Miraculous escape

A Pampa couple incredibly escaped serious injury Wednesday afternoon when a backhoe was dragged off a truck and fell on their car just north of the Hobart Street underpass. Mr. and Mrs. G.N. "Jack" Frost, of 1108 S. Sumner, were traveling north on Hobart when the backhoe struck the top of the underpass and was knocked off a truck driven by Dennis Ray Hays of Borger. Frost, 65, was uninjured and his wife, Louise, 57, was taken by ambulance to Coronado Community Hospital where she was treated for a bruise on her chest and released. Hayes was cited by Pampa police for failure to secure a load. Prophetically, a bumper sticker on the Frost vehicle asks,

Rowsey is not guilty in Pampa murder

By DAVID CHRISTENSON Staff Writer

Joseph Wayne Rowsey was found not guilty of murder Wednesday evening after only an hour and a quarter of deliberation by a 31st District Court

The whirlwind two - day trial ending with a sigh from Rowsey's wife Barbara when the 11 - man one - woman jury read the verdict at about 5:15 p.m. Rowsey, 40, was tried for the early morning Jan. 10 shooting of 42 - year old Janelle Freeman of Pampa. "I'm going back to work in the morning," Rowsey said when asked about his plans after the trial. "I have a lot of things piled up. Rowsey is an employee of J.Q. Russell Electric, Inc. of Skellytown, an oilfield service company.

In Wednesday's court action, Billy Freeman, the victim's husband, testified for the prosecution that Rowsey was acting "strange" when the Freeman couple and the Rowseys were visiting on Saturday, Jan. 9.

He said in Wednesday morning testimony that Rowsey held a .22 revolver at his throat and threatened to kill him, and later at about 4 p.m. shot Mrs. Freeman to death.

"He jumped up and said 'It's all your fault, Jan,' and then he shot her. Freeman said.

But Rowsey and his wife told a different story on the witness stand, saying that Billy Freeman shot his wife after a series of arguments about his

The two were sitting on a couch and talking about the job, said Mrs. Rowsey, when Freeman pointed the pistol at his own head.

The couple struggled over the gun, "he jerked it or something, or jumped back - that's when it happened," Mrs. Rowsey said.

"The gun went off?" asked defense attorney John T. White.

"Yes, sir," she said.

Upon questioning from the prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley, Rowsey admitted he had been convicted of manslaughter in Lee County, New Mexico in 1976.

"Yes, sir, that was self - defense," Rowsey replied to the question.

Rowsey said that incident took place in a bar, when "this guy jumped on me with a cue stick and tried to kill me."

Rowsey said the victim of that shooting had killed "two or three people" before.

In closing arguments, Hendley referred to that manslaughter conviction as a "track record" for Rowsey

After the Freeman murder, both Rowsey and Freeman were found wrestling for the gun, Hendley said, but Rowsey was "holding the business end of it, and you know he'll use it."

Defense attorney White said the judge in the case "did everything but give Mr. Rowsey a medal" for the New Mexico shooting.

He said that incident took place in an "oil patch bar." "These are not college graduates," White said. "These are not summa cum laudes from Harvard."

White's final argument was that Freeman, the prosecution's "chief witness," was a "smooth and accomplished liar."

"Mr. Freeman has a pattern for doing just what Mr. Rowsey said he White told the jury. "He has a pattern for attacking women, and children.

White called Freeman's ex - wife. Patricia Nagle, to the stand earlier in the trial.

Nagle claimed Freeman was "known everywhere I can think of as a liar" and that he once "ran me down with a pickup," breaking two of her ribs.

Freeman denied this incident, telling White "I don't know what you're talking about."

"Are you a peaceful man?" White asked.

"Most of the time I am," Freeman replied. Freeman admitted, however, that he pleaded guilty to aggravated assault in July 1981 when he was accused of threatening his wife, Patricia, and their child with a gun.

In Wednesday's testimony, however, Freeman denied he had ever held a gun on his family

White brought three character witnesses to the stand Wednesday afternoon to testify that Freeman's reputation was "not good. One of these witnesses, Clayton Meadows of Pampa, is an employee of J.Q. Russell Electric Inc., where Rowsey works.

The other two, Donald Slaybaugh and Forrest Ray Smith, both of Pampa, are employees of Harvester Electric.

During a break in the trial, Rowsey said he and Freeman had been friends for several years, but that Freeman is "a dangerous man."

Witnesses agreed on the events of Jan. 9 and 10, up until the death of Janelle Freeman, Hendley said.

According to all three accounts from the Rowseys and Freeman, the story began when the Freemans came to visit the Rowseys at about 1 p.m. Saturday.

Rowsey was working on his car at the time, installing a CB radio, and Billy Freeman helped him.

The two couples then "had some drinks and visited" at the Freeman residence, according to Barbara

There was some disagreement between the witnesses about the amount of alchohol consumed that evening.

Freeman testified that he had "six or seven" drinks in the 14 - hour period leading up to the shooting, and that his wife Janelle only had three drinks.

However, Dr. Ralph Erdmann, a pathologist testifying for the prosecution, said his autopsy of Mrs. Freeman showed a blood alchohol content of 0.1, meaning she had probably had three drinks within an hour before the shooting

Mrs. Rowsey testified that the couples had driven around town that evening.

Freeman said that he and Rowsey drove to a bar, and Rowsey put a gun in his belt before going there because "there might be some trouble."

Mrs. Rowsey denied this. Freeman said they did not find the man they were looking for at the bar, so

The Rowsevs testified that arguments ensued between Freeman and his wife there. They said Freeman told his wife how much he disliked his job and that he wanted to go back into the trucking business.

Rowsey said Freeman held the gun to his own head and threatened suicide several times, and that he later shot a hole in the kitchen ceiling of that house. Freeman denied the suicide threat, but admitted he shot the ceiling. When questioned about that shot, he said he did it to bring Rowsey "back to his senses" after Rowsey held his .22 pistol, kept in the Rowsey bedroom, to Freeman's throat and threatened to "blow my head off." "I was trying to get some sense in his head. He was acting so ignorant," Freemn said. "I couldn't tell if he was completely serious or not, but I found out later he was." Mrs. Freeman went outside shortly before 4 a.m. Sunday morning to start the Freeman's car, according to all witnesses.

When she came back, Mrs. Rowsey said, the Freeman couple began arguing again while they sat on one of the two living room couches.

Mrs. Rowsey testified that her husband was sitting awake on the other couch.

She said the Freemans' argument led to another suiciee threat, and that a fight over the gun ended with the

Rowsey was held because "all our evidence pointed to him," Police Chief

J.J. Ryzman said today. Hendley said he did not know why the decision was made by the jury to acquit

"I don't have any idea," he said, but admitted "it was a weak case."

Hendley said all the evidence the District Attorney's office had was presented, and there is no option for future action. Rowsey said, while waiting for the jury decision, "That's one thing I couldn't understand, why there wasn't more investigation. But Hendley and Ryzman disagreed.

"We did our job, and the police did their job, and the jury did theirs," Hendley said If he had to prosecute the trial in court again, he said, "I'd have done it the same way.'

