building, told police later that a man carried an extension ladder from the back of the building, where it was already standing, and placed it against the front of the building.

The man reportedly climbed up to the roof and was seen by a woman passing by shortly before the fire occurred.

The man apparently set fire to leaves and debris from trees that had blown onto the roof.

Police believe the fire was a deliberate arson, and they are looking for a suspect in the case.

No arrests have been made or charges filed in the incident.

Firemen said the building's roof was merely scorched in the fire.

Police also hope to detain two juveniles suspected of an arson of a storage shed which took place at 6:50 p.m. Saturday.

That arson is still under investigation today, but police said they have identified two children as suspects.

A wooden shed behind the home of Charles Cook, 1128 Seneca, burned to the ground in that fire, and police said they believe it was a deliberate act, not a case of children playing with matches.

Firemen took about an hour to put out the Saturday blaze and protect surrounding buildings, and said the building sustained heavy damage.

Weather

Occasionally to partly cloudy through Wednesday. High today mid 90s, low tonight mid 60s. High Wednesday mid 80s. Winds northerly 5 - 10 mph, northeasterly tonight and Wednesday 5 - 10.

At last ... a computer that insults you...

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It used to be you could get the last word when talking to computers. Now they fight back.

A Westwood company has created a disc titled "Abuse," which has a memory that includes about 5 million insults to allow the computer to match put-downs til for tat.

Asked to offend Simons' computer, one doubting Thomas came up with, "May George Plimpton refuse to endorse your product."

Computer: "Why don't you moon a flock of geese?"
Human: "Very funny, John Carson-eyes."

City fathers ponder raising the taxes

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Pampa City Commissioners are currently considering a record budget, and figures for next year's city spending plan are coming down to the wire, with a final budget draft expected by August 4th.

The current year's budget stands at $6.4 million, and city management wants to increase the figure next year through a 7.1 percent tax increase and a seven percent increase in fees for city services.

Commissioners Monday held their second budget study, with city management providing the figures.

"We tell them (commissioners) what we want, and they say, 'No,' City Manager Mack Wofford joked following the session.

Final budget figures must be approved by commissioners and will not be released until the final budget draft is submitted to the city secretary.

City management is asking to increase the city tax rate from 56 cents to 60 cents per $100 property valuation.

The increase would raise a property owner's taxes on a $50,000 home about $20 per year.

Wofford said the increase is needed to help pay off city debt, or more specifically, certificates of obligation.

Also set to go up seven percent, pending commissioner's approval, is the cost of city water, sewer and garbage collection fees.

Wofford said that increase is needed next year due to rising costs of providing service.

Based on figures used by management at the first budget study last week, city revenues for the next fiscal year can be pegged at about $6,668,000.

The new budget and fiscal year begin Oct. 1, 1982.

When budget details are ironed out between elected officials and city management, the final draft will be submitted to the city secretary.

Then, about 20 days later, a public hearing will be held, so citizens can voice their opinions about how their tax dollars are spent.

The city plans to hold another budget study meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in commission chambers at city hall. The meeting is open to the public.

Young Israeli colonel quits the war

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A young Israeli colonel who was relieved of his brigade command in Lebanon was quoted today as saying he asked to be sent home because he opposed a military assault on Beirut and did not want to be forced to refuse an order to attack the city.

"I would not be able to tell a bereaved family that their son fell in an unnecessary war," Col. Eli Geva was quoted as saying in an Israeli newspaper.

A military communique issued Sunday said Geva was removed from his command after he told his superiors his conscience did not permit him to go on leading his men in Lebanon.

It said the Israeli chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, urged Geva to change his mind, and when he refused, Eytan relieved him of his command. Israeli press reports said Geva would remain in the army but no new post has been chosen for him.

It was believed to be the first time an Israeli regular army officer has asked to be relieved of his command for a reason of conscience.

In recent weeks, several reserve officers have protested Israel's invasion of Lebanon, which began June 6 in a drive to crush the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The Israelis have 35,000-40,000 troops ringing the PLO enclave in west Beirut and are threatening to storm the city if the PLO doesn't get out on its own.

Geva, a colonel at only 32, was considered one of the most talented and fastest-rising officers in the army. One of his brothers was seriously wounded in the 1973 Mideast war and a younger brother is an officer in a combat unit. He is the son of a retired major general, Yosef Geva.

Michael Dunn started out to water the lawn Sunday at his home at 1016 S. Wells, but the day was hot and so was his brother, Bobby, age 7. So....and wouldn't you know it would rain after all that irrigation? (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

New gun barrel contract does not mean more jobs at I-R

By JEFF LANGLEY
 Staff Writer
 Ingersoll - Rand has been notified of its low bid on a government contract to manufacture gun barrels for huge artillery pieces.
 The manufacturer of mobile oil rigs and high-alloy metals will create the gun barrels from scratch.
 Industrial Relations Vice President Ray Hupp said the government contract does not mean more jobs at the plant west of Pampa, which recently laid off nearly 200 workers.
 Hupp said the gun tubes will be created during normal company operations and manufacture of oil field equipment.

He said the 155mm, M199 gun tubes have a delivery date on or before November, 1983. He said the barrels will be delivered to the "Water Viliut Arsenal" in New York City, under contract with the Department of Defense.
 Hupp said the company bid on the artillery piece barrels was $3,515,000.
 He said the tubes are about 23 feet long and 9 inches across at the narrow end of the barrel where the shell comes out.
 Each barrel weighs about 5,550 pounds.
 Hupp said Ingersoll - Rand previously has manufactured weapons parts and "has been in the military end of the business for several years."

Feds ask farmer's advice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grain farmers and other interested parties are being asked for their suggestions on the policy the Agriculture Department must implement for the 1983 corn and feed grains crops.
 Agriculture Secretary John Block, who has seen his so-called voluntary acreage reduction program do little to diminish the size of the 1982 crop, said he wants a broad range of opinion before deciding on the 1983 program.
 Block, in asking for the public comments on Monday, pledged to announce the new corn and feed grains program well before the Nov. 15 statutory deadline. He asked for comments to be submitted by Aug. 26.

 Earlier this month, Block announced the 1983 wheat program under which farmers must idle 20 percent of the base crop acreage to remain eligible for federal farm benefits.
 As an extra incentive, Block said farmers participating in the acreage reduction program will receive in advance half of the anticipated wheat deficiency payment. That payment, expected to be about 50 cents a bushel on the 1983 wheat crop, is made by the government when national average market prices fail to reach a set target.
 Specifically, Block said he wanted public opinion on:

—Loan and purchase prices, target prices and the national program acreage.
 —Whether to establish either an acreage reduction or set-aside program, and, if USDA establishes reductions for corn, oats, barley or sorghum, the levels of such reductions.
 —Provisions governing acreage devoted to conservation use.
 —Whether to establish a land diversion program, and if such a program is established a payment rate for the diversion.
 —Offsetting and cross compliance requirements under an acreage reduction program.

Right-wing lobby is putting big secret money into Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A national right-wing lobby afraid of major losses in its battle to defeat political liberals in other states is looking to Texas as the place to wield its financial clout and organizational muscle.

A private document sent to "strong and concerned free enterprise-oriented individuals" detailed the National Conservative Political Action Committee's aims in Texas this year.

"To me, Texas is the one bright star which can offset major losses that I fear can occur in other states," NCPAC chairman John T. "Terry" Dolan wrote in the paper sent to a wealthy businessman, who apparently was thought to be a potential contributor.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of NCPAC's "Project Bright Star" that included this warning on the first page:

"CAUTION: This material is sensitive. The contents of this paper will have a decisive effect on congressional campaigns in the state of Texas this year. Do not release. Do not publicize. Please respond; then destroy."

A spokesman at NCPAC headquarters in Arlington, Va., told the AP that Dolan does not grant interviews and would not comment on the project.

Since 1978, NCPAC has taken credit for defeating "powerful liberal" U.S. Senators Dick Clark of Iowa, Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Frank Church of Idaho, John Culver of Iowa and George McGovern of South Dakota and "scores of liberal, once powerful" U.S. Representatives.

But Dolan expressed concern in the "Bright Star" paper about conservative fortunes in the upcoming election.

"I am very worried — extremely worried — that circumstances are developing that will lead conservatives toward a devastating defeat in the congressional elections this November all across this land," wrote Dolan.

The paper states NCPAC is "dedicating at least $250,000 to take its stand in Texas" and would "put every component" of the organization "at the disposal of all free enterprise conservatives running for Congress" in Texas this year.

"For an individual candidate, NCPAC is like a super campaign. It has the ability, when called upon, to completely organize and guide an entire campaign from beginning to end," wrote Dolan, who said he has set up a direct consultation line for candidates.

"Project Bright Star," says Dolan, is "my highest priority."

The proposed "Bright Star" budget, however, includes only $5,000 for the U.S. Senate race, which is far short of the $300,000 Dolan has said NCPAC will spend to campaign against Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

In fact, NCPAC already has run television commercials in Lubbock trying to portray Bentsen as a liberal in his race against Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas. A poll commissioned by Bentsen's campaign maintains the ads may backfire and "actually hurt Collins."

Bentsen's campaign press secretary, Jack DeVore, says the ads were a "gimmick to gain publicity" for a direct-mail campaign to raise funds for NCPAC.

In the "Bright Star" paper Dolan sketched "seven deadly threats which could destroy Ronald Reagan," including the economy and the "liberal media."

But he said union power was the "greatest danger to our newly won strength."

The union movement has targeted Houston for 1982, said Dolan.

"Union PAC's (political action committees) are richer than ever. Union members are being brought together to re-form their rusty political machines. The union leadership is more active at the center of the Democratic Party than ever before," he added.

The proposed "Bright Star" budget includes $5,000 each for U.S. House members

Sam Hall Jr. of Marshall, Bill Archer of Houston, Jack Fields of Humble, Marvin Leath of Marlin, Charles Stenholm of Avoca, Kent Hance of Lubbock, Tom Loeffler of Kerrville and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

A total of $10,000 will be offered to incumbent Ralph Hall of Rockwall, and although no specific figure is mentioned, incumbent Phil Gramm of College Station will be offered a "maximum cash contribution," the paper says.

Contributions of $10,000 each also are budgeted for the following contested races involving House incumbents, presumably for their opponents: Rep. Jack Brooks, Beaumont, vs. John Lewis, Friendswood; Rep. Jack Hightower, Vernon, vs. Ron Slover, Amarillo; Rep. Bill Patman, Galveston, vs. Joe Wyatt Jr., Victoria; Rep. Mickey Leland, Houston, vs. Leon Pickett, Houston; Rep. Abraham "Chick" Kazen, Laredo, vs. Jeff Wentworth, San Antonio; and Rep. Martin Frost, Dallas, vs. Lucy Patterson, Dallas.

