Despite rumors, large local plants plan no more layoffs

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Despite rumors in town of layoffs at Ingersoll - Rand Oilfield Products and Celanese Chemical Plant, company officials say no further job cuts are planned — for now.

Meanwhile, oil drilling in the area continues on the wane, slowing down industrial production and retail sales in Pampa, and it seems no end to the slump is in sight.

Drilling is down about 25 percent in the area from its peak activity last fall.

Ray Hupp, vice - president for Ingersoll - Rand in charge of industrial relations, said a $1 million industrial revenue bond recently approved for the company will not be used there for expansion of the facilities.

He said the money will be used "toward regular machinery replacement" and plant renovation.

The bond's approval by Gray County Commissioners Monday does not mean more jobs for Pampans, but no job cuts are planned at Ingersoll either, Hupp said.

The fate of Ingersoll's employment situation is linked to the fate of the local oil activity.

Although oil exploration in the Panhandle continues to drop, Ingersoll has not made any large job cuts since a 20 percent layoff of its previous 1,000 workers in June.

"There have been one or two reductions" since the layoff, but with hundreds of workers at the company, a few jobs lost in that period is normal.

He said less than 10 workers have left the company since the big layoff, and some of those were voluntary resignations and transfers.

Ingersoll manufactures mobile drilling rigs and quality steel for oil drilling applications.

Phil Staggs, manager of industrial relations for Celanese, said that company is less affected by the local oil slowdown than other companies in the area, because Celanese products are sold at the national and international level.

"Our volumes have been fairly high," he said, but prices for Celanese products have not kept up because of the national economic situation.

"We don't see any clear signs of it picking up right now," he said.

Celanese is currently conducting a cost study of administrative work done at the plant which will evaluate the jobs of about half the 450 workers there.

Staggs said, however, that no jobs have been lost yet because of that efficiency study, which will be

Overloaded plane crashes and kills 12

LINDALE, Texas (AP) — A twin-engine plane carrying five more passengers than it was designed to hold crashed in flames shortly after takeoff and killed all 12 people aboard, including eight children and a popular religious singer, authorities said.

The Cessna 414, leased by the Last Days Ministries here, crashed in a wooded area Wednesday night after departing from a private airstrip near this town about 90 miles east of Dallas.

"I can't say it was overloaded until I know the size of the bodies, the amount of fuel, the amount of luggage," said Randy Brooks, a Federal Aviation Administration investigator from Shreveport, La.

However, Brooks said the plane's manual specified it had seven seats and a toilet.

Police and ministry officials said the 7:30 p.m. crash killed Christian music singer Keith Gordon Green, 27, two of his children, the pilot, and eight members of a Simi Valley, Calif., family.

The plane was en route to a Dallas airport where members of one family were to connect with a commercial flight, said ministry spokesman Larry DeGraff.

"The plane rolled down the airstrip and took off. For a moment everything appeared normal. But they apparently did not develop sufficient power to climb or their air speed was too low. It went into the trees," said Paul Long, a pilot who saw the crash while doing maintenance work at the airstrip's tower.

"It cleared the runway. It cleared an open field about a quarter-mile long. It went over a wooded area and clipped some trees. On impact it caught fire," said Smith County Deputy Larry Willbanks.

Blackout

About 100 customers west of Pampa lost electricity for about 45 minutes this morning, when an insulator on an electric "trunk line" shattered, and the resulting short tripped a circuit breaker, according to Southwestern Public Service Company Pampa District Manager Joe Gidden.

Gidden said the shattered insulator was on a wooden pole about 3 1/2 miles west of Pampa, just north of the Borger highway.

When the circuit shut down, about three hundred customers west of town, including several major industries and "quite a few residences" lost power.

Northern Natural Gas, Kerr - McGee Gas Plant and Getty Oil and others all were without power from about 9:35 to 10:20 this morning.

Pampa neighborhood will get new power substation after meeting

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

The electric company received approval for its new power sub-station inside the city limits, and the City of Pampa grew a little larger Tuesday.

Southwestern Public Service Company was granted a zoning variance to build the new Lyons Sub - Station in a residential neighborhood at Harvester and Bradley during the city commission meeting Tuesday.

SPS was granted the specific use permit on second reading, and construction of the power station can begin immediately.

Several neighbors in the area of the planned sub - station previously protested the location of the plant. They asked if the station can be built at another spot, but SPS officials said the site on Harvester was needed because its location is suitable for power transmission to an area of town with growing demand for electricity.

The station will boost power to East and downtown Pampa.

SPS officials said previously the new station is needed to aid two existing Pampa stations in meeting increased electric demand here.

They said a transformer at one of the existing stations overheated during a peak - demand period last summer.

SPS spokesmen said the new sub - station will be landscaped and built to be as attractive as possible.

The company wants to begin construction as soon as possible in order to have the station "on line" in time to meet peak demand next summer, when use of electricity is greatest.

Commissioners also approved second reading to annex the Sawatzky 152 Office and Industrial Park, and the area is now officially inside the city limits of Southwest Pampa.

The area brought into the city is south of the Borger highway, north of the Santa Fe railroad tracks, east of Price Road and west of Dwight Street.

Developer of the park, A. J. Sawatzky of Weatherford, Okla., plans to build offices, stores and light industrial businesses at the 55 - acre site.

Sawatzky recently opened a concrete panel plant on the Borger highway, which will manufacture the components of his concrete buildings planned for the industrial park.

The park still must be zoned for its planned use, and toward that end, commissioners Tuesday held a public hearing for changing zoning at the site from agriculture to commercial use.

No one spoke at the public hearing in connection with the zoning change. After two future readings, the change can be official.

Another zoning change approved by commissioners on second reading was a change from residential to

Bet you a hat it's Rain Day out in Waynesburg

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP) — Today's forecast called for sunny skies, but tradition is stronger than the National Weather Service in this Pennsylvania town where residents say rain falls almost every July 29.

It's Rain Day, the day on which rain has fallen here for 93 of the past 106 years, residents say.

"I have high hopes," said John Daily, the official Rain Day prophet, who each year wagers a hat that rain will fall on July 29 in this town of 5,000 people in the southwestern part of the state.

Although some skeptics dispute residents' recounting of the weather record, Daily has won hats from people including Johnny Carson, Bob Hope, Muhammad Ali and Jack Dempsey.

Daily, a retired lawyer, has lost only five hats in 44 years.

This year, Myron Cope, a Pittsburgh radio sports announcer, bet a hat that not a drop would fall from midnight Wednesday to midnight tonight.

"It's pouring right now," Cope said early Wednesday. "All the rain's getting used up."

Nonsense, countered Daily, who begins a vigil each year at midnight. He used to watch from the town's courthouse, but this year is opting for his patio.

"That way I can hear the first drop on the aluminum roof," he said. "Besides, it's more comfortable."

Daily and Cope said Wednesday they didn't know the weather forecast. They said it didn't matter.

The weather service forecast sunny skies today and a zero percent chance of precipitation.

"I can't say that it doesn't rain there every year, but this year we're not forecasting any at all for July 29," said Chuck Heckler of the National Weather Service.

"If it rains, it rains," said Jim Ealy, Waynesburg borough manager. "But if you're putting it in the newspaper, say I'm sure of it. I'd bet the house on it," he added, laughing.

In the old days, farmers would kill a black snake and hang it over an oak post to guarantee rain here. Lately, residents wash their cars or hang out laundry as sure-fire ways to open the clouds.

Cope insisted he would win his bet "unless they conjure up some rain in their imagination." Daily scoffs at the suggestion.

Back in 1947, however, B. L. Howard and two companions flew over town in an airplane and dumped out buckets of water, according to local history.

Residents say Rain Day began about a century ago when a farmer told two pharmacy clerks his records showed rain almost every July 29.

The clerks began keeping track, and in 1927, the task was handed over to Daily's father. Daily assumed the watch in the late 1930s.

During World War II, servicemen carried the tale out of Greene County to bet with their buddies around the world.

Each year, Waynesburg celebrates the rain watch with a festival. This year's two-day celebration, beginning today, includes a food fair and flea market, fireworks, an umbrella contest and road race.

commercial for a small area on Perryton Parkway.
A group of homeowners there are unhappy about noise and traffic along the street, after the opening of the Pampa Mall and Coronado Community Hospital.
They said the increased traffic makes the area a poor place for a home, and they asked for the zoning change in order to sell out to a commercial developer and move.
Also approved on second reading Tuesday was a zoning change from agriculture to residential for an area in North Pampa.
Developer of the Overton Heights Addition was granted the change for the area east of Beech Street, north of 23rd Avenue and west of Evergreen Street.
In other action, commissioners approved first reading of an engineer's estimate of the cost of curb and gutter work along improvements on Hobart, from 21st Avenue to the city limits.

The highway department is going to widen the road to four lanes, and the city is responsible for the curb and gutter work along the road.
The city initially pays for the gutter work, but property owners eventually must pay the cost.
Property owners along the road will be charged nearly $4 per foot for the curb and gutter work.
Properties which have existing curbs and gutters are not required to pay, according to City Manager Mack Wofford.
Commissioners also awarded a bid on a new air compressor for the utilities department.