Pampa woman robbed at gunpoint at the bank

By DAVID CHRISTENSON Staff Writer

Pampa police today are investigating a Wednesday evening armed robbery of a Pampa woman

Police said today a man wearing a ski mask made off with an undetermined amount of money and checks after holding the woman at gunpoint at the night depository at First National Bank

At 9:47 p.m., police reported, they were notified by Dena Wagner of Pampa that she had been robbed.

Wagner, an employee of Stuart's Dress Shop in the Pampa Mall, told police she went to the bank to deposit the till money from the shop after closing time.

As she approached the drive - up window, police said, she was stopped by a man wearing a ski mask and carrying a handgun.

The man pointed the gun through the driver's side window and demanded the money from Wagner. After taking the cash and checks, the robber fled east on Kingsmill Street on Officer Richard Pack and Sergeant

John Bennett responded to the call. Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said a search was conducted of the area on foot and with patrol cars, but no suspect or further evidence was found. Police were unable to get a more detailed description of the man's clothing or the gun. Ryzman said today that the method of the robbery does not match previous crimes in Pampa, and the incident remains under investigation.

Prairie dogs seem to be only plague victims

By JEFF LANGLEY

Staff Writer The Texas Department of Health has dusted with poison the bubonic plague - infested prairie dog dens near Pampa's Ingersoll - Rand Plant.

Some of the dens are deserted, following the deaths of several of the animals which had contracted the disease, according to Regional Director Dr. Henry Moritz.

The state health department confirmed the disease in the prairie dog village here August 13th.

Moritz said wildlife and health officials have cooperated in attempting to kill any disease - carrying fleas which may have remained in the empty prairie dog burrows.

Precautions against the disease have been taken here, and the medical community has been notified to be aware of symptoms of the plague.

The disease killed thousands centuries ago, but today it is curable with antibiotics, when properly diagnosed, according to health officials.

Also, a case of bubonic plague in humans or domestic animals has never been reported in the Texas Panhandle. according to the health officials.

While the disease is reported yearly in New Mexico, only two deaths from plague have ever been reported in the state of Texas, according to Regional Veterinarian Dr. John Galbreaith. Galbreaith also says he believes the fleas which transmitted the disease to the prairie dogs here are "species specific," meaning they probably will not bite a human, said However, Moritz said the prairie dogs may not "always

"You get them cold enough and hungry and give them a warm bedy, and they may bite (a human)," Moritz said.

and he came to Del City for treatment. The health department vet said the only death "truly indigenous" to Texas was reported this year. Galbreaith said the victim who died this year contracted the disease while skinning rabbits northwest of Odessa. He said the disease has previously been confirmed in wild animals in the Panhandle as early as 1972. Galbreaith said outbreaks in prairie dogs were confirmed in Dallam County in both 1972 and 78.

Other counties previously affected were Hartley, Oldham and Northwest Potter, according to the vet. All contacted health officials do not expect any human health problems in connection with the prairie dog deaths.

The feeling was confirmed by long - time, retired Amarillo public health official, Dr. G. Mason Kahn. "I don't think there is any (threat to humans)," Kahn said

Still, local public health director Dr. Wil Beck has suggested pet owners take several precautions: (1) Buy flea collars for your pets...especially cats.

(2) Keep your pets clean.
(3) Spray the house with flea killer.

(4) If a pet acts strangely, take him to the vet. Symptons of bubonic plague in humans include soreness and swelling of the lymph glands in the neck, face, legs, groin or underarm areas, with accompanying fever.

Moritz said the state health department will continue to keep the disease "under surveillance."

Lawyer accused of plotting to destroy an Arkansas restaurant

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An attorney who served as an aide to the late Sen. John L. McClellan is accused of conspiring to defraud an insurance company by arranging for the destruction of a Monticello restaurant. the U.S. attorney says.

A federal grand jury named M.J. Probst, 42, who lives near Hot Springs, in a 14-count indictment, U.S. Attorney George Proctor said in a news conference Wednesday.

Proctor said Probst, who practices in Pine Bluff, also is accused of receiving money he knew had been stolen from banks in North Carolina, Missouri, Kansas, Ohio and Mississippi.

In addition to Probst, the indictment returned Aug. 17 names the restaurant owner Floyd E. Brown, Robert Loren Kendig and James Perry Williams, all of Pine Bluff. Proctor released the names during the news conference, but declined to comment further after reading a three-page statement.

"I will not be able to answer questions," Proctor said.

Four indicted for destruction

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - An attorney who served as an aide to would enter an innocent plea for Probst the late Sen. John L. McClellan is accused of conspiring to defraud an insurance company by arranging for the destruction of a Monticello restaurant, the U.S. attorney says. A federal grand jury named M.J. Probst, 42, who lives near Hot Springs, in a 14-count indictment, U.S. Attorney George Proctor said in a news conference Wednesday.

Proctor said Probst, who practices in Pine Bluff, also is accused of receiving money he knew had been stolen from banks in North Carolina, Missouri, Kansas, Ohio and Mississippi.

In addition to Probst, the indictment returned Aug. 17 names the restaurant owner Floyd E. Brown, Robert Loren Kendig and James Perry Williams, all of Pine Bluff. Proctor released the names during the news conference, but declined to comment further after reading a three-page statement.

"I will not be able to answer questions," Proctor said. U.S. Magistrate Robert Faulkner released Probst on a $50,000 personal bond. Probst is to enter a plea Tuesday. His attorney, Bart Mullis of Pine Bluff, said Wednesday that he Probst declined comment Wednesday.

Besides serving on McClellan's staff, Probst was on the campaign executive committee of Sen. J.W. Fulbright when Fulbright lost to Dale Bumpers in 1974. At the time, Probst was a member of the state Claims Commission and had been appointed to the post by Bumpers, then governor.

Proctor said warrants were served Wednesday on Probst and Brown, 48. Williams, 61, and Kendig, 43, are in a federal correctional facility in Springfield, Mo., for a series of bank robberies and related bombings.

All four are charged with conspiracy to defraud Granite State Insurance Co. by conspiring to burn Brown's restaurant, Proctor said. The scheme is alleged to have existed from Feb. 12 through June 8.

"Probst received a check for $2,500 from Brown on Feb. 16. 1982, as partial payment for the burning of the restaurant," Proctor said. "Brown gave Probst a key to Brown's restaurant on the same day. The restaurant was burned on Feb. 22, 1982, and Probst was paid a final payment of $2,500 on June 1, 1982." Several of the counts against the attorney deal with the collection of the insurance money on the burned building. Also, the indictment says that between Feb. 10, 1981, and March 8, 1982, Probst received money he knew was stolen from banks in Greensboro, N.C., Springfield, Mo., Olathe, Kan., Huber Heights, Ohio, Gahanna, Ohio, Southhaven, Miss., and Carthage, Mo.

Port is great, but tax waivers problem

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — City and Phillips County officials don't want to downplay their enthusiasm about a $75 million river port and industrial park project, but they say they're worried tax waivers for industry may threaten government

Developers say the project on the Mississippi River will create 60,000 jobs. But with tax waivers, officials say services like schools and sewers may not be able to handle the extra people moving in.

