Higher Food Prices, Taxes, Rent Control Seen for 1951

Metal Control Set for Dec. 1

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Higher food prices—maybe the highest ever—are in prospect for next year, the Agriculture Department said today. The department predicted that food prices, which have risen through most of 1950 with a fairly sharp upturn after the outbreak of war in Korea, probably will not go up much more before late winter. But in a report on the national food situation the department forecast "reinforced pressure" on prices in the spring and declared: "Accelerated consumer demand for food, unless checked by anti-inflationary measures or other developments, could push food prices by mid-year up to and even above the record level of the summer of 1948." While food supplies somewhat larger than this year's are expected, the department said the increase likely will be insufficient to keep pace with greater consumer demand for food. Several factors will contribute to this increased demand, the department said. It gave this explanation: "The rise in employment, hours worked and hourly wages will increase consumer incomes. Increases in consumer incomes may be only partly offset by higher taxes and other anti-inflationary measures. Larger social security benefits will permit increased food consumption by many individuals. Probable reductions in output of consumer goods and perhaps some commodities, as well as credit controls, will make available additional consumer purchasing power for food. The department, which has said consistently that it sees no need at present for price controls on farm commodities, acknowledged that prices may rise to the point where controls "could be established" under the law on meats and food fats and oils, possibly with the exception of butter. The economic controls law passed by Congress after the outbreak of the war in Korea prohibits price ceilings on farm commodities unless prices go above the level of May 25-June 25, 1950, or parity, whichever is higher. Parity is a computed price declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they must pay for what they buy. As the price of things the farmer buys goes up so does parity. While there was still no indication that price controls on farm products or other items are in prospect anytime soon, officials were expected to urge that Congress be asked to extend the law to include other commodities. Planes, Infantry Used in Quelling Puerto Rico Riot

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO — National Guard planes and infantry launched a combined sating and ground attack today on two towns held by U. S. -hating Nationalists who Monday launched a rebellion in 10 Puerto Rican centers. Late reports raised the toll of the rebellion — worst in the island's history — to 28 dead and 22 wounded. Government forces opened fire from the sky and land on Jayuya, 50 miles southwest of San Juan, and Utuado, six miles northwest of Jayuya. Officials estimated 600 Nationalists were holding the two points. Eight fighter planes strafed the two towns before the ground attack. The land forces were armed with machineguns, bazookas and tanks. Officials said communications had been broken with both towns but a last radio message received from Utuado said a guard and police detachment was besieged in the police station there. From Atlanta is Mrs. James Longino, secretary of the Territorial League of Mercy. Visiting from Dallas is Mrs. John A. Morrison, Divisional Home League secretary. About 75 ladies are expected for the three meetings which will be held at 2, 5 and 7. The visiting ladies will be from Arillo, Big Spring, Lubbock, Plainview and Littlefield. Everyone is invited to the sportsman's meeting, County Court house, 8:00 tonight. Gene "Old Tack" Howe, guest speaker.

UN Bucks Stiffened Reds In Effort to Beat Winter

China Claimed Protecting Its Power Supply

WASHINGTON — (AP) — American officials, professing no surprise at the appearance of Chinese Communist troops in the Korean war, still do not expect any open, large-scale intervention against United Nations forces. Pentagon officers cited to a reporter today two possible major reasons for the belated appearance of Chinese soldiers in Korea: 1. Red China's determination to protect the huge Suho-Sung power dam on the Yalu River which supplies electricity for Manchurian points as distant as Harbin and the Russian naval base at Port Arthur. 2. An apparently determined policy to keep Korea from working out its own non-Communist salvation by delaying United Nations efforts to pacify, unify and rebuild the war-ravaged country. Most of the Yalu power installations, toward which American troops are driving, are on the Chinese side of the river. But several of the big dams are anchored on the Korean side. This series of power plants, originally built by the Japanese when they controlled both Manchuria and Korea, is the biggest power producer in North Korea so far as is known here. The National Geographic Society says the Suho Dam makes the largest single contribution to a total North Korean power output of about 1,000,000 kilowatts. Old U. S. Army manuals estimate the Suho at 630,000 kilowatts. Very little information has been published about North Korean power developments. Neither the Japanese nor the North Koreans provided public reports concerning them. The U. S. Tenth Corps, Monday reported that Chinese Communists were counterattacking near the Chosin reservoir supplied power for the large steel industry on the east coast of Korea. American bombers destroyed most of this industry many weeks ago, but they left the dams alone. American military officials fear that if the Reds make a stand here they may force destruction of the dams and power plants by the allies. Failing this, the Reds might do the job of destruction themselves if they are forced northward.

U.S. 24th Scores Only Good Showing

SEOUL — (AP) — Allied forces fought today against time and mounting Red resistance. A powerful United Nations army of 100,000 men stretched across the spiny North Korean peninsula in forward areas, driving to end the war before winter's harsh blasts freeze the campaign into another year. An armored column of the U.S. 24th Infantry Division scored the only impressive gain in a day marked by bitter fighting on the arching, 250-mile northern peninsula front below the Communist Manchurian border. Chinese Communists were helping the North Koreans; how many no high allied official would say. A captured Red Korean officer said two Chinese divisions were attacking in north-west Korea. In Tokyo an intelligence officer at General MacArthur's headquarters confirmed the capture of ten Chinese units had not been established definitely. He said headquarters is awaiting a positive statement from high allied field commanders. The officer acknowledged that the Korean Reds are getting help from somewhere, but added that it might be from North Korean "ghost" units held in reserve during the fall of Pongyong the Red capital. "The continued appearance of tanks in these dwindling forces indicates the enemy still is getting these supplies from across the Manchurian border," he said. On the northwest front at Unsan, Gen. Paik Sun Yup, commander of the Republic of Korea (ROK) Second Corps, said he was convinced the Reds in front of his forces are "definitely Chinese Communists." He also commanded the ROK First Division. Before World War II he trained with the Japanese army in Manchuria. He said the situation on the Unsan front was "very serious."

