

This holiday season is set aside for worship and celebration. It is a joyous occasion. Don't mar your holiday through thoughtlessness and carelessness. Drive sanely, and try to make this a Merry Christmas.

DOWN, WAKE UP!—Jolly old St. Nick is hurrying down the chimney at the top of the page, and little three-year-old Donna Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Graham, 209 Cook St., is going to miss him. She has waited all night to deliver this gift to him personally, but the Sandman arrived before Santa Claus. (News Photo and Engraving)

Church of the Nativity scenes will start at 11 p. m. followed by Holy Communion.

The commercial Christmas festivities for Pampa got an official start at 11 p. m. when Santa Claus, with four of his reindeer, pranced over Pampa streets in the first night Christmas parade held here. The parade included floats of every description and high school bands from virtually every point in the Panhandle.

In the majority of places, home decorations were even more elaborate this year than at any previous time. Street decorations took on a different design with the light strings across streets being solidified and alternating red and blue lights at several intersections.

Private parties blossomed out during the past week, some of them prepared, others sporadic. The BGK Sorority held their annual Christmas dance last Saturday, the Moose held their second annual Christmas dance Friday night and the Country Club gave its annual Christmas entertainment last night. On Dec. 26 the Country Club will also hold a Christmas dance for college and high school teenagers.

All during the "Christmas rush" season, merchants were deluged with gift shoppers in an upsurge of business that surpassed any of the post war years. The post office took its share of the Christmas rush. Assistant Postmaster O. K. Gaylor reported a total of 345,558 cancellations by 4:10 p. m. Friday with more piling up. The 1950 Christmas mailing boom forced the postal department here to remain open today to clear the office of mail.

All in all the Christmas holiday

here promised to be an old-fashioned merry one—probably the last real merry Christmas for several years to come, if the world crisis grows worse instead of better in the near future.

Radio Station KPDM, too, will be taking part in the Christmas celebration with two special programs today.

The first one will hit the ether at 3 p. m. when Lionel Barrymore presents his annual impersonation of "Scrooge" from Dickens' immortal "Christmas Carol." The second program will start at 8 p. m. when Margaret

GIFTS CHEER ILL SCOUT—Howard Youngblood smiles happily as he listens to the radio sent him by Pampa Boy Scouts of Troop 22. The 14-year-old boy is in John Sealy Hospital, Galveston, Texas, for treatment of cancer. Howard says he is looking forward to going home and passing the radio to some other sick scout when he gets well. Another Christmas gift of which Howard is very proud is the new wrist watch he is wearing on his left arm. (AP Photo)

'I'm Glad to See You, Dad' Is Howard's Happy Hello

"I'm sure glad to see you, Dad," were the words that greeted Howard's father, when he entered the hospital room, where Howard, unknowingly, is destined by doctors to die.

Howard Youngblood, 14, victim of cancer, headed the top of his Christmas list with the wish to see his father for the first time since babyhood. He asked his mother, Mrs. Velma Faye Stone, 634 E. Craven, to fulfill his Christmas dream and a search was begun.

Youngblood arrived Friday afternoon in Galveston and went directly to the John Sealy Hospital, where he was met by his former wife. The couple was separated when Howard was about six months old.

Mrs. Stone entered her son's room first. She told Howard that his father was there and that it was necessary for his own good to be calm.

The weak Pampa youth clasped his hands together. When Youngblood entered the room, he heard the small, weak voice say "I sure am glad to see you, Pop. I've been wanting to see you for a long time."

Howard showed his father the many gifts he has received from his family and friends; the wrist watch from his grandparents here, shoes from his mother, books and the radio sent to him from his Scout troop here along with his First Class Scout badge.

"I've got everything I want for Christmas, I'm real happy," he said.

Youngblood was found on a construction job in Albuquerque, N. M., and his flight was arranged.

Seeing his father has caused Howard to rally somewhat. Staff members at the Galveston hospital had predicted the lad would not live until Christmas, but now there is a chance for two or three months.

The father stayed at his son's side all Friday and will stay for Christmas with him.

It is a happy Christmas for Howard — and he told reporters to be sure to say "Merry Christmas to everybody at home."

Harvesters Come From Behind to Trip Lubbock, 42-39

SPECK SPECULATES

By SPECK REYNOLDS

The Harvesters have scored six victories against one loss this season, and much of the credit must go to the defensive work of the Green and Gold cage quintet.

When the Westerners were leading 15-5 Friday night, it looked like the Harvesters were going to take their worst licking of the season. In the first quarter, the Pampas were passing wildly and giving the Westerners plenty of time to get off their shots.

It was a different story the second period. Coach Cliff McNeely's cagers hawked the ball all over the court and stuck to their men like stamps. They held the Westerners scoreless for five minutes and 30 seconds in the second period, and left the court at halftime leading 21-0.

Coach David Cook had his first stringers benched during the third quarter and 3 minutes and 30 seconds of the fourth period. The only mistake the Lubbock mentor made was when he sent his number one crew back into the game. His second stringers were doing a good job. The score was tied 24-24 when the number two quintet left the court.

The Harvesters went to work and scored six straight points before Lubbock could collect a point. It looked like Pampa guarded the first string closer than the substitutes.

Buzzy Tarpley's work under both baskets was terrific. When he went up after a rebound, he was all arms and legs coming down.

The Chamber of Commerce and Quarterback Club still have tickets for the football banquet Jan. 6. Coach Dutch Meyer will be on hand as the main speaker. Tickets are on sale at Richard's Drug Store and Frank Leder's Jewelry.