'This port will bring a massive influx of people here, and we sure want to have some plans ready," Mayor Thad Kelly said. West Helena Mayor Bob Teeter said he has projected a population increase from 11,367 to 33,000 in 20 years. "We've got to sit down and do some serious planning," he said.

DMC Corp. of North Little Rock has signed a contract with the Phillips County Port Authority to develop the harbor and industrial park with private financing. DMC President Bill Schwarz said a tax waiver will be "one very important part of the total package we will offer to industry." The exemptions are needed, he said, to compete with other sunbelt states doing the same thing.

He said a payment in lieu of taxes by the industries in the early stages of development would be devoted primarily to retiring the bond issue financing construction of the port and Local governments will get whatever money isn't needed to pay off the bonds, Schwarz said. "In a period of years, that amount could be considerable given the amount of new industries we expect to locate there," he said 'There will be a period of strain for two or three years after the development has been completed when services are having to be expanded and the port is not producing that much Negotiations on tax breaks will be conducted one industry at a time, Schwarz said, and "the county government will have the final word on whether to accept any package we come up with, including the tax waiver provisions The reassurances haven't quelled the fears of government Superintendent Harold Chorley said he's excited about the development plans. "But I have to dilute my excitement somewhat with a general concern for the school system and where we are going from here," he said. "I'm bothered that we might have a large influx of new students with little or no increase in revenue, and that could give us problems.

The industrial park is to have its own water and sewage system. but Helena and West Helena already have some nrohlems with those services

Teeter said something will need to be done about West The only problem on the first Helena's sewer system, which is running at 75 percent

Workers take command of own destiny

ATHENS, Texas (AP) - Things looked bleak last month when this East Texas town's major employer, Curtis Mathes Corp., announced it was shutting down its local operation, a television manufacturing plant.

Officers of the Dallas-based company said they were getting out of the television-making business and all 850 jobs in Athens would be lost

But the economic disaster was averted when plant employees took matters into their own hands. Ray Harvey, resigned as president of Curtis Mathes' sales company, formed his own corporation, bought the plant, retained most of the employees and is now making TV sets.

His major customer? Curtis Mathes. "These people are giving it all they've got." Harvey said Wednesday as he strolled along the production line. "With their attitude, we can't help but

The Curtis Mathes decision to close the plant was based on economics company officials said their domestically made sets were too expensive. The company decided to buy its television sets eleswhere while maintaining its own distribution and retail outlets.

The new owners have an advantage of lower labor costs than Curtis Mathes had. By an overwhelming majority, union members at the plant approved a new contract at salaries as much as 27 percent below the old wage.

"We almost sank," said Benny Garza, a union official at the plant, "but now everybody is pulling together to keep it afloat.

"The workers have really risen to the occasion," Harvey agreed. Productivity is coming up. It's got to come up some more for us to have a viable business, but it's coming up every day.

"Everybody had to take a cut, me included. I took the largest," he added. Despite the pay reduction, everybody involved speaks of the new operation with enthusiasm, including Curtis Mathes officials.

"It has only been a month, but everything seems to be working quite well," said Curtis Mathes spokesman Jeff Lightburn. "The quality of the product is excellent."

Harvey said he now employs about 600 workers, while Curtis Mathes maintains about 200 people at the plant to handle shipping, accounting, computer operation and warranty repairs.

An Athens businessman C. F. Hawn - to paraphrase Mark Twain - said the reports of the town's economic demise are premature. "Everybody I run into . . . said 'I see Athens is closing up.' They're making a graveyard out of it and the truth is we never missed a beat.'

Chrysler Corp. 'on a roll' again

It wasn't quite rags to riches, but the saga of the Chrysler Corp.'s recovery is a success story nevertheless. Three years after nearly going bankrupt, Chrysler earned second - quarter profits of $107 million and will likely remain solidly in the black, at least for the next year. It looks, as Chrysler President Lee Iacocca gleefully told newsmen, as if Chrysler is "on a

The credit for the salvation goes to many: To lacocca and other executives for making the business decisions (among them, to slash half of Chrysler's work force) that guided the company through rough times; to the United Auto Workers for forgoing wage hikes, a decision that will cost the average worker nearly $4,000 this year; and the American public (through Congress) for subsidizing Chrysler with a $1.2 billion loan guarantee in 1979 rescued Chrysler

Chrysler can't sit back and start counting its money yet. Its 10 percent share of the market places it third among domestic companies behind General Motors and Ford. The combination of the recession and stiff competition from foreign countries has cut deeply into the

Other problems are unique to Chrysler. It must recover from the effects of a cumulative $3.5 billion loss between 1978 and 1981. WHAT ALL THAT FUSS

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) - No contemporary politician has been more vociferous than President Reagan on the subject of "unelected bureaucrats" within the federal government making decisions that adversely affect the country's citizens.

"A bureaucracy which cannot be removed from office by our votes. . invades every facet of our lives, Reagan said in a 1976 campaign lament that he has reiterated in various forms throughout the ensuing six years.

But the president's appointees on the White House staff and inside the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission have been working for almost two years to undermine the federal law that establishes ceiling prices for natural gas.

nave special significance for the millions of residential consumers of natural gas who provide the fuel's producers with more than one - quarter of their rapidly growing revenues, now aproaching $450 billion annually.

Relaxing or removing the controls on the price of natural gas requires congressional action to amend or rescind the Natural gas policy Act of 1978, a move the president has repeatedly endorsed.

But public hostiltiy toward the concept of decontrol - and the escalating consumer prices that inevitably would accompany that action - led the White House to announce last March that "the president. . . will not ask Congress to accelerate the current schedule of partial natural - gas decontrol" even though Reagan believes that "decontrol would be good for the American

The Texas lawyer picked by the president to be FERC chairman, C. M Butler III, candidly proclaimd at his Senate confirmation hearing his belief that "all natural - gas prices should be decontroled at the wellhead.'

In a subsequent newspaper interview. Butler insisted that "the consumer obtains no benefit from continuing price controls." In fact, virtually all reliable estimates suggest that decontrol would produce massive price increases.

When the federal law was passed in 1978, the average wellhead price for natural gas was 94 cents per million British thermal units. Because the law authorities gradual decontrol and includes several escalator clauses, the average price last year was $1.83 per million Btu. Full decontrol, according to most projections, would increase the cost to somewhere between $3.50 and $3.75 per million Btu — twice the curent

Butler and his four colleagues on the FERC have an opportunity to circumvent both the law and Congress while achieving "backdoor decontrol" because the 1978 statute establishes approximately two dozen different categories of natural gas, each with a separate authorized price ceiling

In addition, the law gives the FERC authority to create new categories in cases where producing natural gas presents "extraordinary risks and costs" and to assign high "incentive" prices to those classifications

Even before Reagan was sworn in as president, David A. Stockman, now director of the Office of Management and Budget, told a gup of industry representatives:

'There's a lot of discretion available to the commission (in) devising additional categories of high - cost or incetive gas that could, for all practical purposes, be deregulated.

In August 1980, the commission authorized premium prices for natural gas obtained from geologic formations knows as "tight sands." In December 1981, it took similar action affecting natural gas from offshore wells deeper than 300 feet.

