

Israel drags its feet on plan

By The Associated Press
Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has "some reservations" about a detailed blueprint for evacuation of the PLO guerrillas from west Beirut. U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis said today. Begin's Cabinet was in special session and Israel Radio reported it might demand revisions in the proposal.

On the war front, Israeli forces and the trapped PLO guerrillas exchanged artillery fire in Beirut again today following a daylong bombardment Monday by Israel's jets, gunboats, tanks and artillery that Lebanese police said left 46 people dead and 98 wounded.

Israel's military command said Palestinian gunners shelled Israeli troops blocking the Beirut-Damascus highway and slammed rocket-propelled grenades into Israeli positions near the Beirut airport today. The Tel Aviv command said its forces returned the fire and took no casualties.

A PLO communique claimed Israel suffered 30 casualties Monday when bazooka-firing guerrillas repulsed what it said were two attempted tank thrusts — at the mid-city crossing point on the Green Line that separates Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors and at the Ouzai-bir Hassan coastal trip on the city's southern edge.

An Israeli military spokesman in suburban Baabda said, "I think we tried something" at the Green Line crossing near the National Museum, but provided no details.

Lewis, who met with Begin before the Cabinet meeting, said that if Israel accepted the U.S.-sponsored evacuation plan, the Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas would start leaving the Lebanese capital in a matter of days. He was expected to receive an initial Israeli response later today.

Lewis said that in his early morning meeting with Begin, the Israeli leader and his ministers "made some positive comments but also had some reservations" about the plan. He said without elaborating that Israel regarded the U.S. proposal as "a very serious and important plan."

Israel Radio did not elaborate on its report that Israel may ask for some changes. In recent weeks, the Israelis have objected to immediate deployment of a multinational peacekeeping force and have expressed doubts about the willingness of Arab nations to provide new homes for the guerrillas.

Sources close to U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib's negotiations said the PLO approved the plan in principle and has abandoned nearly all the conditions it had been trying to obtain.

Public hearing Thursday will discuss $10.1 million budget

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

A public hearing on the Pampa School District's proposed $10,173,366 school district budget and tax rate will be held at 5 p.m. Thursday in the Carver Educational Center.

Included in the school board's proposed spending plan for next year are a tax rate increase; a salary for Superintendent James Trusty of $46,556 plus travel expense, and car and teacher recruitment allowances; a $49,212 increase in the budget of the school tax office, during the same year the office must drop property appraisals, previously a major function of the office; $2,000 for cheerleaders' travel; $3,500 for filming football games; $110,985 in coaching salary supplements; $1,800 for scouting trips; and $7,500 for coaching clinics.

The budget released by the school board budget committee at the board meeting August 3rd, lists all planned expenditures, but not one sentence in the document is dedicated to explaining how the district plans to raise the money.

The only mention of taxes at the last board meeting was a proposal to increase the school tax rate about two cents per $100 assessed valuation, from 62 cents per $100 valuation to 63.9 cents per $100.

The tax rate hike would increase taxes on a $30,000 home about $6 per year.

The new fiscal year and budget begin September 1. The only opportunity for citizens to voice an opinion about the proposed budget and tax rate will be during the school board meeting Thursday.

The current year's budget stands at $10,941,169. Following a budget amendment increase adopted by the board late this school year.

The current budget was originally proposed at a total of all funds at $9,378,535, according to Superintendent James Trusty.

Before this fiscal year began, the school had a total of nearly two million dollars in unused funds and cash, according to the outside audit of school finances for fiscal year 1980-81.

Before the school district began spending the current budget funds this year, $1,897,345.44 lay unused in a savings account at First National Bank, and another $24,619.93 rested in the bank vault, according to the audit report.

Audited spending for all funds that year, two years earlier than the proposed fiscal 1983 budget to be considered Thursday, was $8,488,189.75.

Audited revenues from all funds for the same year were $9,257,846.64.

Actual spending this year through July 6th stood at $9,807,010.55, with $1,134,158.45 remaining to be spent before the new budget begins.

Without consideration of the budget amendment increase approved late this year, the proposed budget for 1983 represents an increase of $794,831 over the current budget.

Trusty previously said the majority of the hike in spending will be used to grant Pampa teachers an increase in pay next year of about 14 percent.

According to the proposed document, the total high school athletic budget for next year is $189,595, compared to $166,700 for the current year, an increase of $22,895.

The proposed budget also reflects no deficit in the athletic budget. However, this year's budget provides $85,000 to cover red ink in athletics during fiscal 1981.

Still, simple consideration of the athletic budget does not provide a good indication of how much the district will spend on athletics — some expenses in the proposed sports budget are charged to another activity, but are directly related to athletics.

For example, the planned "coaching increments," pay for coaching duties over and above what a teacher receives, is projected to increase $14,400 next year, from $96,585 up to $110,985.

The coaching bonus is under the budget of co-curricular activities.

Also not included in the athletic budget, but directly related to school sports, are $7,337 for an "athletic secretary," $2,000 for cheerleader travel to games (Trusty said adults will be paid 20 cents a mile to transport the yell seekers to games), or $7,500 for a bus driver to games.

Those expenses are also listed under co-curricular activities.

Also not reflected in the games budget are insurance for players and employees or maintenance on playing fields and facilities.

When related costs are figured, the district plans to spend well over $300,000 on high school sports.

Money for middle school athletics is pegged at $15,400, an increase of $2,150 over the current year.

The budget also shows a salary increase for superintendent James Trusty of $2,376, up to $46,556.

Also provided in the budget for Trusty are $2,400 for a car allowance, $2,500 for travel and $1,200 for teacher recruitment.

The figures combine with his salary to total $52,656 per year.

During fiscal year 1981, the top administrator's pay was $40,173.

The proposed superintendent's salary represents a $6,383 increase in two years.

A $3,465 increase is scheduled for the school's business manager, from a current $20,840, up to $24,305.

The assistant superintendent's salary is set at $38,578, plus $3,600 for travel and $200 for fees and dues. The salary for the second-in-command person is an increase of $2,130 per year.

Other expenses in the budget are $24,865 provided for general student travel and $4,500 for board members' travel and meals.

Before he retired this year, former Superintendent Bob Phillips released a document at a board meeting which estimated $125,803 of the salaries in the city-school tax office were dedicated to appraisal work only.

Despite Phillips' estimation that the majority of the tax office's function was dedicated to appraisal work, and despite the fact that the office must by law turn over the appraisal work to a central appraisal office in 1983, the office's budget for next year shows an increase of $49,212, from a current $346,300, up to $395,512.

Mrs. Lynn Svoboda is comforted by a paramedic in Grand Prairie, Texas, after learning her husband was slain in a shooting spree by a troubled trucker. (AP Laserphoto)

Killer knew her husband and spared her life in bizarre Texas bloodbath

See page 3 for more on this tragic shooting incident

GRAND PRAIRIE — Vicki Smallwood said the man with a gun told her he wanted to see "Mike." Then he added, "If he's not in, you're dead."

"Mike" wasn't in. And the man with the gun was John Parish, who already had shot four people to death and had wounded two. Before his half-hour spree of violence was over Monday, he would have shot two more people to death and injured two more.

Mrs. Smallwood, a 27-year-old office worker who is five months pregnant, said her salvation apparently was that Parish knew her husband, Arvil "Butch" Smallwood, a mechanic who worked for the same trucking company that Mrs. Smallwood and Parish did.

He said, 'If he's not in ... you're dead...'

"At the top of the stairs he pointed the gun at me and said, 'Who's wife are you?'"

"And I said, 'I'm Butch's wife.'"

"He said, 'That's the only reason I'm not going to kill you — the only reason...'"

"When he turned around and starting walking down the stairs, I was thinking he was still going to shoot me. He was acting so funny, kind of in a dazed manner," Mrs. Smallwood said in a telephone interview.

"I just stood there. I was afraid to run or anything."

Earlier, when she first heard the shots that killed one of her co-workers and wounded two others at the Western Transportation Systems office where she works, she didn't know what to make of them.

"I heard two loud bangs and I seen fire. I guess the fire was coming out the pistol," she said. "It just didn't dawn on me that it was a gun. I thought, 'Some stupid idiot is doing a practical joke.'"

Then Parish, a 46-year-old truck driver she'd met only once before and had forgotten about, came into the room.

"He pointed the gun at me and said, 'Come here,'" she said.

Mrs. Smallwood said he then made his demand to be taken to the executive's office.

"I told him, 'I don't think he's in. He usually doesn't come in this early. He said, 'If he's not in, you're dead.' I said, 'Sir, I'm sorry if he's not here. I can't help it.'"

She said she went upstairs and told Parish, "He's not here. I'm sorry."

"I walked down the hall and he said 'Is anybody else up here?' and I said 'I don't think so.'"

She said that when he finally decided to let her live, he departed slowly, "just as calm, like he'd done nothing."

Her husband said he had known Parish since last September because he had worked on his rig, like he does for the other truckers.

"I thought he was an all right guy," Smallwood said. "He seemed to get along with everybody."