Dolan said NCPAC also would like to "target" Reps. Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth and J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Austin, for defeat "if significant opposition develops."

Tennis star officially asks for asylum

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — China's top woman tennis player, in hiding in the United States, is likely to get speedy action on her request for political asylum, a U.S. immigration official says.

Hu Na requested asylum through an attorney Monday. The 19-year-old, who speaks no English, left her Chinese teammates and disappeared during the Federation Cup tournament in Santa Clara July 20.

"She is in seclusion and is unavailable for public comment at her own request," her lawyer, Edward C.Y. Lau of San Francisco, said in a statement.

"She has told me that she wants the situation to remain that way until the government has decided whether to grant her asylum application."

David Ilchert, district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said he will make the final decision about whether to grant Ms. Hu asylum after he receives an advisory opinion from the State Department in Washington. The process could take several weeks, he said.

"We have 8,500 applications for asylum pending here," he said. "But in this case, because of all the publicity, it will probably be expedited."

Ms. Hu, an athlete considered to have world-class potential, vanished from the hotel housing her team during the tournament sponsored by the International Tennis Federation.

The disappearance became known Friday, but the circumstances and how Ms. Hu came to be represented by Lau have remained a mystery.

Lau said he has told Chinese officials about Ms. Hu's desire to defect. "They have known about the situation since early Wednesday morning, although for their own reasons, they may have decided not to comment on it publicly," he said.

Ms. Hu, a 5-foot-8 native of Sichuan, won a tennis tournament in Mexico last year and was the only woman selected to accompany a men's team to the United States two years ago.

She was interviewed by a U.S. immigration officer Monday, Ilchert said, refusing to disclose the location. She was asked "why she thinks she's eligible for asylum status," he said.

"She has the burden of establishing that she has been persecuted or has a well-founded fear of persecution if she returns based on race, religion, nationality, political opinion or membership in a particular social group. One of those is enough, but you make a better case if you can prove several," said Ilchert. "I'm waiting for my player's return," said Shen Jianqi, the captain of the Chinese tennis team.

Murder charges filed in Mexico

CULIACAN, Mexico (AP) — A police chief and six deputies were charged formally Monday with the murder of missing University of Colorado Professor Nicholas Schrock, authorities announced.

Ten state judicial police agents took the seven suspects from the Culiacan jail and drove them south to the small town of San Ignacio to await trial, Sinaloa state Attorney General Jorge Chavez Castro said.

He said Enrique Estrada Lopez, the San Ignacio judge who will hear the case against the policemen, had until Thursday morning to determine whether the evidence was sufficient to start trial proceedings against them.

The policemen were also charged with robbery, assault and other lesser offenses, Chavez Castro said. He said even if there were not enough evidence to warrant a murder trial, it was very unlikely the men would be released from jail.

Asked about unconfirmed reports that at least six other murder victims, possibly Americans, were believed buried with Schrock, Chavez Castro said they were "nothing but false rumors."

He said the absence of any such reports from consular officials in Mexico was proof that the rumors were unfounded.

Estrada Lopez was to start hearing testimony from the accused men Tuesday morning.

Schrock, 42, was driving to a summer teaching job in Guadalajara, Mexico, when he disappeared nearly two months ago. His Japanese-made pickup truck subsequently turned up in San Ignacio.

At least one of the seven policemen has reportedly confessed to murdering Schrock but the body has not been found.

Juan Martinez Arpon, spokesman for the Sinaloa state judicial police, said late Monday the search for Schrock's body was still underway. In an earlier interview, however, he said coyotes or other predators may have found the body.

A new approach to teaching
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Bexar County letter writer has suggested two ways to make Texas' public schools better: raise the drinking age to 25 and raise the age for compulsory school attendance to 25, for "surely by then they can learn math and science."
State Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum said a Michigan resident suggested removing "communistic computers" from schools and getting rid of all textbooks published after the 1940s. The writer said teaching should be done from two books of the Bible, with guest lectures from certain ministers.

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Taxes inhibit oil production

Increase of the need to spread domestic energy supplies in connection with instability in the Persian Gulf, our oil industry is having problems these days. Crude oil prices are down more than four dollars to about $30 a barrel, and the industry is still paying off a $227 - 315 billion "windfall - fall profits" tax. According to the Wall Street Journal, exploration has gone from boom to bust in Texas.

Sad to say, the situation will get worse if Washington and state capitals go ahead with plans to tax an even larger share of suddenly declining oilfield revenues.

That news perhaps won't move the general public tears. The huge profit increases racked up by the major oil companies in 1980 are still in mind, and during the past few weeks gasoline prices at the pump have moved up again.

But according to James Woods, director of the Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA), the problem is twofold: As always, most of the tax increases will fall exclusively on the smaller, independent producers, the chancetakers who do the bulk of exploration. If they get squeezed dry, Woods foresees an even greater U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

The pity of all this, says Woods, is that the United States has the capacity of meeting all its own gasoline and oil needs for decades to come. It is forced, however, to import the 17 million barrels of oil a day it uses by a regressive tax system coupled with regulations.

Oil companies are a popular whipping boy and tax scapegoat. But their well - being - even to their worst critics - should be preferable to having our oil lifeline in the hands of ayatollahs and other unfriendly people.

Congress puts stop to doe execution

Even the Reagan administration's slow - in - coming punches - pulled proposal to get rid of the Energy Department isn't mushy enough to get the time of day on Capitol Hill, it seems.

This limp compromise would have folded most of the programs of the present agency into the Department of Commerce and spent almost as much tax - payer money as the DOE is wasting now. Compared to Reagan's abolitionist campaign talk, it was pretty pale stuff.

But when Energy Secretary James Edwards, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger urged the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee to smile upon the plan, they got the brushoff from senators of both parties.

To give credit where it's due, Edwards came up with one memorable phrase: "Energy is a commodity, not a cause," he offered. He wasn't quite ready to go all the way and suggest that it should be dealt with by the institution best equipped to handle commodities - the free market unencumbered by government interference. But it was a good phrase, stating an uncomfortable truth that Washington too often ignores.

Uncomfortable truths weren't selling too well in the Senate, however. Sen. Henry Jackson, D - Wa., noted that the Middle East is in turmoil, and the U. S. is importing about the same percentage of oil from the Persian Gulf - 28.5 percent - as it did at the time of the OPEC embargo in 1973. The fact that the degree of this dependency grew during the period of the Department of Energy's greatest power seemed to have escaped his attention.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D - Mo., said this was no time to be fulfilling a "glib campaign promise" (perhaps he was startled that any promise at all would be honored), while Sen. Charles Percy, R - Ill., and William Cohen, R - Me., whined that the conservation cops would get short shrift under the new proposal.

Somehow it seems to have escaped the attention of these alert senators that the single most constructive action in the energy field - the one that did the most to hamstring OPEC and encourage domestic production - was decontrol of petroleum prices. The next logical step is decontrol of natural gas prices and a thorough dismantling of the federal government's energy bureaucracy.

The administration deserves a certain amount of credit for giving it the old college try. It should become increasingly apparent to the public that the primary responsibility for the continuing growth in the size cost and burden imposed by government rests with Congress, which demonstrates an amazing stubbornness about efforts to pare back even a fingernail of leviathan government.

We can't help wondering, though, if the administration got this kind of stonewall in response to a modes, half - hearted effort to trim government, what would have been lost by approaching congress with a plan actually to abolish most of the functions of the Energy Department instead of transferring them to other agencies?

Iran moves against Iraq

The war between Iran and Iraq, which has gone on for nearly two years now, has entered a new and dangerous phase. Iran, until now the defender, has switched to the offensive and is attempting to invade Iraq.

The Iranians evidently seek to punish Iraq for invading their territory at the beginning of the war. Another motive may be to spread to Iraq the Ayatollah Khomeini brand of Islamic fundamentalism.

If the Iranians are successful, that outcome could destabilize the neighboring Persian Gulf region and threaten Western oil supplies from it. An Iran encouraged by victory in Iraq might decide to carry its war of "liberation" to Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. That could set the stage for a big power confrontation.

Thus, though Iraq is no friend of the United States, we must hope that Iraqi forces can hold the line. Their fighting ability has not been particularly impressive so far in the war, but perhaps it will improve as they defend their own ground.

The continuation of the conflict underscores once more the peril of our excessive dependence on Persian Gulf oil. The declining fortunes of OPEC recently have made us less mindful of this peril, but it has by no means declined.

With this reality in mind the United States and other Free World countries should make the most of energy development in territory under their control.

By - ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The drama occurs in broad daylight on a public sidewalk. A young man pulls a pistol from a holster slung around his waist, then playfully twirls it around his index finger to impress his companions.

But when one of those companions makes a derogatory remark, the gun - twirler's mood instantly turns ugly. His arm is fully extended, and his hand firmly grips the gun, pointed directly at the source of the insult.

"You mover your - - - head, I'll blow your - - - head right off," he snarls.

The scene abruptly shifts to a view of a juvenile gang marching down another street. A local teen - ager is heard attempting to describe life in the community:

"These folks are crazy, man. There's a lot of murder, a lot of violence. . . People the whole time are testing you to see how weak you are - and if you're weak. . . they're going to beat your - - - or all jump you."

Shows that 'touch the nerve'

Those dramatic vignettes are presented in the opening minutes of a powerful television documentary, "Children of Violence," which examines the lives of a Chicano family and the members of a juvenile gang in Oakland, Calif.

That compelling portrayal of teen - age violence is one of 10 brilliantly conceived and executed hour - long documentaries soon to be broadcast on many of the country's public television stations.

The series, "Crisis to Crisis," is an important and unprecedented new venture for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the Washington - based private organization that distributes federal funds to public broadcasting stations.

"We have a board of directors which gave us a mandate to seek out diverse and controversial program material, but we are forbidden (by federal law) to produce the shows," explains Lewis Freedman, director of CPB's Program fund.

To fulfill the mandate while abiding by the restrictions, CPB two years ago began searching for independently produced documentaries that were "tough, painstakingly researched, had - edged (and) fair - minded reports."

Seeking programs that "explore realities that citizens, although they may disagree with the conclusions, cannot ignore," CPB offered a compelling rationale for its initiative: "With the world lurching from crisis to crisis, an informed public is the only protection for democratic institutions."

That approach represents a significant departure for CPB because it sits atop a public broadcasting bureaucracy traditionally uneasy about controversial program material that might affront viewers or endanger sources of financing.