Various additional schemes to manipulate the classifications - and further increase prices - reportedly are under consideration by the commission

The Citizen - Labor Energy Coalition, a Washington - based public - interest group, estimates that those proposals would increase the price of natural gas by $27 billion to $66 billion during the next three years.

"Consumers would be forced to pay at least several hundred dollars each year just to heat their homes," says Robert M. Brandon, the coalition's executive director. "Many Americans simply will not be able to afford these Exactly. One of the reasons kids are getting in so much trouble these days is that there are no candy stores to hang around any more. When they tear down a delicatessen, the tangy smells of potato salad, salamis, corned beef and dill pickles are lost forever. Unless you're trying to make a loan, no one ever salivates in a bank.

"The situation is more crucial than anvone thinks." Hubbard continued. "At the rate they're tearing down consumer stores and replacing them with banks, we estimate that in 10 years it will be impossible to buy a loaf of bread in this country. What good is it to get 7 percent on your money if you starve to death?"

"Then what you're saying is that it isn't a question of not taking it with you. It's a question of staying alive while you have it," I said.

"Somehting like that,"Hubbard agreed. "We're trying to get the public to wake up to the fact that it's better to have a store that sells screwdrivers than a bank that gives away alaum clocks."

"What's the slution?" "A government decree that a bank has to supply the same services as the stores it tore down. # Firm's subsidiary to be blacklisted

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan plans to blacklist the French subsidiary of an American firm if it ships equipment to the Soviet Union in defiance of his pipeline embargo, informed sources say.

The action would avoid a direct confrontation with the French government, which has ordered Dresser France, a subsidiary of Dresser Industries Inc. of Dallas, to ship three compressors to the Soviets for use in building the 3,500-mile Siberian natural gas pipeline.

The United States prohibited U.S. firms from providing equipment for the pipeline. Because of the two governments' orders, Dresser Industries says it is caught "between a rock and a hard place."

According to well-placed officials here, Reagan is ready to put Dresser France on a blacklist if it ships the equipment. That would mean the French subsidiary would be barred from importing specific items and technology from its parent firm - or from any other American suppliers of the same items.

One official, asking to remain anonymous, said this would prevent Dresser Industries from providing the banned items to its French subsidiary, but was "unlikely" to prevent the American firm from doing other Larry Speakes, a White House spokesman who is with Reagan in California, said, "The president is looking at some recommendations (and) there may be others during the course of the next few days.

Gold prices soaring

LONDON (AP) - Gold prices in Europe soared to their highest levels since last Dec. 18 in early trading today, jumping more than $17 an ounce from the overnight close. The dollar opened stronger against all major currencies.

Gold opened in London at an 8-month high of $415.25 an ounce, up sharply from $398 an ounce at the close Wednesday. The opening price in Zurich was $416.75 an ounce, up from

London's five major bullion dealers fixed their recommended mid-morning gold price at $417.50 an ounce, up from $401 at the previous fix. Dealers attributed gold's renewed surge, which overtook

New York's overnight close of $407.90 an ounce, to continuing effects of lower interest rates. They also cited increased Iran-Iraq tension in the Middle East. Gold had risen $70 in a week on declining interest rates until profit-taking pushed it back below $400 an ounce at the close ednesday in Europe. In Hong Kong, gold shot up $30.19 an ounce to close at $429.51

Cities Service board accepts Occidential offer

NEW YORK (AP) - Occidental Petroleum Corp., spurned twice in a courtship of Cities Service Co., sweetened its offer by an estimated $500 million and won Cities' consent in a corporate marriage to create the eighth-largest U.S. oil company

Cities' board of directors accepted the revised Occidental offer, valued by analysts at $4.3 billion, at an emergency meeting Wednesday night that culminated nearly two weeks of bargaining and wrangling between the two companies.

Occidental had offered to buy 49 percent of Cities stock from stockholders based on $50 a share. That offer, which began Aug. 19, was called inadequate Monday by Cities directors. Occidental said it is continuing the tender offer at the higher price. Under the agreement, Occidental would buy about 45 percent of Cities' common stock for $55 a share in cash, or a total of $1.9 billion. After a merger of the companies, Occidental said it would acquire the remaining shares by swapping a package of securities with a value estimated by analysts at $2.4 billion

The agreement is subject to review by either the Justice Department or the Federal Trade Commission and by shareholders of both companies. Gulf Oil Corp. backed out of an agreement to buy Cities for $4.8 billion earlier this month after the FTC raised antitrust objections.

Gulf's withdrawal sent Cities executives scrambling for another merger partner to avoid a collapse of its stock price. Cities stock did not trade Wednesday because of uncertainty about the outcome of the Cities board meeting. The stock closed Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange at $45 a share, up $2.25.

If the merger is completed, the new company would rank in annual sales just oGeneral Electric Co., making it the nation's 12th-biggest industrial concern and the eighth-largest oil company behind

Atlantic Richfield Co. Occidental currently is the 13th-largest oil company and Cities ranks No. 20.

Cities is attractive to many oil companies for its domestic oil and natural gas reserves, its gas pipeline subsidiary and its refining and marketing operations. The company operates a network of about 6,000 gasoline stations in the United States. Occidental has no gasoline marketing operations in Besides oil and gas, Occidental is involved in the coal, minerals, chemicals and agricultural industries. Last year it bought Iowa Beef Processors Inc. for $800 million of stock.

Occidental said it planned to operate Cities under its current name as a separate subsidiary. Cities would remain at its headquarters in Tulsa, Okla., Occidental said.

The senior management of Cities also would be kept. Occidental said, and Cities Chairman Charles Waidelich would become an Occidental director and a vice chairman of the parent company

The inspirers of the excesses expect bloodshed. The authorities have enough forces at their disposal to guarantee peace and safety in Polish towns. Public order will be maintained." Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak said Wednesday in a televised speech.

Underground Solidarity leaders have called for protests this month. culminating with nationwide peaceful demonstrations on Aug. 31, the anniversary of the formation of the Soviet bloc's first labor union independent of Communist Party control. It was suspended and most of its leaders interned when martial law was imposed Dec. 13.

Although the union leaders called for daily protests in the two weeks before the anniversary, 1,000 or less demonstrators turned out in Warsaw each day last week. And after the riot police rolled up water cannon each night to threaten the crowd, closed off Victory Square with fences and warned repeatedly of stern action, there have been no protest gatherings this week.

The government, however, has stepped up its warning campaign. A special government commission met Wednesday and said underground leaders had organized "fighting groups" for an "open conflict" with police. "It is stated that these are supposed to be peaceful demonstrations, so-called marches of agreement," said Kiszczak in his TV speech. "So why are there preparations with crowbars, sticks, bottles filled with gasoline and spikes to puncture tires? 'Medical centers are supposed to be organized as well as bring first aid to unavoidable victims of the incidents."

The official news agency PAP said authorities in Szczecin, one of the major Baltic ports, threatened to close the shipyards there because tensions increased after 39 shipyard workers were fired for their part in protests

Meanwhile, 200,000 Poles assembled Wednesday win the southern city of Czestochowa to celebrate the 600th anniversary of the arrival in Poland of the Black Madonna, the country's holiest icon. It was thought to be the largest crowd that has assembled in eight months of martial law.

