

City election ruled illegal, but it might stick

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Saturday's election to amend the Pampa City Charter will be illegal, but that doesn't necessarily mean the residents won't have to abide by the outcome, according to a spokesman for the secretary of state.

The City of Pampa is violating state law contained in the election code for its failure to conduct absentee balloting for the charter change propositions, state attorney Karen Gladney said Thursday. But unless a private citizen challenges the election in court later, the decision of the electorate is likely to stand.

Absentee voting was not conducted for the election because ballots were late arriving from the printer, City Secretary Erma Robertson said Thursday.

Gladney said state law says "there will be absentee balloting from the 20th day before an election to the fourth day before an election," inclusive of those days.

Robertson said two people voted absentee Wednesday after the ballots arrived, but she said City Attorney Don Lane informed her the votes Wednesday were already past the deadline for casting absentee votes, making the two ballots invalid.

"I will just have to void those two votes," Robertson said.

Gladney said violating the election code does not necessarily mean an election is invalid, and she said the Texas Secretary of State's office has "no prosecutorial authority," or ability to enforce state election laws.

She said the function of the office in overseeing elections within the state is to "provide information and educate election officials about any kind of elections."

"If we had been asked, we would have talked to them about it and would have recommended they conduct absentee balloting," she said.

Another spokesman for the secretary of state's office, Willis Whatley, said there are two areas of legal relief for someone who believes an election is invalid for failure to conduct absentee balloting.

He said the first course of relief would be a civil lawsuit in the local state district court, alleging failure to conduct absentee balloting affected the outcome of the election, thereby making the results invalid.

"I don't know what a judge would do with it after that (a civil suit)," Whatley said.

The spokesman said the second course of action would be a criminal complaint filed with a local prosecutor, alleging misconduct on the part of the election official charged with responsibility for conducting absentee voting.

"They would file that with the local county or district attorney," Whatley said.

Gladney said the federal justice department can become involved in an election, "if there is a violation of minority voting rights."

One proposition of the charter change election would alter city ward boundary lines, possibly changing the makeup of the local voting population.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he was unaware the city's failure to conduct absentee balloting was a violation of state law.

Wofford said the city "would be concerned about any violation, but I don't know if it is."

The city manager said he believes the election Saturday remains valid.

Lane said, "My opinion is the election Saturday will be a valid election."

The city attorney said the election code was not violated, unless someone requested to vote absentee during the proscribed period from the 20th day before to the fourth day before the election.

Robertson said no one asked to vote absentee during the valid period.

"Tuesday at 5 p.m. would have been the last day to cast an absentee ballot. The law provides you can vote absentee," Lane said.

Mayor Ray Thompson said, "I don't have any opinion," about possible violations of the Election Code.

"If we are in error, I don't know that would necessarily make an election invalid."

"I'm concerned when we violate anything. But until somebody takes us to court and shows us otherwise, we'll go with the advice of the city attorney. That's what he is for," the mayor said.

Thompson said any city error involving absentee balloting was unintentional.

Polls for the special election open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Saturday.

The proposed changes to the charter are:

- allow commissioners to make appointments to commission or mayoral vacancies;
 - change ward boundaries to reflect current population;
 - allow commissioners to move within the city limits and serve the balance of previous ward positions' terms of office;
 - change the amount of expenditures required for competitive bidding from $3,000 to $5,000;
- (see Election on page 2)

Killer of five could be linked to an earlier murder

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—A man accused of killing five people found shot, slashed and stabbed in two cottages near Lake Worth is wanted for questioning by Arlington police concerning the slaying of a history professor.

Arlington police Sgt. Dennis Rhoten said officers want to question Larry Keith Robison in connection with the death of Martin Hall because Hall's slaying has similarities to the killings of the five found dead Tuesday.

Hall, a 55-year-old professor at the University of Texas at Arlington, was stabbed 10 times at his home Jan. 22, Rhoten said.

Rhoten said a man in a picture found at Hall's home is believed to be Hall's killer.

"The image is not distinct, but the man pictured there could fit (Robison's) description," Rhoten said. Paper backing from Polaroid prints at the scene were used by photographic experts to produce positive prints from negative images, Rhoten said.

In Fort Worth, Municipal Judge Mike Mitchell said Robison is charged with five counts of capital murder in the deaths of his roommate, 31-year-old Ricky Lee Bryant, and four people who were found dead in a cottage next to Bryant's.

Assistant District Attorney Steve Chaney said the district attorney's office had filed one count of murder against Robison and was preparing more charges.

Police spokeswoman Debbie Pulliam said Robison signed a one-page typewritten statement Thursday.

Despite complaints

Board OKs $10.1 million budget

By JEFF LANGLEY

The citizens complained, but it did not change the public hearing's Thursday evening finale, a unanimous Pampa school board vote for higher taxes and a $10,173,366 budget during the next fiscal year.

Final and official budget and tax rate approval is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Many of the citizens' views aired at the meeting did not come in the form of questions, but rather in the form of complaints about the district's tax and spending proposals for the next school year.

And after many of the citizen complaints, the board and administration did not offer specific responses; instead, board President Ken Fields simply replied, "Thank you. We appreciate your comments. Is there anyone else who wishes to speak at this time?"

"The tax office budget is ridiculous, immoral and a giant rip off," complained E.C. Sidwell.

"We devote a great deal to athletics — why can't we devote more to academics?" asked Mrs. James Douglas.

"We are happy to entertain your comments, but we can't answer your question. If you have some specific questions about the budget, we will try to answer," replied Fields.

"The campuses look pretty sick at most schools. There is not enough manpower assigned to keep the grass mowed," complained W.A. Morgan.

"We feel we have made improvement in that area," responded Superintendent James Trusty.

"The high school looks like a hog pen. The litter is piled up in the gutter," Ann Brighton said.

David Miller said the board used a poor "format" in formulating the budget.

He said actual spending from the previous year, rather than previously budgeted figures, should be used to project spending for the coming year.

"A few years ago we had a tremendous increase in taxes, due to increased values. I don't understand why we need an increase (in the proposed tax rate)," Sheila Ralston said.

"The rate was adjusted at the time of that reappraisal. We believe 1.9 cents (the tax rate hike adopted) is needed to meet the needs of coming years," Trusty replied.

"Why the continual increase in athletics?" Ralston asked.

Jim Jensen questioned how much interest the district received on deposited school funds in savings accounts.

Jensen said he was satisfied with the approximate 15 percent earned on funds, the figure received according to administrator Jerry Haralson.

Sidwell said the big problem between the school board and taxpayers is "communication."

The Pampa oilman called on the board to adopt no tax increase this year and to adopt a "five to 10 percent reduction" next year.

"What did you get for a barrel of oil in 1941?" interrupted board member Dr. Robert Lyle.

"May I continue — I haven't finished my speech," replied Sidwell.

Sidwell questioned expenditures for school sports and brought out that the head high school football coach here earns "a total of about $30,000 per year," according to Trusty.

Sidwell questioned the number of complimentary passes issued for high school sports.

Athletic Director Bill Balcolm said only about 30 complimentary passes are issued.

Sidwell continued his discussion and questioned $4,500 budgeted for travel

City Commission postpones the appointment of plan member

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Pampa City Commissioners tabled action to appoint a new member to the planning and zoning commission during their regular meeting Thursday.

The seven-member commission has been short one member for more than six months, following the resignation of former chairman Bill Harris.

The commission approves and recommends zoning and annexation requests before final approval of the city commission.

Harris left Pampa and moved to Hereford in January.

Since the former chairman left town, the commission has taken no action to name a new member to the board.

The lack of action may violate the city code of laws concerning membership and organization of the planning commission, according to Section 14-3 of the code.

Under Section 14-3 (a), the ordinance adopted May 13, 1980 reads: "The planning and zoning commission shall consist of seven members who shall be appointed by the city commission for terms of not more than three years each."

Under Section 14-3 (b), the same

Perryton grand jury hands down 10 indictments

PERRYTON (Spl.) — An Ochiltree County grand jury has handed down 10 indictments, including three sealed indictments, in session this week in Perryton.

Michael Wayne Cudd, 20, of Perryton and his wife Tamara Cudd, 19, were charged with possession of marijuana. The pair were arrested July 19 by Perryton police.

Gary Grumbles, 23, of Perryton was charged with theft over $200, in connection with failure to pay a repair bill to Easley Ford on Nov. 20, 1981.

ordinance says: "Whenever a vacancy occurs it shall be promptly filled so that the planning and zoning commission shall at all times consist of seven members."

Even though the commission has been short a member for more than six months, City Manager Mack Wofford and City Attorney Don Lane both agreed Thursday that past official actions of the incomplete board were not illegal or invalid.

"As long as they had a quorum present when they took action, it is probably all right," Lane said about zoning recommendations of the short panel.

The city commissioners have a couple of willing applicants for the job, but they tabled consideration of appointing a new member to the zoning panel Thursday.

"I believe we have a name or two, but we aren't ready to act on that," Mayor Ray Thompson said.

The present six members of the planning and zoning commission are Nolan McKean, chairman, Ken Shearer, David McDaniel, Ralph Milliron, Milo Carlson and J.A. Johnson.

In other action, commissioners Thursday approved a bid for floor covering for the central fire station. Fashion Floor of Pampa was low bidder for the material at $2,776.

Commissioners also approved final plat for a housing project, Davis Place III, and they approved payment of $107,150 in city bills.

Couple held for abusing their two-year-old girl

By SHERRILL McLEARAN

PERRYTON — An Amarillo couple are being held in Ochiltree County Jail after being charged with abuse of their two-year-old daughter.

John Mullett, 30, and Donna Mullett, 27, were indicted this week by an Ochiltree County grand jury in 84th District Court. Bond on each was set at $25,000.

The child was brought to Ochiltree County Hospital in June, suffering from sores resembling smallpox eruptions all over her body. The condition was found to be an untreated viral infection that had worked its way to the outside of the child's body.

The child was treated at the hospital, and, seemingly improved, was released.

The Ochiltree County Department of Human Resources' Child Welfare Dept. was brought into the matter, and when the couple subsequently moved to Amarillo, the Ochiltree authorities alerted the Potter County Child Welfare Dept. to keep the case under observation.

When Potter authorities investigated, they reportedly found the girl's condition worsened. She was then taken to Northwest Texas Hospital for treatment, and charges were brought against the couple by Ochiltree authorities.

Wednesday the pair was returned to Perryton to be indicted.

The child has reportedly been released from the hospital to the charge of Potter County child welfare authorities.

Trial date for the couple has not yet been set.

Rear end crash hurts one

A Pampa man is listed in stable condition today at Coronado Community Hospital after his car hit a parked truck on Hobart Street last night.

Charles Randy Scott, 1601 Somerville, Apt. 212, was driving a 1981 Buick that struck a parked water truck in the 2100 block of Hobart at about 9:30 last night.

Scott was taken to the hospital by Pampa ambulance, arriving at about 10 p.m., and was treated in the emergency room for facial lacerations and lacerations to the left leg, according to a hospital spokesman.

He was admitted to Coronado for observation after treatment.

Pampa police officer Richard Pack reported Scott was driving southbound on Hobart in the far right lane of traffic when he hit the legally parked truck.

The truck, according to driver Scott Schroeder of Phoenix, was a property of Kip Inc., contracted to the city to haul for construction of Pampa's new storm sewer project.

The truck was parked for the night and empty at the time, but officer Pack said "you just don't move a 20 ton truck with a Buick LeSabre."

"If it wasn't for the collapsible steering wheel, I think he would have died," Pack said.

Scott was cited after the accident for unsafe change in direction of travel. Pack said the driver was too far to the right on the four-lane.

Scott told police he turned to look at something off to the side of the street, and did not see the truck.