As a result, public television generally has offered viewers a bland diet of ballet, Beethoven and BBC imports rather than attempting to attain its potential as a nationwide communications medium uniquely qualified to focus public attention on sensitive issues that commercials broadcasters fear to confront.

In the past, CPB has only occasionally funded individual documentaries on public policy issue, and it has never before sought out and packaged such programs as a series, "Crisis to Crisis," which begins in late July and will be broadcast weekly, could mark the beginning of a new era.

Frank Jordan, dean of American University's School of Communications, which supervised production of the series, suggests that public broadcasting should be like the opposite - editorial pages of newspapers, "where all points of view have an opportunity to be expressed."

The new series does exactly that. "Roses in December," the first of the documentaries, is an especially compelling portrait of a young American lay missionary murdered in El Salvador.

"Portrait of an American Zealot" documents the activities of a leading figure in the religious New Right. The geopolitical and military decision - making process of the nuclear age is analyzed in "How Much is Enough?"

Other programs examine the issues of pollution, race realignments, immigration and censorship. The series is well worth watching because it achieves CPB's goal of encouraging programs that "will touch the nerve and stimulate the mind."

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, July 27, the 208th day of 1982. There are 157 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On July 27, 1953, the Korean War armistice was signed at Panmunjom.

On this date: In 1789, Congress established the forerunner of the State Department, the Department of Foreign Affairs.

In 1839, the Opium War between China and Britain began after Chinese authorities seized and burned British cargoes of opium.

In 1935, anti-Catholic riots broke out in Belfast, Northern Ireland.

In 1980, the deposed Shah of Iran died of cancer in a military hospital in Cairo, Egypt.

Ten years ago: Britain sent 4,000 more troops to Northern Ireland to oppose the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

U.S. paper castles won't do the job

President Reagan's chief arms control negotiator, retired Army Gen. Edward Rowny, opened the first strategic arms talks with the Soviets since 1979 by drawing an apt analogy. The Russians, he said, like to play chess while Americans seem to prefer the diplomatic equivalent of Pac - Man. In other words, the Soviets are as patient and calculating as the Americans are hungry for quick, dramatic results. Rowny, who sat on the Carter administration's SALT II negotiating team, is no doubt savvy enough to avoid the Pac - Man syndrome and other negotiating blunders.

Beter yet, he has a trump card that Jimmy Carter's SALT negotiators, led by the dovish Paul Warnke, could never match. Mr. Reagan plans to rearm while he sends the hardosed Rowny to test the Soviets' oft - proclaimed, but never demonstrated, commitment to disarm. If, as expected, the Soviets drag out the negotiations to test Mr. Reagan's mettle, they are likely to find U. S. nuclear strength growing as a new generation of weapons is produced and deployed.

Simply put, Mr. Reagan is to demonstrate that time is no longer a Soviet ally.

The Carter administration adopted, however unwittingly, the opposite approach. While Warnke haggled with the Soviets in Geneva, Carter canceled the B - 1 bomber and cut back or delayed just about every other strategic weapons program from Trident missile submarines to the MX intercontinental ballistic missile.

Carter arrived in the White House as the champion of cutting the defense budget - he slashed $40 billion from the Ford administration's proposed 1977 - 82 defense plan - and then expected Moscow's wily negotiators to accept comparable constraints on their own strategic nuclear forces.

The Carter strategy failed, as it was bound to do. The SALT II treaty finally produced by these negotiations was so patently unfavorable to the United States that it could not win ratification in a Senate dominated by Carter's own political party.

And even if the most egregious of SALT II's inequitable terms could have been amended, the treaty would have done almost nothing to curtail a nuclear arms race the Soviets were winning by default.

Mr. Reagan wants to do more than simply cap the nuclear arms race; he wants to bring about actual reductions in the strategic weaponry of both sides. So, SALT (strategic arms limitation talks) has been replaced by START (strategic arms reduction talks). The change of acronyms is more than simply a matter of cosmetics.

SALT II left the Soviet Union with an awesome first strike potential built around huge, landbased missiles unmatched by anything in the American arsenal. If arms control efforts are ever to succeed in stabilizing the nuclear balance and reducing the chance of war, both superpowers must be denied a first strike potential.

That requires that the Soviet Union dismantle many if not most of its heavy ICBMs; notably the SS - 18s and SS - 19s. In exchange, the Reagan administration might be induced to defer or cancel production of the MX.

Clearly, the best chance of obtaining such an agreement rests in demonstrating to the Soviets that they have nothing to gain and much to lose by obstructionism or delay. Which means that plans to build and deploy the MX system, B - 1B bombers, Trident missile must proceed apace even as Rowny negotiates in Geneva.

That may sound like heresy to the nuclear freeze advocates, but it represents the last, best hope for arms control agreements that would be something more than, in Mr. Reagan's apt phrase, paper castles.

ART BUCHWALD

Business is good

By ART BUCHWALD
War and destruction in the Falklands and Lebanon may be bad for people, but it has certainly helped the arms business.

I went over to see "Madman" Rangell who runs a weapons' discount bazaar across the street from the Pentagon, and he was writing up orders like mad.

"Everyone used to want surface ships," he complained. "Now all they want is submarines. You can't predict people's tastes. I've got a warehouse of frigates I can't give away ever since the French missiles sank British ones."

"Who are your best customers now, Madman?" I asked.

"The Third World countries. They used to come in and buy a few used tanks and maybe a broken - down artillery piece. Now they want F - 16 fighter jets, missile launchers, radar - controlled anti - aircraft guns. I don't know where they get the money, but if it isn't top of the line, they're not interested."

"They're probably spending more on defense than they are on food, housing and creating jobs in their countries."

"I don't ask questions. If their people can't eat it's not my problem."

"Obviously you're not being hurt by the recession."

"You have to be kidding. Whoever heard of a recession stopping arms sales? A general from a Third World country came in the other day; nice guy, beautifully dressed in new uniform; wanted a gross of heat - seeking missiles that could shoot down F - 5 fighter planes."

"While he was waiting to have them packed, I showed him our latest electrically controlled land mines. The guy went nuts for them and ordered 50 gross. Then he asked me if I had any howitzers? I took him in the back and showed him a 1982 model and he was like a kid with a new bicycle. He took two dozen."

"Where did he get the money to pay for the stuff?"

"He went across the street to the Pentagon and explained he wanted it to kick the hell out of the Soviets. They wrote him out a check on the spot."

"You have a great location," I told Madman.

"The best in Washington. Now here's the funny part. As soon as that general left, another general came in from the Third World country that borders the first general's. I told him what the other guy purchased and sold him an entire system to fool the heat - seeking missiles the first guy bought. Then I talked him into buying 1,000 mine detectors that could blow up the mines. I also sold the second general a long artillery piece that could knock out the 1982 howitzer. It was an $80 million order."

"You have a good business here," I told the Madman.

"I make a living. The beauty of it is that no country considers itself safe any more. The Reagan administration has cut down on economic aid to the Third World because you don't get a bang for it. But they're upping military aid to win the hearts and minds of their people."

An Israeli military attache came in.

"What can I do for you, sir?"

"I have $65 million worth of Syrian and PLO weapons in my pickup outside, and I was wondering if you want to buy them."

"Madman Rangell went outside. "It's all junk. There's no market for this stuff. I'll give you $250 on a trade - in, and that's just because I'm a nice guy. What do you want to buy?"

The attache took out his list. "Forty plane loads of cluster bombs, 10,000 artillery shells and six AWACS."

"Speak slower, I can't write it down that fast."

The attache said he had some other errands and would pick up the order in the afternoon.

"What are you going to do with all the Syrian and PLO used goods you bought?" I asked him.

"I'll probably sell it to Bangladesh. I don't want it cluttering up my yard."

Mexico's Highway 15: Road to Notoriety

ALONG HIGHWAY 15, Mexico (AP) — This Pacific coastal route is rich in scenic variety and the lore of drug smugglers and highway bandits. But life, like Mexico's Pemex gasoline, is cheap on Highway 15.

Murder has been part of its legend since 16th century Spanish conquistador Nino de Guzman plundered the Patzcuaro region, through which the road now passes, and burned alive the Tarascan chief who refused to tell where his tribe's gold was buried.

Today, what happened to three American travelers — two died violently and one vanished — is worrying Mexicans who want to keep tourist dollars rolling in.

The U.S. Embassy is considering asking the State Department to renew the advisory issued against travel on Highway 15 in 1976, when at least 13 Americans and other foreigners were slain along its 1,432-mile stretch from Nogales on the Arizona border to Mexico City.

Boosters of Mexican tourism, seeking to defend the country's second largest exchange-earner behind oil, insist the latest incidents are isolated and that armed assaults on travelers are far less frequent now.

"A tourist boycott was justified in '76 but not now," said Jose H. Rico, the mayor of Mazatlan, a Pacific resort on the highway that drew 1.4 million visitors last year, more than a third of them from the United States.

Although Federal Highway Police insist their patrols are adequate, Mazatlan's hotel owners, mindful that 1976 and 1977 were their worst seasons of the decade, have started a letter-writing campaign to get the patrols increased.

Many Americans who take to the sun, surf, game hunting and fishing of Mexico's Pacific coast arrive on wheels, taking advantage of low gasoline prices — the equivalent of 46 U.S. cents a gallon for regular. U.S. officials say an average of 82 vehicles cross the Arizona border into Mexico each day on Highway 15.

From the naked desert hills around Hermosillo, Ciudad Obregon and Culiacan, the road winds across the Tropic of Cancer just north of Mazatlan and Tepic. From there it turns east to Guadalajara and across the Sierra Madres to Morelia, Toluca and Mexico City.

Most of Highway 15 is a two-lane blacktop road — undivided, unlighted, full of potholes, crammed with trucks, often lacking shoulders or a center line and occasionally blocked by cattle. A hard day's drive may be 400 miles; night driving is not advised.

"After getting used to the California freeways, you lose the skill of judging when to pass on a road like this," said Alberto Garrillo, who drove his family to Mazatlan from their home in Whittier, Calif.

The highway takes tourist traffic both ways. "Fayuca" — consumer goods smuggled through customs — moves mostly southbound. Heroin and marijuana flow the other way, as do the "alambristas," or fence cutters, who slip through the chain link barrier at Nogales to work illegally in the United States.

Notable highway points like Tequila, home of Mexico's best-known brew, and Guaymas, a seaport seized by both American and French invaders in the 19th century, long have been publicized in tour books.

More obscure places are gaining infamy as scenes of recent crime and coverup: Las Bateas is a curve in the highway where Nicholas Shrock's van was forced off and plundered June 2.