But Smallwood saw another John Parish on Monday.

The mechanic said he watched through a picture window separating an office and the warehouse as Parish shot two people.

'I just stood there. I was afraid to run.'

"He shot Wiley (Burnett Hart) twice. Just bam, bam. Then Wyvonne (Kohler) came in and he shot her. Then he looked at me and I just mentioned his name, 'John Parish.' I just took off running outside and called police," Smallwood said.

"I figured John was just upset and tired," he said. "Like I said, he just went berserk."

Caramel coated popcorn, peanuts, and a lawsuit

CARMEL, Ind. (AP) — Nine-year-old Wendy Potasnik takes her Cracker Jack so seriously that she's suing the manufacturer for allegedly forgetting to put a prize inside her box of candy-coated popcorn and peanuts.
 She filed suit in the small claims division of Hamilton County Court on Friday, asking the Cracker Jack Division of Borden Inc. be made to pay court costs and furnish a toy.
 "They advertise a free toy in each box. However, there was none in mine. I feel since I bought their product because of their claim, they broke a contract with me," Wendy wrote in her complaint.
 "I was really mad when it happened but I was a little nervous when I went to court," said the brown-haired girl, who enters the fourth grade this fall.
 "It's not my favorite candy, but sometimes I eat it. I've always gotten a toy before," she said.
 A hearing in the case has been scheduled for Aug. 30.
 Wendy says she will call her father and her 6-year-old sister, Robin, as witnesses.
 Telephone calls Monday night to Borden Inc. corporate offices in Columbus, Ohio, and New York were not answered. The home number for Maurice O'Reilly, a company spokesman, was disconnected, according to a telephone company recording. No new telephone number was listed.
 Rose Potasnik said that when she bought both her daughters boxes of Cracker Jack last month, Robin got a toy, but Wendy didn't. "At the time it was very upsetting to her," Mrs. Potasnik said. "She was so sad-faced."
 Wendy's father, Alan J. Potasnik, said he urged his daughter to sue several weeks after she mailed a complaint to the manufacturer and received no reply.

Convicted murderer wants to die in the electric chair tomorrow

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Convicted murderer Frank J. Coppola says he wants to die in Virginia's electric chair tonight because "I have to be true to myself. That's one thing I'd like to leave with my kids."
 On Monday, Coppola — who had shaved his head except for a long, reddish moustache tipped with gray that drooped below his chin — told U.S. District Judge D. Dorich Warriner, "I want to be executed, and my sincere wish is that it be carried out tomorrow (Tuesday) night."
 Warriner, who visited the condemned man in a holding cell, refused to postpone the execution, saying Coppola was "rational and perceptive" enough to decide his own fate.
 But the attorneys who lost their postponement request scheduled a second appeal today before the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. They represent J. Gray Lawrence, one of the two lawyers Coppola fired in May when he decided to accept the death sentence and forgo further appeals.
 Three things could prevent the execution: a stay from the 4th Circuit or a higher court; a reprieve from Gov. Charles S. Robb, which is unexpected; or a change of heart from Coppola.
 He is scheduled to die at 11 p.m. in an electric chair that hasn't been used for 20 years. He would be the fifth person executed in the nation since the U.S. Supreme Court revived the death penalty in 1976.
 In deference to Coppola's wish for privacy, Warriner refused to bring him into open court Monday. He spoke with Coppola in a private holding cell in the courthouse with the lawyers and a news reporter designated by Warriner in attendance.

"I don't fear death. My human dignity has suffered. No one could be more objective about what I am doing than me," Coppola was quoted as telling Warriner through the barred cell door.
 Robb, at the National Governor's Association meeting in Afton, Okla., said Monday night he was continuing his review of the case but has "not yet found anything that would cause me to intervene."
 Coppola, 38, a former policeman and Roman Catholic seminarian, was convicted in the beating death of Muriel Hatchell of Newport News in a robbery in 1978. He has insisted on his innocence through appeals that included two rejections by the U.S. Supreme Court.
 But in May he asked that an execution date be set. He said he would rather die than continue living in prison. He said he wanted to spare his family further agony and asked to be executed in the summer, when his two teen-age sons wouldn't be in school.
 "I believe Mr. Coppola wishes to reserve unto himself what dignity he has," said Thomas Cox, the lawyer appointed to represent Coppola when the execution date was set.
 Warriner ruled Coppola was competent to decide to die when he rejected Lawrence's request for a stay. "No person should be permitted to make a decision (between life and death) when he is insane," Warriner said, "just as a person should be permitted to make that decision when he is sane."

Laid off employees of Ingersoll Rand will receive special help

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
 Staff Writer
 The Texas Employment Commission will hold another special session in Pampa on Monday, August 16 at Pampa's Clarendon College campus to process initial unemployment claims of former Ingersoll - Rand employees.
 A sagging drilling economy forced the company to lay off an additional 200 employees Friday, including 147 at the Pampa plant.
 The session will bring in commission personnel from Amarillo to help process claims beginning at 9:30 a.m. and continuing until the work is completed.

Charles Vance, manager of the local branch of the commission, said the local office is not large enough to handle the expected claims from the layoff of 147 local Ingersoll employees Friday.
 A similar session was held shortly after the layoff of 155 Pampans by the company in June. Vance said "about 75 or 80" former Ingersoll workers came to the session.
 Vance said there might be more initial applicants at Monday's session, because of the tighter job market this month in comparison to June.
 Estimates of the city's unemployment ran at about four percent in June, but Vance said that percentage has probably doubled since then.
 Before Friday's layoff, Vance estimated that the city had about six percent unemployment, but Friday afternoon he said unemployment in Pampa is "in and around the eight percent range, easily."
 Since other companies' business health is tied to major employers like Ingersoll, he said, he has heard indications of layoffs in the near future in other areas businesses.
 "It will be a few days before we can really know," Vance said.

Grand jury will hear 11 cases

Eleven felony cases will be presented to a 223rd District Court grand jury beginning at 9 a.m. Wednesday.
 Joe Hendley, assistant district attorney for the court, said the cases will involve charges of theft, burglary, illegal use of narcotics and assault.
 The grand jury will decide if there is enough evidence on the side of the prosecution in these cases to justify a trial for the defendants.
 Hendley said eleven cases is "a healthy number" for the grand jury to handle, and the proceedings will probably "take all day and into the evening."
 He said he does not anticipate that the grand jury will take over one day, however.

 Hendley will be presenting evidence to the jury that has been gathered for the district attorney's office.
 The grand jury was sworn in about a month ago, Hendley said. 223rd District Court Judge Don E. Cain selected the twelve jurors from a list of qualified people submitted by five jury commissioners.
Correction
 The Pampa News in Monday's Q & A feature misquoted Jim Moyer, who said, "The PLO's been giving them fits for years, and they have to put a stop to it." The interview was conducted on a noisy street, and the reporter apparently did not hear precisely what Mr. Moyer said.
 The News regrets any embarrassment the error may have caused.

Lefors School sets hearing on budget

LEFORS — Budget hearing for the Lefors Independent School District's 1982 - 3 school year budget is scheduled for Thursday at 7 p.m.
 Following the hearing, the district's board of trustees will meet. Among items on the agenda are approval of the budget, and setting the tax rate for the coming year.
 The tax rate is expected to be $0.50 per $100 valuation, as it was in 1981 - 2.

Roberts County to hold meeting
MIAMI (Sp.) — Roberts County Commissioners have announced a special meeting on Aug. 25 to tender final approval on the county budget, and to discuss deferred compensation with all county employees and elected officials.
 Budget approval has been delayed by a computer error which has caused a delay in setting the county's tax rate.
 The announcement came at Monday's commission meeting, when commissioners also approved the revenue sharing budget, and the appraisal district budget of $62,714.
 Commissioners announced that the county will solicit bids for a used truck, a new mower and a used tractor.
 Also, they expressed interest in being included in the Amarillo Food Bank plan, a move brought about by a reduction in the Food Stamp program.
 Action is planned soon on the Food Bank program.

Chinese aren't leaning on pork

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concerned about recent declines in hog inventories, China is offering prizes to farmers as incentives for greater pork production.
 The Agriculture Department, in a report issued Monday, said government planners are worried that many farmers "are moving away from the traditional Chinese pursuit of raising pigs."

 According to China's accounting, hog production in 1978 totaled 301 million head, accounting for 41 percent of the world's total. Production climbed to around 320 million in 1979.
 But hog output dropped sharply to a reported 305 million in 1980 and again in

The office does show a reduction in payroll of $115,589 and a reduction in tax office travel of $8,800.
 The payroll goes down from $191,870 to $95,461, and travel is reduced from $12,000 this year to $3,200 next year.
 However, $177,000 set aside in the tax office budget for "appraisals" and other increases more than make up for the reductions; and the operation cost of the office which collects taxes to pay for it all will increase nearly $50,000.
 None of the proposed budget expenses have the formal approval of the board, and the elected school bosses can change the budget after the public hearing Thursday.