 He continued by calling the tax office budget "ridiculous, immoral and a giant rip-off."
 "You will just be taking money to the bank. You put it in the computer and turn the delinquent taxes over to the lawyers in Amarillo. The office will practically be eliminated," Sidwell said to city-school Tax Assessor-Collector Charles Rand.
 "No sir. I would like to think it was that easy," Rand said about his office's new collection-only work next year.
 Dr. H. Dwight Dow questioned expected tax revenues in a period of declining oil production.
 "What will happen if the oil production drops off. Will the homeowners be required to make up the difference?" Dow asked.
 "Many people are unaware of the tax power of the school board. It would behoove us to inform the public that our elected representatives have the power to tax," the doctor said.
 Sidwell finished his remarks by asking the board to "give some consideration to the people who have lost their jobs here. I hope you will give some consideration to retirees and people on fixed incomes."

Henry Fonda: The unpretentious hero of Middle American life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Henry Fonda, dead at the age of 77, was remembered from Hollywood to New England, the setting of his Oscar-winning role in "On Golden Pond," as the unpretentious hero he portrayed so well in more than 100 stage and screen performances.

With his wife, Shirlee, at his bedside, the veteran actor died peacefully Thursday at Cedars Sinai Medical Center of respiratory failure brought on by his long fight with heart disease.
 Fonda, who appeared in more than 80 films and dozens of plays during a career that spanned a half-century, had worn a pacemaker since 1974 and had been in and out of the hospital since his most recent heart surgery in May 1981. He was hospitalized on Sunday for the last time.

"He was comfortable and was in no pain," Mrs. Fonda, flanked by the actor's children, Jane, Peter and adopted daughter Amy, told reporters gathered outside the family's Bel-Air home. "He had a good night. He talked with all of us and he was conscious at all times. He woke up this morning, he sat up and just stopped breathing."

Among those who paid their respects in person during the day were James Stewart, Eva Marie Saint, James Garner, Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers.

In accordance with his wishes, Fonda's eyes were donated to the Manhattan Eye Institute and his body was cremated hours after he died, family spokeswoman Pat Kingsley said. She said there would be no funeral and the family had not decided what to do with the remains.

A tall, lean man with an honest face, Fonda played presidents and senators, lawyers and soldiers, farmers and indigents with equal skill. But despite his prominence, he kept his open manner and was remembered as much for his personal qualities as his professional achievements.

"I don't think you'll ever find anybody who'll have anything but good to say about Hank," said Glenn Ford, Fonda's co-star in "Midway" and "The Rounders."

"We've lost one of a kind... he was a real super, super, super actor," said Lucille Ball, who worked with Fonda in "The Big Street" and "Yours, Mine and Ours."

In the New Hampshire community of Holderness, whose Squam Lake was the setting for Fonda's Oscar-winning performance in "On Golden Pond," word of his death hit hard.

"We feel we've lost an old-timer from this area, even though I think it was his first time here," said Malcom Taylor, president of the Squam Lakes

Association. "He much preferred to eat lunch with members of the crew — the roustabouts, cameramen, sound people. He just sat right down among them and was right at home."

In his hometown of Omaha, Neb., Fonda was the boy who made good but never forgot his roots. His family asked that instead of flowers, donations be made to the Omaha Community Playhouse's Henry Fonda Theater Center Memorial.

Born Henry Jaynes Fonda in Grand

Island, Neb., on May 16, 1905, Fonda grew up in Omaha and got his start acting at the Playhouse with a bit part in 1925.

The son of a printer, Fonda quit journalism studies at the University of Minnesota to study at the Playhouse, under Marlon Brando's mother, then moved east to work at the University Players Guild on Cape Cod.

There he met Margaret Sullivan, first of his five wives, and Stewart, who later roomed with Fonda at New York's Madison Square Hotel while both worked on Broadway.

After starring with Imogene Coca in "New Faces" in 1934, Fonda won a $1,000-a-week contract with movie producer Walter Wanger and began his film career with "The Farmer Takes a Wife" in 1935.

Five years and 20 films later, he got his first of three Academy Award nominations for his portrayal of Tom Joad in "The Grapes of Wrath." Another would follow in 1957 for "Twelve Angry Men," in which he played a juror who singlehandedly persuaded his 11 colleagues to acquit a young murder defendant.

In 1981 he was awarded a special lifetime achievement Oscar. But it was not until this year that he won an Oscar for his performance in "On Golden Pond" as Norman Thayer, a retired professor who masked his fear of death with grim humor. Too ill to attend the awards ceremonies, Fonda wept as he watched daughter Jane accept the Oscar on television.

After his brief, stormy marriage to Miss Sullivan, Fonda married Frances Seymour Brokaw, mother of Jane and Peter, who committed suicide in a mental asylum while they were estranged. Later marriages, to actress Susan Blanchard and Italian Countess Aldera Branchetti ended in divorce. In 1966 he married Shirlee Adams, an airline stewardess 28 years younger than he.

Despite his liberal views, he feuded for many years with his daughter Jane over her radical politics and was for a time estranged from both Jane and Peter.

... one less voice in his hometown

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) — Henry Fonda's birthplace was silent on the day he died. Tourists did not hear the actor's recorded voice that normally plays inside the modest wood house, telling of its place in Nebraska history.

"I feel like I've lost a friend," said Lew Cole, public relations director for the Stuh Museum of the Prairie Pioneer. "I feel sort of gray, like this gray day."

As they do every day, visitors strolled through the five-room house. But on Thursday, the talk was of the veteran actor's death.

The recording of Fonda's voice discussing the house was not played for tourists because officials wanted to add a proper introductory tribute to the start of the tape, Cole said.

He did play it for visiting reporters, however.

The shy but resonant voice told how the house, built in 1887, was moved to the museum grounds at his expense in 1966.

The house had been bought by St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in 1963 and was destined for destruction. Through a Grand Island friend, Fonda learned his birthplace was marked for demolition. He wanted to prevent that, even though he had lived there only six months.

"He wasted no time getting it," Cole recalled. "He and his wife came roaring through town in a little sports car."

Fonda spent about $10,000 to move the house five miles from downtown to the museum grounds, and he paid more for its restoration.

Fonda's parents, William and Herberta Fonda, rented the house from Grand Island banker George Bell in 1904. Fonda was born there May 16, 1905. His family later moved to Omaha, where his father took a job as a printer.

"We don't know if he ever visited the house when he was a child," Cole said. "But he did return to see the restored facility in 1978."

"He just stood there with his arms crossed, looking down. There were three of us there, but nobody said a word. We knew he had been touched. About 10 minutes later he said, 'That's all,' and left."

Fonda's birthplace sits in a reconstructed old railroad town comprised of original buildings gathered from several Nebraska communities. The structures include a pioneer hotel, moved to the museum from author Willa Cather's home of Red Cloud.

"I'm a midwestern boy from Omaha," Fonda once said. "I had a great life in Nebraska while growing up and my roots are very deep there."
 "My, how the clock turns back," Fonda says on the museum tape. "Share a part of the living and breathing history of Nebraska..."

require bonding for certain city employees.
 Population in Wards 1 and 2 is nearly three times the population of Wards 3 and 4, according to Wofford. New boundary lines would equalize the ward populations, he said.
 The new boundaries would force out Ward 1 Commissioner O.M. Prigmore, however.
 If the boundary changes are approved, Prigmore and Calvin Whitley will both live in Ward 2. Prigmore's term expires in 1983, but Whitley's term runs through 1984, so Prigmore could not contest Whitley for the position until the end of the latter official's term.
 Under the present charter, a commissioner who moves outside his district must give up his seat. The charter proposition will allow a commissioner to move anywhere within the city limits and still finish the term of his old ward seat.

 The bidding proposition allows the commission to purchase any item which costs less than $5,000 without asking for competitive bids on the purchase.
 Presently, anything the city purchases over $3,000 must be submitted for bids.
 Wofford said the higher bid levels bring the charter in line with state levels and reflect today's higher prices.
 The polling places for the election Saturday are:
 Ward 1: city hall
 Ward 2: north fire sub-station
 Ward 3: Optimist Boy's Club
 Ward 4: south fire sub-station.

Arrival of police, neighbor saved woman

HOUSTON (AP) — The arrival of police and of a neighbor saved Lori Lister from drowning in her own bathtub, victim of a man who has claimed responsibility for at least 11 slayings in the Houston area and suspected in a dozen more.

Police said they arrested Coral Eugene Watts, a 28-year-old former bus mechanic, while he was trying to kill Ms. Lister, whom he had already choked into unconsciousness.

Watts led police this week to the bodies of three women he killed and has confessed to eight other strangulation or stabbing slayings.

Authorities want to question him in at least a dozen other killings in Texas, Michigan and Canada.

He was arrested after fleeing Ms. Lister's apartment when he saw police cars outside, but patrolmen Don Schmidt and L.W. Domain cornered Watts and handcuffed him with help from a resident of the complex.

A neighbor, who preferred not to be identified, made certain Ms. Lister was not added to the count.

"She pulled me out (of the tub), got me breathing, hit my chest, did all the things you have to do," said Ms. Lister, 20.

"I remember waking up for a minute in the ambulance and that I was hysterical and they had to keep me down," she said. "The next thing I knew was when I woke up in the hospital."

Another neighbor had called police after hearing a scream outside his apartment about 6:30 a.m. May 23. Ms. Lister said she was leaving for church.

"I got one scream out," she said.

Ms. Lister said Watts choked her, then demanded to know which apartment was hers.

She told him, she said, explaining, "I thought if I didn't ... I would wind up in a field."

The man who called police declined to be identified. He said he saw part of the assault after hearing the shriek.

"He was sort of sitting on the ground next to her, and he had her in a headlock," the neighbor said.

Assistant District Attorney Ira Jones said Watts left Ms. Lister unconscious, then went to her apartment, where he surprised her roommate, Melinda Aguilar, 20.

Ms. Aguilar said Watts woke her when he barged in.

First phase of the textbook selection process has ended

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The first phase in selection of $37 million in textbooks for Texas schools ended today as the State Textbook Committee completed a five-day hearing to gather public comment.

The committee meets in Austin again on Sept. 7 to select the books it will recommend for adoption in the state's schools next year.

At Thursday's hearing, Mrs. Russell Preston, a Garland housewife complained that proposed schoolbooks on health "teach values contrary to the values I teach my children at home."

Mrs. Preston objected to a definition in "Homemaking Skills for Everyday Living," which she said defined a family unit as two or more persons living together.

"This leaves the door open for homosexuality, cohabitation and communal living," she said. "This book has repeated attempts to undermine parental authority."

In another health book, "Good Health for You," she objected to a suggested class activity in which the teacher would ask pupils to use a stethoscope to listen to various parts of another's body. "This activity will cause an embarrassing situation which will interfere with the learning atmosphere," she said.

Dr. H.R. McDaniel, Grand Prairie educator, objected to two proposed civics textbooks saying they were biased and contained errors in judgement.

"I've talked with dozens of classroom teachers," he said. "One of them told me that teachers have a serious problem in public education but no one asks teachers what is wrong." She said we need textbooks with source materials and information the students need to know.

Insurance industry calls for an auto rate hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas automobile insurance industry spokesman says the $278 million difference between the rate hike it wants and the increase proposed by the State Board of Insurance staff is a result of "an honest difference of opinion."

The two proposals were laid out Thursday as the three-member board began its review of auto insurance rates. The staff says a 17.3 percent increase is justified. That increase would mean $306 million more in premiums from Texas motorists.

Any new rates approved by the board would be effective Nov. 1.

The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office says a 33.2 percent increase is needed. The TAIISO proposal would add $584 million to the $1.75 billion in premiums paid by Texans this year.

David Irons, TAIISO lawyer, told reporters that insurance companies now must cover the increasing costs of car repairs and medical care.

"The simple fact is we have far more accidents and more cost per accident," he said, adding that there is "an honest difference of opinion" on how to calculate the increase needed.

No action was taken by the board on Thursday. Chairman Bill Daves recessed the hearing until Aug. 31.