O'Connor Seeks Tight Controls

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator O'Connor (D-Md.) said today that preventions taken by the government "should result in tightened controls all along the line" to prevent strategic materials from reaching China and other Communist areas. O'Connor is chairman of a Senate commerce subcommittee which received testimony Monday that within the next year more than 3,800,000 pounds of copper and more than 12,000 steel boiler tubes were shipped to Red China from occupied Japan and Germany. The copper made a round the world trip from Japan to China, passing through New York en route. Some of the boiler tubes, too, were shipped to China by way of New York. O'Connor went into a private conference with Defense and Commerce Department officials after the public hearing and later announced he had received assurances of cooperation in choking off such shipments to Communist-controlled nations. "I am satisfied," he said, "that there will be no more copper making a world-round trip from Japan to China via the United States."

Houdini Ghost Is Still Silent

NEW YORK — (AP) — The ghost didn't walk last night either. It was the 24th anniversary of the Halloween death of Harry Houdini — the master magician who promised to speak from the grave if he could. Once again his friends, led by his old associate Joseph Dunninger, magician and mentalist, gathered for their annual midnight séance to wait for some word from the beyond. This time they had a professional medium, Frank Decker, to ease the path of communication with the spirit world. Decker's job was to produce Houdini or something resembling him, or to get the key to a secret, sealed code Houdini left with Dunninger before he died. The séance — as always — failed to produce either Houdini or his ghost. The friends will try again next year.

Jaycee President Boosts Local Work

"Community improvement and individual development." That's what the Junior Chamber of Commerce stresses, and that's what National President Richard W. Kemler stressed at the Jaycee meeting Monday noon in the Palm Room. The 35-year-old Iowa attorney was given a real western welcome on his first visit to the state of Texas. Kemler was introduced by State President W. C. McDaniel of Dallas, who in turn was introduced by J. L. Pate, state vice president of the Jaycees. Over 11 Pampa Jaycees were represented to greet the newly-elected state and national presidents, who are on a tour of Texas and Panhandle Jaycee clubs. Kemler, a tall and forceful man, told the many Jaycees and their guests what the Junior Chamber of Commerce meant to the bosses and citizens of a community. He stressed the actual duties of Jaycee members and what their work meant to the community. "Living instances, where the organization had built hospitals, veteran memorial, community centers, civic programs and other activities, Kemler bragged in true Texas fashion on the organization on a local level. "That's where the work begins and that's where the work is done," said Kemler. "You often see in national headquarters and those in state headquarters get the credit for things done on the community level." He commended local President Jack W. Anderson on the work the Pampa Jaycees have been doing. (See JAYCEES, Page 2)

Campaign Started Against Extension Of Lie's Tenure

NEW YORK — (AP) — Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik launched a campaign in the U. N. Assembly today against a three-year extension of the term of Secretary-General Trygve Lie. Lie left the rostrum at the debate on his future began. Malik said the 60-nation assembly had no legal right to consider extending Lie's term as asked by the United States. A Soviet veto in the Security Council has prevented Lie's reelection to a new five-year term. In a series of meetings this month the council failed to agree on another candidate. The United States insisted on Lie's retaining the $40,000 a year office, contending that to dump him now would amount to surrender to a Soviet move to punish the secretary-general for his support of the United Nations military action in Korea. Before the assembly was a resolution supported by the United States and 13 other countries to extend Lie's term for the three-year period after it expires next Feb. 2. The veto-free assembly was expected to extend Lie's term following the debate.

Spooks and Goblins Come Out Tonight

Woosh! A shadow passes over the moon and the spell is on—night of mystery—eve of all hallows. Look out! Tonight, anything can happen. It's Halloween. It all started back when saints, or "hallows" played a big part in the lives of ordinary people. The people dedicated a day to the saints and the evening preceding that day has come to be known as Halloween. Modern times have changed the original meaning and now, to greet the rising of the saints, ghosts and goblins roam the countryside, flitting from door to door and window to window. Even the night itself grows eerie. The fields, with shocks of feed standing sharply peaked, point to the moon that sheds a melting yellow glow. Pumpkins that haven't been made into jeering, fat jack-o-lanterns, catch this yellow glow and drink it into their thick rinds. Odors of smoke that can't be seen and forms that can't be touched, fill the air and are wafted away by the mischievous breeze that helps push back the straggly strands of the witches' hair. Weird forms, child-size, but vicious, slip onto doorsteps, stretch up to the doorknob, give it a brave push, and scurry out into the night. If they are brave enough to return to the doorstep, they may find a tasty treat. And if there is no treat there, the creatures have been known to get their revenge with trickery and magic. So if you hear a knock at your door tonight—and you're not expecting company—have your treat ready so that the goblins will be pacified and can go on their merry way to jostle the nerve of another victim.

We were going 'Hallowe'en'! Had some mischief up our sleeves. 'Cause it's such a pleasant c'e'en. Out a-ploddin' through the leaves.

Funny thing about th' dark is... And especially in this season... Though you hear a million noises, You can never find th' reason.