 By inviting the public to express an opinion about the proposed school spending plan, the board is taking a required step toward official adoption of the budget.
 The only indication the board plans to discuss the $10 spending proposal Thursday is a one - line agenda announcing the meeting: "public hearing on proposed tax rate."

In Washington, State Department spokesman Alan Romberg expressed confidence Monday that the PLO evacuation would be arranged and the threatened all-out Israeli assault on west Beirut avoided "if the cease-fire holds."
 Saeb Salam, the former Lebanese premier negotiating with the PLO on behalf of Habib, also was optimistic.
 "Having had the determination of the Palestinians to leave and the acceptance (by Israel) of the international forces to come over, everything will be ironed out. I can assure you of this," he told reporters after a meeting with Habib and other Lebanese officials.
 Begin once again said Israel would give more time to Habib's mediation effort. But in a speech broadcast by Radio Israel, he attacked the Arab nations for not making public offers of refuge for the PLO's guerrilla army.

Italy's ambassador to Lebanon, Franco Ottieri, blamed both Israel and the Arabs for the delay in reaching a withdrawal agreement.
 Ottieri said Jordan, which has agreed to take guerrillas with Jordanian passports, is the only Arab nation to make a firm commitment. He said Egypt, Syria, Iraq and Sudan have expressed interest in receiving some of the guerrillas, but none has made a solid offer.
 The Italian ambassador, who is monitoring the negotiations because his government will furnish troops for the peacekeeping force, said Israel has made a "slight improvement" in its call for complete withdrawal of the PLO before the international force enters Beirut. But he said the Israeli position is "still unrealistic."
 Ottieri said Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon told Habib Israel would allow the peace force to land "when and only when" all but 2,500 of the estimated 6,000 to 9,000 guerrillas had left Beirut.
 "My impression is that Israel is still pushing for unconditional surrender," said the Italian envoy. All you have to do is look out of your window and see the smoke from the shelling."
 The ppo is refusing to remove the bulk of its forces without guarantees for the protection of the hundreds of thousands of Palestinian civilians who will be left in Lebanon.
 Reliable sources in Israel said Habib proposed that the PLO turn over its fortified positions to the Lebanese army and an advance guard from the peacekeeping force of 200-300 French troops. The rest of the force — about 800 Americans, 400 Italians and 500-600 more French — would be brought in in stages deployed about halfway through the 15-day evacuation.

'Hermit' charged with murder

HILLSBORO, Texas (AP) — For the past three years, Delbert Pool and Burton Merrill have been friends. Often they would get together at Merrill's shack along the Nolan River to run traplines, drink beer and holler at each other.

Pool, 70, might reminisce about the house, saloon and dance hall he built beside Lake Whitney with his own hands more than 20 years ago. Merrill, 52, would want to talk some about his days as a hot-shot rodeo rider.

Today, Merrill is in the Hill County Jail in Hillsboro, charged with three counts of murder after sheriff's deputies dug three skeletons and parts of a fourth out of an abandoned well near Merrill's campsite.

The sheriff said it seems likely the victims were some of Merrill's drinking buddies.

"The idea scares me to death," Pool said Monday after Merrill was jailed on $150,000 bond — $50,000 on each count. "I couldn't picture him killing anybody."

"He was sitting right here — right where you're sitting now — four days ago," Pool told a reporter. "We were drinking a beer together. Burton Merrill has always been a friend to me. He helped me shingle my roof. He never acted like he wanted to come up against me."

A second man, picked up by Cleburne police, was questioned in connection with the case but Sheriff Brent Button said it is not likely he will be charged.

Merrill was well known around Hill and Johnson counties. Button said everybody considered him a harmless eccentric — a "character" — until his arrest late Saturday.

"He's got a mattress," said Peace Justice R.F. "Skinner" Wallace, who set Merrill's bond Monday, "and in the summer he'll just lay it under a tree by the river and stay there. In the winter, he goes back up to his 'chicken house.' That's what people up there call it, anyway. He was known as a real mountain man."

Pool said Merrill had lived like a hermit for many years, camping out in the rough brush country near Lake Whitney, northwest of the tiny town of Blum.

"Money is no factor to him. It's just not important," Pool said. "If he had money he would just spend it on beer and snuff, and then he'd be broke again. He'd shoot his food — rabbits, squirrels, quail. He could live off of that and fish. He was a hermit."

Merrill looked the part at Monday's arraignment. His forearms were caked with dirt, his gray-flecked beard was untrimmed, his thick, black hair was uncombed and his old clothes were worn and dingy. He told Wallace he could not afford a lawyer and wanted the court to appoint one to represent him.

But Pool, Wallace and Button say there was a time when Merrill cut quite a figure.

"They tell me he used to be one of the handsomest men in the state of Texas," the sheriff said.

"He was always neatly dressed and clean-cut," said the friend.

"He married the daughter of a district judge up in Johnson County," said the peace justice. "They were real young — I don't even think she was out of high school."

"I understand he was one of the best rodeo riders around this part of the country when he was a younger man," said Button.

'Walking bug' tells how he taped conversations

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Defense lawyers planned to cross-examine today a "walking bug" who volunteered to tape record his jailhouse conversations with the man accused of killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Government attorneys Monday called John Lee Spinelli, serving a 19-year term for robbery and attempted escape, to tell how he strapped an FBI tape recorder to his body and recorded Charles V. Harrelson's conversations at the Harris County Jail for 58 days last year.

Attorneys for Harrelson, his wife and El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra have moved to suppress use of the government tapes in a Sept. 28 trial of five people charged in connection with Wood's assassination in San Antonio on May 29, 1979.

Prosecutor John Emerson elicited from Spinelli that it was Spinelli, and not the FBI, who initiated a deal for the prisoner to provide "intelligence" in the Wood case. Spinelli occupied a cell next to Harrelson's.

Spinelli testified Monday that he first met Harrelson in September 1980 after Harrelson was arrested at Van Horn after jumping bond in Houston and eluding arrest for two months.

Houston FBI agent Dennis L. Ploeger testified that he decided to fit Spinelli with the body recorder after Harrelson discovered a court-ordered tape machine in a visiting area of the Houston jail on Dec. 10, 1980. Harrelson ripped out the wires and accused the government of using "gestapo tactics" in its investigation of Wood's assassination.

Spinelli also said he was able to overhear some of Harrelson's talks with what he described as "a herd" of visitors who shouted to Harrelson through a steel door near the two "death cells" in which he and Harrelson were held on the maximum security sixth floor of the Harris County Jail.

Harrelson often asked Spinelli to turn up his radio or television when Harrelson's wife visited, Spinelli testified. Harrelson often passed notes to his wife, then tore them into pieces and burned them or flushed them down the toilet, the convict said.

Spinelli said he telephoned the FBI when he learned that Harrelson was a suspect in the Wood murder case and offered to assist, "to be perfectly honest, to see what I could get for John Spinelli."

Spinelli, described by one defense attorney as "the walking bug," said the only thing he asked for was that the government arrange to remove him from the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections and place him in federal custody.

He said he wanted to leave the state prison unit because "it wasn't exactly the Hyatt Regency" and because he had filed several lawsuits against the TDC.

After meeting with prosecutor John Emerson and Ploeger at the state penitentiary in February 1981, Spinelli said he was removed to federal custody and recorded conversations with Harrelson at the Harris County Jail from April 10, 1981 until June 4, 1981.

Man who shot six had job problems

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — John Parish was upset about his pay and had been labeled a troublemaker at work, but Police Chief David Kunkle still wonders why the truck driver shot six people to death in a rampage of terror at three places he worked.

"I don't know what causes someone like Parish to do what he did," Kunkle said Monday. "I don't think we'll ever know."

Five other people were injured before Parish, 46, ended his half-hour spree of violence by smashing a stolen 18-wheel truck into a police car and shooting it out with police. He was killed in a hail of gunfire as seven or eight bullets found their mark.

The Dallas man, an employee for the past two years at a trucking company called WTS Enterprises, fired his first shots about 8 a.m. at the operations warehouse of a WTS subsidiary, Western Transportation Systems. He shot and killed three men, including his boss, Eddie Eugene Ulrich, police said.

He then stole a bobtail truck and drove down the street to WTS headquarters in the same industrial park. There he shot three more people, wounding a receptionist and an operations manager and killing an executive secretary, police said.

Parish next drove to another industrial park about four miles away and fatally shot two supervisors and wounded one at Jewel-T Discount Grocery Distribution Center, about two blocks from the police station in this suburb west of Dallas, Kunkle said. Jewel-T officials previously had used Parish as a driver but told WTS he was a troublemaker and asked that he not be assigned to Jewel-T jobs, Kunkle said.

After the shooting at Jewel-T, Parish went to the parking lot and commandeered a truck from a driver who suffered a broken foot while fleeing. While firing at police in pursuit, Parish led police on a chase that stopped 1 1/2 miles away at a trucking terminal when he drove the stolen 18-wheeler head-on into a parked police car, knocking down a stop sign and utility pole as the truck overturned and slid, smashing into the terminal.