Later, Daves told reporters that the staff recommendation might be reduced by an unspecified amount because of new data expected in two weeks.

Industry officials said the number of accidents in Texas rose by 6.2 percent during 1991. The number of injuries rose by 10.8 percent, according to TAIISO.

Gaylon Daniel, board staff actuary, testified that while the cost of claims has risen, the number of claims has dropped. But he added, "It is evident that the increases in average claim costs have overshadowed the reductions in claim frequencies."

The staff and industry proposals are the only ones brought to the board. Rebecca Lightsey of the Texas Consumer Association called the TAIISO proposal "ludicrous."

However, Ms. Lightsey said TCA would not get involved in the hearing because of the complexities of insurance rate-setting.

"We're pretty much left up to the State Board of Insurance. Their record of being fair to consumers and the insurance companies is excellent," she said Thursday.

Report says Abilene bank had loan problems in June

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Abilene National Bank says it had a $5 million deficit in its capital equity fund on June 30 and the new chairman of the bank says any such deficit is "typically a sign that the bank is insolvent."

The chairman, Robert Semple, succeeded Don Earney in the job after the bank was taken over Aug. 6 by Mercantile Texas Corp., a Dallas-based holding company that owns 23 banks. The takeover came after federal regulators said the bank was in danger of failure.

Earney, in a campaign attacking a story The Dallas Morning News published July 9 about loan problems at the bank, said the bank was "not in jeopardy" and was "strong, solvent and financially sound."

Semple said Thursday that the June 30 deficit is listed in a document stating the bank's condition as of that date, but the statement wasn't signed until Tuesday and reflects information not known to bank officials June 30.

Semple said that after the newspaper's story, examiners from the U.S. controller of the currency office identified loans they considered as potential losses. He said the bank wasn't notified of these until one to two weeks before the takeover.

Because of the newly identified potential loan losses, the statement of the bank's condition as of June 30 had to reflect $37 million set aside to cover the possible losses, he said. That figure is $32 million more than had been allotted for that purpose and dropped the overall capital equity figure to a deficit of $5 million, he said.

The terms for the federal approval of Mercantile's acquisition of Abilene National included that Mercantile Texas would immediately pump $20 million into the bank.

"The federal regulators' philosophy is that a bank should always have sufficient capital to support the level of loans, other investments and deposits," Semple said. "And they felt Abilene National did not meet that requirement."

Semple said that with the capital from Mercantile Texas, Abilene National's total equity capital is now about $15 million. He noted that that does not include money that might be recovered from the reserve for loan losses, he said.

W.L. WALKER
PERRYTON — W.L. "Sammy" Walker, 74, died Wednesday.

Services were to be at 10 a.m. today at Boxwell Brothers Chapel, the Rev. Lloyd Kirkman, pastor of People's Temple, officiating. Additional services and burial will be held Sunday in Fairfield.

He was born in Freestone County and has lived in Perryton since 1962. He was a retired driller for Phillips Petroleum Co., was a World War II veteran, a Mason, and a member of People's Temple.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Darnell Budd of Perryton; and a sister, Celesta Read of Fairfield.

ISMAEL ESPARZA

TULIA — Ismael Esparza, 37, of Tulia, was killed in a two-truck accident Wednesday, about 6 miles north of Tulia on US 87.

A Chandler, Okla. woman, Rhonda Gayle Milner, 25, was also killed in the accident, which occurred at about 1:10 p.m. Wednesday.

Highway patrolmen who investigated the wreck said a semi-trailer rig driven by Mrs. Milner was in collision with the rear of the water well drilling rig driven by Esparza. Both were pronounced dead at the scene by peace justice S.G. Hooper.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Betania Assembly of God Church, the Rev. Paul Moreno, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Rose Hill Cemetery, directed by Wallace Funeral Home.

He was born Jan. 23, 1945 in Lamesa. He moved to Tulia in 1954. He was married to Susie Miller in Chicago. He was an irrigation pump repairman for Cosby Motor Co.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Consuela Esparza and Una Maria Esparza, both of Charleston, W. Va.; five sisters, Angie DeLaRosa of Lamesa, Masry Ann Gonzales, Sylvia Ramirez and Alva Moreno, all of Tulia and Irene Rodriguez of Hondo; four brothers, Rey Esparza of Canyon and Frank Esparza, Jesse Esparza and John Esparza, all of Amarillo; and a half-brother, Joe Ramirez of Canadian.

Henry Fonda: The unpretentious hero of Middle American life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Henry Fonda, dead at the age of 77, was remembered from Hollywood to New England, the setting of his Oscar-winning role in "On Golden Pond," as the unpretentious hero he portrayed so well in more than 100 stage and screen performances.

With his wife, Shirlee, at his bedside, the veteran actor died peacefully Thursday at Cedars Sinai Medical Center of respiratory failure brought on by his long fight with heart disease.

Fonda, who appeared in more than 80 films and dozens of plays during a career that spanned a half-century, had worn a pacemaker since 1974 and had been in and out of the hospital since his most recent heart surgery in May 1981. He was hospitalized on Sunday for the last time.

"He was comfortable and was in no pain," Mrs. Fonda, flanked by the actor's children, Jane, Peter and adopted daughter Amy, told reporters gathered outside the family's Bel-Air home. "He had a good night. He talked with all of us and he was conscious at all times. He woke up this morning, he sat up and just stopped breathing."

Among those who paid their respects in person during the day were James Stewart, Eva Marie Saint, James Garner, Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers.

In accordance with his wishes, Fonda's eyes were donated to the Manhattan Eye Institute and his body was cremated hours after he died, family spokeswoman Pat Kingsley said. She said there would be no funeral and the family had not decided what to do with the remains.

A tall, lean man with an honest face, Fonda played presidents and senators, lawyers and soldiers, farmers and indigents with equal skill. But despite his prominence, he kept his open manner and was remembered as much for his personal qualities as his professional achievements.

"I don't think you'll ever find anybody who'll have anything but good to say about Hank," said Glenn Ford, Fonda's co-star in "Midway" and "The Rounders."

"We've lost one of a kind... he was a real super, super, super actor," said Lucille Ball, who worked with Fonda in "The Big Street" and "Yours, Mine and Ours."

In the New Hampshire community of Holderness, whose Squam Lake was the setting for Fonda's Oscar-winning performance in "On Golden Pond," word of his death hit hard.

"We feel we've lost an old-timer from this area, even though I think it was his first time here," said Malcolm Taylor, president of the Squam Lakes Association.

"He much preferred to eat lunch with members of the crew — the roustabouts, cameramen, sound people. He just sat right down among them and was right at home."

In his hometown of Omaha, Neb., Fonda was the boy who made good but never forgot his roots. His family asked that instead of flowers, donations be made to the Omaha Community Playhouse's Henry Fonda Theater Center Memorial.

Born Henry Jaynes Fonda in Grand

Island, Neb., on May 16, 1905, Fonda grew up in Omaha and got his start acting at the Playhouse with a bit part in 1925.

The son of a printer, Fonda quit journalism studies at the University of Minnesota to study at the Playhouse under Marlon Brando's mother, then moved east to work at the University Players Guild on Cape Cod.

There he met Margaret Sullivan, first of his five wives, and Stewart, who later roomed with Fonda at New York's Madison Square Hotel while both worked on Broadway.

After starring with Imogene Coca in "New Faces" in 1934, Fonda won a $1,000-a-week contract with movie producer Walter Wanger and began his film career with "The Farmer Takes a Wife" in 1935.

Five years and 20 films later, he got his first of three Academy Award nominations for his portrayal of Tom Joad in "The Grapes of Wrath." Another would follow in 1957 for "Twelve Angry Men," in which he played a juror who singlehandedly persuaded his 11 colleagues to acquit a young murder defendant.

In 1981 he was awarded a special lifetime achievement Oscar. But it was not until this year that he won an Oscar for his performance in "On Golden Pond" as Norman Thayer, a retired professor who masked his fear of death with grim humor. Too ill to attend the awards ceremonies, Fonda wept as he watched daughter Jane accept the Oscar on television.

After his brief, stormy marriage to Miss Sullivan, Fonda married Frances Seymour Brokaw, mother of Jane and Peter, who committed suicide in a mental asylum while they were estranged. Later marriages, to actress Susan Blanchard and Italian Countess Aldera Franchetti ended in divorce. In 1966 he married Shirlee Adams, an airline stewardess 28 years younger than he.

Despite his liberal views, he feuded for many years with his daughter Jane over her radical politics and was for a time estranged from both Jane and Peter.

and meals for school board members.

"I served on this board when that school (Pampa High School) was built, and I never took a nickel," Sidwell said.

He continued by calling the tax office budget "ridiculous, immoral and a giant rip off."

"You will just be taking money to the bank. You put it in the computer and turn the delinquent taxes over to the lawyers in Amarillo. The office will practically be eliminated," Sidwell said to city-school Tax Assessor-Collector Charles Rand.

"No sir, I would like to think it was that easy," Rand said about his office's new collection-only work next year.

Dr. H. Dwight Dow questioned expected tax revenues in a period of declining oil production.

"What will happen if the oil production drops off. Will the homeowners be required to make up the difference?" Dow asked.

"Many people are unaware of the tax power of the school board. It would behoove us to inform the public that our elected representatives have the power to tax," the doctor said.

Sidwell finished his remarks by asking the board to "give some consideration to the people who have lost their jobs here. I hope you will give some consideration to retirees and people on fixed incomes."

"The oil industry is not as big as it used to be — it's somewhat on the decline."

"This upping the budget every year and higher operation costs must stop," Sidwell said.

In addition to making suggestions and complaints, some of the small crowd of 25 people at the hearing used the opportunity to take a few verbal shots at the board and school administration.

When Trusty said he could not answer a question, Brighton said, "Mr. Trusty you are up on salary — you out to be up on everything else."

Following the remarks, Fields closed the public hearing and thanked the citizens for the comments.

He then immediately asked for a motion to approve the proposals of adopting the budget for fiscal 1982-83 and the tax rate increase, from 62 to 63.9 cents per $100 valuation.

The motion to approve was made by Curt Beck and seconded by Lyle.

The vote to approve was unanimous.

Following the meeting, Fields was asked if views expressed at public hearings have any bearing on the board's thinking.

The president said he believed the public meetings and citizen opinions do make a difference concerning school policy, if not presently, then perhaps during future board deliberations.

Fields said he did not come to the hearing "married to any particular figure," but he said, "I was prepared to rely on the information of the budget committee, the people who put in the most work and study on it."

Cops won't deal with mass killer

HOUSTON (AP) — Michigan law officials left Houston without talking to a man who has been linked to the slayings of 11 women because the man's lawyers would not let them question him without guaranteed immunity from prosecution.

"Something could develop to prove the cases," prosecutor William Delhey of Washtenau County, Mich., said Thursday. "At this time, I am not ready to make an agreement."

Coral Eugene Watts, 28, has admitted he killed eight women whose bodies had previously been found in the Houston area and this week led police to three graves. He also is suspected of assaults on women and another dozen murders elsewhere in Texas, Michigan and Canada, police say.

But in Ann Arbor, Mich., Patrick Foley, an assistant prosecuting attorney said he could be persuaded to grant Watts immunity "if he convinces us" he was responsible for killing Jeanne Clynne, a former Detroit News reporter who was stabbed to death in 1979.

In his latest statement, Watts admitted Thursday that he killed Edith Anna Ledet, 34, a medical student and the daughter of Texas 5th District Court of Appeals Judge James K. Allen of Dallas. Her body was found 11 blocks from where she lived in Galveston.

The bidding proposition allows the commission to purchase any item which costs less than $5,000 without asking for competitive bids on the purchase.

Presently, anything the city purchases over $3,000 must be submitted for bids.

Wofford said the higher bid levels bring the charter in line with state levels and reflect today's higher prices.

The polling places for the election Saturday are:

Population in Wards 1 and 2 is nearly three times the population of Wards 3 and 4, according to Wofford. New boundary lines would equalize the ward populations, he said.

