

Heavy rains flood Amarillo, but cause only minor damage here

By DAVID CHRISTENSON and TOM ALLSTON
Of The Pampa News

While slow, soaking rains fell on Pampa and the Eastern Panhandle Thursday night and this morning, causing Red Deer Creek to swell to its banks (see photo right) torrential rains dumped up to four inches of rain on some parts of Amarillo, causing flash flooding in an area near a man-made lake.

The National Guard called out in Amarillo to help evacuate residents of a nursing home as Lawrence Lake overflowed its banks for the second time in two years, driving elderly residents from a nursing home, flooding streets and businesses, and disrupting telephone service.

"The damage is probably going to be as bad as last year," Amarillo Police Sgt. H.R. Kelly said.

Residents of the Olsen Manor nursing home on the edge of the lake were evacuated, Kelly said, and the National Guard was also alerted to stand by to keep looters away from the flooded stores if needed.

Flash flood warnings were continued today in eight Panhandle counties through 5 p.m. because of the 30 percent chance of thunderstorms throughout the day.

The warning includes Gray, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Potter, Randall, Cotter, Armstrong and Donley counties.

The warning began last night in the steady downpour, and was originally scheduled to end at 10 a.m. today.

Skellytown received a reported 4.5 inches of rainfall during the night, but the situation there was "just muddy," according to an observer, with no flooding problem.

Pampa had 3.4 inches from a steady fall that began during the night and continued into this morning with no significant letup.

Pampa's Red Deer Creek was full from bank to bank this morning, threatening a washout in the Somerville bridge area.

The Gray County Sheriff's office reported no serious highway flooding this morning.

The National Weather Service said they had received no such reports either, except in the city of Amarillo and Palo Duro Canyon.

The flooding occurred in the same area where a Labor Day flood last year caused $20 million worth of damage.

One resident of the lake's watershed area said he measured 4.1 inches of rain during the night.

Palo Duro Canyon reported about four feet of water over the first creek crossing there, but much of that flooding was said to have run off by this morning.

Private audit report praises city's accounting

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

The accounting firm which conducted the outside audit of last year's city finances said the firm can make no opinion about the city's method of balancing its books, but complimented the city on adopting an improved method of handling its money.

The auditor said he found "no material weakness in internal accounting control," but said "taken as a whole" the firm could offer no opinion about the city books.

The lack of an opinion about the way the city accounts for taxpayer's money is contained in letter from the auditor to city management marked "confidential."

The City of Pampa changed its position on keeping this document from public inspection and released a copy of the audit document to The Pampa News, following repeated requests from the newspaper.

The letter follows the required outside audit of city books for fiscal year 1981, which ended September 30th of last year.

The audit was conducted by Amarillo CPA Frank Marrs of the firm Peat, Marwick and Mitchell.

The audit letter directed to city management is a critique of the city's accounting methods, listing weaknesses and strengths about the way the city accounted for its money during the year.

Both Marrs and City Manager Mack Wofford initially refused to release a copy of the audit letter, "despite numerous requests."

The men said in their opinions, the letter is a "management tool," intended for internal city business and excepted from the Texas Open Records Act and release to the public.

The city commission also initially refused to release a copy of the audit itself, when it was first presented by Marrs to commissioners during a public meeting of the panel earlier this year.

However, following a written request for the document and consultation with City Attorney Don Lane, the city released a copy of the audit the same day it was presented to commissioners for their consideration.

But at that time and after subsequent verbal requests, Wofford said, the city would not release a copy of the audit letter.

The previous year's audit letter was highly critical of the way the city handled its books.

Wofford later changed his mind and provided the document to the newspaper, following a discussion with Managing Editor Anthony Randles.

"We don't have anything to hide, it's just that we feel this is intended for management," Wofford said about his earlier refusal to release the audit letter.

Marrs refused to discuss the way his firm conducted the outside audit or to discuss his audit letter to management.

"I was hired by the commissioners, and unless I am instructed otherwise, I won't discuss it," Marrs said.

When first contacted, Marrs said he would not comment about the audit, unless the discussion was first "cleared" with Wofford.

He later refused to discuss his list of accounting recommendations, "unless the commissioners are present."

The firm was paid about $20,000 to conduct the audit, according to Wofford.

Marrs said he believes the public has a right to know about the audit for which citizens paid, but he declined to talk about it unless a meeting with him, reporters and the city commission could be arranged.

During the past several weeks, Wofford said he attempted to set up the meeting requested by Marrs, but a date was never set.

"He was supposed to call you about a time," the city manager said about the CPA.

Marrs never called. Before recommending how the city could improve its method of money watching, the CPA apparently first asked the city for permission.

The audit letter says: "The factual accuracy of our comments has been discussed with the management personnel responsible for each area so as to obtain their concurrence prior to the development of our recommendations for improvement."

The opinions reached by Marrs about city accounting procedure were also qualified in several other areas of the audit letter.

It says the audit is "an incomplete presentation since the financial statements of the General Fixed Assets Account Group were not included."

Fixed assets are a complete listing and assigned value of all property owned by the city.

The city has no listing of city property and its value but is currently working on one, according to Wofford.

When he presented the audit to commissioners, Marrs told the panel the absence of a listing of city property violates "generally accepted accounting principals."

Marrs' audit letter also says his look at city books "would not necessarily disclose all material weaknesses in the system. Accordingly, an expression of an opinion on the system of internal accounting control taken as a whole cannot be made."

House fire does big damage

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

A house fire broke out this morning in a vacant home at 733 Albert, causing heavy damage before Pampa firemen quenched the blaze.

The fire department was called to the fire by Kenneth Banks at about 7:10 a.m. today.

Kenneth Banks, who lives near to the house, is the son of Emma Banks, owner of the damaged residence, according to fire officials.

Firemen discovered a blaze in the kitchen had burned through the attic and made a hole in the roof of the building.

Three fire department units responded to the blaze, which investigators said caused heavy damage to the kitchen and attic and smoke damage to the rest of the house.

The attic was "scorched pretty bad" when the fire burned upward through the kitchen ceiling, according to one fireman who worked the blaze.

No one was living in the Banks' house at the time of the blaze, so no one was injured, and no furniture or appliances were burned.

Firemen said the blaze began in the kitchen cabinets. Cause of the fire is unknown and is still under investigation.

The fire trucks returned to the fire department's south station at about 8:30, after waiting at the scene to make sure the blaze would not break out again.

NCPAC turns its big gun on Bentsen race

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

The National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC) has put U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen's re-election campaign under fire for what they call deliberate distortions of his voting record.

Bentsen, the incumbent Democrat, will face Republican Representative Jim Collins in November's general election.

The Associated Press reported Monday that NCPAC is planning to spend $300,000 in Texas to oust Bentsen.

The national lobby has already purchased television time in various Texas cities for commercials portraying Bentsen as a liberal and identifying him with liberal senator Ted Kennedy.

NCPAC chairman John T. Dolan now claims Bentsen's political coordinator, Joseph P. O'Neill, sent a letter to NCPAC in protest of the commercials, a letter which claimed the TV commercials were inaccurate.

In a press conference in Dallas Wednesday, Dolan said O'Neill's letter "deliberately distorted Collins' record to distract attention from where it belongs — Bentsen's liberal voting record."

The votes disputed by O'Neill were on the issues of prayer in public schools, federal funding for abortion and congressional pay raises.

NCPAC's commercials claim Bentsen has "consistently" voted against school prayer and for more spending in the other two areas.

O'Neill's letter said Collins has voted six times in favor of federal abortion funding, but a NCPAC spokesman said Collins' record on the issue is "clean as a whistle," and that he has voted 40 times against the funding.

Bentsen, NCPAC said, has voted 33 times for and four times against such funding.

O'Neill's letter allegedly claimed Collins voted "at least three times for congressional pay raises."

NCPAC claims Collins has never voted for a pay raise, and has voted nine times against them.

The NCPAC spokesman said research in the Congressional Record revealed Bentsen voted five times for a congressional pay raise and nine times against such bills, but that their televised statement that Bentsen voted for a 29 percent pay hike in 1979 was valid.

Rain won't stop 'em from riding in White Deer

WHITE DEER (Sp.) — "It'll be a little sloppy tonight, but we're going to go ahead with it," Johnny Freeman, president of the White Deer Roping Club, told the News this morning.

White Deer's annual rodeo got under way Thursday night in spite of damp conditions that threatened, but failed to deter, the scheduled performance and special events.

An estimated 2500 spectators saw Bobby Adcock of Canadian dominate the first night's competition. Adcock placed first in bareback bronc riding, tied for second in bull riding, and led the team that won the first night's double mugging event.

Event the Amarillo skydivers providing an exciting opening for Thursday's and Saturday's performances performed as scheduled, making their dives into the arena in spite of overcast conditions that hampered takeoff of their aircraft.

Craig Lewis adjusts his grip on the riggin' before asking for the gate on a bad one.

The rodeo performance was preceded by barbecue prepared in a special, 50-foot open pit.

Tonight's scheduled performance will go on after drenching rains that dumped moisture ranging from two to four - plus inches over most of the Eastern Panhandle.

"They're over at the arena right now," Freeman said this morning, "trying to get it in shape. He said arena conditions for tonight's show will be 'pretty muddy.'"

Freeman said he expects times tonight to be hampered by arena conditions.

"The leaders from last night are in pretty good shape right now," he said.

But all scheduled events are to proceed as planned, he added, including tonight's performance, and the parade, carnival, skydives and final performance scheduled for Saturday.

"We're hoping it may clear for Saturday," Freeman said. "We're going ahead with everything — unless the creeks just flood us over."

First night's results in all events were:

Bull Riding: 1. Rocky Lowery, Amarillo, 64; 2. (Tie) Leslie Barrett, Amarillo - Bobby Adcock, Canadian, 57.

Bareback Bronc: 1. Adcock, 68; 2. Ernest Lancaster, Amarillo, 59.