Texas Service and Equipment of Amarillo was low bidder on the compressor at $7,846.
Two city board appointments were approved during the meeting.
Mrs. E.L. "Betty" Henderson was appointed to the Lovett Memorial Library board, and Fred Thompson was appointed to another two-year term on the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority board.
Commissioners then approved payment of $64,416 worth of city bills and went home.

Celanese, in its Pampa plant, manufactures raw chemicals from petroleum products for use in synthetic materials such as fibers, plastics and coatings.
Other local industries are still suffering from the slowdown, however — Halliburton Services has cut 22 of its 224 employees here last week, despite the company's decision to continue building its new field office in Pampa's industrial park.
And Serco, another oil field service company, was forced to "trim the fat" in its work force of less than 100 here early last month.
Staggs said he is reluctant to predict whether or not the pace of local industry will pick up.

Police investigating gun threat

Pampa police are investigating a Wednesday night complaint of an aggravated assault in which a man reportedly threatened another with a handgun.
Troy Britt, 19, of 1052 Neel Rd., called the police department at about 8:45 p.m. to report the assault.
He told police he was arguing with a man in front of his residence when the man pulled a gun on him, pointed it at him and verbally threatened him.
Police have classified the complaint as a possible aggravated assault, in which a deadly weapon is used or serious bodily injury occurs.

A woman who witnessed the incident, however, told the investigating officer that there was no gun involved, and she did not see a gun at any time.
Police said Jeanette Britt, 20, of 1054 Neel Rd., had called earlier at about 4 p.m. and reported a man had threatened her life.
Police have not released names of anyone accused by the Britts.
No arrests have been made in the incident, and Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said the possible assault is still under investigation by police.

Reagan says economic recovery will be a tough, slow journey

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American public, still suffering the pains of a year-long recession, must patiently endure a "tough, slow" journey toward economic prosperity. But when it comes, it will last, says President Reagan.
"I think we're going to see an improvement in the second half of the year," he said Wednesday night. But he refused to say it would be a robust recovery, as he had in the past.
Reagan told a news conference that the early signs of improvement already are evident. It was an upbeat projection, more so than many independent economists are delivering. But even Reagan said the gains will come slowly and not without further pain.
"It's tough, slow work and it's going to require enormous effort and patience from every one of us to correct the problems we inherited, but slowly and surely, we're working our way back to prosperity," he said.
"Evidence of a recovery has been sighted but it's only a beginning," Reagan said. "I think there are a number of signs that indicate that things are better for the people and they should be able to see (them)," he added.
The eventual payoff from his economic policies, Reagan promised, will be "more or less a permanent" recovery rather than the short-lived booms of the past.
Spurning warnings by critics of his policies that dire times are ahead, Reagan expressed total confidence that his economic program would work. His only regret, he said, is that people continue to suffer from hard times and that progress is too slow to suit him.

Reagan also renewed his call for a constitutional amendment for a balanced budget, saying the amendment "could have a very profound effect" in hastening a recovery.
He said the measure, now being considered by the Senate, would have a positive psychological effect on the financial markets, which are keeping interest rates high because they fear giant budget deficits and rekindled inflation in the future.
The amendment "would indicate the government is really determined to end this kind of runaway spending and have some fiscal integrity and common sense," Reagan said.
He refused to back down when asked how he could endorse the amendment after drafting the largest budget deficits in history.
"The budget deficits I don't think can be laid at an individual's door," the president said. He contended he would be presiding over smaller deficits had congressional Democrats given him all the spending cuts he wanted and the full tax cut, which he said would have fueled a stronger recovery from the recession.
Earlier Wednesday, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker told a Senate committee that he agreed with new congressional figures that predict the deficit for 1983 will be as large as $151 billion — some $40 billion more than the administration is forecasting.
Volcker also expressed concern that the prospect of deficits of comparable size through 1985 could drive interest rates higher in coming years and thwart a lasting recovery.

Pair try to buy Holiday Inn with rubber checks totalling $896,000

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two San Angelo men have posted bond and waived removal to California to face charges in connection with an alleged scheme to buy a Kerrville motel with counterfeit checks.
Attorney Anthony Nicholas of San Antonio said he was retained to represent Wendell Stasey and Wallace Wade Smith, both of San Angelo, and convinced U.S. Magistrate Robert O'Connor to lower their bonds from $1 million to $25,000 each.
Nicholas said the U.S. attorney in Fresno, Calif., agreed to his motion and the two men were released Wednesday and ordered to go to California for an Aug. 9 hearing.
Stasy, Smith and two California men were arrested by FBI agents a week ago and charged with conspiring to pass three counterfeit checks totalling $896,000, to make a down payment on the $3 million purchase of the Holiday Inn in Kerrville.
FBI agent Tom Harney of Fresno, Calif., said in an affidavit that the checks were drawn on Certified Grocers of California Inc., and were made payable to Consolidated Investment Trust Inc.
The affidavit alleged the plan was to deposit the three checks in an escrow account at a Swiss bank, then withdraw the money in cash before it was discovered the checks were no good.

Stasey, a San Angelo realtor, was charged with conspiracy to commit mail fraud, wire fraud, and interstate transportation of counterfeit checks.
Smith and Ralph Rane of Encino, Calif., and Jack Charles of Canoga Park, Calif., were charged with conspiracy to commit mail fraud.
Harney alleged in his affidavit that Stasey sent counterfeit checks totalling $896,000.17 to Randy Lawson, president of Freedom Funding Factoring in Merced, Calif., on July 12.
Lawson told the FBI that Stasey first called him July 6 and asked him to set up the account in the Swiss Bank's U.S. affiliate for the purchase of $200 million in land near Kerrville.
However, the affidavit said Lawson received another telephone call from Stasey after the checks arrived from San Angelo. Stasey instructed Lawson to withdraw the cash from the account once it had been established and deliver it to him in San Angelo on July 16, Harney said in the statement.
When Lawson advised his attorney, Howard Tangle, of the second telephone call from Stasey, "Tangle became suspicious of the transaction," the affidavit said.
When the pair contacted assistant comptroller David Woodward at Consolidated Grocers of California, Ltd., they discovered that the three checks were counterfeit, the FBI agent

Janella Just, 2, dies

Two-year-old Janella Just died Wednesday afternoon after being in critical condition for nearly a week from her injuries in last Thursday's five-car wreck east of Pampa.
Just, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Just of Enid, Okla., suffered a severe concussion in the wreck.
She was a passenger in a car driven by her aunt, Jana Kay Vaughn Brown, 21, of 2506 Mary Ellen, when Brown's vehicle struck a pickup head-on on U.S. Highway 60.
Brown was killed in that accident, and six others were treated for injuries after a car driven by Irvin Wayne Barber of Canadian struck Brown's vehicle in the middle of the road and then began a chain reaction involving two other vehicles.

Just was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital, where she died at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.
Services for the child will be 4 p.m. Friday in Barrett Baptist Church with the Rev. Dale Howard, pastor of Highland Baptist Church, Clovis, N.M., officiating.
Burial will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Enid Cemetery.
Janella Just was born August 25, 1979 in Borger. She moved with her family to Enid in March, 1982 from Pampa.
Survivors include: her parents; a sister, Jamie, of the home; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Just of Lela Lake and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Vaughn of Pampa; her great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Wasson of Pampa and Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Vaughn of Grandury.

Let FDIC put you in the banker's seat

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. is trying to find new owners to reopen two small-town Bowie County banks that went broke because of "questionable loans."

Guaranty Bond State Bank of Redwater and the Bowie County State Bank of Hooks, both near Texarkana, voluntarily were closed by their directors on Wednesday. State bank officials who went to the jointly-owned banks for a routine examination three weeks ago discovered the problem loans, according to State Banking Commissioner Robert Stewart.

Depositors at the two banks were greeted with a terse notice posted on the two banks. "We have voted to close the bank on this date," the directors told depositors.

Roy Jackson, FDIC regional director in Dallas, said FDIC officials hoped to meet with potential purchasers of the two banks Wednesday night. He said bids for the banks would be received today.

Stan Clark, an FDIC spokesman at the meeting, declined to comment on what transpired at the meeting.

"Our goal now if we can work out the transaction is to have a new bank open in either one or both communities Friday," Jackson said. "We want to minimize as much as possible the time the banks have to be closed, the depositors without their money."

Larry Hamilton, owner of the Redwater Grocery Store next door to the Guaranty Bond State Bank, said, "There are a lot of people out here who depend on this bank for everything."

Deposits in Bowie County State Bank totaled about $13.6 million and Guaranty Bond State Bank held about $12.6 million, according to Alan Whitney, FDIC spokesman in Washington.

All deposits in the banks fell below the $100,000 maximum guaranteed by FDIC, he said.

Deputy State Banking Commissioner Gary Pool would not comment Wednesday on the nature of the "questionable loans."