Eddie Scheig and Elmer Wilson were picked on the Lubbock Westerners' all-opponent grid team. Sports writers are funny people. . . . They try for two years to get rid of a coach, and then they are real sorry to see him leave. The Harvesters will meet Midland in the opening round at the Brownwood cage tourney. Game time is 2:10 p. m. . . . I got an invitation to attend the banquet honoring the Sooners in Oklahoma City last Tuesday. . . . I turned the invitation down because I couldn't find my state. . . . If you're going to rub elbows with 700 millionaires, go in style I say. . . . Isn't it strange how Amarillo claimed Jim Weatherall after he made several All-American teams. . . . Amarillo is getting as bad as Oklahoma City on claiming athletes.

Tomorrow is Christmas, and if you have waded down this far — MERRY CHRISTMAS old faithful reader. . . .

Tarpley Scores 11 Points To Lead Pampa Basketleers

Pampa's scrappy Harvesters roared from behind six times Friday night to edge the Lubbock Westerners, 42-39, in a basketball thriller that was tied up nine times during the 32 minutes on the junior high school maples.

A stiff man-to-man defense and some great rebounding by Buzzy Tarpley enabled the Harvesters to annex their sixth victory in seven starts this season.

After the Westerners jumped into a 15-5 lead in the first quarter, Coach Cliff McNeely's lads tightened their defense and held Lubbock to one field goal and two free throws in the second period.

Tarpley was a cage titan under the boards as he swept rebounds off both boards to give the Harvesters a wide edge in that department.

After the first quarter, the Westerners had a tough time getting off a shot. Guard James Claunch handcuffed Lubbock's high scoring ace, Carl Ince, to two field goals and one free throw.

Tommy Smith put the Harvesters out in front when he cashed in on Sammy Adams' foul. Carl Ince drove in and under to chalk up two points and he added another point on Marvin Bond's foul.

Bond knotted the game at three-three on a jump shot, but Sammy Adams canned one from 25 feet out to put Lubbock back in front. The two teams traded buckets. Then the Westerners turned on the heat and shot into a 10-point lead. Adams pushed in a one hander and Bobby Day followed with another field goal.

Adams made it 12-5 on Tony Jones' foul. Bill Williams' struck for two points, and Walker Norton registered a tally at the charity line.

Tommy Smith, Duane Jeter, and Tarpley cracked the nets for 10 points in the second period. Smith dribbled in for a set up and Jeter pushed in a one hander to narrow the score to 9-15.

Smith connected from the gratis line on Day's foul. Tarpley hit two hook shots to glue the game at 15-15 with five minutes and 20 seconds gone in the quarter.

Norton and Jeter swapped buckets, but Day pitched in two free throws when Bond fouled him driving for a set up.

Claunch rammed one through the nets from the field and scored two more from the free throw line to give the Harvesters a 21-19 halftime lead.

The Harvesters scoring guns were still hot in the second semester. Bond opened the third quarter with a free throw and banked in a two-handed jump shot to give the Pampas a five-point lead.

Walker scored one at the charity line but he fouled Smith in the act of shooting on the next play and the Pampa guard counted twice to make it 26-20.

Lubbock pulled up even at 26-26 with five minutes and 45 seconds gone in the third stanza. The two teams traded two free throws apiece, and then Pittman pushed the Westerners into the lead with a field goal. Tarpley and Smith rammed in four points to pull the Harvesters back in front. The game was knotted again when Pittman connected with a field goal.

Coach David Cook sent in his first team with four minutes and 30 seconds left in the fourth period. The Lubbock mentor had his number-two quintet playing during the entire third quarter. With the score tied at 34-34, the Harvesters exploded for six straight points. Bond meshed a field goal and a free throw.

Tarpley duplicated Bond's scoring to widen the gap to 40-34. Bond left the game with five fouls with 2 minutes and 30 seconds left to play. Norton and Ince then narrowed the lead to three points on a free throw and fielder.

Jeter hit an insurance shot to make it 42-37 with one minute left in the game.

The last minute of the game was wild and rugged with Pampa bringing the ball in three times from the sidelines in an attempt to stall out the clock.

Tarpley fouled Norton in the act of shooting, and the Westerner counted twice from the free throw line. With 15 seconds remaining, a technical foul was called against Elmer Wilson.

Trailing three points, Ince's free throw attempt bounced off the rim and Norton's field goal try fell short as the bell sounded ending the game.

Pampa's next cage engagement is against Midland Dec. 28 at the Brownwood basketball tournament.

Mitchell's Grid Team Packed an Offensive Punch

DENTON — (Special) — North Texas State was tenth in the nation in total offense by small-college football teams, according to final statistics for the 1950 season released by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

Coach Odus Mitchell's (former Pampa High School grid mentor) Eagles gained 3,894 yards, an average of 389 per game. Although the Eagles are classified in the small college statistics, half of the games were against major or large-college teams.

Wendell Swann, Eagle end from Houston, ranked third in pass receiving with 36 caught for 595 yards. NTSC Quarterback Zeke Martin was seventeenth in the nation in passing with 68 completions on 155 attempts for 1106 yards.

NTSC's leading ground gainer, Ken Bahrnsen, placed twenty-second with 837 yards on 153 rushing tries.

South Squad Hopes Model T Will Roll

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — John (Model T) Ford, the Harding-Simmons back, is a main hope of the Southern squad in its Christmas night charity game with the North, Coach Andy Gustafson says.