Shrock, 42, a University of Colorado professor bound for a teaching job in Guadalajara, has not been seen since. The police chief and six deputies from nearby San Ignacio are suspected of killing Shrock and hiding his body. They are in jail.

Officials are looking for Shrock in the roadside tangle of mesquite and cactus, but say the suspects may be reluctant to point out the burial site because it could contain other bodies.

San Blas, just off the highway, is a little-known tropical seaside village where Longfellow wrote his last poem, "The Bells of San Blas," in 1882.

It is also where Randall Scott Ebert, 30, of Santa Monica, Calif., was shot to death June 9 and John Mills, 34, of Phoenix, Ariz., drowned

June 11. Local police ordered them buried without informing U.S. officials. After their deaths came to light last week, state police opened an inquiry, saying both may have been murdered in a single drug case.

Drug-related violence flourished along Highway 15 in the early 1970s after Turkey restricted opium poppy cultivation and the valleys around Culiacan filled the gap in production for the U.S. heroin market. After heroin traffic along the highway was curtailed by aerial herbicide spraying that started in 1976, some smugglers turned to armed robbery.

Hector Arguelles, commander of the Federal Highway Police detachment in Mazatlan, said robberies on his 156-mile stretch of Highway 15 rose to a peak average of six per week in 1980 before a doubling of patrols on the entire road brought them down.

Four patrol cars now cruise the stretch at all hours and robberies are down to an average of one a month, he said.

the BULLOCK COVER-UP

The record that Bob Bullock does NOT want to discuss.

Richards accuses Bullock of spending too much money

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican candidate for comptroller Mike Richards charged today that incumbent Bob Bullock is spending too much to collect too little in taxes.

At a Capitol news conference, Richards, a state senator from Sugar Land, showed a series of charts comparing Bullock's administration with that of his predecessor, Robert Calvert.

Richards said Bullock's budget had grown at double the rate of the state budget since Bullock took office in 1975. In 1974, Richards said, Calvert's office collected $187 for every dollar in its budget, while in 1981, Bullock's staff raised $131 for every dollar spent.

"If the current trend continues," Richards said, "by the year 1990, Bob Bullock will be spending more money than he collects."

Richards admitted he had not figured in the increase in the number of taxpayers the comptroller's office must deal with since 1974.

He said the figures came from Bullock's own records and accused the Democratic incumbent of "the most extensive cover-up in Texas history."

"To be criticized by a man who did nothing but vote for your appropriation time after time is rather ludicrous," responded Bullock, who said the figures Richards presented were not correct.

"My staff, whether they sweep the floor or audit one of the Fortune 500 companies, they pay, they don't cost," Bullock said.

Richards said he attributes the decrease in the dollar collected-to-dollar-spent ratio not to inability on the part of Bullock's staff, but to the number of employees.

Bullock has 2,505 employees compared to Calvert's 1,215, Richards said.

The comptroller's office collects and audits taxes and also audits state government spending.

Richard said he had been told by a source in the comptroller's office that "a minimum of 250 to as many as 500 (employees) are political must-hires."

Stop the water hammer in your pipes

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A hammer is a hammer is a hammer — except when it has something to do with water, in which case it has to do with noise.

Water hammer is that sound you hear when the water comes to an abrupt halt inside a pipe. Usually the noise — sometimes resembling that of a hammer blow — occurs when a valve is shut off quickly. If this takes place every time such a shutoff is made, even if it is only at a sink faucet, the hammering may be the result of a pipe banging against a floor joist or something similar.

Should this be the case, try to track down the exact location of the noise. It can often be eliminated simply by securing the pipe with one of those metal pipe straps or using some kind of cushion between the pipe and the joist or whatever it is slamming against as the water valve is turned off.

Basically, however, the fault lies in the malfunctioning of whatever air chambers are tied in with the system or perhaps with the lack of such equipment. If there is one or more chambers, it may be filled with water instead of air and requires attention. Draining all the bathroom tanks in the house are filled to their normal levels.

Next, turn off the valves under the tanks, then shut off the main water valve to the entire house. Now turn on the faucet at the lowest point in the house, then turn on all the other faucets. This procedure should force the water out of the air chambers, ending the water hammer. If it doesn't, your plumbing system needs the services of a licensed plumber to find out whether new air chambers are required and what else requires a professional treatment.

Should the original noise be a kind of chatter at the faucet, the chances are the washer in that fixture has come loose or is chewed up, in which case the washer should be replaced.

This necessitates removing the stem from the fixture, turning the screw counterclockwise and putting in a new washer. Be sure the water to that faucet is turned off first.

Once no water is coming in and if you don't know the size of the washer, take it with you to the hardware or home center to be certain you do not get one that is too large or too small. When you do so, warn everyone in the household to stay away from the sink until you get back. Turning on the water before the stem is put back can result in hundreds of gallons pouring into your house before you return from the store. Actually, every house should have a package of assorted washers and new screws on hand at all times, since trouble has a way of happening when stores are closed.

There are various other but less common plumbing noises. One of these is a rumbling sound that occurs only in the hot-water lines. Sometimes this can be corrected quickly by lowering the temperature of the hot water. The setting can be 160 degrees Fahrenheit or 20 degrees lower without interfering with the hot water requirements of the household, which results in a savings of energy and money.

Take time out some time to show every member of the household capable of understanding exactly where the shutoff water valve to the house is located. This can prevent a lot of trouble if a pipe breaks or there is a major leak sometimes when you aren't home. If nobody else knows where the shutoff valve is located and how to operate it, your house may be partly under water before the valve finally is turned off.

(Plumbing noises, leaky faucets, balky toilet tanks and other subjects are discussed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington NY 11743.)

Dear Abby

Sex is a sparkler; love is a flame

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What is the difference between "having sex" and "making love"?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: In "having sex," the name of the game is sexual gratification. It's a selfish exercise, a physical release in which the partner is a faceless object. (Anyone will do.)

In "making love," one is motivated by an overwhelming desire to give pleasure, express affection, communicate one's feelings of caring. It's the ultimate in sharing. In making love, the partner is a very special person. (No one else will do.)

Love is a metropolis. Sex is a whistlestop. Love is an eternal torch. Sex is a sputnik!

DEAR ABBY: I would like to make you aware of a new fraud springing up in our land. It involves dental insurance. Now that most people are getting dental insurance, it seems many dentists probe and dig as hard as they can in order to loosen patients' old filings and crack them. That way, the filling will either fall out, or food particles and bacteria will get beneath the filling and start a new cavity.

If there is no trouble in your mouth, they will make it. The last dentist I had showed me X-rays of "my" mouth, and I noticed the teeth in the X-rays were all crisscrossed. My teeth are wide-spaced! He argued with me, insisted they were my X-rays, but I'm a nurse and I know something about reading X-rays.

Another racket is drilling too deep, damaging a nerve and then sending the patient to an oral surgeon or a root-canal specialist who gives the dentist a kickback.

My husband suffered agonizing pain, time lost from work and a lot of needless expense for root-canal work that was probably caused intentionally by his dentist. Please print this as a warning to all people.

What's best for jeans?

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer: Using a small paintbrush, paint hair shampoo on the inside of collars before laundering to get rid of "ring around the collar." Shampoo is made especially to dissolve body oils, and is less expensive than specialty laundry sprays.

My question: Is there a correct water or dryer temperature at which to wash and dry new blue jeans to prevent shrinkage? — MARIA

DEAR ON: If anyone suspects his dentist of unethical practices, he should report that dentist to the local county dental society. There is a dental review board that investigates every complaint thoroughly. I assure you the board will get to the root of the matter!

DEAR ABBY: We are planning a surprise 40th wedding anniversary celebration for our parents, but we do not want the guests (most of whom will be our parents' friends) to bring presents. I was told that you printed a very beautiful and tasteful invitation, suggesting that a written recollection of a "shared memory" be the gift. Will you please run it again?

ABBY FANS

DEAR FANS: With pleasure: "The children of Ivar and Helen Dahl invite you to celebrate with them the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. A reception will be held May 7, at 2 p.m., at the Elmhurst Country Club.

"We request your help in compiling a book which recalls memories from our parents' first 50 years of marriage. On the enclosed sheet, we ask that you write one memory or event that you have shared with them, and return it to us by April 26. We believe that the loving memories they have shared with you, their friends, would be the most treasured gift they could receive; therefore, we request that no other gift be sent."

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

DEAR MARIA — It's almost impossible to totally prevent shrinkage of 100 percent cotton jeans. You're right, however, that temperature can be used as a means of minimizing both shrinking and fading. Simply wash in cold water and dry at the lowest dryer temperature possible, or hang the jeans out to dry. This cool-dry method does take longer than using a high temperature, but it will minimize shrinking. Conversely, if you (or your offspring) want to shrink new jeans down to skin-tight dimensions, wash them in hot water and dry them at the hottest dryer setting possible. — POLLY

Sperm bank has low interest

By ERMA BOMBECK

The controversial sperm bank in San Diego County has a limited partnership, no drive-in window and a low rate of interest.

Depositors are limited to Nobel Prize winners and erudite scholars. It doesn't matter who withdraws as long as she is female and willing to carry a baby sired by a genius for nine months.

The purpose, according to the director, is to create "brighter children" from the ranks of whites.

I was thinking about this the other morning when I turned on the light in my bathroom. Had a less-than-physically-perfect deaf man not invented it, I would be in darkness. I turned on the radio for my morning news fix and suddenly realized if a deformed hunchback had not had a major part in its development, I would be left in silence.

I literally grew up under a president whose political record has never been matched, yet who could not walk or, indeed, move his legs.

The automobile I drove had been invented by a high school dropout. The planes I traveled in had been developed by two brothers from Dayton, Ohio, who also dropped out of high school.

I thought of Leo Tolstoy, Thomas Hardy and Joseph Conrad, who had never won a Nobel Prize for literature.

I thought of the parade of black athletes who had stirred this country with their accomplishments and all the minorities who battled their way through prejudice to make a million contributions to our arts and sciences. I thought of Martin Luther who had an I. Q. of 115 and Abraham Lincoln who was also below the "genius" level. None of them would have been eligible as sperm donors of the "new society."

But mostly, I thought of a man who finished the fourth grade and worked for a Midwestern city, who married a 14-year-old girl from an orphanage — and had me.

A genetic disaster? Maybe. But I'm bright enough to know genes don't dominate us — we overcome them!

Watt: hated by some, a hero to others

WASHINGTON (AP) — One caller wanted to know if James Watt's baldness was caused by acid rain. Another berated him for injecting his religious views into politics.

But another hailed the interior secretary as one of the "real stars of the Reagan administration."

For three hours Saturday, Watt, the man environmentalists love to hate, faced questioners on a national call-in radio show.