Still, what Marrs does say in his audit letter is the city has made vast improvements in its methods of handling money over the previous fiscal year.
 The same firm had criticized the city in several areas of accounting procedure in the previous year's audit letter.
 Past weaknesses included the city's failure to balance its bank statements for an entire year; failure to control cash for city purchases; failure to segregate duties of city employees who handle funds; failure to maintain an inventory of city property; easy access to the city check signing machine; and failure to pre-number city checks with magnetic bank account number.
 In the current audit letter, Marrs said the city adopted most of his firm's previous suggestions and has corrected most of the above problems.
 However, criticized again in the current audit letter are the city's failure to maintain an inventory listing of city property and limited segregation of duties of those employees who handle funds.
 Wofford said preparing the fixed assets listing is a "mammoth task" currently underway.
 "We know what (inventory) we have, the problem is placing a value on it. Making this list, you have to assign a

CIA agent pleads innocent to explosives smuggling charge

HOUSTON (AP) — An attorney for former CIA agent Edwin Wilson says she will seek to dismiss a four-count indictment accusing her client of smuggling more than 20 tons of plastic explosives from the United States to Libya.
 Wilson pleaded innocent to the charges Thursday. He has been held at a secret location near Washington, D.C., for several weeks in lieu of a $20 million bond set in another smuggling case.
 U.S. Magistrate Frank Waltermire did not alter the $20 million bond.
 Wilson's Houston attorney, Marian Rosen, said that represented "cruel and unusual punishment." She also vowed to seek to have the bond reduced, noting that bonds for the other two defendants named in the July 19 indictment were set at $2,000 and $10,000.
 "He is not going any place," she told reporters outside the courtroom.
 Wilson was a fugitive outside the country until his arrest last month when he landed in New York City. Ms. Rosen, however, argued that the charges should be dismissed because her client was "lured" back to the United States illegally.
 "Based upon that and other extenuating circumstances, we do plan to challenge the jurisdiction of this court and of the United States," she said.
 Agents checked court spectators with a metal detector outside the courtroom. Wilson, a tall, stoop-shouldered man, was brought in guarded by two men, who hustled him away at the end of the arraignment.
 Afterward, Ms. Rosen refused to say specifically why she objects to Wilson's return to the country last month and his arrest in New York on an April 1980 indictment. Government sources have said Wilson had been trying to go from Libya to the Dominican Republic, which he believed would be a safe haven.
 Wilson threatened to kill the chief prosecutor in that case, Assistant U.S. Attorney E. Lawrence Barcella, aboard a flight from Madrid to Zurich, undercover U.S. Marshal Philip M. Tucker said in an affidavit filed this month.
 Ms. Rosen said she did not know when Wilson arrived, where he was being held or when he would leave Houston.
 Wilson was indicted along with attorney Edward J. Bloom, 73, of Pomona, Calif., and Donald Thresher, 42, of Houston. They are accused of shipping 42,470 pounds of the plastic explosive C-4, carried in unmarked five-gallon cans aboard a chartered plane from Houston to Tripoli, Libya. Federal agents have described the shipment as one of the largest illegal movements of explosives ever investigated.
 Thresher, who owns a freight handling company, also is charged with lying to a federal grand jury in March by saying he did not know Libya was the destination of the explosives.
 U.S. Attorney Dan Hedges said Bloom would make an initial appearance Monday in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.
 In the earlier case, Wilson was indicted in Washington in April 1980 on charges of making other illegal shipments to Libya. That indictment, which also named Frank Terpil, another former CIA agent, also accused the pair of training terrorists and of conspiring to assassinate a Libyan dissident. Terpil remains at large.

Still no chief appraiser

By JEFF LANGLEY
 Staff Writer
 The Gray County Tax Appraisal District board took no action to name a new chief appraiser, following an executive session, or closed meeting, this morning.
 The board needs a new top tax boss because the man previously hired for the position changed his mind and backed out.
 The board hired A.K. Monroe of Palestine to fill the job, but Monroe backed out because a complaint of sexual discrimination has been filed against him by a former female employee of the Henderson County appraisal office, where Monroe remains chief appraiser.
 Monroe said no court date has been set in connection with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission complaint.
 Monroe said today the complaint "is without basis."
 "I was due there July 12th and had some problems here I was unable to leave, so I withdrew from the job offer as chief appraiser here," Monroe said. Monroe said the "legal problems" were not connected with property valuations, and he later identified the reason for his decision as "an EEOC complaint filed by a former employee."
 "I was hoping to get this resolved, but you know how the federal government operates," Monroe said about his reason for declining the job here.
 "I withdrew with extreme regrets. You have a real fine board and town there," he said.
 The chief appraiser hired here will be responsible for appraisal of all property within the jurisdiction of Gray County's 10 taxing entities, beginning in January of 1983.
 However, officials have said previously that actual field appraisal of properties must begin this summer, in order to have tax rolls ready in time for 1983.
 The appraisal board took no action to hire another chief appraiser following the closed meeting today.
 Board member and Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy said it is unknown when the board will meet again.
 The chief appraiser hired to replace Monroe must submit a budget and establish the office from the ground up.

Whole food co-op plans meeting

The next meeting of the Pampa area's new food cooperative will be held 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Clarendon College.
 Janet Bilyeu, one of the organizers of the group, said the first meeting was a success, attracting eight attending families and 10 "call-ins."
 She said the group will wait for a full attendance before deciding membership dues.
 At the next meeting, she said, the group will begin ordering food from New Life Cooperative of Santa Fe, N.M., and decide on financial and work matters.
 The local cooperative is a non-profit organization with no salaried employees.

Plane too overloaded to clear trees

LINDALE, Texas (AP) — A light plane was so overloaded it could not climb above the trees fringing a private runway and crashed into a dense wood at a religious commune, killing 17 people, federal investigators said.

The dead included eight children and Keith Gordon Green, a gospel recording star who headed the Last Days Ministries, a commune in the rolling hills near Lindale.

The plane was flying in a "tail-down, nose-up situation," said Warren V. Wandel of the National Transportation Safety Board.

"The shift of balance was to the rear and it just couldn't climb," he said Thursday.

The Cessna 414 nosedived into a gully surrounded by heavy brush and trees about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, almost immediately after taking off from an airstrip owned by the commune.

Wandel said the plane carried 231 pounds over its limit and only had seven seats. He said his preliminary investigation indicated the overloading was the cause of the crash.

Wandel said the maximum weight allowed on the aircraft would have been 6,350 pounds. But he said the plane carried 6,581 pounds and the weight was disproportionately high in the back of the aircraft.

"Both engines were generating power at impact," said Wandel. He estimated the plane never climbed higher than 75 to 100 feet.

Green, 27, ran Last Days Ministries, a commune that sits on about 500 acres of wooded hills.

Other victims included Green's daughter, Bethany Grace Green, 2, and son, Josiah David Green, 3; Diedre M. Smalley, 32; her husband, John C. Smalley, 37; their children, twins James and John Smalley, 7, Daniel Henry Smalley, 4, Timothy Neill Smalley, 3, Kathryn Elizabeth Smalley, 2; Mrs. Smalley's son by a previous marriage, Chet Allen Hysel, 11, and pilot Don Burmeister, 36, of Lindale. The Smalley family was from Simi Valley, Calif.

Wandel said the plane was traveling at about 76 knots when it clipped some 22- to 25-foot-tall trees about a quarter mile from the end of the runway.

"It went 150 feet and landed on its belly in the ravine. The fire happened when the tanks were scraped against the ground and ruptured," he said.

He said no structural faults were found in the plane.

"All systems seemed to have functioned properly," said Wandel.

He said investigators will test the engines in Dallas to make sure they were not the problem and will look into human factors, including the pilot's qualifications and experience.

Green moved his non-denominational ministry to East Texas in 1979 after starting it in the Los Angeles area in 1977. The religious group kept to itself, according to Lindale residents.

Last Day members closed the grounds to everyone but federal investigators early Thursday morning.

A recent recruit to Last Days, Lance Ponton, 23, of Asheville, N.C., said Green was a "really holy man" who "loved the mortal life."

"Keith was not an idol — because Jesus was my idol — but Keith was my example," he said.

Another recent member, Lyle Veldheuzen of Oskaloosa, Iowa, said he was reading a book Wednesday night when he heard sirens.

Texas fights bilingual teaching

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government auditors are costing bilingual education programs in school districts enormous sums by charging that they violate federal guidelines, then ordering that tax funds be repaid, officials said.

A Texas education group told Congress Thursday that a federal law setting up an inspector general investigations of how districts use funds for bilingual education should be changed.

W.N. Kirby, deputy commissioner of the Texas Education Agency, said the law "has hurt the situation, rather than help it out." He said the procedures it establishes for review should be changed.

The Edgewood school district near San Antonio, one of the poorest in the nation, has been threatened with bankruptcy, said Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Seven Texas districts have been charged by Education Department auditors with gross neglect and asked to pay back funds already used.

The programs are aimed at teaching language skills to school children whose primary language is not English.

A trashcan banquet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several congressmen lunched Wednesday on crab quiche, fresh fruit, vegetable salad with yogurt dressing, cold cuts, cheese and raspberry shortcake — all fresh from the garbage bins of neighborhood markets.

Their meal was delayed for about 30 minutes as U.S. Capitol policemen searched the room in the Rayburn House Office Building after receiving a bomb threat. No explosives were found.

Four Democratic congressmen — Reps. Tony Hall, Douglas

Applegate and Dennis Eckart, all of Ohio; and Pete Stark of California — had gathered behind a display table laden with usable food gathered daily from supermarket discards when the policemen entered and ordered the room cleared.

The luncheon had been organized by the Washington-based Community for Creative Non-Violence, whose spokesman, Mitch Snyder, said Tuesday the volunteer organization had "raised scavenging to an art form."