He likewise is depending on a pair of Texas Aggie guards, Moleberg and Greiner.

Ford will shift with Pat Field in Georgia and Angus Williams of Florida in the Rebel T formation.

Randy Clay Says Mother's Cooking Is Climax Of His Grid Season With New York Giants

By SPECK REYNOLDS

Randy Clay has covered the country from coast to coast and all because he knew how to handle a football on the gridiron. Back home in Pampa after completing his first year of professional football, Randy went to work on his mother's cooking trying to regain 20 pounds he lost with the New York Giants.

"This is the climax of my football season," Randy said between bites of crisp, brown chicken. "Those New York caterers can't match this home cooking."

The former Pampa grader joined the Giants this season after completing three years of football with the University of Texas Longhorns.

In comparing college football with that played in the pro loop, Clay said there was no weakness in the pay-for-play league.

"Every man is a master of the game," he explained, "and the players are heavier and more mature in professional ball."

The rookie halfback did all right his first year in the pro league. He won the Adler Award for his great game against the Philadelphia Eagles. This award for his great game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Clay carried the ball 14 times that afternoon against the Eagles, and picked up 101 yards rushing besides scoring the winning TD.

He played his grade school ball under Buck Prayjohn who now coaches at Lufkin High School.

Clay's most embarrassing moment in his early grid career was the day he lost his pants in a grade school contest. It was his first football suit too.

He played his junior high school football under Coach C. P. McWright who is now head of personnel at the atomic bomb project at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Clay mixed track and basketball with football while he was with the Harvesters.

with a pitch of 155 feet. The Associated Press named Clay the state's outstanding athlete for the 1945-46 season.

In 1944, Randy teamed with Johnny Campbell and they placed second in the Fat Stock Show track meet at Fort Worth. The two Pampas picked up 27 points between them. The track duo came in third at the state track meet at Austin that year.

Recalling his longest run on the gridiron with the Harvesters, Clay remembered the game with Midland in 1945.

"I took the kickoff nine yards inside our end zone," Randy remembered, "and I raced 109 yards to score."

Singling out the greatest player while he was with the Steers, he tabbed Bobby Lane, Texas quarterback, as best.

"He was a great morale builder," Clay said.

Randy lettered three years in football and three in track with Texas U. He made the All-Southwest Conference first team his senior year, and NEA's All-America.

a rematch of last year's finals. Austin against Wichita Falls. Austin lost the 1949 title to Wichita Falls, a semi-final winner Saturday over Highland Park of Dallas.

Watkins' long punt return for the Austin touchdown was the turning point of a tough defensive battle between two great schoolboy lines.

Baytown had taken a first quarter lead on a six-yard pass from quarterback Gerald Orton to end Mickey Pillow, and then scored another scoring opportunity erased by two penalties for backfield in motion.

The extra point kick by Baytown's Tommy Brundrett was low and wide.

Baytown led in penetrations, 2 to 1, but saw a fourth quarter march to the Austin 16 stopped on a first down pass interception.

The only other Austin penetration came two minutes before Watkins, aided by key blocks by Bobby Bailey and Wayne Agnew, made his 75-yard scamper.

Oliver Bradshaw, injured quarterback who sat on the bench throughout the first half, sparked an Austin drive that carried from its 40 to the Baytown 13, aided by a freak pass interception-fumble play.

Orton, intercepted a toss by Bradshaw but fumbled and halfback Arthur Cunningham recovered for Austin on the Baytown 28. Bradshaw passed to Herbie Hargis to the 13 but was thrown for a loss to the 17 on fourth down.

Baytown moved to its 35 from where Orton got off a punt that Watkins received on his 25.

Cummings Catches Pass in End Zone For Winning TD

DALLAS — (P) — Stout-hearted Wichita Falls smashed 80 weary yards in the last minutes Saturday to beat Highland Park 16-14 and push into the finals of the Class AA Texas schoolboy football race.

In one of the thrillers of schoolboy gridiron history, the Coyotes threw a crowd of 14,000 into pandemonium with one of the greatest clutch drives of men.

The Coyotes had to do it. Highland Park tied the score at 14-14 with three minutes to go, penetrations were even at 5-5 and 27-27.

Highland Park was leading on first downs 12-11 as the Red Shirts from North Texas put on their great surge.

The pay-off was a 24-yard pass from Ed Beach, top man of the Coyote backfield, to Kermit Cummings.

Wichita Falls leaped to a 27-7 lead at the half and it looked like Highland Park was through. But the Scots came back with a rush, rolled to three touchdowns and had the Coyotes on the run when it seemed all over.

Put the defending state champions, who next week meet Austin for the title — a repeat of last year when Wichita Falls beat Austin 14-13 for the pennant — were not to be denied.

Beach led the Coyotes on a wild parade, helped along by a pass interference penalty that gave Wichita Falls 22 yards. From the Scot 24 Beach rifled to Cummings in the end zone. Cummings bobbled the ball but caught it as he fell. Claude Williams kicked the extra point and the game ended.

Both teams had leaky pass defenses but Highland Park's was the worst.

The first period was scoreless but Beach opened the second by going around right end for a touchdown from the Scot five-yard line. Williams converted.

The Coyotes scored again soon afterward when Jim Self ran a John Roach's kick back 61 yards for a touchdown and Williams again kicked the extra point.

Wichita Falls scored again as soon as it got the ball. It was on a 49-yard pass play from Beach to Charley Wolston. This time Williams' try for point was blocked by Jube Belcher.