The celebration was led by the bishop of Czectochowa, Stefan Baryla, instead of Pope John Paul II. The pontiff had planned to attend, but the government apparently feared his presence would provide a focus for opposition to the Communist regime and touch off a nationwide uprising.

Several hundred thousand more pilgrims were expected to arrive today for a Mass honoring the icon, which the Paulite monks brought from Hungary on Aug. 26, 1382. The portrait, also known as Our Lady of Czestochowa, is housed in the hilltop Jasna Gora reported to police in America declined very slightly in 1981, the first such drop in four years, FBI Director William H. Webster reported today.

Nation's serious crime drops

Last year, the total number of reported serious crimes was 13,290,300, down just 5,100 from the 1980 figures, according to the FBI Uniform Crime Reports, which are based on data submitted by law enforcement agencies covering 97 percent of the U.S. population.

Because of an increase in population, the crime rate declined 1.7 percent, from 5,899.9 crimes for every 100,000 residents in 1980 to 5,799.9 crimes in 1981.

The tiny decline, which amounted to the stabilization of crime totals virtually at 1980 levels, came in a year in which Attorney General William French Smith made violent crime his top priority.

He proposed a series of tough new rules for criminal defendants, designed to put more of them in jail and keep them there longer. But nearly all these proposals are still awaiting action in Congress.

The FBI reports includes murder, robbery, rape, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft.

The last annual decline in overall serious crime came in 1977, when the totals were down 3.3 percent from 1976. In 1980, crime jumped 9.4 percent over the previous year.

"The leveling off of reported crime in 1981 ... is welcome news," Webster said. "We must remember, however, that 1980 was the peak year for lawlessness in our nation and that this high was maintained in 1981."

Furthermore, a Justice Department study begun in the mid-1970s has learned through interviews with tens of thousands of Americans each year that one-third of all violent crimes are not reported to the police, and thus never show up in the FBI figures.

We expected to find some difference in memory, but we found none," Blount told a news briefing at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

'Caffeine's effects on memory are different from the effects of depressants and different from common beliefs about caffeine," said the researchers.

The study involved the volunteers learning standard classroom material in an hour-long session and being tested on it 48 hours later.

The students, divided into four groups, drank two cups of regular or decaffeinated coffee during each session but didn't know which type they were getting.

One group drank decaffeinated coffee on both occasions; a second had regular coffee on both; a third got decaffeinated during learning and regular brew at test time; and the final group had regular coffee first and decaffeinated later.

"No significant effects were found for the recognition of concepts, recall of pictures, recall of parenthetical case studies, or recall of interest catching anecdotes," the researchers said.

However, an effect was noted in the recognition of the exact wording of sentences, but it depended on personality type.

Meanwhile, another researcher said preliminary results of a study she worked on showed babies born to mothers who consume even moderate amounts of caffeine are slightly premature and have poorer muscular reflexes than other infants.

Bomb found on Pam Am plane in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) -Cleaning crews found an explosive device in the empty cabin of a Pan Am jumbo jet Wednesday, two weeks after a bomb aboard a Hawaii-bound Pan Am flight killed a young passenger, police reported.

There was no immediate indication the incidents were related. A police spokesman said federal police removed the plastic-wrapped black box from the Boeing 747 and took it to a state police yard where the explosives were detonated.

But an airline spokesman insisted the device was deactivated - not detonated — and there was no

Dear Abby

Decision to 'hold' throws eager fiancee off balance

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 and John (not his real name) is 39. When we became engaged last March, I was thrilled because I'd been waiting for him to propose for two years. We agreed on an October wedding, but I went ahead and made all the arrangements — right down to having the invitations printed.

I've been paying for everything myself, but last night I asked John if he could help some. That's when he said some friends advised him to ask me to sign a statement saying everything he had before our marriage will be his alone. I told him I would sign anything and gladly. Then he said he still loves me but he wants to put our wedding on "hold" for a while!

Abby, we've lived together for nearly two years, so we're not exactly strangers. I love John and don't want to push him into anything he's not comfortable with, but our plans are made and the date is set. What should I do besides cry?

LOSING HOPE

DEAR LOSING: Be grateful that John admitted that he's not ready for marriage. (He's not.) And since he suggested that you put the wedding on "hold," don't you be left holding the bag. Let John know that he's expected to share the expenses that have already been incurred.

DEAR ABBY: What does a mother do when she suspects her son has become a drug dealer? He doesn't fit the description of what one pictures a drug dealer to be. He is educated, clean-cut, well-mannered and dresses beautifully. He's 22 and still in college.

I wonder how he is able to drive an expensive new car, live in a beautiful apartment, travel first class and buy expensive clothes and gifts without working. He tells me he has done well on some "investments," but he knows I don't believe him.

Do I let him make his own mistakes? The price could be very high. He's my son and, of course, I love him.

NO NAME OR TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: If your son has chosen not to reveal the source of his mysterious income, there is nothing you can do about it. Eventually you will learn — to your sorrow, or your relief.

Blackheads, hardened sebum deposits that clog pores and turn black when they come into contact with the air, are difficult - but not impossible - to remove. Here's how: you'll need several strips of cotton, a good magnifying mirror and some astringent. First, cleanse your face and hands thoroughly, rinsing hands with alcohol. Now, put some astringent on 2 cotton strips. squeezing out the excess. and wrap a strip around each forefinger. Place your wrapped fingers on each side of the black head, and squeeze gently upward and outward — the spot should come out. If not, move your fingers slightly and try again. Although quilting purists may object, home sewers are incorporating modern methods of machine stitching into the old tradition of quilting and adding some of their own creative touches in the process.

Carole Fantel, education director for White Sewing Machine Company, offers some suggestions for beginning quilters.

Machine quilting saves time and gives you the chance to make gifts and clothing without much of the tedious handwork associated with authentic quilting. the fashion world's emphasis on the '20s. Labeled American Shapes, the new bobs are featured in medium and above the shoulder lengths. Short cuts feature modernized shingle shaping on the nape together with volumized tops.

Special effects lift hair volume off the scalp, creating graduated free - flowing texture.

"The popular bobs and shingled cuts of the '20s were the winning shapes of that decade. The influence of award winning films about the '20s has created a fashion focus on winning looks for fall - winter, both in apparel and hair design," says Doris Williams, styles director for the association of 50,000 cosmetologists and hair stylists

'The beauty of the volumized bob and short, shingled cuts is their versatility," says Ms. Williams. "They can be styled to reflect a '20s look or combed into fresh, new shapes that enhance architectural fashion shapes, the new mini skirts as well as over - the - calf dresses and riding pant looks of today." To achieve the new texturized looks on the bobs and shingled cuts, cosmetologists and hair stylists will be using clippers, thinning shears, razors and scissors, Ms. Williams explained. Perming is described as a most important ingredient of the bobbed and shingled looks, allowing more versatility and

The '20s influence also moves into male hairfashion looks for fall - winter, calling for a well proportioned American Shape.

Extra volume in the front allows the versatility of wearing the hair down over the forehead or swept back away from the face for a more formal look. The style can be worn with or without a part. Additional volume in the male American Shape is achieved through special texturized perming techniques.

