FUR THAT GREW IN A FACTORY—from nylon—made these two coats. The "sheared nylon shorts" on the scale weighs only three and a quarter pounds, compared to the eight-pound average of natural fur coats.

Manufacturer Spares Pelts; Makes Fur Coats With Nylon

By BERT GOLDRATH
NEA Staff Correspondent
MILWAUKEE, Wis. — (NEA) — There's good news in the animal kingdom. Sleek fur coats that grew in a factory instead of on a four-footed beast are coming off the assembly line here. They closely resemble the real thing, but they are made entirely of nylon.

Chief advantages, according to Sydney Krasno, 33-year-old manufacturer of the nylon furs, is that they have twice the warmth of fur with half the weight. They're sold minus the 6 percent excise tax (at $140 or the three-quarter-length job), and they can be surface washed with soap and water or dry cleaned by ordinary methods.

Nylon doesn't attract moths or the coats need no special storage, and there's nothing in the fabric to trouble persons allergic to furs. The material, says Krasno, is also windproof and water repellent. If the "hairs" become matted, they can be restored to shape by hand vacuum cleaning.

So far the new fur-type coats are being manufactured to resemble only mouton. That's because Krasno's firm — Milfur, Inc. — was originally in the business of making mouton coats. They dropped the real moutons last winter and have switched over completely to nylon.

But Krasno declares that nylon pile can be made to resemble any real fur so closely that an expert can only tell the difference by the closest scrutiny. The nylon filaments can even be baked to hold the curl of Persian lamb.

While nylon probably won't make inroads in the mink and chinchilla set, its backers anticipate that the new product will have a big effect in the low and medium priced fur coat field.

Lynn Boyd Named International Head Of Lumberman Club

Lynn Boyd was honored Saturday night with a banquet in Amarillo by the Panhandle-Plains Hoo-Hoo Club No. 8, a fraternity of Lumbermen. Boyd owns the Boyd Lumber Co. here.

The honoree received a plaque congratulating him on being the "Star" of the "Universe" or "International president of Hoo-Hoo." More than 150 members of the club attended the banquet at the Amarillo Country Club.

A tribute was read to Boyd by Charlie Burrow, Canyon. Burrow holds the lowest numbered Hoo-Hoo card in the region.

Several representatives of the Texas Lumber Manufacturers Assn. spoke and discussed technical problems concerning their industry and retail lumbermen.

President of the Panhandle Hoo-Hoo, M. A. Aldrich, acted as master of ceremonies. Charles Galloway, Canadian, presented the plaque to Boyd.

Principal speakers of the evening were E. G. Tilford, Nacogdoches, and J. B. Edens, Corrigan, president of the manufacturers association.

Nylon pile fabrics appeared on the clothing scene during World War II. In an experiment, Arctic hares wearing nothing at all beneath their nylon coats stayed warm for several hours at 60 below zero.

What's good news to the animal kingdom and perhaps to the J. S. consumer may turn out to be bad news for Russia. It is said that the fur business in America.

A possible indication of the future of the nylon fur coat industry was a recent sale in a large Chicago department store. The enthusiastic buyer expected to sell as many as 12 coats the first week. He sold 61.

The coats are currently being produced in short and three-quarter lengths, in navy, red, grey and white. They are made in a box style with slit pockets, ruffled sleeves and hooked lap-overs. Everything is nylon but the hooks — the pile itself, the untrimmed base, mesh interlining and double weight lining, which matches the coats or can be had in racy plaids.

WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLET
NEA Staff Writer

A businessman was complaining about the "sorry lot" of letters he had received in answer to his recent "help wanted" ad. He was looking for a private secretary and it was a good job he had to offer, but out of a stack of written applications only two interested him at all.

What was the matter with the rest? Well, I asked, just so that I could pass on the information to any girls applying for jobs. In his ad this employer asked applicants to answer several questions, all important from his point of view.

A number of applicants ignored all the questions and blithely went on to give a lot of information the employer didn't want or care about.

Quite a few others, although applying for a job that would require them to type neat business letters, wrote their own letters of application in long hand, some of them on colored personal stationery.

Others jumbled up the information about themselves, making it confused rather than clear and to the point.

USE A DICTIONARY
There were misspelled words in several letters, showing the writer was too careless to even use a dictionary.

And several, in giving references, neglected to give complete addresses so that these references could be easily checked.

Probably none of those applicants would have personally applied for a job with uncombed hair, run-down shoes and wearing a house dress. Yet the letters they sent in to speak for them put up just as sloppy a front.

The two letters that obtained personal interviews for their writers were neatly typed on business stationery. The answers were straightforwardly the questions that the employer had asked in his advertisement. They requested a personal interview and told when and where they could be reached. And they left the impression that the writer not only wanted the job but felt confident of being able to handle it.

Bell HD Club Member Tells Facts About Buying, Using Pressure Pan

The Bell Home Demonstration Club recently in the home of Mrs. Charles Warminski to study the different uses of a pressure sauce pan.

Members answered roll call by giving their experiences with pressure sauce pans.

A pressure sauce pan should be chosen carefully because it costs considerably more and because it requires thoughtfulness in selection so that it may insure satisfaction and convenience in using it," said Mrs. Nolan Cole as she began her talk.

She continued, "Good automatic controls to hold pressure and temperature at desired points are necessary. The control should offer safety in use. Also, a pressure sauce pan should be well constructed and should be made so it is impossible to open the pan until the pressure is down. Most sauce pans are fairly heavy when filled, so good handles are necessary. Always look for the seal of approval on all sauce pans."

"If the cooker is simple and easy to use and handle, the more convenient it is to use and the fewer the parts to get out of order. The seal between the lid and the pan should be simple and easy to operate with little to get out of order. A smooth surface, inside and out, is easier to keep clean than a rough surface. A removable gasket is easy to keep clean too. These points are important since the sauce pan is bought in the first place for a convenience."

Mrs. Cole went on to say, "The value of a pressure pan is not in the price tag, but in the number of years it will last. Of all methods of cooking, the pressure sauce pan saves the most vitamins and minerals. And what wonderful tender, rich flavors. Colors are retained when and where they could be reached. And they leave the impression that the writer not only wanted the job but felt confident of being able to handle it."

GIFT FOR WEE PRINCESS

Because her father, Prince Philip of England, also holds the title Duke of Edinburgh, little Princess Anne is receiving this bale of long-staple cotton as a gift from the city of Edinburg, Texas. The Texas own did the cotton bale up in real Scotch fashion, using the Edinburg plaid for baling fabric. Perched atop the bale is Jere Stephens of Edinburg, Texas, who helped give the bale a gala send-off. The bale of fine long-staple cotton will make the tiny English princess a favorite of nearly 3000 dainty gowns or dresses.

Methods. If you will follow instructions practically all foods can be cooked in the pressure sauce pan," Mrs. Cole concluded. Refreshments were served to 11 members.

Grace Friend

TOO MANY DATES, UNWISE

Dear Miss Friend:
I am 14 and a sophomore in high school. I am quite popular and have lots of boy friends. I am afraid that it won't continue as my parents are very strict with me and won't let me have dates except on Friday and Saturday nights. Then I have to be home by 11.

This sort of treatment can ruin a girl's popularity, Miss Friend, but I can't convince my mother of it.

I think that I should be allowed at least three dates a week. Do you agree with me?
Julia

Dear Julia:

I am afraid that I agree with your mother. She knows that you are still growing and that you need a great deal of rest to compensate. She knows, too, that you have much studying and that you can't do your best if you are tired from late hours.

As for ruining your popularity—Don't worry about that. The fact that it is hard to get a date with you will only serve to enhance your popularity with the boys.

IN THE MIDDLE

Dear Mrs. Friend:

I have a friend, and she is a very close one, who simply can't do anything to please my husband. Whatever she says it seems to annoy him and if she tells a story he is just as bored as can be.

How can I handle this situation so that my friend, of whom I am fond, and my husband do not use me as a referee?
Mrs. G.

Dear Mrs. G.:

The best thing for you to do is to keep your friend and your husband apart.

Can't you be with her at times when your husband is engaged elsewhere? For instance, how about having lunch with her and going to the matinee while your husband is at the office? Or have her at your home during the afternoon while he is away.

General Meeting

Is Held by WSCS

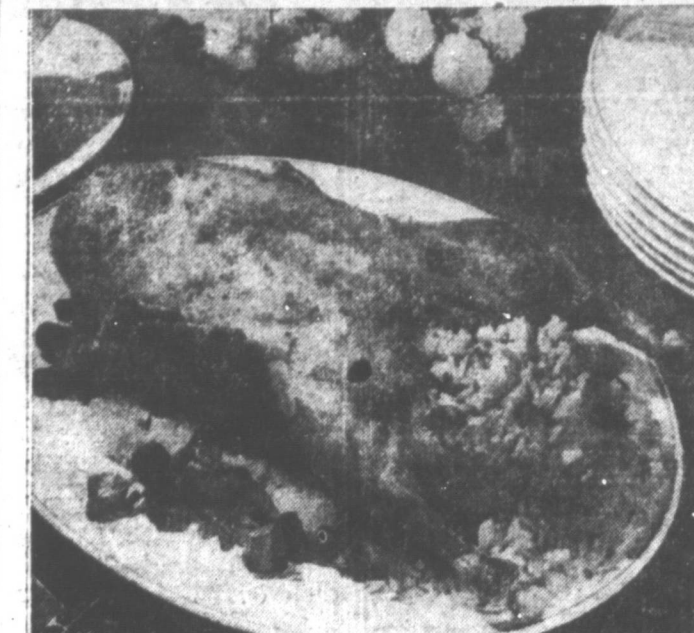

The general monthly meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church was held in the chapel for the call to worship. The meeting opened with the group singing "Amazing Grace."