The new boundaries would force out Ward 1 Commissioner O.M. Prigmore, however.

If the boundary changes are approved, Prigmore and Calvin Whately will both live in Ward 2. Prigmore's term expires in 1983, but Whately's term runs through 1984, so Prigmore could not contest Whately for the position until the end of the latter official's term.

Arrival of police, neighbor saved woman

HOUSTON (AP) — The arrival of police and of a neighbor saved Lori Lister from drowning in her own bathtub, victim of a man who has claimed responsibility for at least 11 slayings in the Houston area and suspected in a dozen more.

Police said they arrested Coral Eugene Watts, a 28-year-old former bus mechanic, while he was trying to kill Ms. Lister, whom he had already choked into unconsciousness.

Watts led police this week to the bodies of three women he killed and has confessed to eight other strangulation or stabbing slayings.

Authorities want to question him in at least a dozen other killings in Texas, Michigan and Canada.

He was arrested after fleeing Ms. Lister's apartment when he saw police cars outside, but patrolmen Don Schmidt and L.W. Domain cornered Watts and handcuffed him with help from a resident of the complex.

A neighbor, who preferred not to be identified, made certain Ms. Lister was not added to the count.

"She pulled me out (of the tub), got me breathing, hit my chest, did all the things you have to do," said Ms. Lister, 20.

"I remember waking up for a minute in the ambulance and that I was hysterical and they had to keep me down," she said. "The next thing I knew was when I woke up in the hospital."

Another neighbor had called police after hearing a scream outside his apartment about 6:30 a.m. May 23. Ms. Lister said she was leaving for church.

"I got one scream out," she said.

Ms. Lister said Watts choked her, then demanded to know which apartment was hers.

She told him, she said, explaining, "I thought if I didn't ... I would wind up in a field."

The man who called police declined to be identified. He said he saw part of the assault after hearing the shriek.

"He was sort of sitting on the ground next to her, and he had her in a headlock," the neighbor said.

Assistant District Attorney Ira Jones said Watts left Ms. Lister unconscious, then went to her apartment, where he surprised her roommate, Melinda Aguilar, 20.

Ms. Aguilar said Watts woke her when he barged in.

First phase of the textbook selection process has ended

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The first phase in selection of $37 million in textbooks for Texas schools ended today as the State Textbook Committee completed a five-day hearing to gather public comment.

The committee meets in Austin again on Sept. 7 to select the books it will recommend for adoption in the state's schools next year.

At Thursday's hearing, Mrs. Russell Preston, a Garland housewife complained that proposed schoolbooks on health "teach values contrary to the values I teach my children at home."

Mrs. Preston objected to a definition in "Homemaking Skills for Everyday Living," which she said defined a family unit as two or more persons living together.

"This leaves the door open for homosexuality, cohabitation and communal living," she said. "This book has repeated attempts to undermine parental authority."

In another health book, "Good Health for You," she objected to a suggested class activity in which the teacher would ask pupils to use a stethoscope to listen to various parts of another's body. "This activity will cause an embarrassing situation which will interfere with the learning atmosphere," she said.

Dr. H.R. McDaniel, Grand Prairie educator, objected to two proposed civics textbooks saying they were biased and contained errors in judgement.

"I've talked with dozens of classroom teachers," he said. "One of them told me that teachers have a serious problem in public education but no one asks teachers what is wrong." She said we need textbooks with source materials and information the students need to know.

Insurance industry calls for an auto rate hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas automobile insurance industry spokesman says the $278-million difference between the rate hike it wants and the increase proposed by the State Board of Insurance staff is a result of "an honest difference of opinion."

The two proposals were laid out Thursday as the three-member board began its review of auto insurance rates. The staff says a 17.3 percent increase is justified. That increase would mean $306 million more in premiums from Texas motorists.

Any new rates approved by the board would be effective Nov. 1.

The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office says a 33.2 percent increase is needed. The TAISO proposal would add $584 million to the $1.75 billion in premiums paid by Texans this year.

David Irons, TAISO lawyer, told reporters that insurance companies now must cover the increasing costs of car repairs and medical care.

"The simple fact is we have far more accidents and more cost per accident," he said, adding that there is "an honest difference of opinion" on how to calculate the increase needed.

No action was taken by the board on Thursday. Chairman Bill Daves recessed the hearing until Aug. 31.

Later, Daves told reporters that the staff recommendation might be reduced by an unspecified amount because of new data expected in two weeks.

Industry officials said the number of accidents in Texas rose by 6.2 percent during 1981. The number of injuries rose by 10.8 percent, according to TAISO.

Gaylon Daniel, board staff actuary, testified that while the cost of claims has risen, the number of claims has dropped. But he added, "It is evident that the increases in average claim costs have overshadowed the reductions in claim frequencies."

The staff and industry proposals are the only ones brought to the board. Rebecca Lightsey of the Texas Consumer Association called the TAISO proposal "ludicrous."

However, Ms. Lightsey said TCA would not get involved in the hearing because of the complexities of insurance rate-setting.

"We're pretty much left up to the State Board of Insurance. Their record of being fair to consumers and the insurance companies is excellent," she said Thursday.

Report says Abilene bank had loan problems in June

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Abilene National Bank says it had a $5 million deficit in its capital equity fund on June 30 and the new chairman of the bank says any such deficit is "typically a sign that the bank is insolvent."

The chairman, Robert Semple, succeeded Don Earney in the job after the bank was taken over Aug. 6 by Mercantile Texas Corp., a Dallas-based holding company that owns 23 banks. The takeover came after federal regulators said the bank was in danger of failure.

Earney, in a campaign attacking a story The Dallas Morning News published July 9 about loan problems at the bank, said the bank was "not in jeopardy" and was "strong, solvent and financially sound."

Semple said Thursday that the June 30 deficit is listed in a document stating the bank's condition as of that date, but the statement wasn't signed until Tuesday and reflects information not known to bank officials June 30.

Semple said that after the newspaper's story, examiners from the U.S. controller of the currency office identified loans they considered as potential losses. He said the bank wasn't notified of these until one to two weeks before the takeover.

Because of the newly identified potential loan losses, the statement of the bank's condition as of June 30 had to reflect $37 million set aside to cover the possible losses, he said. That figure is $32 million more than had been allotted for that purpose and dropped the overall capital equity figure to a deficit of $5 million, he said.

The terms of the federal approval of Mercantile's acquisition of Abilene National included that Mercantile Texas would immediately pump $20 million into the bank.

"The federal regulators' philosophy is that a bank should always have sufficient capital to support the level of loans, other investments and deposits," Semple said. "And they felt Abilene National did not meet that requirement."

Semple said that with the capital from Mercantile Texas, Abilene National's total equity capital is now about $15 million. He noted that that does not include money that might be recovered from the reserve for loan losses, he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The best service often is private

The American Institute for Public Service recently handed out its 10th annual Jefferson Awards. A gaggle of public figures was honored — Howard Baker, Bob Hope, Claude Pepper and Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio — but much more impressive were the achievements of the private citizens honored for local community service.

Dallas Doyle of Butte, Mont., operates Outreach Mission in an old building that also happens to be his house. Since 1977 he has helped more than 6,000 people, including young hitchhikers caught in the snow, old people in need of warmth, and travelers. Doyle, an alcoholic who has quit drinking, "saw the need for a place that offered more than just a meal. He offers the missing ingredients of care, love and understanding."

Marvin Garrett of Easley, S. C., flies emergency patients, particularly burned children, from upper South Carolina to specialized hospitals across the country. He has made himself available 24 hours a day, leaving his office or farm whenever the phone summons him. There is never a charge to the patient or family.

Caroline Putnam of Springfield, Mass., along with her husband, endowed a full scholarship for black students at Regis College in 1945. They soon decided that this wasn't enough, and Mrs. Putnam established Catholic Scholarships for Negroes, seeking money from Roman Catholics for deserving students of all faiths. She now makes a four-year commitment to about 100 students a year, providing enough money to make schooling possible. Mrs. Putnam herself never graduated from college.

Helena Kyle of Chapel Hill, N. C., is a 72-year-old retired private-duty nurse. In 1978 she began a home assistant program, wherein she and other nurses teach unskilled workers the rudiments of home nursing, then match them with people who need help. The only charge to patients is for the unskilled workers; the professionals donate their time.

Ruth Heinz and Lorraine Schreck of Brookfield, Wis., began Citizen's Outreach Service in their homes, but got office space from the city in 1981. They help elderly people, mostly in nursing homes, with everything from insurance and tax problems to Medicare Forms. They have been appointed guardians for 12 persons who have no one else to turn to, and are on call 24 hours a day.

The DoYLES, GARRETTs, KYLES, PUTNAMs, HEINZes and SCHRECKs of this world often do their work with little recognition and little desire for it. They (and thousands across the country who go out of their way to help those in need) would probably be the first to tell you that they get far more in personal satisfaction from their voluntary activities than they put into them.

Even in our institutionalized, bureaucratized society, there are plenty of unmet needs; indeed, new needs are created every day by clumsy bureaucratic efforts to meet human needs. There are plenty of opportunities for those who want to help others on a voluntary basis and, fortunately, there are still private citizens willing to step forward. The American Institute for Public Service deserves a vote of thanks for bringing the efforts of a few of these people to our attention.

Drilling blues

Crude oil prices on the U. S. market are down more than four bucks to about $30 a barrel, the industry is still paying off a $227.315 billion "windfall profits" tax, and, according to The Wall Street Journal, exploration has ominously gone from boom to bust in Texas.

The oil business, in short, is having problems these days, and it appears the problems could get worse quickly if both Washington and Sacramento move ahead with plans to tax an even larger share of suddenly declining oilfield revenues.

At least that's the fear of the Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA), the trade group representing producers of half the nation's crude oil, which sees a grim future for oil exploration unless both state and federal law-makers realize the nation's most heavily taxed business can't absorb endless levy increases.

IPAA director James Woods of Los Angeles reported this past week that nearly one dozen tax proposals are awaiting action in Washington and Sacramento which, if enacted, would boost the industry's tax load to 58 percent of revenues. That compares with a 38 percent average for other businesses.

That news perhaps won't move the general public to tears. The huge profit increases racked up by the major oil companies in 1980 are still fresh in mind, and during the past few weeks gasoline prices at the pump have moved up again.

But the problem this time, according to Woods, is twofold: As always, most of the tax increases will simply be passed on to consumers; but some of the new taxes will fall exclusively on the smaller, independent producers, the chancetakers who do the bulk of exploration. If they get squeezed dry, Woods foresees an even greater U. S. dependence on foreign oil.

At the California level, the association fears two tax proposals — a 6 percent severance tax at the wellhead, and the proposed split-roll ad valorem tax which it calculates would hike the industry's property taxes 238 percent if enacted today.

Still bigger increases are proposed in Congress, taxes which in Woods' mind could only have the effect of sharply raising prices on domestically produced gasoline, heating fuels and the like.

The pity of all this, according to Woods, is that the U. S. has the capability of meeting all of its own gasoline and oil needs for decades to come. But it has been forced to import nearly half of the 17 million barrels of oil a day it uses by a regressive tax system coupled with environmental and other regulations.

We say again that the answer to budget deficits in Washington and Sacramento is not more taxation but real cuts in government expenditures. We all pay the price when our lawmakers spend beyond their means. To try to make oil (or any other business) carry the burden is to invite a new set of problems tomorrow.

New war between the states?

By ROBERT WALTERS.
HILTON HEAD, S. C. (NEA) — "A very interesting debate," said South Carolina Gov. Richard W. Riley, a smart politician who knows when to avoid an unnecessary fight.

Riley's cryptic comment, offered during the recent meeting here of the Southern Governors' Association, came in response to a query about his views on the merits of a relatively obscure levy called the severance tax.