He did time in infamous Huntsville prison

By Mark C. Smith

WHITTIER, Calif. (NEA)

James Dooley's memories of prison life crystallize through prisms of violence and debasement, guilt and survival.

The ex-convict — now a veterans' counselor at East Los Angeles Community College — remembers clearly his three years in Texas' Huntsville Prison during the early 1970s.

The tatto "rebel" arches on his arm as he flexes his muscles, recalling the time he was nearly raped in a prison shower, remembering the hard hand taking hold of him and the rough voice saying simply, "Boy, you're mine tonight."

He reflects on his decision to become a "row tender," a thankless trustee job that often put him on the side of the prison establishment and resulted in his being stabbed on three occasions by enraged inmates.

Dooley slowly shakes his head and confesses to the times he "beat the hell" out of other prisoners, his voice a confused mixture of shame and pride. He remembers when he forced a guard to open a "snitch's" cell, allowing about a dozen prisoners to gang-rape and pummel the 18-year-old informer.

"It was a hard time, you can't believe how hard," he says frankly. "My life was bad in Huntsville. I feel bad that I inflicted pain on people and that pain was inflicted on me. But it was a threatened existence; it was all a question of survival. I survived."

Dooley's memories form the basis for his book "Inside Huntsville Prison," which he wrote and published himself. The roughly written tale of prison life has become a textbook for a few local colleges and was picked up for national distribution by the Dalton bookstore chain.

The book traces the events beginning in 1970 when an act of violence propelled Dooley into the Texas penal system.

Just returned from a special forces tour of Vietnam at the age of 19, Dooley beat a man who made a sexual pass at him. The attack was savage, and he has no excuses.

"A rage within me took over. I don't know if it was because I had been in Vietnam, or because of the kind of man that he was..." he Dooley was charged with robbery and assault, which was later changed to assault with intent to rob, his first offense. He was sentenced to 10 years at Huntsville, the most notorious penal colony in Texas.

Collection headed for Metropolitan Museum of Art

NEW YORK (AP) — The art collection of the late Scofield Thayer — including major works by Picasso, Braque, Matisse, Bonnard, and Chagall — has been be queathed to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the museum says.

The collection has been on loan for more than 50 years to the Worcester, Mass. Art Museum in Thayer's native city, and chief curator James Welu said Tuesday the transfer to the Metropolitan 'leaves a major dent in our art of that period.''

However, the Worcester museum is not expected to contest the will made by Thayer in 1925, six years before he lent the museum the artwork.

Welu said officials at the museum "always knew there was a possibility the works would not stay with us."

Thayer died July 9 at the age of 92 and probate of the will is expected next month.
The collection, valued many years ago at $10 million, is expected to arrive at the Metropolitan next year.

Among the works are Picasso's "Mother and Child Near a Fountain," painted in 1901 during his Blue Period; Bonnard's "The Dressing Room"; Chagall's "The Marketplace"; a Braque "Standing Figure" and a painting-within-a-painting by Matisse, "Nasturtiums and the Dance, II."

William Lieberman, curator of 20th century art for the Metropolitan, described the acquisition as "surely a major collection" and said it "greatly complements our holdings of Picasso and learned while on a tour of Korea—held him in good stead. He quickly gained a reputation as a man "not to mess with."

But time spent in the cell or inside prison grounds made up only a small part of Dooley's day. The rest was spent working in the fields, turning the hard soil for planting and then harvesting the tall yellow-green corn, all under the wary eyes of guards armed with shotguns and whips.

Dooley was unprepared for the demanding all-day work. After his first day in the fields, he returned to his cell and shook uncontrollably for several minutes, too exhausted to eat.

"I don't think I would have survived if I hadn't become a row tender," he

As he began to fight more often, Dooley found the guards were noticing his ability to defend himself and the respect he received from the other convicts. One day he was taken out of the fields and told that his new job was row tender, a position both sought after and despised by hard-core pris-

His responsibilities were to break up fights, maintain the cell block for the guards and "snitch" on subversive prisoners. While Dooley easily became the administration's enforcer, he maintains that he never broke the prisoners' code by becoming an informant.

"I wouldn't have done it even if I wanted to," he says. "The code is an important part of prison life. You can get in big trouble, even lose your life, if you are a snitch. The other prisoners knew I was working with the guards and some didn't like it, but they also knew that I wouldn't tell on them and they accepted my position."

Dooley admits his complicity with the Huntsville administration allowed him to become a kingpin in his cell block. It became, as he puts it, "my cell block, my world."

His cooperation eventually led to an early parole in 1974. After a succession of menial jobs, he decided to attend college. He received a degree in criminal justice and eventually became a veterans' counselor.

It hasn't exactly been a big money-maker. Dooley has received about $5,000 demne from sales in the six months since he began providing Dalton with copies. But profits aren't what prompt-

WASHINGTON (NEA) -These are not the best of times for most of the men and women in the trucking industry, as the recession has drastically reduced the amount of goods being transported from place to place.

But times have never been better for the leaders of the Teamsters Union.

For many years the overthe-road truck driver has been the backbone of the Teamsters Union, in image if not in numbers. How is this "modern American cowboy" on his 18-wheeler doing these days?

Not very well, says a trucker named Jim ("no last

New Jersey Turnpike. Jim is one of the so-called "owner-operators" who use their own rigs to haul other people's trailers across the

"There's not that much freight moving these days," said Jim, "and there's a lot of guys like me willing to move it. So it's become a seller's market.

"The trucking companies and freight companies can pay what they want and find someone willing to drive.

to make enough to keep their rigs."

Jim described his own situation: "I had to buy a new rig a couple of years ago. I paid about $60,000 for it. By the time you add up my monthly payment, insurance and routine maintenance, I'm out about $2,700 a month.

When I'm on the road, I pay about $175 a day for fuel plus $25 or so in tolls and $20 for food. So, my actual out-of-pocket is about $220 a day on the road before I have earned anything to pay my bills - let alone earn anything for myself. "Tonight I'm on my way to Chicago. You can figure that I will spend a day on this run. What am I being paid? $550."

He noted that the compa-nies are paying just $1,200 for a four-day run from the East Coast to Los Angeles.

"The way things are today, if you're lucky and can keep rolling, which probably seven out of 10 drivers are not able to do you may make enough to make your rig payments," said Jim. "But you sure won't be feeding your family."
Recently many trucking companies have signed new contracts freezing or even cutting the pay of their hard-pressed drivers. "For years the said Jim. "Now they (the companies) are using the economy to get back at us. They're sticking it to us, and we have got to go along with

But the Teamsters Union officials who are negotiating those lower contracts are feeling no financial pain. The union has never broadcast the salaries of its officials. But the Labor Department now requires that those salaries be revealed in reports filed with the federal govern-

It's still hard to figure out exactly how much the Teamsters' officials are earning because many of them hold more than one union position. Some have four or five paying jobs -at the local level, the district level, the "joint council" level and the national level. Therefore, an investigator cannot determine the true salaries of the union's hierarchy without wading through a mountain of reports. Teamsters for a Democratic Union, an Interestingly, International President Roy Williams ranks third in salary among the members of his union.