Taylor girl finds 46-year-old message on a note in a bottle

TAYLOR, Texas (AP) — "Please let me know when this was found," said the message Ray Steelhammer put in a bottle and plopped into the San Gabriel River on July 7, 1936.

An 11-year-old Taylor girl did just that — but 46 years later and much to the surprise of the now-70-year-old retired engineer.

Penny Arteschoufsky said she found the curious-looking bottle with the faded note inside during a family outing near Taylor last weekend.

"I saw this bottle lying partially buried in the sand, and I could see a little piece of paper in it, so I picked it up," Penny said. The cap disintegrated when she opened the bottle, which was under a bridge about 20 miles from the spot where Steelhammer tossed it into the river.

"I was a young whippersnapper in those days, and I had just recovered from a ruptured appendix, so I had a lot of time on my hands," Steelhammer said. "I got it into my head one day to write the note, because it was something to do. I never thought I'd get a reply, and I never thought they'd have so little trouble tracking me down."

The message-in-a-bottle mentioned Steelhammer's hometown of Brady, so Penny and her mother called information. Steelhammer had moved to Cleburne, but an aunt living in Brady helped the Arteschoufskys get in touch with him.

"I was pleasantly surprised, to say the least," said Steelhammer. "This is something that happens just once in a lifetime."

Steelhammer said he would give the bottle to his 10-year-old grandson, Adam.

"I really feel something special toward Penny for finding that bottle," Steelhammer said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Miracles from Democrats

The Democratic party has taken Reaganomics to task for not yet working a miracle with the economy. But even if such an economic miracle has not come, one must stand in awe of the political miracle that Reaganomics has wrought, namely the astounding transformation of big deficit Democrats into advocates of balanced budgets.

Recently these born-again believers took the president to task for advocating a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution while projecting a budget deficit of $100 billion. This, said House Democratic Majority Leader Jim Wright, "is like the saloon keeper demanding that everyone take a vow of total abstinence."

Indeed one smells hypocrisy here, but it isn't President Reagan's. If the Democrats want to know who the saloon keeper is, they should take a look in a mirror.

When the president took the wheel of the budget vehicle, it was speeding out of control due to incessant floorboarding of past Democratic Congresses and presidents. Now the floorboarders scorn him because he hasn't yet managed to stop the vehicle in an instant on a dime.

If the "party of compassion" is really so interested in putting the breaks on, why have most of its members fought tooth and claw against the president's valiant efforts to cut bloated federal boondoggles? One suspects that the only miracle is one of Democratic rhetoric, and that once the winds of expediency shift their true sentiment of oblivion to fiscal ruin will shine forth again.

GI bill isn't necessary

Citing the conventional wisdom that educational benefits are good for both the armed services and the nation, many congressmen are now trying to revive plans for a new GI Bill this summer.

Two years ago, it looked certain that a new GI Bill would be adopted. Then, the military services were complaining loudly that all-volunteer Army was suffering because of inability to attract enough high-quality, well-educated recruits.

But since then, the military recruiting picture has brightened considerably. Partly because the services are offering higher pay and partly because of the scarcity of jobs nationwide, the military services have all the recruits they can handle. This turnabout has dimmed the GI Bill's prospects. President Reagan has now withdrawn his all-important support from the program.

And rightly so. A new GI Bill would unquestionably be nice and would be a boon to the military. But it is time for legislators to remember that the original and most important role of the GI Bill — to aid veterans of World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War — is irrelevant in peacetime. And the other role — to provide educational benefits — is already being filled by the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program. Although VEAP is not as generous as the GI Bill, it still is an attractive incentive that will help draw recruits into the service.

As Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., put it, the GI Bill "would be great to have, but we can't be that generous when we're cutting the budget."

Shuttle now should pay off

The space shuttle Columbia's consummate landing wrote an appropriate finish to the testing phase of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's shuttle program. Now, the $4 billion, decade-long effort to build a "railroad into space" must begin to pay its own way via commercial and military applications.

The odds are good that the Columbia and its three sister ships will do just that. Columbia's four test flights during the last 15 months demonstrated conclusively that NASA has the vehicle design and related technology to ferry large payloads into orbital space.

Columbia's turnaround time has decreased with each flight. This suggests that the shuttle will be able to meet the routine schedules necessary for successful commercial ventures and for servicing space stations.

NASA's present goal of 26 shuttle missions per year say still be some time away, but Columbia's success this benchmark is well within the bounds of existing technology. The next few years should demonstrate whether it is commercially feasible as well.

The near-perfect vacuums obtainable in space should permit the manufacture of metal alloys and pharmaceuticals that are difficult or impossible to produce on earth. These possibilities alone have generated enough commercial interest to pit NASA in competition with the Western European Ariane program for future shuttle business.

Beyond these immediate commercial prospects lie the possible construction of permanent solar energy platforms and, of course, orbiting space stations themselves. President Reagan pointedly avoided a commitment to NASA's proposed space station program in his remarks at Edwards Air Force Base, but few can doubt that orbiting space stations will one day be a reality.

The shuttle's military applications may pay the most important dividends during the next few years. The Soviet Union has already successfully tested a prototype killer satellite. An operational system posing a permanent threat to U.S. communications and reconnaissance satellites may be only a year or so away.

In addition, the Soviets appear well ahead of the United States in developing laser weapons with multiple applications on earth and in space.

Shuttle technology will probably be decisive in countering the Soviet Union's drive to seize control of what has been appropriately called the "high frontier" of orbital space.

And looming on an even more distant horizon is the possibility of a space-based anti-ballistic missile defense system that could effectively protect this country from even an all-out Soviet nuclear attack. Without the shuttle, it is difficult to imagine how any such system could ever be built.

For the moment, the shuttle's future remains the province of commercial and technological vision. But the latter has already produced the most complex vehicle ever built and then sent it on four round-trip missions totaling more than 9 million miles and 314 orbits of the earth.

This remarkable achievement stands as telling testament to what may yet be accomplished in a future limited only by the boundaries of human dreams.

By RUSTY BROWN

Lucky is the woman with a strong, supportive father who believes in her abilities. She could be tomorrow's captain of industry, famous artist — or U.S. president.

New studies link successful, achieving women with fathers who encouraged them to be that way. And lately there has been a rash of stories — in Business Week, The New York Times and other publications — about daughters following their fathers into family businesses.

Most notable, of course, is Christie Hefner, 29, recently named president of Playboy Enterprises by her entrepreneurial whiz father, Hugh Hefner.

What a vote of confidence! Especially since the firm has been plagued by management problems and declining revenues in recent years. If Mr. Hefner can triumph over two such big hurdles, it will certainly prove she earned more than "patty cake, patty cake" at daddy's knee.

Despite her youth, she has been grooming for the job almost from the moment she graduated summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Brandeis University. She's been working in the company, in its fashion boutiques and stereo magazines; she was made a vice president four years ago and a director a year later, and she is a member of the board's finance committee.

Adding the '& Daughter'

"She has a talent for leadership," said a former Playboy executive. Others call her an effective spokeswoman, able to define Playboy's role in society and defend its view of women — two debates I wouldn't dream of taking on!

Another daughter preparing to take over a family's prominent business is Doris Mattus. It was she who talked her father, Reuben, into letting her start a national franchise operation. Today, she presides over 125 Haagen-Dazs ice cream stores.

Donald J. Janovic of the Cleveland-based center for Family Business has said daughters are apt to work harder than sons to educate themselves for the job.

Some turn out to be more aggressive and business-like than their fathers. "She's smarter than I am, I hate to tell you," said one dad, whose 26-year-old daughter is vice president and heir in a perfume company.

Janovic knows of 500 women already running family businesses and expects the figure to increase dramatically by 1990.

I recently met Sally Black of Albuquerque, who is leasing manager for her father's Chevrolet dealership, an operation that covers 16 acres and an inventory of at least 500 cars. Ed Black Chevrolet employs 156 people and tallies $27 million in annual sales.

A 1970 journalism graduate from Northwestern University, Ms. Black, spent a decade at various jobs — working in a museum and travel agency and selling advertising. Two years ago, when she came home elated over a new job offer in marketing, her father said, "Why don't you come work for me?"

She was thrilled: "I certainly didn't have to toss a coin to decide between the two." A younger brother, incidentally, is more interested in becoming a doctor and is interning at a Memphis hospital.

She started in the finance and insurance department, the crucial economic core of the car business. She has attended GM's month-long management school, a "must" for all potential dealers, where she was one of three women and 45 men.

Single, 33, and proudly independent, she has a high profile in the community, serving on the chamber of Commerce board, among other activities.

Ed Black regards his daughter as right for the business — "good in math and personable... strong and capable. She can do anything she puts her mind to."

It's an American custom for a proud father to add "& Son" to the name of the family business. Now it looks like more and more firms will be adding "& Daughter."

The merit shop

By PAUL HARVEY

You could never have imagined anything like this five years ago:

Major construction projects around Pittsburgh employing only non-union labor.

Nationally, only 35 percent of our nation's construction work last year was performed by union workers.

What's happened is that construction contractors — fed up with featherbedding, payola, strikes, jurisdictional disputes, travel allowances and other arbitrary abuses of power by the building trades unions — have themselves "got organized."

They, the contractors, have formed their own ABC (Associated Builders and Contractors) and they are fighting back, promoting what they call "the Merit Shop," as opposed to "the union shop."

What that means is workers are hired for what they do and how well they do it and paid proportionately.

The ABC now has 16,000 contractor members nationwide and has cornered 60 percent of all commercial and industrial construction in the United States.

Before Orrin Hatch became a United States senator from Utah he was a union construction tradesman, yet he recognizes that this "Merit Shop is bringing competition back into the construction field."

Much of our nation's high cost of living is the ever higher cost of building anything, including houses. In many areas, unions in the construction trades have escalator clauses built into those contracts which keep their wages going up 10 percent per year, recession or no recession.

In Chicago in 1926 a mason got $1.50 an hour to lay an average of 600 concrete blocks per day.