The banks were the 23rd and 24th in the nation to fail this year, Whitney said, adding that a total of 10 banks failed in 1981. The FDIC insures deposits in 14,800 banks.

The last Texas bank to close was the Bank of Woodson on March 2.

A news release from Stewart's office said the two banks could show no collateral for some outstanding loans. Stewart said those loans had to be classified as losses for the banks, rendering them insolvent.

The loans were made by Guaranty Bond State Bank, but the Bowie County State Bank bought a "substantial portion" of the loans, according to Stewart. The banks share ownership. Henry Earl Fagan owns the majority of stock and is president of both banks. Fagan drew some publicity in March for his $12 million to $15 million investment in "And They're Off," a horse racing movie filmed in Kentucky.

Fagan could not be reached for comment Wednesday. Calls to his home telephone, which was answered by a recording system, were not returned.

Pool said the closings has "absolutely nothing to do with the economy, national, state or local." A grand jury investigation of the banks would be "a normal course of action," he said.

Stewart said "it seems clear" the problems were limited to the two Bowie County banks.

"No other state bank in Texas has suffered adversely. Overall the banking industry in Texas is in good condition," he said.

The FDIC worked quickly to try to find new owners to reopen the banks in Hooks with a population of 2,500.

Battered child is near death

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A neurologist and two other physicians will decide when to disconnect a respirator that is keeping a burned and battered 2-year-old child alive, hospital officials say.

The team of doctors remove life support systems only when certain the patient's brain is dead, said Dr. Berry Squyres, chief of staff at Lubbock General Hospital.

An electroencephalogram performed Tuesday on Robert Hernandez did not detect brain waves, doctors said. A second test was performed Wednesday, but the results were not available.

Squyres declined to comment specifically about the case, except to say that the child remained in extremely critical condition Wednesday night.

The child has cigarette burns on his chest and back, laceration of the genitals, bruises and a gash on his head, a hospital spokesman said.

Police said a piece of metal removed from the child's head leads them to suspect the boy may have been hit with a metal object.

The child's stepfather, Lee Roy Orana Licon, 28, was arrested Tuesday and charged with injury to a child. He was being held in the Lubbock County jail on $100,000 bond, said Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack.

Licon is accused of beating the boy in the head with his hand, said Assistant Criminal District Attorney Marta Rosas.

Licon could be charged with murder, if the child dies, Blalack said.

Police said Licon told them the child collapsed Monday after he ate rat poison in his eastside home. But blood tests performed on Hernandez did not detect the presence of poison, detectives said.

The child was found nude in the front yard of Licon's home Monday, police said.

Licon and his common-law wife, Amelia Hernandez, said that they heard a loud crash and found the child on their kitchen floor. Licon said he put Hernandez in a shower to revive him, then called an ambulance.

The team of physicians that will make the decision on removing the child's respirator will include his attending physician, Squyres said.

"On any patient, life support systems will continue until there is certainty that brain death occurs," he said. "We will follow that protocol in every case."

Spokesmen in the district attorney's office said that the absence of a legal definition of death in the Texas Penal Code has created problems for doctors trying to decide whether to terminate life support systems.

Youth is afraid of Mom's church group and runs away for safety

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A 14-year-old in hiding here says he fears his mother's religious group and he'll run away for the eighth time if he is forced to return home.

Jeff Brown called The Associated Press bureau in Des Moines Tuesday to describe a 4 1/2-hour grilling he said he received from leaders at the group's religious commune after being returned to his mother's custody by a Polk County judge on Friday.

"This head guy he made me go down to his office and talk to him for 4 1/2 hours. He told me my attorney, my grandparents, all my family ... he said they were all screwed up," the youth said.

Brown said his goal is to find an organization to help him continue the court battle to live away from his mother, Vonda. "I have lost all respect for her, but I still love her," he said.

A spokeswoman for the Iowa Civil Liberties Union says it is looking into the dispute and it may represent the youth.

"Where he's at now he's safe," said Deanna Agan, the youth's aunt. "He'll stay either until he has to go back to his mother or some organization steps in to help."

Judge Luther Glanton Jr. ruled there was no evidence the religious group to which Brown's mother belonged — The Way International — is a "bad religion." He also said she was "an excellent mother."

Brown had been staying with his grandparents pending the outcome of the child custody case. His grandparents asked to have him removed from his mother's custody.

Chattanooga's Choo-Choo Street
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Once you could just sing the "Chattanooga Choo Choo." Now you can drive down it. The City Commission on Wednesday approved the honorary renaming of a 14-block downtown section of Market Street as Choo Choo Boulevard. Chattanooga businessman B. Allen Casey, board chairman of the Chattanooga Choo Choo hotel and convention complex, had requested the new name.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Small business aid shows poor record

Experience suggests it's almost to much to hope that rational critiques will make much of a dent on the Washington mentality. But maybe a little irrational anger will cause some rethinking about how the government deals with small businesses.

New York City pornography fighters deny news that the federal Small Business Administration in 1977 made a loan to what the Associated Press describes as "one of Times Square's richest and raunchiest sex emporiums." Seems that an investment company with an allocation of federal money for deserving small business (at 9 percent) lent the Show World Center $65,000.

The SBA pled ignorance when the story finally leaked out. But it's ironic to note that, from a strict business standpoint, the loan to the New York porn place was probably among the better ones that SBA has made. The Show World Center reportedly used the money to renovate offices and repaid the loan. It didn't get hooked on federal subsidies, as so many of the SBA operations.

Periodic scandals in the SBA have become so routine as to be hardly newsworthy any more. Columnist Donald Lambro has called the agency "one of the government's grossest examples of bureaucratic corruption and political favoritism." In addition to the scheme that fed bucks into the skin arcade, the SBA supervises programs to encourage minority businessmen. What happens too often is that a white operator with a nose for "free" federal money will set up a minority person as a figurehead president and wallow in the federal gravy. In 1979, the last time SBA investigators waded through the files, fraud investigators challenged one of every five loans supposedly designed to help minorities.

More troubling is the tendency of the SBA to take a potential entrepreneur, set him up with federal loans, make him dependent on federal money and make him progressively less able to handle the rough - and - tumble of the competitive marketplace.

The idea that government should be assisting "small business" at the expense of all others is itself questionable, but even ignoring that issue, the SBA is failing by almost any measure. The "set - aside" program for "minority - owned businesses," for example, was experiencing a 3 percent success rate as of earlier this year.

The New York porn - shop loan, eyebrow - raising as it was, is just the tip of the iceberg. The SBA is so rife with documented abuse that it deserves to be abolished forthwith.

Hold that step

President Reagan's announcement that the United States is prepared "in principle" to send up to 1,000 U. S. troops to Lebanon to help evacuate PLO guerrillas could hardly have been less welcome.

It is difficult to fault the hope that led to the president's announcement. The world has watched with mounting horror as Beirut, already battered by the arena of a full - scale war. And yet, the return of American troops to Lebanon, where they last sought to restore order in 1958, would be but one more trigger for a U. S. combat role in this unhappy crossroads of the world.

All who want the bloodshed to stop would wish for the success of whatever is attempted, but that hope should be tempered by a realistic assessment of the chances. The remarks of deputy press secretary Larry Speakes are hardly reassuring in this regard.

Speakes suggested that U. S. troops would not be deployed "until we had received assurances regarding their safety." He also said that "we would make absolutely certain as near as we can that U. S. troops would be protected. We would get very specific as to what they would do and how they would do it."

Yet the idea of sending U. S. troops to Lebanon has surfaced precisely because the situation is volatile, dangerous and unpredictable. It is difficult in such circumstances for any entity - the Lebanese government, the PLO high command or the Israeli army - to offer believable assurances regarding the safety of U. S. troops, no matter what restrictions on their use are drawn up in Washington.

American soldiers in Lebanon would constitute a threat of force to facilitate a PLO withdrawal. The U. S., of course, hopes that the threat of force would be sufficient to prevent the actual use of force. In any case, U. S. troops would not be going into Lebanon to be protected, even if there were any entity in that country that could guarantee protection. They would be going in to protect others, an inherently dangerous job. If it were not dangerous, all diplomatic words and carefully phrased agreements could keep them from harm, there would be no reason not to send in unarmed soldiers, or to recruit a traveling troupe of choirboys for the job.

The idea of some kind of multinational peacekeeping force anchored by a substantial U. S. presence has been discussed since the initial Israeli invasion. A number of military officials have expressed serious reservations about the idea.

Defense Secretary Weinberger, on June 22, noted that placing U. S. troops in such a "volatile area" as Lebanon "might very well bring American troops into a situation where they get shot at, and where they have to kill Israelis, or kill Arabs, or kill civilians." Little could be gained, and a great deal could be lost, by such killing.

Air Force Gen. David Jones, just before his retirement as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff last month, spoke of what he called "the difficulty of keeping the Soviets out of the region" if U. S. troops were introduced.