Highland Park got its first touchdown soon afterward. It was on a pass from Jimmy Robertson to Jay Fikes from the Wichita Falls 21. John Beasley converted.

But Wichita Falls got another touchdown with a 54-yard drive after getting the ball on the kick-off. It was on a 37-yard pass from Beach to Cummings.

As soon as the third quarter opened Highland Park scored its second touchdown. It was on a 12-yard pass from Malcolm Bowers to Ed Vernet. Beasley again converted.

Highland Park got its third touchdown early in the fourth period on a tremendous 81-yard

There Will Never Be Another One Like Judge Landis

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — You have only to be slightly acquainted with the major league owners to know that never again will a baseball commissioner be given the power that was vested in Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Nothing remotely approaching: "We assure him that each of us will acquiesce to his decisions even when we believe them mistaken and we will not discredit the sport by public criticism of him or of one another."

A commissioner without power, and who can be voted out by five of 16 magnates, is nothing more than another stuffed shirt, and the majors have enough of them in the two league presidents.

In the sniping at Happy Chandler, who while he was totally misnamed gave us a good pitch, the owners made it perfectly clear that what they want is an unimpeachable character, innocuous and pliable.

Unless he is given a stronger agreement than Albert Benjamin Chandler had, the humiliating summary dismissal of the Kentucky minstrel will, as a matter of fact, tend to make the new commissioner a rubber stamp.

No sense in rubbing an owner the wrong way.

It's nice work at $75,000 a year.

This being the case, the four men named to nominate a new commissioner — the Cubs' Philip K. Wrigley, the Braves' Lou Perini, the Yankees' Del E. Webb and the Indians' Ellis Ryan — might just as well forget a big name they don't need, and give the sinecure to a sound baseball man.

Paul Wrigley and Perini have been in baseball long enough to know that would be best.

The committee doesn't have to look any farther than President George M. Trautman of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, who means the highly important minors, and Warren Giles, president of the Reds, who once headed the International League.

Trautman or Giles would at least know his way around. They are well versed in the problems of an owner — minor and major. They are proven executives and organizers. They know the peculiar business that is organized baseball and its laws.

The baseball people would know what they were getting.

A show-window name, knowing nothing about the intricacies of the organized game, easily might get into more trouble than did Chandler, who at least confined his difficulties to petty things. Chandler ran interference for men not armed with Landis' authority, and won't be too tough to follow. Not if the bloke landing the position minds his own business and keeps his big mouth shut.

Meanwhile, we are treated to the amusing spectacle of Chandler running for re-election to the office out of which he was kicked.

With baseball crying for leadership, Happy Chandler turns the game into a political arena.

pass play from Bowers to Dave Webb and again Beasley converted.

The Scots tied it up on a pass interception. Wichita Falls was on its 10-yard line and Bobby Bowmer was back to kick. He faked the punt and threw a pass which Bernet intercepted and ran across for the score. Beasley's try for point was blocked by a Gross.

wave of Wichita Falls linemen. Then came the last thrilling three minutes and victory for the courageous Coyotes.

Dry weather continues to plague quail hunters in the Panhandle. Since the beginning of bird season, the quail have grown quite a bit more wary, and it now takes a good hard day of hunting to kill a limit in most areas. There have been more hunters this past week who missed their limit than all of the rest of the season put together.

The drought isn't making the wheat ranches happy either. Worries about fire and about making a wheat crop has caused a good many ranchers to turn down hunters seeking permission to hunt. If any of you have influence on the weather man, you might ask him to send rain as a Christmas gift for the quail hunters.

The North American Duck Decoy Makers Contest will be held again this February. Anyone who makes his own decoys should enter this contest. There are three classes of competition: Amateur class; Professional handmade class; and Professional machine-made class. There are several prizes in each species of each class plus grand prizes for the amateur class; a $300 double-barrel shotgun, a $250 over-and-under shotgun, and a $125 pump gun.

I have folders giving the full information on the contest, which is being sponsored by Nash Motors, and the forms requesting entry blanks and shipping tags for the decoys. Anyone interested can call me at The News and I'll be more than glad to give any assistance possible.

In the latest bulletin from the Oklahoma Game and Fish Department, I found an item which really burns me up. The release of a team of market hunters, the game ranger nine of their day's bag. Under Oklahoma law, the hunters could have been forced to pay fines of $200 each and further penalized with 60 day jail sentences. They only paid fines totaling $75 each plus court costs.

These hunters, admittedly market hunters, were caught in the act, confessed, and yet did not receive the maximum penalty. That's the thing that burns me up. This case happened to occur in Oklahoma, but it happens every day in every state. Men like these slaughter game which

Holy Anniversary
Marks Unholy One

It is a supreme irony that Christmas, the birthday of Christ, symbol of peace and good will among men, should also be the anniversary of the campaign of death, hate and destruction which began with the Korean War. Today that conflict is six months old.

No one pretends that the spirit of Christ is flourishing across the face of the earth. The Godless rulers of the Communist world are steadily pushing their frontiers forward.

To them it is not moral strength but weakness and decadence that makes us extol human dignity, the brotherhood of man, universal peace and cooperation among all peoples. They seize upon each show of good will as a golden opportunity to advance the widening boundaries of hate and distrust. The noblest of human purposes are twisted and distorted to serve the inhuman aims of the totalitarian.

Yet they have found that to destroy Christian morality and religion even in regions wholly under the Communist yoke is not an easy thing. In Russia itself, millions still go to church. Millions, too, still follow moral patterns in their private lives which the Soviet state decries as evidence of crumbling character.