Officer Alan Patton, who was firing at Parish from behind his patrol car, was knocked 50 to 100 feet and his car was thrown 20 feet, Kunkle said.

Parish crawled from the cab of the wrecked truck and into the truck terminal through a hole ripped into the building by the crash and kept firing at police, who responded with a hail of bullets that brought a close to the violence at 8:27 a.m., authorities said.

"It was like a Wild West show," said Wayne Standefer, who owns Wayne's Custom Automotive across the street. "They were shooting in every direction in the world."

Kunkle said Parish was armed with a shortened .30-caliber carbine rifle, a .25-caliber automatic pistol, and a .38-caliber revolver. He had used all of them — the carbine and the .38 at the first, the carbine at the second, and the .38 at the third, the police chief said. He said the .25-caliber pistol had been fired once, though he didn't know where, and the carbine had been fired about 28 times.

"This was not a random shooting. The man obviously had an agenda. He had a mission to accomplish," Kunkle said. "It appeared he was after supervisors."

Kunkle said Parish had argued with his employer twice in the past two weeks, complaining that he was paid less than was coming to him. Police Detective Bob Willbanks said Parish claimed he was owed $1,000 in pay.

He had gone to Ulrich to complain and the boss had shown Parish the books to explain that his pay checks were lower because he had been working less, said Arvil "Butch" Smallwood, a WTS mechanic who said he got along well with Parish.

"They were getting smaller. But of course if you work 40 hours one week, 38 hours another week and 35 another week, it's going to get smaller. John Parish just couldn't realize this," Smallwood said.

Friends of Parish's in Dallas said Parish thought he was being mistreated and he was tired of it.

"I think he got tired of being pushed around. If you kick a dog too many times, he's going to turn on you," Parish's brother, Murphy Parish, told The Dallas Morning News.

Murphy said his brother "did say he was tired of being shoved around and was going to in and see them about it Monday."

Witnesses said Parish seemed calm as he killed Ulrich, 40, of Lewisville, and two other men at his first stop. The other two were identified as truck drivers Martin Douglas Moran, 30, of Grand Prairie, and Moody Charles Smith, 58, of Hudson.

The shooting victims at the second stop were identified as executive secretary Wyvonne Kohler, 45, of Arlington; receptionist Ruth James, 19, of Alvarado; and operations manager, Burnett Hart, 42, of Arlington, police said. Ms. James was shot in the shoulder and neck and was listed in good condition; Hart

Convicted murderer scheduled for execution

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Attorney Douglas Tinker says he will file an appeal to keep Henry M. Porter, a Fort Worth man convicted of killing a policeman, from being executed by lethal injection this week.

Porter would become the first inmate executed in Texas in 18 years and the first to die by lethal injection in the state. The method was approved by the state Legislature in 1977.

Porter, 40, was twice convicted and sentenced to death in the 1975 shooting of Fort Worth policeman Henry Paul Milloux. An appeal of the second conviction was carried to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Tinker said Monday he planned to file another appeal with the U.S. District Court in Corpus Christi.

Milloux was shot fatally in a gun battle on a Fort Worth street after he stopped a car fitting the description of a vehicle used a short time before in an armed robbery. The driver of the car escaped, but was wounded.

Porter, a relative of the car's owner, was arrested a few days later in San Antonio.

Vicki Smallwood, a 27-year-old office worker who is five months pregnant, said she heard some loud noises at the second shooting scene but didn't realize it was gunfire until Parish walked up to her and pointed a gun at her.

Parish demanded that she take him upstairs to find an executive named "Mike," and said, "If he's not in, you're dead."

The executive wasn't in. But when Parish found out her husband was "Butch" Smallwood, the mechanic, he told her he would spare her, she said.

"That's the only reason I'm not going to kill you — the only reason," she quoted Parish as saying. He then walked out, "just as calm, like he'd done nothing."

Smallwood said that earlier he had watched through a window from the warehouse and saw Parish shoot Hart and Ms. Kohler.

"He shot Wiley (Burnett Hart) twice. Just bam, bam. Then Wyvonne (Kohler) came in and he shot her. Then he looked at me and I just mentioned his name, 'John Parish.' I just took off running outside and called police," the mechanic said.

Two others who believed their time had come were Jim Hodge, a 57-year-old truck driver from Cullman, Ala., and Bob Fischer, a 25-year-old Arlington man who manages the E.L. Murphy Trucking Co. terminal that was hit by the stolen 18-wheeler.

Man leads officers to shallow grave

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities found the body of a young woman in a shallow grave and say the discovery may lead to eight more such graves containing the bodies of young women.

Police said Monday a 28-year-old mechanic for Metropolitan Transit Authority led homicide detectives to the area where he abducted the young women and told them how he killed his victims.

Harris County District Attorney John Holmes said the man apparently abducted his victims at random, picking them off the streets.

Defend from "high frontier"

The proposal is so innovative, so simple and sensible in its concepts, that you would have known, before you were told, that it had to have come from outside the Pentagon.

The driving force behind High Frontier, a proposal receiving increasing attention, is a retired general, former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, Daniel Graham, a fellow whose tendency to go against the tide has increased since his retirement. With the help of the conservative Heritage Foundation and several dozen scientists, strategists and economists, he has put together a proposal to claim the frontier of space for the U. S. military, develop a credible and solely defensive response to the Soviet threat while not adding to the nuclear arsenal and lay the groundwork for commercial development of resources in space for the benefit of people on earth.

Here, briefly, is what Graham and his colleagues have in mind. For the sort term, they propose a system that could be deployed within a year or two to protect MX missiles and other ICBMs with a "point defense" consisting of radar and "swarms" of small projectiles that would wipe out at least one attacking missile just before they hit.

For the medium term, Graham & Co. would launch about 400 satellites with the capability of destroying Soviet missiles in the early phase of trajectory without setting off a nuclear detonation. The second phase of this program, which would be made possible by the development of advanced infrared sensing devices, would permit Soviet missiles to be attacked at any stage of their trajectory up to reentry into the atmosphere.

Somewhere down the road, the High Frontier people envision the possibility of laser weapons, a high-performance space plane, a space station and a solar-energy satellite.

Perhaps the most breathtaking conceptual achievement of the High Frontier report is its complete rejection of the strategy of Mutual Assured Destruction (MAD), which must be one of the most apt acronyms of our time. Despite denials and obfuscations, MAD has governed the U. S. (and Soviet) missile programs for at least 15 years. The theory is that deterrence and stability are achieved when both sides know that, even in the event of a first strike, the other side will be able to destroy the other country ("inflict unacceptable damage") in retaliation.

One might hope that once each side has assembled enough firepower to level the other side, the arms race would stop. However, under MAD, with its emphasis on offensive and retaliatory power rather than defense, it's not so simple. If the other side might be able to wipe out your missiles with a first strike, you've got to build more missiles and try to hide them or harden their sites. Thus MAD almost guarantees a constantly escalating arms race with occasional bouts of arms limitation negotiations when one side or the other feels its economy stretched or sees a way to seize a temporary advantage.

Graham points out that the true object of a strategic defense is not to create a 100-percent foolproof system, but to plant enough doubts in the minds of a potential aggressor to deter a first strike.

High Frontier defense may not be feasible immediately but it's worth considering. We Earthlings find ourselves poised on the threshold of a new adventure of discovery and exploration in space. We need to be open to innovation, to consider ideas that may seem unrealistic or radical just now.

Congress generous to congressmen

It's nice to know in a world where old values are constantly in danger of extinction, where the only constant seems to be change, that some practices and institutions endure.

Come budget crunch or military buildup, come tax cut or tax revolt, come changing of the guard in the executive branch or turnover in membership, logrolling continues to be the way Congress does much of its business.

For as long as the memory stretches, members of the armed services committee of both the House and Senate have seen to it that a good deal of the military spending they authorize gets spent where it will do the most good - right back in their home districts.

Some might have thought that the election of Ronald Reagan would change some of that. After all, he promised belt-tightening and an expensive military buildup all at the same time. With the enthusiasm his administration brought to military spending proposals, it might have seemed unlikely that the Armed Services Committee members could discover even more mysteriously unmet needs back home. Surely efforts to increase Reagan's generous proposals would meet with suspicion and public outcry about waste.

Such persons have little faith in the durability of hallowed congressional traditions.

Back in 1981, when the fiscal year 1982 military construction bill was being considered, the House Armed Services Committee added $145.5 million over and above what the president requested. By a strange coincidence, $72.3 million was for projects in the districts of the 44 committee members.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, not to be outdone, added $151.63 million to its FY 1982 military construction authorization. All but $18.65 million of this was for projects in states represented by committee members. The Senate Appropriations Committee was unkind to these devoted public servants, however, cutting into the very sinews of national defense by denying a total of $48.38 million of these essential projects.