South Carolina doesn't impose a severance tax, but at the time the question was posed Riley was flanked by Texas Gov. William P. Clements Jr., whose state last year reaped almost $2.2 billion from its severance tax.

That disparity explains the only other comment Riley was willing to offer on the subject: "Certainly there's no common feeling oftentimes."

Behind that understatement lies a simmering dispute — increasingly focusing on severance taxes — between the country's energy-producing states and their energy-consuming counterparts.

Throughout the late 1970s, the issue generally divided states along regional lines, with the "Frostbelt" states of the Southeast and Southwest.

Now, however, there are emerging signs of tension within the South, as many of the region's poorest states search for new revenue sources to compensate for rapidly declining federal financial assistance.

A severance tax is based on the concept that a state and its citizens are entitled to compensation whenever a nonrenewable natural resource is removed — or severed — and thus no longer constitutes part of the state's economic base.

Various states impose such taxes on bauxite, titanium, zinc, lead gypsum, sulfur, molybdenum, marble, potash, uranium, taconite, limestone and a host of other minerals.

But at least 75 percent of the almost $6.5 billion collected last year by the 33 states that impose severance taxes was generated by oil and gas production. Coal mining, the second most lucrative source of severance tax collections, accounted for less than 10 percent of those revenues.

The disparities among the various states are equally striking. Five states — Texas, Alaska, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico — last year accounted for slightly more than 80 percent of all severance tax collections in the country.

The existence of that wide gap between the "have" and the "have-nots" has made political leaders of the states in the former category protective and defensive about the severance tax as a source of substantial revenue.

During the governors' meeting here, for example, Clements sought to enlist allies for Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana by citing their supposed shared interest with coal-producing states in the region such as Kentucky and West Virginia.

But the oil states and the coal states have little in common in terms of revenues produced by their severance taxes. In 1980, Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana received almost $2.47 billion from that source — more than eight times as much as the $306 million collected by Kentucky and West Virginia.

States lacking any indigenous fuel sources are especially hostile to the severance tax. At a recent meeting of the Midwestern Governors' Association in Des Moines, Iowa Gov. Robert D. Ray suggested — half-facetiously and half-seriously — that states in his region retaliate by imposing a severance tax on corn production.

Public officials in states of the Upper Midwest, which boasts the headwaters of the Mississippi, Missouri and other major rivers, have been offering similar suggestions about a severance tax on water flowing south to the rest of the nation.

The Northeast-Midwest Institute, a research organization operating on behalf of the "Frostbelt" states, warns that the $4.2 billion collected by a relatively few states in oil and gas severance taxes in 1980 could soar to $130 billion or more by the end of the decade.

The Southern States Energy Board, representing the "Sunbelt" states in the dispute, criticizes that analysis as "badly flawed" and warns of a potential "regional confrontation" — but such a showdown may be inevitable.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Aug. 13, the 225th day of 1982. There are 140 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 13, 1961, East Germany sealed off the border between East and West Berlin, closing the Brandenburg Gate to halt the flight of refugees to West Germany.

On this date:

In 1521, Spanish conqueror Hernando Cortez captured Mexico City from the Aztec Indians.

In 1792, French revolutionaries imprisoned France's royal family.

In 1846, the American flag was raised for the first time in Los Angeles.

In 1960, the first two-way telephone conversation by satellite was held.

Ten years ago: U. N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim issued a report suggesting that deals made between big powers were not adequate to ensure world peace.

Five years ago: Thousands of right- and left-wing extremists battled each other in London riots.

One year ago: Three former congressmen convicted in the FBI's Abscam probe were sentenced to three-year prison terms.

Today's birthdays: Gopher Ben Hogan is 70. Cuban President Fidel Castro is 56.

Thought for today: Anger is momentary madness, so control your passion or it will control you. — Horace, Roman poet-satirist (65 B.C.-8 B.C.).

Youth should be celebrated

By D.R. SEGAL

If you have paid attention to these Invitations to Learning, you may know I am a 100-percent advocate of the Pepsi generation, much preferring their company to the creaky complaints of people my age. That is why I think I would die quickly in Leisure Heaven.

But it is nice, on occasion, to escape to the good company of one's own generation, provided it is done with care. (I get no kick out of hearing about grandchildren, operations, cruises on the S.S. Geritol or what E.F. Hutton said.)

Two delightful occasions happened only recently, one being a meeting with the Dutch Treat Club West and the other being the 40th anniversary of Bud and Judy Rollins.

The rail train in your future

By PAUL HARVEY

On the other side of this recession, the skies will be overcrowded with airliners again. Americans will be seeking alternative transportation again.

Is there a future for railroads? If you could move a passenger, swiftly and comfortably, 400 miles on 1 1/2 gallons of diesel fuel, mightn't that be the transportation of tomorrow?

Amtrak has done it between New Haven and Boston.

While Americans have been watching the highways and skyways, rail travel has been rediscovering itself.

Our newest sleek, aerodynamic LRC (light, rapid and comfortable) trains operate on existing tracks, bank on turns, offer more passenger comfort than any other trains in the world.

And on a trip of 300 to 400 miles they will get you there about as fast as a jetliner.

On a trip between New York City and Buffalo, a trip that would require seven hours on a conventional train, the cost-efficient LRC train can reduce that travel time by three hours. (About 40 percent.)

The new LRC trains, developed by three North American companies, appear to have the "inside-track" though Japan is trying hard to sell us something comparable.

Japan's rail travel — however advanced — is in trouble in Japan. What's happened to them should be a lesson to us.

With a head start on developing bullet trains, whistling past Mount Fuji at 130 mph, Japan's nationalized railway is in trouble. The technology has proved itself. But management and labor problems have Japan's railroads running backward $10 million a day. This problem of theirs will sound familiar here: Two railroaders doing the job of one, engineers paid for three hours of work, drunkenness on the job — even in the locomotive cab.

So Japan's highly touted trains — in Japan — are bleeding red ink.

As ours did.

And can again.

So Japan's railroad experts are in the United States — hoping to find here a better labor climate for modernized rail service in California and Florida.

The prospect for upgrading rail service and making it profitable again is not hopeless. Conrail, the 16-state line created by Congress from six bankrupt railroads, is now making money.

But it has taken the cooperation of Conrail's 16 unions — agreeing to forego pay increases — agreeing, in fact, to work for 15 percent less than rail workers elsewhere.

So Conrail was able to compete last year with a profit of $39.2 million; expects to do better than that this year. If America's enlightened, cost-conscious railroad management continues on course...

If rail unions continue to cooperate...

There is rail travel in your future, safe, fast, comfortable and economical. (c) 1982, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Berry's World

"I was worried about Pan Am, because it is in deep trouble!"

Which are you? Uptight or laid back person

ATLANTA (AP) — The knack of keeping calm under stress may be something children are born with, and those who can't cope may suffer from depression later in life, a scientist says.

Stephen Suomi of the University of Wisconsin told a meeting of the International Primatological Society on Thursday that monkeys — and possibly people — tend to fall into two groups he calls the "uptight" and the "laid back."

In experiments with monkeys, he has found that their ability or inability to handle stress is a quality that remains constant for long periods, perhaps all their lives.

It is simple to tell which category an animal is in by subjecting it to stress, such as removal from its social group, Suomi said.

He is now learning that measurement of hormone levels, particularly cortisol, may be used to classify monkeys. Eventually it may be possible to identify uptight and laid-back monkeys — and people — with a simple blood test.

Suomi said in an interview that he has evidence "that those females who show depression as adolescents have an unusually high likelihood of being inadequate mothers, not taking care of their kids."

The advantage of knowing early in life that an individual will have problems later, Suomi said, is that it allows the individual to be treated before problems develop.

Jerome Kagan of Harvard University has identified certain children who are what he calls "vigilant," or reluctant to interact with others.

Suomi said that he and Kagan think they are talking about the same thing, even though they have given it different names.

The idea is that this quality, whether vigilance or inability to handle stress or a tendency to depression, may be a genetically determined characteristic.

But that doesn't mean that people who react badly to stress cannot learn to handle it, Suomi said.

"There's no question that even if there is a genetic component — which I believe there is — you have to consider environmental factors," he said. "Under what circumstances can you change? That's one of the things we're trying to find out."

Suomi has found that monkeys react almost exactly like human beings to many anti-depressant drugs, and that they cope with stress better if they experience it in the company of a partner or a social group.

"If put in a stressful situation, you've got to have friends with you," Suomi said.

Cruise missile head fired by Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rear Adm. Walter Locke has been fired as head of the Pentagon's cruise missile project office amid production problems in the multi-billion dollar program, Pentagon sources say.

There was no official comment late Thursday and Locke could not be reached.

The sources said Locke got word Thursday afternoon that he had been relieved after about five years as head of the office which has been supervising development and production of a variety of sea-launched, air-launched and ground-launched cruise missiles.

The missiles are like small, pilotless aircraft designed to carry conventional or nuclear warheads.

There was no clear word on the reason for Locke's reported removal from his job as boss of programs estimated to cost a total of more than $15 billion. However, the sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said Navy officials have become concerned about some key elements of sea-launched missile program.

There also were reports from some sources of conflicts between some senior Navy admirals in the research and development and materiel fields and Locke.

Locke was responsible to Navy superiors as well as to the Air Force Systems Command in his role as head of the two-service program.

Admirals of Locke noted he had been involved in the Navy's Tomahawk cruise missile for about 10 years, and they credited him with pushing it along against opposition within the Navy.

One senior defense official said, "People were gunning for Walt."

According to Navy sources, some of the top brass had become particularly concerned because of slippages in planned combat readiness of two types of Tomahawk missiles, one designed for firing against land targets and the other an anti-ship version. Both types had conventional high-explosive warheads.

In response to an inquiry, the Pentagon acknowledged that the first deployment of land attack missiles should have occurred last January and that an anti-ship version, also designed for launching from submarines, was supposed to have been ready in June.

"The cause of these delays has been due primarily to quality assurance problems resulting in late delivery of the missiles and some non-recurring problems found only during certain flight tests," the Pentagon said.

Reganomics pessimism growing

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite growing pessimism about the economy and President Reagan's plans to fix it, a majority of Americans continue to have confidence in Reagan and his economic program, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

Sixty-one percent of those polled said they think the nation's economy has gotten worse in the last year, up from 53 percent in June, with two of every three people who said the economy had worsened blaming Reagan's policies.

At the same time, the poll found sharp division among Americans over Reagan's plan for tax increases to offset record budget deficits.

For the poll, 1,594 adults in a nationwide scientific random sampling were surveyed by telephone Monday and Tuesday.

Confidence in Reagan's plan for reviving the economy has been declining since January, when 75 percent of those polled said they had as much or more confidence in the program as one year earlier.

In the recent AP-NBC poll, 57 percent said they have some or a lot of confidence in Reagan's ability to improve the economy in the next year, and 57 percent said they have the same or more confidence in his economic program than they did a year ago.

Asked whether as of today they would deem the program a success or failure, 50 percent said a failure, 31 percent said a success and 19 percent said either they were not sure or it was too soon to tell.

That represents a slight change from the May AP-NBC News poll, when 47 percent said Reganomics was a failure and 34 percent a success.

In the latest poll, 58 percent said Reagan has had enough time to begin improving the economy. But four-out of five of those respondents said it has not improved since Reagan became president.

A cornerstone of the president's program of tax and spending cuts was a $350 billion tax cut approved by Congress a year ago.

Now, however, Reagan is pushing for a nearly $100 billion tax increase — mostly on business deductions, airline tickets, telephone calls and cigarette sales — to offset projected federal budget deficits of more than $100 billion for each of the next three years.

There was sharp division over the tax increase proposal among those polled. Thirty-seven percent approved, 32 percent disapproved, 6 percent were not sure and 25 percent said they had not heard or read about the proposal.

Throughout the poll, confidence in Reagan was closely linked to what respondents thought the economy had done in the past year and what it is going to do in the next. People who said the economy has improved and is going to get even better were more likely than other respondents to say they have confidence in the president and his economic program.