Mrs. M. E. Cooper read the scripture and gave a history of Thanksgiving. Mrs. Orion Carter led in a prayer of Thanksgiving. Mrs. Kenneth Irwin and Mrs. Waldon Moore sang "Faith of Our Fathers."

"Thy Saving Health Among all Nations" was theme of the program. Mrs. O. L. Brummett discussed "What is Health?" and Mrs. Louis Bonny talked on "Maternal and Child Health."

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Frank Shotwell. Announcements and reports were made from the eight circles. Circle One received a copy of the World Outlook and The Methodist Woman for having the largest representation present.

Here Is Delicious Duck Stuffing

BOAST LONG ISLAND DUCKLING with pre-cooked brown rice, stuffing and watercress garnish is a Thanksgiving suggestion.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Duckling lovers always welcome a new stuffing. Here's one using the increasingly popular packaged pre-cooked rice.

BROWNED RICE STUFFING
One package (1 1/3 cups) pre-cooked rice, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 cup diced celery, 1/4 cup chopped celery leaves, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1/2 teaspoon sage, 1 3/4 cups chicken stock or giblet broth, chopped giblets, optional.

Saute pre-cooked rice in butter until golden brown, stirring occasionally. Add onion and saute 3 minutes longer. Add celery, celery leaves, parsley, salt, pepper, sage, and stock.

Mix just until all rice is moistened. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat, uncovered, fluffing rice gently once or twice with a fork. (Do not stir.)

Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 10 minutes. Add chopped giblets, if desired. Makes 2 1/2 cups stuffing, or enough for 4 1/2-pound dressed roast-fowl.

We had dinner with Mabel Stegner, the first lady of duck cooking. Her frozen eviscerated Long Island duckling was succulent and the watercress soup she served first was delicate and refreshing. She gave us her duckling know-how. Here it is:

How to prepare duck for cooking: Remove and wash giblets from duckling. Push back skin around neck of duck and cut off neck. Cut off wing tips and remove pin feathers with tweezers. Wash duck thoroughly, inside and out, with cold water. Dry carefully.

To roast, fill with favorite stuffing or roast unstuffed.

How to roast duckling: Prepare duck for cooking as directed. Place the duck breast side up on a rack in a shallow baking pan about 10x14 inches and not more than 3 inches deep.

Do not cover. Add water or lard. Do not prick the skin since this often allows some of the meat juices to run out during roasting and does not increase the amount of fat which cooks out.

For a crispier brown skin, place the duck under the broiler a few minutes before serving, or brush the duck at the end of 1 hour of roasting with 2 tablespoons of honey and 1 teaspoon of kitchen bouquet or soy sauce. The following table will help you to cook duck the way you like it:

Drawn weight — 3 1/2 to 5 pounds: Medium well done—25 minutes per pound.

Very well done — 30 to 35 minutes per pound.

Dressed weight — 5 to 7 pounds: Medium well done—18 minutes per pound.

Very well done — 22 to 25 minutes per pound.

George IV introduced the first ready-made cravat in 1829. It became known as the "Royal George" tie.

FINISHING BIRCH
Birch is a close-grained wood that does not require a paste filler. It can best be given a mahogany or walnut color with a penetrating stain. While it is often given a natural finish with a gloss or dull varnish, a lacquer or a wax. It supplies an excellent base for enamel and may also be bleached.

point. As each person passes, the tabulator is clicked. At the end of the day, it registers the total number of clicks.

The Denominator is simply a machine that puts a lot of tabulators together. Its uses are many. One is now used by a restaurant. Each tabulator on their Denominator is labeled with one item on the menu. The cashier clicks the proper tabulator, and the restaurant keeps a complete check on what items are the most popular, without having to go over each customer's check one by one.

Another new item displayed at the Business Show was the Automatic Time Computer. It is a time clock that prints, in addition to the usual time in and time out, the elapsed time. Thus there is a double-check on the hours employees work.

Another time clock was finished off in a rich blue velvet. But nobody could explain why. Brevitape was a new machine displayed which uses virtually the standard typewriter keyboard to take shorthand. It can print more than one letter at a stroke, enabling the typist-stenographer to keep up with the dictator. It prints plain English letters. Brevitape notes read like this: "Mr. Gra saved ent mne this kar nd pa kash fr." Which trans-scribes into: "Mr. Gray saved enough money to buy a car and pay cash for it."

The keyboard doesn't have any similar in color and glass. War-torn equipment must be replaced with new equipment is added to a household, the owner is anxious that the old and the new should be much alike in appearance. These finishes must also meet other requirements. They must resist abrasion, moisture, alkali, and any materials which might discolor the finish.

Brain and Velvet Time Clock Make Things Easier for Boss

UNIVAC—A gadget to make things simpler around the counting house—or in the office—is the tabulator that was among the items unveiled at this year's business show.

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — (NEA) — A mechanical brain that does about everything around an office but sit on the boss' lap was the hit of the 1934 National Business Show here.

The brain is called "Univac," and was shown by Remington Rand. You feed in problems at one end, and out come the solutions at the other end. It matches, merges, selects, sorts, adds, subtracts, multiplies, divides and, with a little persuasion, it might pick winners in the office football pool.

Its value around an office lies in its ability to solve quickly problems which take humans a long time. It can do, for example, complete accounting reports; it can process and tabulate the normal data all businesses must process and tabulate; it can figure out what profit will be next August, if you first give it all the facts.

And, since a Univac set-up will run somewhere around $500,000, it might even bankrupt you.

The Business Show, an annual display of the latest office machines and equipment also produced some simple gadgets. One of the newest was a device called the Denominator, which is really the old-fashioned tabulator with delusions of grandeur.

The tabulator is a gimmick that looks like a stop watch. It checks, for example, the number of people who pass by a certain

Purchasers Want Hardwood Floors, Quality Features

As the huge volume of home construction continues to make sharp inroads in the nation's housing shortage, resale value is becoming an increasingly important factor in the purchase of both new and old dwellings, real estate experts declare.

Prospective home owners, these observers point out, are in a position to be much more selective than at any time since pre-war years.

Wise buyers, keeping in mind the possibility of a future drop in price levels, therefore are seeking houses which will retain relatively high values in the years ahead. They are placing greater emphasis on sound construction and are shying away from dwellings in which a substitute materials have been utilized freely, or in which impractical designs or undesirable floor plans have been employed.

Aware of this development, more and more builders of low-cost and medium-price houses are including oak floors and other quality features which will attract ready purchasers.