The PLO guerrillas to be escorted would doubtless prove unpredictable and potentially dangerous in their current condition, no matter what their titular leaders might promise. Indeed, even those leaders reacted negatively to the Reagan's offer.

What's more, no matter where the PLO remnants are transported, the arrangements are bound to be unsatisfactory to many. Does the U. S. wish to be identified with further sowing of Mideast animosities?

As a general principle, it is the better part of wisdom for the United States to avoid intervening in the squabbles of the world, even for the best of motives. Most Americans have disabused themselves of the notion that U. S. troops have a magical power to resolve ages - old disputes simply through their presence on the scene. In addition, even small contingents of troops can serve as a tripwire leading to large - scale involvement in disputes whose importance to U. S. interests is at best secondary.

Last month the A. P. quoted an anonymous "top general" as saying, "I see no reason for us getting in the middle of that catfight." That's still a sound sentiment.

Farmers in much of the Corn Belt this year expect to harvest big, perhaps record - breaking, crops. The gardens, too, show it is a remarkable growing year. Apparently, the weather has been very favorable.

Why does the weather change greatly, one growing season to the next? Is there anything man can do about it? He will have to learn the answer to the first question before he can answer the second.

Present theory has it that a blanket of dust or smoke in the atmosphere will impede the sun's rays and cause the average temperature on the surface of the earth to be colder than normal.

On March 29, 1982, a huge volcano in southeast Mexico erupted, blowing some 10 million tons of debris into the air. This created a blanket of dust and sulfuric acid, floating 12 to 18 miles above the ground. With the rotation of the earth, the blanket was elongated into a trip encircling the globe and reaching as far north as New Orleans. The blanket is some 6 miles thick.

It was predicted that this dust would obstruct the sun's rays enough to reduce the average temperature in the northern hemisphere by 1 degree

Fahrenheit. It apparently has not done so, for the warmth and the resulting plant growth have been even better than usual.

However, the prediction has not been wholly disproved. The temperature, though equable, may have been lower - due to the dust cloud - than it otherwise would have been, and yet higher than normal.

Weathermen cite history to prove that they had grounds for their prediction. In 1815, there was a terrific explosion of Tambora, a volcano in Indonesia. The following year, 1816, was abnormally cold in the United States, "winter all summer," some said. In England, the river Thames froze. Again, at the end of the 19th century, many volcanic explosions occurred on the island of Krakatau in the east Indies. During that period, temperatures were noticeably low and ice formed further south than usual.

Perhaps the densest cloud of dust of all time was the one that, according to theory, caused such cold that it put an end to the dinosaurs, which had dominated the earth for millions of years. It is believed to have been caused by an asteroid colliding with Earth.

The Moslems see the hand of Allah in the extraordinary weather in the Persian Gulf region this summer. Torrential rains fell in areas where it almost never rained before. In South Yemen, about 500 people were killed in floods. South Yemen being Communist - ruled, one Moslem preacher declaimed, "Allah's deluge warning to the atheist Arab Marxists is telling." "Al Arabi," a magazine published in Kuwait, claimed the weather shift was the beginning of a new cold age, which will lead to far - reaching economic and political consequences in many parts of the world. The United States, said the magazine will become the world's dominating power through its grain production.

Do acts of man affect climate? Soviet Russia is planning a huge project in Siberia that may change the earth's climate for either better or worse. They plan to divert several rivers that now flow north into the Arctic and cause them to flow south into the Volga and thence to the Black Sea. The water now warms the Arctic slightly. Diverted to the south, it will make Soviet grain fields more productive but will also cause northern countries, such as Canada and the U.S., to be colder than at present. The job is to begin in 1983, and the first water from the north could be flowing into the Volga by the late 1980's.

Until man learns better what causes weather changes and what may cause disastrous ones over wide areas, he had better not invest too heavily in global alterations.

Weather is beyond man's control

Infamous last words

By DON GRAFF

For callous, calculated greed in marketing, there's no beating the tobacco industry.

Ever since the initial Surgeon General's report fingered smoking as a major national health hazard, producers have been simultaneously saying it isn't so and misusing the research that supports the indictment of their product to keep smokers buying.

They continue to flood the market with low - tar, low - nicotine cigarettes, pushing these supposedly safer brands as the answer to the concerned smoker's problem. The ads would have you believe that low ratings according to research standards, far from being measurements of relative peril, are virtually equivalent to seals of approval.

With notable success. The low brands account for about a third of a cigarette market that is pushing $20 billion a year.

The truth of the matter is that there is no safe cigarette - or even safer, if lower - rated brands lead to smoking more or inhaling more deeply. There is also the carbon monoxide produced by the burning process and the still unknown consequences of ingesting the chemicals that producers don't publicize - trade secrets - but add to the tobacco to compensate for taste lost with the removal of tar and nicotine.

But give the industry credit. If it could produce not only a tarless but a smokeless cigarette, perfectly safe in all respects but in effect giving the smoking public nothing for its money but continuation of the habit, there's no reason to doubt that it would try. As long as the public would buy.

And if not a smokeless cigarette, why not smokeless tobacco? That's the chewing and dipping variety.

While the promotion effort is virtually subliminal compared to that behind cigarettes, it has the familiar ingredients. Ads pairing the product and attractive young people suggest not only the acceptability but desirability of use.

Smokeless tobacco has a marketing advantage over cigarettes in that it is not required to carry the health - hazard warning. But it ought to, as the American Cancer Society points out in a current release on the consequences of chewing and dipping.

They include leukoplakia, white patches inside the mouth that result from irritation by tobacco juice and in 5 percent of diagnosed cases lead to oral cancer. Also decreased ability to taste and smell, receding gums among other dental problems and discolored teeth.

"The ads never discuss the health risks or social issues," the society notes. "It's their job to make chewing and dipping appealing."

The ads and the labs aren't the only fronts in the tobacco war. It's also being fought in Congress, which has passed new price support legislation. It is a considerable retreat from previous support programs shifting the bulk of the subsidy burden from the taxpayers in general to the growers themselves, who will be assessed for a fund to cover losses resulting from low market prices.

Even so, foes of a "killer crop" were narrowly defeated in an effort to make the new program even more restrictive.

The leader of the attack, Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D - Mo., is himself a smoker, which led to a brief Senate - floor exchange of last words on the subject of tobacco and health.

Challenged on his two - pack - a - day habit by Sen. Walter Huddleston, D - Ky., Eagleton described it as a curse and rued the day of his addiction.

"Don't blame the little tobacco farmer for the weakness you have," Huddleston returned.

Maybe not. But what about the others in a big industry that take over from him? (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

By ART BUCHWALD

It's all in the waist

By ART BUCHWALD

As everyone is aware many of the clothes that you find in stores are now made in Taiwan, Hong Kong, or South Korea. While they are not lacking in quality, there are problems with sizes.

For example, I bought a pair of shorts the other day marked LARGE. When I attempted to put them on, I discovered they did not fit. My first fear was that through bracket creep I had become X - LARGE. But before I panicked, I asked my son, who is a MEDIUM, to try them on. They fitted him perfectly. It was obvious the people in Hong Kong had made a mistake. Fortunately, there was a slip included with the shorts which said, "ANYTHING WRONG WITH GARMENT PLEASE REFER TO INSPECTOR 7."

I immediately telephoned information, located the factory in Hong Kong and called. Inspector 7 was not there but I got someone in charge who spoke English. I explained the problem of the sizes.

He said inspector 7 was a very reliable man and had worked in the factory for 15 years. This was the first time they had had a complaint about him. He even admitted it was the first time they had had a telephone call from the U.S. about any of their inspectors.

I told him I didn't want to make trouble for Inspector 7, but I was just curious about how they inspected their shorts that were exported to the United States. I mentioned that many of my friends were also having difficulty with the sizes of Hong Kong shorts.

"What do you want to know about Inspector 7?" he asked.

"Well, for one thing - how tall is he?"

"I believe he is 4 feet 11 inches," the man said.

"And how much does he weigh?" I wanted to know.

"We never weigh our inspectors," the man said. "But I would guess 95 pounds."

"Then that could be your trouble. Are most of your inspectors about that height and weight?"

"Yes, but I don't see what this has to do with your shorts."

"It's quite clear. To them a MEDIUM looks like a LARGE size, a LARGE looks like and X - LARGE and EXTRA - LARGE is too much for them. They are thinking in terms of themselves when they're inspecting your shorts. Do they ever try them on?"

"Once in a while..."

"There you are. Inspector 7 puts on the shorts, and on the basis of his height and weight is down - sizing all your garments. He has probably never seen a truly LARGE or an EXTRA LARGE waist in his life."

"There was a pause on the other end of the line followed by some fast chatter in Chinese. Finally the man came back on the phone and said, "We will be happy to make a pair of shorts to your size if your will give us your measurements."

"That's very kind of you," I told him. "But I'm calling not only for myself, but for all the large - sized men in America."

"Would you like us to fire Inspector 7?"

"Of course not. Inspector 7 is probably a very fine man. But I don't believe you should permit him to try on shorts for America."