Thirty-six percent of those polled said they think the economy will improve in the next year, 31 percent said it would worsen, 28 percent said it would stay about the same and 5 percent were not sure.

Three of four of those expecting the economy to worsen blamed Reganomics.

In June, 39 percent said the economy would get better, 24 percent said worse and 33 percent said the same. At that time, two out of three people saying they economy would worsen attributed it to Reagan's program.

A majority of the respondents who identified themselves as Republicans expressed confidence in Reagan and Reganomics, while a majority of the Democrats said they lacked confidence.

Also, the higher their income, the more likely respondents were to express confidence. And men were more likely than women to say they have confidence.

Panel begins piecing together tax increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional negotiators agreed early today to a stiff new tax on upper-income investors as they began piecing together a package of tax increases that may bring the government nearly $100 billion over the next three years.

The Senate-House conference committee began serious work on the tax issues only after breaking a three-day deadlock over welfare spending. House negotiators dropped their push to restore $325 million that had been cut from welfare last year.

After breaking that stalemate, the conferees: —Approved a tougher "minimum tax" on individuals. This levy, designed to ensure that high-income investors pay some tax no matter how many big deductions they claim, would bring in about $1.3 billion over the next three years and cost an estimated 280,000 wealthy Americans an average of $4,700 apiece.

The tax would be paid only when it exceeds a person's regular income-tax liability. The burden would fall especially on those with capital gains and investments in real estate and oil properties.

—Agreed to about $15.2 billion worth of spending cuts over the next three years, chiefly in the Medicare and Medicaid health programs for the elderly and the poor, respectively. The biggest saving will cut by more than $6 billion the government's reimbursement to hospitals for treating Medicare patients.

The agreement eliminated proposals that would have required Medicare beneficiaries to pay a small share of the cost of home health care and would have raised to $80 the $75 a year that patients must pay before Medicare benefits become available. However, the conference approved a slightly higher monthly premium for supplementary insurance covering doctors' charges.

—Extended Medicare coverage to federal employees and required them to pay 1.3 percent of their base wages into the Social Security system to finance the health-care coverage.

—Voted $1 billion additional taxes on the oil industry's foreign earnings.

—Agreed to require corporations to pay 90 percent of their tax liability in estimated quarterly payments each year.

About 100 tax issues remained to be settled by the conferees, but Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the conference, insisted the panel would complete action on the bill by late tonight.

The package of selective tax increases would take back about 24 percent of the $418 billion in tax cuts that Congress voted last year for business and individuals in 1983 through 1985. While it would not disturb the basic across-the-board cut in personal tax rates, it would cancel one-third of the corporate reductions.

Woman can't document claim she is widow of Hughes

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman's claim that she is the widow of the late billionaire Howard Hughes cannot be substantiated because she never had a marriage license, an appeals court has ruled.

Alyce Hovsepian had contended that she and Hughes were wed June 6, 1946, in New Jersey and that their marriage was never terminated.

But justices of the court of civil appeals for Texas' 14th Supreme Judicial District pointed out in their opinion, issued Thursday, that Ms. Hovsepian had no marriage license and that New Jersey has never recognized common law marriages.

The opinion, signed by Chief Justice Curtiss Brown, supported the decision by quoting from a deposition Ms. Hovsepian filed.

REV. DAVID A. NEWBERRY

Missionary speaker at Lamar Full Gospel

The Rev. David A. Newberry, a South Africa missionary, will be the guest speaker this Sunday at 10:45 a.m. at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church, 1200 S. Sumner.

Newberry will speak at this special missions service on the topic of social change in South Africa in its relation to the missionary role there.

The missionary said the climate of change in that country "has contributed to the effectiveness of missionary evangelism" there.

"People are seeking for solutions, and many are turning to Jesus Christ for answers," Newberry said.

REV. RONALD L. MCCRARY

Local rector attends clinic

The Rev. Ronald L. McCrary, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church of Pampa, is attending a teacher training clinic in Madison, Wisconsin.

The two-week orientation clinic is part of the Bethel Series, an international Bible study program administered by the Adult Christian Education Foundation (ACEF).

Orientation clinics are attended by clergy and Christian education directors, who return to their churches to train lay teachers.

These teachers are trained to present overview studies of scripture to adult church members, as a foundation for continuing adult study of the Bible.

Since 1959, more than 5,000 congregations, representing 36 denominations, have taught nearly one million lay teachers and students in the Bethel Series.

New Catholic church here

A new church has begun in Pampa.

The Holy Trinity Orthodox Catholic Church, 408 Hughes, is a new mission church in town that will begin services with holy communion Sundays at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Friday prayer meetings.

The Hughes Street location is a temporary meeting facility. The church is an affiliate of Servants of the Good Shepherd and the Western Orthodox Catholic Church of America, based in Altoona, Pa.

Holy Trinity is an independent, self-governing Orthodox Catholic Church that uses the revised rites of the Roman Catholic Church in all sacramental celebrations.

Fr. Raymond E. Hefner, S.G.S. pastor of the new church, said the Orthodox Catholic liturgy and doctrine are quite different from that of the Roman Catholic, and the first four to six divine services of the new church will be instructional, to introduce members to the beliefs.

Hefner is a native of Temple, Texas and is a graduate of the Berean Graduate School of Divinity in Wichita, Kan. and the Duarte Costa School of Religion in Altoona, Pa.

He was ordained in November at Chapel of the Citadel in Charleston, S.C. in preparation for his first assignment here in Pampa.

The Western Orthodox Catholic church is a work priest order, Hefner said, and he is presently employed as a nurse anesthetist at Coronado Community Hospital.

Hefner and his wife, Barbara, have two children, David and Raelynn.

He has been in the Pampa - White Deer area for about 18 months, serving as regional director and missionary at large until the ministry was firmly established here.

New Hope Baptist observes pastor's fourth anniversary

The Rev. and Sis. Vurn C. Martin and family of the New Hope Baptist Church, 404 Harlem St., will celebrate their fourth anniversary of service to the church this week.

Services at New Hope will honor the Martins in the Sunday afternoon service at 3 p.m.

The sermon at the service will be given by the Rev. P.E. Armstrong, and addresses will be given by M. Simpson and Gloria Simmons on the topics "Our Pastor as a Leader" and "Our Pastor's Wife."

Musical numbers will be presented by the New Hope Senior Choir.

DOUBLE PORTION

A double portion is good anytime, but it is especially good when it is a portion serving one's spiritual needs. It is exactly this which Sunday Church School will do for your child; give him the double portion of spiritual nurture and wholesome Christian fellowship. These two items are the basic building blocks for the proper growth of personality. The Christian boy or girl needs to grow in the understanding of religion as he grows physically and mentally. It is a great, but common, tragedy to see grown-ups with an infantile religion. The context of Christian fellowship is vital because here we share in a common cause and a common conviction about life. Outside the fellowship the world will be calling people to its way of life every day in every way. Every individual needs the added strength which fellowship in the Church alone can give.

Go with your children this week to the Sunday Church School.

Digging up your "Roots"

BY GENA WALLS

Did the film version of Alex Haley's Roots send you scurrying for the family Bible? When your wife suggested a trip to Hawaii for a second honeymoon, did you suggested grave hunting in Tennessee? Was your last vacation to Grandma's spent at the county courthouse searching the old records?

If you answered "yes" to any of the above questions it is very possible you have been bitten by the Genealogy Bug. Probably a mild case, but watch out — it's contagious!

More than one yes answer could indicate an addiction. However, help is available and the illness is fun as well as rewarding.

My column depends on you and what you would like to know? I am offering answers to your questions about the ins and outs of genealogy and how to dig up your past.

Perhaps you would like to attend a workshop and learn how to prepare pedigree charts, group sheets and family histories, or maybe organize a carpool to Amarillo to do research at the library? Or perhaps this is a new interest in which basic information is needed to get started. There may be some who would like to have a query published or are ready to publish a book?

Please send your letters to Gena Walls, The Pampa News, P.O. Drawer 2198, Pampa, Texas, 79065.

Future columns will include information relating to local history, county events, family reunions and newsletters, queries, family traditions and anecdotes.

Puzzle: Your ancestor was "born and raised" in Gray County. He married in the late 1800's but the courthouse records begin in 1902. Where can you look for the marriage record?

Look for the answer in next week's column.

Lovell named director

Les Lovell has been named Regional Director for the Texas Rehabilitation Commission in West Texas and the Panhandle, according to Deputy Commissioner, Doyle Wheeler. The commission helps disabled

Texans who need services due to substantial handicap. "A return to work is the goal of the Counselor," said Lovell in a recent interview, "and every service provided to disabled persons by the Counselor is tailored to gainful employment".

Lovell was born in Donley County and educated in schools in Amarillo. He is a holder of degrees from Southwestern University, Southern Methodist University, and the University of Texas at Austin.

Lovell has worked as Counselor and Program Officer with the Commission for 12 years in Galveston, Sugarland, and in Fort Worth. He currently resides in Lubbock, the headquarters for the region.

Dear Abby

Lover keeps bringing up his sleazy past

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My lover and I decided to live together before marriage, both having been married before. Although we love each other and get along well, there is one area that I find destructive to our relationship.

My lover insists on talking about his many sexual experiences over the last 20 years. He always includes names, places and all the graphic details. I have pleaded with him to spare me these stories because they upset me, but he tells me anyway. He has even related some of these experiences to dinner guests, who are shocked at his lack of discretion.

Some of his past "ladies" still live in our community, and I have to face them. He still keeps their pictures, and I see him looking at them from time to time.

Since these affairs occurred while he was married, some involved abortions. There were also instances in which he was accused of fathering children. I want to believe him when he says he has changed, but I feel threatened.

Can Don Juans mature and become faithful? Or will I be sorry if I go through with plans to marry him?

ANGRY AND UPSET

DEAR ANGRY: Whether your lover will be faithful to you in the future is not the point. The fact is that he seems obsessed — indeed proud — of his numerous sleazy affairs of the past. Furthermore, knowing that it upsets you, he persists in talking about them. Will you be sorry if you marry him? Yes — unless he agrees never to mention his past again and keeps his promise, which seems highly unlikely.

DEAR ABBY: If I don't accomplish anything else today, I will have scored a major victory if I get this letter off to you. I have a lot going for me. My health is excellent, I live in a beautiful home, I'm satisfied with my job, and I have a good social life.

My problem? I'm a hopeless procrastinator. I can't count the number of things I've been meaning to do, but I never seem to get around to doing them. I make lists of things to do, but days, weeks and months go by, and I never do any of them. I am beginning to feel overwhelmed by all my unfinished projects. For months now I've been searching the bookstores, trying to find a book that deals with how to handle procrastination, but I haven't seen any that inspire me. Just writing this has helped. Any suggestions?

PROCRASTINATOR

DEAR PROCRASTINATOR: Searching in bookstores is just another device to put off dealing with the problem you say you want to solve. There is only one way to overcome procrastination. Take one project at a time, begin it, and don't stop until it's completed!

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print this, and if you can't come up with a solution, maybe one of your readers can. This spring our neighborhood has been inundated with mockingbirds that start screeching before dawn and continue non-stop until the sun sets.

Being awakened before 5 a.m. every morning is about to put me in a padded cell. (Come to think of it, a padded cell would be heaven compared to this place while these birds are carrying on!)

Earplugs are out, as they hurt my ears. This probably sounds like a minor annoyance to those who have never had to put up with it. "To Kill a Mockingbird" was just the name of a book — until now. Help!
READY TO KILL IN ANAHEIM

DEAR READY: Call your local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. If it is also for the birds, it may have some practical suggestions. Readers? (No shotguns or poison, please.)

Every teenager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's excellent booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

machine. I toss in small scraps and threads to keep things neater and easy to dispose of. — HELEN

DEAR POLLY — I had big black ants all over the house. I read about laying bay leaves around to keep them away and tried it. It's been about two months now and not one ant is around. — MRS. H.S.