John Boettiger Suicide Victim

NEW YORK — (AP) — John Boettiger, former son-in-law of President Roosevelt, leaped to his death early today from his seventh-floor hotel suite. The 50-year-old newspaperman, who married the late President's only daughter, Anna, in 1935 after a White House romance, dodged past a male nurse and jumped through an open window at 5:20 a.m. CST. Associates said Boettiger had been mentally depressed recently, and four days ago took an overdose of sleeping pills. After his divorce in August, 1949, from the President's daughter, he was remarried. He left two notes, one of them illegible, the other addressed to his present wife. It said: "Good night, darling, we love you." Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, now living in California, charged desertion in her divorce from Boettiger. The two had worked as a team in publishing newspapers in Seattle and in Phoenix, Ariz. Custody of their only child, John Boettiger, Jr., was awarded to her. She has two other children, Eleanor "Slate" and Curtis "Buzzie" Dall by a former marriage to New York investment banker Curtis Dall. For the last year, Boettiger has been partner in a Park Avenue public relations firm, Thomas Swanson, the firm's president, said Boettiger had suffered a nervous breakdown a week ago. He had since been under the care of a male nurse.

The 'Great Virgil' Was Really Great

By HENRY GORDON

Before the eyes of almost 1,000 people last night in the Junior High School Auditorium the Great Virgil allowed himself to be hung from a regulation gallows by his "Arabian" captors only to disappear in mid-air and return in a split second dressed as one of his executioners.

The upper-bracket type of magic show was sponsored by the Pampa Rotary Club for the benefit of its underprivileged children's and Boys' Ranch funds.

Virgil kept his audience guessing throughout the night (most of them still guessing this morning) as he presented one "big" illusion after the other with perfect timing.

The two-hour show featured some of the tricks, with Virgil's own innovations, that made other masters of the art of legerdemain famous. He sawed his beautiful wife, Julie, in half; had her sacked in an oversized mail pouch-like bag, placed in a trunk, roped the trunk then exchanged places with her in less than 10 seconds, made her disappear in thin air from a large net and fired a marked bullet through her body; passed a hoop over Julie's body while she hung suspended in mid-air; and "guillotined" a small boy.

For each act, Virgil changed scenery, and costumes, either for himself or his assistants.

The one night stand packed the auditorium despite a fear by many Rotarians that the show might not be sold out because ticket sales were going slow at the start.

Monday afternoon Virgil put on a one-hour matinee for school children at reduced prices. Then, too, the auditorium was all but filled with youngsters in a matter of minutes after classes were turned loose for those wanting to see the show.

Virgil has toured most of the 48 states, Mexico, Canada and Alaska. The present war scare is keeping him out of Europe, but the mystic and his company disclosed last night they are counting on at least touring South America possibly next year, and one or two European countries after that.

Virgil got into the magician's art in 1909 when he was nine years old. His first trick was making a penny disappear with the aid of a potato he whittled into shape in lieu of a piece of wood he had seen another magician use. He played around with little parlor tricks until he was 16 when he put on his first public appearance, but it wasn't until 1925 that he really came into his own.

In 1927 Virgil started working on his big illusions, some of them learned from other craftsmen, some created by himself and others learned basically from the art with his own innovations.

Tonight the magician plays in Lubbock.

He brought with him, to Pampa, a semi-trailer loaded with eight tons of equipment that had to be loaded and unloaded in a matter of minutes. The job was done with a crew of about six Rotarians helping.

The elaborate backdrops resembled everything from a scene on the planet Mars to an Indian temple, a jungle scene, Chinese effects and others.

Guill Claims Rogers Disciple Of Keyserling in Radio Talk

Without mentioning him by name but merely using the term "my opponent," Rep. Ben Guill last night charged Democratic congressional nominee Walter Rogers with lining up with the extreme left wing of the "Raw Deal" and becoming a disciple of Leon Keyserling, chief of President Truman's economic advisers.

Guill went on the air on his regularly scheduled Monday night broadcasts over KGNC and KPND at 6:45 and 7 o'clock respectively by transcription.

Guill lashed out at "those who are trying to beat Ben Guill in this campaign," saying "they have made several misstatements of fact."

He charged the Democratic camp with openly helping the Republican party for raising individual income taxes and blocking attempts to impose an excess profits tax on industry.

"The appropriations bill passed by Congress was an administration bill. President Truman asked that no excess profits tax be placed in the bill. The Democratic administration leaders pleaded on the floor of the House that we pass the bill. It was stated that we would be presented with an excess profits tax sometime after Nov. 15."

"On the tidelands, Guill declared the only way to secure return of the Texas tidelands was through electing a Republican Congress."

"The Raw Deal administration thought up the whole idea of stealing our tidelands. President Truman vetoed the bill which would have given the tidelands to Texas. The packed Supreme Court legalized the theft of the tidelands."

JAYCEES

in connection with the promotion of a Gray County blood bank.

"This seems outstanding in itself," said Kemler, "but it is just one example of the kind of work we do. We do the impossible. Where people think we are sticking our necks out, or try to do something that is likely to fail, we make it succeed."

The national executive then directed his remarks toward the bosses of local businesses, of whom many were there.

"We are doing a wonderful work and we train your men. Therefore, be lenient with your employees who want to take a few hours or a day off to do Jaycee work. It is an important work, and these young men within our organization are going to be our leaders of tomorrow."

Kemler asked for cooperation of employer and employe to foster Jaycee work. He emphasized the importance of a thorough understanding of what the organization stood for and what it did.

Then the national president directed his remarks toward the members themselves. He told of the importance of doing good work and of the advantages and the future in Jaycee work.

"Don't spend your time, invest it," he said. "Anyone can spend time in one of several different ways but you don't get any good out of it unless you invest your time. Time is just like money. Once you spend it, you don't get it back. But you can invest in your time as you do your money."

Kemler cited the advantages of spending more time on Jaycee activities. He told of the various activities the national headquarters had planned for the year and told the members the plans would not, and could not, be successful if they were not done on a local level.

The national program for this year, according to Kemler, featured Americanism. "Our organization represents our way of life," he stated. "If we have to fight for it, we will fight for it; if we have to die for it, we will die for it."

Again, he outlined the fact that everything the Junior Chamber of Commerce tried to do, would be a failure, unless it was done primarily on the local level.