Today the contractor is required to hire two masons at $14 an hour each — and both of them may not lay 100 blocks a day!

Engineering News-Record computes that low productivity wastes 15 percent to 40 percent of every construction payroll dollar.

Something had to give. "Merit Shop" contractors are competing for and winning ever more construction contracts — and ever larger ones.

Today there are enormous construction projects in 37 states — power plants, oil refineries, pulp and paper mills, highway projects, being built by Merit Shop workers.

Further, the Associated Builders and Contractors are now expanding their own "private industry training center," offering schooling and on-job training in the building trades.

The ABC insists it is merely reviving the "free enterprise" system, where employer and employee have a right to choose one another.

You've heard much about "increased industrial growth in Sun Belt states even during the recessions."

More than the sunshine — this reflects the fact that most of those states are "Right To Work" states, where the ABC can take the fat out of construction contracts and build you more factories for less money.

Psychological baggage

By ART BUCHWALD

"This is ridiculous," said Tabash, as he read The New York Times on the beach. "It says here that the toughest time for couples is when they go on vacation. The reason seems to be that the couple is together for an uninterrupted block of time. The husband and wife have fantasies of what it will be like to be together, and many times these fantasies don't come true, so they get angry and pick fights with each other over little things. One doctor in the article calls it 'psychological baggage.'"

Fenton laughed. "Barbara and I don't feel that way."

Fenton's wife sat up angrily and said, "My name isn't Barbara. It's Bernice."

"Barbara — Bernice, what's the big deal?" Fenton asked.

"After 15 years of marriage you could get my name right."

"Now you're getting picky," Fenton said. "Barbara is my secretary, and every once in a while I get them mixed up," he explained to the rest of us.

"It's an honest mistake," I agreed. "A guy can't remember his wife's name ALL the time. That's why I always call mine 'Honey.'"

"What else does the article say?" Fenton wanted to know.

Tabash referred to his paper. "People who take vacations are full of guilt. They feel guilty about taking a vacation their parents can't afford. Guilt leads to disharmony in the couple and ultimately spoils their vacation."

"I don't feel guilty about not working," said Dobler. "I'm enjoying every moment of it."

"Then why are you on the phone to the office every day?" Astrid Dobler asked.

"Because I have to know what is going on," Dobler replied bitterly.

"You can't have a good time if you have no idea what they're doing in the shop while you're away. My clients don't pay me to sit on the beach all day long. I notice you call the house — sitters every day."

"That's different. It's my house, and if they don't hear from me daily, they'll think I don't care what they do to the place," Astrid retorted.

Dobler turned to all of us. "I couldn't go on vacation if I didn't check in with the office. One lousy call a day doesn't make you a workaholic."

"You've never known how to take a vacation, because your parents never took one," Astrid said.

"They never had the money to take one," Dobler shouted.

"Right now they're stuck in an apartment in Brooklyn all summer. It gives me heartburn every time I think about it."

Astrid said, "I'm not responsible because you're having a guilt trip about your parents."

"Keep reading, Tabash," I told him. "I think you're making our summer."

Tabash said, "The article says they did a study at the University of Minnesota and found more couples fought with each other during the summer than at any other time in the year."

"It figures," I said. "That's when they're stuck with each other's neuroses for the longest period of time."

"What neuroses?" my wife wanted to know.

"I'm not talking about us," I said. "Besides I thought you were sleeping." She threw a bluefish at me.

"What am I supposed to do with this?" I spluttered.

"Stuff it in your psychological baggage." (c) 1982, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Dear Abby

Light fingered lady fears for her future

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My 19-year-old daughter has been acting very moody and strange these last weeks. Finally she told me what was bothering her. It seems she was caught shoplifting in one of the large department stores in the mall. She said her purse was searched and a lipstick was found (under $2) she hadn't paid for. She was asked to sign a waiver using her Social Security number, saying she wouldn't sue the store for detention. The people at the store wrote down a physical description of her (height, weight, hair color, eyes, etc.), and she was told they would keep that information in the store. She is not allowed to enter that store for three years!

This is making her sick with worry. What will they do with that information, Abby? Will it be used against her if she applies for employment anywhere in town? She said they didn't call the police, but a security man from the store read her her "rights" and they questioned her in the manager's office. She's a good girl and has never been in any kind of trouble before. She is petrified to go job hunting for fear the store will circulate the paperwork on her. How serious is this? Does she have a criminal record now? Please rush your answer.

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Unless the policy of this store differs from those with which I am familiar, your daughter need not fear that this information will be circulated anywhere. She was only apprehended, and never not to come into the store for three years.

Go to the store, talk to the manager and ask him the questions you've asked me. It will give both you and your daughter much peace of mind.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for three years, but we lived together for two years before that.

When people ask me how long I've been married, should I stick to the facts and say, "Three years," or should I explain that we lived together for two years first? Or doesn't the time we lived together count?

TRUTHFUL

DEAR TRUTHFUL: The time you lived together counts, but not as a "marriage." When asked how long you've been married, say, "Three years." Period.

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-five years ago I married a great kisser — his best feature. For 23 years I put up with his tobacco clipping, chewing and smelly breath.

Two years ago I refused to kiss him unless he stopped chewing cigar clippings. He wouldn't stop, and I haven't kissed him since.

Who should give in? Sex without a kiss is a bummer.

MISSING KISSING

DEAR MISSING: You gave him a choice: tobacco chewing or your kisses. He chose the tobacco. Now the choice is yours: sex without a kiss, or sex with tobacco-flavored kisses. Choose whichever you hate the least.

At Wit's End

I hate to say I told you so, but remember how I always warned, "Never turn your back on a two-year-old!"

Well, several stories recently have given rise to some concern about the increase in juvenile crimes.

There was a pre-teen who was hauled into court and legally charged with assault on a playmate. Then there was the seven-year-old in Los Angeles who was tried for arson.

A 12-year-old in Marlborough, Mass., made the Most Wanted List and even had a warrant out for her arrest for not returning books and records to the local library. (She said her house burnt down and she no longer had them. See paragraph above.)

How far down is the cut? All the way down to a four-year-old boy in Philadelphia who had to appear in municipal court on charges of dumping five bags of trash — all bigger than he was — outside rather than inside a city incinerator plant.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Erma Bombeck

He went to court and got off only after his parents testified they couldn't possibly pin a littering rap on their son because he was in a day nursery center at the time. (They all say that.)

How many times do I have to tell you, children are not little bundles of innocence. They're lumps of larceny jammed into small adorable bodies.

Why, there isn't a three-year-old alive who can't break and enter a house without a key and set off the most sophisticated alarm system ever devised.

When they are made to do something they don't want to do (go to bed, take a bath, smile) they have the strength of 5,000 camels.

Children have always been quick to learn how the system works. My children never saw "The Godfather." Yet instinctively one night my son marched into the middle of a party in his jammies, kissed me on both cheeks and said, "The five big ones you borrowed from my paper route savings? Get it back by Wednesday or I work Grandma over."

I suppose experts are already trying to figure out why so many youngsters are involved with the law. Some will blame television, others will finger parents who are shirking responsibilities. Me? I believe the potential was there all the time. And I'll sleep better tonight knowing the law is finally on our side.

Preparing for Night Flight

The Pampa Army Air Field as it was back in the 40s is pictured here inside the big hangar located east of Pampa. The photo is called "Preparing for Night Flight" and it tugs and the nostalgia deep in the heart of those involved with the old air field and those connected with the war effort during World War II.

The way it was

Eagles Nest of the High Plains

By - KENNETH A. KIENLEN, LT. COL.

The story of Pampa Army Air Force base began with the actions of a small group of men who believed their city and people had something to offer to assist the war effort. The Mayor and a group from the Chamber of Commerce traveled to Washington, D. C. and talked with anyone who would listen. Their efforts were rewarded by the visit of a site selection team on April 11 - 13, 1942. And $8,000,000 dream came true in March 1942.

The inspection team was headed by Col. Norman B. Olsen. The city and county governments convinced the team that land, facilities and utilities would be available for the construction of a training facility. The primary emphasis would be on pilot training but there would also be training facilities for aircraft mechanics and technicians.

The actual construction began on June 1, 1942 under the direction of the Tulsa, Oklahoma office of the Corps of Engineers. Colonel Olsen set up his first headquarters in the Culberson - Smalling building in downtown Pampa. The first headquarters for the military personnel who were to operate the base was in the Rose Motor Company building. Colonel Olsen was replaced by Colonel Daniel S. Campbell on September 15, 1942. Colonel Campbell operated from the Rose Motor Co. building until the headquarters was moved to the first completed building on the air base site on November 18, 1942. Another of the early assigned officers was (then) Major William A. Poe, Chief of the Quartermaster. He shared space with Colonel Campbell in the Rose Motor Co.

During the summer and fall of 1942 construction continued at the base site. Sufficient progress was made by November of 1942 to allow the arrival of the first aircraft. A flight of ten AT-10s arrived November 27, 1942. The first class of Aviation Cadets (Class 43 - B) arrived on 14 December 14, 1942. There were 174 eager young cadets from Basic Flight training in Oklahoma and Kansas in this first class. Flight began on December 16, 1942. Class 43 - B graduated February 16, 1943.

The facilities at this time were barely functioning. The Cadet and Enlisted Men barracks were adequate but short of sufficient hot water and heating equipment. The mess halls were hampered by equipment shortages and lack of trained personnel. These problems were met and overcome by a total group effort that included both military and civilian personnel.

The flight training personnel arrived during November 1942. The first Director of Training was Lt. Col. Robert McBride. The equipment used by the pilot trainees was UC - 78 and AT - 9 twin engine aircraft. These aircraft supported the flight training program until the arrival of B - 25 trainers during the spring and summer of 1944. The intensity of training remained at a high peak throughout the life of the base. The Aviation Cadet population increased as each class arrived. The average class size was approximately 250 cadets. The average number of flying hours per month was 18,000.