DEAR POLLY — If you can eat animal fat, you'll find that chicken fat is wonderful for making cakes. It makes a moist cake and has no flavor to detract from the delicate flavorings in the cake. I refrigerate chicken stock, separate the fat from the stock and freeze the stock. I keep the fat refrigerated, using it within a few days.

When freezing fruit that will be used in pies or pudding cake, I note on the label how much sugar was added for freezing. I then can subtract that amount from the sugar called for in the pie recipe. — JOSEPHINE

Organizations and clubs will have a special appeal for you this coming year, but you must be careful to budget your time and money so that you don't spend hours and resources you could utilize better.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're basically very generous. It's hard for you to understand why others, such as those you might be associating with today, aren't equally so. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birth date and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even though you may feel a bit superior to your peers today, it's best to keep it to yourself. Associates need pats on the back, not put-downs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unfortunately, you may find more reasons why you should postpone projects today than you'll think of ways to accomplish them. Put your mind in gear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unless you have truly constructive suggestions today to offer a friend who is trying to sort out a problem you'd be wise to say nothing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be taken in today by someone who has all the exterior trappings and knows how to talk impressively. The substance of what is being espoused may be nil.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Normally, when you set your mind to a task your powers of concentration are rather keen. However, today your thoughts may wander and cause you to make mistakes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Should unflattering remarks come back to you today which were supposedly said by another, don't take them to heart. Others will consider the source.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Get together with your mate today before laying down rules you want the children to follow. If you don't, you may contradict each other.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful what you say or write today, especially where your work or career is concerned. Ill-chosen words will be hard to erase.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's unlikely you'll make large errors in handling your resources today, but you might make a number of small ones which could add up to a perturbing total.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Family members are apt to take your promises far more seriously than you do today. Don't say you will, if you don't intend to follow through.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Screen what's told to you very carefully today so that you don't pass on hearsay information which could hurt another's reputation.

Taint hurls Angels to victory

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Veteran pitcher Luis Tiant gave his wife, Maria, an anniversary present, and had a little something for the California Angels, too.
The 41-year-old Tiant, who was playing in Mexico just a couple of weeks ago, hurled the Angels to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins, boosting California back into the American League West lead over the idle Kansas City Royals.
"We've been married 21 years today," Tiant said Thursday night between puffs on a cigar. "I wanted to win as a present to her."
"I never lost the faith in myself or God that I could come back to the major leagues and win when I went to Mexico this spring."
"El Tiante" allowed six hits, struck out four and walked one in his seven-inning stint, his second start since the Angels purchased him from Tabasco of the Mexican League Aug. 2. And then he talked about the thing he knows best — pitching.

"You can't set up these young Twins the way you can an experienced hitter," said Tiant, now 1-1. "So I mixed a lot of slow stuff, then busted the fast ball once in a while when I really needed it."
In other American League games, Milwaukee swept a doubleheader from Toronto, 7-1 and 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox edged the New York Yankees 2-1.
"I feel good. My arm is good," said Tiant, who is in his 19th year in the major leagues. "I made some good pitches today. I want to go on as far as I can, but I don't know how many years."
Tiant's last big-league victory came on Sept. 15, 1981, when he beat the Chicago Cubs while pitching for the Pittsburgh Pirates.
Brewers 7-4, Blue Jays 1-3
Gorman Thomas smashed his 29th and 30th homers of the season — one in each game — to power Milwaukee to its doubleheader sweep of Toronto. The twin victories increased the Brewers' AL East lead to 5½ games over 16½ Boston.

Charlie Moore scored the go-ahead run in the second game on an error by Toronto left fielder Barry Bonnell.
In the first game, Thomas belted a two-run homer and Jim Gantner added a two-run double to back the five-hit pitching of Bob McClure as the Brewers won 7-1. Randy Lerch, 8-7, scattered seven hits through six innings to earn the victory in the second game.
Rollie Fingers, the third Brewer pitcher, went the final 12-3 innings in the nightcap for his 27th save of the season and 299th of his career, both marks major league highs.
White Sox 2, Yankees 1
Jerry Koosman hurled a four-hitter and Tony Bernazard drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning as Chicago nipped New York. The victory was the 12th in the last 14 games for the White Sox, while the Yankees suffered their third straight loss.
It was Koosman's first complete-game victory of the season.

Oilers rally to edge Saints, 22-20

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Gifford Nielsen saved the day for himself and Oilers owner Bud Adams.
Just as the boo-birds were warming up in the second quarter, Nielsen rallied the Oilers from a 13-0 deficit to a 22-20 victory over the New Orleans Saints Thursday night in the National Football League exhibition opener for both teams.
For Adams, it means he has bragging rights in the exclusive River Oaks section of town where he is a neighbor of Saints owner John Mecom Jr.
"Obviously, Gifford had very good poise tonight," Oilers Coach Ed Biles said.
Nielsen, who netted the Oilers only 22 total yards in the first quarter, hit tight end Dave Casper with a 20-yard touchdown shot with 2:29 left in the game to secure Houston's first victory over the Saints in two years.

The Saints had taken a 13-0 lead on a 1-yard touchdown run by George Rogers and field goals of 44 and 39 yards by Benny Ricardo before Nielsen cranked up the Oilers early in the second quarter.
Nielsen hit tight end Tim Wilson with a 12-yard touchdown pass and free agent Florian Kempf kicked a pair of 37-yard field goals to tie the score.
The Oilers took a temporary 15-13 lead when linebacker John Corker tackled Saints quarterback Bobby Scott in the end zone.
Saints running back Hokie Gajan scored his first pro touchdown in the fourth quarter to give New Orleans its final lead and set up the Oilers' last rally.

"We played in spurts," Saints Coach Bum Phillips said. "We also made to many errors."
New Orleans' biggest error came in the fourth quarter when the Saints had 12 players on the field for a Houston punt, giving the Oilers a first down. This time Nielsen completed a 6-yard pass to Adger Armstrong for a first down and two plays later, Nielsen hit Casper with the winning points.
The Saint's biggest loss may have been in the first quarter when quarterback David Wilson, challenging Archie Manning for the starting position, left the game with a knee injury.
He watched the rest of the game on crutches.

Slumping Braves drop 10th in a row

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO
Associated Press Writer
The Atlanta Braves are starting to sound exactly like a team that has lost not only ten games in a row, but its hold on first place as well.
And, for a team that has made up 12 games in the standings in 15 days, the Los Angeles Dodgers are acting more than a little blasé about the whole thing.
"The guys are going to have to start showing pride," said third baseman Jerry Royster of the Braves, who lost their 10th straight and 14th in the last 15 games Thursday by an 8-2 margin to San Diego.
"It's nice to be in front by a game and a half, but it only matters if that's where we are the final day of the season," said Ron Cey, who homered and drove in three runs in Los Angeles' 6-2 victory over San Francisco. It was the surging Dodgers' 13th victory in their last 15 games, and improved their lead in the National League West to 1½ games over the staggering Braves.

In other National League action, St. Louis vaulted into first place in the NL East with a 3-2 triumph over Pittsburgh, Montreal swept a two-night doubleheader from Philadelphia 6-3 and 8-7, and Chicago pounded New York 13-6.
Terry Kennedy whacked a two-run homer while winning pitcher Chris Welsh belted a two-run double in a five-run sixth inning as the Padres beat the Braves.

"Everything we do seems to backfire," said loser Bob Walk, 10-8.
Welsh, 6-5, earned the victory in relief of starter Andy Hawkins as the Braves fell to 0-8 on their current road trip.
The incredible collapse of the Braves, who led the NL West by nine games as recently as July 29, has thrown the division into a four-team race. San Diego trails Los Angeles by 3½ games, while the Giants are just five games behind the leaders.
Dodgers 6, Giants 2
The Dodgers broke open a 2-2 tie with four runs in the eighth. A bases-loaded walk to Pedro Guerrero brought in the tie-breaking run, and then Cey put the game out of reach with a two-run single.

Tom Niedenfuer, 2-2, who relieved starter Jerry Reuss when the Giants had the bases loaded in the sixth, earned the victory as the Dodgers snapped San Francisco's 10-game winning streak, the club's longest since 1966.
Cardinals 3, Pirates 2
The Cards went into first place in the NL East by a half-game over Philadelphia as Lonnie Smith had three singles and drove in two runs and Bruce Sutter quelled a Pittsburgh uprising for his 23rd save of the season.

Amarillo loses baseball team

Amarillo's pro baseball team will be packing its bags and heading for Beaumont.
The Lamar University Board of Regents have unanimously approved the use of the school's Vincent Beck Stadium by the minor league baseball team owned by Beaumont businessman Ted Moor Jr.
The board's approval, already expected since Lamar President Robert Kemble took a straw poll of the board last week to support such a move, follows by one day the Beaumont city council's official approval of $125,000 to add 2,000 bleacher seats to the stadium.

The board also approved a five-year lease agreement to be reached between the school and Moor, who bought the Amarillo Texas League club from John Dittrich in Sept. 1980.
Moor cited continued financial losses and lack of support—both at the gate and from Amarillo government and service groups—as reasons for moving the club to his hometown.
The Gold Sox drew a Texas League record for an Amarillo minor league club in Moor's first season as owner in 1981, but attendance this year is not expected to be half of the 89,613 fans passing the gates last year.

COMFORTING ARMS - With his marriage under strain and pressure, Dr. Matt Powers (Jim Pritchett) sought comfort and support in the arms of M.J. Carroll, then played by (Kathy Glass) on "The Doctors."

James Pritchett, an attorney turned actor, has four academic degrees. Spelled out, his scholarly initials are: B.A., B.S., M.A., J.D. Not an M.D. among them.

Yet as one of daytime television's most popular physicians, Dr. Matt Powers, on NBC-TV's "The Doctors" over the past 19 seasons he's gotten hundreds of fan letters requesting medical advice.

Pritchett, the only original cast member still with the series, doesn't claim any medical expertise, except some occasional research and one minor operation - on a dog.

Several years ago, a series medical consultant wanted Pritchett to have "some practical experience" for a surgical scene. So the actor donned a surgical gown and performed a canine splenectomy (ie. removal of the spleen) at a New York hospital.

On Friday, May 28, "The Doctors" celebrated its 5,000th show. How does an actor keep a role fresh and interesting over so many performances?

"It's not difficult as long as you have something new to work with," says Pritchett, relaxing in his dressing room. "It's not like a play where you have to do the same thing everyday. It's a different script every day, so why shouldn't it be fresh and interesting?"

Pritchett's talent and insights into his role earned him an Emmy in 1977-78 for Outstanding Actor in a Daytime Drama.

He's never regretted leaving his law books for the stage. After being in practice only two years, he left law and went back to his alma mater, the University of North Carolina, to study acting.

"It took a while for the young actor to establish himself. After taking understudy roles, extra parts and modeling jobs, Pritchett toured with "Auntie Mame." He made his Broadway debut in "Sail Away," then appeared in "Lord Pengo."

Before becoming Dr. Matt Powers in 1963, Pritchett was a daytime favorite on "The Secret Storm" and "As the World Turns."

"People often call Pritchett 'Matt' instead of 'Jim,' but that doesn't bother him. There are few similarities between himself and his daytime character, said Pritchett.

"We look a lot alike, though he's heavier and older," joked Pritchett. "I'm a lot handsomer than Matt Powers. And he's very straight-laced and serious-minded. He

Nuclear holocaust won't stop mail

WASHINGTON (AP) - Neither nuclear blast, nor fallout, nor mass panic and destruction will stay the Postal Service from completing its appointed rounds in case of atomic attack, a government contingency plan promises.

The Postal Service is prepared to discuss the plan at a House Post Office subcommittee hearing today. Retired Rear Admiral Gene LaRocque and other critics of President Reagan's civil defense plans are expected to say that the United States can forget about getting the mail if nuclear war breaks out.