While many took Watt to task, an equal number called to praise the controversial secretary and urge him to stand by his pro-development views.

Watt, never bashful in stating his position, seemed to relish the give-and-take on Mutual Radio's "Larry King Show" in the wee hours of the morning.

Asked if he would characterize himself as a hard-liner, he said, "I'm hard-line for America."

He said the Carter administration had "walked a line of preservation. I walk the line with the hunters and fishermen and those who need jobs."

Throughout the show, he expounded on a favorite theme — America's need for energy and mineral resources and, thus, the urgency in opening up more federal lands for development.

Watt also defended a letter he wrote to Israel's ambassador to the United States, Moshe Arens, in which he said American support for Israel could be jeopardized if Jewish liberals oppose the administration's energy policies.

The letter has drawn a rebuke from the White House, which characterized it as "unfortunate," and cries of outrage from American Jewish leaders.

But Watt said he intended no threats. He said he was simply stating his belief that unless America's dependence on imported oil is reduced, its ability to protect Israel will be weakened.

In the letter, Watt said, "If the liberals of the Jewish community join with the other liberals of this nation to oppose these efforts (to reduce dependency on foreign energy), they will weaken our ability to be a good friend of Israel."

While one caller labeled the letter "blackmail" and another questioned whether the administration was fostering a "growing, subtle anti-Semitism," Watt also received support.

A caller who identified himself as an American Jew from St. Petersburg, Fla., said, "There are liberal Jews in this country who lose sight of the fact that a strong energy-independent, militarily superior America is the greatest thing Israel has got going for it."

Questioned on his religious views, Watt said he was a "deeply committed, practicing Christian."

Youngsters hooked on E.T.

NEW YORK — Each hot, sunny day, 12-year-olds Felipe Zea, Tamer Ayasli and Jeffrey Russo hustle passersby on a Manhattan sidewalk to support their summer addiction.

Their game is cold lemonade for cash. Their habit is a slimy creature with bulging eyes, webbed feet and an inhuman desire to phone home.

His name, as you probably know, unless you've been cut off from civilization a while, is "E.T." — The Extra-Terrestrial. And with his oversized, glowing heart, he's been capturing the fancy of moviegoers since he touched down in earthbound theaters six weeks ago.

As soon as Felipe, Tamer and Jeffrey have filled their pockets with the day's lemonade profits, they head up the block to spend it on tickets to E.T.; they've seen it a combined total of 19 times.

E.T.'s own summertime business is bringing in about

$3 million a day — not including sales of buttons, T-shirts and other assorted E.T. paraphernalia.

Why is E.T. so popular? Says Jeffrey: "Adults didn't understand E.T. the way Elliott did. To Elliott, E.T. meant friendship and love. Love was the theme of the movie."

E.T. is the story of a lovable otherworldly botanist accidentally left behind by his fellow aliens during a nature walk on earth. Chronically homesick and pursued by adults who see his value in cold, scientific terms, E.T. follows a candy trail to the closet of Elliott Taylor, who offers him refuge and friendship.

There, in young Elliott's suburban California home, E.T. goes trick-or-treating, gets soused on beer, learns to speak by watching Sesame Street, and devises a plan to "phone home" and be rescued after seeing a telephone commercial and a Buck Rogers comic strip.

Since the movie's release, critics have been dusting off their supply of film phrases, comparing the show to such classics as "Peter Pan" and "The Wizard of Oz," and delving into the childhood of director Steven Spielberg for clues to the source of all this summertime magic.

And money has been the outcome.

E.T. has taken in more than $130 million, and now cruises along at more than $3 million a day as the movie climbs Hollywood's list of all-time money-makers, shattering records as it goes.

Also cashing in on E.T.'s success is Hershey Foods Corp., whose Reese's Pieces lured E.T. from the forest to Elliott's bedroom. Sales of the candy in June were up 70 percent over May.

The E.T. stuffed doll will hit the shelves any day, and retailers already have placed $16 million worth of orders with Kamar International, the toy maker licensed to create it.

Mammoth expedition is planned

NEW YORK (AP) — Searching for a lost, great white city in the Honduran jungle ... exploring tropical waters for sunken ships ... scouting the forests of Sulawesi for the world's largest snakes.

These and similar adventures await the 4,000 young men and women to be selected for what is planned as the largest scientific-exploration expedition ever undertaken.

Dubbed "Operation Raleigh," the four-year expedition will embark from the coast of North Carolina in 1984, just 400 years after Sir Walter Raleigh established the first English-speaking settlements in North America. Planned stops include the Caribbean, Central America, Antarctica, Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Indonesia, India and Africa.

The new project calls for 1,500 youths each from the United States and England, and another 1,000 from the rest of the world.

Both President Reagan and Prince Charles have expressed support for the joint British-American undertaking, which is expected to cost more than $10 million in cash, plus aid of incalculable value from governments, individuals and private corporations.

"The 1,500 Americans due to be part of this expedition will contribute to scientific and historical knowledge, help promote international cooperation and understanding, and remind us of the stirring accomplishments of those who first came to our shores," Reagan said in a letter to Col. John Blashford-Snell, the world-famous British explorer who will head the expedition.

Blashford-Snell was also the leader of a similar, highly successful, two-year, round-the-world expedition called "Operation Drake" completed in 1980, in which some 400 young explorers from 27 nations took part. It cost about $2 million cash but also received assistance in the form of manpower, ships, blimps and other equipment at no charge.

"For example, at one time the entire Panamanian navy was involved," Blashford-Snell recalled. "And in the Mediterranean, Goodyear let us use an airship as an almost perfect, stable, scientific-instrument platform."

The young explorers selected for "Operation Drake" came from among 57,586 applicants aged 17 to 24 after a series of physical and mental screenings. For "Operation Raleigh," there may be 10 times that many applications.

In addition to the young adventurers taking part, about 100 scientists and researchers — including marine biologists, botanists, zoologists, entomologists and ornithologists — are expected to participate.

"We plan to start calling for recruits in late 1983," Blashford-Snell disclosed during a visit to New York.

One of the early steps for "Operation Raleigh" is the Honduran island of Roatan, a one-time pirates' headquarters where a large number of shipwrecks occurred over the years. Divers will attempt to locate some of them.

"And somewhere in the very dense jungle south of the Black River, according to legend, is the lost Great White City," Blashford-Snell said. "The Honduran government is taking it seriously — all tourist maps are marked with

'site of the lost white city,' but nobody has ever found it."

"It would be one of the greatest archeological discoveries if we can locate it. I think we should at least try, because during 'Operation Drake' we found a similar city named Acla in Panama (where the explorer Balboa was executed in the 16th century).

"Operation Raleigh" will consist of several three-to-four-month phases, each involving different groups of young adventurers. For an applicant to be selected, he or she must be willing to return to his or her country to share experiences with others, Blashford-Snell explained.

One of these phases involves a stop at Sulawesi, formerly the Celebes.

Historical novelist still amazed at his acclaim

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — After a half-century of writing, award-winning novelist Paul Horgan is still surprised at the acclaim his work receives.

"Somewhat of a national treasure" was how one prominent critic described Horgan after his latest novel, "Mexico Bay," appeared earlier this year.

"I'm always surprised by the reaction to my books," the 78-year-old author-in-residence at Wesleyan University said in a recent interview. "It's pleasing and certainly unexpected."

Horgan is probably best known for his work on the Southwest. He won the Pulitzer and Bancroft prizes for his monumental work, "Great River: the Rio Grande in North American History," in 1954 and another Pulitzer Prize for history in 1976 for "Lamy of Santa Fe," a book on the life and times of the first archbishop of Santa Fe, N.M.

His first novel, "The Fault of the Angels," won the Harper Prize in 1933 and "A Distant Trumpet" was another very popular work of fiction. "Mexico Bay" is his 17th novel.

"This book is actually the fifth draft," Horgan said, explaining that the idea for the novel began taking shape more than 10 years ago — a span of time not unusual for him. A meticulous writer, Horgan spent 12 years completing the Rio Grande work and 25 years for the definitive work on the life of Juan Batista Lamy.

What is unusual about "Mexico Bay" is the manner in which the finished product occurred. Horgan said the fourth draft, which had been accepted by his publisher as the final version, was 700 pages long.

"I decided on the way back from New York that it was too much. So, I took out 400 pages in rewriting it," he said. "A lot of those 400 pages survived between the lines. I think. In other words, what I learned about the characters (in the longer version) was implicit in the final version."

It took him most of 1981 to prepare the novel. The primary setting for "Mexico Bay" is not the Southwest, although the body of water and its many moods serve as a metaphor for the work, Horgan said. Rather, the novel focuses on the intense lifestyle of Washington, D.C., during the early years of World War II.

Horgan, who was born in Buffalo, N.Y., but spent his adolescent years in Albuquerque, N.M., served in the War Department during the war. Rising to the rank of lieutenant colonel, he earned the Legion of Merit for his work in transmitting information to American GIs through films, radio and the Army newspaper, "Yank."

"There was no opportunity to write a word (of fiction) during the war," he said when asked if "Mexico Bay" developed from any writing in that period.

"I had to re-establish that Washington experience, which may have been more healthy in terms of writing this book."

Horgan is working now on a collection of unpublished short stories. "And there are two more novels in the works."

Important changes in your character and outlook will be made this coming year. Traits which you feel to be weak or undesirable will be eliminated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be certain you have the wherewithal to back you up before going out on a limb today. Counting on possibilities could prove to be folly. Predictions of what's in store for you for all four seasons following your birth date, and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although it may be embarrassing or painful, it's best not to deviate from the facts today. Exaggerations will have to be verified later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Seek ways to curb your expenses today, not ways to contribute to them. Poor management of your resources now indicates future complications.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although luck will be a factor in your endeavors today, it might not be potent enough to get you over all the rough spots. Make realistic assessments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a possibility today that you could repeat mistakes which caused you problems previously. Don't be your own worst enemy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Keep everything on a purely social level with your friends today. You'd be wise not to invite them into your material ventures — and steer clear of theirs!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you rely too heavily upon others today, it isn't likely you'll accomplish all that you hope to do. Associates could delay your efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Others will have greater respect for you today if you 'fess up to your mistakes, rather than make excuses or try to rationalize them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's best not to get immersed in others' personal affairs today. Even though you may want to help, there's a good chance you might end up doing the opposite.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In head-to-head negotiations today, don't automatically assume you are dealing from the strongest position. Your opponent may hold some hidden ace.

GERMINI (May 21-June 20) Avoid shoddy work habits today, especially if you are an employee. What you are doing is being graded and may affect your earnings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't take any types of speculative risks today which could cost you financially if they misfire. Even something you consider to be a sure thing should be questioned.