But if Christ's spirit is ever again to pervade freely these lands in which it is now being flooded by anti-human communism, it must be lived and taught with a conviction and a determination which is not merely lip service.

Everyone of us must never lose sight of the fact that we are living in a time when the right to think and speak and act as we wish, so long as that activity does not do harm to society or particular individuals. We must want to help him realize his fullest capabilities as a human being.

There is some danger that we shall fail in some of these demands of the Christian spirit as we gird ourselves to stand off the challenge of Godless communism. But we must not allow this to happen.

For of what value would it be to hold the geographic bounds of the free world, if in so doing we lost the Christianity which is the spiritual essence of our humanity? We would find we had defeated the enemy but lost the war.

You run into less worry when you make your buy-word cash.
How about giving dad some toys for Christmas so the kids

Handbags with a light bulb

however, that the contents should be kept in the dark.

Washington . . . by Peter Edson

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—First suggestion that the committee on what to do in the present international mess comes from Harvard President James B. Conant, senator Vannevor Bush, ex-Under Secretary of War Tracy S.
Voorhees and some 20 associates. They call themselves "The Committee on the Present Danger."

The meat of their suggestion is that what this country needs right now, more than anything else, is a trained armed force of 5,000,000 men built up by two years of universal military service.

This would not be the panti-waist program of six-months universal military training plus six months in the reserve or National Guard, as proposed for the last four years and consistently turned down by Congress. That would have been of some help if previously enacted. But it's too late for that now.

Both East and West Suffer
From Internal Rivalries

By JOHN FISHER

Free world security is hampered by splits among allied nations and their respective political parties. The North Atlantic Council session in Brussels was a move in recognition of this unpleasant fact.

Political rifts, such as congressional Republican opposition to Secretary Acheson and the feuding in the Plevin ministry in France, can be healed. But the deep ideological chasms, which internally divide Italy, France and Great Britain, are more ominous.

A compensating factor is that severe differences, based on the national ambitions of China, Poland and Bulgaria, exist behind the anti-Communist bias of the various captive peoples.
These cleavages would widen in the event of a long war.

The ordeal, through which the nations are passing, may yet be called by historians the "Era of Civil Wars." The eventual victor might be the side which best exploits the splits in the opposite camp.

The Kremlin, apparently, appreciates this fact and has lately taken two steps to create further confusion and disorder in the ranks of its foes. The recent Soviet-mangled Warsaw Peace Congress set as immediate goals the muzzling of anti-Soviet propaganda in the free world and direct sabotage of rearmament.

The Russians commanded sympathizers in America and elsewhere to pressure Congress and the United Nations "to enact legislation making war propaganda a punishable offense."

In other words, to jail anyone who said anything derogatory of Soviet aggression regardless of its truth.

We can predict that both subtle and violent sabotage will be carried out at once. Hence it would be wise for Washington and other capitals to discover who are back of every strike from now on.

Soviet Communists for a long time blasted so-called right wing Socialists in the United States and Great Britain. Now they are using them. Because all European Socialists, including Russian Communists, have certain basic economic beliefs, it often is easy for them to drop anti-Communist slogans which have made them Socialists accept and act upon.

The other day Winston Churchill was savagely booed in Parliament by back-benchers and branded a warmonger because he had asked for suspension of the government's program to nationalize iron and steel.

Anyone who reads the extreme left wing British labor press is shocked by the naked enmity for America expressed week after week. This animosity is present long before the Korean differences of opinion.

Nearly every European country is plagued by disunity. The rivalry of Chancellor Adenauer and his German Democratic Republic hampers German teamwork on rearmament. All Germans shrink from the prospect of civil war in which East Germans would shoot West Germans in the opening European battle between a Soviet alliance and an American alliance.

Togliatti's Reds have started a fresh campaign to rupture already divided Italy. Their latest wrinkle is "strikes in reverse."
They want to strike public workers without authorization and demand big appropriations to pay for wages and material—thus siphoning off funds which were to go for national defense.

At the same time workers are told by the Communists that "malignant American imperial-ists" have persuaded Gaspéri's government to revive the Mussolini OVRA (secret service) so as to spy on workers and crush their strikes because "the Communist Party is the chief obstacle to the realization of American war plans."

Every move by Scelba's police to uphold law and order in strike areas is cited as "taking the path of American gangsterism" or as "foul American provocations" to which the local representatives of a decaying capitalist system respond.

No slander is too false in trying to weaken Gaspéri, who has increased in France, where about a third of the electorate votes for Communist candidates.
Red leaders are opposing extension of the term of military service to 18 months, the war in Viet Nam, the rearming of Germany and cooperation with the United States on Korea and China.

Many French intellectuals, themselves non-Communist, annoyously look upon Americans as the Athenians looked upon the Romans—powerful and wealthy brutes without manners or culture. Some American tourists have not helped change this misconception.

The picture would be black, indeed, if all internal bad blood revolted against the U. S. A.
But, fortunately, the Stalin bloc also has its troubles.

The initial German reaction may be fear of the new East German law decreeing death to all Germans—in the West as well as in the East—who aid Bismarck's rearming. Such prosperous threats will make most Germans hate Russia as never before.

A Corrupting School Book

We are sending men all over the world trying to protect our lives with the sword. We are doing this while at the same time we are having textbooks in 69% of the high schools in the United States that are corrupting the minds of the youth of the land—that are weakening the character of the youth—that are teaching a way of life entirely different from that advocated by the human relation Commandments, the last five.