The contingency plan, several hundred pages thick, was given to the subcommittee before the hearing and shown to a reporter.

Dozens of other agencies are expected to prepare similar manuals.

State cracks down on diesel smuggling

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Mexicans using everything from hidden tanks to waterbeds to smuggle diesel fuel into the United States have become the targets of a crackdown by the Texas comptroller's office.

Investigators say the wily smugglers are costing the state millions of dollars a year in uncollected fuel taxes. "They use all of the imagination in the world," said Ray Gutierrez, the comptroller's supervisory investigator. "You name it and we've seen it."

"We've had people hauling sand with 55-gallon drums hidden under the sand or they'll take the back seats out of cars and put 100-gallon tanks under there. They'll build a tank into a fender. We've even seen them fill waterbeds with diesel and bring it across that way."

But the cleverness of the smugglers is only part of the problem for the investigators, who face bureaucratic red tape, greed and legal loopholes in their attempt to stem the flow of illegal fuel.

"We began to look at how much the state was losing," said John Moore, tax information director for the comptroller's office. "I've heard estimates as high as $100 million a year. I think it's more like 100 million gallons. At 6.5 cents per gallon, that's $6.5 million a year."

The attraction of diesel smuggling is profit. Sellers on the Texas side of the border can sell the fuel for more than three times the 31 cents a gallon they pay for it in Mexico. That makes smuggling fines seem like a slap on the wrist, Gutierrez said.

"These operators are telling the smugglers, 'Go ahead and do it and if you get caught, I'll pay your fine,'" he said. Moore said the comptroller's office has filed 138 complaints against smugglers since April. All of them have pleaded guilty and paid fines of up to $200, he said.

He said the smugglers are Mexicans "almost to a man," but the sellers, who stand to make the big profits, are Americans who know there is little authorities can do to them.

Gutierrez said his office is looking for ways to keep diesel smugglers from thumbing their noses at the crackdown.

"We're talking to our legal division and trying to get enough evidence to see if we can go after the permits of some of these people who are buying this smuggled diesel," he said. "We're going to try to put something together by next week."

There is no U.S. law against importing Mexican diesel fuel as long as the importers get a permit from the Department of Energy, pay 1.25 cents per gallon duty on it at the international crossing points and pay the 6.5 cents per gallon state tax when the retail sale is made.

Mexican law forbids the sale of large amounts of diesel and its export, but DOE spokesman Olga Ronkovich says, "As long as they're importing under our laws, we're not concerned with what is happening with the Mexican laws."

A Mexican customs official who asked to remain anonymous said he uses paid informants to watch for smugglers, but is only able to catch less than 1,000 gallons a week on the Mexican side.

News Briefs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court has left it up to Interior Secretary James G. Watt to determine whether offshore oil projects are consistent with similar California coastal projects.

The ruling that the projects must not conflict was called a victory for California by Chuck Brandes of the state Office of Planning and Research, even though the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals gave Watt the power to decide whether there were conflicts.

Thursday's ruling came the same day that the U.S. House of Representatives voted overwhelmingly to ban oil and natural gas drilling in federally protected wilderness areas.

HILLSBORO, Texas (AP) — A murder charge has been filed against Jerry Van Pendley, who once lived with a "hermit" already jailed in the deaths of two men whose skeletons were dug up near his campsite, authorities say.

Van Pendley was ordered held in $50,000 bond Thursday, joining Henry Burton Merrill, 52, who was being held in $150,000 bond on three counts of murder.

Three skeletons were found last weekend, but since charges against Merrill were filed, the medical examiner's office has determined that only two of them were human. The charges against Merrill have yet to be altered.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A medical researcher says high doses of purified interferon help control malignant growth of some tumors, further evidence that it might help cure some cancers.

"I have no doubt (interferon) has anti-cancer activity," Dr. Richard Leavitt of the University of Maryland said Thursday. "The question now is in which cancers this occurs and how meaningful... shrinkage is."

His research shows that interferon, an antiviral protein normally produced by the body to combat infection, stimulates specific cells in the body's immune system, improving their ability to control tumor growth, he said. But he cautioned the study was preliminary.

WASHINGTON (AP) — All U.S. tire manufacturers but Uniroyal are urging the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to follow through on its proposal to scrap the tire tread wear grading requirements adopted in 1975.

Spokesmen for 10 manufacturers told a hearing Thursday that they agree with the safety administration's position that the tests are unreliable, costly and of little value to consumers trying to compare tires.

But Robert H. Horning, vice president for marketing for Uniroyal Tire Co., called the grading system "reliable, workable and not misleading." Uniroyal tires have won top rankings in tread wear tests, and the firm has used the test results in its advertising.

State officials are concerned about the smuggled fuel because there is no way to confirm that taxes are being paid on the diesel brought in — with or without permits.

"In a normal United States sale, you establish an audit trail all the way from the wellhead to the pump at the truck stop," Moore said. "If you've got all your manifests lined up, you can count all these gallons and make sure everything matches."

The permits issued by DOE give the number of gallons that are declared, but Gutierrez said that information is not shared with the states and doesn't account for the fuel that slips through unreported. A DOE official in Washington said permits were issued for 405,000 barrels, or 17.01 million gallons, of diesel in 1981.

"For every reported gallon that comes across, there's probably five that are unreported," Gutierrez said. Because the fuel is essentially legal, investigators must take a circuitous route to catch the smugglers. Moore said drivers of the smuggling vehicles have been charged with hauling fuel without the proper manifests and transporting fuel in vehicles not calibrated for it by the comptroller's office.

Gutierrez said investigators stake out international bridges and known unloading areas to watch for the smugglers. U.S. Customs inspectors and local fire marshals say they also have begun to check more closely for the hidden tanks.

But Gutierrez said that even more effective to the smugglers than hidden tanks and barrels is "mordida," the system of bribery that affects much of Mexican government.

"Because of the money situation in Mexico, whoever has the most money can get what they want," he said. "A lot of people go over there just to pay the mordida to get the diesel across. Some people think the mordida goes all the way to the top. If you're fighting Mexico City, then you haven't got a chance."

The Mexican customs official said he is aware that some inspectors are dishonest, but said his department has made serious efforts to halt smuggling.

"They are not saints out there," he said. "I'm sure two or three people do it (take bribes)... But they know that if they get caught they will go to jail."

JEAN HARRIS

ROY ROGERS

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Harris says prison is an "unnatural" way to live and that she is sustained only by "the hope of getting out."

Mrs. Harris, 59, says that she knits to pass the time and has produced "a hundred pairs of mittens" since entering prison 15 months ago to serve a 15-year-to-life sentence for killing her lover, Dr. Herman Tarnower, who originated the Scarsdale Diet.

The September issue of McCall's magazine carries an interview with the former girls' school headmistress and an article by Mrs. Harris on prison reform.

Mrs. Harris said she was in "a state of shock for a long time" after being sent to Bedford Hills Correctional Facility in Westchester County for murdering Tarnower on March 10, 1980, in a jealous rage over another woman.

Mrs. Harris' conviction by a jury was upheld by a state appellate court last year and her final state appeal is scheduled to be heard October 14 by the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals.

The former head of the posh Madeira School in McLean, Va., Mrs. Harris — who also edited some chapters of Tarnower's best-selling diet book — is preparing a booklet about prison life.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — Actor Roy Rogers will return to his boyhood home in Scioto County on Labor Day for Portsmouth's annual "River Days" festival, officials say.

The Portsmouth Recognition Society said Thursday it gathered several thousand signatures on an invitation to Rogers.

Rogers, an actor in numerous cowboy films and on television, will participate in the parade and at ceremonies honoring him. Rogers grew up as Leonard Sly in nearby Duck Run in Scioto County in southern Ohio before starting his movie career.

LAND'S END, England (AP) — Tom McClean said, "I haven't felt lonely at all," as he stepped from his 9-foot-9 inch boat to claim a record in crossing the Atlantic Ocean in 51 days.

McClean, 39, arrived at this port on the southwestern tip of England on Thursday, claiming a record for the smallest boat to make a west-to-east crossing of the Atlantic.

His boat, the Giltspur, was escorted into Land's End Harbor by a flotilla of larger boats, and McClean was greeted at dockside by his wife, Jill, who showered him with kisses.

McClean, a former member of Britain's Special Air Service commando unit, set out June 22 from St. John's, Newfoundland, on the 2,900-mile journey in an effort to break the record held by Gerry Spies, an American,

STOKELY CARMICHAEL

Stokely Carmichael awaits the revolution

By SUSAN LINNEE
Associated Press Writer

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — There are flecks of gray in his hair, and the Trinidadian lilt in his voice is more pronounced than it was when his call for "Black Power" made America sit up and listen in the 1960s.

The telephone in his modest house by the sea is out of order, so he can no longer answer it, saying: "Ready for the Revolution."

At 41, slapping mosquitoes on his front porch, scanning the evening sky for rain, Kwame Toure, the man they called Stokely Carmichael, is still waiting for the revolution, the one that will put the pieces and people of Africa back together again.

Toure has lived in this West African nation since 1969, an official guest of President Sekou Toure, whose name he has adopted.

Kwame is from Kwame Nkrumah, the first president of Ghana who was also Sekou Toure's guest and Guinea's co-president from his overthrow in 1966 until his death ten years ago.

Toure was born in Trinidad and moved to the United States with his family at age 11. In the early 1960s, while in his 20s, he worked as a field organizer for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and in 1966 became its national chairman.

As head of SNCC, Carmichael became a strident advocate of black militancy, and eventually was forced out as chairman in 1969. He has said he was "stupid and arrogant" in his methods during that period, especially in thinking that change could come overnight.

Toure said he left the United States because of police harassment. He chose Guinea so that he could spend time with Nkrumah and live in a country that was working for the cause of pan-Africanism.

Kwame Toure has two passports, Guinean and American. His former wife, the South African singer Miriam Makeba, has 21, he said. Miss Makeba maintains a residence in Conakry where she recently opened a disco called the "Zambezi."

Unlike some of his fellow activists in the civil rights movement, the former SNCC chairman is not a born-again Christian, a politician, a businessman or, like Bobby Seale, an author of cookbooks.

An honors student from the Bronx High School of Science and a Howard University graduate in philosophy, Toure spends his time reading, studying and watching his 15-month-old son, Bokar Biro, grow.

During his 15 years in Guinea, a former French colony, he has tried to improve his French, of which he says he is not proud.

"I don't know what it is. I just have always had this block against French. I've never really felt comfortable speaking it."

Leo Camara, a neighbor in the government housing compound, stops by several evenings a week for a chat and a drink. He gently corrects his friend, when the errors become too grating.

"Mon frere (brother)," Toure says. "I don't know whether it's worth it. Do you think there's any hope?"

Toure speaks English to his son and his brand of French to his Guinean wife, Marietou, and her brother and sisters who live with them. He has never learned an African language.

Toure usually travels to the United States once a year to do organizing work with the Washington-based All-African People's Revolutionary Party. He described the party as a direct descendant of the West Indian pan-Africanist movements that began in the early part of the century and were nurtured by Nkrumah after Ghana's independence in 1957.

In the United States, Toure sees old friends from the movement days like Washington Mayor Marion Barry, with whom he says he shares memories but not political philosophy.

He gives the impression of being saddened by those who have made peace with the system. He also implies that his American experience was an interlude in his journey back to Africa.

Africans in the United States — he won't call them black Americans — are often disappointed when they come to Africa to find their roots, Toure said, because they don't have the right perspective.

Asked about his continual use of the word "revolution" and the image of violence it can provoke, he paused, then said revolution could also be "a state of mind."

In Guinea the initials "PPR" appear under official signatures and on crumbling, colonial-era buildings. They stand for the French version of "Ready for the Revolution," a phrase with which Sekou Toure ends all his speeches — and used to answer the telephone.

The revolution seems to mean the event that will finally unite Africa and all those of African descent.