Doctor teaches children to escape from fires

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dr. Russell T. Jones, fighting fire with know-how, wants to stop children fleeing house fires from seeking deadly refuge in their closets or under their beds.

Jones, 31, a clinical psychologist at the University of Pittsburgh, says most of the more than 3,500 American children who may die from house fires this year do not know what to do.

"I think it's because of a lack of training, a lack of awareness, not knowing what to do in case of a fire, not having practiced," Jones said. "Parents should be doing this, or educators. But whoever does it, it should be done systematically."

Jones teaches the very young, the very old and the handicapped what to do when fire strikes. For the past five years, he has concentrated on saving children as young as 3 years old.

"With respect to fire safety, they've had very little training... It could be something they see on TV or something their parent does or maybe a firefighter," he said.

In 1980, the latest year for which figures are available,

6,505 people died in fires across the country and 30,200 were injured, according to the National Fire Protection Association. Seventy-five percent of the fatal fires occurred in homes, and in many cases, children were the cause, officials say.

About 29 percent of those killed were under age 5, the NFPA says. Twenty-five percent were between 5 and 13. Another 7 percent involved those 65 and up.

Most of the young victims were found in closets or under beds. Frustrated firemen and anguished parents cry, why didn't they try to escape?

Jones began studying the problem of fire safety in 1976 while a medical intern at Brown University. He conducted his initial research there, teaching preschoolers how and when to make emergency telephone calls to the operator and checking their memory several months later.

After joining Pitt in 1977, Jones started working with elementary school children.

In school classrooms remodeled to resemble bedrooms, the youngsters learn evacuation procedures. They are taught to crawl to the door and open it if it's cool, or to keep it closed if it's hot and then crawl to a window and climb out or wave for help.

To simulate a real fire, doors are heated with hairdryers and tape recorders are used in place of alarms. Stars and other tokens are distributed as positive reinforcement for the children.

Jones has extended his interest to blind and mentally retarded adolescents and most recently to the elderly, who often live in buildings without sprinkler systems and other safety features.

For the blind, Jones reproduces the crackle of flames and the intensity of heat they might encounter in their bedrooms at the school. Otherwise, his techniques remain much the same for each study group.

So far, Jones has completed nearly 10 studies involving up to 250 people with the help of graduate assistants and a few, small grants. He has also traveled across the nation to speak at fire safety sessions.

What differentiates his efforts is research, he said.

"There are firefighters who go to schools and they talk to kids and say 'Don't do this and don't do that.' That's good, but it's not research," he said.

Jones has found that people generally don't panic when confronted with emergencies, such as fires.

"(But) with children, the probability of engaging in non-adaptive behavior may be somewhat higher than with adults," he said.

Jones encourages his students to transfer their behavior from school to home.

"We tell them, 'You don't just do this when we're here,'" he said.

Jones has found that most youngsters forget much of what they've been taught after several months without practice.

"We tell the parents to practice it. And we also have the children teach their brothers and sisters, a kind of buddy system," he said.

Deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — Harold R. Foster, who created the Prince Valiant comic strip and drew it for more than 40 years, died Sunday in Spring Hill, Fla., King Features announced. He was 89.

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Alexander J. Singleton, 83, former chairman of the board of the Caltex Petroleum Corp. and consultant to Texaco Inc., died Monday. He was 83.

Alike couples may not make likely parents

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Couples who have too much in common may find themselves unable to have children, according to researchers at the University of Michigan Women's Hospital.

An ongoing study indicates

"too great a similarity in genetic makeup and tissue unrelated husbands wives can cause fetuses to abort naturally spontaneously," says Alan E. Beer, chairman of the hospital's obstetrics-gynecology department.

...and Sesame Street helps

NEW YORK (AP) — Sesame Street is coming to the rescue of the group most victimized by fire in this country — America's preschool children.

A new 36-page workbook and record designed to help teach crucial fire safety skills to such youngsters has been published by the Children's Television Workshop, producers of the educational TV series.

The materials and activities in the book were developed and tested during a year of pilot projects conducted in conjunction with local firefighters in schools, day care and community centers in more than 40 locations across the country.

"Although preschool children make up only a small percentage of the population, they account for a shocking number of the deaths by fire in this country," says Evelyn P. Davis, CTW vice president for Community Education Services.

"With this in mind, we've set out to use the familiar Sesame Street theme and characters to help reduce the present high vulnerability of children under 5 to fire and burns."

"The Sesame Street Fire Safety Resource Book" contains recommendations for fire safety activities which can be conducted with groups of preschoolers, scripts for Muppet skits using Sesame Street characters to deliver fire safety information, and two original fire safety songs.

Each resource book also includes a 45 rpm record of original songs, "Stop, Drop and Roll," which teaches what to do if your clothes catch fire, and "Cool Water," advice on dealing with a burn.

Tot safe after attack by Canada grizzly bear

PRINCE GEORGE, British Columbia (AP) — A Harrop's first thought was "That's my baby," and she was screaming and chasing the grizzly bear that was carrying away her son in its teeth. Her screams helped save the life.

Her 3-year-old son Brendan, who suffered only minor injuries, is back home in "extremely good spirits" and no memory of the attack, Mrs. Harrop said Sunday.

"I never thought, 'That's a brown bear, or a black one-grizzly,' I just thought, 'That's my baby.' The only thing I thought I had was, 'I've got to make a lot of noise because bears are scared of noise.'"

Mrs. Harrop, 41, said she and her husband, Tony, taken four of their five children and two friends to Banff National Park in Alberta during a two-week camping trip.

A daughter, Triona, 11, and Brendan were crossing a bridge in the park Wednesday with the visitors — Susan and Josephine Power, both 20 and from Waterford, Ireland — when they saw the bear approaching from the other side of the bridge.

They tried to retreat calmly, but other picnickers saw the animal and began screaming and the four began running with the bear running after them, Mrs. Harrop said.

"I heard screaming and I came out of our trailer and saw my little baby face down, with the bear on his back attacking his head," Mrs. Harrop recalled.

The bear grabbed the child by the back of his head and off, down a bank and across the stream with Mrs. Harrop and her husband in pursuit.

Harrop and another picnicker hurled rocks at the animal. At one point, they even threw Brendan's shoe, which fell off in the struggle.

The bear hesitated at the far bank and turned to see who was going on. "I reached the bear, the bear dropped the boy and I scooped him up in my arms and ran back across the stream," Mrs. Harrop said.

She jumped into the nearest unlocked car and other campers helped them gather the family and reach their vehicle.

The angry bear, meanwhile, returned to the picnic area took a swipe at the Harrops' terrier, Tinker, jumped on nearby picnic table and ate the lunch of another group, Mrs. Harrop said. Tinker was unharmed.

The 1½-year-old, 140-pound bear was shot and killed by officials at Banff. Mrs. Harrop said she was told the results of rabies tests on the animal were expected later in the week.

After the attack the Harrops drove to the nearest hospital at Banff 20 miles away, to get medical help. Mrs. Harrop said Brendan was given some stitches in the back of his head but was not seriously injured.

"He's quite Brendan again," she said. "He has no memory of it. The bear attacked him from behind."

As for herself, "I have just a touch of laryngitis," Mrs. Harrop said. "We had a lot of screaming last week."

KC moves within one of AL East lead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It was Blue Monday for the Cleveland Indians, a terrific night for a couple of veterans with the Kansas City Royals.

"I'm not throwing as hard as I did 10 years ago on an assist basis — but I still can get good pop on a fastball when I need a strikeout," said Kansas City's Vida Blue after overpowering the Indians Friday night.

Blue gave up only four hits, struck out four and led four in seven innings to lead the Royals to a 1-0 decision and improve his record to 8-7.

Blue, who turns 33 on Wednesday, took the night with another veteran who was in good form. Hal McRae, the 36-year-old resurrected slugger, singled twice, doubled and homered to lead the Royals to a 1-0 victory.

Blue credits his stunning run production this season to the Royals' lineup.

Willie Wilson added two triples as the Royals collected 15 hits and made ground in the hot AL East race on the California Angels, who lost 11-8 to Oakland A's. The Royals are now one game behind the division leaders.

Blue pitched no-hit ball through five innings before running into trouble in the sixth, when the Angels scored their only run on Andre Thornton's RBI single. Blue, however, settled down to retire the next three hitters without further damage. Dan Ikenberry finished up with two scoreless innings relief.

The Royals took a 3-0 lead against Tom Brennan, but with the help of two Cleveland errors in the third inning, it proved to be all the runs they needed.

In other AL action, the Boston Red Sox edged the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2, the Texas Rangers downed the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1, the Detroit Tigers turned back the New York Yankees 5-3, the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the Chicago White Sox 6-2 and the Minnesota Twins walloped the Seattle Mariners 10-4.

A's 11, Angels 8

Rickey Henderson, who earlier hit a home run, blasted an eighth-inning double and stole home as Oakland came back to beat California in a wild game after blowing a 7-0 lead.

Henderson's double drove in the go-ahead run as the A's scored four times to wipe out an 8-7 California advantage.

Dave Beard, the third Oakland pitcher, pitched the final 3-2 innings to gain his sixth win in 13 decisions.

Reggie Jackson's two-run homer in the sixth and RBI double in the seventh had brought the Angels into the lead from the seven-run deficit.

Red Sox 3, Blue Jays 2

Dwight Evans scored the tie-breaking run on a double-play grounder in the eighth inning as Boston rallied to beat Toronto. The victory, combined with Milwaukee's loss to Texas, moved Boston into the AL East lead, one-half game ahead of the Brewers.

Dennis Eckersley, 11-8, going the distance for the 11th time in 21 starts, pitched a seven-hitter. Eckersley outdueled rookie right-hander Jim Gott, 1-6.

Toronto took a 1-0 lead in the second on an RBI single by Al Woods and made it 2-0 in the fifth on Alfredo Griffin's home run. Boston tied the score in the fifth on Glenn Hoffman's two-run homer.

The Red Sox rallied to come from behind to win for the 29th time this year.

Rangers 3, Brewers 1

Charlie Hough pitched a four-hitter to lead Texas over Milwaukee. Hough, 9-8, walked one and struck out four in hurling his seventh complete game of the year.

No Milwaukee runner got as far as second base until the seventh inning when Cecil Cooper singled and Ted Simmons doubled him home.

Mike Caldwell, 7-10, took the loss.

The Rangers got a run in the fourth on Lamar Johnson's RBI single and scored their eventual winning run in the fifth on Doug Flynn's two-strike suicide squeeze bunt.