He closed his speech, which was broadcast over Radio Station KPND, with the last 10 words of the Jaycees' creed.

"We believe that faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life."

Present at the special meeting were State Vice President J. L. Pate of Amarillo, Dan Higgins, who is the local president in Amarillo, Mayor C. A. Huff of Pampa and City Manager Dick Papa of Pampa.

Janie Branson, an employe of Braly and Braly, sang two selections: "Ide of My Dreams," from "Oklahoma," and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." She was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. May Foreman Carr who played throughout the program.

Kemler was given a pair of boots and a Stetson hat by the Pampa Jaycees, and was made an honorary Texan.

The national president and his party left immediately for Lubbock, where they will inspect the organization there.

Shaw Is Reported To Be Weakening

AYOT St. Lawrence, Eng.—(AP) George Bernard Shaw was reported much weaker today. He had been making a good recovery after fracturing a thigh Sept. 9.

"He had a fairly good night but his general condition is much weaker," said a spokesman at the home of the 84-year-old playwright.

Shaw was hurt in a fall in his garden. Surgeons pinned the broken bone together and later operated on him again for a kidney complication. He developed a temperature Sunday but was reported better Monday.

Swollen River Boosts Cost of Power Plant

PINE FALLS, Man. — (AP) — A swollen river is increasing the cost of Manitoba's huge new power plant here.

skirted the British Commonwealth Brigade and raced northwest from Chongju through Sonchon to a point 33 road miles south of the border.

The Americans are driving toward Sinuju, in extreme northwest Korea and across the Yalu River boundary from Antung, Manchuria. They captured Sonchon easily at noon Tuesday and pushed six miles beyond.

Sonchon is 17 miles northwest of Chongju, a rail and highway hub captured earlier in the day by the British Commonwealth Brigade after fierce street fighting.

Close fighter plane support was given both forces.

On the Britishers' right flank, the northeast, the 24th Division's Fifth Regiment captured Kusong, 34 air miles south of the Yalu. After a two-day battle the doughboys entered the town in the wake of a bombing by six B-26s.

The regiment had been forced to dig in two miles outside the city Monday. Kusong is one of the main gateways to the border.

On the Fifth Regiment's right flank, the U. S. First Cavalry Division rushed tanks and artillery to salvage what was left of the Republic of Korea (ROK) Sixth Division south of Onjong.

Most of the ROK Sixth and the badly-mauled ROK Eighth Divisions were reported trying to regroup at Kujang, 18 miles east of Onjong and at Tokchon, 30 miles to the southeast.

A U. S. Eighth Army spokesman said one Red regiment was counter-attacking southwest from Onjong and that another had retaken Huichon. He said five Red attacks in 12 hours were thrown back northwest of Unsan, with Communist dead "stacked up."

Chief Gives Warning To Tonight's Spooks

Would-be spooks and hobgoblins have been warned to keep their tricks on a milder level this year, according to John Wilkinson, chief of police.

Wilkinson plans to have a full force of 20 officers on duty tonight.

"We don't mind good, clean fun," said Wilkinson. "Anyone likes that, but we are going to deal harshly with any offenders who willfully destroy property."

The chief assured that he and his department were not trying to be old maids, but he made it clear that the spooks could have their fun without destroying property.

percentage cuts will be on the average production of the base period rather than on current output.

What will be the exact percentage of curtailment for each metal? The official said the percentage may vary among the three metals, though it will be around 20 to 30 percent on each.

Military orders, of course, will not be counted in applying the cuts to a manufacturer.

Also uncertain is how much effect the new controls will have on the manufacture of civilian goods containing copper, nickel, and aluminum — televisions sets, refrigerators, autos, bicycles, and thousands of others.

Writer Denounces Austrian Britches

VIENNA — (AP) — The pride and joy of most Austrian males is a pair of short, thigh-length leather pants which, through daily use and years of wear, are so stiff they will stand upright if you set them on the floor.

These are "Lederhosen." For hundreds of years, they were a national peasant costume. In recent years, they have made their way to the cities as a summer outfit. Even the Austrian chancellor wears them.

Much to the shock of Austrian men, a woman editorial writer in a Vienna socialist newspaper now has bitterly denounced them as a national evil.

"Anything can be done, provided it is primitive and lacks spirit and culture. Austrians in Lederhosen supported Hitler in 1938," she said. "One day, perhaps, Austrians in Lederhosen will do their part in a people in front of the Kremlin."

A Viennese in a particularly black pair of Lederhosen replied bitterly: "She doesn't know what she is talking about."

gress broaden present rent control authority.

Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods, who administers the rent control law, returned to Washington Monday after a series of conferences with local rent advisory boards across the country. Aides reported he will ask that Congress:

1. Eliminate a requirement of the present law that local communities take positive action if they want federal controls continued beyond Dec. 31.

2. Give him authority to re-impose controls over any area or any general class of housing if he finds defense needs warrant it.

Item control is one of the items President Truman mentioned as needing action by Congress on its return to Washington.

Roy Blough, one of Mr. Truman's economic advisers, hinted that price controls may have to be imposed to whip a threat of inflation. He said in a speech that nearly all anti-inflation weapons may be needed. In World War II these weapons included price controls, wage controls and rationing.

Blough and Woodfield Thomas, economic adviser to the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, told a Department of Agriculture conference that much higher taxes are necessary to avoid disastrous inflation.