"All of our employees are small," the man said.

"Then in order to maintain your credibility in the United States I suggest that you invite some portly American tourists to come into the factory and show your inspectors what is a LARGE size in shorts and what is X - LARGE."

"But if we do that, Inspector 7 will lose face."

"He will either have to lose face or put on weight. If you people in Hong Kong want to flood our stores with clothes, you're going to have to start thinking BIG."

Dear Abby

Heavy friend creates weighty problem

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What are a hostess's obligations toward a guest with special diet requests? We have a relative (very heavy) who visits fairly often from another city. She asks for artificial sweetener for her tea and constantly checks the labels on the salad dressing bottle and canned goods to find out how many calories everything has. She asks for dietetic or sugar-free desserts, and later on in the evening she says, "A diet pop would taste good."

None of us is diabetic, so we don't ordinarily have those things on hand for ourselves. Do you think I should purchase these special low-cal, sugar-free items for her visits, when it is obvious from her size that she's not all that fussy about calories when she's at home? Thanks.

HOOSIER

DEAR HOOSIER: In these calorie-conscious times, one need not be a diabetic to keep diet drinks and low-cal food on hand. If it doesn't work a hardship on your budget, it would be generous of you to accommodate your frequent visitor. But either do it graciously or not at all. Your resentment would be hard to conceal.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old male and my problem is my voice. It is still very high-pitched, and I sound like a girl. When I answer the telephone, I have been asked, "Is your husband home?" When I call a girl, and her mother answers, I have heard in the background, "Who is it?" Then the mother says, "It's some girl!"

I am developing a complex over this. If my voice doesn't change pretty soon, should I see some kind of doctor? Maybe I am missing some hormones. Please help me.

SOUNDS LIKE A GIRL

DEAR SOUNDS: You're on the right track. An endocrinologist can determine whether you have a hormone deficiency — and if so, the deficiency can be corrected.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently given a beautiful bridal shower. My question is this: Is it necessary to send thank-you notes to everyone who attended the shower and brought a gift? I thanked them all at the shower — and sincerely. Several did not make it to the shower, but sent gifts. My mother says I should send them thank-you notes because they didn't hear my verbal thanks expressed, but it isn't necessary to send written thanks to those who were there. My fiancé thinks I should send a written thank-you note to everyone who attended. Abby, there were 70 people there, and I have so much to do these days with the wedding only six weeks away! Also, there's the expense of postage and stationery. I think a verbal thank-you is enough.

I will send-out thank-you notes for my wedding gifts after the wedding. Would it be all right to thank people for their shower gifts and wedding gifts in the same note? That way I could kill two birds with one stone.

BUSY BRIDE

DEAR BUSY: If you want to "kill" two birds — don't use a stone, use a pen and write two notes. A verbal thank-you is better than nothing. But to be absolutely proper, send a written thank-you note for every shower gift received. Ditto for your wedding gifts.

And by the way, since it's your fiancé's wedding too, there's no reason why he can't pitch in and help write those notes.

"The Best of Dear Abby," featuring Abby's best answers and favorite responses during the past 25 years, is now available. You can obtain a copy of this new best-selling book by sending $9.95 plus $1 for postage and handling to "The Best of Dear Abby," in care of this newspaper, 4400 Johnson Dr., Fairway, Kan. 66205. Drugs & sun don't mix

FORT WORTH, TX — Certain drugs may expose the people who use them to greater risk of sunburn and heat exhaustion, according to a physician at Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Johannes Steenkamp, D.O., chairman of TCOM's department of public health and preventive medicine, reminds the public that drugs such as tetracycline (an antibiotic) and Thorazine (a tranquilizer) sensitize the skin, increasing the chances of sunburn.

Amphetamines, atropine-related drugs including marijuana and drugs for stomach cramps like Donnatoil and Bentyl affect the heat-regulating system in the brains, he said. Drugs with diuretic (promoting the secretion of urine) effects such as caffeine also affect the way the body responds to heat exhaustion.

"If you think your medication may expose you to greater risks in summer," Dr. Steenkamp said, "check with your physician."

Disabled: Public attitude a problem

NEW YORK (AP)—Recent breakthroughs in technology and legislation have helped thousands of Americans with disabilities break down the social and professional barriers they've encountered in the past, says Robert Ross, executive director of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

"However," he adds, "one major problem that can't be solved with science and laws is that many people are unsure of how to relate to a person with a disability, and therefore feel uncomfortable with such a person."

To overcome this difficulty, MDA offers these suggestions:
—Speak directly to the person in a normal tone of voice.
—Don't rely on a companion as a go-between.

—Don't be patronizing to a person with a disability. Don't assume that his or her life is less interesting or active because of the disability. Don't talk "down" to a person with a handicap.

—Be considerate of the extra time it might take a person with a disability to get things said or done. Let the person set the pace in walking or speaking.

—Offer assistance if you wish, but do not insist that the person accept it.

—Don't tower over a wheelchair. Consider sitting down to share eye level.

—Don't automatically hold on to a person's wheelchair. It is part of a person's body space.

—Don't move a wheelchair or crutches out of reach of a person who needs them.

—Don't refrain from discussing sports or physical activities.

Ross also suggests that you should not avoid the issue of the person's disability. The person is very aware of it and will most likely be more than willing to answer questions.

Organization is no small task

Ladies, I'm here to tell you, you don't know what sanctimonious is until you've gone through all those bits and scraps of recipes that you've clipped throughout the years and put them in some kind of order.

I had recipes everywhere. They were stuck in drawers, cupboards, phone books, magazines, jammed in envelopes, pockets, taped on mirrors, in old handbags.

They were scribbled on cards, backs of envelopes, my driver's license and warranties.

I'm telling you, you do something like this and it's good for the soul. You feel so full of purpose, so organized, so superior to anyone in the same room with you.

First, I sat in the middle of the floor and every clipping that showed a picture of a cook who was thin... got pitched out. I've never trusted thin cooks to know anything about food, and don't know why I clipped them in the first place.

Then I pitched out every recipe that began, "Have the fishmonger clean three pounds of octopus. Rinse the octopus and pat dry before pounding it with a mallet or meat tenderizer for five minutes."

Usually, I saved these recipes after I had just seen a Grace Kelly movie, but in my heart I knew nothing would come of it.

I was on a roll now and the stack was getting smaller, so I made a decision to toss out any recipe I couldn't read. This included the ones in another language and the ones where the ink had become blurred with sauerkraut juice, egg white, oil and spilled coffee.

Then I looked for repeats. Who needs 187 recipes for turkey breasts holding their breath beneath a tranquil sea of cream of chicken soup and mushrooms, and 55 recipes for carrot cake?

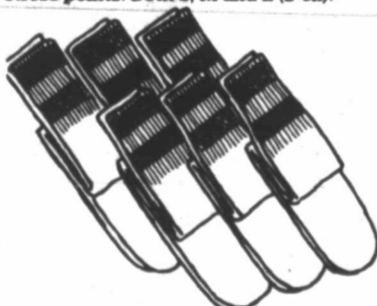

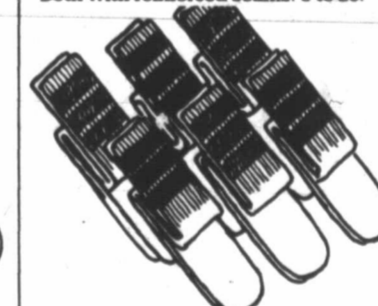

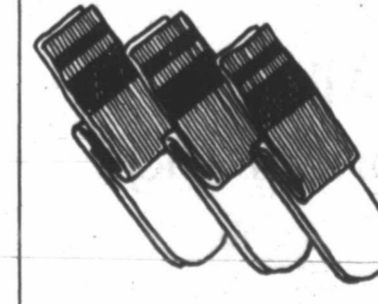

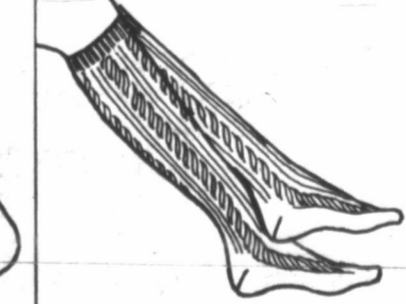

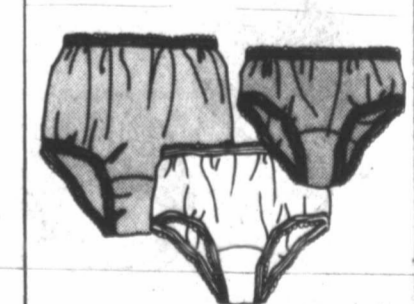

Aren't women silly to put off something like this for years? I now had a floor full of tantalizing, mouth-watering recipes that I wanted to save forever. I got out one of those cute little recipe holders like a carousel that flips them up so I can see them as I cook, two books with envelopes on each page, and a cute little accordion number with asparagus tips on the cover and a green ribbon.

I threw the mess in the stove drawer.

I'm going to finish it... tomorrow... maybe.