This year, considering the FY 1983 budget, the House Armed Services Committee added $296 million above and beyond what the president had requested for military construction. National interest and self interest were found to coincide with remarkable precision. Almost $172 million of this additional authorization (58 percent) was for projects in the home districts not just of the whole committee, but of the 14-member subcommittee on military installations and facilities.

Presidents may come and go, but Congress keeps it logs rolling along. That may be small comfort in our roles as taxpayers. But as sometimes troubled observers of a changing world, we're tempted to take whatever comfort we can get.

If Marilyn Monroe were alive today — if she hadn't swallowed 25 Nembutals on a Saturday night in August 20 years ago — she would now be 56.

She died despairing and depressed, bitter and bewildered by the world's view of her.

"I'm a joke that brings in money," she said of herself.

She slept away, tender and tormented, just as the women's movement was awakening. I'm not saying the movement could have saved her, but if she had hung on a little longer, it might have helped her to understand herself.

Like many women in her era, she was led to believe that success is built on sexiness. But when she achieved that success, she said: "I don't want to be just a sexpot."

She hated being a sex symbol and at the same time feared becoming too old to be one.

She wanted desperately to be taken seriously as an actress, yet she didn't seem to object when a crowd of 2,000

Monroe before feminism

gawked, whistled and went bananas as her skirt flew up during the New York filming of "The Seven-Year Itch."

The studios that made her a legend exploited her. Said the actress: "When I got the part in 'Gentleman Prefer Blondes' . . . Jane Russell . . . got $200,000 for it and I got my $500 a week. I said, 'Look, after all, I am the blonde and it's 'Gentleman Prefer Blondes.'"

Later, when she had both power and money, she didn't know how to handle either. Few women did in those days. She thought independence was stalking off sets, arriving late at the studio or not showing up at all.

Men loved her, yet many abused her. "She was chewed and spat out by long line of grinning men," wrote her one-time husband, Arthur Miller, in "After The Fall," his play that probed their relationship.

She worshiped Miller because he believed in her and didn't want to go to bed with her as soon as they met. He took that to mean she had value as a person.

In time, however, she devoured him with her needs, pleading constant reassurance for mounting self-doubts. She drank more, took more tranquilizers, became more and more lost.

Eventually they divorced, and the demons within her took over.

Just before her suicide, she told a Life magazine interviewer: "I never understood it — the sex symbol — I always thought symbols were things you clash together. That's the trouble, a sex symbol becomes a thing — I just hate to be a thing."

Playwright Miller explained her dilemma most poetically in an essay, "Tragedy in the Common Man," written in 1966, four years after her death. It was not about her, but about tragic dramas. Yet, between the lines, I always see Marilyn.

A tragic feeling comes over us, he wrote, when we are in the presence of a character torn away from his chosen image of who and what he is in the world, "a character who is ready to lay down his life to secure one thing — his sense of personal dignity."

A sense of dignity, a pride of self, is what the women's movement is all about. If Marilyn Monroe had lived these 20 years, I like to think she would have been touched and influenced by, perhaps even turned on by, feminism.

Possibly, she would have found her dignity, would have refused to be exploited and found other women — and men — backing her. She could have realized her value and grown, over the years, as a person and a professional in her field.

Today's symbol of sex and cleavage is Dolly Parton, who, at 36, is the same age as actress Monroe when she took her life. Feminist Parton said in a recent interview that she "cussed and fought" to keep control of her songs in her new movie, "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas." Unlike Marilyn, she reportedly has one of the shrewdiest heads for money in showbiz.

As for growing older, the country-western singer recently quipped: "I don't care how ugly I get as long as I'm healthy. I figure my best years are going to be between 50 and 100."

Too bad there was no such vision to sustain the first "blonde bombshell" on that fatal Saturday, Aug. 5, 1962. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

A status chew

By DON GRAFF

If you're primed for some definitive words here on budget balancing amendments, Soviet grain sales or steel and pipeline disputes with the European allies, forget it.

We're taking a break from all that today to discuss chewing gum. There is no particular point to what follows on the subject, but stick with us anyway. (Sorry.)

Back to gum, it is not just any gum but a prestige product imported from Europe by a White Plains, N.Y., entrepreneur, Michael Stone, who believes it is just what Americans — well, half of us maybe — haven't known we really wanted. It is made in Denmark, called Stimerol and being introduced here at a price about twice that of U.S. brands.

What makes Stone think that he can sell Americans, who laugh the world how to chew, a foreign product at a premium price? The same thing that sells Perrier, Guccis and Mercedes Benz.

Still, he aims only to capture a specialty segment, not to become the market leader.

The leader agrees with most of this. In Chicago, the Wrigley people say their research puts the chewing population at half of all Americans and add a few details to the profile of the gum consumer. The most typical is a female in the 18-34 age range, with there - agers of both genders also strong. There is a tilt toward fruit flavors among the young, toward mint among the mature. (Stimerol's flavor? Stone won't tell, even a non-chewer. "Try it.")

While acknowledging that Stone has an off-beat idea, Wrigley doubts that it will sell much gum in the 200 stick per capita American market. In the Wrigley view, chewing gum is not the stuff of status but a part of Americana. It is the quintessential democratic product and there are no plans to introduce a competing brand at a higher price.

Which is not about to deter Stone. Back in White Plains, he is preparing to go national after several months of highly successful test marketing in the New York area — "the kind of market where you make these images first, you know." The image is also getting some help from spot sales at the Knoxville World's Fair, not to mention warm weather reportage such as this.

While Stone and Big Gum may be agreed that they have no problem with each other, what about outside competition? What if the Japanese discover the $1.5 billion American market?

Neither had considered the possibility, but sees no reason to worry. "Not high enough tech," says Stone. "Not enough challenge there."

OK, White Plains, and Chicago. But don't say you haven't had warning. Remember Detroit.

Well, almost no point. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The facts of life

By ART BUCHWALD

This is the time of year when fathers sit down and have heart-to-heart talks with their sons.

"Son, now that you have graduated, your mother feels I would not be fulfilling my duties as a father if I did not explain certain facts about life to you."

"Yes, Dad."

"First, I would like to show you a few things that you will have to deal with in the outside world. For example, this item is called a necktie."

"What do you do with it?"

"You tie it around your neck like this and wear it with a shirt."

"What for?"

"Nobody is quite sure. But when you go out into the cold world, people will expect you to wear one. It's the Establishment's answer to the peace symbol."

"It sure looks funny. What else, Dad?"

"This, my boy, is a suit — what are you laughing at?"

"The jacket matches the pants. Hey, that's really crazy."

"Yes, the jacket does match the pants, and you will be expected to wear them together during the daytime."

"But the pants have a crease in the front. What's that for?"

"I'm not certain of its purpose, but now that you are an adult, you are supposed to keep a crease in your pants."

"Man, what will they think of next?"

"Son, I wish you wouldn't take our talk lightly. Perhaps I should have explained these things to you before, but I didn't want to ruin your school days. Yet what I am telling you now will have a great effect on everything you do."

"Sorry, Dad, but you have to admit wearing a tie and a jacket that matches the pants — what do you call it, a suit? — is a pretty funny idea."

"Can we proceed? These queer-looking leather things are called shoes. Do you have any idea what they're used for?"

"Beats me."

"You put them on your feet to protect them from sharp objects."

"I don't want to wear anything like that, Dad. I'll take my chances."

"I don't know how to break it to you, son, but most places require grown-ups to wear shoes."

"Look, Dad, if you want me to, I will wear a necktie, and I'll even go along with the jacket and matching pants with a crease in them, but I'm not going to put those stupid leather things on my feet."

"Shoes, son, shoes. Believe me, you'll get used to them. After a while you might even get to like them and keep them polished."

"You mean I have to polish them, too?"

"You don't have to, but they look better that way and last longer. Here, put on these socks and then . . ."

"Socks?"

"Yes, you wear them inside the shoes so the leather won't rub your feet."

"I thought the shoes were supposed to protect my feet."

"Provided you wear socks. Son, please don't make this too difficult for me. I'm not very good at explaining the facts of life, but believe me, I've been telling you the truth."

"I'm sorry, Dad. It's just that you've thrown all this stuff at me at one time, and it comes as a shock."

"Perhaps we've talked enough for one day. Tomorrow, I'd like to tell you about a thing called a razor."

"Razor? That's a funny word."

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 10, the 222nd day of 1982. There are 143 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 10, 1519, Spanish explorer Ferdinand Magellan began history's first recorded voyage around the world.

On this date: In 1792, the French monarchy was overthrown as mobs in Paris attacked the palace of Louis XVI.

In 1807, Robert Fulton's steamboat, "Claremont," made its first trip.

In 1821, Missouri entered the union as the 24th state.

In 1914, France declared war on Austria-Hungary at the start of World War I.

Ten years ago: The Pentagon disclosed that renewed bombing of North Vietnam and other tactics since the Communists' April offensive had added more than $1 billion to U.S. military expenditures.

Five years ago: New York police arrested postal worker David Berkowitz as the so-called "44-caliber" killer of six people in a year-long series of shootings.