In its forecast of what may happen to food prices next year, the agriculture department said that in addition to increased demand, retail prices will bear the brunt of prospective 1951 increases in marketing charges—taxes, wages and handling costs.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

See If You Can Spot the Right Play

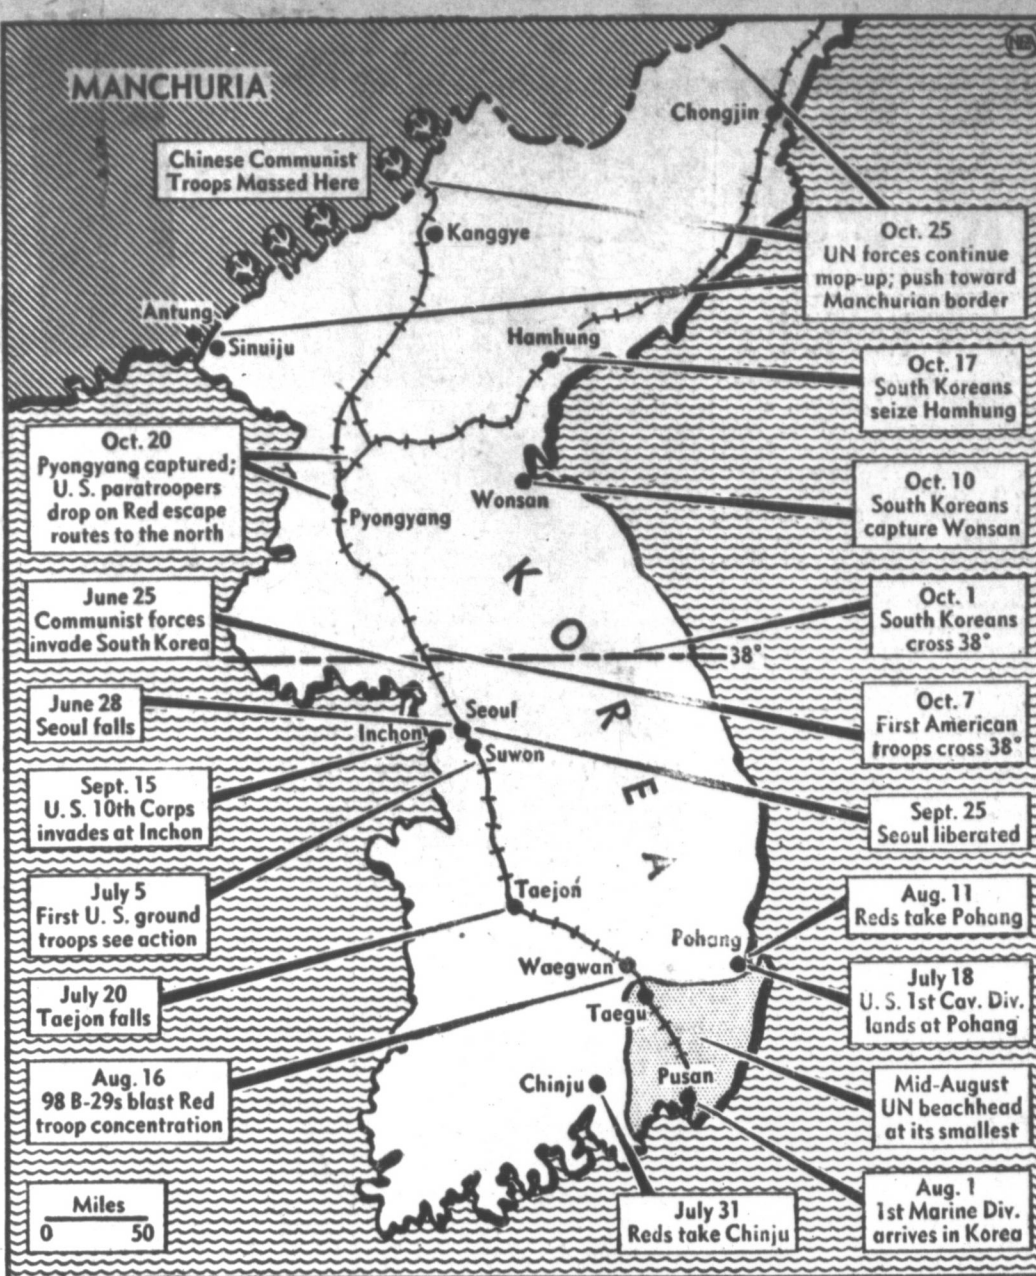

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service
"Please settle a question of percentages," requests a Brooklyn reader. "When this hand was played, South won the opening lead with the king of hearts. He drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and tried the club finesse."
"This lost to West's queen, and another heart knocked out dummy's ace. When East took the ace of clubs, he cashed a heart trick. Then the defenders could sit back and wait for a diamond trick."
"After the contract had been set, everybody joined in a discussion of how it should have been played. North said that declarer should have let out three rounds of diamonds after drawing trumps. Then, if diamonds broke 3-3 (as they did, of course) South could get rid of his losing heart of dummy's last diamond."
"South said that a diamond break of this kind is a good player's only 36 percent of the time. The finesse in clubs, he said, gave him a 50 per cent chance."
"Is this true, and was he therefore following percentage in trying for the club finesse?"
"South's statements about the percentages was absolutely correct, but his conclusions were wrong. The club finesse was more likely to succeed than the diamond break, but it was nevertheless better to try for the diamonds."
"The reason is that the contract is set automatically if South plays after the clubs and loses to the queen. However, if South tries out the diamonds and finds that they do not break he can still fall back on the clubs."
"For example, suppose South wins the first trick with the king of hearts, draws three rounds of trumps, and then gives up a diamond trick at once. Somebody returns a heart (best defense), knocking out dummy's ace. Declarer then crashes dummy's top diamonds to see if the suit breaks. If diamonds break the last diamond is cashed, and South discards his losing heart. The rest is then easy, even if two clubs are lost.