As the war effort became more successful the base began to wind down its operation gradually until the final closing September 30, 1945. In the 3 years and 3 months of operation there were 6,292 aviation cadets graduated and 3,500 aircraft mechanics trained. There were losses due to aircraft accidents. However, the accident and fatality rate was one of the lowest in the entire Training Command.

A great deal of the success of the base must be credited to the people of Pampa. The civilian population opened their arms to the base personnel to make them feel welcome. The businesses provided jobs for the wives of base personnel. Recreation facilities were available at several locations in and around the city. It was an example of the very best cooperation between base and city for the common good.

The information in this brief history of Pampa Army Air Force Base was extracted from official microfilm records of the Historical Research Center, Maxwell AFB, Alabama. Several hundred pages of narrative, charts and pictures were studied.

Air Field reunion set to take off

The Pampa Army Air Field reunion will get underway on Friday, Aug. 6 at 7 p.m. with an open house held in the Coronado Inn.

Following the open house will be a steak dinner (dutch treat) at Tom's Country Inn. An enjoyable evening is anticipated as friends exchange greetings.

Registration for the reunion will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday morning on August 7 at the Coronado Inn. The business luncheon will be held at 12 noon in the Coronado Inn.

The dedication ceremony for the commemorative marker located at the former Air Force Base site will be held at 2:30 p.m. Saturday. Representative Foster Whaley will preside over the ceremony.

The public is invited to attend the dedication ceremony. A banquet will be held at 7 p.m. in the Coronado Inn for those attending the reunion. Guest speaker for the banquet will be Clay Wilkins, executive secretary for the Texas State Aeronautics.

'Famous Last Words' is fine war tale

FAMOUS LAST WORDS. By Timothy Findley. Delacorte. 396 Pages. $14.95.

The publisher's blurbs on the dust jacket of a book usually should be taken with not just one but a half dozen grains of salt.

That is not the case with "Famous Last Words." The blurbs, if anything, understate the excellence of this fine novel by Timothy Findley, author of the well-received "The Wars."

This novel is beautifully written and thus a delight to read, even though some of the things written about are less than tasteful.

As World War II draws to a close, American troops come across a once-palatial hotel in the Austrian Alps. A hotel where "all the shutters banged and the snow crept through into the rooms and all the candles guttered and went out and drifted over the bodies in the courtyard and the silent gramophone wound down."

The soldiers find several bodies. One of them, frozen solid, is that of Hugh Selwyn Mauberley, a once highly regarded American writer who fell from grace when he appeared to embrace the Fascist cause. Mauberley has been murdered, but before this happened he managed to leave behind an amazing testament. Using a symbolic silver pencil, he managed to engrave the story of and an apology for his life into the walls of the hotel.

These then are his famous last words, and they are fascinating.

He wandered as far as China, but mostly in Europe and there, in the 1930s, he became entangled in a fantastic plot to take over the governments of Europe by using the Axis nations and then discarding their leaders.

"Golf Widows" entertained in Pampa

Lifestyles

Friday, July 30, 1982 PAMPA NEWS

Pampa has been the host for the 48th annual Tri-State Senior Golf Association Tournament at the Pampa Country Club for the last five days. The tournament, designed for golfers 55 and older, is a gala affair and contestants come from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

And what, you might ask, do the wives of these golfers do while their husbands are out putting on the greens? Not to worry, the Pampa Ladies Golf Association has taken great care to see that no "golfers widow" is bored while staying in Pampa.

Evelyn Nace, spokesperson for the group, reported a flurry of activities which kept the visitors busy during the competition.

The lady golfers in the group were invited to play at the Celanese nine-hole golf course, a short distance west of Pampa. The course was made available Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tuesday the wives were invited to participate in a Putting Tournament which included prizes presented at the Wednesday noon luncheon.

The senior banquet, held Tuesday night, included over 300 guests. In addition to the Putting awards, the ladies enjoyed a special program by Evelyn Nace at the Wednesday noon luncheon. She reviewed the book, "A Good Age," by Dr. Ale Comfort. The book proved appropriate as it dealt with retirement as being the best time of life.

Wednesday night the golfers and their wives enjoyed a hamburger buffet.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights the competitors and spouses danced to the music of Sue Higdon.

A brunch for the wives held Thursday morning was followed by a Bingo game at 11 a.m.

The wives were also treated to three sessions of bridge held during the week and, if they found any time on their hands they got involved in a city-wide treasure hunt sponsored by the Pampa merchants.

Texas considered prime battle zone for textbook censorship

By KATHY BAKER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A national group formed by television producer Norman Lear and others to combat the "New Right," has opened a Texas office so it can join the fight over adoption of textbooks in the state.

Michael Hudson, Texas coordinator for People for the American Way, told a Capitol news conference Thursday the group sees Texas as the main battleground in the war against textbook censorship.

Hudson, a Houston attorney who formerly served on Houston Congressman Mickey Leland's staff, said he has asked to testify at textbook selection hearings, which begin Aug. 9.

"Texas is the second largest market for textbook sales, accounting for about eight percent of the nation's textbook purchases," Hudson said. "Education experts and publishers agree that a textbook that is rejected by Texas is almost guaranteed to be an economic failure nationally and results in either pre-censorship or removal of the book entirely."

State Board of Education rules do not provide for presentations other than specific protests at the hearings, Hudson complained. Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum had not yet responded to his request to testify, Hudson said.

"Important as the textbook selection process is, the public now has only one formal way to influence which books are adopted — by filing protests," Hudson told reporters. "Texas citizens who want to defend a book or who disagree with protests against certain books have no forum in which to be heard."

Texas was chosen by the group, which has 2,500 members in the state but is based in Washington, Hudson said, because of the state's economic impact on publishers and because of the presence of Mel and Norma Gabler of Longview.

The Gablers are nationally active and are the most vocal conservative protesters against textbooks that come before the state textbook selection committee each year.

Hudson said of 900 pages of protests filed during the 1981 Texas hearings, the Gablers were responsible for 600 pages.

It is difficult to determine the accuracy of the Gablers' claims of success, Hudson said, because it is not clear which books were rejected for what reason during the lengthy selection process.

"The Gablers are part of a national network of censors, which also includes Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority and Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum," Hudson said. "Members of this network are working to purge schools of all material that encourages thinking and discussion or is inconsistent with their narrow religious and political orthodoxy."

He said he had no figures on the success of more liberal groups, such as the National Organization for Women, in protesting books from a different standpoint.

Hudson distributed a list of sample protests filed by the Gablers this year.

A homemaking text suggests, "Find out how school rules are made in your school," the list said. "Find out how they can be changed. Describe the procedure to your classmates."

The Gablers' protested, "The text is stressing change. This teaches children dissatisfaction with rules; a desire to rebel. Why assume that students will need to change rules?"

This list also included examples of Gabler protests against passages that "attack traditional family roles" or seem to dispute Biblical accounts of creation.

Failed banks to reopen their doors

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Charters approved in an emergency session cleared the way for two new banks to open today and takeover for two East Texas banks that failed, said Deputy State Banking Commissioner Glen Pool.

Depositors in the closed Guaranty Bond State Bank of Redwater and the Bowie County State Bank of Hooks will automatically become depositors in the two new banks scheduled to open at 9 a.m. today in the same locations, said Pool.

The charters were approved during an emergency session of the State Banking Board Thursday night for the New First Bank And Trust, Redwater, and First Bank And Trust, Hooks, said Pool.

"We have approved both banks, they are totally in business," Deputy State Banking Commissioner Glen Pool said.

The two banks near Texarkana voluntarily closed their doors Wednesday because of "questionable loans," officials said. State bank inspectors who went to the jointly-owned banks for a routine visit three weeks ago discovered the problem loans, said State Banking Commissioner Robert Stewart.

The failed banks' depositors have not had access to their money since the banks closed Wednesday. But the deposits were guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which protects most amounts up to $100,000.

W.F. Davis, who is president of the Texarkana Oaklawn Bank, will be the president of both the new banks, Pool said.

Davis, Harold Trammell, Linn Mayo, W.N. Patterson, all of Texarkana, and Jim Yates from Ashdown, Ark., are organizing directors for the two new banks, said Pool.

Starvation diet not a good idea

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am writing to ask you about the Cambridge Plan diet. It is really popular in our area. It is a powder you mix in water and is supposed to have 100 percent of the vitamins and minerals you need each day. You drink this three times a day and do not eat anything. It has more than 300 calories for the whole day. The amazing thing is that those taking it feel so well.

I know from reading your column that you advise everyone to simply cut down, but I am interested to know if this particular diet is any good. They even advocate your taking it when you are eating regularly. It is hard to ignore the evidence all around you. A lot of doctors here are recommending it also to those who need to lose weight, but I would like your opinion.

DEAR READER - My professional opinion is that NO diet is safe that is a starvation or semi-starvation diet. I was reading your letter just after finishing reading a report of two women who were on the Cambridge Plan who landed in the hospital with serious problems. By the time my column appears there may be others. Despite the "all the vitamins and minerals you need" in the powder, one woman had near-fatal low levels of potassium. Both of these two women were taking other medicines. One was taking a diuretic which meant her potassium requirements were increased. Certainly anyone taking medicines should not be on such diets.

There is no such thing as a balanced starvation diet. The first requirement of a balanced diet is that it provide enough calories for your body's needs. Serious calorie depletion results in bodily changes of starvation.

The National Society of Bariatricians, those physicians who specialize in weight reduction, has already made public criticisms of the Cambridge Plan. There will always be another diet plan. And many of them will be effective in enabling a person to lose weight, and sometimes their health or even their life. The trick is learning to eat sensibly and exercise sensibly.

Reagan opposes unemployment extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has expressed its opposition to a bill that would extend payment of unemployment benefits an additional 13 weeks.