Teamsters for a Demo cratic Union calculated that Williams' five union posi-tions netted him $256,000 last year. Two Cleveland-area officials, Harold Friedman and Jackie Presser, made $426,000 and $353,000 respectively. Friedman held four union positions while Presser held six.

Will Maine voters ban nuclear power?

By Robert J. Wagman

PORTLAND, Maine (NEA) — Maine will vote again this November on the fate of its only nuclear power plant.

The heated battle has already begun between proponents and opponents of a referendum that would phase out the Maine Yankee plant over a five-year period ending in 1987. Maine Yankee has been in operation for 10 years. About 30 percent of the elec-tricity sold in the state is generated by the plant, which is located at Bailey's Point near Wiscassett.

The force behind the measure is the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee, which gathered more than 35,000 signatures to place the issue on the ballot.

This is not the first time that the state's voters have been asked to kill Maine Yankee.

In 1980, a measure calling for an immediate shutdown of the plant gained an impressive 42 percent of the vote. Its defeat was credited to the massive advertising campaign funded by the utility companies and corpo-rations that favor cheap power.
The key issue raised by foes of the 1980 referendum was that an immediate shutdown would leave the state short of power. The propo-nents of this year's referendum hope to have silenced that objection with their five-year phase-out.

The utility companies and the nuclear industry are tak-ing the new initiative very seriously

The 11 power companies that own shares of the plant have banded together under the banner of the Committee to Save Maine Yankee. They are already saturating the state's media with their message.
"Polls show the issue is very close," says Peter Thompson, a spokesman for Central Maine Power Co., which owns the largest share of the plant. Another source reveals that a recent "limited" poll commissioned by the Committee to Save Maine Yankee showed the two sides running "almost dead even." The initial advertising suggests that economic issues will be at the heart of this year's campaign on behalf of the plant. One group of advertise-ments features businessmen saying that their companies will not be able to expand if Maine Yankee is closed. Other ads cite prediction that electricity costs might increase as much as 35 percent if more expensive sources of power generation must be used to replace nuclear. Businessmenthese ads warn that the higher costs might force them to close their plants.

Spokesmen for the Referendum Committee dis-pute these cost estimates and accuse the power com-panies of using scare

Ed Schlick, a spokesman for the Referendum Committee, says that state officials have estimated the cost increase at between 15 percent and 25 percent, depending upon the amount of replacement power that will be oil-fired and the cost of oil at the time. The Referendum Committee thinks that even this estimate is high.

The chief argument of the referendum's supporters is that the increased cost of power would be small compared with the potential cost of an accident at the plant. They note that Maine Yanhee was one of eight plants cited by the Nuclear Regu-latory Commission last year as having brittle reactor vessels that could be subject to dangerous cracking.

A shortage of funds is the major problem facing proponents of the referendum. They have raised less that $100,000 and must rely on free media coverage at press conferences to get their message to the voters.

Meanwhile, their well-financed adversaries are expected to spend more than $1 million to try to keep the Nuclear power initatives will be on the ballots of at least five states this November. But the Maine referendum is by far the mos

L talks stall

WASHINGTON (AP) - National Football League players and owners appear headed on a collision course that could force cancellation of the final week of the exhibition schedule or delay the start of regular season.

Representatives for both sides, meeting for the first time in more than a month in an effort to reach a new collective bargaining agreement and avert a threatened walkout broke off negotiations Wednesday after just four hours of

About the only thing the negotiators could agree upon was the lack of progress at the meeting.

"The session was best decribed as futile," said Jack Donlan, the owners chi)62iator.

"It is apparent the bargaining process is not working atst." echoed Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association.

The failure to get the talks moving led Garvey to call a halt to the session and order an emergency meeting of the union's executive committee for Sunday in Chicago.

The committee, which includes union president Gene Upshaw of the Oakland Raiders and player representatives John Bunting (Philadelphia Eagles), Tom Condon (Kansas City Chiefs), Mark Murphy (Washington Redskins), and Stan White (Detroit Lions), has the power to call the players out on strike.

"We will discuss what action we will take. A decision will be made on strike at that time," Garvey said.

In light of the latest setback at the negotiating table, the owners will also reassess their strategy, Donlan said. "We will have to re-evaluate our options for beginning the season." Donlan said.

"I'm playing better than I've ever played," said the winner of 18 titles in two decades. "This is my best year by far. I didn't win a major last year and this season I've done it in the heat of Watson, of course, will merit heavy consideration for his fifth Player of the Year title in the last six seasons, even if he doesn't win over the 7,137-yard Firestone South layout.

He's already won two majors this year, the U.S. and British Opens, and two other championships on great courses, Riviera, Harbour Town, Pebble Beach and Troon.

This elite international field of 27 golfers also has Masters champion Craig Stadler, Jack Nicklaus, the winner of the Series an unprecedented five times and of more than $522,000 at Firestone, and Lanny Wadkins, last week's Buick Open winner. Watson is bidding for his fifth 1982 victory while Floyd, Stadler and Wadkins all are after their fourth titles this season in the battle for the largest purse on the PGA Tour.

Floyd has taken the last two weeks off, which could be a danger signal for his fellow contenders. He skipped the two prior tournaments before the PGA. He missed the previous week to his Memorial triumph, too.

"I'm refreshed. I have a lot of enthusiasm," said the winner of $331,809 this year.

"But I don't neglect my game when I go home like some players. I hit balls every day. It's easier taking an hour out of each day then taking a chance on losing it. It might never come back."

Floyd admits his attitude toward the game has changed radically. The one-time swinging bachelor of the tour is a married man now, the father of twochildren.

contestant is Cleveland pitcher Len Barker and here is today's baseball quiz: "Len, how do you pitch a three-hitter, strike out nine and lose 5-1?"

"I guess by walking four guys in one inning, that's how you lose a three-hitter.' Right on, Len. Care to try for the next

"The next time I throw one, I'm sure not going to lose.'

While the Chicago White Sox were making the most of their limited offense and defeating Barker and the Indians, the Kansas City Royals pulled within one-half game of the idle California Angels in the American League West by edging the Texas Rangers 4-3. In other AL games, the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 8-3 and the New York Yankees drubbed the Minnesota Twins 8-1. Also idle besides the Angels were Boston, Detroit, Milwaukee, Oakland and Chicago parlayed the four walks off Barker, an error by Cleveland shortstop Larry Milbourne and Steve Kemp's two-run double into a four-run fourth inning. Winner Richard Dotson and Sparky Lyle combined on a six-hitter. Lyle allowed one hit over the final 31-3 innings to notch his first save since being signed by the White Sox last Saturday after the Philadelphia Phillies released him.

The Indians were impressed by Lyle's stuff. "Sparky was Sparky — the sliders and a few fast balls. Just another save among his 200-plus," said Rick Manning.

Rudy Law led off the Chicago fourth with a walk and one out later Harold Baines and Greg Luzinski also walked to load the bases. Kemp then got Chicago's first hit, a two-run double to left-center. After a walk reloaded the bases, Milbourne booted Mike Squires' grounder for an error, allowing Luzinski to score, and Vance Law capped the inning with a suicide squeeze bunt.

