BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy fighting erupted today in mountains east of Beirut as the fourth contingent of PLO fighters prepared to leave the Israeli-occupied capital by sea and U.S. Marines poised to come ashore to join a peacekeeping force.

New battles were reported in Lebanon's central mountains close to the Beirut-Damascus highway, which Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas are scheduled to take on Wednesday on their evacuation to neighboring Syria.

The Israeli military command reported in a terse statement that "heavy fighting" broke out north and east of Beirut between Syrian troops and Israeli-backed Christian militiamen. But Christian radio broadcasts in Beirut said Israeli forces were locked in heavy artillery duels with Syrian and Palestinian forces in three villages along a strip of the highway about 12 miles east of Beirut.

Lebanon's state radio said the flare-up prompted U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib, who arranged the PLO pullout from Lebanon after a 10-week Israeli siege, to confer with Lebanon's Christian President Elias Sarkis and Moslem Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan on ways of checking the hostilities.

Earlier, the fourth contingent of Palestinian guerrillas rode in trucks to the Beirut port today to sail for exile in North Yemen, leaving about 7,000 Palestinians and 1,500 Syrians still to be withdrawn from Lebanon.

A U.S. Marine lieutenant colonel, a major and captain reconnoitered the port and discussed the positions their men will take up with French Foreign Legion officers who took over the facility from Israeli forces and supervised the major part of the sea evacuation.

The 1,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas, made up mostly of guerrillas from the mainstream faction of Fatah, were bound for North Yemen, on the Arabian peninsula at the southern end of the Red Sea. More than 2,100 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas have left the city since Sunday for Tunisia, Iraq, Jordan and South Yemen.

The American colonel, who was in a great hurry, told Associated Press correspondent Jeffrey Ulbrich the U.S. Marines were landing at the port on Wednesday, but had no time to elaborate.

A French officer said that once the Americans had landed, the legionnaires would pull out of the port and take up new positions at Beirut's national museum crossing intersection at the Green Line that divides the capital into Christian and Moslem sectors.

In the interview with the Milan, Italy, newspaper, Corriere della Sera, PLO chief Yasser Arafat charged that Europe and the United States supported the Israeli siege of Beirut.

He said the Palestinian fighters only agreed to leave "to avoid new fatalities among civilians, women and children, in Beirut. I am a human being, I am not a terrorist."

The group that left Monday, like those on the previous days, was seen off by crowds in west Beirut cheering and firing guns and pistols into the air. The convoy to the port was delayed about an hour when a car bomb exploded a mile away and PLO security officers checked the route. No one was hurt in that blast.

The departure was delayed another hour while some guerrillas surrendered weapons not covered by the U.S.-negotiated agreement, which allows each guerrilla one pistol, rifle or machine gun.

The draft of 1,095 guerrillas that sailed Sunday aboard the Cypriot ferry Sol Phryne for Tunisia took along 21 jeeps in violation of the agreement, causing the Israelis to hold up its departure for six hours. The ship was allowed to sail after the United States gave Israel its assurances that the vehicles would be taken off en route. The Sol Phryne put into Limassol, Cyprus, Monday for the unloading, then resumed the voyage.

School time again

Take this sign seriously. School begins again in Pampa soon, and street department employees are busy improving the visibility of school crossings. Pat Adams is shown here at the crossing on the corner of Barnes and East Frederic. Last year in Texas, about 16 percent of traffic fatalities were pedestrian deaths, and many of these were schoolchildren. (Staff Photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

Murder suspect flees Pampa

The man suspected of the August 14 barroom murder of Jose Carlos Soto may have fled to Mexico, police said today.

A warrant for the arrest of a 23-year-old Mexican-American was issued last Wednesday.

Police have given up on finding him in the Pampa area, according to Police Chief J.J. Ryzman.

"We keep hearing rumors that he crossed the border. It's very possible that he crossed into Juarez," Ryzman said.

The El Paso police department is cooperating with Pampa investigators in the search for the man.

El Paso is just across the border from Juarez, and Ryzman said police there have "better liaison" with Mexico police.

The suspected killer was originally from Mexico and has since gained United States citizenship.

Police believe he was originally from Juarez, and Ryzman said he may have fled there to be "on his own turf."

Ryzman has not released the name of the suspect. "I don't know if he really knows we're looking for him yet," he said.

Police also believe he may have borrowed a car from a relative in the area to make his escape.

"We think he may be accompanied by somebody else," Ryzman said. He said the person who may be aiding the escape is a friend from the city of Pampa.

Jose Soto was shot to death with a .22 caliber gun at the Tex 'S Rose lounge on Brown Street at about 11 p.m. on Saturday, August 14.

The murderer fired six shots through the dark doorway at the rear of the bar, hitting Soto with five of those shots, according to police.

Because the killer was outside in the dark, police said, no witnesses at the scene could identify him.

Working from physical evidence at the scene and from statements given by sources, Detectives Ken Neal and Ron Howell gathered enough information for a warrant last week.

The two officers are still working on the case, Ryzman said.

Groom man dies from injuries received in oxcart, car accident

GROOM — One Groom man is dead and his wife in serious condition today after a 9 p.m. Monday accident in which a car struck an old-fashioned double oxcart.

Roman Homen, 52, of Groom died at about 1:30 a.m. this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo from severe head and chest injuries after the late-evening wreck.

His wife, Irma, 53, is listed in serious condition today at Northwest with a broken arm, internal injuries and lacerations, according to Department of Public Safety trooper Don King.

The two were riding back to Groom in the rear trailer of an oxcart owned by Art Britten of Groom when a northbound car struck the cart at "somewhere in the neighborhood of 35 to 40 mph," King said.

The accident occurred at the east end of the Groom city limits, at about 9:05 p.m. on Farm Road 2300.

William Spaulding, 20, also of Groom, who was riding in the front of the cart, reportedly suffered a broken collarbone in the accident.

Matt Britten, 27, of Groom, who was driving the cart, and the driver of the car, David Duke, 19, of Groom, were not injured in the wreck.

The impact threw Mrs. Homen into the first cart, and her husband was thrown clear of the carts.

Victims were transported to the Amarillo Emergency Receiving Center at Northwest after the wreck.

King said Britten may have driven the cart further than he intended last night, and did not intend to be driving it after dark.

He said there were no hills or curves to hide the cart, and that the car was traveling within the speed limit, but it was "good and dark" at the time, and the darkness was a contributing factor in the accident.

The cart, King said, is a flat-bed, "old-timey" cart in two sections, pulled by two oxen.

The antique oxcart is owned by Art Britten, owner of the Lucky 13 Restaurant in Groom, who uses it in parades and occasional pleasure rides "every few days," King said.

At the time of the accident, Britten and friend were taking one of these evening rides and was headed for home after "just riding around" last night, King said.

Services for Homen are pending with Schooler-Gorden Funeral Directors of Amarillo.

Reagan was the star attraction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, decked out in Western garb, rode into a Hollywood movie studio to help a fellow Republican's campaign, but he wound up touting his own record as well.

Reagan was the star attraction at a $1,000-a-plate fund-raiser for senatorial candidate Pete Wilson.

Burying some recent political differences with Wilson, Reagan appeared with the candidate and urged 1,000 Republican loyalists to stand behind the San Diego mayor in his battle with California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., for the Senate seat now held by S.I. Hayakawa.

Reagan's comments about Wilson were limited to praising him as mayor of "one of the best-run communities in the United States," and recalling his good service as a legislator.

"You send Pete Wilson to Washington," Reagan declared. "If you can't send him, don't send anybody!"

The crowd, which included movie stars from Reagan's era, roared their approval.

For the balance of his speech, Reagan defended his economic recovery program and insisted it is succeeding, despite his critics' belief otherwise. He cited a decrease in interest rates from 21 percent at the start of his administration to the current 13.5 percent.

"Some failure!" Reagan declared.

The president spoke of increased personal income, new housing starts and a rise in savings by Americans.

And he won loud applause with remarks about his "new federalism" program which he said would "give back to the states the powers that were unjustly seized by the federal government."

Reagan spoke on a sound stage at Twentieth Century Fox Studios that was converted to a banquet hall decorated with a backdrop of Western mountains.

Guests, wearing jeans, prairie skirts and other cowboy outfits were crammed elbow-to-elbow at dinner tables. Reagan spoke before the banquet began.

Wilson, who had backed Gerald Ford's presidential candidacy in 1980, reportedly miffed Reagan by refusing to support his $98.3 billion tax increase bill. But Reagan went through with the appearance, which had been promised before the dispute over the tax bill arose.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — For the second time in 24 hours, shotgun blasts have struck the vacant home of boxer Tony Ayala Jr.

The undefeated junior middleweight fighter, scheduled to begin treatment of emotional and drinking problems in California Wednesday, was not home early Monday nor shortly before midnight Monday when neighbors reported buckshot being fired at his house.

The boxer's father and trainer, Tony Ayala Sr., angrily blamed the news media for the shots being fired at his son's house.

"Thanks to you people, this is what has happened," the older Ayala told reporters outside the house.

"Everything has gotten completely blown out of proportion and I have you to thank for it. You people in the news

Ma Bell goofs again

The new telephone books being delivered in Pampa this week incorrectly list the emergency number for calling an ambulance here, according to a spokesman for Pampa Medical Services.

The emergency number listed inside the cover of the new Pampa phone directory is the business office number of PMS, not the emergency number to dial for an ambulance.

The emergency, toll-free number to dial for an ambulance in Pampa or Gray County is 1-800-692-1331.

The number listed inside the new phone book's cover is 665-0039, the PMS business office number.

The PMS spokesman said the business office phone is not always manned, and he cautioned area residents to dial the toll-free emergency number when in need of an ambulance.

Ambulances here are dispatched through Amarillo by calling the toll-free number to the Regional Communications Center of Panhandle Emergency Medical Services.

The Amarillo "comp center" relays ambulance calls here over two-way radio, or over a direct line to PMS in Pampa.

The PMS spokesman said the local ambulance company plans to use a local phone exchange for emergency ambulance calls in the near future.

Repair work to start on levee

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Officials want to "start pumping right away" after they close a 400-foot gap in a levee that sent a wall of water crashing down on a lush 6,100-acre farm island.

No one was injured in the levee break early Monday morning, although damage was put at $3.25 million to crops alone.

Also swamped were homes, a labor camp, trucks, cars and a utility gas storage facility.

Shotgun blasts hit vacant Ayala house media have been judging Tony before he's had a trial."

Tony Ayala Jr., 19, is scheduled for a Sept. 16 hearing to determine whether his 10 years probation should be revoked because of his Aug. 15 arrest on a burglary charge.