One year ago: U.S. flights to Europe were stalled when Canadian air traffic controllers refused to handle them in sympathy with their striking American counterparts.

Today's birthdays: Singers Eddie Fisher and Jimmy Dean are 54.

Thought for today: Beware the fury of a patient man. — John Dryden, English poet (1631-1700).

Hinckley treatment program to be designed

Wait a minute!!

James Watt the Secretary of the Interior gestures for time to reply to a quest as he discussed the nation's energy problems and policies at the energy session of the National Governors Conference in Afton, Okla. Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial over the diagnosis done, doctors at St. Elizabeths Hospital will now work out a treatment program for John W. Hinckley Jr., who still "thinks daily about killing Jodie Foster," the actress.

Hospital spokesman Wayne Pines said Hinckley, 28, and a team of professionals will jointly work out the right mix of group and individual therapy, the proper dosage of medication — anti-depressives — and the activities in which he can participate.

Hinckley was sent to the federally financed facility on June 21 after a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity on charges of shooting President Reagan and three other men.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker ordered Hinckley committed to the facility indefinitely, meaning he will undergo treatment. Until now, he has been evaluated.

Parker, accepting the report of St. Elizabeths' doctors, found that Hinckley is "at the present time and will in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others."

Hinckley, wearing a pinstrip shirt, no sport coat and dark trousers without a belt, appeared in Parker's courtroom for the first time since his acquittal.

In a firm voice, he told Parker he was waiving his right to a hearing on his release. Discussing the doctors' evaluation of his current mental state, Hinckley said, "I don't necessarily agree with their opinion."

The law allows Hinckley to petition the court every six months to free him, and he must ask permission any time wants to leave the hospital grounds, even for a few hours.

The St. Elizabeths report called Hinckley "an unpredictably dangerous person." Doctors said Hinckley suffers from four major personality disorders and major depression, which they said is in "partial remission."

"Presently, he thinks daily about killing Jodie Foster," the actress with whom carried on a one-sided love affair and who he tried to impress by shooting the president, the report said.

"In the recent past, he has expressed sexual and aggressive ideas about Ms. Foster," the report said. "He has more frequent thoughts of murdering her; he now has thoughts of raping her."

Pines said the hospital must now decide whether to move Hinckley from the 8-by-13 foot room in a ward with patients whose mental state is being evaluated to a section where all the residents have been through a trial, and, like Hinckley, have been found innocent by reason of insanity.

The evaluation said Hinckley remains so obsessed with Ms. Foster that he has told doctors, when asked about his thoughts in the middle of the night, "Jodie, Jodie, Jodie and then there's Jodie."

"He believes that she has become attached forever in history to him because of his shooting the president," and still compares himself and the actress with Napoleon and Josephine and Romeo and Juliet.

Pilot on medicine may have caused carrier crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has concluded that pilot error, possibly caused by an excessive dosage of cold medicine, contributed to the 1981 crash of a plane into the deck of the aircraft carrier Nimitz.

In a report released Monday, the Navy said the crash, the worst carrier landing accident in the past 29 years, "resulted from a combination of environmental, mechanical and human factors."

Fourteen Navy and Marine men were killed and 42 injured on May 26, 1981, when an EA-6B radar-jamming plane smashed into the deck of the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Nimitz during night operations off Jacksonville, Fla.

The pilot, Marine 1st Lt. Steve E. White, 27, a native of Houston, Texas, was among the dead.

White's family objected to conclusions for allegedly laying too much of the blame on the dead pilot.

In its announcement, the Navy listed five factors contributing to the crash.

It said investigators found "no evidence linking the use of illegal drugs as a causative factor and ... no evidence of aircraft malfunction."

The Navy statement said that there was pilot error "in that he failed to maintain his aircraft aligned with the center line of the landing area" on the Nimitz's deck.

"The presence of a very high concentration of brompheniramine in the pilot's blood ... may have degraded the mental and physical skills required for night landings," the Navy said.

It described brompheniramine as "a common antihistamine decongestant cold medicine ingredient."

Last year, an autopsy conducted on the pilot's body disclosed up to 11 times the recommended dosage of a cold remedy in his system.

Governors push balanced budget

AFTON, Okla. (AP) — Conservative mavericks were challenging the leaders of the National Governors' Association by pushing endorsement of a simplified balanced-budget amendment before the governors' summer meeting comes to a close.

Meanwhile, the chief executives prepared a resolution under which they would try to write their own version of a "new federalism" program, but plan to consult with the White House before taking it to Congress.

The mavericks acknowledged little chance of getting the three-fourths approval needed to suspend the rules and pass a balanced-budget resolution before the conference ended today.

But they hoped at least to send a message to Congress and the voters by making a try.

leaders said. Conservatives, supporters of President Reagan and incumbents involved in re-election races comprised the maverick group. Reagan has endorsed a proposed balanced-budget amendment that last week was approved by the Senate.

A resolution sponsored by Govs. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, a Democrat, and Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, a Republican, would endorse an amendment making budget deficits almost impossible except in wartime.

Like the Senate version, it would require a three-fifths vote by both houses to pass a deficit budget, but it omits the complicated formulas and qualifications contained in the Senate measure.

Vermont Gov. Richard Snelling, a Republican who is the outgoing chairman of the governors' association, called the amendment drive "nonsense."

Peeking at Pampa

Had heard so much about what a good time the senior golfers and their wives always have at their Tri - State Tournament that I got a member to take me out and introduce me around. Never saw a grander bunch of people, so full of praise for Pampa, our hospitality, our friendly merchants, the sumptuous meals served, everything. Said it was their best week of the year.

So many Pampanos were overjoyed to see Jeanette and Artie Aftergut back for the golf festivities. They lived here a long time before moving to San Antonio and say they always feel at home when they come back to Pampa. Understand they were house guests of Floyd and Maxine Watson.

Scott and Lil Hall were beaming on friends, following his winning of the Medalist trophy, especially noteworthy since he got home from a downstate clinic just in time to play in the tournament. Lil said, "Why, Scottie never made such a good score before!" And Scottie said, "I sure never did."

Women's activities were headed by Jane Gattis (John's wife) and Evelyn Nac (Otis' mate) with lovely assistance from Ruth Wright, wife of Rankin E. Heard that Ruth and May Boston were in charge of the tournament bridges games for years and that visitors were delighted to see her again. She's possessed of such a marvelous disposition and is so friendly, so lovable.

Seems that the speaker system wasn't working during the bingo games — but that Jane shouted loudly enough to be heard by everybody. She got a big hand for her efforts and for her humorous running commentary that kept the ladies laughing.

One golfer's wife said she enjoyed the "little" prizes given following one of the bridge sessions. Awards were offered for (1) any ladies not wearing glasses, which nobody won; (2) anybody with shoe laces, again a non-winner; (3) any lady wearing red shoes, of which there were several; and (4) anyone with white shoes, which took the bulk of the prizes.

Entertainment for the night sessions was outstanding, everybody said. On Wednesday, Pampan's own Heidi Allen presented the musical program with Sue Higdon at the piano. Heidi was beautiful and sang so well that she returned for encore after encore. You know she's the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Gene Allen and has won more beauty contests than anybody else we know.

At the hamburger buffet (The hamburgers were the biggest any guest had ever seen and the "fixins" were plentiful), Dean Kelley entertained. His wonderful voice brought him many encores. His rendition of "One Day At A Time" was a highlight. Seems he was so popular at the senior program last year that the golfers and their wives insisted he be brought back this year. Heard he has been invited to attend one of the big football games in the Southwest (in Dallas, somebody said) to sing the National Anthem, sometime this fall.

Many visitors stayed with Pampa friends or relatives while here for the tournament. W. C. Hopkins of San Antonio (the Association's beloved "Hoppy") a retired army officer and a wartime buddy of Dr. Raymond Laycock, stayed with Raymond and Mildred. Seems Hoppy always sings for the crowd, whether he's on the program or not, much to the delight of his golfing friends.

Heard that one lady said, "We're having the time of our lives, spending our children's inheritance!" She added that the children approved.

More family reunions! And each one reports a marvelous time, getting re-acquainted with relatives not seen for months or years.

Largest group we've heard of is the reunion held in Lefors, not long ago, by the children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren of the late Sarah and Paul P. Corcoran of Mobeetie. Understand that 98 people attended and that there were four generations, four times, at the gathering. Now that must be a record!

Family and friends brought a bountiful meal to the Lefors City Community hall. They took a lot of pictures, and Laverne Corcoran set up a table where family albums were displayed. Pampa people who were there included the Pete Corcorans, Bessie Keeton, the James Trustys and Phillip, the Tommy Corcorans and Shanda, the Loyal Groves and Phillip, the James Hanings and the Ernie Grady's.

The clan came from Lefors, Mobeetie, Wheeler, Tulia, Amarillo, Fritch, Darrrouzett, White Deer, Perryton, Oklahoma City and other towns and cities. A family member said it was their best reunion ever.