Royals 4, Rangers 3 Singles by Willie Wilson, George Brett and Amos Otis produced the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and Dan Quisenberry preserved Dennis Leonard's victory with two innings of scoreless relief. The Royals took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on doubles by John Wathan and U.L. Washington. Wathan hit a two-run homer in the fifth.

"I kind of ran out of gas in the 100-degree heat," said Leonard, who was making his fourth start since missing almost three months with two fractured fingers. "I'm still building up my stamina after being off 11

Henderson goes after theft record tonight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers plan to make a fuss if the A's Rickey Henderson breaks the major-league record for stolen bases, and expect it will be much more cheerful than the scene he left in Oakland.

With Henderson just 90 feet short of matching Lou Brock's 1974 major-league record of 118 stolen bases in a season, the A's open a four-game series in Milwaukee County Stadium tonight.

The Brewers are understandably more interested in preserving their East Division lead in pursuing an American League pennant than in Henderson's thievery. Nevertheless, the hosts, against whom Henderson has stolen eight times this year, have been making plans since Tuesday to fete him if and when he sets a record. The game is to be interrupted for a presentation of the stolen bag itself, and Brock was invited to town to participate, Brewer spokesman Tom Skibosh said. Despite the anticipation, however, the A's were talking little about the matter Wednesday, declaring that Henderson would not be available for interviews prior to a news conference this afternoon.

The club was steaming Tuesday night over what it called some maneuvering that interferred with Henderson's effort to tie the record before the home fans during a game with the Detroit Tigers.

A's manager Billy Martin accused the Tigers of intentionally walking Oakland's Fred Stanley in the eighth inning so that the bases would be filled ahead of Henderson. Sure enough, Henderson singled; but was stuck on first with Stanley 90 feet away on second.

Then Stanley got far enough off second to get caught in a rundown. Detroit manager Sparky Anderson suggested Martin rigged the pickoff to clear the road for Henderson.

It was Henderson's turn to rage when he was thrown out on a close call in his subsequent steal attempt. Umpire Durwood Merrill, who made the call, had been covering both second and third bases because umpire Larry Barnett left in the second inning because of stomach cramps.

Martin, coach Charlie Metro and outfielder Dwayne Murphy were thrown out of the game during the argument. The incident produced another record: It was the 39th time this year that Henderson was thrown out on a steal attempt, topping Ty Cobb's 1915 record of 38.

A few hours after the resignation, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Ethics Committee, announced that an investigation into Richmond's affairs was being dropped because his resignation left the committee without jurisdiction.

Richmond's guilty pleas and resignation came in return for a promise that he will not be prosecuted on a variety of other allegations, including that he had aides obtain cocaine for him; that he obtained illegal payments from a firm he controlled; and that he put an escaped convict on the House payroll.

Richmond admitted evading $50,000 in income taxes in 1981, posessing marijuana and illegally supplementing the salary of a civilian employee of the Navy by arranging to pay $7,420 in college tuition for his daughter "to show my gratitude for services performed for me and my staff.'

Richmond said the Navy man, not identified by court documents, was a liaison between the Navy and Congress and assisted him in obtaining information that helped get business for the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which

Mayor expects dispute to die down

READER, Ark. (AP) - Now that a municipal court hearing is over, the mayor of this small southwest Arkansas town says she expects a dispute over speed breakers to die Two of the seven asphalt speed bumps had been leveled Aug. 16 by a man with a forklift. Ben Johnson, 46, was convicted Tuesday of criminal mischief in Ouachita County Municipal Court. Municipal Judge Harry Barnes of Camden fined Johnson $250 and assessed $32 for court costs.

Barnes also found five people who cheered Johnson on guilty of disorderly conduct and issued restraining orders against each. Two people were found innocent because of insufficient evidence. Among the five convicted was former Mayor Ed Turner.

The forklift used by Johnson belonged to Turner's wood-treating company. But Turner said at the time: "Wouldn't I be crazy to tell a man to go do something like that in broad

The speed bumps were the subject of a heated meeting of the Reader City Council just before two of the breakers were leveled. About two dozen people, including Mayor Georgia Chambers and city council members, watched as the asphalt crumbled. City officials filed the charges.

Turner and the other four were among those protesting the speed bumps at the council meeting.

Mrs. Chambers said Wednesday that she expects the dispute to die down. She also said the council plans to rebuild the destroyed speed bumps, but the breakers will be wider Ouachita County had built seven speed breakers in the Ouachita-Nevada County border town of 143 at the council's request. The mayor said the breakers were to control traffic in the town, which is 20 miles northwest of Camden.

Singer's refusal to do benefit protested

Twenty Arkansas children who set up a picket line outside the West Hollywood offices of Stevie Wonder's management say they want the singer to personally tell them he won't do a Labor Day benefit concert.

The children, aged 4 to 18, and the adults who flew in with them from Little Rock. Ark.. vowed Wednesday to continue picketing Black Bull Music's Sunset Boulevard headquarters until they either met with Wonder himself or ran out of money for food and housing.

"We'll leave if Stevie will just personally tell us that he can't do it, but we're not going to accept that from management," said Parnell Riley, a spokesman for the group flown in at the expense of concert backers.

A switchboard operator who answered the telephone at Black Bull said there would be no comment from acompany officials and declined to give her name.

Riley and another spokesman, Frank Cooley, said negotiations began more than three months ago with Black Bull to get Wonder to appear at a Sept. 6 concert at Little Rock's 53,000-seat War Memorial Stadium.

They said 36 percent of the tičket receipts were to go to three community groups for the poor: Cooley's Alternative to a Criminal Life. the Community Task Force and a free breakfast program sponsored by Little Rock activist Robert "Say" McIntosh.

Promoters had offered Wonder $250,000 to headline the $20-a-ticket show, but Black Bull officials told them Wonder would not accept even though he had no other concert commitment because the wanted to work on his album.

After the officials reiterated their stand at a Wednesday afternoon meeting, Riley and Cooley said Wonder had made exceptions in the past for benefits and added they did not believe Wonder had been informed of the nature of the concert.

"That's not Stevie Wonder at all," Riley said of the star's reported refusal to do the

News Briefs

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) - Eleven patients at a Guyana mental hospital died of undetermined causes between Sunday and Tuesday night and five others are in critical condition, health officials said.

"The fact that 11 Guyanese have died ... is serious cause for concern," Dr. Walter Chin, Guyana's chief medical officer, said Wednesday. Autopsies and blood tests were ordered to determine the cause of the deaths.

The patients, all male and age 30 or less, died at the Fort Canje Mental Hospital in Berbice, about 50 miles southeast of here. Health officials said seven patients were found dead at feeding time Sunday morning. Three others died between Monday and Tuesday and the 11th died Tuesday night.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - The government has ordered the release of 244 people detained a year ago in a crackdown on religious extremists and political opponents, the Middle East News Agency reported.

The group, released Wednesday, was among thousands arrested a month before the October assassination of the late President Anwar Sadat and after his death.

A total of 1,261 people have been released in keeping with a pledge by President Hosni Mubarak to release those no longer considered a security threat. The government says 2,000 remain in prison.

But an opposition newspaper, Al-ahali, said Wednesday new arrests were made last week in a new government crackdown on Moslem extremists and leftists. No official comment was immediately available.