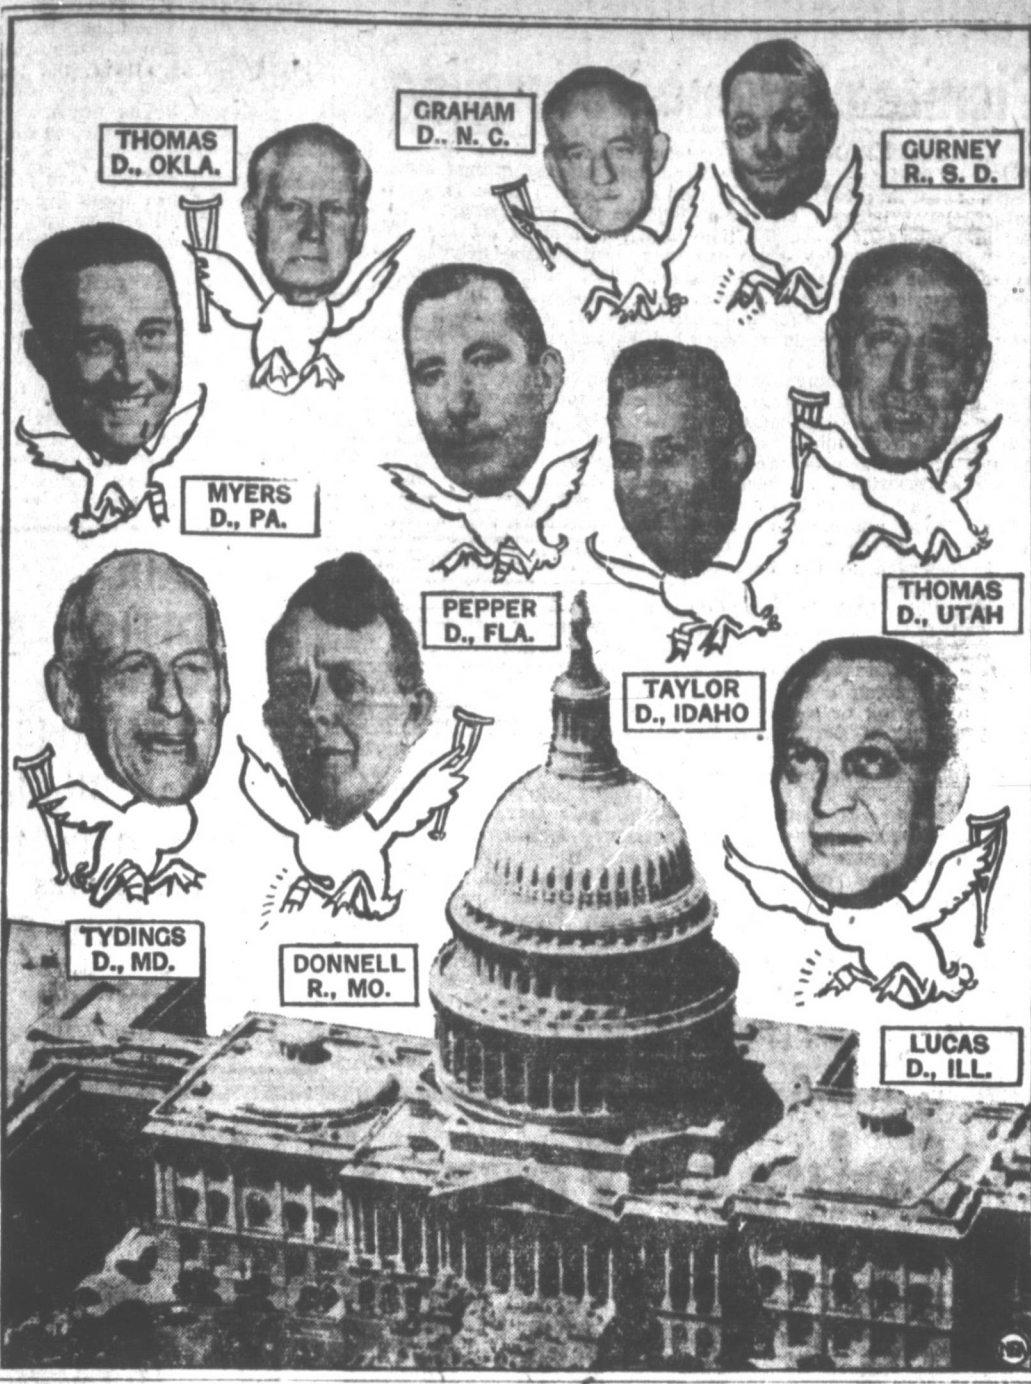

These builders are managing to maintain satisfactory profit margins by instituting labor-saving techniques, closer control of material waste and more efficient procedures for averting costly construction delays. That is particularly true of many large volume operators.

The expanding use of hardwood flooring is an especially good example of the current trend. Immediately after the war when hardwood flooring was among the scarce building materials, some builders found it expedient to install substitute flooring materials in order to complete homes for desperate buyers. The passing of the housing shortage, along with the greater availability of hardwood, however, has virtually eliminated the need for such practices.

Today most prospective buyers again are listing floors of oak or other hardwood among the items they want most in their houses. Builders realize, too, that such features not only help sell homes faster but also lend prestige to themselves as producers of high quality housing.

Realtors explain that the strong preference for oak floors helps account for the increased resale value they contribute to a home. This preference, in turn, is attributed in large part to the durability, long-run economy and natural beauty of the floors.

Generally, they last the life of a house without major repair. Moreover, they retain their attractiveness with only a moderate amount of care. Other species of hardwoods utilized extensively for flooring include hard maple, beech, birch and pecan.

RHEUMATISM SHOCKS

In ancient times, persons suffering from rheumatism were made to stand barefooted on the body of a torpedo ray, a fish capable of producing electrical shocks.

Six factories in the Ryukyu islands are being equipped to produce about $600,000 worth of pearl buttons annually, principally for export.

Oak Always in Style Because of Its Beauty

Styling is an important consideration in wise selection of certain materials that go into construction of a home, architects point out. The floors, for example, should be of a type which will stand the test of time, fashion-wise. This factor probably accounts to some extent for the general preference for floors of hardwood. Oak, in particular, is always in fashion because of its mellow natural beauty.

Architectural Contest Looks For American 'Dream House'

NEW YORK — A "dream house" that's small enough for efficient cleaning and managing, but designed for the most livability is sure to come out of the $100,000 home design contest that now is going on.

A month before the end of the contest, which closes on December 15, a total of 10,215 architects, designers, draftsmen and architectural students had signified their intention of entering. The ultimate winner, however, will not be one of these experts, but the average American family.

For the experts are busy deciding on the best three-bedroom plan for a home that will have only 1,000 square feet of floor space, and will fit on the average 60 x 100 foot lot.

The sponsors of the contest, the National Association of Home Builders and Architectural Forum, the Magazine of Building, will announce the winners in January.

"Never before has so much architectural talent been devoted to the problem of the family architect, designer, draftsman and the average sized home," say the sponsors. "It would be ridiculous to expect a prospective owner of a small home to spend a tiny fraction of the contest prize total for a home design. But with architects and builders working together on the plans this contest will develop, home living is sure to be better in the homes of the future."

Caulking Around a Window Sash

By BOB SCARFF
Written for NEA Service
Windows and doors are the major heat wasters in the home. But you don't have to be a skilled craftsman to cut heat loss to nothing.

First, check to see whether there are air leaks around loose panes of glass in windows and door frames. When a house is first built, the frames may fit tightly. But after the house settles, cracks often appear which allow important heat losses around their edges. This is especially serious if they are set in masonry construction.

To stop air infiltration around the glass panes, simply repack them tightly in place. To stop air leaks around window and door frames, reseal them periodically with caulking compound, which is available in paint and hardware stores, either in dispensing tubes or in packages. Caulking guns can be purchased at reasonable price or may sometimes be rented.

The caulking compound, a putty-like plastic seal, is forced into the cracks under pressure so that it enters deeply and fills the crack completely. For a good caulking job, pack large cracks with oakum, jute or similar material. Then cover this with caulking compound.

The next step of heatproofing

Weatherstrips for metal-frame casement windows are made to snap into the grooves around the edges of the sashes, being held in place by tension. Felt can also be used on metal casements and is held in place with thick shelled.

Storm windows or double glass help protect the inner glass from sweating or frosting in cold weather and materially reduce heat loss. They may be hung on the same hardware as your screens or held in place with wing catches applied to the outside surface of the frame. In at least one window in every room the storm sash should be provided with means of opening for purposes of ventilation.

An effective and simple way to reduce heat loss through windows in cold weather is to draw the shades or draperies and to close Venetian blinds. In closed-off rooms, and at night, keep all the windows covered this way, and in occupied rooms, during the day draw the shades halfway.

Galvanized Cans Good Investment In Home's Safety

Cardboard and wooden boxes are absolutely worthless as refuse containers, safety officials assert. Stating that such receptacles stop neither rats nor fire, the authorities advise all home owners to use galvanized steel ash and garbage cans instead.

Galvanized steel ash and garbage cans are made of rust-resistant steel and have close-fitting covers. Rats cannot penetrate the covered metal cans while searching for food. And if a fire should begin in one of the cans, it is confined to a fireproof area.

Most homes, it has been found, need at least two galvanized steel garbage cans. Two cans usually eliminate the necessity of relying on an unsafe box or paper bag to handle garbage overflow which sometimes accumulates when only one garbage can is available.

Galvanized steel ash cans, which are similar in appearance to garbage cans, may be set near home furnaces for daily use. Like garbage cans, ash cans have two side handles for easy carrying and emptying when full of ashes or cinders.

Delicate Purple Can Be Used Occasionally

Purple is subdued and slightly melancholy. It is delicate, cool and atmospheric in quality. Owing to its excessive cost in ancient days, purple became a royal color. Consequently it often seems to us to be impressive, pompous, and stately. It is not used extensively, yet delicate, grayed tints of it are beautiful on the walls.

CRIMP IN HOUSING BOOM
The government's new Regulation X, imposing stiffer credit regulations on home mortgages, is aimed at cutting home building from the record high of an estimated 1,300,000 units in 1950 to "not more than 800,000 units" in 1951. Actually, many builders fear the new credit restrictions may reduce the number of houses built far more than that, but the government has the power to ease mortgage terms if Regulation X puts too big a crimp in the housing boom.

Wall Treatment Moves Into Picture of Home Decorating

By LYNN HARDESTY
NEW YORK — Wall treatments, according to leading decorators, have become all important in rooms. Gone are the neutral wall colors which gave the center of the stage to the furniture, draperies, or the carpet. Now in order are the bright, definite, more harmonious tones which agree with the palette of today's room furnishings and yet show them off to advantage. The highly fashionable emphasis on walls is also acquired through the use of well selected and well placed accessories . . . pictures, mirrors, small shelves and shadow boxes. These adornments need good color on the walls, if they are to be seen to the best advantage.

Any article that is hung on the wall needs a carefully harmonized wall color back of it—whether it is a porcelain plate, a bracket holding a colorful figurine, a painting or a print. This is the opinion of Bertha Shafer, a noted decorator here who specializes in arranging rooms in relation to pictures and other art objects. If several pictures with different color schemes are to be hung in the same interior, she suggests a wall painted in a pale grayed green — or — in an off-white with a hint of gray-green added. Gray, of course, will harmonize with almost any painting, she points out, but adds that the gray should have character. It should be a blue-gray, green-gray, lavender-gray or a good French gray. Where a mod-she decorated, one wall was painted a dark, bluish moss green to provide a restful setting and also a background for a gilded mirror frame and a Spanish carved leather screen in gold and russet. The bed wall was finished in a strong pink. The colors in the other accessories helped to harmonize the wall hues with each other and with the room in general.

Father and Children May Cut Mother's Labor Around Home

Mothers who feel that they are being overworked day after day may find that pampering their families is the reason. Studies have shown that a poorly portion of the average homemaker's time is spent in picking up and putting away personal belongings of other family members.