If the diamonds do not break, the contract is far from set. Declarer must lead a club from dummy.

my. If East follows with a low club, South must then decide whether to play the king or the jack. He doesn't need two club tricks; he simply has to win the first or the second trick in the suit. If South is a good player, he should have somewhat better than a 50 per cent chance to make the correct play in this situation.
In short, there is no need for declarer or the clubs as his best chance for the contract. His best plan is to try both suits, and this can be done only by trying the diamonds first.

Story Behind Guided Missiles Buried Deep in Ancient Times

By JAMES MARLO
WASHINGTON (AP) — Guided missiles are red hot stuff with military men, and they're always getting into the news, but the idea of guided missiles is ancient history.
Last week General George Marshall, secretary of defense, appointed K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corp., to be director of the government's guided missiles program.
This made front pages. Missiles have been in the news on and off since World War II days when the Germans cut loose with them at England. When the Nazis were defeated, American scientists were able to learn the results of German experiments in jet and rocket developments.
And the U. S. has been working on guided missiles ever since. Now apparently the program is making pretty good progress — maybe ready for mass production — because Keller is a mass production expert.
The U. S. Air Force people have done some digging into the history of missiles and came up with a study which traces the idea — or the daddy of the idea — back quite a ways in history.
What follows is all taken from this Air Force study:
The daddy of the guided missile idea was rocketry. There's a legend dating back to 360 B.C. about a wooden pigeon which was sent flying by a stream of compressed air.
In 53 B. C. a Greek philosopher invented a jet engine, which included a boiler, filled with water, over a fire, using the resulting steam to whirl a metal ball around.
But it wasn't until 1232 A.D. that practical use of the jet principle was made. The Chinese used it in war with the Tatars. The weapon used by Chinese, according to the Air Force report, was:
"An arrow with a rocket propelling device tied to it, a true rocket in which the propelling charge sent the rocket on its way." These rockets were called "arrows of flying fire."
By the beginning of the 15th century rockets were widely known in Europe and were used on 15th century battlefields. By the latter part of the 18th century India had developed rockets well enough to have a rocket corps with 1,200 men who used it successfully against the British.

In 1801 an Englishman developed a successful rocket weapon which the British used to bombard the French coast when Napoleon was preparing for the invasion of Britain.
The British progressed so much in the development of their rocket weapons that they were able to hurl 25,000 of them against Copenhagen alone, practically destroying the city by fire.
When this country went to war with Britain in 1812 the British brought up rockets against the American defenders at Washington, turning the American flank, and were able to march into the capital.
And the Air Force report adds this:
"Though their rockets were not effective enough to win the war of 1812 for the British, they did make a spectacular display. Their brilliance so impressed Francis Scott Key, that he wrote his great poem:
"And the rockets' red glare,
"The bombs bursting in air
"Gave proof through the night
"That our flag was still there."
And so on and on, with more developments. The torpedo, developed in the Civil War is listed as the first guided missile. Americans made big strides in rocket development, particularly Dr. Robert H. Goddard of Clark University. He died in 1945. He developed the basic idea of the bazooka.
He was the first to develop a rocket motor using liquid fuels and used it successfully in 1926, nearly 18 years before the Germans came up with their V-2 in World War II.
There's not room here to list various developments. But German V-1 and V-2 rockets, captured by the allies when they invaded the continent in World War II, were reassembled and used in experiments.

Henry Comes to Defense of Underpraised Infantryman

By HENRY McLEMORE
When you are mad you are supposed to count ten before you say anything.
Well, I've just counted to ten million by ones and I am angrier than when I began.
That leaves me nothing to do but to keep on counting or get off my chest what's burning me up.
The infantryman has been the short end boy if there ever was one.
Try to name me one thing that he has ever had that a member of another branch of the service didn't have just a little bit better.
Let's start with things that don't matter and work up to things that do.
His uniform has always been the worst cut. His battle rations have always been the worst food. His medals have always been harder to come by. His prestige has always been the lowest, in order, I suppose, to keep company with his pay.
So help me, the Seabees came out of World War II with a better reputation than the infantry. Not knowing the Seabees, mind you, but name me a town the Seabees took, or a beachhead the Seabees held.
Will you explain to me why the infantryman is the lowest paid member of the armed services? Will you be so kind as to tell me why the men in the airplane, and the chap in the submarine, gets substantially more than the boys who carry rifles?
I know the official explanation. They get extra dough because of the hazards of their job. Certainly their jobs are hazardous. Hazards as hell, if you want to know. Earn every cent they are paid. But why is a foxhole so safe? Why is crossing a line of departure, and walking straight in until the enemy is met, considered a non-hazardous job? What is the bayonet put on a rifle for? For fingernail cleaning while the Air Corps and the submariners eliminate the foe by air and by sea? Why do they insist on the infantryman carrying hand grenades, which can't be thrown very far? Don't tell me that they are issued so that he can celebrate the 4th