John F. Cogan, the Labor Department's assistant secretary for policy, evaluation and research, told the Senate Finance Committee Thursday that "extending benefits is inequitable, ill-timed and costly."

Joining the administration's opposition was the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which said the extension would be "unwise, unaffordable and unnecessary."

However, senators from states with high unemployment such as West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and Maryland, along with the AFL-CIO, called the legislation necessary and overdue.

Basic unemployment benefits are now paid for a maximum of 39 weeks. Estimates of the cost of extending them for an additional 13 weeks run as high as $1 billion in this fiscal year and the next, ending Sept. 30, 1983.

Cogan said the administration opposes extending benefits under the bill "because they are not targeted toward those who stand in greatest need."

He said administration studies indicate that 40 percent of the recipients of jobless benefits had family incomes more than twice as high as the poverty level of about $10,000 in 1981 dollars for a family of four, and that 20 percent had household incomes more than three times higher.

Speaking at the hearing Wednesday, Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., whose state has the highest unemployment rate in the nation, said Congress should provide supplemental benefits to the jobless this year, when the need is greater, just as it did during the recessions of 1971 and 1974.

"These people who have exhausted their benefits are looking at a bleak future, certainly in the near term," he said.

"It is totally right that government offer them a hand to keep their lives intact...when federal policies helped to create the unemployment in the first place and when current national policies consciously accept unemployment as a weapon against inflation," Levin said.

"The tragic fact is that the unemployment rate in Michigan has to drop almost five percentage points before it 'improves' enough to match the level of the national recession," said Levin, whose state has a 14.3-percent rate.

"People in Michigan have endured over 30 consecutive months of double digit unemployment," he said, adding that since January more than 10,000 constituents have exhausted their extended benefits, which provided coverage for weeks 26 through 39 of unemployment.

Nationally, he said, 134,000 people exhausted their benefits in May, an increase of 41 percent over May 1981.

Corrective contact lenses

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Contact lenses that help treat certain eye diseases and extended-wear lenses that can be worn night and day for up to two weeks at a time are among the developments that meet a broader range of patient needs.

New lenses of oxygen-permeable CAB (cellulose acetate butyrate) material have already permitted legally blind patients suffering from certain corneal diseases to achieve 20-20 vision, it was reported at an International Contact Lens Conference here.

Long-term studies of continuous use extended-wear soft contact lenses showed they offered great comfort and excellent vision, and not a single case of eye damage from these new lenses was found, investigators also told the delegates. "With new versions of hard, soft and semisoft lenses now available, virtually anyone with healthy eyes can wear some kind of contact lens successfully," noted Dr. Robert Morrison, who was chairman of the conference.

"Even those who failed previously to adapt to them should go back to their eye doctor now and try again. Careful pre-evaluation, fitting and follow-up should result in finding the right contact lens for individual needs from among the new options available," said Morrison, associate professor of optometry at Pennsylvania College of Optometry and assistant professor of ophthalmology at New York Medical College.

DAVID MEECE

Christian music's 'teen idol' to sing

David Meece, Christian music's "teen idol," will perform a concert of contemporary gospel music Saturday, August 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

The concert will be sponsored by Youth for Youth Ministries of Pampa.

Meece, 29, is originally from Humble, Texas. He began his career as a classical pianist, then moved into contemporary Christian music, recording with Word Records.

His last two albums, "Everybody Needs a Little Help" and "Are You Ready?" have ranked at the top of Christian music charts, and Meece toured for almost 200 days last year to give concerts in 125 cities.

His song "Love is the Reason" has become the theme song for the national Multiple Sclerosis campaign, and Meece has appeared on television for that campaign.

For more information on the concert, call Jeff Ladd at 665-7201, 665-3219 or 665-5246.

Religious groups offering backing to draft no-shows

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

One by one, the resisters to draft registration are facing charges for it. But they're not alone. Behind them is a national religious network offering moral — and sometimes financial-legal — support.

At the local, regional and national levels, many religious bodies in the last two years have set up counseling services for young men concerning draft registration and their consciences.

Nearly every major denomination has people working on this, says Charles Maresca, a Roman Catholic and associate director of the National Interreligious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors.

More and more individual churches, dioceses and other national units are involved in it. It's bigger than it was in the Vietnam War and growing every month.

The government in mid-1980 ordered registration of young men 18 to 20, for military draft, although not instituting a description itself. An estimated 570,000 have failed to register.

Many have stated their refusal openly for reasons of conscience in letters to Selective Service administrators. This summer, federal prosecutors began obtaining court orders.

"I am a non-registrant in order to be faithful to my God, my conscience and my church," says Enten Eller, a student at Virginia's Bridgewater College, indicted last week by a federal grand jury in Roanoke, Va.

A straight-A physics major, Eller of La Verne, Calif., belongs to the Church of the Brethren, one of three historic "peace" churches which uphold pacifism. The other two are the Quakers and the Mennonites.

However, more than 50 denominations, including Roman Catholicism and major Protestant and Jewish bodies, are represented on the interreligious board of Washington, D.C., that backs rights of conscience regarding draft registration.

Leaders of some of the religious bodies have opposed registration itself, while others have supported it, but in either case they uphold individual conscience about it.

It's a "matter of conscience" and personal "moral decision," says the board's guidelines for counseling. Those who feel unable to register are advised to document their beliefs and reasons for it. Conscientious objectors who do register are advised to cite their position on registration cards.

Some denominations, such as the United Church of Christ and Southern Baptists, have invited such conscientious objectors to notify denominational offices of their position so it will be on record.

For that purpose, Roman Catholic Bishop James W. Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, set up a documentation center there.

Selective Service says it has turned over a list of 225 resisters to registration to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

Bible school slated

Vacation Bible school will be held at the Lefors Church of Christ, 215 E. 3rd St., Lefors, August 2 — 6 from 7:30 to 9 each evening.

Both children and adults will participate in the school, which will feature study of the Book of Acts. The school will also include singing, Bible drills and refreshments each evening.

Adult classes will be taught by school director David V. Fultz with emphasis on the Restoration of the New Testament Church.

Transportation to the church will be by old-fashioned hay ride. Two large trailers will be available to carry participants.

For more information, call Ray Gossett, Box 202, Lefors, at 835-2378.

Growing...

Reaching new heights... each week growing a little more in stature. Each day increasing in knowledge.
Each year growing a little closer to manhood. All because he has been provided proper nourishment, training, and guidance.
Help him to grow in knowledge and stature with the Lord. Take him to church each Sunday so that he may have a well-rounded and full life.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Israel okayed cluster bomb limits

By BARRY SCHWEID
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — In two secret agreements, Israel promised the United States it would use cluster bombs against Arab armies only during Middle East wars that were "on the scale experienced" in 1967 and 1973.

The agreements, in December 1976 and April 1978, also specified that the controversial bombs could be used "only against clearly defined military targets" and not in, or close to, civilian population centers.

While existence of the agreements was known, the terms are classified as "secret" by the U.S.

government. Copies were obtained by The Associated Press on Wednesday.

On Tuesday, the Reagan administration announced it was suspending indefinitely deliveries of cluster-type artillery ammunition to Israel. The move followed allegations that Israel had used cluster bombs and artillery shells improperly in its attack on Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

In moving against Israel, the administration did not await the outcome of its own legal inquiry. In fact, officials said Wednesday the cut-off was due, in part, to "political and diplomatic considerations," including concern raised in this country about the civilian casualties in Lebanon.

Israel has not purchased cluster bombs from the United States since 1975. But it was still receiving the 155mm shells which spew grenades capable of inflicting extensive casualties when they burst into thousands of tiny fragments.

It was learned, meanwhile, that 19 countries, including Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Egypt and Morocco, purchase cluster bombs from the United States. A Pentagon source said Israel gets "many times" the total amount sold to the four Arab states.

Israel faced similar questions about its military operations against the Palestine Liberation Organization when Simcha Dinitz, the U.S. ambassador, agreed to conditions on cluster bombs, and also on laser guided bombs, in Dec. 16, 1976, letter to Eugene McAuliffe, an assistant secretary of defense.

The stipulation was reaffirmed in an April 11, 1978, note by Samuel W. Lewis, the U.S. ambassador, to Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

Until then, Israel was bound by terms of the standard U.S. arms sales agreement with foreign countries. This limits use of the weapons to self-defense and prohibits re-shipments to third countries without U.S. permission.

All the other purchasers of cluster bombs agreed to these general terms.

Hughes will claim called forgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities are investigating a Hollywood woman who allegedly claimed the late multimillionaire Howard Hughes willed her purported company 20 percent of his fortune, investigator Gerald Loeb of the district attorney's office said in an affidavit.

Loeb, in his affidavit on file in court, called the document a "forgery created by Martha Graves and others in order to defraud the Hughes Estate."

No charges have been filed. Hughes died April 5, 1976, aboard a medical flight to the U.S. Courts have recognized 22 relatives as his legal heirs and a court of civil appeals in Houston continues to try to sort out claims by other self-proclaimed heirs.

Loeb said Ms. Graves, 53, claimed she found a photocopy of the will last August among papers of her late employer, Beverly Hills attorney Earl Hightower. The document was dated July 24, 1960, and supposedly signed by Hughes and two witnesses.

Ms. Graves reportedly said she took it to Texas for verification but lost the suitcase containing it. Loeb said she claimed to have a photocopy.

The document purportedly had Hughes willing 80 percent of his estate — estimated to total $168 million to $1 billion — to the Howard Hughes Medical Institute in Delaware, and the remaining 20 percent to Acme Mining Co., of which Ms. Graves is chief executive and major stockholder.

"If the will found by Graves is proved to be valid, then Graves and her relatives would be the beneficiaries of millions of dollars from the Hughes Estate," Loeb wrote.

However, he said one expert described it as a "red and paste" job and quite another as saying Hughes never signed it.

Until then, Israel was bound by terms of the standard U.S. arms sales agreement with foreign countries. This limits use of the weapons to self-defense and prohibits re-shipments to third countries without U.S. permission.