The fighter was charged with burglary after police arrested him late at night inside a house two blocks from the home where he recently moved.

Alan Brown, Ayala's attorney, maintains that the boxer was intoxicated and wandered into the wrong house.

After his arrest, the news media reported that Ayala had received 19 traffic tickets over the past 18 months and that most of the tickets were dismissed by city judges, although several of the alleged violations occurred while his driver license was suspended.

Neighbors of Ayala reported early today that they were awakened by four shotgun blasts, then saw a white and maroon car speed away. Investigating officer T. Mandujano said he was only a few blocks away when the shooting happened, but found no one and did not see an automobile.

Mandujano said he found four spent 12-gauge shotgun shells near the curb and on the grass in front of Ayala's house.

Inflation cut nearly in half during July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Renewed restraint in gasoline price hikes held July's consumer price increase to 7.3 percent, calculated annually, the government said today. The pace of inflation was nearly cut in half from the double-digit rates of the two preceding months.

July's moderate gain was also aided by a slowing of housing cost increases and by food prices holding dead even.

July's increase meant that, for the first seven months of the year, consumer prices have risen at an annual rate of 5.4 percent, considerably under the 8.9 percent posted for all of last year and the 12.4 percent of 1980.

For all of 1982, economists are predicting inflation of around 6 percent.

Much of the moderation, at least in July, was due to reverses in the gasoline price increases registered early in the summer.

Gasoline prices last month were up only 2 percent, less than half the 5.4 percent gain of June.

The early-summer increases had followed a general tightening in the worldwide oil surplus. But stocks have since risen anew.

Analysts say the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has not been entirely successful in restricting members' oil production. Reflecting that, major refiners earlier reported wholesale price drops in the last half of July and the first part of August.

Indeed, the department said today, "Despite an 8.4 percent rise in the past three months, gasoline prices were still 7.7 percent below the peak level of March 1981."

In the next year, energy prices overall tumbled nearly 15 percent.

As for housing costs, the department said the modest 0.5 percent overall gain — half of June's 1 percent increase — was largely the result of a 0.4 percent decline in mortgage interest rates, the third monthly drop in a row.

The continuing falls in interest rates helped wipe out a 0.7 percent rise in the cost of homes themselves.

Food prices, meanwhile, reversed June's 0.6 percent gain and held dead even. Prices were off for food purchased in grocery stores, but rose for meals eaten out and for alcoholic beverages.

The consumer price index, overall, rose a seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent in July, well under the 1 percent increases of May and June.

Consumer prices rose a tiny 0.2 percent in April after falling 0.3 percent in March, the department said.

For the 12 months ending in July, inflation rose 6.5 percent, today's report said.

If prices rose for 12 straight months at July's pace, the yearly jump would be 7.3 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public.

In other economic developments Monday:

—Monday was another memorable day on Wall Street, with the Dow Jones industrial average shooting up 21.88 points to an eight-month high of $91.17. Volume was 110.31 million shares, the second-highest ever.

—In international trading, the price of gold hit $400.20 an ounce on the New York Commodity Exchange, its first level above $400 this year since it closed at $402.40 an ounce in January. Traders attributed the surge, up $12.70 an ounce from Friday.

Federal officials to get blasting cap information

No accidents involving blasting caps found at the city dump have been reported yet, according to Pampa police.

Several of the dangerous explosives were found at the dump Saturday, and police called the Welex company for technical assistance in identifying and destroying the caps.

Welex did not dump the explosives there, according to police.

The Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said investigators have "a pretty good idea" who dumped the caps.

"It looked like it was possibly a mistake," Ryzman said, "I don't believe it was anything deliberate."

The blasting caps are ordinarily used for perforating oil and gas well pipes to let the petroleum in.

They can be set off by a certain radio wave frequencies, low-power electric current — even from a nine-volt battery — or a strong impact, such as a black-powder explosion.

City residents found several of the caps while looking through the dump Saturday, and notified police. Police then called Welex for assistance.

The explosives were not packaged, and police were concerned that children or uninformed adults might have picked them up and experimented with them.

Four officers, assisted by Welex employees, conducted a search of the dump Sunday morning and came up with "three or four more items," Ryzman said, for a total of "less than a dozen."

Ryzman said companies which use such explosives "have to account for all of them" under federal law, and the case will be turned over to federal law enforcement officials, probably the Secret Service.

He said penalty for the dumping will probably be "more severe than the city would have" and it may result in the company having its license revoked.

Young candidate cites experience

"Garry Mauro is not your typical 33 year old. His age belies his breadth of experience, both in the private sector and in public affairs."

"Garry Mauro is not your typical 34 year old. His age..."

The Democratic nominee for Texas Land Commissioner has updated his campaign literature since his last birthday.

According to either report, Mauro is an unusually young candidate for a statewide office; but then, John Kennedy was 43 when he slept in the master bedroom at the White House.

Mauro's opponent, Republican Woody Glasscock of Hondo, took issue with the youthful candidate's age when Glasscock made an earlier campaign stop in Pampa.

"The only experience he's had since he graduated from college is working in campaigns for the election of liberal Democrats," Glasscock said during his previous campaign stop here.

"Woody's problem is he is not qualified. He's a real nice guy. As a matter of fact, the last time I ran into Woody, we were both working for Bob Krueger's campaign. He was Krueger's Hondo coordinator," Mauro said of his Republican opponent.

As for Glasscock's slam about a lack of experience and youth, Mauro points out he was deputy comptroller for Bob Bullock, working in the Texas Comptroller's office for about two years.

Mauro said while working for Bullock, he managed a staff of 1,500 state employees and an annual budget of $25 million.

Mauro also points to his experience in private law practice, following receipt of his law degree from the University of Texas in 1973. The candidate received his bachelor's degree from Texas A & M.

Either way it's sliced, Mauro is a young 'un when it comes to statewide politics, according to the ages of most candidates campaigning across the state.

"Texas is looking for younger politicians," Mauro says.

And though he has only been around 34 years, Mauro can point to his service as the party's state boss. The candidate was the Texas Democratic Chairman for the 1979-80 term.

Mauro can also claim his victory over a seasoned, and long-time state senator, Pete Snelson, in the Democratic Primary and resulting runoff election.

Mauro whipped Snelson and two others in the May Primary; then the candidate edged Snelson in a close June runoff, with 53 percent of the vote.

"He is a hard-working public servant," Mauro says of Snelson. Mauro credits his defeat of Snelson to an early start and hard campaigning.

Snelson had criticized Mauro during the Democratic campaign for Mauro's proposal to extend a veteran's state loan program to include the purchase of homes.

In addition to managing Texas's 22.5 million acres of public land, the land commissioner serves as board chairman of the veteran's land program.

Presently, state bonds finance loans to veterans for land purchases only, up to 10-acre tracts, with a maximum loan of $20,000, according to Mauro.

Mauro wants to extend the state loan benefit to include house buying. He believes veterans should be able to draw the $20,000 loans as down-payments toward a house purchase.

The candidate says extending the program into house buying "won't cost the taxpayers one cent."

He said the existing loan program has "made money," through good repayment rates and through high sale prices from foreclosed properties.

Mauro said under his proposed program the state will sell bonds and "The people of Texas will loan their credit."

The Democrat explained his reasons for favoring expansion of the veteran's state loan program.

"I'm 34 — a lot of my friends were Vietnam veterans, and I don't think they got a fair shake. I don't think we're doing a favor, but I think we should repay one. A lot of veterans can't afford housing," Mauro said.

Money from leases of state land is put into the state's permanent school and university funds. About 1 and a half billion dollars now rest in the fund, and interest from the accounts supports public education in the state.

Some political observers say the office of land commissioner, which manages the state lands and leasing, is sometimes sought by Texas politicians to gain statewide recognition and to test the waters for other statewide offices.

While Mauro says doing a good job as land commissioner is his only immediate plan, he concedes an attempt at a higher state or national office may be in his future.

"Any politician who tells you they are not willing to run for a higher office is not telling the truth. Everybody who runs for office wants to be president, if it's not too much trouble," he said.

Mauro is a native Texan who now lives in Bryan and who attended high school in Waco.

GARRY MAURO

Gemayel wants foreign forces out

BIKFAYA, Lebanon (AP) — Standing under one of the cedar trees that is a symbol of Lebanon, President-elect Bashir Gemayel pledged to rid his war-torn country of all foreign armed forces.

"I am very optimistic that we will be able to obtain the withdrawal of all armed forces in Lebanon in order to have the full sovereignty of our own national soil," the 34-year-old Christian militia commander told reporters Monday after hundreds of residents of his ancestral village 15 miles northeast of Beirut congratulated him on his election by Parliament.

"We have an Israeli foreign army, a Syrian foreign army and the Palestinians who are now evacuating. We hope that with the help of our friends from the European Community and our Arab friends to be able to get out of this nightmare we have lived in for the past eight years."

"A lot of foreigners tried to interfere in our affairs by having armies on our national soil, thinking they could influence our politics, but they were mistaken. We hope we will have very normal and cordial relations with all our neighbors to get out of this conflict."

Members of Gemayel's rightist Phalangist Party who are close to him said he is confident he will be able to convince the Israelis to leave, but he indicated this may not be possible in the very near future.

The Phalangists and the Lebanese Forces, the Christian militia Gemayel commands, are giving tactical support to the Israeli forces and counting on them to get the Syrians out of the country. This led Moslem leaders to protest the election being held while Israeli troops were still on Lebanese soil.

The start of the election Monday was delayed two hours by a Moslem boycott which prevented the necessary quorum of 62 of the 92 Parliament members. But lobbying by Gemayel's older brother Amin rounded up enough missing members, and Bashir, the only announced candidate, was elected by 57 votes on the second ballot. The other five ballots were blank.

Political analysts said his first big test will be his appointment of a premier. Under the unwritten 1943 pact that apportions power between the Christian and Moslem communities, the president is always a Maronite Christian, the premier a Sunni Moslem and the speaker of Parliament a Shiite Moslem.

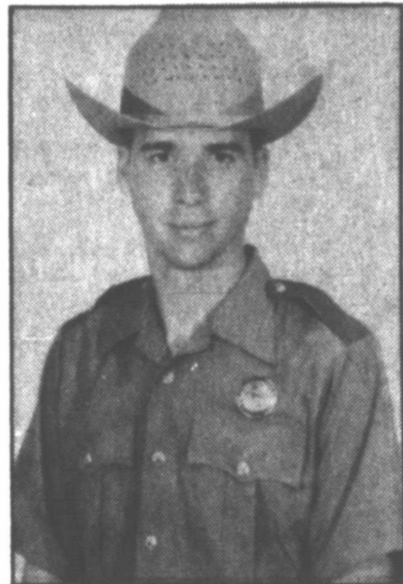

In his foreign policy, Gemayel is expected to pursue a strongly pro-American line and to seek close relations with Israel.