"AMERICAN GOVERNMENT" BY FRANK ABBOTT MAGRUDER

The book is known as "American Government" by Frank Magruder. It is a 766 page book which advocates the welfare state as opposed to a government with the consent of the governed, on which this country was formed.
The book of course is written to sell and to please the people who believe in collectivism—to please teachers who believe that the majority determines right and that the end justifies the means and that there is no law superior to the will of the majority. In fact, no textbook in public schools can teach the dignity of the individual and that the majority must respect the rights of the individual and that there is a higher law than the will of the school board or the majority of the state or the federal government.

It is a crime that good honest people are sending their children to tax supported schools and do not even know what is being taught. They are getting their children out from under the ma-ther's feet for several hours each day, but they do not seem to care that they are being indoctrinated with socialism and welfare state doctrines. It makes it incredibly more difficult for an individual to get an education that is based on the Jewish-Christian-American ethics when he goes to tax supported schools than it would be if he were not poisoned and corrupted by coming in contact with textbooks and teachers who will use this kind of textbook in order to earn their daily bread.

I want to quote some instances of how this book is training the pupils to believe in socialism and the welfare state. I have the latest 1950 edition. Listen to this from page 608:

"Public ownership is increasing steadily in the United States and we accept it as a matter of course in most instances. Public roads, bridges, water systems, and services are excellent examples, which are taken for granted. The public school systems have been publicly owned for so long that no one thinks twice about them now."

The author makes statements and has no means of knowing whether his statements are true or not. How is it possible for the author of this book to know that no one thinks twice about them now? Has the author talked to every Catholic in the United States?
Has he talked to every educator in the United States?

In fact, we do not know one single solitary person, who will answer questions about what he is advocating without evasion or contradicting himself and who holds any position of responsibility, who believes that tax supported schools are good and desirable where the majority has the right to force the minority to help pay to have the youth of the land read such falsehoods and propaganda from an unlimited government. Practically every Catholic, many Lutherans, and many Seventh-day Adventists are convinced that the state is not qualified to educate the youth of the land.

Such outstanding thinkers as Isabel Patterson, who wrote "The God of the Machine," which Ayn Rand says is the greatest book published in the last 400 years, says they are the "primary tyranny," and Rose Wilder Lane says they are "tyranny naked."

Frank Chodorov, editor of Analysis, says that parents should learn to abolish tax supported schools.
Henry Link, a noted psychologist, and Dr. Orval Watts, and Leonard E. Read, president of the Foundation for Economic Education, all go on record as opposing tax supported schools. Yet this textbook goes to the youth of the land and has the authority and the nerve to say that no one thinks twice about tax supported schools now.

The doubt is not whether such a program is advisable. The doubt is whether it is judicious enough. It is, in our judgment, the only chance of averting a war of world dimensions, or of assuring victory if, in spite of our efforts to maintain the peace, the Soviet Union insists on World War III.

One nice thing about winter is that Junior usually gets all the way home before the ice cream melts.

"Now Hold That Pose, at Least for Today!"

National Whirligig

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The amazing failure of President Truman and his military advisers to demand faster and more far-reaching mobilization of troops has furnished the basis for a new agreement between Capitol Hill and the White House.

Unlike the partisan question of Secretary Ache-son's enforced retirement, Democratic members lead in the instance on a speed-up.

President Truman, as well as Defense Secretary Marshall, have warned Congress and the nation that the United States is more imperiled than it was at the time of Pearl Harbor. Yet the records reveal that Washington is far behind the rearming performance of 1941-1942.

In Capitol Hill's opinion, the administration seems to be multiple security preparations for more affairs like Korea, instead of guiding for a possible World War III.

Military spokesmen explain their laggard actions by arguing that the country must get ready in an orderly manner. They cite the lack of training camps, noncom instructors and equipment.

But equally authoritative experts at the Pentagon and elsewhere dispute these statements.
They say that we are more able to mobilize, organize and equip a huge force than we were ten years ago.

DIVISIONS — Only a quick survey of the size and disposition of our ground force is required to show how weak the country is in the face of a possible two-front war, and how slowly the men at Washington are moving to prepare for an attack. Many top military men believe that Russia may march into Germany, Poland, and the Balkans in the spring.

The United States now has only seventeen divisions in action, in being and on paper, as follows: Two are standing guard in western Germany, and most of them are postwar recruits or replacements untested in battle.
Seven are fighting in Korea, and they are far under strength as a result of 40,000 casualties.
One is holding down the fort in Japan. The only effective division within the United States is the 82nd Airborne at Fort Bragg, N.C.

HOLDS — The balance consists of the four National Guard and allied units called to the colors last September, and the two additional units summoned in to service by President Truman on December 15.

The September contingents went to camp with many holes in their ranks, and filling them with draftees and reservists has delayed training. They will be late January or early February, and they will be fully prepared for action, when they may be shipped to western Europe as the first installment on the Truman-Acheson pledge of ten divisions for that assignment.

The two National Guard divisions notified a week ago will not be war-ready until April or May. Like their predecessors in camp, they will have to be reinforced by draftees fresh from civilian life.

Meanwhile, although the Army has asked for 370,000 Selective Service men through February, only 190,000 have been inducted.
Naturally, it will be weeks and months before they complete even their fourteen weeks' basic training. It will take much longer for the training of the many branches of specialists required in a modern fighting force.

CONTRAST — This slow-motion mobilization provides a sharp contrast with our reaction to the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. At that time we had thirty-six divisions in near-readiness, and twelve more were activated within six months.