Retrieving a handkerchief from a floor or a shirt from a door knob may seem to require little effort. Actually, when done several times a day, it becomes a back-breaking chore.

This extra work is completely unnecessary. It may be eliminated by teaching family members the pick-up-and-put-away habit.

Teaching the habit is accelerated by following a line of quiet resistance — saying not a word about and paying no attention whatsoever to personal belongings which are out of place.

When careless family members realize that they aren't getting the customary help, they begin putting their own things away.

At first there may be some grumbling, but in the event of an open discussion of the subject, mothers have air-tight cases.

After this common problem is solved, mothers may encourage their families to help occasionally with some of the actual cleaning chores. Something can be found for every one in the family to do.

Small children may help dust. If they need an incentive, hide a few pennies around the home, telling the tots they may keep the pennies they find while dusting.

Older children and fathers usually will help when they realize that assistance is needed. But mothers would do well to be prepared for a common excuse: "I would help, but the scrub pail is already being used."

The way to overcome this excuse is to keep several galvanized steel pails and washing cloths on hand.

Mothers will find that several galvanized pails offer many advantages and take only a minimum of storage space.

They and their assistants will find it easier to use two pails instead of one for most washing chores. By filling one pail with soapy water and the other with rinse water, there is no need to stop for additional water.

When several such pails are available, one person can be washing windows while others are cleaning walls and woodwork. When not in use, the pails may be stored one inside another.

By employing these and other tricks, homemakers can simplify their labor and encourage their families to work together as teams.

Crop Surplus Is Stored in Circular Bins

Every harvest may produce a bumper crop. Unless the overflow is properly stored, the farmer will suffer unnecessary losses. Early planning for emergency storage would avoid such possible waste.

Iowa State College specialists recommend that unused oats be treated with new improved Ceresan or Ceresan M may be stored when they will still germinate well. They should be stored in a dry place where a change of humidity is not rapid.

The low cost, speed of construction and high salvage value of Masonite's temporary grain storage bin recommends its use for oats and similar grains. Plan AFB 177 for this bin may be obtained simply by writing Farm Service Bureau, Suite 2037, 111 West Washington St., Chicago 2, Illinois.

Having a diameter of 18 feet 8 inches, the bin can be constructed of five pieces of 4 x 12 foot tempered quarter-inch Masonite hardboard. It will hold approximately 1,250 to 1,350 bushels of grain, depending on the crown, at a cost of 6 to 8 cents a bushel. Only dry grain should be stored in a bin of this kind. The bin may be disassembled, stored in a small space, and re-assembled year after year.

Two types of floors are shown in the plan. The raised floor constructed with joists and flooring is recommended. A more economical floor consisting of 4 to 6 inches fill of gravel covered with 2 by 4 sleepers or nailing strips and surfaced with 1 by 8 ship-lap lumber can be used, but good drainage is essential.

Plans for a permanent grain bin, approximately 14 feet in diameter and 12 feet high, holding 1,000 to 1,500 bushels, are available and will be furnished on request by the Farm Service Bureau.

It was pointed out that Masonite tempered hardboard is ideal for lining or repairing grain bins in the barn or other service buildings on the farm.

Purge Is Underway In Soviet Latvia

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (AP) — The newspaper Stockholms Tidningen has reported a major political purge is underway in Soviet Latvia.

The newspaper said the Baltic Soviet Socialist Republic's president, Prof. August M. Kirchensteins, had been removed from his post along with leading Latvian ministers.

These reportedly included the foreign minister, the agriculture minister and the secretary of Latvia's supreme council. Kirchensteins was president of the council.

The report said all were accused of "bourgeois nationalism."

A paste wood filler is a compound supplied in the form of a rather stiff paste for filling the grain of hard woods, so as to provide a level, non-absorbent surface for varnishing.

The compounds usually of finely powdered transparent or translucent mineral substances, ground in a special type of varnish. They are applied by brushing and, after setting and before hardening, the surplus is wiped from the surface of the wood.

New Rat Killer On Market

A new rat killer, Warfarin, which was discovered in the laboratories of the bio-chemistry Department of the University of Wisconsin, has been released for public use and is endorsed by some of the country's outstanding experts in rodent control.

Among these is Carl Jacobs, who, at one time, was assigned to the Carson County area to carry out work in that area.

Warfarin does not kill rats but if the material is kept before rats for three or four days, excellent results will be forthcoming. The intake of this material into the system of rats and mice at regular intervals over consecutive days, will cause blood to cease clotting and rats actually bleed to death.

They will eat the Warfarin right up to the time of death.

The Warfarin received by Carson County Agent H. M. Nichols is mixed with commercial Texas Rodent Control Compound.

Domestic livestock should be watched that such animals can get into storage centers. A small dosage would not hurt domestic livestock, but if they were allowed to eat several pounds of the mixture, it probably would do them no good.

Persons desiring further information about this new rat killer should contact Nichols or the county agent in their home county.

Proper Lifting Will Save Your Muscles

Each year thousands of people are victims of sprains, strains, hernias, and other injuries simply because they do not know how to properly handle heavy objects.

Records kept by the National Safety Council show five common causes for lifting injuries. They are lifting and lowering objects with the back muscles instead of the leg muscles; insecure grip or footing and unsafe placing of hands or feet; using quick, jerking, twisting or awkward movements of the body; obstructed vision, unstable loads, or inadequate control and insufficient help or failure to use mechanical aids.

The common practice of bending at the waist when lifting something places a severe strain on the sensitive back and abdominal muscles. By bending your knees and keeping your back straight when lifting something heavy, you can place the strain on your leg muscles which are less likely to be injured.

Before doing any lifting around the farm, examine the job carefully. See if you can't reduce the amount of necessary lifting, or find some way to use mechanical equipment if possible. If you must lift, it must be done in a safe way. Get someone to help you do the job.

Born Construction Should Begin Soon

Cliff Vincent, president of the Top of Texas Herford Breeders' Assn., stated Thursday that the new show building has been ordered and should be delivered in January, 1951 in time for the 1951 show, Feb. 5-6.

Vincent stated that approximately $5,000 has been raised through personal donations toward the purchase of the building. The nations range from $25 to $50 each.

The building will be 64 X 100 feet, all steel with a hard iron and concrete foundation. It will not be used by the HBA, but will be available for any type of community activities.

The building will be erected immediately west of the present livestock auction ring, facing south. Preliminary work of preparing the ground for the foundations has already been completed. It is expected that the foundations will be poured within the next few days, Vincent stated.

Frank E. Carter and Clyde G. Ruth are co-chairmen of the committee in charge of soliciting personal donations which finance the building.

Rain Needed Urgently on Texas Lands

AUSTIN — (AP) — Rain is urgently needed by all American farmers and ranchers, the U. S. Department of Agriculture says.

The USDA today released findings of its survey of current farm and ranch conditions through Tuesday, and issued several special reports on the crop outlook as of Nov. 1.

Through Tuesday, the USDA noted continued droughty conditions slowed wheat and very dry surface soil delayed the wintering of land. Conditions in South Texas were found to be "very critical," and tender vegetables were severely damaged by last week's freeze as far South as the winter garden area.

Other crop reports from the USDA showed:

Larger crops of cotton, grain sorghums and rice on Nov. 1 as compared with prospects Oct. 1, but sweet potatoes below average. The cotton outlook was for 2,850,000 bales, an increase of 175,000 over Oct. 1.

Grain sorghum prospects were for an estimated 12,972,000 bushels, an all-time record. It is possible by a later than normal first freeze that gave the 11th Plains a longer growing season. This was up eight million bushels over the Oct. 1 estimate.

On conditions up to Tuesday, the USDA said that winter wheat had continued plentiful over the northern half of the state, some ranchmen were already feeding cottonseed cake to supplement this ration. Rain was needed in all areas to bring on green winter feed.

Man Just Passing The Time of Day

Tortorella waved back at the fishing cruiser as he passed. He had just finished painting the boat. The boat was painted yellow.

The boat stopped and a line was thrown to Albert Fick. He told his rescuers his boat was swamped and he had been standing on the founding raft for three hours waiting for help.

EQ 335 Will Take Care of Screw-Worms

A new remedy for treating livestock wounds infested with screw worms has been announced by the United States Department of Agriculture Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine. This new remedy, exclusive of trade names, is to be known as EQ 335.

According to experts, the new remedy is a big improvement over the old reliable Smear 62. It will not deteriorate upon standing, an application usually lasts for seven days, treated wounds heal quickly, does not stain wool, clothing or hair, kills maggots even though they are deep in the wound; kills the young maggots as they hatch and kills the flies attracted to the wound to feed or lay eggs.

EQ 335 will not harm livestock if applied properly. Apply it with a small paint brush and only to the wound and a narrow strip of an inch or less about the wound.

The new remedy will soon be on the market. Buyers are urged to check the label on the container to make sure they are getting a formula that contains 25 percent lindane and 25 percent parathion, for these are the two materials that make up the formula.

The consistency of the remedy is that of a thick power. It must be understood that the remedy will not control the screw worm, but the use of good husbandry management practices and treating cases promptly will help hold down losses from this insect.

Plenty Meat, Bulging Thighs Necessary to Sell Turkeys

With Thanksgiving so close at hand, most people are going to be buying turkeys and with prices like they are at the present time, they will want to get the very best for their money.