MARK ALLEN LOCKRIDGE

New trooper assigned here

Mark Allen Lockridge, 21, of Denison, has been assigned as Pampa's newest Department of Public Safety trooper.

Lockridge was commissioned as a state law enforcement officer by Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director, in a graduation ceremony at DPS Headquarters in Austin.

Graduation followed an 18-week training program at the DPS Academy, which included instruction in traffic law enforcement, accident investigation, the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure, firearms training, first aid, narcotics identification and other subjects.

Officers are trained to carry out police duties proficiently and to be "responsive to the law enforcement needs of a community and its citizens," according to Colonel Adams.

About 300 people will undergo special training and graduation from the DPS Academy in 1982.

Lockridge is the son of Judge and Mrs. Horace Groff of Denison.

Storage space for grain to be short

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big harvests predicted this year will put a heavy strain on storage space, but there should be ample transportation to help move grain and soybeans from one area to another, says the Agriculture Department.

"As expected large feed grain and spring wheat harvests join winter wheat in storage, nearly all on-farm storage is likely to be filled," the department's Economic Research Service said Monday.

"At least 1.8 billion bushels of grain will require transportation to commercial storage. Off-farm facilities will also be strained by the end of the harvest season."

The report, written by agency analyst T.Q. Hutchinson, said that as of June 1, about 6.4 billion bushels of grain and oilseeds were in storage on farms and in off-farm facilities. That represented about 35 percent of the total U.S. storage capacity.

Allowing for exports and domestic use, and the addition of about 2.1 billion bushels of new grain from the 1982 winter wheat crop, about 14.5 billion bushels of storage space would be available for the other crops — corn, sorghum, oats, barley, spring wheat, soybeans and other commodities.

Total U.S. storage capacity is about 18.5 billion bushels, including approximately 11.3 billion on farms and 7.2 billion in off-farm facilities.

One of the perennial problems, however, is that specific areas often are filled while others have storage space. That can create havoc during peak harvest periods, with millions of bushels piled on the ground until there is room to store the grain.

The report said that "the transportation system continues to have sufficient capacity for harvest needs" this season.

"The barge industry, which has been carrying nearly 40 million bushels of grain and soybeans a week, estimates that 30 to 35 percent of its fleet is idle," the report said. "The industry also reports exceptionally low spot-market barge rates, a further indication of surplus capacity."

Looking at the rail situation, the report said that "railroads could readily accommodate a demand increase of at least 65 million bushels a month" in grain and soybean shipments.

Poland objects to broadcasts

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish government demanded that the United States, Britain, France and West Germany put a stop to broadcasts which it said were slandering the Communist regime and amounted to "subversive propaganda."

The government also warned supporters of Solidarity, the suspended trade union, that any more demonstrations would be dealt with severely.

PAP, the official news agency, said representatives of the four Western governments were called in and told shortwave broadcasts by the Voice of America, Radio Free Europe, the British Broadcasting Corp., Radio France International and other Western stations were "slandering the Polish state authorities, backing activity of illegal groups and broadcasting untrue news and commentaries."

U.S. and British officials said the protest was made last Friday.

"The Polish Foreign Ministry demanded the stopping of this kind of activity and reserved for itself the right to adopt appropriate measures," PAP said.

It added that protests might be filed with "appropriate international organizations."

The protest coupled with the warning to Solidarity activists indicated the government's concern with the public response to calls from underground union leaders for massive nationwide protests on Aug. 31, the second anniversary of the formation of the independent union.

Front-page commentaries in two key newspapers Monday warned that "decisive, firm opposition" would be taken against any violations of martial law.

Island management 'painful'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — When a federal official waded in the waters off Matagorda Island for the first time recently, a sting ray lashed him.

The official indicated Monday at a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service hearing that he hopes future efforts to develop a management plan for the 41,356 publicly owned acres on the island will not be so painful.

"This meeting has been tremendously enjoyable in terms of the range of heartfelt opinions. I've never seen a more representative or diverse set of people wanting to speak their piece," said Mike Spear, Southwest regional director for the service.

Spear said, however, "We're in a Catch-22 situation. Neither the Fish and Wildlife Service nor the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission will make a commitment until the issue is settled."

In 1975, the Air Force said it no longer needed 19,000 acres on the island, and discussions have been going on since about what to do with the land. Gov. Bill Clements asked that the federal property be transferred to the state as a park and wildlife management area.

Spear said the Fish and Wildlife Service preferred to transfer the property to the service, with Texas managing the entire 41,356 acres under laws and policies governing the National Wildlife Refuge System.

Spear assured Texans on Monday that "there will be no irreversible commitment of resources prior to the completion" of a five-year management plan that will undergo public scrutiny.

He responded to complaints at a meeting called by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Earlier in the meeting, Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong said outdoor lovers and developers would have to "give some" to work out a management plan.

Armstrong said, however, those who envisioned the land as a Texas Coney Island had "either gone on to Heaven" or changed their minds. He said he did not think anyone thinks the property should be turned over to commercial interests.

Ned Fritz of Dallas, chairman of the Texas Committee on Natural Resources, has stated a deal worked out between Clements and Interior Secretary James Watt is a "bad deal." Fritz maintains the "present setup" of federal control "is the perfect setup to keep the state from building on the uplands."

Clements said the state and federal government both wanted to "dedicate the property forever ... to a wildlife refuge type of environment."

He said under his proposal, tourists could visit the east end of the island "in a nominal sense, but there would be no exploitation of the property." He said there would be limited hunting of deer and migratory birds.

"The state could better discipline the area, manage it, than the federal government," Clements said.

Clements says special session possible

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says it is possible he will call a special legislative session after the Nov. 2 general election, but he's not ready to say it's probable.

Clements said Monday he will call a special session of the Legislature if that action is "absolutely necessary" to prevent a possible huge increase in unemployment taxes.

"I have said and I will continue to say we will not have an increase in that employment tax as has been indicated by some people," Clements said. "If it requires the special session to take care of it, we will have a special session."

Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-La Marque, has predicted that Texas employers may face a 2,500 percent increase in what they pay to the unemployment fund, which is supported by payroll taxes.

The tax now averages $6 per month per employee. If Criss' projection were correct, the tax would increase from an average of $6 per employee to $150.

Clement said a special session is "possible. I won't say it's probable, because I have not yet seen all the information my aides apparently have developed over the past 10 days while I've been gone."

"But they have been briefing it, they have been talking with Lt. Gov. (Bill) Hobby's office, also Speaker (Bill) Clayton's office as well as certain research people in the Legislative Budget Board."

Asked if the session would be before or after the election, Clements said, "Definitely after."

When asked why, the governor replied, "I just don't think it would be appropriate to have it beforehand and it's not necessary either."

Reminded that Hilary Doran, his executive assistant, had said Saturday Clements probably would call a special session, Clements responded, "We're not going to call a special session unless it's absolutely necessary. There is a cost attendant to that — it's not excessive of course, but there is a cost."

"We'd have only a one-item special session," he said.

"We could be in and out in no time at all, but nevertheless it's a lot of trouble, and I'm sure that the senators and the legislators, nor any of the other people in the executive branch, really want a special session. So we want to avoid it if at all possible."

Clements said he does not believe the unemployment fund would go broke by early December.

Judge rejects defense motions

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A judge has cleared the way for the government to introduce crucial electronic eavesdropping against five defendants in the Judge John H. Wood Jr. murder case.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions rejected defense claims that attorney-client and husband-wife privilege preclude the evidence from being introduced.

Sessions ruled that before the FBI tapes can be kept from evidence the defense must show the conversations were "not for the purpose of committing a crime or tort."

The government has said the conversations involved discussions of Wood's death and an attempt to cover up the crime by killing witnesses. Also discussed were alleged drug deals to raise money to break Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra out of jail, the indictment charges.

Sessions on Monday signed nine orders denying attempts by defense lawyers to dismiss the indictment or suppress evidence against Jimmy Chagra, Joseph "Joe" Chagra, Elizabeth Chagra, Charles V. Harrelson and Jo Ann Harrelson.

Harrelson is charged with shooting Wood. Jimmy Chagra is charged with paying Harrelson $250,000 to shoot the judge on May 29, 1979, in San Antonio to prevent Wood from presiding at Chagra's federal narcotics trial. The other three defendants are charged with conspiracy.

In the first ruling won by the defense as a result of an 11-day hearing earlier this month, Sessions found that Jimmy and Elizabeth Chagra were married at the time their conversations were recorded by FBI agents at the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary in Kansas in late 1980 and 1981.

However, Sessions made it clear in the ruling that would not prevent prosecutors from introducing into the Sept. 28 trial any conversations they had in furtherance of a crime.

"The court will suppress the conversations and notes between Jamie and Elizabeth Chagra unless the government can show that the conversations were made in furtherance of a crime in which they were jointly involved, or were criminal when made and later repeated, were made in the presence of third parties, or if the conversations were disclosed to third persons," Sessions ruled.

The judge said that there was "sufficient evidence" presented at the hearing to show that Charles and Jo Ann Harrelson were not married, but "declines to make a finding because it is unnecessary under the facts of this case."

Sessions ruled that marital privilege was not at issue in the recording of the Harrelson's conversations at the Harris County Jail last year because a third party, convict John Lee Spinelli, was present.

The conversations "were lawfully intercepted and recorded, and ... they were not protected by the marital privilege," the ruling said.

Testimony begins for 82-year-old defendant

HOUSTON (AP) — No one expects 82-year-old Laura Clark to be sent to prison for growing marijuana in her back yard, but District Judge Mike McSpadden says she still has to stand trial because the law makes no exception for age.

"There's not a judge in the world or a jury around here that would send her to the pen," McSpadden said. "But if they said, 'Mrs. Clark, we're not going to prosecute you because you're 82,' then what would all the mothers of 17-year-old boys up in Huntsville (in prison) think?"

The judge ordered testimony in the case to begin today. A six-man, six-woman jury was seated Monday. McSpadden predicted the trial would be finished by tonight.

Mrs. Clark, who has 17 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren, was arrested May 4 by two narcotics detectives who, acting on an anonymous tip, found nine marijuana plants in her vegetable garden.

Mrs. Clark said she would testify in her own defense. "I'm not guilty. I didn't know it was marijuana until somebody told me," she said as she left the courtroom Monday with five grandchildren, who will testify in her defense.