Three weeks after Pearl Harbor, 943,390 draftees had been called up, and the number exceeded 2,000,000 within six months. Many thousands of men were shipped to MacArthur's improvised camps, and fields in Australia six months after the Pearl Harbor tragedy, or the same period that has elapsed since the North Koreans attacked.

Another Disease
Cured

BY DAVID BAXTER

It has been quite a while since this column first revealed the valuable contribution to medical science by Dr.

William Frederick Koch, former professor of medicine at the University of Michigan. It is too bad that Dr.
Koch's discovery is still being opposed by some segments of the organized medical union, considering the proven documented cures on record. While it has been especially effective in even advanced, "incurable" cancer cases, several of which I wrote about, I have evidence of its value in the treatment of other ailments.

You would be surprised at the number of doctors themselves who have written giving me first hand information on how glyoxylide has worked on some of their patients.
Here is a letter just received from a lady in Indianapolis:

"A friend of mine has been sending me clippings of your column in the Odesa (Texas)
American concerning the Koch Glyoxylide treatment. I am so enthusiastic about the treatment and so happy that someone like you has investigated it thoroughly and given it your support, that I wish to congratulate you. I have had 21 years experience with the Koch treatment in all forms of cancer and I owe the last 20 years of my life directly to the treatment. It is but natural that I am glad to see it receive such favorable publicity.

In 1929 I became assistant to a physician who used the treatment in many cases of cancer, tuberculosis, etc. And who administered my first Koch treatment in 1930 for a rapidly progressing malignancy of the abdominal organs. I regained normal health to such an extent that I continued to assist him for 7 years; then became assistant to another physician for 11 more years. I have met Dr. Koch personally several times and he is all that you say—an unassuming Christian gentleman who has devoted his life to a cause that he knows is right and who certainly deserves a square deal than he has been getting all these years.

Dr. Koch has never claimed to cure all of the patients who received his treatment. I have seen many make almost unbelievable recoveries; and many patients die, who were really hopeless cases to begin with. One fact has impressed me concerning even those who die: about three days after receiving the Koch treatment, their pain gradually subsides and they seem to lose the desire and need for morphine—even those who have become addicted to it. And though some of them live on for several weeks, their families always seem grateful that the treatment was given because of the relief given the peddler and gradually led down the path until he will even steal in order to get enough money to buy the drug. No mercy should be shown to those who debauch the young in this way, nor to the powerful and wealthy dope rings which operate in so many parts of the world.

The dope habit should be avoided but there will always be some who need to be cured. This is not easy but it is often done. The best treatment is usually given in an institution since the temptations outside are often too great to be overcome.

This evil can be mastered only by the effort and cooperation of a great many different agencies and individuals including the medical profession, the courts, the federal government, and numerous and wide awake civic groups.

The drug habit usually means a craving for one of the substances derived from opium, although cocaine and marihuana are also properly included among the habit forming drugs. In medicine, opium, or more often one of the substances obtained from it, such as morphine or codeine, are extremely useful because they lessen pain without causing unconsciousness. They have brought untold relief to suffering humanity.

unselfish man. Children loved giving of gifts, like we have him. I remember that some of the things up on the mantelpiece. That would walk more than a mile on Sunday morning, to meet him, and hold his hand as they went to Sunday School. When he died, there were no public funerals in England, but hundreds of people were there, and children, whom he had befriended, came and dropped flowers in his open grave.

"In our homes, we had our Christmas dinner?"

"Oh, it was much the same as we have, here, except that roast

Her memories, too, are vivid of the lean Christmases she and her husband have celebrated in the United States. (News Engraving)

goose, was the standard bird. Then, we had a round of roast beef, mince pies and plum pudding. Mother had small individual mince pies. When she put them in the tins, there would be so many of them that she had the baker come and get them to bake in his huge ovens.

Again she caroled her little tinkling laugh. "I remember that we had a dog named Charlie. The boys of the neighborhood would coax him out, then bring him to the door. Mrs. Dowling, they would say, 'we found Charlie and brought him home.' 'Thank you,' Mother would reply, 'wait a minute.' Then she brought out the mince pie for each one, and the next year the same performance was repeated. But Charlie was never lost."

"I think the custom of singing Christmas came to us from England," the little nonagenarian observed. "At midnight in Birmingham the carolers came through the streets, singing, but they did not stop and expect something to eat, as they do here, to-day. It was simply an expression of their Christmas spirit."

"On New Year's morning, it was different. Crowds of boys would come to the doors and cry, 'I wish you Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.' 'A pocket full of money, and a cellar full of beer, Open the door and let the New Year in!' They expected a gift of money."

"So, you see why I say that it was a time of giving, not getting. Santa was not commercialized as he is to-day. I suppose they still keep the same customs in England. For, you know, she prides herself on her stability in customs. 'as is now'—and ever shall be."

"During the last World War, we were reminded of this. Just before the invasion of Africa, Douglas Stone, of Portales, a nephew of my son-in-law, had a few hours in London, where my remaining family now lives. He had their address, and called them as he had promised me he would do, if he had the opportunity. It was then 1 p. m., and they formally invited him to tea at four. I could have spent those three hours visiting with them, he laughingly told me, after he came back. But, you can't change the English."

"Since this is supposed to be a Christmas story," she was asked, "tell us about some of your Christmases in these ninety years."