Sheriff: dealer either stupid or FBI'

GALVESTON (AP) — An FBI undercover attempt to "sting" the Galveston County sheriff netting nothing but embarrassment and cost taxpayers almost $6,000, county officials say.

Now county officials want to be reimbursed for the expense, but the government does not appear willing to comply.

The FBI's top agent in Houston recently sent a letter to County Judge Ray Holbrook, implying the sheriff's department knew about the operation and that any expense could be blamed on the county.

"You might be interested in knowing that the FBI is in possession of credible information that representatives of the Galveston County Sheriff's Department incurred whatever expenses were involved in their efforts to close in on an alleged narcotics ring after it was suggested to them that they might be interfacing with another law enforcement agency," said the letter from agent Homer Hauer.

The spy-versus-spy dispute surfaced June 10 when deputies arrested an undercover FBI agent.

Officials said the man had told a sheriff's department informant he would pay $25,000 per shipment of drugs to any law enforcement or judicial official who could help ensure safe passage of illegal drugs through the county.

"The sting got stung. We did a better job than they did," Chief Deputy J.D. Irwin said.

Undersheriff Charles Wylie said the bribe offer and smuggling proposal were so poorly planned that officers decided during the course of the investigation that the suspect "was either a stupid drug dealer or an FBI agent."

Wylie said the FBI began its investigation on the basis of unsubstantiated information from a "street character" that Taylor's protection could be bought.

Holbrook later sent a letter to the FBI, asking the county be reimbursed for expenses incurred by the department investigation of the attempted bribe.

The bill included $4,951.98 in overtime for 33 deputies; $243.50 for film and processing; $312.77 for lodging and food; and $124.74 for gasoline and miscellaneous expenses.

Owning a home not so attractive

NEW YORK (AP) — Is home ownership a good investment?

Seldom did you hear that question five years ago. Those who did ask found a bushel of affirmative evidence. Now people ask the question every day. And in response they are showered with a bushel of "No's."

Even so astute an observer as Richard Pratt, Federal Home Loan Bank Board chairman, told a Washington audience earlier this year that the public no longer perceives ownership as an attractive place for funds.

As always, Jack Carlson, operating head of the National Association of Realtors, jumped to the defense, proclaiming, "There's nothing wrong with housing markets that lower interest rates will not remedy."

From others came the reminder that if housing has turned bad then so have stocks, savings accounts, automobiles and other products affected by high interest rates. Nothing unusual about housing, they said.

While those responses produced confirmation, if any was needed, that housing is hurt by high borrowing costs, they did very little to show whether buying a house today is a worthwhile investment.

Neither have the analyses of various securities firms, which measure the price appreciation of a house but usually ignore the dividends, which include low down payment, big tax deductions and shelter.

These three benefits radically change the return on a home investment.

LOW DOWN PAYMENT. Houses still can be purchased for 10 percent down, versus 50 percent in the stock market. Such leverage works wonders.

TAX DEDUCTIONS. High interest rates obviously make monthly carrying charges onerous. Offsetting this, to some extent, are tax deductions.

SHELTER. No sensible evaluation of housing as an investment can fail to include the rent equivalent. How much would it have cost the owner to rent space elsewhere? Perhaps $80,000 for 20 years? More perhaps?

It seems to be a safe bet that young households are aware that housing as an investment offers various attractions, not just appreciation.

Polaroid mentor resigns

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Edwin H. Land, the founder and creative genius of Polaroid Corp. for more than 40 years, resigned this week as chairman of the instant photography giant, the company said.

Land, 73, will devote his efforts to the Rowland Institute for Science, a private non-profit institution for basic scientific research that Land founded, Polaroid said in a statement. Land also resigned as a company director.

Polaroid's board of directors elected William J. McCune, 67, to take Land's place as chairman. McCune took over as president and chief operating officer from Land in 1980.

Land will continue as Polaroid's consulting director of basic research for five months to provide transition for current projects now under way, the company said.

Land, his family and foundations own 3 million shares, or about 10 percent, of Polaroid stock, the largest single holding of the company's stock.

Firing of inspector said illegal

FORT WORTH (AP) — A federal investigator says a quality-control inspector at the Comanche Peak nuclear plant may have been fired illegally for reporting construction deficiencies, but no proof exists for that conclusion.

Don Driskill, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission investigator, testified Tuesday during the second day of a hearing before the U.S. Atomic Safety and Licensing Board about the firing of Charles Atchison, a construction inspector for plant builder Brown & Root Inc.

"It is possible that he (Atchison) may have been fired for writing non-compliance reports," Driskill said.

After new life in Sweden, he's back serving 22 years for LSD

POWHATAN, Va. (AP) — David T. McBride's seven-year odyssey to escape a 25-year prison term for selling LSD is over. After fleeing to Canada and then Sweden, he's back behind bars, serving the remaining 22 years of his sentence.

"I've suffered enough punishment," said McBride who while in Sweden started a shipbuilding business and led an "exemplary" life, according to a U.S. consul there.

McBride, 34, was captured May 5 at New York's Kennedy International Airport while en route from the Virgin Islands to his home in Stockholm.

"I have rehabilitated myself," he said during an interview at the Powhatan Correctional Center, a unit for parole violators and escapees.

He has written Gov. Charles S. Robb, requesting clemency from the remainder of his sentence. His earliest parole date is 1985 but, McBride said, "I can't stand it (in prison) that long."

Among those backing McBride is former Bedford Commonwealth's Attorney Harry Garrett Jr., who prosecuted McBride.

Garrett wrote Robb that McBride's life in Sweden is "further confirmation of his...rehabilitation." The U.S. consul in Stockholm, Robert F. Dorr, described McBride as "law-abiding and apparently exemplary."

McBride, who has a

Swedish wife and a 2-year-old son, said the worst part about being back in prison is separation from his family, staying with his parents in Lynchburg.

"Personally, I think about my family and my son. He's confused, and his life could be destroyed by this. He needs...me home," he said.

McBride was convicted in March 1971 of twice selling LSD tablets to a man working for police.

"I admit freely to being wrong. I was around 21 when it happened. In the late 1960s and early 1970s, many kids...were experimenting with marijuana and LSD, and some sold it to friends," he said.

"I don't think anyone was given 25 years for a first conviction. I should have received one or two years. The three years I spent in prison were enough punishment."

After appeals failed, McBride was sent to the Southampton Correctional Center, where he became a trusty. He fled while on a weekend furlough in July 1975.

McBride, whose first marriage broke up while he was in prison, said, "It was getting harder and harder to return. I had given up hope. There were murderers there serving only 10 years."

A carpenter before entering prison, McBride peddled his carpentry tools for about $1,000, left Lynchburg and went to Washington, where he sent a letter to the Southampton warden apologizing for escaping.

"I can see no other way or path," he wrote.

From Washington, he flew to Seattle and, a few weeks later, backpacked into British Columbia.

Supporting himself with odd jobs, he went to Alberta and then to Toronto, where he met his Swedish wife, Maria.

After a year in Canada, McBride and his wife went to Sweden, where he told authorities of his past.

Swedish officials gave McBride a passport and told him he must inform police of his status every three months. He soon received a permanent residency permit that allowed him to settle in Sweden.

Using $1,000 he and his wife had saved and some money borrowed from his in-laws, McBride began building sailboats in 1978 and eventually set up his own boat-building company.

McBride decided to travel to the Virgin Islands several months ago to look for more work. The family also was considering moving there because "we felt it would be good to be close to the United States so our son might go to school in the U.S."

McBride was unable to get a direct return flight to Sweden, so he decided to make connections in New York.

While switching airlines at Kennedy, he had to pass through customs, where his passport was routinely run through a computer. The readout showed he had escaped from prison in Virginia.

When he realized he had been caught, McBride said he was flooded with the "pain of memories of prison. I began thinking of my family and Sweden and that everything was now destroyed."

McBride's wife and son came to America and will stay with his parents "until I get freed. There's no choice but to stay as close as possible."

On July 19, McBride was given a one-year suspended prison term for the escape, but that suspension does not affect his original sentence.

Secretary of the Commonwealth Laurie Naismith said McBride's attorney is preparing a formal pardon request which she will investigate. Naismith's findings will be given to the state Parole Board, which will make recommendation to the governor.

Meanwhile, McBride while in West Housing, established three years ago as a central location for prisoners being considered for release.

"I hope Governor Robb will realize I am a human being who has suffered enough," he said. "I want freedom now so I can put my life back together."

Texas business briefs:

By The Associated Press
HOUSTON — Officials at Tenneco Inc. reported a slight increase in net income Tuesday for the second quarter of 1982, while earnings per share were off slightly.

Net income totaled $20 million, compared with $20 million for the second quarter of 1981, Tenneco spokesman said. Operating revenues totaled $3.7 billion for both periods, and earnings per share dropped from $1.50 a year ago to $1.44.

The energy company reported gains in oil exploration and production, natural gas pipelines, shipbuilding and automotive supplies.