Chief prosecutor Charles Rosenthal said state attorneys would call only two witnesses at first — a chemist and a narcotics detective — but he said they may call others on rebuttal.

"If she testifies to what we think she'll testify to, there's going to be a rather lengthy rebuttal," he said.

Rosenthal said McSpadden told prosecutors in the case that regardless of the outcome of the trial, he would not sentence Mrs. Clark to prison.

"I think it's obvious that neither the jury nor the judge would ever send her to jail," McSpadden told The Associated Press. "But the prosecutors feel a crime has been committed and they feel they have the obligation to prosecute."

"She feels she's innocent. So, the only result is a trial," the judge said.

Defense attorney Bill Portis said the state would have a hard time proving she knew she was growing marijuana when she planted the seeds.

"This woman was born and reared in the Ozark Mountains of Arkansas, where home remedies are common," Portis said. "She was given the seeds by a doctor who treated her in Mexico."

"She thought they were herb seeds, and she was told to use the leaves in an alcohol solution to make a lotion to apply to her arthritic joints to get some temporary relief," he said.

Armadillo loses race to duck

DEMING, N.M. (AP) — It was feathers against armor, and armor lost as a duck waddled home ahead of his armadillo opponent in an unusual race at the weekend's World Richest Duck Race here.

Defending the honor of feathered fowl everywhere was Robert Duck, owner of last year's fastest duck, BFD Express. And on hand to strike a blow against duck racing was Sam Lewis, famed armadillo racer.

Lewis brought three armadillos from his hometown of San Angelo, Texas, where armadillo racing is as popular as duck racing is in Deming.

Saturday's race was to decide a long-standing controversy over which is faster — ducks or armadillos.

The contestants were ready; the starter shouted, the trumpet tooted, and they were off.

Or at least BFD Express was off, waddling down the 17-foot lane toward a wall of sound.

The armadillo stayed at the gate. But as the duck neared the finish line, disaster appeared. At the end of the track stood one of Lewis' armadillos, peering sluggishly at the advancing duck.

BFD Express was undaunted — he sidestepped the hard-plated animal and crossed the finish line.

Lewis asked for another chance.

Again duck and armadillo were placed side-by-side at the starting line. Again the trumpet blared the start. Again BFD Express left the armadillo in a cloud of feathers.

"Fowl!" Lewis cried. "I think the Track Quack (official veterinarian) drugged my armadillo."

After racing official Steve Marlowe accused Lewis of trying to thwart the duck by placing an armadillo at the end of the track, Lewis withdrew the complaint.

"I hate to admit it, but that damn duck beat my armadillo," Lewis said.

But he presented Duck with a silver armadillo ring and challenged him to bring his ducks to San Angelo next June for another face-off — this time at an armadillo race.

Landing slot sales caused uncertainty

Apparently the airline industry is not quite ready to face the real world of competition in the marketplace. Citing "uniform opposition" from the industry, the Federal Aviation Administration has suspended its policy of allowing the sale of airport landing rights.

In the wake of landing restrictions at 22 airports, applied after the air-traffic controllers strike, a certain amount of discontent developed. Some airlines wanted to expand service while some wanted to change their route structures, but the government permitted only a certain number of flights at some airports, what with fewer controllers.

To allocate these scarce airport slots — authority to provide a flight at an airport at a certain time on a certain day — the FAA tried to utilize the mechanism best suited to allocating scarce resources, the marketplace. On May 10, it announced that airlines could buy and sell slots at whatever price was mutually agreeable.

That made sense. Those slots obviously have an economic value. Those who want certain rights that carry an economic value should be willing to pay for them. There's a certain openness and honesty about using money to get what you want in the commercial realm.

The situation is not quite that simple, of course. Some airlines had airport slots not because they had paid for them in the first place, but because they had jumped through bureaucratic hoops during the old days before deregulation. And at the airports in question, the slots had become scarce as a result of a government decision. The transition from tight government control to control through the discipline of the marketplace will be fraught in many sectors of the economy with temporary difficulties, even injustice, of that sort. Once the decision to use marketplace rather than government control has been made, however, the best bet is to ride out the air pockets.

The hard-pressed aviation industry, however, must have panicked when it saw all that money changing hands. During the six week when selling slots was permitted, about 200 slots were sold. Some industry sources say that as much as $20 million changed hands, with some desirable slots going for between $1.5 and $2 million.

On June 24, faced with industry opposition, the FAA suspended the policy of selling slots. On July 6, it announced that no more selling would be permitted until July 1, 1983, though airlines could trade slots so long as no filthy money changed hands. By next July, there should be more controllers at work and the shortage of slots may not be so severe.

It's too bad that the FAA decided to intervene when the marketplace worked in ways that didn't meet with industry or bureaucratic approval. The fact that so much of the opposition came from the industry itself is a sign that the airlines are not quite ready to face the same kinds of competitive pressures that face owners of most small businesses.

That's understandable. The airline industry grew up under government control and protection, and it's hard to shake old habits.

Reduced spending best budget cure

The dismal fiscal record of Congress — 21 budget deficits in the last 22 years, and a trillion-dollar national debt — is a powerful argument for the Balanced Budget Amendments that has won President Reagan's support and seems assured of rapid Senate passage.

The trouble with this proposed amendment is that it alone won't cure Congress of fiscal irresponsibility because congressional over-spenders might sneak right through its enormous loopholes.

As now written, the amendments would require Congress to adopt an annual estimate of federal income and then tailor a budget within that figure. To keep Congress from simply raising taxes to match its taste for spending, the amendment forbids taxes to rise faster than the national income.

The amendment's first big escape hatch is a provision that allows Congress to waive the balanced-budget requirement by a three-fifths vote of the members of both houses during peacetime, or by a simple majority vote in wartime.

The loophole most likely to be used first, however, would allow a legal deficit if tax collections fell below expectations. Since forecasts of federal tax revenues are notoriously inexact, this is an open invitation to deficit spending.

Moreover, Congress is adept at finding ways to conceal its spending. A substantial share of federal spending is not in off-budget items or financed by off-budget borrowing from federal trust funds. The hidden budget is sure to grow if the Balanced Budget Amendment is ratified.

No one has yet explained how a balanced budget amendment will cope with such uncontrolled costs as interest payments and entitlement programs. The best guess is that the federal courts would have to take a principal role in interpreting the amendment and deciding how it should be applied. This thought alone is enough to chill support for Senate Joint Resolution 58.

One final thought: Much of the impetus for the amendment stems from a fear in Congress that if it doesn't act, the states will call for a constitutional convention. The legislatures of 31 states have already passed resolutions calling for a constitutional convention. Who knows what mischief might be committed by such a gathering, which some constitutional experts believe could not be limited to considering the budget issue.

President Reagan, on the other hand, has joined the battle to blunt criticism of his budget's immense deficits.

We should not kid ourselves, however. Only fiscally prudent members of Congress can balance the budget and they are not in the majority.

In the end, a balanced budget will become reality when individual taxpayers leave no doubt in politician's minds that reduced spending is absolutely necessary to balance the budget. If the Balanced Budget Amendment helps get this idea across it is worth pursuing.

Parenting, 1982 style

By RUSTY BROWN
"Author! Author!" is the latest movie to tackle the single parent phenomenon. It's about five kids from multi-married parents living with a single-parent father.

The kids are charming, but they seemed too good around the house. They rotated their duties of bagging garbage and drying dishes with unbelievable cheerfulness.

In one humorous scene, the youngest snatches the sheets off the bed, announcing: "It's laundry day!" even though some are still asleep.

I considered this toe - the - line efficiency unrealistic, but an expert on single-parent families disagrees with me.

Helen Mendes, University of Southern California professor, family counselor and pioneer researcher on today's mixed-up family patterns, says children who live in homes without mothers are more apt to share chores, accept responsibility and be independent.

Men, she says, are not reluctant to ask youngsters to pitch in. Unlike women, they don't have built-in expectations of themselves as persons able to run households.

Single-parent mothers, however, may feel more guilt over the break-up of their marriage, thinking they failed somehow.

"They sometimes assuage that guilt," says the professor, "by babying their children. Women see themselves as 'doing for,' while men see themselves as 'providing for.'"

However, moms, the professor says, do better at handling emotional crises, and their children are more likely to open up to them.

One single parent father being counseled by Dr. Mendes, said: "I can wipe up spills OK, but I find it hard to know what to do when my child is depressed or crying."

Dr. Mendes' research also indicates that dads may be unlikely to continue ties with their former in-laws, while mothers usually do.

Could be. I know a divorced woman who is closer to her former husband's parents than he is. The grandparents, in fact, are helping her raise the children.

Women, the professor says, are generally more willing to ask for help as single parents; women were permitted to be dependent as children, and, therefore, are not ashamed, as adults, to seek a support system of friends and relatives.

Men are less accustomed to asking for assistance. I read about one single father who had never pressed a dress in his life and sent his daughters to school with scorched clothes until he learned the finer points of ironing. It never occurred to him to get help or advice.

Partly a carryover from the macho image, this behavior might also stem from the fact that single-parent fathers are still rare and, says Prof. Mendes, "They want to show they can do everything."

Only 2.4 percent of today's single-parent families are headed by men, according to the 1980 U. S. Census, but that number is steadily increasing as more divorcing fathers seek custody.

Joint custody, where parents alternate care of their children also is on the rise. And while it might be difficult for some children to go back and forth between parents, Dr. Mendes says that basically children can adapt, if parents are consistent in their differences.

"What they (the children) have a hard time adjusting to is a parent whose behavior is continually changing," she notes.

The result of sexual stereotyping in childhood is the reason for differences between men and women as single parents, the professor says, adding, "Hopefully, that is changing. More fathers are learning nurturing as more mothers pursue careers."

Aside from her academic interest in researching families Dr. Mendes has a personal interest in her studies as well. She was a single parent for 10 years, adopting a daughter at 2, and a son when he was 3.

Then, 18 months ago, she married. Says she: "I did it all in reverse order, but it has worked out."

European Statism

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
As Americans read about European protests against the dumping of steel in the U. S. market, they need to know more about the nature of business in Europe today.

Much of European industry in the 1980s is state-owned.

Prof. Kenneth D. Walters and R. J. Monsen, writing in the Columbia Journal of World Business, points out that "The past decade has seen a dramatic wave of nationalization in Western Europe. New state-owned companies have changed the shape of Europe's economy."

The professors report that as recently as 1970 "one could not find a single manufacturing industry in which state-owned firms held an important share of industrial output in Western Europe." This has now changed radically. In a number of industries, they note, "state-owned firms now have gained a dominant or significant position in European markets."