One of our best-informed Biblical scholars is surely Atha Wilks. A charming lady, an excellent speaker, she is well versed in the knowledge of the Good Book. Recently she taught a two - Sunday series about the fulfillment of the Bible's prophecies. By the way, she's also a fine organist — and a lady well worth knowing.

Heard in passing: "I don't think that man can do what he says he can. But if he can, he can catch lightning in a bottle!"

"I've never won a prize in bingo or door prizes or magazine offers or anything. Wouldn't you think I'd win something sometime?" "Ever see a happier smile than Fred Neslage's on the front page of the News the other day?" Look for me next week. PAM

Dear Abby

Reader chews out teen-ager who can't say no to food

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was disgusted when I read the letter from "Loves to Eat," the teen-ager whose father offered her $100 to lose 10 pounds. She lost the weight, collected the money, then reverted to her piggish ways and gained it all back again.

Her father asked her to return the $100, so she asked you if he was entitled to it. I was disappointed when you said, "No, because it wasn't spelled out when the deal was made."

Abby, the father thought "Fats" would realize how much better she looked after she lost the weight and therefore would keep it off. All fathers want their daughters to be pretty and more desirable for marriage.

When that teen-ager is fat and 40, she'll be lucky if she has a chance to marry a widower with five kids who need a housekeeper and babysitter!

DISGUSTED IN WYOMING

DEAR DISGUSTED: You are obviously coming from the "old days" when girls were taught that all they had to do was look "pretty" and some rich man would marry them and take care of them for the rest of their lives.

Well, times have changed, thank God! Today, young women are learning to be self-sufficient, so they won't have to marry a meal ticket like some of our grandmothers did. (P.S. If you look around, you'll see many women who are fat and 40, fantastically successful, and single by choice.)

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old grandson is wearing one earring. Is there any special reason for this?
HIGHLAND PARK, ILL.

DEAR PARK: Maybe he lost the other one. Ask him.

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of three teen-aged boys, may I respond to that 14-year-old girl whose parents refuse to let her have her own phone even though she's willing to pay for it herself?

I hope your parents stick by their decision. I wonder if they know how rude you are? When you telephone here asking for my son, you never say, "Hello Mrs. Jones, this is Patty. May I please speak to Bill?" All I hear is a curt, "Is Bill there?" And if I say he's out for the evening, why do you persist, "Where is he? Is he at Tommy's? When will he be home?" That's clearly none of your business!

Did you realize that while you prattled on and on last night, Bill left the phone, got himself a snack and returned without your knowing that he missed 10 minutes of your fascinating monologue?

Also, sometimes when you call, Bill is standing right here, but I tell you he's not home because he's asked me to.

An added note to your parents: I know with whom you're having an affair, lady. I also know your other daughter is on the pill and sleeps around. And, Dad, I know you cheat on your expense account and you're two months behind on your house payments. How do I know? Because your daughter who has her own phone tells my oldest son all the family secrets. Sign this ...

After the storm

Sander's art covers new phone directory

The 1982 Pampa telephone directory, in its usual array of colors, is scheduled for distribution beginning August 10 said Gary Stevens, community relations manager for Southwestern Bell.

The new directory contains 76 white pages and 219 yellow pages.

The Pampa directory again will include separate white pages listings for residence and business customers.

The new cover features a sculpture by retired Southwestern Bell lineman Gerald Sanders of Pampa.

The bronze sculpture, titled "After the Storm", authentically details a telephone lineman repairing a pole and crossarm damages by a 1949 ice storm that swept through West Texas.

Each residential customer will receive one copy of the directory. Additional copies may be obtained by calling any Southwestern Bell business office or visiting any Phone Center after August 10, Stevens said.

Approximately 16,588 will be printed. Of that, 33,416 directories will be mailed to customers by August 12. Extra books are for customers moving into the area throughout the year and customers requesting additional copies, Stevens said.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

Either through desire or circumstances, fresh ambitions will be awakened in you this coming year. You are likely to set some tough goals, but your chances of making them are good.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Challenging or competitive situations may not bring out your finer qualities today. Your possibilities for success are good, but your methods might not win endorsement. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Good suggestions could be offered to you today by someone of whom you are not too fond. Because of this, you might ignore the wisdom of their words.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Timing is more important than expediency today in your commercial dealings. Pushing something forward before it is ready could prove costly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your one-to-one relationships today, you might find it difficult to get others to go along with your desires. Be prepared to make compromises with which each can live.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Enjoy yourself today, but don't do so at the cost of your duties and responsibilities. Tasks unattended to will corner you later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Managing things for others today could bring complications into your life. Even if you are invited to do so, first be sure you can deliver what's expected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're a good producer today, but there's a possibility that just when you have everything running smoothly you may lose interest and leave the end results to chance.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's important today to report your doings with accuracy. Making excuses or exaggerating your accomplishments won't rest well with your listeners.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Situations important to your security must be handled with extreme care today. Take nothing for granted, even when you think you have everything locked-down tight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's essential at this time that you take more personal control over matters which affect your interests. Don't depend on others to do what you should do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Beware of tendencies today to make things more difficult than they need be. Look for ways to solve problems, not complicate them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be forgiving and tolerant of friends today if they do things which displease you. All your actions might not find favor with them, either.

The Pampa Harvesters opened three-a-day football workouts Monday in anticipation of the 1982 season opener Sept. 3 at Hereford. Pampa head coach John Kindall and his staff drilled the Harvesters on offensive and defensive alignments in addition to working on punt coverage (above) during the afternoon session. The Harvesters won't put on full pads until Friday. Prior to the season opener, Pampa will scrimmage Altus, Okla. there Aug. 20 and Tascosa at Harvester Stadium Aug. 27. White Sox rally past Orioles, 9-5

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The long ball helped start the Baltimore Orioles' downfall, but what really did them in were a couple of short balls.

The Orioles led Chicago 5-3 in the seventh inning when Greg Luzinski slammed a leadoff homer for the White Sox. When the White Sox finally stopped running around the bases, they had scored six times, helped by two misguided throws from Baltimore reliever Tim Stoddard on bunts, and defeated the Orioles 9-5.

But Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver was more upset with starting pitcher Jim Palmer and reliever Tippy Martinez than Stoddard's throwing goals.

"It wasn't one of his better games," Weaver said of Palmer, who was staked to a 5-0 lead in the second inning. "All I know is if Tippy Martinez gets two guys out there wouldn't be any bunts."

In an even-more dramatic comeback, the New York Yankees roared from an early 7-0 deficit and downed the Detroit Tigers 9-7. In other American League games, the Milwaukee Brewers thumped the Texas Rangers 9-1, the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Boston Red Sox 4-2, the Kansas City Royals pounded the Cleveland Indians 12-2 and the Oakland A's trounced the Seattle Mariners 9-4. California and Minnesota had the night off.

Yankees 9, Tigers 7

The Tigers built a 7-0 lead against Ron Guidry on Lance Parrish's two-run homer in the first inning and a five-run third, capped by Glenn Wilson's two-run double. But George Frazier, Dave LaRoche and Rich Gossage held them to two hits the rest of the way and the Yankees began their comeback with two runs in the fifth.

Dave Winfield's three-run homer in the seventh made it 7-5 and Roy Smalley opened the eighth with his 11th homer, chasing Detroit starter Dan Petry.

"I figured when we finally got Petry out of there we had a chance," Winfield said. "He's one heck of a pitcher. You just don't figure to get back from that far out with him on the mound."

Dave Rucker came on and gave up a single to Ken Griffey, who was sacrificed to second and scored the tying run with two out when Rucker threw wildly to first after fielding Willie Randolph's high chopper. Randolph took second on the error and Jerry Mumphrey doubled him home. Oscar Gamble homered in the ninth for New York's final run.

Brewers 9, Rangers 1

Mike Caldwell pitched a six-hitter for his third consecutive victory and Robin Yount drove in four runs with a double, grounder and sacrifice fly as Milwaukee opened a 3½-game lead on Boston in the AL East, the Brewers' largest margin of the season.

George Wright's home run in the third inning gave Texas a 1-0 lead and snapped Caldwell's string of 18 shutout innings. But the Brewers scored four runs in the fifth against Doc Medich, two on Yount's bases-loaded double and two on a bases-loaded single by Gorman Thomas. Jim Gantner homered for Milwaukee in the eighth.

Blue Jays 4, Red Sox 2

Rance Mulliniks' leadoff home run tied the score 2-2 in the eighth inning. Loser Dennis Eckersley then issued one-out walks to Willie Upshaw and Hosken Powell and was replaced by Bob Stanley, who surrendered consecutive RBI singles to Barry Bonnell and Lloyd Moseby. It was Boston's eighth setback in the last 11 games.

Royals 12, Indians 2

George Brett had four hits and Amos Otis collected two doubles and a single, driving in three runs and scoring three.

Whitley eager to play this season

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Wilson Whitley might well be the Rip Van Winkle of the Cincinnati Bengals this season. Angry at club management, he all but slept through last season as the team went to the Super Bowl.