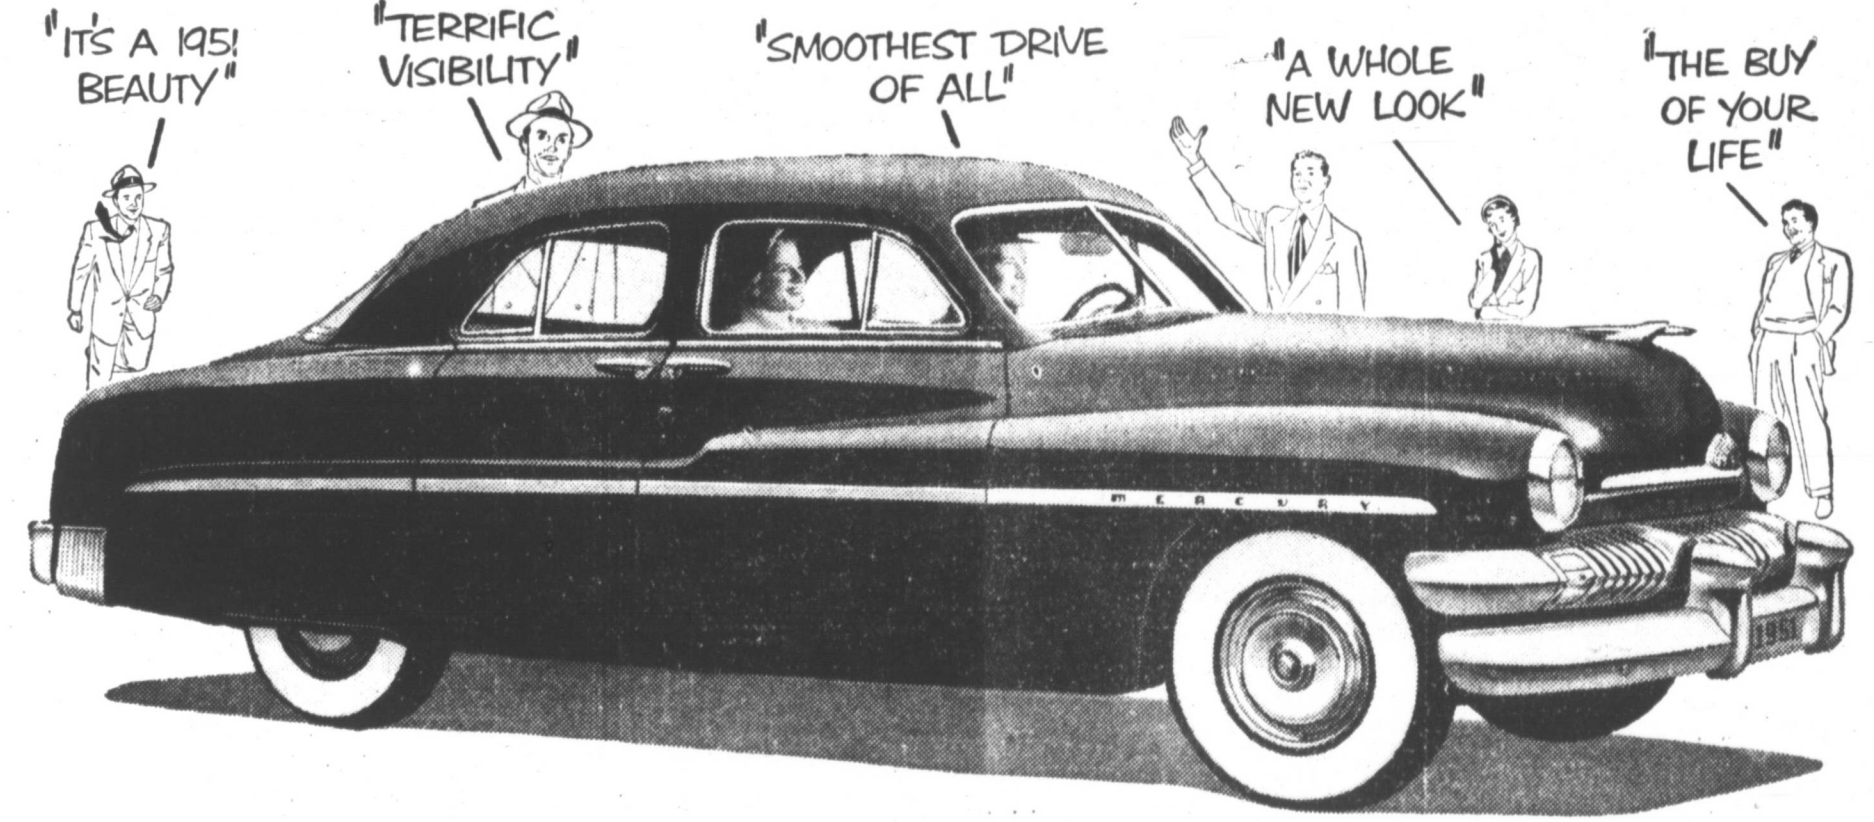

Latvians Finish 15-Month Voyage, Held by Officers

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Immigration officials are pondering what to do with two Latvians who sailed here in a 15-month voyage from Malmö, Sweden, in a 25-foot sloop.
Janis Paltin, a bookkeeper, and Ernest Karulis, an engineer, both 41, made the perilous trip via England, Spain, Canary and Barbados Islands, Panama Canal and up the coast to this harbor. They arrived with papers in order, but immigration officials said they will be interned until and if they are admitted by act of Congress.
Congress had previously admitted more than a score of displaced Latvians.
with nothing more for targets than seagulls?
"Uh-huh!"
The foot soldier, be he infantry or marine.
And what's he getting?
Well, he's getting one thing. Those who come back can stare down any man wearing any sort of uniform, no matter the stuff on the shoulder or in the wallet.
"Maybe that's enough."

Cotton Bowl Ticket Rush Is Expected

DALLAS — (AP) — The big rush for tickets to the Jan. 1 Cotton Bowl game starts tomorrow with officials forecasting the greatest demand in the 15 years of the Dallas gridiron classic.

Despite the fact that no one knows what teams will play in it, some 30,000 applications by mail asking for 120,000 tickets are expected to jam into the Cotton Bowl office within the next four days.

This will be about 95,000 more than will be available since only 25,000 are sold to the public. Bond holders get 20,000 and the competing teams some 30,000.

Applications will be accepted only by mail and only for the Nov. 14 period. Then a drawing will be held to establish those who are to get the privilege of buying tickets.

While the participating teams can not be named until the Southwest Conference champion is determined, the reason for the big demand is because the fans think either Southern Methodist or Texas will be the host in the Cotton Bowl.

"Southern Methodist and Texas are causing the great ticket demand because SMU, of course, is a local team and Texas has one of the largest alumni groups of any college," Howard Grubbs, secretary of the Cotton Bowl, points out.