New state-owned firms in the 1970s were created or nationalized in electronics, computers, chemicals, pharmaceuticals, aerospace and other areas of industry and business. Now, the authors say, "many of the top foreign multinationals are owned and controlled by their governments."

The nationalization trend has been especially strong in France. Election of a socialist government accelerated the nationalization process. The government of France has taken over 36 private banks. The French nationalized banking system also is aiming at the United States. For example, the Bank Nationale de Paris has purchased the Bank of the West in California. The state-owned Renault automobile company has purchased a large stake in Mack trucks. Elf-Aquitaine, the French government oil company, bought Texasgulf, the U. S. natural resources giant.

Prof. Walters and Monsen say that the new government-owned companies fall into four patterns: rescues, high risk ventures, control over natural resources, and nationalization for purely ideological reasons.

In Britain, for example, governments have used nationalization to rescue ailing industries, such as British Steel which runs at a huge loss. A British-French government aerospace consortium is selling aircraft abroad — at the expense of the American investor-owned aircraft companies.

Prof. Walters and Monsen make clear that the expansion and growth of European state-owned companies is a striking new development in the history of capitalism. This signifies West Europe's turn away from the free market economic system. Indeed the change raises serious doubts about the survival of capitalism in Western Europe.

The United States, for its part, should not allow American private enterprises, which pay taxes, to be overwhelmed by foreign state-owned enterprises. The Europeans, in effect; are dumping their unemployment in the United States, dealing with their social problems by shipping subsidized products to America.

U. S. companies can't hope to compete against foreign "companies" that are foreign governments in disguise.

Fail-Peace

By ART BUCHWALD

Now that I have dealt with the threat of accidental war and what it could mean to all of us, I would like to deal with a subject that is even more frightening than accidental war. It is accidental peace.

Suppose someone got his signals mixed and by accident started a peace. You may say it's impossible, that it could never happen. But as men keep fooling around with things they don't know about, as our communications systems become more complex, as the pressures on the leaders who hold the key to our future become greater, there is always the chance that someone might set off a peace that no one could control.

In a new book that I'm writing called "Fail - Peace," I have presented just such a situation. I tell how, with all the safeguards both sides have at their command, someone triggers off the greatest peace that man has ever known.

My story opens in Geneva during one of the many disarmament conferences. A lowly clerk in the American delegation pushes the wrong button on his decoding machine, and discovers that the Russians have launched what could possibly be a peace offer. He reports it to his supervisors, who immediately call Washington.

"We can't be sure," the ambassador tells the President, "but we think the Russians are about to declare peace."

"It could be a false alarm," the President says. "We've had these alerts before."

"Yes, sir, but I think we should be prepared in case it's the real thing."

"All right, I'll put Operation Good Will to Men into effect."

The President pushes a button that sounds an alarm in bases all over the country. "Now hear this, now hear this," commanders announce to their men, "a Russian peace proposal has been spotted over Geneva. This may be a test or it could mean the real thing. If it's the real thing, be prepared to cancel all defense contracts and destroy all stockpiles in this country."

In the meantime, the Russians have received word that the Americans have put their armed forces on a peace alert, and they get ready to meet the attack. Five Russian divisions are demobilized, an atomic testing station in the Urals is destroyed, and 40 new Soviet submarines are flooded and sunk.

The Americans pick up this information, and they immediately sink 14 of their own missile cruisers, slash the tires on every SAC bomber and order all Polaris warheads to be destroyed at sea.

The Russians immediately react and start breaking up their ICBM missile sites, demobilize another 200 divisions and kick all army officers out of the Presidium.

The President closes down the Pentagon, furloughs the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and fires the United States Marine Corps Band.

Both sides are eyeball to eyeball, headed hell-bent toward a peaceful showdown, and nobody blinks.

At the last minute the error is discovered. The Russian peace proposal in Geneva, it turns out, is not the real thing.

The President is aghast. Is it too late to stop the destruction of the United States military machine? How will the Russian Premier act when he realizes the disarmament he has been forced into was all a mistake?

The President decides there is only one thing to do. He telephones Moscow and tells the Soviet leader there has been an accident and chances of peace are imminent. He asks the Russian if there is anything he can do to avert an all-out detente.

The Soviet leader is sympathetic. "It's nobody's fault," he says. "We'll start from scratch again. Neither one of us can afford an all-out peace at this time."

Relieved, everyone goes back to doing things the way they were doing before. New safeguards are put on the decoding machines to prevent such an accident from happening again.

Dallas firm caught in middle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Reagan administration officials are meeting at the White House to consider France's direct challenge of a ban on use of American equipment for building a Soviet natural gas pipeline.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and top Treasury and Commerce Department officials were meeting today after Paris ordered a French subsidiary of an American company to defy the embargo President Reagan imposed in June.

The French government told Dresser France, a subsidiary of Dresser Industries Inc., of Dallas, to load rotor parts for shipment to the Soviet Union for use in the 3,600-mile pipeline.

Meanwhile, Dresser Industries asked the U.S. District Court in Washington to block Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and others from acting against the firm if it makes the deliveries to a Soviet freighter at the French port of Le Havre.

A spokesman for the parent company said Monday that it had been notified Dresser France was served with a requisition order to complete delivery of the compressors "under penalty of both civil and criminal sanctions."

The spokesman, Edward R. Luter, said the order put Dresser "between a rock and a hard place." Dresser France has a contract to supply 21 compressors built with technology from General Electric Co.

In California, where Reagan is vacationing, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Monday the U.S. government had a number of options in response to the French decision.

He said the group meeting at the White House, which had been scheduled to take up various international economic problems, would send recommendations to the president as quickly as possible.

Speakes did not say what steps might be taken.

Reagan has sought to block the Soviet's natural gas pipeline as a means of pressuring the Soviet Union to persuade Polish authorities to relax various martial law restrictions.

Initially, he banned the export of American equipment for the project. But on June 18, Reagan broadened his Dec. 29 order to include foreign subsidiaries of American firms and European firms that purchase U.S.-licensed equipment.

Reagan took the second action after meeting with European leaders and against the advice of the State Department, which was concerned that relations with the allies could be ruptured.

New bail set for 500-pound sex offender

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Prosecutors say they were not given enough time to challenge defense medical testimony before a judge freed 500-pound sex offender Joseph "Jo-Jo" Giorgianni on grounds that jail would endanger Giorgianni's life.

Superior Court Judge Richard J.S. Barlow Jr. agreed at a hearing Monday to reconsider his Aug. 6 decision to reduce Giorgianni's 15-year jail sentence to three years' probation and a $2,000 fine.

After the hearing, the offices of the state attorney general and the Mercer County prosecutor filed written arguments on why the sentence reduction should not be allowed to stand.

Barlow scheduled a Sept. 17 hearing to reconsider the sentence reduction, and meanwhile placed Giorgianni on $15,000 cash bail.

Giorgianni, 33, was convicted in 1980 of carnally abusing and debauching the morals of a 14-year-old girl in a back room of his Trenton shop, where she had stopped to buy a sandwich. The incident occurred in October 1978.

Reagan to limit lead in gasoline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, in one of its first efforts to tighten environmental standards, is seeking to sharply limit the amount of lead that can be put in gasoline.

The Environmental Protection Agency announced Monday it wants to strengthen the current standards instead of approving liberalized requirements sought by the oil industry.

The move is a victory for environmentalists, who feared the worst after the administration put the rules on a "hit list" last year. They warned that loosening the rules could result in 500,000 more cases of lead poisoning in pre-school children next year.

The new proposed rule will take 31 percent more lead out of the air than current standards over the next eight years, EPA said.

EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch signed the proposed changes Monday and officials said they hoped to put them into effect on Nov. 1 after studying comments from a Sept. 7 public hearing in Washington.

While the administration announced its decision with fanfare, the outcome had been the subject of an intense behind-the-scenes struggle.

EPA officials, concerned about the health effects of lead poisoning, fought for tougher standards, but the Office of Management and Budget urged looser requirements because of complaints from small refineries that current rules would put them out of business.

Urvan Sternfels, of the National Refiners Association, called the new rules "onerous" and said they represented a sharp reversal from what "started out in the context of giving relief to business."

Armoires aren't only for bedrooms

The classic armoire is finding a new niche for itself in areas other than the bedroom. Originally used for weapon and armor storage in medieval castles, the French civilized it to hold clothes — especially bridal furnishings. No longer restricted to trousseaux in chateaux, the armoire is enjoying a revival in popularity. Living rooms, foyers and family rooms are now interesting locales for this stately storage piece. Armoires offer enormous flexibility. Even in the bedroom, the armoire can replace a dresser with a mirror inside its door. Its vertical shape takes up less floor space than a dresser. As an investment in quality furniture, the "Camille" armoire from Thomasville is representative of Louis XV decorative design. It is typical of the look in France between 1700 and 1760 when straight lines were abandoned to make room for baroque or more flowing lines and intricate details. Shelly Weiss, Thomasville interior designer, has used this singularly large, impressive armoire in a room to make an important fashion statement. It serves not only as a functional unit, but as the focal point in the room. The Sherrill sofa fabric is repeated in upholstered stools, draped - to - the - floor table cover and shirred tie-back window treatment. Underliner for it all is luxurious Saxony plush carpet from Armstrong's Trustmark Collection installed wall - to - wall to visually expand room size.

Demand grows for condominiums as home ownership ideas change

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

The home ownership concept has always been in the area of the traditional, detached, single-family house. Whatever might have happened recently to that overall concept, the details of what constitutes a home are changing.

Is an apartment in a condominium or cooperative a home? In fact, is a rental apartment a home? The chances are most people would consider a condominium or cooperative apartment a home, but most are not likely to put a rental apartment in the same category, even though Merriam-Webster defines a home as "a family's place of residence" and says nothing about whether it is owned or rented.

The American dream of owning a house (it becomes a home when somebody lives in it) has begun to dissipate in the "wake up" reality of high prices and especially high interest rates. But it remains visible because many people have decided that having a condominium apartment is really owning a home. Not as big as a detached house or with as large a piece of individual property perhaps, but compensating for it to some degree with lower carrying costs, less work and similar tax deductions.

According to figures supplied by the National Association of Home Builders, there appears to be a strong demand for attached houses and a declining demand for the traditional, usually more expensive detached houses.

The trade association says single-family detached housing starts declined 20 percent in 1981, a year in which housing starts fell to their lowest levels since 1946. It further says only 618,000 single-family detached houses were started last year, compared to 770,000 in 1980. Starts of attached houses, however, increased by 10 percent last year to reach the 880,000 level.