Consumers prefer turkeys that are well-fleshed, well-finished, free of pinfeathers, free of blemishes, and that have a high degree of meat in relation to the amount of bone. Size is also an important consumer consideration.

When the consumer has a choice, there is likely to be a greater demand for turkeys of highest quality. Well-fleshed turkeys with good body conformation will have broad breasts that are well covered with meat. The thighs will be large and the drumsticks will be bulging and the back will be fairly well fleshed.

Some fat over the entire carcass is desirable. A layer of fat over the ribs indicates that the carcass is well finished, since this is the last to lay on fat. Mature turkeys normally have more flesh than younger, less mature turkeys.

Well-fleshed and well-finished turkeys should be free of pinfeathers. Pins may be protruding or non-protruding and are not allowed in any of the ready-to-cook quality grades.

Many turkeys are reduced in quality because of blemishes received during handling and processing. Such things as skin and flesh bruises are considered blemishes and will lower the value of the carcass. A flesh bruise is more serious than a skin bruise, and it may be distinguished from a skin bruise by moving the skin from side to side. A skin bruise will move with the skin, while a flesh bruise will remain stationary.

Turkeys that are well-fleshed with good body conformation assure the consumers that they are getting a high percentage of meat in relation to the amount of bone. And a good body conformation means that each part of the bird, such as the breast and the thigh, is the right size in relation to the other parts of the carcass.

Deer Studies Worm Problem

James Deer, extension entomologist of A&M College of Texas, was in Carson County last week. He was on his way to attend a regional meeting of entomologists at Memphis, Tenn., and had been in the plains area studying the cut worm and grub worms situation.

Sewel Kammerer, Nolan Judy, Jack Wigham and H. M. Nichols, county agent, attended a meeting in Pringle arranged by County Agent Nielson of Hutchinson County and attended by men from several counties. Deer was the guest speaker, and he not only talked about cut worm and grub worm control, but led the discussion on green bugs, the new screw worm smear EQ 335 the Agriculture has recently announced and other matters of importance to all farmers and ranchers. This meeting was held the evening of Nov. 6, the day before Deer's visit to Carson County.

Local weather will do more than anything else to do away with the cut worm and grub worm damage in wheat, stated Deer. He also informed his listeners that those who treated their seed when replanting wheat because of worm damage, in the main, were reporting from fair to good success. The new chemical, Lindane, appears to be quite promising for the protection of the seed and the young seedling.

Livestock men have been asking for a smear to be used in the control of screw worm that would stay with the livestock longer than smear No. 62 the government developed some years back. It is believed that the new U.S.D.A. smear EQ 335 will go a long way toward meeting the requirements farmers and ranchers are seeking in a smear.

Deer stated that at a meeting held recently at San Angelo representatives of the companies making such products met with government men and were told how this smear was prepared and the results that had been obtained by it. All interested parties should be able to purchase this product on the market in the very near future.

Carson County Establishing Weed Plot

Roger Hamilton, assistant agronomist of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station near Bushland, was back in Carson County this month working with H. M. Nichols, county agent, in establishing a new weed control plot. This cooperative endeavor is made possible thru the cooperation of Superintendent Charles Whitfield of the experiment station.

Dr. Whitfield has been most cooperative in all educational work having to do with better agriculture. He is well acquainted in Carson County and many local residents have been guests of Dr. Whitfield and his staff at the Amarillo Experiment Station near Bushland.

This new plot is directly back of the plot on the Santa Fe right-of-way, just north of the Lee Switch elevators. The new plot is on the We're property being farmed by John S. and Marvin Sparks. These men have long attempted to destroy bind weed and have proven excellent cooperators of the extension service in its program to control weeds in Carson County. Various combinations of borax were used in this plot as a soil sterilant. Sodium chlorate and combinations of borax and sodium chlorate were used.

By having this plot just across the fence from the older plot, comparisons can be made as to length of time it takes to get certain results, moisture variations one year with another and other matters that must be given consideration. On the Carson County field tour held the latter part of October, Hamilton explained to the visitors the results obtained to date on the Lee Switch plot.

There are 24 combinations, including the check plots, demonstrated in the old plot and 20 in the new plot. A smaller plot will be established by both Mr. Sparks and the County Agent a few rods south of Lee Switch and near the road running north and south a short distance west of Lee Switch.

This plot will contain both soil sterilants and areas to be sprayed with 2,4-D, 2,4-D and combinations of the two. The sprays will be applied next spring. Similar plots will be established in other parts of the county to supplement those already established.

Soil Conservation Programerves Land, Saves the Soil

A major part of the soil conservation program is the construction of dams to prevent soil erosion in the breaks and more hilly sections of the county. Such dams have been constructed on practically every farm and ranch in the Panhandle by landowners with an eye for the future.

In 1935, Gov. James V. Allred signed a bill authorizing the creation of wind erosion conservation districts in the State of Texas. This bill prescribed the methods for creating the districts, designated the duties and powers of such districts and prescribed the nature of the work to be carried on by the districts.

A number of the more progressive farmers of Gray County had recognized for some time that their farms were decreasing in value because of soil losses and reduction in fertility. They began an active campaign to create a soil conservation district in this county.

In 1945 an election was held and carried by a favorable vote. The Gray County Soil Conservation District did not become active until early in 1948 on account of lack of experienced personnel.

The governing body of the Gray County Soil Conservation District is composed of five farmers and ranchers who were elected to serve on the board of supervisors to whom any or all farmers and ranchers in the district may come for help in controlling erosion and rebuilding the productivity of their land.

The soil conservation service furnishes technical assistance in helping the farmers to work out an over-all conservation plan which will improve and maintain the fertility of their farms for future generations, and at the same time use the land properly for maintaining maximum production. This would require the use of such conservation methods as terracing, to prevent water erosion; the use of stubble mulch to reduce run-off of water; wind erosion, and to add organic matter to the soil; and other farming to aid in holding the water on the ground where it falls; construction of farm ponds for other parts of the county to supplement those already established.

Texas Is In Cotton Bowl But Who Will They Play!

Oklahoma, Kentucky Lead In Gridiron Bowl Parade

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK —(AP)— Texas is in the Cotton Bowl. Illinois and California are near enough to Pasadena to smell the roses.

A dozen other teams are afraid to stray too far from the telephone lest they miss a ring from one of the big post-season promoters.

The "pluck 'em" season is here for college football and the mad scramble is on to fill the massive stadia in the warm weather climes with the most glamorous elevens available.

Right now the list of unpicked eligibles is headed by Oklahoma and Kentucky, with Tennessee, Miami (Fla.) and Clemson just a shade behind.

Other prospects include Wyoming, Loyola of Los Angeles, Alabama, Southern Methodist, Nebraska, and Tulsa—their desirability hinging largely on the outcome of the remaining few games.

The bowl picture at the moment shapes up approximately like this:

Rose at Pasadena—Illinois vs. California.

Sugar at New Orleans—Kentucky vs. Oklahoma or SMU.

Cotton at Dallas—Texas vs. Oklahoma or Tennessee.

Orange at Miami—Miami vs. Tennessee, Clemson or Wyoming.

The game with the most important bowl bearing Saturday is at Knoxville, Tenn., where unbeaten and untied Kentucky takes on once-defeated Tennessee, a team that perennially gives the Wildcats trouble.

It's reported a Sugar Bowl bid is hanging in the balance. However, representatives of the Cotton and Orange Bowls also very likely will be in the stands, checkbooks handy.

Oklahoma, owing modern football's longest winning streak of 29 games, will go against Nebraska at Norman and probably can step right into any bowl it chooses, with the exception of the granddaddy of them all at Pasadena.

The Sooners, Sugar Bowl victors the last two years, may decide to sit this one out. The university officials are for passing the bowls by, but they've promised to live it to the players.

Dallas is almost certain to make a strong bid for a return game between Texas and Oklahoma. The Sooners handed the Longhorns their only defeat this year, 14-13.

Texas clinched the southwest championship and Cotton Bowl victory Saturday by beating Texas Christian, 21-7, while Rice was cooling off the only remaining challenger, Texas A&M, 21-13. Texas and the Aggies tangle Nov. 30.

Illinois can clinch the Rose Bowl assignment by turning back Northwestern, three times beaten, at Evanston, Ill. Failure to do this would toss the trip to Wisconsin or Michigan. Wisconsin closes with Minnesota and Michigan with Ohio State.

California, meanwhile, has to beat Stanford at Berkeley in its final game or possibly forfeit the Rose Bowl host spot to Washington. The Golden Bears, unbeaten in three seasons, had a tough time with San Francisco in the mud Saturday but won No. 33 in regular play, 13-7.

Illinois earned its favorable position by the not-so-simple expedient of knocking over the country's No. 1 team, Ohio State, which still can win the conference championship. Checked on the ground, the fighting Illini stabbed for two touchdowns through the air to prevail, 14-7, and thereby shook a majority of the experts.

Ohio State's defeat, its second this year, opened up anew the wild battle for the top position in the Associated Press poll, with Oklahoma, Army, California, Kentucky and Princeton all making menacing gestures.

Oklahoma, No. 2 behind Ohio State last week, made its bid for the main berth by over-whelming Missouri, 41-7. Leon Heath was the hero.

Babe Parilli, throwing five touchdowns, passed Kentucky to an 82-0 rout of North Dakota. Princeton added to its growing prestige by humbling Yale, 47-12.