When the last gun shoots at Austin speculation will break out over which team SMU or Texas is to meet in the Cotton Bowl. General sentiment favors Oklahoma which for two years has played in the Sugar Bowl.

A Southern Methodist victory, however, is believed to be the only way Oklahoma could be obtained. Oklahoma already has played Texas in the Cotton Bowl this season and won 14-13.

However, it will be Nov. 15 before any Southwest Conference team is even asked who it would like to play in the Cotton Bowl. On that date, teams still in the championship running will present preferential lists to the Cotton Bowl so that contacts may then be made.

Strangely Mixed Baseball Diet Is on Menu Today

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The future of major league baseball broadcasts, the ambitions of the Pacific Coast League and the status of jobless Branch Rickey formed a strangely mixed baseball diet here today.

Officially it was to be a meeting of the major-league executive committee to consider what to do about major league broadcasts infringing on minor league territory.

Tomorrow Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler is to meet with representatives of the three Class AAA Leagues — the Pacific Coast, the International and the American Association — for a discussion of the renewed request by the Pacific Coast League to be excluded from baseball's draft.

That's where Rickey entered into the picture.

Rickey, left without any official baseball status after severing his connections with the Brooklyn Dodgers, said in St. Louis yesterday that he would be in here tomorrow to see some major league club owners.

No one seemed to know how many of the major leaguers would be around tomorrow if the major-minor group gets its business completed today. There was an element of mystery to the Mahatma's visit.

Sport Shots

By HAROLD V. AP Sports V.

DALLAS — (AP) — Right in the middle of the football season basketball moves in. The round-ballers, however, won't get much attention for another month. It is appropriate, though, to discuss what the game has in store for us this winter.

There are a half-dozen changes in the rules but the most noticeable—and the only one the fans will see unless their attention is called to the others—is that which commands the players to let it be known when they foul, or at least when they have fouls called on them.

Last season it was suggested that the players raise their hands when fouls were called so the fans and the scorer would know. The way things were it took an official sitting in the stands to argue who had done something against the rules and he couldn't catch all of them. The fans never knew unless the players perpetrated the peccadillo out in the middle of the court away from the mass of players.

The suggestion didn't work very well since there was no penalty for noncompliance. The players weren't about to add to their humiliation by letting the people know they were the ones throwing away points for their teams. Few ever raised their hands.

This year it's a must—it's in the rules. Failure to indicate they are the miscreants will call for a technical foul.

What happens if a player thinks he has committed the foul and raises his hand along with the one who did hasn't been designated.

Of most importance to the game is elimination of the two-minute rule which coaches claimed last season turned the contest into a 38-minute affair. The leading team kept the ball the last two minutes unless it lost it by pure accident.

The rule then was that the team fouled in the last two minutes got to shoot at the basket and also got to keep the ball. The idea was to keep the game on rough play, it being argued that the team that was behind could get the ball only through fouling the opposition and snaring it after the free throw.

The season it's a 40-minute game and the only restrictions in the last two minutes will be that if a player fouls another and in the judgement of the officials did it with "intent to profit" it will be an intentional foul and call for two free shots. However, the team that is fouled still can take one shot and then take the ball out of bounds.

This season it will be a time out on all tie balls. The idea is that too much time is being wasted and the officials have to pick out the players who did the struggling for the jump.

Also, this season substitutions may be made only when the clock is stopped and not after a goal has been made or the ball is out of bounds unless in the latter instance, the ball is thrown out of the court and the official has to go get it, in which event the clock will be stopped and subs may be made.

However, this won't cut down on substitutions to any great extent. The clock now is stopped on held balls, after personal fouls and each team has five time outs per half without penalty. Thus 70 or 80 substitutions can be made per game.

Gray Tom Cat Fails To Come Back Home

HAMMOND, Wis. — (AP) — Paul Ford, a resident of bob-cat conscious Hammond, posted an armed sentry at his woodpile the other day when he glimpsed a gray marauder skulking into it. Then he went out and recruited a posse of 15 men armed with all manner of ordnance and hustled back to the woodpile.

A hose was run into the pile and attached to an auto's exhaust. When the ferocious feline finally gave up and made a break for freedom, the posse moved it down.

That's really the end of the story, except maybe that a certain Hammond farmer may still be wondering why his gray tom cat hasn't come home.

WACO — (AP) — William (Dub) King, 33, who resigned Saturday as sports publicity director at Texas A&M College, has accepted a job as sports publicity director at Baylor University.

He will fill the position left vacant when Frank Creasy went into the Marines two weeks ago. King, a former Port Worth Star Telegram sports writer, said there was a lack of cooperation between Henderson Shuffler, head of the A&M information department, and King's office. The resignation is effective Nov. 3.

Baylor Athletic Director George Bauer said the sports publicity and general information jobs at Baylor were not connected and that King would be responsible only to the athletic director and the school president.

Exclusive rapid road service for GMC owners—call Western Union Operator 25 for name of nearest GMC approved service

SURE SIGN of a SMART TRUCKER!

When you see this gleaming GMC emblem on a rugged new truck, you know its owner is sitting pretty for years to come. For GMC's have a time-established reputation for long service with low maintenance cost—and with minimum down time for repairs.

That's because every GMC is a real truck—truck-built by the world's largest exclusive manufacturers of commercial vehicles. Every unit of every GMC, from grille to tail gate, is engineered for trucking service!

To find quick proof of this, just compare a GMC with any other truck before you buy. Compare engine, frame, transmission; compare cab, axles, and springs—see how much extra value you get.

Or count how many new GMC's you see on the road—far more today than ever before. Then see your GMC dealer and let him give you the inside story that explains why so many cost-wise operators are switching to GMC's because experience proves them best in the long haul!