Furthermore, again according to the association, while housing starts for traditional detached houses will only increase by 2 percent this year and 30 percent in 1983, starts of attached houses will rise by 17 percent this year and 65 percent in 1983.

Del Purscell of Hovnanian Enterprises thinks affordability will be the key word in the housing market in the future. His attached homes average about 1,200 square feet, compared to the 1,900 square feet of the "average" houses built in the U. S. these days. He thinks the smaller, attached town houses will replace the traditional detached house for most house buyers within the next 10 years.

Purscell's opinion about this aspect of housing is shared by many other house builders, but disputed by those who feel that whatever trend there is in this direction will be halted quickly when mortgage interest rates drop to reasonable rates, although it is difficult to determine at this economic stage what "reasonable" might be.

There was a time when nobody wanted an attached house for fear they might destroy other housing values. That is no longer the case in many communities, although some local planners still frown on them. It may be that those who sit on planning boards are often nearing an age where they have raised their families and see the smaller, attached houses as a viable future alternative to the large houses they now live in. The planners also know attached houses, because they rarely contain more than two or three bedrooms, do not add large numbers of children to populate and tax the local school system.

Dear Abby

Right-to-Lifers answer Julia Child

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Recently a letter from Julia Child on the pro-life movement appeared in my column. Yesterday we heard from readers who support Julia's comments. Today the Right-to-Lifers have their say.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of an unwed, pregnant, 14-year-old daughter who decided to carry her baby to term and offer it as a gift to a very fortunate couple we know who cannot have a baby of their own.

My daughter realizes that as difficult as it may be to give up her child at birth, it would be far more traumatic to spend the rest of her life knowing that she killed her child because she didn't want to accept the responsibility for her own actions.

Because of our situation, our family became heavily involved with the Right-to-Life organization. In fact, our daughter is now going out and speaking to groups against abortion and giving her own testimony to support her views.

To Julia Child: Have you ever seen pictures of an actual abortion? If you could see those tiny arms and legs being torn apart by the suction process, or those little purple bodies lying lifeless after having been pulled from their mothers, you would change your mind about abortion. If you were the mother of a pregnant teen-ager, you would be moved to tears wondering if that innocent baby had inherited your daughter's dimple or smile. And you allowed it to be killed because it might embarrass the family!

It does my heart good to know that someone who has prayed for years to hold a baby in her arms is going to receive a precious gift from my daughter. I am proud that she did not choose abortion. It may set her back a bit, but it will soon be over, and she will have learned a valuable lesson.

MRS. T., GARDEN GROVE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from Julia Child, I submit an item from a Catholic publication:

"A professor at the UCLA Medical School asked his students this question. 'Here is the family history: The father has syphilis. The mother has TB. They already have had four children. The first is blind. The second has died. The third is deaf. The fourth has TB. The mother is pregnant. The parents are willing to have an abortion if you decide they should. What do you think?'

"Most of the students decided on an abortion."
"Congratulations," said the professor. 'You have just murdered Beethoven.'
JOYCE IN CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: This is for Julia Child: I have never been in Memphis, so I was not one of those pro-lifers who picketed your demonstration for the benefit of Planned Parenthood. However, as one Smith graduate (B.A. '66, Ph.D. '75) to another, may I respond to your letter in Dear Abby's column:

From the point of view of a healthy, wealthy, respected public figure like you, Julia, perhaps the child of a 13-year-old retarded girl, whose mother was a syphilitic whore, or a child who happened to be the seventh offspring of a tubercular, abandoned welfare mother, ought to be killed for everyone's convenience. But, if God forbid, you should ever become inconveniently old or sick yourself, you may be glad that the Right-to-Lifers are still active.

Your question as to who will provide sounds a little mean, since you certainly can afford to, but the answer is yes, the pro-life people — most of them — do provide. Just look in this newspaper's classified section right under "abortion clinics."

And as for assuming responsibility for these children's lives, it may not be necessary. Example: The child of a promiscuous mother and an insane, syphilitic father assumed responsibility for an entire nation in World War II. His name was Winston Churchill.

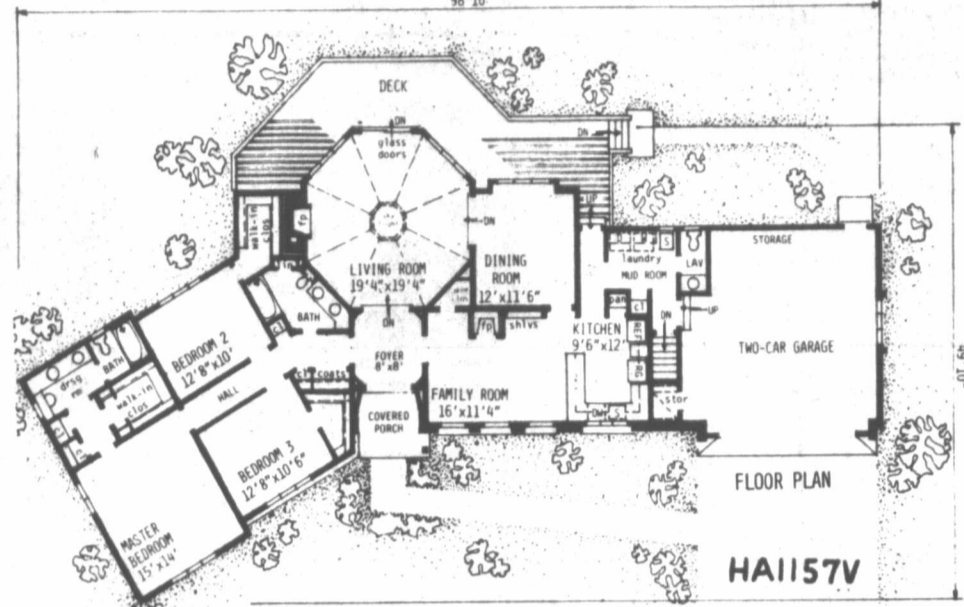

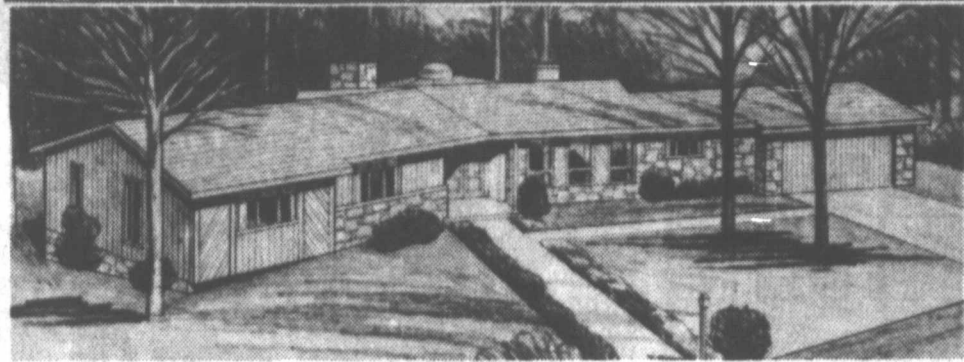

DIANE de AVALLE-ARCE, DURHAM, N.C.

DEAR ABBY: Julia Child is solidly pro-life when it comes to preparing good food, but a teacher of human morality, she is not!

Julia's compassion for abused women and children is commendable, but to kill innocent children is an abominable punishment imposed on the wrong parties! In sociology, Julia should apply the same good sense she uses in the kitchen. Work with God to improve the quality of life instead of destroying it. If a good soup needs salt, add salt — not arsenic.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I love gray. It's a hangover from my college days when I did a month's laundry in one load. (Sometimes when I sat on my bed to dress, I blended so well

I had to smile so people would know I was there.) About six years ago, I picked up a magazine that had a fashion horoscope in it. Now I don't usually put too much stock in natal signs because everyone else gets the neat ones. Scorpios always get the "Flutter kicks in your pool will change your life" and the Aquarius people are told, "Shop now for pearls that will enhance your naturally sensuous looks." Mine said, "Extra sleep is beneficial. Prop up your feet whenever you can. Invest in something gray. You will be years ahead of your time."

If I had known how many years ahead of my time I would be, I'd never have invested $154 in a gray wool suit quite that early.

So forget that I couldn't find a pair of shoes to match it or a purse or hose or scarf. Just forget that wherever I wore it, someone said, "That's gray, isn't it? I wish it would come back."

The point is, that gray suit hung in my closet for six solid years and generated all the excitement of a pregnant moth in a fur storage.

Every year when I had my hair cut, I'd thumb through the high-fashion magazines to see if this was the year of MY suit. Oh, occasionally I saw gray coveralls being worn by a Orkin Man spraying bugs on television or a gray fur coat for $9,000, but a gray fashion glut never happened.

Until this year. I walked through a shopping center the other day and every window was splashed with gray. Gray suits, gray shoes, gray accessories, gray coats. Gray dresses. Gray slacks. Gray blouses.

Every fashion horoscope is touting gray as the color whose time has come. Little children are wearing it with white starched collars. Airline attendants are switching to gray. Cars, furniture and accessories are gray.