But he's awake now. An obviously changed Whitley hardly looks like the man who so angered Coach Forrest Gregg during the pre-season last year with his loafing that Gregg ordered him off the field.

He credits his awakening to his off-season marriage, a result of a rekindled relationship with a woman he met when he first joined the Bengals in 1977 as a first-round draft choice from the University of Houston.

"We dated for a while, then we broke up. We finally found each other again, and I guess we proved the old saying: If you love something, set it free. If it comes back to you, it's yours. If it doesn't, it never was.

"The heart of a man is the strength of the woman he's with," Whitley said. "I got married in March, and for the first time in my career I've discovered happiness in my family life.

Palmer captures discus title at Master's National track meet

Wendell Palmer, Pampa High track coach, won one event and placed in four others during the National Master's track and field meet held last week in Wichita.

Palmer, 50, won the discus in the 50-54 age division with a 153-10 toss, winning by 10 feet over his nearest opponent. Palmer placed second in the shot (44-0), third in the high jump (4-10), fourth in the hammer (114-6) and fifth in the javelin (119-4). His shot throw was a personal best.

Palmer, who has won the Master's discus state title seven times, trained for the meet at Stephenville while attending a summer session at Tarleton State University.

It was the first national meet for Palmer, who has been boys' track coach at Pampa High for the past two years.

Allred second

Louis Allred of Pampa finished second in the fifth annual Empty Saddle 5,000-meter run held last weekend at Dalhart.

Allred's time was 17:13. Bennie Chavez of Tucumcari had the winning time of 16:31.

Rick Nisbett of Austin was third at 17:21.

Red-hot Giants shut out Braves

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Joe Torre isn't pressing the panic button yet, but he figures his Atlanta Braves better get on the stick soon. "We need our pep and spirit back," said the chagrined Atlanta manager after watching his nosediving team lose 3-0 to the San Francisco Giants Monday night.

"I'm not taking anything away from Jim Barr. He pitched a super game — but we didn't have it tonight."

The Braves only managed three hits off Barr, who is usually a relief pitcher and was making only his second start of the season. The result was Atlanta's seventh straight loss.

"Maybe it's because of what happened over the weekend, but we're down," said Torre, referring to a four-game sweep by the Los Angeles Dodgers. "We didn't have any life at all tonight."

The Dodgers, by the way, trailed the Braves by 10½ games 11 days ago in the National League West, but are now only a half-game behind the Braves as a result of their 3-2, 13-inning victory over the Cincinnati Reds Monday night.

Torre held a 15-minute meeting in the clubhouse with his team following Monday night's loss to one of baseball's hottest teams. The Giants have won eight straight.

"Going nine innings made me happy. But I can't say I'm surprised that I could do it," said the 34-year-old Barr, who hadn't pitched a complete game since 1980.

Barr, 2-2, the veteran right-hander who started one game in April and has 36 relief appearances this season, walked none and struck out two. Barr allowed singles in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Atlanta starter Pascual Perez, 0-2, allowed only one hit and faced the minimum 12 batters through four innings. Reggie Smith's leadoff single in the fifth started a two-run Giant rally. Jeff Leonard doubled home one of the runs and Barr singled home the other.

The Giants scored an unearned run in the sixth and added insurance in the eighth on a two-run triple by Darrell Evans.

In other NL action, Chicago downed Montreal 9-2, Houston stopped San Diego 4-3, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 4-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before the second game was suspended by a major league curfew law and St. Louis whipped New York 7-2.

Dodgers 3, Reds 2

Pedro Guerrero slugged Jim Kern's first pitch of the 13th inning for his 22nd home run to lead Los Angeles over Cincinnati, the Dodgers' seventh straight win and 11th in their last 12 games.

Reliever Dave Stewart, 7-6, retired the last 18 batters to earn the victory. Stewart, who was 3-1 against the Reds last year with one save, walked one and struck out five in his six innings of hitless relief.

Kern, 1-5, took over in the 11th and worked out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam, then left two on in the 12th before Guerrero nailed him with a shot into the

Cubs 8, Expos 2

Bill Buckner went 4-for-5, including a pair of solo home runs, and Ryne Sandberg added a three-run shot as Chicago defeated Montreal for its fifth straight victory. The Cubs have won seven of their last eight, and the five-game winning streak is their longest since August of 1979.

The Cubs put the game away early, taking a 7-0 lead after 5½ innings as Buckner hit his two homers and Sandberg belted his shot off Scott Sanderson, 6-11, who lost his seventh straight game.

Ferguson Jenkins, 7-13, gained his first victory since July 9.

Astros 4, padres 3

Alan Ashby hit two solo home runs and Don Sutton and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter to carry Houston over San Diego.

Sutton, 11-8, struck out one and walked three in 7-2/3 innings before getting relief help from Bert Roberge and Dave Smith, who gained his ninth save after giving up two runs in the ninth on an error and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua.

John Montefusco, 9-7, pitched the first seven innings for the Padres, allowing all Houston's runs.

Cardinals 7, Mets 2

Willie McGee hit a two-out, bases-loaded triple that fueled a four-run, fifth-inning rally and carried St. Louis over New York.

Ultralight flight

Defense rebuttal continues

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Defense lawyer Doug Mulder says it will take about two days for the defense to present its case in the capital murder trial of Jack Lee Minica.

Minica, 49, is charged with 1979 slayings of his former liquid feed business partner, Molly Jo Farr, 55, her daughter Tandy Bennett, 25, and a house guest, Robert Shirl Gandy, 40.

The five-week-old trial, moved to Kerrville on a change of venue from McCulloch County, is limited to Miss Bennett's murder.

Mulder, of Dallas, said Monday he had "not decided" whether to put Minica, a Brady native, on the witness stand.

Prosecutor Ronald Sutton summarized testimony from 35 witnesses during six days of questioning before Mulder began presentation of Minica's rebuttal.

FAA taking interest in kite-like airplanes

LAKE ELSINORE, Calif. (AP) — The hottest thing in private planes today looks a lot like a spiffy new version of the flying machine Orville and Wilbur Wright took aloft at Kitty Hawk 79 years ago.

And many of those who fly ultralights — colorful little open-air planes built of aluminum tubes, guy wires, Dacron and snowmobile engines — seem to yearn for the barnstorming days of silk scarves and biplanes.

The booming popularity of the unregulated sport is forcing a reluctant Federal Aviation Administration to impose at least some rules on ultralights, probably within the next few weeks.

Ultralights often weigh no more than their pilots. They take off from unimproved beaches, meadows and even lakes. Many ultralights are stored in garages alongside the family car.

You have to keep your feet up when you take an ultralight along the runway, and once you're in the air, flying feels more like riding an airborne motorcycle than piloting a plane. When banking into a turn, if you turn your head and look down, there's nothing there: no walls, no glass, no cockpit — only air between you and the ground.

It is an exhilarating way to fly and that, plus the relatively low cost, probably accounts for the thriving ultralight industry — while conventional airplane makers are facing hard times.

"This is a lot more fun (than a conventional plane) — with the wind blowing in your face and being able to go where you want and land wherever you want," said Lyle Byrum, president of Eipper Aircraft Inc., which claims nearly a third of the ultralight market.

"I haven't seen too many kids who don't look up when an airplane flies by," said Dave Sclair, who publishes the magazine "Ultralight Flyer" in Tacoma, Wash. "People have always wanted to fly and they are discovering that they can do this and they can afford it."

At a recent ultralight airshow at Lake Elsinore, a busy informal ultralight playground 70 miles southeast of Los Angeles, ultralights arrived on pickup trucks, car tops and modified boat trailers.

The planes are usually sold as kits, and costs range from about $3,500 to nearly $6,000. Conventional aircraft start at well over $20,000 and cost much more to store, maintain and operate.

"This is where aviation is going. Aviation was dying before this," said Byrum, who delights in airshow aerobatics, leaving red trails from smoke grenades as he puts his black ultralight through loops, swirls and spinning dives.

Though ultralights are primarily recreational, Byrum said they are beginning to go to work, especially in developing countries, as crop dusters and for checking fences and cattle. He has put together a booklet proposing a military ultralight — camouflage-colored and brimming with weapons and cameras.

Six years ago, Byrum said, only two ultralights were known to exist. Now well over 20,000 of the little planes are scattered around the country and much of the world.

Though about half the ultralight owners are reported to be licensed pilots, no license is required and the little planes require no federal inspection or certificate.

Asked what federal rules apply to ultralights, the FAA's Dick Stafford said, "At the present time, there are none. Zero. But that won't go on for long."

The FAA, faced with rapidly growing numbers of the unregistered aircraft, "has been pulled screaming and hollering into regulating this sport," Stafford said.

A notice of proposed rulemaking was issued last year, public comments were taken and "we have every reason to believe a rule will be issued sometime in August," he said.

Most expect such regulations as licensing for the plane or pilot will be applied only to craft above a certain weight, which is unlikely to include many single-passenger ultralights.

"Basically," Sclair said, "their safety record has not been bad."