Officials blamed the recession and lower profit margins for declines in the company's chemical construction and farm equipment divisions and in oil processing and marketing.

AMARILLO — Mesa Petroleum officials said Tuesday that second-quarter net income for common shares was $32.2 million for a 31 percent increase over the same time last year.

Mesa spokesmen said earnings for the latest period totaled 48 cents, compared with 35 cents for the second quarter of 1981.

Plainview golfer takes lead in Tri-State Tourney

Plainview's Jack Williams, one of the favorites to win the State Senior Golf Association title, broke out on Thursday with a 71 Wednesday in the 9th annual tournament played at the Pampa Country Club.

Williams' 71 went with a 69 on Thursday for a tournament-leading 140 total. The three-time winner of the West Texas Golf Association is in his first year of eligibility for this tournament.

Scott Hall of Pampa, the tournament leader with a 68, led to an 81 Wednesday in developing some putting problems. However, Hall's total still kept him in the championship flight.

Jim Deaton of Missouri shot a sparkling 66 on Thursday to vault him into second place with a 142 total for a first-round 76.

Bob Giese of Amarillo, who came back to Tri-State in 1979 and 1980, is in third place with a 143 (72-71).

Roy Peden of Kermit, the tournament winner, holds down fourth place with a 147 (75-72). J. Rowland Ferguson of Dallas, the defending champion, shares fifth place with Henry Richards of Corsboro at 148.

The third round of play is scheduled today after the championship flight was rained to the low 16 holes (ties) Wednesday. The remaining 14 golfers will be pitted into the president's flight for the last 36 holes.

Wednesday's cutoff was 153, leaving 17 players in the championship flight.

The first through eight flights have their second round of match play today. In today's match play, the 16 semifinalists in each flight will play 18 holes of match play Friday to determine the winner and runner-up of the respective flights.

Players in Wednesday's match play will play matches today with the survivors of the stroke play Friday. The consolation and runner-up titles in each flight.

In Cheyenne Rodeo

Early leaders hold on for payoffs

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Early leaders in rough stock events held on for first go-round payoffs, while the second go-round in calf roping and steer wrestling got off to a quick start in the fifth day of the 86th Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo here.

Lewis Feild of Payson, Utah, took two checks home Wednesday, $2,315 for his first-place 80 in bareback bronc and $1,343 for his third-place tying score of 75 in saddle bronc.

The biggest payoff so far in the $392,000 rodeo was the $6,678 that went to calf roper Clark Hankins of Rocksprings, Texas, Tuesday for his 11.4-second performance in the event's first go-round.

While riders wrapped up the first go Wednesday, Jeff Dorenkamp of Avondale, Colo., grabbed the early second go bulldogging lead by dropping onto his steer's horns before it got up a good head of steam and wrestling it down in 7.5 seconds.

Former world champion steer wrestler Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla., was second in Wednesday's action with a time of 9.1 seconds. Wayne Eateringer of Theford, Neb. was third with a 9.7.

The deep, wet dirt of the arena floor kept most times slow in the roping events, but the last roper of the day, Jerry Dotson of Pryor, Okla., posted a respectable 13.0 for the second go-round calf roping lead.

Close behind was Chris Lybbert of Coyote, Calif., currently third in world calf roping standings, with a 13.5. And North Platte, Neb., cowboy Clark Brown was third with a 13.7.

Steer roping was in the midst of the second go-round, and H.L. Todd of Burlington, Colo., retained his lead at 15.1 seconds.

In rough stock, bareback bronc rider Gordon Griffith of Loveland, Colo., came up with a 75-point ride Wednesday to tie for second in the event with Monk Dishman of Kountze, Texas, and each took home $1,647.

Despite several crowd-pleasing rides, the judges didn't award any scores high enough to change any other rough stock standings.

The 83-point saddle bronc performance by Buddy Reynolds earlier this week earned the Slaton, Texas, cowboy a first-place check for $2,686. Monty Henson of Mesquite, Texas, with an 81-point ride, got second-place money of $2,170.

And 21-year-old Rickey Lindsey Jr. of New Waverly, Texas, kept the bull riding lead with a score of 82, bringing him a $3,018 payoff Wednesday.

Bryan McDonald of Eaton, Colo., got a bull with a sense of revenge Wednesday. He was bucked off midway through his ride, and the bull came and walked over McDonald's body.

Bullfighters Wick Peth and Bobby Romer slapped and shouted at the bull, which then began butting and hooking McDonald with its blunted horns.

Eventually, Peth grabbed the bull's tail and practically dragged it away from McDonald, who managed to walk from the arena but was taken to a Cheyenne hospital, where he was reported in stable condition Wednesday night with a broken arm, lacerations and bruises.

Spit'n Polish

John Perry of Kingston, Okla. shows off a sparkling silver spittoon he received during an awards ceremony Wednesday night at the Pampa Country Club. Perry, 83, is the oldest golfer competing in the Tri-State Golf Association Tournament this week. Perry shot a first round score of 103 Tuesday. The 48th annual tournament continues today with the third round of action. (Staff Photo)

Richard posts mound victory

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Former Houston Astros mound star J.R. Richard led the franchise's Daytona Beach farm club to a 6-0 Florida State League victory over the St. Petersburg Cardinals Wednesday, smothering the first eight batters he faced and notching two strikeouts.

But Daytona Beach Manager Eric Swanson said after the game he had been most impressed with Richard's fielding — "something that's always been a question mark."

In the bottom of the second inning, Richard flagged down a sizzling high hopper wheeled and easily threw out Cardinal batter Ken Spears a first.

After the game, Swanson called Richard's improved glove work "as encouraging as his pitching performance."

Richard went seven innings in the Class A game, giving up four hits and two walks. His pitching still lacked the blistering speed that was his trademark in the National League, before he suffered a near-fatal stroke two years ago. But his control was sound, and Richard showed none of the wildness that plagued earlier Florida State League starts.

Pampa area gridders to participate in Greenbelt Bowl

Ricky Bond

Ricky Bond of Wheeler and Theron Stubbs of McLean will be competing in the 33rd annual Greenbelt Bowl Football Classic Friday, Aug. 6 in Childress.

Bond, a 215-pound offensive guard, will be playing for the East squad while Stubbs, a 200-pound offensive guard, is listed on the West squad.

Kickoff time is set for 8 p.m.

The Greenbelt Classic is a showcase for many top athletes from West Texas and Central Oklahoma who have been overlooked by college scouts, according to W.E. Mitchell of the Greenbelt Bowl Association.

"Some of these athletes have signed to attend schools and many other talented boys are asking for a last look at their abilities," Mitchell said. All squad members are seniors.

Stubbs was named to the Class 1A all-state second team last season and was an all-district (1-1A) selection on both offense and defense. Bond was one of the few bright spots in Wheeler's 3-6 season.

Brian Wallace, a 240-pound center from Borger, will play for the East. Scott Tinkersley, a 190-pound linebacker from Caprock, is also on the East squad. C.M.

Martin, a Palo Duro fullback, will play for the West.

Players and coaches report at 1 p.m. Sunday for a meeting and a short practice session. Rich Lawrence of Panhandle State University will coach the West while Don Carther of Lubbock Christian College will coach the East.

Both squads will work out twice daily at Childress Fair Park Stadium.

Lori Tyree will represent Wheeler in the football queen contest, which will be held at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 5 in the portico of the First National Bank in Childress. McLean does not have a queen candidate.

NL roundup Atlanta extends lead to eight games in National League West division

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

"San Diego Manager Dick Williams figured he could change his luck by getting his team to the ballpark late and not take batting practice. It didn't help, though.

"The Braves are in a heck of a position," said Williams after his Padres' third straight loss to the National League West leaders Wednesday night.

Atlanta's 8-6 victory in the big series between the 1-2 teams in the NL West moved the Braves a hefty eight games in front of the Padres, their biggest advantage of the season.

Atlanta right-hander Phil Niekro collected the 250th victory of his career but preferred to look at the numbers in the standings instead.

Bob Horner knocked in five runs for the Braves with a two-run homer in the first inning and three-run shot in the third. That gave the Braves the cushion they needed to offset a late rally when San Diego scored once in the eighth and three times in the ninth off relievers Al Hrabosky and Gene Garber.

Niekro, 10-3, worked seven innings, allowing five hits, while walking two and fanning three. He was working on only three days' rest and lifted his career record to 250-219, becoming only the 34th pitcher in major league history to reach that victory level.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Philadelphia 4, Pittsburgh 3; Montreal 5, Chicago 3; Houston 4, Cincinnati 2; St. Louis 7, New York 5 and San Francisco 6, Los Angeles 2.

Phillies 4, Pirates 3
Mike Schmidt hit his 16th home run and Philadelphia scored three runs on two Pittsburgh errors to beat the Pirates in a game highlighted by the record-breaking fielding performance of the Phillies' Manny Trillo. Larry Christenson, 6-5, was the winner with relief help. Ron Reed finished up for the Phillies, posting his fourth save after giving up a sacrifice fly to Dale Berra in the ninth.