Tigers 5, Yankees 3

Lance Parrish knocked in three runs with a homer, single and a triple and Tom Brookins hit a tie-breaking, two-run double in the fifth as Detroit defeated New York.

Winner Jerry Ujdr, 4-5, gave up five hits, walked two and struck out two before needing relief help. Dave Rucker gave up an RBI single to Lou Piniella in the eighth inning before Dave Gumpert came on in the ninth to get the last two outs for his first save.

Orioles 6, White Sox 2

Gary Roenicke homered and drove in four runs, leading Baltimore over Chicago. It was the fifth straight triumph for the Orioles, who posted a 5-1 record while Manager Earl Weaver sat out a seven-day suspension for striking umpire Terry Cooney. Weaver returns tonight.

Roenicke, homerless in his 19 previous games, hit his 16th with two runners aboard in the third inning. He also doubled home a run in the second and scored on a single by Rick Dempsey.

Bench sparks Red past Cubs, 4-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds' No. 5 looking more like the Johnny Bench of old than an old Johnny Bench these days.

The man who has hit more home runs than any other in baseball history showed during a four-game series with the Chicago Cubs that he hasn't lost his touch.

Bench blasted a solo homer Monday night and drove in a pair of runs to help the Reds beat the Cubs 4-2. It gave him eight homers for the season, one of them in the four-game series.

"Now, for one little series, it's felt awfully good," said Bench, who came into the game batting just .29.

The Reds had counted on the 34-year-old former pitcher to supply power and run production when he moved to third base this season. Things haven't worked out as planned and Bench found himself in the middle of controversy just before Manager John McNamara was fired last week.

Reds President Dick Wagner told McNamara to play rookies Tom Lawless and Paul Householder. Bench wound up on the bench, although it's unclear who made the decision.

"That's behind me now. I don't know what the deal is," Bench said. "There were a lot of innuendos going around. I just can't let those things worry me."

In the only other National League game, the San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-1. Russ Nixon, who replaced McNamara as the Reds' manager, made getting Bench back in the lineup one of his priorities.

Bench said he has made some changes in his swing that have helped.

"Right now, I'm feeling a little more patient, plus I'm getting good pitches to hit," he said. "I'm pulling the ball and pulling it with authority."

Dan Driessen led off the Reds' fourth with a homer, his 11th, off Al Ripley and Bench followed with his homer. Bench and Driessen also had RBI singles.

Bob Shirley scattered seven hits over eight innings to break his personal five-game losing streak. Tom Hume came on to post his 17th save after Gary Woods homered to lead off the ninth.

Giants 6, Dodgers 1

Bill Laskey pitched a three-hitter and Tom O'Malley keyed a five-run third inning with a three-run double as the Giants defeated Los Angeles ace Fernando Valenzuela.

With one out in the third inning, Joe Morgan and Chili Davis walked. Reggie Smith singled to score Morgan and the runners moved up on the throw to the plate. Bob Brenly was walked intentionally to load the bases and O'Malley followed with his double. Johnnie LeMaster singled O'Malley home. O'Malley's sacrifice fly accounted for San Francisco's final run in the eighth.

Cheyenne rodeo

Texas cowboy takes bullriding lead

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — The luck of the draw and the skill to stay aboard earned a 21-year-old new Waverly, Texas, cowboy a score of 82 and the lead in bull riding at the 86th Daddy of 'Em All rodeo here.

"He sure was a handful," said Rickey Lindsey Jr. after the ride aboard a bull called Gen. Tom Corbin Monday, the third day of the rodeo and the first round in bull riding.

When he drew the bull, Lindsey said, other cowboys told him, "He's the one you want." "He was spinning and backing up and wanting to flip me right over his head," said Lindsey, who had about $4,000 on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association circuit going into the Cheyenne Frontier Days rodeo.

The ride put him six points ahead of the previous day's leader, Bruce Johanson of Strathmore, Alberta. And Gerry Strom of Laramie, Wyo., moved down to third with a 75.

Steer wrestler Ron Scott of Saskatchewan, Canada, had an arena record time of 6.4 seconds Monday, breaking the 6.8-second mark set in 1976.

Kyle Chapin of Twin Falls, Idaho, scored a 70 Monday to become the new leader in rookie bronc riding.

All events except steer roping were in the first go-rounds Monday. Finals are Sunday.

Don Gay, going for a record eighth world bull riding championship, had little success with his bull Monday, lasting little more than a second on Garry Gilbert.

"The bull turned around backwards and fouled me on the gate," he said afterward, but the judges weren't in a position to see it and he was out for the rest of the rodeo.

The veteran 28-year-old bull rider from Mesquite, Texas, said that happens to him only "once or twice every couple of years."

Gay said he never counts on a rodeo for money to help him toward the next bull riding championship but added, "It doesn't make it easy to take. This is the biggest damn rodeo in the world."

Rookie bronc rider Skeeter Thurston of Hyannis, Neb., moved down to second behind Chapin with a 69. And Andrew Crothers of Rapid City, S.D., scored a 65 Monday to take the third spot going into the final day of the first go-round today.

Scott's record-breaking steer wrestling performance bumped Larry Dawson of Arnett, Okla., to second with a time of 6.9 seconds. Two cowboys shared the third-best time Monday at 7.3 seconds — Bart Weaver of Rapid City, S.D., and Randy Weaver of Collbran, Colo.

Steer roper Dave P. Smith of Brewster, Wash., had an 11.9-second performance Monday to move into second place. Clark Hankins of Rocksprings, Texas, still had the best time of 1 1/4 seconds. And Barry Burk of Duncan, Okla., moved into third with 12.7.

None of the steer roping times Monday was good enough to beat the top three, led by H.L. Todd of Burlington, Colo., at 15.1 seconds.

Saddle bronc standings also stayed the same Monday with Ouddy Reynolds of Slaton, Texas, in the lead with 83 points.

The shakeup in bareback riding Monday was the 75 scored by Monk Dishman of Kountze, Texas, which put him in second place, behind the 80 of Lewis Feild of Payson, Utah. Still in third was C.R. Kemple of Durango, Colo., with a 74.

Volleyball tryouts set Aug. 9

Pampa High School girls' volleyball tryouts start Aug. 9, according to new head coach Roxie Johnson.

Interested girls may call Mrs. Johnson at 665-7982 for further information.

Mrs. Johnson, the wife of Pampa High girls' basketball coach Jerry Johnson, replaces Lynn Wolfe, who asked for reassignment elsewhere in the Pampa school system.

Pampa opens the season Aug. 17 at Palo Duro, starting at 4 p.m.

The Lady Harvesters will be in a new 7-team district (1-4A) which includes Brownfield, Dumas, Levelland, Lubbock Estacado, Lubbock Dunbar and Borger.

Cowboys place seven on waivers

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys placed seven free agents on waivers Monday, reducing to 71 the number of rookies in training camp.

Veteran quarterbacks, running backs and receivers reported Monday, went through morning physicals and worked out briefly in shorts. The rest of the veterans report Thursday and begin full-scale practices Saturday.

Rookies released Monday included Oklahoma lineman Ed Culver, Texas Christian running back Kevin Haney, Stanford lineman Jim Dykstra, Eastern Oregon defensive back Havan Jones, DePauw defensive back Alan Hill, Arizona linebacker John Pace and Houston running back Eddie Wright.

Veteran center Robert Shaw, trying to return after knee surgery last season, worked out Monday with his leg heavily taped.

Don Smerek, a veteran defensive tackle who joined training camp with the rookies, returned to workouts after missing several days with ankle and achilles tendon problems.

Seventh-round draft pick Bill Purifoy did not practice because of a bruised heel, Georgia Tech linebacker Lance Skelton pulled a muscle in his chest and Michigan cornerback Brian Carpenter strained a groin muscle.

A winning Manager

Gerrel Owens, manager of statehood Pampa Hardware, hits flyballs to his outfielders during a practice session last week. Owens leads his team into the opening round of the Babe Ruth 14-15 State Tournament tonight against Graham, starting at 6:30 p.m. The double-elimination tournament was moved from Lamesa to Brownfield because of field maintenance problems. Owens has led Pampa Hardware to four consecutive Optimist League titles in five years as a manager.

Pirates return to pennant race

By GARY MIHOCS
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Eight weeks ago, the Pittsburgh Pirates looked like a baseball team — and maybe a franchise — coming apart at the seams.
They were in last in the National League East, they were locked in a dispute with the city over their stadium lease and they had the worst attendance in the majors.
"But it's like being in a rainstorm. You just keep driving until you see sunshine and blue sky," says manager Chuck Tanner.
And the season has lightened up for the Pirates. They're back in the pennant race, they have a new stadium deal with the city and they are showing signs of life at the gate.
"All the elements are falling together," said Tanner.

It wasn't that way last May 31. The Pirates were at the bottom of the NL East with an 18-27 record, 11 games behind St. Louis.
That's when Tanner got his players together for a clubhouse meeting.
"He just more or less said, 'Relax, go out there, play ball and have fun,'" recalled first baseman Jason Thompson. "I think that's where it started."
Going into tonight's game here with Philadelphia, the Pirates were 3½ games behind the Phillies and the Cardinals, who were in a virtual tie for the division lead.
The Pirates have won 32 of 49 games since that May 31 low point, rekindling memories of the "We Are Fam-a-lee" Pirates who won the 1979 World Series.

Nehemiah has trouble adjusting in San Francisco training camp

ROCKLIN, Calif. (AP) — Track star Renaldo Nehemiah found it slow going by his standards on the opening day of the San Francisco 49ers' preseason training camp.
"I'm still adjusting from the track to gridiron as far as my footing is concerned. I have to transfer my speed to the football field," said the 6-foot-1, 175-pound Nehemiah, who was among 55 players in uniform Monday with the National Football League champions.
"I wasn't running at full speed, but a lot of passes still were thrown behind me. The quarterbacks are not used to my speed," Nehemiah said.
"It's very hard for me to run, stop to catch the ball, and then turn," he added.
The world record-holder (12.9 seconds) in the high hurdles slipped and fell a few times and also had trouble catching the ball for a while Monday. He was in full uniform, with pads and helmet, for the first time since five years ago when he was a high school quarterback in New Jersey.
Nehemiah dropped the first three passes thrown to him in the morning practice. He did better after taking off his pads, which he said were too big, and in the afternoon drills he made several difficult catches.