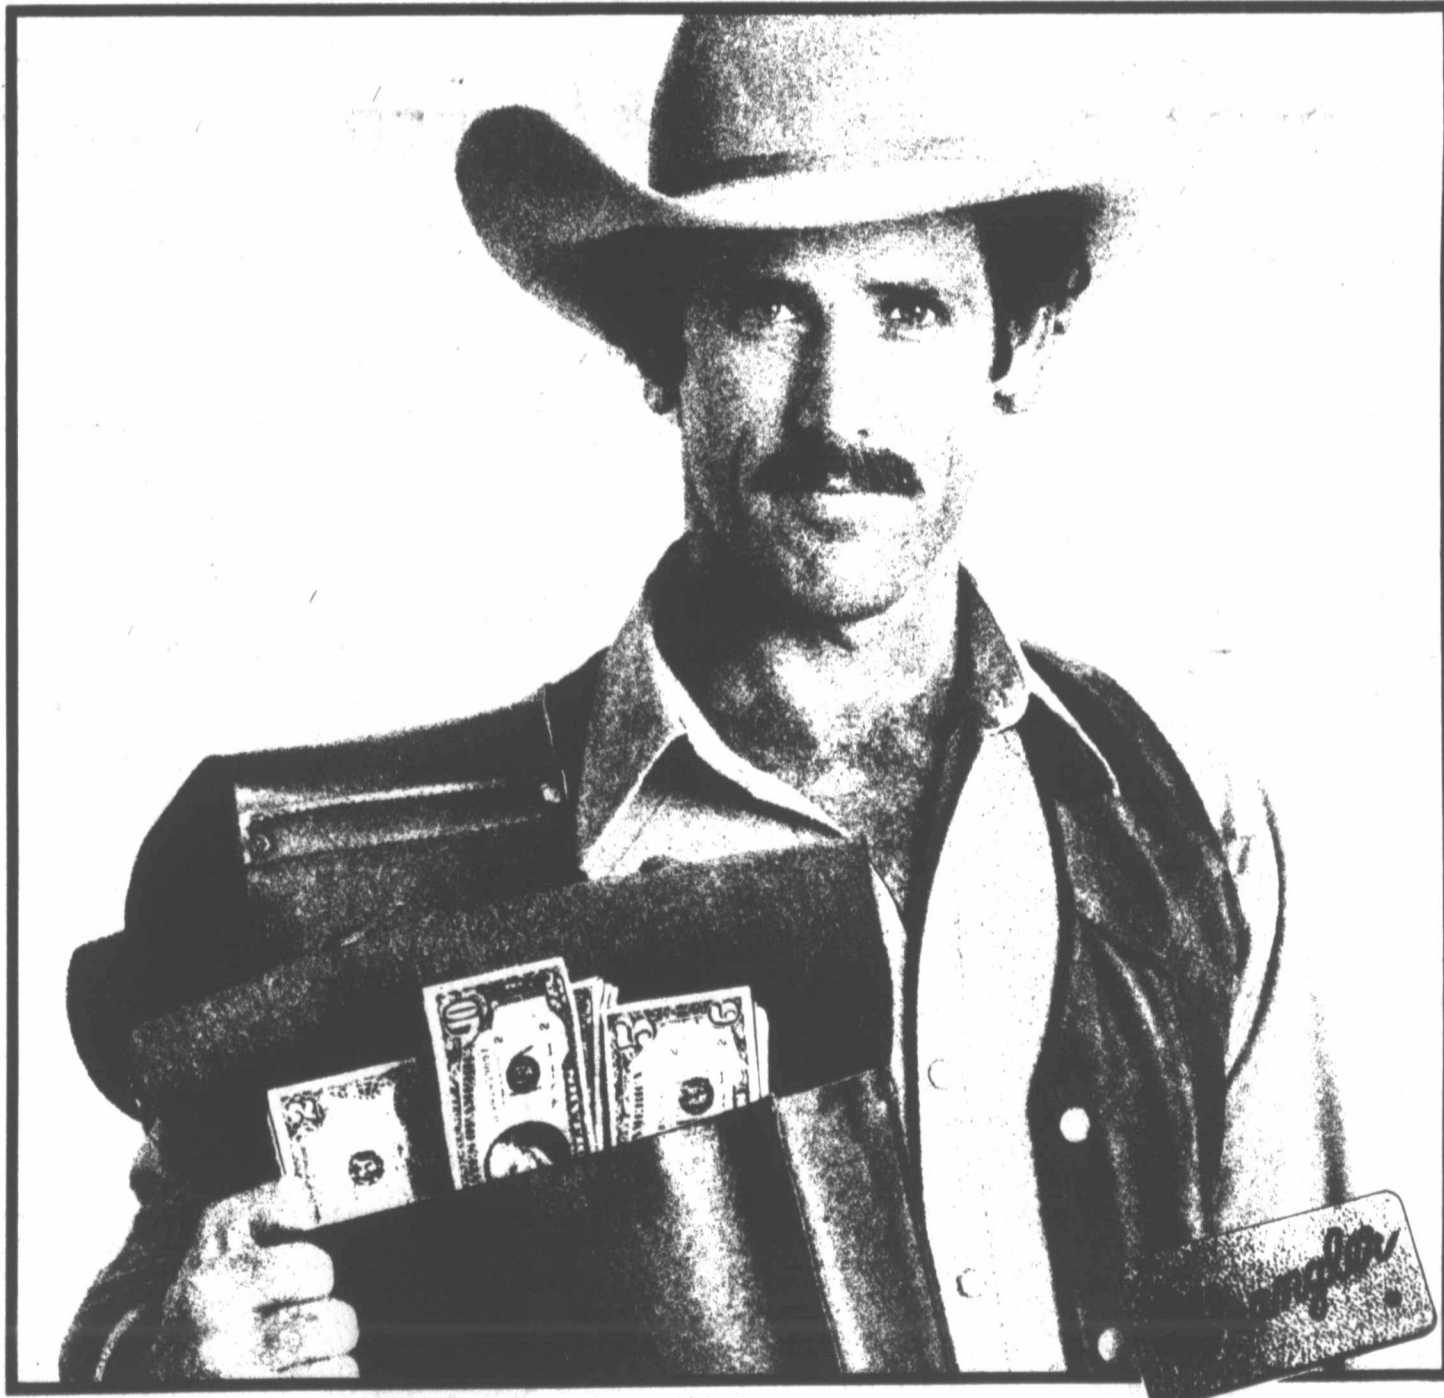

This fall, you will not be able to walk down the street without a gray person crossing your path. Gray dogs will become chic. Gray hair will be in. Gray TV and gray skies will prevail.

Trust me. This is gray's year. You want to know how I know? Four weeks ago, I gave my gray suit to the Salvation Army.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

Strive to be original this coming year. You could do well for yourself in ventures which you create. Don't be afraid to gamble on your abilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today if you are helpful only to those who are first helpful to you, it's not likely many favors will come your way. Don't make kindness a mathematical proposition. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Pay your fair share today in activities with friends. However, don't be a big spender in order to try to make an impression.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're basically an intense person. You must be careful today not to come on too strong or you could scare-off persons who wish to help you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be content with what you have today, as well as with your present involvements. Wishing you had more or that you were doing something else will only frustrate you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to place a friend in an awkward position today where he or she would be forced to side with you against another pal. You could lose both.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If another helps you achieve something today which you could not do without such assistance, make doubly sure to give this person proper recognition and praise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though your intentions are to protect someone you care for, you must be careful not to force your will on this person today. Guide, but don't dictate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against tendencies today to be jealous or possessive with your loved one. You could severely scare your romance if you fail to handle things wisely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to get into an "I did more for you than you did for me" contest with your mate today. Instead of making comparisons, be kind without expecting returns.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unfortunately, not everyone today will appreciate your sense of humor. Don't tease those who are sensitive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a possibility today that fun endeavors could end up costing more than you intended to spend. Keep your budget in mind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not likely to be as good a self-starter today as you should be. However, you also won't respond to being pushed, so stay away from persons who might try to do so.

Pampa had excellent serving from Leslie Albus and 12 points from Carrie Carter in the match.

Caprock brings a 3-2 record into the dual match with Pampa. Pampa's next home match is Thursday with a doubleheader against Tascosa.

Harvesters need more work on technique

"We didn't move the ball like we wanted to and we're still a little short on technique," said Pampa coach John Kendall after the Harvesters' scrimmage with Altus, Okla. Saturday.

With each team going 15 plays, Altus scored once while Pampa went scoreless in the controlled scrimmage.

"We're still short on technique, but I was pretty pleased with the contact," Kendall said. "The scrimmage helped us in seeing all the kids in action and seeing what we need to work on this week."

Kendall also plans to work the Harvesters more on physical conditioning.

"We need to get in better shape than we are now," Kendall added. "It was real humid and hot there and the kids got tired early in the scrimmage."

Kendall said he wasn't concerned about outscoring Altus. "We didn't go down there to see who would win or lose," Kendall said. "We just wanted to see what we had in the way of personnel."

Pampa hosts Tascosa in another scrimmage Friday night at Harvester Stadium. The starting time has not been set yet.

"We've progressed a little bit on technique this week and we'll test ourselves on Tascosa," Kendall said.

Pampa travels to Hereford for the season opener Sept. 3. The Harvesters' first home game is Sept. 10 with Clovis, New Mexico.

TCU to keep veer formation

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Though rarely winning, Texas Christian's Horned Frogs spent many an autumn afternoon filling the Texas skies with flying footballs.

They lived and died by the pass — too often they died. For instance, in 1980, Steve Stamp passed 53 times against Baylor, completing 28 for 408 yards, all school records. But TCU lost, 21-6.

Now, in F.A. Dry's sixth and most critical year as coach, the Horned Frogs are switching formations and philosophy to end their losing ways.

With Stamp gone, Dry scuttled the pro-style passing attack for the veer formation to exploit the running and ball-handling skills of his holdover quarterbacks.

The front-runner, senior Reuben Jones, can both run and pass well but other factors favor a ground attack.

"We've got the most and best quality running backs we've ever had," said Dry. "They're medium size with balance and quickness, but not overpowering."

The veer is designed to take much of the pressure off the swift, talented TCU receivers and enhance the Frogs' ball-control tactics.

"Defense wins football games if the offense gives them a chance," Dry maintains. "Last year we didn't most of the time. We need to hold onto the football for longer periods of time..."

Nobody holds onto it much better than Stanley Washington, an All-SWC wide receiver who quarterbacks dream about and coaches kill for.

Nicknamed "Grasshopper" for his leaping catches, Washington caught 49 passes for 854 yards last year in only eight games, one of them specially memorable.

With Stamp hurt, Jones came on in the second half of the Texas Tech game to hurl for 297 yards, including nine for 156 yards to Washington.

The come-from-behind 39-39 deadlock was one of the highlights in a 2-7-2 season of largely lows, a season that nearly cost Dry his job.

Washington insists he is unconcerned about the new emphasis on the running game. He said:

"Basically it should mean less attention and double-coverage for us receivers if the other team is having to worry about what's coming up the middle."

With reservations, Dry appears optimistic, and by no means paranoid about his job or the external pressures of winning.

Assessing his current charges, he said the strength lies with the defense, a superb kicking game, a wealth of solid running backs, an experienced quarterback and six excellent receivers.

The unknown rests with the offensive line. It's iffy, and a big if at that. "Our offensive linemen showed improvement toward the end of spring," said Dry, "but it's essential they continue that trend. Development and depth in our offensive line...that's pretty much the key."

Dry is hardly happy over a schedule that sends the Frogs on the road three of their first four games — against Kansas, Southern Methodist and Arkansas.

But the Arkansas hex is no longer a factor. Before injuries torpedoed the 1981 campaign, TCU broke a Razorback victory streak dating back to 1958. For Frog fans, the 28-24 stunner was the upset of the year.

It proved that almost anything is possible. Maybe even a TCU running game.