Transplant patient to be released

HOUSTON (AP) — A 43-year-old man, the first to receive a donor heart here using an experimental anti-rejection drug, shows no signs of rejection and may be able to leave the hospital in a week, Dr. Denton Cooley, told station KTRK-TV.

The transplanted heart has beat strongly for almost three weeks inside the patient, identified only as a Midwest native, his physician said Wednesday.

A team of surgeons, headed by Cooley, performed the 2½-hour operation July 5 at the Texas Heart Institute using Cyclosporin A, an immuno-suppressant drug to prevent rejection.

"He really looks good, he looks normal," Cooley said Wednesday night in an exclusive interview with KTRK.

"It's been three weeks, but he seems so much better than the patients that we had in the previous era where we did not have this Cyclosporin," the heart surgeon said. "I think in about a week we'll be able to send him home."

The patient began taking the drug eight hours before the operation and doctors say he probably will have to take it the rest of his life.

Cyclosporin A has been used in more than 89 kidney transplant patients by Dr. Barry Kahan, director of the University of Texas Medical School's organ transplant division.

Kahan, who worked with Cooley in the heart transplant operation, said he hopes to use the drug on 34 more heart patients over the next 17 years.

The biggest problem for transplant recipients has been rejection of the organ by the body's immune system, an infection.

Cyclosporin A, which is extracted from common soil fungus, has shown promise in reducing the risk of rejection without greatly weakening the body's defense system, doctors said.

The drug, manufactured by the Swiss company Sandoz Inc., has been used in tests at Stanford University and has prevented rejection of donor hearts in 24 of 22 transplants.

Free band concerts making a big comeback

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Front and center, Colonel Bogey, and attention, all you Yankee Doodle Dandies. The band concert, absolutely free, costing nothing but a summer evening, is back in style. Bigger this year, they say.

than drive-in movies, and almost as compulsive as video space games. We had one in our town park the other evening, and I happily happened on several starlit oompah recitals on picturesque village greens while motoring recently through Vermont.

More vividly than an old photograph album, the scene and the sounds brought back my boyhood on a fond tide of remembrance.

Here was the past in instant replay. Fireflies lighting up the night in a merry dance of sparks. A muted trumpet coyly calling to the tin soldiers to bring down the thundering brass fanfare of the "March of the Toys." Old folks in fold-up chairs fanning themselves with cardboard fans (donated by the local funeral parlor) in cadence with the pulsating tempo. A toddler on uncertain new shoes swaying in tune to the melodic march line. Lovers cuddling close in the silvery starlight sifting through the arched canopy of giant elms and he ice cream vendor almost whispering his wares.

Small fry crowding the steps of the circular wooden bandstand, all Victorian curved cornices and gingerbread railings, for a better view of the uniformed instrumentalists, especially the virtuoso on the huge copper drum. The local wisacre sucking lemon in the front row just as the tuba player begins his solo. The bandmaster's precision about-face on incredibly polished shoes and snappy salute to acknowledge the rousing applause that followed every item on the program. The long line at the water fountain during intermission. Giant moths in mesmerized flight around the lampposts. My grandmother reaching into her enormous handbag for the bottle of citronella that keeps the mosquitoes at bay.

The almost universal popularity of band music owes more to America than its British and German origins.

Hardly a man is now alive who can claim to have heard the bands of John Philip Sousa, Patrick Sarsfield

Gilmore, Edwin Franco Goldman, Liberati, the Great Creator and the other famous bandmasters saluted by composer Meredith Willson in his introductory lyrics to "Seventy-Six Trombones," the stomping march from his hit musical "The Music Man." Willson, who really was from Mason City, Iowa, played first flute in Sousa's last big band when just out of high school.

As George M. Cohan said, "Any tune like Yankee Doodle simply sets me off my noodle," especially on these lovely summer evenings.

Grab your fold-up chair and do likewise to add some fun to our vacation.

Will TV cure Saturday Night Fever?

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If you have a case of Saturday Night Fever, is television a home remedy? Do the networks offer any companionship?

That, of course, depends on your age, and your susceptibility to the kind of entertainment that demands you close your eyes and dream you were somebody else or somewhere else.

ABC's "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island," which have been top-rated Saturday programming for several years, prove there's a market for wishful thinking. Last season, "Love Boat" ranked 15th, "Fantasy Island" was 31st.

"A lot of people at home are unmarried. We also have an enormous teen-age audience," says Douglas Cramer, executive producer of "Love Boat." "Our appeal is pure escapism. Our trips are romantic, glamorous and adventurous. They're everybody's dreams. These fantasies are about people who find happiness in glamorous surroundings. Viewers fantasize that that's them. It's a way of not being depressed. We have three stories, and if you don't like one, hold on. There are two more."

But what if you don't like any of them? What if mindless TV is not your favorite weekend activity?

What if you're looking for some intellectual stimulation, sophisticated comedy or realistic drama?

Then this Saturday's network lineup isn't for you. At 8 p.m. EDT, CBS' "Walt Disney" offers "Pluto and His Friends," NBC has "Here's Boomer," and ABC has "Today's FBI."

Other "highlights" include a CBS cartoon called "Faeries," NBC's "Harper Valley" and "Nashville Palace," starring Joe Namath. Then, of course, there's "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island."

This is a far cry from the heyday of CBS comedies in the 1970s, when "All in the Family," at 8 o'clock, was television's top-rated program. Traditionally, viewer levels build through the night, but "people were staying at home for 'All in the Family' and going out afterwards," says George Keramidas, an ABC vice president for television research.

In those days, CBS made staying home worthwhile, with such comedy classics as "All in the Family," "Mary Tyler Moore," "Bob Newhart," and "Carol Burnett." It was respectable — and rewarding — to be dateless and spend the night with Archie or Mary. And, in the early days of TV, Saturday night was the showcase for some Hall of Fame programs: "Si Caesar's 'Show of Shows,' 'Gunsmoke,' 'Perry Mason,' and the 'Jacki Gleason Show.'"

A.C. Nielsen figures for the 1981-82 season reveal that million fewer households were watching TV on Saturday nights than Sunday nights.

Further proof that the networks don't regard high Saturday nights is that two CBS News specials were slotted for the past two weekends. Documentaries never get high ratings.

Dynasty has one good guy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John James, who stars as Jeff Colby on "Dynasty," may be the closest thing to a good guy on this conspiracy-ridden ABC prime time television soap opera.

Jeff, along with his stepmother-in-law, Krystle Carrington (played by Linda Evans), are the only two of the hit show who are hunkering around trying to do someone in. He also is on suffering in putting up with the antics of his wife, Fallon, a self-centered tramp, played by Pamela Sue Martin.

When "Dynasty" made it bow two years ago, Jeff was merely a foil for Fallon, the headstrong daughter of Blake Carrington. But the character has become increasingly important, and the sign indicate that he will assume even more prominence in the future.

"Jeff was just a vehicle for Fallon in the beginning — just someone for her to bounce off," James said. "I was pursuing Fallon and she was running away. But my uncle used his influence on her to bring the two dynasties together. I think the original thing was to establish those two wealthy families, the Carringtons and the Colby and then to show the two families involved in a power struggle."

At the close of the season Jeff and Fallon seemed to be drawn closer together, their new baby. Then the baby was kidnapped.

That was just one of several cliffhangers designed to keep viewers in suspense over the summer. In another, Jeff's uncle, Cecil Colby, has heart attack on the eve of his marriage to Alex Carrington, Blake's former wife.

"If he dies, who inherits the Colby fortune — Jeff or his bride-to-be?" James said.

"Dynasty" climbed steadily in the ratings during the spring and finished the season near the top of the T 10.

James joined "Dynasty" before it went on the air when it was still called "Oil

"They had a contest to pick a name for the show," he said. "I suggested 'Crude' but they didn't like that."

James previously starred in the soap opera "Search Tomorrow," in New York.

"The once-a-week soap opera is so much different," he said. "You get so much more into the material. When you're on five days a week you do a lot of backing a filling to fill the time. When it's just one night a week, you have to cram in a lot of information."

James was a product of ABC's new talent program which promising young performers are put under contract to ABC and placed in various daytime soap operas and prime time series.

"I was originally scripted for the role of Steven Carrington," he said. "They ended up hiring Al Corley. Steven and me for Jeff. It's difficult in the beginning because there was no background written for Jeff. We just sort of developed character as we went along."

Williams extends lead to 8 strokes in Tri-State Tournament

Nothing like a little delay could dampen the spirits of the play of Plainview's Jack Williams, who shot a 69 Thursday to extend his lead to eight strokes going into the final round of the Tri-State Senior Golf Association Tournament.

Third-round play was halted for a little more than an hour when the heavens opened up over the Pampa Country Club course. Williams had birdies on the No. 1 and the No. 3 holes before the rain came. When play resumed, Williams faltered briefly with a double-bogey six on the No. 4 hole that dropped him back to even par. However, birdies on No. 8 and No. 12 helped make up for the double-bogey.

"The ball didn't roll very far on the fairways because of the wet grass, but the rain helped soften my shots on the greens," Williams said. "I was putting very well, so I can't complain too much about the rain."

Williams' two-under-par third round score gave him a three-day total of 209 going into today's final 18 holes. Tied for second at 217 are defending champion J. Rowland Ferguson of Dallas and two-time winner Bob Giese of Amarillo. Roy Peden of Kermit is next with a 219, followed by Henry Richards of Jacksboro with a 224.

Next comes Jake Broyles, Lamesa, 225 and Jim Deaton, Missouri City, 226. Deaton shot 66 Wednesday for the lowest round of the tournament, but fell to an 84 Thursday to go with a 76. There is a three-way tie at 227 between Scott Hall, Pampa, Charles Hefner, Dallas, and Carroll Weaver, Sinton.