Nehemiah was signed in April to a four-year contract which could bring him over $500,000, and he is guaranteed a spot on the 45-man roster this season, even if it is as an apprentice wide receiver who sees very little game action.
"One year from now, we might be talking about a very talented young man who can become an outstanding player," Coach Bill Walsh said after practice. "He's certainly capable of making the big catch, and in time he should be capable of running very well with the ball after he catches it."
"Pretty soon, he'll be taking some solid hits. Until he experiences them, he won't know how they feel."
Nehemiah remembers football hitting, having suffered broken ribs five years ago, and he said Monday, "I'm not worried about the contact."
Although he knows the 49ers are not counting on him for major contributions this year, Nehemiah said, "They're pushing me, and putting it to me that it's up to me how far I go this season."
"I don't see how they would keep the fastest guy in football sitting on the bench if I'm ready to play."

Wyoming leads high school rodeo finals

DOUGLAS, Wyo. (AP) — Marvin Garrett of Aladdin, Wyo., scored a 73 on the horse "Delux" in the bareback riding competition and helped his state team take the lead after two performances in the National High School Finals Rodeo here.

"That's the best feeling in the world," said Garrett, a senior, after his performance Monday night.

Some 1,170 cowboys and cowgirls from 31 states and two Canadian provinces are competing in two performances a day through Saturday in three arenas on the Wyoming State Fairgrounds. Finals are Sunday afternoon.

Leads in nearly all of the 12 events changed hands going into the third session this morning.

The new saddle bronc riding leader was Jimmy Lee of Fallon, Nev., and a senior from nearby Kaycee, Tye Curuchet, fell to second place.
Doug Olson of Casper, Wyo., rode his bull for a score of 76 to take the lead in that event, followed by early leader Blyss Mayham of Kim, Colo.
A Clinton, S.C., cowboy, Glenn Jordan took over the steer wrestling lead, and Kurt Butler of Edmond, Okla., had the second-best time going into today's performance.

Gene Baker of Tuscola, Texas, became the new leader in calf roping.
In girls' events, Cara Frazier of Brush, Colo., took over first place in breakaway roping, while Tammy Grabber of Perry, Ark., was second Monday night.
Dee Ann Burns of Colleyville, Texas, kept the lead in cutting, as did Tootie Miller of Visalia, Calif., in goat tying and Tera Mahoney of Hemphner, Ore., in pole bending.
Barrel racing competition had a new leader, Connie Crawford of Centerville, Mo.

Cowboys' Shaw needs more surgery

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys center Robert Shaw, who aggravated an old knee injury during an off-season conditioning program, will need additional surgery to repair a torn ligament, team doctors say.
But Shaw said he has decided to postpone the surgery and return to the Cowboys' starting lineup this season.
The 6-foot-4 center had an operation after the sixth game last year and reinjured his left knee while lifting weights during the off-season.

"The knee has gotten worse since the last time I saw him in March," Dr. Marvin Knight said Monday after Shaw's physical examination. "I don't know if he can play or not."
Shaw walked with a limp and his leg was heavily bandaged during a light workout Monday.
"I can't do much running," Shaw said. "The knee has been pretty painful."
He said he has not exercised his knee since reinjuring it six weeks ago.
Shaw was the Cowboys' No. 1 draft choice of 1979. Coaches said he improved last summer in training camp and officially won the starting position from John Fitzgerald.

Knight said that Shaw "overworked" his knee during off-season conditioning.
"Maybe I overdid it," Shaw said. "I don't know."
Tom Rafferty probably will play center again this season. He was shifted from his regular position at right guard after Shaw's injury. Rafferty, who did not report with the centers Sunday, is still considered a guard.

Johnson faces possible jail sentence

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Henry Johnson, a former starter on the University of Texas basketball team, faces a possible six-month sentence for playing basketball in a campus gym.
Johnson, who lost his academic eligibility midway through the 1980-81 season, was arrested in Gregory Gym last week and was booked into the Travis County Jail on a misdemeanor criminal trespass charge.
Justice of the Peace Guy Herman, who called the case "a waste of the court's time," set a personal recognition bond and released Johnson on Thursday morning.

"I don't think the Legislature meant for that (criminal trespass) statute to be used to give people six months in jail and a $1,000 fine for shooting hoops at Gregory Gym," said Herman.
UT police said in a statement that Johnson did not have proper authorization to be in the gym. UT officials strictly enforce a rule against use of the gym by non-students.
Hubert Gill, Johnson's attorney, said, "It seems like a hell of a way to treat a former basketball player."

Johnson, 23, is a Los Angeles native. He missed the 1977-78 season here with a knee injury. The 6-6 forward was among the Longhorns' leading scorers and rebounders when he became academically ineligible.
He never returned to the team and left school.

Texas League baseball roundup

By The Associated Press
Mark Johnson doubled home the winning runs in the fifth inning as the El Paso Diablos took a 4-2 Texas League baseball victory over the Jackson Mets.
In other Texas League action Monday night, Shreveport beat Midland, 8-2. Tulsa edged San Antonio, 2-1 and Arkansas blanked Amarillo, 6-0.
Johnston's double drove in Bill Foley and Randy Ready, who both singled. Jackson's only runs came on wild pitches.
Jesse Vasquez, 1-0, was the winning pitcher. The loser was John Violette, 1-3.

Bob Cummings had a two-run homer and Randy Crutcher had a solo homer in the first inning as the Shreveport Captains defeated the Midland Cubs, 8-2.
Joe Carter's two-run homer in the first had given the Cubs a 2-0 lead, but the homers by Cummings and Crutcher provided the Captains with enough runs for the victory.
Dean Kornacker drove in three runs with two singles for Shreveport.
The winning pitcher was Frank Williams, 9-6, who struck out 11. Doug Welenc, 10-9, was the loser.
Dave Stockstill had a homer as the Tulsa Drillers edged the San Antonio Dodgers, 2-1.

Ed Amelung hit his 18th homer of the season for the Dodgers.
Al Lacowitz, 8-7, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Dean Rennie, 9-5.
Jose Gonzalez and Luis Ojeda provided the hitting and Kevin Hagen provided the pitching as the Arkansas Travelers whipped the Amarillo Gold Sox, 6-0.
Gonzalez had three hits in five plate appearances and drove in three runs. Ojeda had three hits in four trips to the plate and drove in a run.
Hagen, 8-9, was the winning pitcher. Larry Brown, 3-5, was the loser.

Dorsett's wife wants divorce

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' Tony Dorsett has been sued for divorce by his wife of nearly two years, who cited a personality conflict with the 28-year-old running back.
Dorsett agreed in district court here last week to pay his wife, Julie Ann Simons Dorsett, a $2,500 monthly support through Oct. 1, pending a full hearing.
Mrs. Dorsett said in papers filed with Judge John L. McGraw that a personality conflict with her husband "destroys the legitimate ends of the marriage relationship and prevents any expectation of reconciliation."
Dorsett, the National Football Conference's second-leading rusher last year with 1,646 yards, said earlier that his wife and an extensive off-season conditioning program were reasons for his success.

The Dorsetts have been married since Sept. 1, 1980, and separated June 21, the divorce papers stated. They had no children together.
Dorsett has a 9-year-old son and Mrs. Dorsett has a pre-school-age child.
"I have nothing to say, and it's not even worth writing about," Dorsett said just before the team meeting Monday evening.
Mrs. Dorsett, also 28, is a native of Oxnard, Calif., near the Cowboys' training camp in Thousand Oaks. She met Dorsett during the 1980 camp when she was a nurse at Robles Hospital and Dorsett was undergoing a team physical.

She initially refused to go out on dates with him because she did not like football players, the couple said. But they carried on a long-distance relationship before their marriage later that year, and Mrs. Dorsett moved to the Seis Lagos development in the Collin County community of Lucas.
Under the temporary order granted last week, Dorsett will have use of their home and their Mercedes Benz, while Mrs. Dorsett will have use of their 1975 Volvo.

Nine swim records broken at Sports Festival

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — This is a time of records for the National Sports Festival, of bigger crowds watching faster and stronger athletes.
Swimming proved to be no exception when it opened its Festival run Monday night.
An enthusiastic crowd of 4,450 fans, described by some of the competitors as the largest they had ever seen in the United States, cheered as nine meet records were broken in 11 races in the new Indiana University Natatorium.
"I never had such a good crowd," said Michele Richardson, 13, of Memphis, Tenn., who set a women's 800-meter freestyle mark of 8 minutes, 40.24 seconds in the night's very first race. "When I saw the crowd, I almost died... It was very embarrassing."

"It's a fast pool, really nice," added Jacqueline Komenj, a record-setter in the 100-meter breaststroke at 1:12.99. "I could tell as soon as I got in it was fast. I think it's the fastest in the country."
"There were some minor things that went wrong," said Fauver, who skates with Miller out of the Wilmington

(Del.) Skate Club. "It was the kind of thing that happens when you're not 100-percent relaxed. The easiest performances are the best performances. Tonight was not easy."
Leonard Harvey Nitz also had a performance Monday that was not easy, but for a dramatically different reason.
Nitz, a cyclist from New York, won a pair of gold medals — less than three days after his mother was killed and his father injured in an automobile wreck in Utah.
He would talk only of his racing, not of his family tragedy. But in discussing his victory over Dan Casebeer in the point race, Nitz provided a clue to how he was able to overcome the death he had learned of in a phone call Sunday.

"It's all mental," he said, referring to cyclists. "That's what puts him over everybody else, the mental part. For myself, the stronger rider hardly ever wins. It's the guy who wants it the baddest, as you saw in the points race here."
Nitz, 22, also led his bike group to victory in team pursuit.
Local organizers said that ticket sales through Sunday totaled $738,000, far more than the old mark of $450,000 for an entire Festival set last year in Syracuse, N.Y. This year's runs through Saturday.

America's best swimmers have skipped the Festival to prepare for the World Aquatic Championships, opening Thursday in Ecuador.
Ice hockey opened. Mike Krensing and Gregg Moore scored two goals apiece in the North's 6-5 decision over the East, and a goal by Rich Costello with nine seconds left provided the South with a 4-4 tie with the West.
Paul Koscielski, the No. 1 men's tennis seed from South Bend, Ind., was upset by Mike Velasquez of Albuquerque, N.M., 7-5, 7-6 and then Koscielski and doubles partner Steve Bickham of Edmond, Okla., fell to Charles Short of Tacoma Wash., and Jim McNamee of Edmonds, Wash., 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, also in the semifinals. Velasquez played for the singles title today against Pat Harrison of Shreveport, La., who beat Richard Matuzewski of Hopewell Junction, N.Y., 6-1, 6-0.

And Kathy Arendsen, the famed pitcher for softball's Raybestos Brakettes, representing the East, uncorked two wild pitches for both runs in a 2-0 loss to the West, the Sun City, Ariz., Saint.
The 6-foot-2 right-hander took only her second loss in 26 games this season. She is 124-10 in her five-year career.