The Phillies' three unearned runs came in the second inning off Rick Rhoden, 6-9. After the Pirates came back with a run in the third, Schmidt hit Rhoden's first pitch of the sixth inning for the Phillies' winning run.

Trillo set a major-league record for second basemen, playing in his 87th consecutive game in a season without an error. His performance Tuesday night had tied the 86-game mark set by Rich Dauer of Baltimore in 1978.

Expos 5, Cubs 3
Warren Cromartie and Tim Raines each drilled three hits and knocked in a run apiece to lead Montreal over Chicago.

Bill Gullickson, 8-8, scattered eight hits, struck out seven and walked one in 8-1/3 innings before Jeff Reardon took over. Reardon gave up Jody Davis' run-scoring double and RBI singles by Larry Bowa and Bob Molinayo before securing the victory for Montreal.

Dickie Nolis, 6-9, was the loser.

Astros 4, Reds 2
Art Howe slugged a two-run double in the sixth inning to power Houston over Cincinnati behind Joe Niekro's seven-hitter.

Ray Knight drew a walk from loser Mario Soto, 8-7, to lead off the sixth and took second on Jose Cruz's single. Two outs later, Howe doubled to score Knight and Cruz and give the Astros a 3-2 lead.

Niekro, 10-7, went the distance for the eighth time this season, striking out two and walking three.

Howe hit his double after striking out twice previously against Soto, the NL's strikeout leader.

Cardinals 7, Mets 5
Lonnie Smith tripled home the tying run in the seventh and scored one out later on George Hendrick's double, leading St. Louis over New York. Before rallying for three runs in the seventh, the Cardinals blew a 4-0 lead they had built after three innings.

Zimmer fired as Rangers' boss

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — What bothered Texas Rangers majority owner Eddie Giles about the firing of his manager was not the deed, but the way it was reported.

Chiles blistered area sports reporters during a press conference announcing Don Zimmer's dismissal and the naming of Darrell Johnson as the team's 11th manager in 11 seasons.

Zimmer was told Monday that he would be fired but Chiles asked him to keep the information secret and stay on until Wednesday night.

However, rumors of the firing began circulating late Monday and local newsmen pursued the story, reporting the firing long before Chiles' official Wednesday announcement.

Zimmer and others said Chiles handled the firing badly, but Chiles said all blame rests with "the news media."

"It wasn't planned to be handled this way," he said. "I've heard on radio and TV ... that it was badly handled. It wouldn't have been if the press hadn't gotten involved in a way they weren't entitled to."

"A lot of the media have the 'Watergate syndrome,' where they think they have to dig for something bad. This matter was set up to be handled as well as it could be, then it was leaked to the press and it was like a tornado had broken loose."

Chiles said reporters should have exercised restraint, even to the point of not pursuing the story.

"There is a limit the media should go to," he said. "The press has no license to run roughshod over someone's dignity."

VB tryouts set for August 9

Volleyball tryouts for the Pampa High girls' team will be held Aug. 9, according to coach Roxie Johnson.

Coach Johnson may be contacted at 665-7982 for more information.

Pampa opens the season Aug. 17 at Palo Duro.

Earlier Wednesday, Zimmer admitted he was disappointed in the way his dismissal had been handled.

"You don't fire a man, then tell him to go to work," he said. "Why didn't he fire me Monday? Or why didn't he wait until today (Wednesday) to tell me?"

"I asked Don Zimmer, as a personal favor to me, to stay on and manage for a couple more days, to give me the opportunity to find a replacement," Chiles said. "He, being a gentleman, said

Louisiana governor against vote act extension

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Louisiana Gov. David C. Treen has refused to join his fellow Southern governors in giving Congress and the president a pat on the back for extending the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Treen cast the lone vote Wednesday against a resolution offered at the Southern Governors Association's 48th annual meeting on this barrier island resort, saying he felt his own state could handle the job of making sure all citizens' voting rights are protected.

"I don't think there is any state in the South that discriminates," Treen told 10 fellow chief executives on the last day of the four-day conclave.

The Republican governor labeled as "anachronistic" the requirement that certain states, most of them in the South, have to go to the U.S. Justice Department to get prior approval for changes in legislative districts and election laws.

Treen said he wanted to make it clear that he favors voting equality for all citizens, regardless of race or position.

Mississippi Gov. William Winter replied, "I don't think it is anachronistic."

He said there should be assurances that people are voting according to today's conditions rather than "the conditions of 30 or 40 years ago."

South Carolina Gov. Dick Riley, the host of the convention and the outgoing chairman, joined Winter in speaking for the resolution, which had been introduced by Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

The governors voted 10-1 in favor of the resolution. Later, Treen said he cast his negative vote to register his continuing opposition to the preclearance section of the act.

"I'm not willing to say as governor of my state that Louisiana is being unfair," he told reporters.

The brief exchange was one of few open disagreements between the chief executives in a "no-frills" conclave that was mostly work leavened by a little play.

Another resolution with a regional slant asked the Reagan administration for protection for the suffering U.S. textile industry from the "unprecedented flooding" of Chinese imports into domestic markets.

Riley, whose state counts textiles as its No. 1 industry, offered the resolution.

A textile executive told the governors Tuesday that China would become the top exporter of textiles to the United States if its textile exports were allowed to continue.

William A. Klopman, chairman and chief executive officer of Burlington Industries Inc. of Greensboro, N.C., urged governors to work to convince the administration to reach a bilateral trade agreement with China.

A proposal approved by the Senate and pending in the House to double the cigarette tax from 8 cents per pack to 16 cents was opposed in a resolution offered by North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt.

The resolution, which was endorsed, put the association as being opposed to "any action by the federal government to preempt, either directly or indirectly, sources of state revenues, state tax bases or state taxations methods."

Hunt, whose state produces more cigarettes than any other, indicated the cigarette tax was his main concern.

The governors also voted to move their headquarters from Atlanta to Washington, prompting concern from Florida Gov. Bob Graham and Hunt that the group's staff would be in danger of losing its Southern perspective.

But Clements later said the Southern Governors Association needs "to get closer to the action ... to where we can oversee and protect ourselves."

Also attending the meeting were Kentucky Gov. John Brown, Missouri Gov. Christopher S. "Kit" Bond, Puerto Rico's Carlos Romero-Barcelo, Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, and West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller, who arrived about a half hour before the governors' group adjourned.

Mourner says death is not the will of God

LINDALE, Texas (AP) — The deaths of 12 people — including a "phenomenal" Christian musician who led Last Days Ministries, an off-beat charismatic religious commune — were not God's will, a mourner says.

Keith Gordon Green, 27, a Christian singer; two of his children; the pilot, and eight members of a Simi Valley, Calif., family were killed in the fiery crash of a twin-engine Cessna 414 Wednesday night, officials said.

"God right now is just as broken-hearted as anyone here. It was not his will for them to die," said Gregory Potts, a leader of Agape Force, a similar mission located five miles from Last Days Ministries.

Potts wept as he described Green's work to a reporter.

"He was a man you wouldn't notice because of his looks ... but for the fact that you could see the love of God radiate from his eyes," he said.

"He had a burning desire in his heart to see America come back to God and to serve the God that our forefathers loved and knew," Potts said. "I just know our country has lost one man that God was dearly trying to save. And I also know that it was not God's will for him to die."

Sparrow Records President Billy Ray Hearn said in Canoga Park, Calif., that Green was impulsive and greatly talented.

"He was the most phenomenal Christian artist on the scene in the past few years. His first record sold a quarter of a million in the first two to three years. In Christian circles that's phenomenal," said Hearn.

"He was very impulsive and when he thought God was telling him to do something he went out and did it right then," Hearn said. "There's no telling what he could have accomplished."

He said Green used the leased plane to fly to concerts.

Hearn said Green was a professional songwriter at 13, was under contract to CBS music, and cut a record for Capital before his conversion to fundamental Christianity. Sparrow recorded Green's first two religious albums, Hearn said, but after the singer moved to East Texas he "started recording his own so that he could give them away to people that wanted them but couldn't afford them."

Green founded Last Days Ministries in the fall of 1977 in a Los Angeles suburb, and moved it to the East Texas town of Lindale in 1979.

The record executive said Green had housed up to 50 children, mostly "newly converted street kids," in dormitories located at ministry complex.

"When he was living in Los Angeles, he had five or six homes full of kids," Hearn said.

Hearn said Green had a concert ministry, ran a half-way house for new converts, and published a newsletter. Ministry officials said the newsletter is distributed free to 200,000 people.

"It's a self-contained community where people live, work and go to school," said H. Philip Hook, director of the Pine Cove camping ministry in nearby Tyler. "It's really not a cult," Hook said of Last Days. "I'd describe it as an off-beat, charismatic kind of movement that attracted mostly young people."

About 80 people, ranging in age from their late teens to early 60s, lived in the Last Days trailers at the rustic mission. They agreed to obey the Bible, and although smoking and drinking were not forbidden, members spent most of their time printing small religious leaflets.