Harold DeLong of Shawnee, Okla., a Tri-State champion in 1977 and 1973 and a runnerup last year, fell to a 228 after a six-over par 77 yesterday. He didn't blame his woes on the weather.

"I just wasn't sharp," DeLong said. "I've been working on golf courses this summer and I just haven't been practicing. I'm going to quit working so much and start practicing more. I'm missing out on a lot of fun."

All flights will be medal play today. The first through eight flights had match play Wednesday and Thursday. The championship and president's flight has 72 holes of medal play only.

Jones signs contract

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP)—Ed "Too Tall" Jones becomes the third richest player on the Dallas Cowboys team today.

The All-Pro defensive end who was a catalyst to the Cowboys' 12-4 season last year was to sign a three-year contract for some $1 million.

Only All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White and All-Pro running back Tony Dorsett will make more than Jones, who will get some $300,000 this year. The salary escalates yearly.

Jones missed a plane and a bus Thursday which would have brought him to Thousand Oaks with the remainder of the Cowboys' veterans, fanning speculation he might hold out.

"Jones specifically asked me to pass on his apologies to Coach (Tom) Landry for missing the veterans' meeting," said Tex Schramm, club president.

Jones will not be fined because he was not under contract when he missed the meeting.

Jones' main dispute with the Cowboys was over a signing bonus.

AL roundup

Thornton's grand slam knocks Brewers out of first place in AL East division race

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Andre Thornton got the ball up in the air like he was trying to. In fact, he got it up, up and away.

Cleveland's designated hitter stepped to the plate with the bases loaded and one out in the top of the 12th inning Thursday night and the Indians locked in a 1-1 struggle with Milwaukee. Two pitches later, Thornton had his fourth career grand slam and the Indians had a 5-1 victory that knocked the Brewers out of first place in the seasaw American League East.

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox beat the Chicago White Sox 7-3, the California Angels downed the Seattle Mariners 3-1, the Kansas City Royals trimmed the Baltimore Orioles 7-2 and the Oakland A's blanked the Minnesota Twins 5-0. Detroit, New York, Texas and Toronto were not scheduled.

Jim Slaton relieved Milwaukee starter Pete Vuckovich to start the 12th and gave up a leadoff single to Jack Perconte. Miguel Dilone sacrificed Perconte to second and he took third on a wild pitch. Walks to Toby Harrah and Mike Hargrove loaded the bases and Thornton, who also drove in Cleveland's first run with a fourth-inning single, hit an 0-1 pitch into the left field seats for his 23rd homer.

The victory went to Dan Spillner, the third Cleveland pitcher, who relieved with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the 11th and retired Paul Molitor on a fly ball.

The Brewers, who have been trading first place with Boston in recent weeks, slipped one-half game behind the Red Sox. Red Sox 7, White Sox 3.

Jim Rice's tie-breaking two-run single in the fifth inning and Carl Yastrzemski's 439th career homer in the ninth helped Boston send Chicago to its fourth straight defeat. The Red Sox loaded the bases in the fifth on walks to Rick Miller and Dwight Evans around Jerry Remy's second double of the game before Rice singled to snap a 1-1 tie. Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly made it 4-1 and Yastrzemski homered in the ninth following a sacrifice fly by Rice.

The defeat gave the White Sox a 4-12 record since the All-Star break and Manager Tony LaRussa may be on the hot seat. Angels 3, Mariners 1.

Doug DeCinces drilled a three-run homer in the third inning and Steve Renko earned his ninth victory. Mike Moore walked Tim Foli to start the third and, after Foli was sacrificed to second, Brian Downing singled and DeCinces followed with his 13th homer of the season.

After fighting the flu for a couple of days, DeCinces felt almost too weak to walk out onto the diamond.

The victory was the Angels' third in a row and kept them two games ahead of the second-place Royals in the AL West. Royals 7, Orioles 2. Willie Aikens drove in three runs with a homer and single and Hal McRae drove in two as Kansas City snapped the Orioles' longest winning streak of the season at seven games. Rookie Derek Botelho allowed five hits and one run over five innings and Mike Armstrong pitched three innings before Dan Quisenberry worked the ninth.

The Royals scored four times off loser Dennis Martinez in the second inning, including Aikens' two-run homer. McRae drove in his two runs with a double in the seventh.

A's 5, Twins 0

Rick Langford pitched a four-hitter, Rickey Henderson stole his 96th base of the season and Jeff Burroughs homered for the A's. Langford allowed only four baserunners in his second shutout of the year and struck out five.

Henderson led off the A's first with a single and loser Brad Havens walked Davey Lopes. Henderson got his 96th steal in 101 games by taking third on a double steal. Twins catcher Tim Laudner conceded third to Henderson and tried to nail Lopes at second, but the throw went into center field for an error, allowing Henderson to score and Lopes to reach third. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Tony Armas.

Henderson is just four stolen bases short of the American League record he set two years ago. If he continues his present pace, in late August he should break the major league record of 118 set by Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1974.

Limbering Up

Miami Dolphins' fullback Woody Bennett grimaces with pain as he stretches through calisthenics Thursday at the team's training camp in Miami. Bennett, who is currently on the injured list, torn the ligaments in his left knee early in the 1981 season and has not played since then. Dolphins' coach Don Shula says Bennett should be ready to play at the end of August. (AP Laserphoto)

NL roundup

Phillies, Cards trade NL East lead

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer While Philadelphia and St. Louis play hot potato with the National League East lead, the Atlanta Braves are cooling off the rest of the West. The Phillies, with a 3-2 victory over Chicago

Thursday night, moved back into first place, one percentage point ahead of the Cardinals and only 3 1/2 games in front of Pittsburgh and four ahead of Montreal, in the crowded East. But the Braves, completing a four-game sweep of San Diego with a 6-2 triumph, widened their margin in the West to a fat nine games over the second-place Padres. In Thursday night's other NL games it was Montreal 4, St. Louis 3 in 11 innings, Pittsburgh 4, New York 1, and Houston 4, Cincinnati 3.

Braves Manager Joe Torre sounds as though he's sitting in the hot seat instead of the catbird seat, the way he sidesteps references to Atlanta's runaway. "It's a lot healthier for us than it is for them," he said of the Padres. "But there's a lot of time left. Two months. A lot can happen in baseball in two months."

At least he's relishing his position as a first-place manager after being fired by the New York Mets after last season, right? Wrong. "If, at the end of the year, we stay where we are, I'll relish it," he said. "But this game is very humbling. Anything can happen. One game at a time may be boring for you to hear, but that's baseball."

Torre clearly has his players programmed to his wavelenght. "We're glad to be there," Jerry Royster said of the Braves' first-place position, "but guys aren't turning flips...It's too early to worry about a magic number."

By the way, it's 55. Any number of Atlanta victories and San Diego losses adding up to 55 will give the Braves the flag. Dick Williams, the manager of the Padres, said there was only one bright spot in the four-game series against the Braves: "We're leaving Atlanta."

Dale Murphy hit his 27th and 28th home runs, tops in the major leagues, and Jerry Royster added a two-run triple in the Braves' attack. Gene Richards and Sixto Lezcano homered for the Padres.

Phillies 3, Cubs 2 While the Phillies moved into a virtual first-place tie with the Cardinals in the standings, Gary Matthews moved into a first-place tie with Keith Hernandez of the Cardinals in game-winning hits. His RBI single in the seventh inning was his 14th game-winner of the year.

Expos 4, Cardinals 3 "Each game is so important to us right now. We've got three teams to catch, and you have to try for that little extra," said Montreal's Andre Dawson, who doubled to open the 10th inning, continued to third on center fielder Willie McGee's error and scored the Expos' game-winning run on Tim Wallach's sacrifice fly.

The Cardinals built a 3-0 lead through 7 1/2 innings, then Montreal tied it with three runs in the bottom of the eighth, one scoring when St. Louis relief ace Bruce Sutter issued a bases-loaded walk to Gary Carter.

Living Legends Rodeo to be held in Amarillo

The Living Legends Rodeo, sponsored by the National Old Timers Rodeo Association, has chosen Amarillo as the site of its 1982 rodeo finals, announced Wiley Hicks, president of The Outfit.

The rodeo will be held in the Amarillo Civic Center Oct. 27-30, and will bring in nationwide contestants, who have been active as rodeo cowboy professionals, according to Senator Clem McSpadden, general manager of the rodeo finals.

Buster Ivory of Pampa will serve as an assistant to McSpadden in lining up all of the activities. The top 300 contestants from rodeos from 20 western states, sponsored by the National Old Timers Rodeo Association (NOTRA), will meet in head-on competition in the Civic Center for more than $40,000 in rodeo's major events.

All contestants are over 40 years old and defending champions include such well-known rodeo names as Benny Reynolds, Melrose Montana, former all-around PRCA champion, John McBeth, former PRCA champion saddle bronc rider, Ron Rossen, Broadus Montana, three-time world champion bull rider, and Junior Garrison, twice PRCA world champion calf ropers.

The legendary Freckles Brown of Soper, former PRCA world champion bull rider, will serve as the honorary arena director.

Margo Fields, chairman of the BCVA commented, "We are extremely pleased that 'The Outfit' has responded to a community need of having western events in Amarillo at a time when the Cutting Horse finals will be leaving Amarillo."

"We are very pleased with the cooperation between The Outfit, the BCVA, the Amarillo Civic Center and major sponsors such as Coors, Wrangler and Winston."

Coors Beer was the first company who promised sponsorship, giving Amarillo the opportunity to host this event. McSpadden noted that other sponsorships will be announced soon.

The Outfit is an organization of Panhandle citizens who sponsor events that enhance Amarillo and the Panhandle's western image.

Each daily session begins at 9 a.m., following by swimming from 11 to noon.

Students may sign up now at the Youth Center.

Entry fees for the race, scheduled to begin at 7:30 a.m. at the high school, are $6 in advance and $7 the day of the race. Fees should be mailed to the Tiger 10-K, Groom, 79039.