Army was unable to unleash its full striking power at Palo Alto because of a driving rainstorm and had to be content with a hard-earned 7-0 victory over Stanford.

Oklahoma, Army, California, Kentucky and Princeton thus kept their records clean, making seven major teams still unbeaten in the Associated Press poll, with were idle.

Other first-stringers in the Longhorn line are sophomore Harley Sewell of St. Jo, a stand-out defensive guard after seeing duty as a tackle in high school, and defensive tackle Bill Milburn of Austin, one of the squad's most improved performers after conversion from end and center duty in high school.

Still another reliable who has made a change for the good is sophomore Bill Georges of Fort Worth, who plays end as well as he did tackle in his All-City Conference days.

Cherry and Price have had tremendous success at Texas on their conversion efforts. The former took a good high school center in Malcolm Kutner and developed him into an All-America end in 1947 and Price, in his first year, made the coach, transformed Dick Harris from an All-Conference center to an All-America tackle in 1947.

Levelling the situation, here's the picture, with former positions listed in parentheses: Offensive line - Procter (center) and Stohandske (fullback), and Vyukal (tackle) and Jackson (guard-tackle); McFadin (fullback) and Arnold (center); guards: Rowan (end-center), center.

Defensive line - Menasco (center) and Williams (fullback), ends: Lunsford (fullback) and Sewell (tackle); guards: Davis (fullback) and Jack Burton (center), linebackers.

Playing the toughest schedule in the Southwest and one of the roughest in the land, the Longhorn line has its sector's best defense against rushing—an average of just less than 146 per game. The best showing was against SMU, when that club was ranked No. 1 in the nation, the Mustang ground game winding up with a loss of 68 yards.

Irish Throws Balanced Line At Hereford

SHAMROCK —(Special)— Shamrock pits its balanced line and backfield against Hereford of District 1-A in a bi-district contest in Harvester Park at 2:30 Friday afternoon.

Here is the potent line Hereford will find, a line that has allowed only 62 points this year, 21 of them at Wellington:

VAN PENNINGTON, left end, a junior who has snared four aerials for TDs; Pennington is also strong on defense. He nailed three sky touchdowns against McLean.

BILLY HARRIS, left tackle; a junior, who weighs 245. Harris is a tough man to get by. It was he who threw the key block at Wellington last week when he shook Fullback Don Lea loose for the best run of the game—57 yards and almost netted the tying TD.

EUGENE COLLINSWORTH, left guard, another junior who has snared two TDs, both on intercepted passes. His defensive record is one of the best in the loop.

BILLY YORK, center, another junior, who checks in at 170. York is a lower on defense and a good offensive center.

MACK TERRY, right guard, another junior, weighing 170. Terry is a strong defensive lineman and is in on many tackles.

DWAYNE HAGER, right tackle, who weighs 190 and is a junior. Hager is difficult to go through around the line. His towering kickoffs are often in the end zone or even beyond that area.

VAUGHN TERRY, right end, who checks in at 145. Terry has made four TDs on aerials, recovered the fumble that set up the deciding touchdown over Lefors, and has a tremendous tackling record.

In addition, there are some substitutes that have made history in the Irish drive to the crown. They are Billy Pavlovsky, Dee Crowder, and Walter Wall, guards; Paul Cooper, Jimmy Y. Joe Douglas, tackles; Robby Hamrick and Bobby Campbell, ends; Cason Evans, end; and Kay Nunn, center.

These are the men who have stopped on opponents with an average score of 62 points per game. They will be in there pitching against Hereford.

Criticism of Cherry was sharpest after Texas lost to Oklahoma 14-13, this season.

New York Giants Slam Baltimore Colts, 55 to 20

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Los Angeles Rams will send the greatest point-making machine in football history against the Chicago Bears next Sunday in an effort virtually to clinch their second straight Western Division title.

Yesterday, the Rams took a 43 to 35 victory over the New York Yanks.

The triumph gave Los Angeles an 8-2 slate and a record-busting 401 points for the season's work, now, if they whip the Bears (7-2), and the Yanks (6-3) drop one of their remaining three games, it'll be all over. The Bears warmed up for Sunday's showdown with a 17-0 victory over San Francisco.

Things are pretty much the same in the American Division, where the Cleveland Browns hold the upper hand.

The Browns (8-2) just did get past Washington, 20-14, yesterday and now can sit back and watch while the New York Giants (7-3) and Philadelphia Eagles (6-3) go at it next Sunday.

The Giants, staged a comeback in whipping the Baltimore Colts, 55-20.

The Eagles were upset, 14-10, by the Chicago Cardinals.

In the only other game, the in-ard-out Detroit Lions shaded the down-and-out Green Bay Packers, 24-21, as Don Walker scored all the winners' points, with three touchdowns, three conversions and a field goal.

Other converted fullbacks in the front ranks are Sophomore Tom Stohandske of Baytown at right end on offense; letterman Jim Stanford of Carrizo Springs, defensive guard; linebacker June Davis of Denton, who is concentrating on defensive "quarterbacking," and Paul Williams of Lufkin, defensive right end. Additional linemen who played a high school ball as fullbacks are guard Jim Pakennam of Longview, linebacker Don Cunningham of Graham and end John Adams of Baytown, who doubles as a kicker.

That there's the oddity of a former all-state end at center and an all-state center at end. Co-Capt. Dick Rowan of Breckenridge, the regular offensive center, made the offstate high school team as a wingman in 1952, then moved to the pivot post for his senior schoolboy season. The other half of this quirky is end Ben Procter, the team's No. 1 pass receiver who made the all-state team as a center at Austin High School in 1947.

Coaches Blair Cherry, Ed Price Build Two Platoon Line at Texas University

AUSTIN —(Special)— Select five heavy fullbacks add a like number of centers, then mix in three tackles, one guard and an end. Bring the mixture to a fighting pitch and you'll find yourself cooking with gas.

At least that's the recipe followed by Coach Blair Cherry and Line Coach Ed Price of the University of Texas in building two-platoon lines that are ranked with the nation's best in collegiate circles this year.

Only one-third of the prized linemen playing first string—offensively or defensively—with the once-beaten Longhorns are in the same positions they manned as high school heroes a few seasons back. But they are no more at home than the other two-thirds who have no desire to trace back for the old jobs.

Former-fullbacks are found at every position except one in the Longhorn line, and the leading luminary is a reformed ball carrier who is making the All-America grade as an offensive guard. That's Bud McFadin, the Man Mountain from Iraan who leads the Longhorn blocking assault and occasionally finds time to play either guard or tackle on defense.

Other converted fullbacks in the front ranks are Sophomore Tom Stohandske of Baytown at right end on offense; letterman Jim Stanford of Carrizo Springs, defensive guard; linebacker June Davis of Denton, who is concentrating on defensive "quarterbacking," and Paul Williams of Lufkin, defensive right end. Additional linemen who played a high school ball as fullbacks are guard Jim Pakennam of Longview, linebacker Don Cunningham of Graham and end John Adams of Baytown, who doubles as a kicker.

That there's the oddity of a former all-state end at center and an all-state center at end. Co-Capt. Dick Rowan of Breckenridge, the regular offensive center, made the offstate high school team as a wingman in 1952, then moved to the pivot post for his senior schoolboy season. However, a test called the Rubin test, which involves forcing gas through the tubes, has been devised. This test will prove whether the oviducts are open or closed. If they are not open, conception is impossible no matter how good the health of the wife or that of her husband.

SHOULD BE EXAMINED The childless couple who want children should as a first step be thoroughly examined by competent physicians. When all of the necessary information on their physical condition has been collected, it is possible to decide whether corrective steps are necessary, and if so, what can be done. In many cases the sterility can be overcome and those who have previously considered themselves unable to have children are made happy by having them. This happens so often that it is worth the effort.

The Doctor Says

Director of Research Southern States Industrial Council Nashville, Tennessee

Not long ago I received a touching letter from a woman who said she had been married eight years and wondered if there was any hope of having any children. This is not an unusual problem. It has been estimated that as many as one couple in eight who want children remains childless.

Doctors recognized several kinds of sterility. Many couples are only relatively infertile. That is, they can have children but the chances of having them are not as good as they should be. Decreased fertility may be caused by such things as chronic illness of the husband or wife, by poor nutrition, or by lack of vitamins. When and if such difficulties can be corrected the chances of conception taking place may be greatly improved.

The failure to bear children used to be always blamed on the woman. This is often not correct because a high percentage of sterile matings are due to the infertility of the male partner.

Since men are responsible for childless marriages nearly as often as women, an investigation of the possible cause of sterility must include thorough examination of the male partner. Tests are available which can determine with great accuracy whether the barren marriage is due to male infertility. The man must cooperate, however.

There are many possible causes for the sterility of women whose complicated reproductive apparatus can develop defects which interfere with childbearing. One of the most common causes of barrenness in women is closure of

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NFA Staff Correspondent

Hollywood—(NEA)—Gloria Grahame is hopping mad over reports that she beamed to RKO about being billed under Jane Russell and Bob Mitchum in "Macao." It was the stiness of Gloria's part and her feel that she deserved something better after playing leading lady to Bogart that started the fireworks.

Shuddery bit of film footage in Fox's "The House on Telegraph Hill": A shot of the hospital ship, the Benevolence, before she was sunk off the Golden Gate.