Midwest Preview

Ohio State, Michigan teams to beat in Big 10

By JOE MOOSHL AP Sports Writer

When assessing college football strength in the Midwest in the past, the easiest way to do it was to look at the respective strengths of Michigan and Ohio State in the Big Ten and then add Notre Dame to the list.

But it didn't work that way last season. Notre Dame had its first losing season in 18 years under new coach Gerry Faust. For the first time in years, Ohio State and Michigan were defeated by the same school in the same season. Wisconsin accomplished the feat.

For the first time since 1968, a team other than Michigan or Ohio State represented the Big Ten when Iowa made the trip to the Rose Bowl. And for the first time since the inception of the Associated Press college football poll in 1936, a Big Ten team failed to finish in the top 10.

Going into the new season, Ohio State will be without passing ace Art Schlichter, Michigan lost running back star Butch Woolfolk and Notre Dame will be without college back-lined abounds throughout the league.

Nevertheless, Ohio State, which shared the Big Ten title with Iowa last season, and Michigan will be the teams to beat in the conference and once again could decide the title when the two meet in Columbus Nov. 20. Illinois, with an aerial attack led by Tony Eason, appears to be the team with the best chance of sneaking in if the perennial powers falter.

Notre Dame will have 19 starters returning and Faust promises the Irish "will learn from the mistakes we made last year and put what we learned to good use."

Maybe just as important is the fact the Irish passing game, with Blair Kiel at quarterback and Tony Hunter returning to tight end from wingback, will be upgraded with the addition of assistant coach Ron Hudson. Hudson will coach the quarterbacks and receivers after having served the past three years as backfield coach at UCLA.

The Big Ten also has become pass-minded and quarterback talent abounds throughout the league.

In addition to Eason at Illinois, Purdue has Scott Campbell, Michigan has Steve Smith, Minnesota has Mike Hohensee, Indiana has Babe Laufenberg and Michigan State will count on John Leister.

They will have such targets as Anthony Carter at Michigan, Oliver Williams and Mike Martin at Illinois, Duane Gunn at Indiana, Cliff Benson at Purdue, Ted Jones and Daryl Turner at Michigan State and Gary Williams at Ohio State.

Things were tight in the Big Ten last season when Iowa tied Ohio State for the championship while Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin finished one game behind the leaders. Iowa lost most of its powerful defensive unit and doesn't figure to be a factor in the title race.

Minnesota and Wisconsin also figure to challenge if Ohio State and Michigan have trouble, and Indiana should not be counted out.

Faust's baptismal to the college ranks was a 5-6 season, Notre Dame's first losing season since 1963. Turning it around will not be easy although the Irish still have 11 starters from the team that faced Georgia in the 1981 Sugar Bowl.

Defending champion Toledo as well as Miami, Bowling Green and Central Michigan will be the top contenders in the Mid-American Conference. Miami is being picked to succeed Toledo with Bowling Green and Central Michigan next in line.

Miami is without tailback Greg Jones and Coach Tom Reed promises, "We're going to throw the football more this fall." Quarterback John Appold is the key to the Miami aerial game.

Bowling Green Coach Denny Stolz has a strong defense along with Jim Phelps who punted out of bounds nine times last season inside the opponents' 15-yard-line.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati could improve its 6-5 record but Louisville will be hard-pressed to better its 5-6 mark. The two meet Sept. 11 but also on Louisville's schedule is Pitt, a team picked by many to win the national championship.

Although Ohio State lost Schlichter, Coach Earle Bruce has nearly everyone else back. Mike Tomczak figures to replace Schlichter. Eight defensive starters also return.

Ohio State's pass defense was suspect last season but Bruce insists "We lost three games last year because of our kicking game and not (because of) pass defense. And if we don't shore up our kicking game, it could be another disaster."

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler has a stronger defensive unit than a year ago when the Wolverines were beaten in the opener at Wisconsin.

"We have to rebuild our running game," said Schembechler. "If we get it going, we'll be a good unit. Our kicking game is solid. We have our kickers back and our snapper back."

Last year the Illini finished 6-3 in the Big Ten, losing at Ohio State and at Michigan. They were 5-0 at home. This time the Illini catch both Michigan and Ohio State at Champaign.

Minnesota, in addition to Hohensee, has all of its running backs returning. Coach Joe Salem has nine starters back on defense. Home games will be played in the Metrodome, five of them at night.

Purdue has a new coach in Leon Burnett and an old look in a strong passing game led by Campbell. Eight regulars return on defense.

Wisconsin played its first five games at home last season, beating Michigan, Purdue and Ohio State. This time the Badgers play their first three conference games away at Michigan, Purdue and Ohio State.

National Football League teams reduce rosters

Carlos Pennywell, a wide receiver whose big-play potential never materialized in four years with the New England Patriots, and former Nebraska breakaway tailback I.M. Hipp have been put on National Football League waivers.

Teams must reduce their rosters to 70 players by today, and a few veterans were the ones to get axed Monday.

Pennywell, a third-round draft choice from Grambling in 1978, played in 38 games in four seasons for New England. He caught only 12 passes for 143 yards and three touchdowns.

New England also released defensive end Mark Buben, who started every Patriots' game in 1979 and 1981. He sat out the 1980 season with an injury. Hipp, waived by the Philadelphia Eagles, had trouble making the pros following a big college career. He played one game with the Oakland Raiders in 1980.

The Eagles also cut defensive back Jerome King, who played in two games for the Atlanta Falcons last year, along with Penn State place-kicker Brian Franco and Syracuse quarterback Dave Warner, both rookies.

Others placed on waivers Monday included cornerback Irvin Phillips, the San Diego Chargers' third-round draft choice last year from Arkansas Tech who has been hampered by injuries; fourth-year cornerback Charles Johnson, cut by St. Louis; wide receiver Larry Brodsky, Kansas City's 10th-round draft pick from the University of Miami; and Green Bay veterans Paul Rudzinski, a linebacker, and Arland Thompson, a guard.

Thompson, signed by the Packers last year as a free agent, played in 10 games for Green Bay, one as a starter.

The Packers also picked up wide receiver Marcus Anderson on waivers from Chicago. As a rookie last year, Anderson averaged 27 yards per catch on nine receptions and scored two touchdowns for the Bears. He caught six passes for 176 yards and a TD in a game against the Detroit Lions.

Rangers hold off Kansas City, 5-2

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The word was out: Get into the Texas Ranger bullpen and you can burn down Arlington Stadium.

The running joke was that the Ranger relievers were so combustible nobody is allowed near them in the rightfield bleachers with cigarette lighters or matches.

Danny Darwin stopped the one-liners for a night Monday by forcing Willie Wilson to hit into a game-ending doubleplay with the bases loaded to preserve a 5-2 victory over Kansas City.

"The bullpen came through, finally," said Darwin. "We had been taking a lot of heat and a lot of it was deserved." "I hadn't been doing the job. But I did tonight. All you can do is keep going out there and trying your best," he said.

Rookie Dave Schmidt, 4-4, picked up his first victory in a starting role thanks to Darwin's relief effort. "I was tired," said Schmidt. "I was really happy Danny did the job."

The Ranger bullpen had a 7.97 earned run average in the last seven games.

Fifteen calls to the bullpen had resulted in 20.1 innings pitched, 42 hits and 18 runs before Darwin's performance.

But that didn't detour Ranger Manager Darrell Johnson.

"You have to have confidence in your people," said Johnson. "You have confidence in them as long as they have confidence in themselves."

Vida Blue went six innings before his bad back stiffened on him and Mike Armstrong, 4-5, took the loss as the Rangers scored four runs in the bottom of the eighth inning.

"It was a night of oddities," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser.

"Frank White made two errors and Wilson hit into a doubleplay left-handed. How many times have you seen either one of those things happen?"

Buddy Bell and Jim Sundberg were the hitting heroes for Texas.

Bell knocked in three runs with a single and a double and Sundberg homered in the eighth inning.

Hal McRae delivered his 109th RBI with a single in the sixth inning for Kansas City and John Wathan knocked in a run with a single in the ninth.

Wathan also stole his 30th base to tie the all-time stolen base record for a catcher. Ray Schalk stole 30 bases for the 1916 Chicago White Sox.

In Tuesday night's matchup, Frank Tanana of Texas, 6-13, meets Kansas City's Larry Gura, 15-8.

NL roundup

Braves slip back into first place

By MIKE EMBRY AP Sports Writer

Watch out Dodgers, Padres and Giants. Those up-and-down Atlanta Braves are on the upswing again.

The Braves won their fifth straight game Monday night, nipping the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 on Chris Chambliss' run-scoring double with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning.

The victory lifted Atlanta into first place in the National League West, a mere fraction of a percentage point ahead of the slumping Dodgers, who fell 11-3 to St. Louis.

"We showed a lot of class in the last five days," said Atlanta third baseman Bob Horner, who drove in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly.

"How many teams could have done what we did? Lose 19 of 21 and then bounce back and now we're back in first place. We could have just died but we bounced back. We have now won five games by one run. That shows a lot of class."

In other NL action, Chicago defeated San Francisco 8-5, Cincinnati downed Montreal 6-2, Houston beat New York 2-0 and San Diego and Pittsburgh split a doubleheader, the Pirates winning the first game 8-6 and Padres taking the nightcap 5-3.

It's not really surprising that Atlanta has charged back as the frontrunner. This year the Braves have put together 10 winning and six losing streaks of three or more games.

Rick Camp, 12-9, was the winning pitcher, his first triumph since July 29. Reliever Ron Reed, 3-4, was the loser.

Gary Matthews smashed a two-run homer in the eighth for the Phillies, his 14th of the year.

Astros 2, Mets 0 Knuckleballer Joe Niekro baffled the Mets on four hits to record his second shutout and ninth complete game of the season. He raised his record to 12-9.

Houston got the decisive run in the second inning when Art Howe drew a walk from right-hander Pat Zachry and went to third on Tony Scott's single. He scored when Zachry unleashed a wild pitch to Niekro.

Zachry, 6-6, allowed only five hits before relieved by Charlie Puleo in the eighth. His lifetime record against the Astros dipped to 1-11.

Reds 6, Expos 2

The Reds, who have been in a slumber all season, have finally come to life. The victory over the Expos was the eighth in the last 12 games for Cincinnati.

Pitcher Frank Pastore, 7-9, helped his cause with his first major league home run, a solo shot in the second. Dan Driessen smashed a two-run homer, his 12th of the year, to give the Reds a 4-0 lead in the first inning.

Montreal got its runs on Warren Cromartie's 11th homer of the year, a two-run shot in the eighth. Bill Gullickson, 10-10, was the losing pitcher.