Paulette Goddard must figure her publicity is slipping. She's done an about-face on her radio-interview edit... Jack Denney's daughter, 14-year-old Barbara, and 13-year-old Max Bear, Jr., are an item. Hollywoodites returning from personal appearance tours around the country asked them: "What's going to happen to Ingrid Bergman?... Olivia de Havilland not only starred in that radio version of "The Heiress," but also recast the story—Louis Calhern in the Sir Ralph Richardson role and Van Heflin instead of Monty Cliff as the boy friend.

Not in the script: "Someday I'll wear a suit on the screen and everyone will drop dead."—Jane Russell. THAT MAN BRANDO: "Marlon Brando, the Broadway actor who came to Hollywood to star in "The Men," has been painted as a combination screwball-monster with a particular hate for social decorum. I let it fly fast: "Are you a screwball?" The reply came from an upside-down Brando. He grinned, bent over, stood on his hands and said: "You tell him, George." George Swearing, a prop man, was adjusting knee and skin pads on Brando's legs. The scene was a dressing room at Warner Bros. just before a shot in "A Street Car Named Desire" in which he repeatedly would fall to his knees in a drunken stupor. George said: "Well, I'll tell ya, Marlon is just a young boy growing up in the cinema. But he's not a bad as any of the Dead End kids were." "Thank you," said Marlon, returning to his feet. I asked him about that Life Magazine yarn and he replied with seriousness: "If that's an accurate picture of me I'm a little embarrassed. I suppose it was pretty fair, but I have other attributes." He talked about studying acting in New York this winter, about playing that bit role of a blind man for free in a film short and how he admired his co-star, Vivien Leigh, "personally and as an actress." He even came up with a gag about actors—"an actor is a person who if you talk to him ain't listening." He belched only once (a small, economy size belch). He said "Excuse me" when Director Elia Kazan called him to work. Nice guy. Really. IF AT FIRST... Mari Blanchard, whose hopes of being a movie star dimmed when Paramount dropped her, has landed a role in "On the Beach." And what does Mari play? You guessed it—a movie star. "Don't be surprised if Steve Cochran winds up as the male star of Alfred Hitchcock's "Strangers on a Train." "Pappy" Boyington isn't letting Bill Mauldin and Audie Murphy out-distance him as a movie actor. The World War II hero will be in RKO's "The Flying Leathernecks."

Ex Pampa Pedagogue Now In Insurance

With an even half-dozen in the family, it takes a lot of insurance sales to make ends meet. O. F. Shewmaker, however, is one of Pampa's foremost insurance agents. He maintains offices at 225 N. Sumner. (News Photo and Engraving)

Ott Shewmaker Offers Wide Variety of Reputable Insurance Protection Plans

It's a long stretch from Paragould, Arkansas via Hardin College to Pampa, Texas and the vagaries of the insurance business in the Panhandle. It could be said that it is an even longer jump for a 'major' in biological sciences to suddenly find himself one of the leading luminaries of the insurance field in Pampa. Such, however, were the two great changes in the life of Ott Shewmaker.

The fact that he graduated from Hardin College, with a B. A. degree in biological sciences has been no deterrent whatsoever to Ott Shewmaker's ability to grind out a sizeable portion of the insurance sales in the Pampa territory.

Ott made Pampa his home shortly after he graduated from Hardin College. Like so many of the more successful business men, Ott obtained considerable of his background through teaching school. Six of his eight years in the academic instruction field were spent in Pampa schools where he made valuable friendships among the inhabitants of Pampa and Gray County.

In 1941, the sales fever took Ott by storm. He took immediate steps to enter the insurance field and exercise his natural talent as a salesman. It was doubtless a wise choice. Anyone who is able to support himself, a wife, and four children is what can be termed a fair-to-middlin' success in his chosen field.

Ott manages to sell enough insurance to keep a rather numerous family under full steam ahead. Out at 225 N. Sumner, the Shewmaker home and office, you'll find Mrs. Shewmaker (nee Lenice Chaffin of Clayton, New Mexico) riding herd over four pretty children. The Shewmaker family is evenly represented by members of both the Palstaff and Distaff sides. Girls eleven and two and boys nine and seven constitute the Shewmaker family. No wonder Ott is a firm believer in insurance for savings and protection.

The person who doesn't realize the full importance of insurance in the daily workings of this country is quite uninformed. The tremendous amount of insurance in force, and new policies written add much of importance to the stature of local insurance men. They are the minute men who keep the insurance structure healthy with new additions and continued revisions and improvements of existing insurance programs.

Take Ott's various fields of insurance and underwriting companies as a prime example. His list of insurance types includes Fire, Life, Fidelity and Automobile Insurance, Automobile Insurance, covers the standard items as well as Public Liability and Property Damage. You may make a selection of insurance programs from the six companies in the Aetna group. From the Springfield group, Ott can offer you the facilities of New England Life, Royal Indemnity and Founders Fire and Marine Insurance covers the Shewmaker offering in the Casualty field. For the various life insurance plans Ott, also, represents the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co. Quite an imposing and all-inclusive array of coverage, sufficient to the needs of anyone qualified as an insurable risk.

Some readers may not be completely familiar with the broad aspects of insurance coverage sufficient to the needs of anyone qualified as an insurable risk. Some readers may not be completely familiar with the broad aspects of insurance coverage. Others may have been putting off a long planned visit to an insurance underwriter or representative. There is really no need to delay investigating the desirability of a thoroughly planned insurance program. Not when Ott Shewmaker is as close as your telephone. If you'll just pick up your phone and call Ott at 4332 he'll arrange to see you and plan an insurance program that will relieve you of considerable disturbance concerning your future.

The Electric Supply Has Gifts in Supply

It's an easy matter for the average buyer to get affixed in his mind that a given merchant is indulging in a specific type of business. This, however, is sometimes a penalty to the merchant who is involved in a business that gives him a legitimate reason for attracting business from more than one aspect. A case in point is The Electric Supply. It is a waggerable point that considerable numbers of people aren't aware that 'Suds' Southard has quite an array of retail items for sale.

Under the astute management of Marshall Shuler, The Electric Supply (Pampa's Electric Headquarters) has accumulated an imposing array of small appliances and other interesting gadgets that are suitable for year-round giving, especially are they the answer to the harried shopper's Christmas problems.

LUCK IS PLUCK (With One Letter Missing) There is no luck in the fact that the PAMPA DAILY NEWS has a larger circulation in the City of Pampa than there are homes in the city. People buy newspapers to get the news of the day, particularly home town news. They want to know what their friends and neighbors are doing... who's going where... who's engaged to be married... who's in trouble... how many new babies... and so on down the list of home town happenings.

Circulating more papers than there are homes in the city is something of an achievement. It doesn't happen very often, but it happens all the time with the PAMPA DAILY NEWS. All of which proves that the local merchant can reach every home in Pampa every day of the week (except Saturday) by advertising in the PAMPA DAILY NEWS. Christmas Close, Close Advises Early Shopping

That old shibboleth, saw, or bromide phrased 'Do Your Christmas Shopping Early,' isn't such bad advice. It is one of the best pieces of reasoning that the local merchant ever tossed out for public consumption. Unfortunately, many of the rank and file never stop to consider why the local merchant insists that holiday gift buyers attempt to make selection and purchase at an early date.

L. G. Close puts it rather succinctly when he says that any merchandising organization, especially one such as Cretney can do a better job of customer pleasing if the customer will only realize that last minute shopping tends to allow more leisure of selection, clerical staffs are more able to take time in better service to the customer and special items not in stock can be procured before the last minute rush starts.

However, anticipating the heavy holiday traffic in several years, Cretney is prepared to stem the tide of the rush season. The newly remodelled store of the Cretney Company was designed with just such circumstances in mind.

No matter where you are in Cretney's it isn't difficult to find the most uninitiated shopper to sit and sip a coke or a coffee while casting a glance or two around the many departments of the Cretney store. From the convenience and comfort of the new Fountain area the many hundreds of gift items at Cretney's can be located for closer examination when the tired shopper feels like further inspection.

It would be pointless to attempt to list even the various categories of Cretney Merchandise. Name almost everything from Jewels to Jumpin' Jacks, Albums to Atlases, Monkeys to Marionettes, and you'll find it at Cretney.

If you are one of those unfortunate souls unable to break away for leisurely shopping, don't go into hysteric fits. Run down to Cretney's and let Close do the worrying for you. You can't get too Close for Comfort if you let Cretney's have your shopping problems to solve.

Little Doc in Search of Turkey

Little Doc, a feature on this page, has gone on a hunting trip to try and locate a Thanksgiving dinner for himself. Therefore he will not be with us today.

But soon as he returns he will be restored to his usual place on the comic page.

Seminole Indian women frequently wear 40 to 50 strings of beads weighing a total of 20 pounds.

Signs of Times Help Salesmen

Modern metal signs are good silent salesmen for thousands of products and services. They stand the rain, resist rust and remain unfaded for a long time. Even before many of them are exposed to the weather, the finish must take severe punishment in the embossing and bending operations.

A sign must also withstand heat, pressure and flexing without chipping or cracking. The finish of a sign, once it is placed in service, is vitally important to the person whose wares it advertises.

A piece of rusting metal with illegible letters and faded color, is of no value at all. In a very real sense, the finish is the sign.

Correct Paint Often Assists in Lighting

Examples of uneven distribution of light are frequently apparent in classrooms or workshops where there is a great deal of light on the window side, but little on the other.

It has been estimated that more than 3,000,000 persons ride New York City's subway annually.

HE CAME TO KILL By ADELINE McFRESH

THE STORY: When Aunt Maggie Thorne is murdered, suspicion points to Peter, her nephew, although afraid of him, Leanna, the victim's grandniece, tries to spy on Peter, but is caught. Peter gives Leanna a lavaliere, which his sister-in-law Sandra was supposed to have stolen. Then Peter admits he went to kill Aunt Maggie and found her dead.

XXI
PETER THORNE'S long lean fingers were entwined, struggling with each other until the knuckles showed white. He reflected the agony within him. Terror, tempered by involuntary pity, rose in Leanna's throat. "You went to kill her?" she squeaked.
He nodded.
Leanna swallowed hard. "You'll have to tell the sheriff."
Again Peter nodded. "Yes, I know," he said hoarsely. "He won't believe I didn't kill her, but—" He brightened. "Keep this, Leanna." He tapped the fingers clutching the lavaliere. "You'll know why—soon."
He turned on his heel and was gone before Leanna could muster the courage to call him back.
Frowning because an elusive half-memory had slipped back into the limbo of her subconsciousness, she crossed the hall to her own room. Sandra was still there, curled up like a contented kitten, her yellow hair as undisturbed as before. Now, she stirred and sat up, stifling a yawn.
"What goes?" she asked. "You look funny."
"Funny?" Leanna marshaled a brittle laugh. She hoped Sandra had not seen her drop the lavaliere down the front of her sweater. "You startled me, Sandra. I didn't know you were here."
"Oh, but you must have," Sandra pointed out matter-of-factly. "You've changed clothes." She stretched, swung her lovely legs over the side of the bed, and stood up. "Seen Peter?"
"Leanna was glad she had walked toward Sandra as she said, "Not don't think he killed her. That would take guts."

For the first time Leanna noticed the lines about Sandra's eyes. They gave her a haggard look.
"I know," she said, watching Leanna. "You're seeing what Thorne Hill has done to me. They told me that on Broadway, too, when I went back. No sparkle. No 'youth.' She flung back her head, defiant. "That's what brought me back here, Leanna. I thought if Jasper loved me enough we'd go away. Just us."
"And he wouldn't?" Leanna hated herself for asking, but the trapped look in Sandra's eyes wrenched it from her.
"He wouldn't," Sandra said slowly. "Not yet. That's what he said. 'Not yet.'"
"And then Miss Maggie was killed..."
Sandra turned away. "Yes," she said huskily. "Now Jasper says we are going—soon. As soon as he gets the money. You see why I'm afraid of him?"
Leanna whispered, "Yes," but Sandra already had gone.
THE lavaliere—where could she hide it? Certainly not in her room, for if the murderer might search and find it... She wasn't thinking of Peter now as a man who had killed his aunt; he was in danger, or he wouldn't have been desperate enough to confide in her.
But why hadn't he told the sheriff? Or Mart Preston? Or even Sandra, who so obligingly had provided him with an alibi for the time of his aunt's death?
Very carefully, Leanna folded the lavaliere into her handkerchief. She looped thread into a skein and knotted it securely, leaving a yard-length which she attached to the window sill by way of a picture nail and the heel of her shoe. Then she raised the window and lowered her precious package to mid-air safety device. Not even Peter Thorne's shady cohorts could have done better, she congratulated herself as she pulled the window down and locked it.
"A nice job, my dear,"
Leanna whirled, "Jasper!"

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

"I have endeavored in this ghostly little book to raise the Ghost of an idea, which shall not put my readers out of humor with themselves, with each other, with the season, or with me. Your faithful friend and servant, Charles Dickens, December, 1843."

With that preface, Charles Dickens, who loved people and loved Christmas, began the story of Ebenezer Scrooge, who hated people and—strange as it sounds—hated Christmas...

... And of Scrooge's wage slave, Bob Cratchit, who loved his little son, Tiny Tim.

Q. and A. You and the Service

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) Q. My son was a doctor in the services and was discharged as a major. He did not receive his education from the government. Is he subject to the doctor draft?
A. Technically he is subject to it but he is not likely to be called.
Q. Are Army counter-intelligence corps men being called back to active service?
A. Yes.
Q. Our son had a low number for his GI insurance dividend. He has been called back to the service and his wife needs the money desperately. What should we do?
A. Write to the Veterans Administration giving full name, serial number and address.
Q. I am in the Naval inactive reserve. When I am about to be drafted will I be able to go on active duty instead?
A. They're not drafting Naval reservists.
Q. My husband and I are now divorced. I am taking care of our child and he doesn't contribute to our support at all. I believe he told his draft board that he was supporting us. Is it my duty to tell the draft board the truth?
A. This space isn't devoted to advice on what a person's moral duties are. You don't face jail if you keep out of his affairs, however, if that's what you're worried about.
Q. I have just received orders to report for a medical exam in connection with a possible call to active duty in the Marine Corps. But I am being treated at a Veterans Administration hospital. Are they liable to take me anyway?
A. Report for your exam as ordered and tell the doctor about your illness. He will decide whether or not you will be called. Chances are you won't be.

Father of Randolph Field Going Strong at Age of 73

By BILL BECKER
LOS ANGELES — (AP) — The father of Randolph Field, Gen. Frank P. Lahm (USA), is an energetic, erect 73 years old today.
The man who made the world's first military solo flight — as a young lieutenant at Fort Myer, Va., Oct. 26, 1903 — lives quietly in his Hollywood apartment most of the year. But his keen eyes and alert step proclaim him still a man of action although he has been retired since 1941.
The answer would seem to be hunting, fishing, golf and the Early Birds.
The hunting and fishing come mainly during his annual summer vacation divided between his old home town of Mansfield, O., and his ranch hideout near Cody, Wyo. The golfing is a regular three times a week stint when he's home.
As for the Early Birds, they are an organization of men and women who flew solo in any form of aircraft before Dec. 17, 1903. General Lahm is president of the group and right now up to his knees in preparations for the annual Early Birds convention, to be held here next Jan. 25.
The dwindling group of pioneer fliers still numbers 380 members, including such prominent as Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, Walter Brookings, Bob Fowler, Igor Sikorsky, Glenn L. Martin, Allan H. Lockheed, Ruth Oliver Law and — among Texans — Col. R. B. Barnitz and Vernon L. Burg. Homer L. Bredow and Capt. G. Horton of San Antonio, John C. Hegging, Bellaire, and Robert E. Lee of Cisco.
General Lahm's main interest centers in the organization's program of properly commemorating outstanding flights and scenes in America's aviation history. The group will dedicate a plaque at Spanish Bight near San Diego on Jan. 28 marking the 40th anniversary of Glenn Curtiss' first hydroplane flight.
"We are trying to leave some thing for posterity," says the veteran aviator.
Something for posterity are Gen. Lahm's own achievements which include:
Winning the first James Gordon Bennett international balloon race from Paris to Yorkshire, England, in 1906.
First Army officer as passenger in an airplane, Orville Wright at the controls, Fort Myer, 1908.
First Army balloon pilot, 1908.
The above-mentioned first military solo — 13 minutes in the air after three hours of dual instruction from Wilbur Wright.
"Go ahead and take her up," Wilbur yelled, the general recalled.
"So I took her up at the dizzying speed of 42 miles per hour," Gen. Lahm continued. "It was the first plane built by the Wright Brothers for the Army, had 35 horsepower and flew about 100 feet off the ground most of the flight."
Before that, to certify the Army's contract with the Wrights — young Lt. Lahm had flown as passenger with Orville in an endurance flight for the amazing world record time — 1909, mind you — of one hour and 12 minutes.
But Texans probably will always remember Gen. Lahm best as the man who was responsible for selecting the site, planning and supervising construction of Randolph Field, West Point of the air, from 1928 to 1930.
After commanding the air service of the Second Army in World War I, the rising young officer was a logical choice to organize and command the air corps training center at San Antonio. His farsighted planning led to the development of an installation which provided the basic pattern for future air force fields throughout the country.
He later served as U. S. air attaché to France, Spain and Belgium, and saw duty on both coasts before returning to Randolph Field to be retired Nov. 29, 1941 — just one week before Pearl Harbor. Gens. George C. Marshall and (late) Henry H. (Hap) Arnold attended the ceremonies.
Flying is still in his blood. He gets out to southern California Air Force bases once in a while and goes aloft.
"The boys let me take a hand in the controls on some of the

Furniture Weight Doesn't Affect Oak

Unusually hard and tough, oak has a surprising degree of resiliency. This characteristic has proved to be an advantage when the material is used as flooring. Heavy furniture may stand on an oak floor for relatively long periods without denting it permanently. The wood has a capacity for "bouncing back" into shape after a time. It also is noted for its durability. Many oak floors have retained their beauty and serviceability for centuries.

WORLD COMBED

Because more than 5000 different raw materials are used in paint making, the markets of the world are combed to obtain the ones best suited to meet industry's highly exacting needs.
Gen. Lahm says with a grin, not unlike a boy emerging from a cookie jar.
He likes to set up front with airline pilots whenever he goes east to visit his daughter, Mrs. Barbara McMahon of Cleveland, O., or friends and relatives in Mansfield.
His son, Maj. Lawrence Lahm, is an army artillery man stationed at Heidelberg, Germany.
What does the old flier think of our 1950 Air Force?
"When our men can fly from Texas to Korea and swing into action against the enemy in six days, that's a tremendous thing and shows how fast the world is moving today."