"It isn't hard to remember the saddest night I recall on Christmas day. It was while we were pastoring a little church in Kansas. A young mother had died, bearing her fifth child, and the child, with her. Her funeral was on Christmas day. That young father stood by the casket, where she lay, with the child in her arms, with his arms sheltering the four little ones, left him. There was no gladness left us that Christmas day."

"But," she brightened, "I suppose my happiest Christmas came when I was about six or seven. Why is it that most of our happiest memories are from childhood? Is it that memory is brighter, or because that we still believe in everything?"

"My birthday, only three weeks before, comes so near the holiday season, that usually it was small routine. But, that year, Father saw to it that I had a real birthday party with a big cake and candles and a new doll carriage. It was a new type of toy, and I was so overjoyed that it carried right on into the holiday season, when I got a new doll to put in the carriage, and became the brightest spot in my Christmas memories."

"What about toys?" I asked her.

"They were much the same as we have to-day, minsters of what the grown-ups have. Of course, they were not so equisitely made. Dolls for the girls—and ships or engines for the boys. No tractors or cars or airplanes, of course."

"What about your Christmases as a pioneer preacher's wife?"

"They would have seemed very skimpy compared to this age," she returned. "No huge dinners, when everyone ate too much—no profusion of toys for our children. They appreciated what Santa brought because it might be a long-desired treasure—or something to wear. Those first years we were clothed by missionary barrels, sometimes they fit, and sometimes they were useless cast-offs. Most of our pastorates were poor people, and preachers were paid, little and last."

"Mrs. Rees, what would be your choicest wish for this Christmas season?"

"That we might have peace on earth as the angels sang, that first night," without a moment's hesitation. "But that will only come when people all over the world recognize the truths taught by our Christ-Child, that men are brothers and God is the Father of all. It could come if the Christmas spirit we try to promote at this Yuletide season were abroad and working the whole year through, among all the nations of the earth. We should pray for that."

'Slanted' Text Book Found Widely Used in Pampa Area

A senior high school text book, long described as having "slanted" opinions and doctrines from countries other than our own is being used in eight out of nine high schools in the Pampa area, according to a recent survey conducted by The Pampa Daily News.

The civics text, entitled "American Government," by Frank Abbott Magruder and published by Allyn and Bacon of Boston, is the same one which obtained so much unfavorable publicity in recent weeks throughout the country.

Comment on the book was introduced in a recent broadcast by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

On his Nov. 27 broadcast, Lewis quoted a number of passages from the "Educational Reviewer" concerning the popular text used in 1,726 out of 2,500 high schools in the United States.

The Pampa Daily News surveyed the nine high schools in the Pampa area, and found that eight of these schools were using the book as a regular text, being placed in the student's hands to take home and study. The ninth high school official replied that he "wasn't sure" whether his students used the book or not.

"American Government" is on the list of acceptable texts published by the state of Texas, and is most commonly used as the book being placed in the student's hands.

The following high schools are using it as a regular text: Pampa, Lefors, Wheeler, Shamrock, Panhandle, Miami, White Deer and McLean.

The official who replied that he was "not sure" was the principal of Alameda High School.

The following is a summary of statements used by Lewis on his Nov. 27 broadcast:

"Magruder's American Government is an example of the extent to which a text book, perhaps without intent, may spread slanted arguments and data, issued by governments. In this case, the trouble appears to lie in the uncritical judgement of the author and publisher.

"In its discussion of Democracy, the book assumes that we have shifted permanently and properly from the American form of Democracy in which individuals have equal opportunity, to the French form in which people are organized into collective masses, such masses electing governments with absolute power to impose their will on the individual. This view of democracy leads straight from Rousseau through Marx to totalitarianism.

"The author has a table showing how we have replaced 'old personal liberties' with 'new civil liberties' (p. 644). The old liberties, he implies, encouraged ignorance, disease, crime, and political dishonesty and nothing else! No benefits have come from liberty! The remedy is compulsion. The good things we enjoy, he thinks, are the fruits of compulsion. For example, compulsion is responsible for the reduction in our infant death rate and for the cure of unemployment and want. There is nothing in the book to suggest that the American free economy made any contribution to our high employment.

In order to better understand the exact content of the book, The Pampa Daily News is presenting a series of articles explaining the issue in more entirety. The first article of which appears today on the editorial page under the head, "Better Jobs."

Double-Ring Church Ceremony Weds Dorothy Louise Dixon, Raymond Barrett

A double-ring ceremony read in the First Presbyterian Church at 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 16, united in marriage Miss Dorothy Louise Dixon and Raymond Earl Barrett. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dixon and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Barrett. Dr. Douglas E. Nelson read the ceremony against a background of white gladioli, white chrysanthemums and fern fronds.

Nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. H. A. Yoder, organist, who played "Because" and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was dressed in a gown of white shimmer satin trimmed in seed pearls. It buttoned down the front with self-colored buttons and the full skirt reached to the floor. Her veil of illusion fell from a tiara of white satin. She carried her bouquet of gardenias and candytuft on her white nurse's Bible.

The bride's sister, Miss Mary Dixon, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a pale green tulle gown and carried a colonial bouquet of white and yellow ranunculus. She wore a matching headress with a short veil.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue dress, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias and white snapdragons. Mrs. Barrett was dressed in medium blue and also wore a corsage of gardenias and white snapdragons.

Shoulder were best man, Ernie Bill Terry of Pampa and Robert McBrayer of White Deer.

The bride is a graduate of Pampa High School and is attending the University of Oklahoma Nurses' Training School in Oklahoma City.

Mr. Barrett, a 1948 Pampa High School graduate, is in the United States Navy.

For traveling the bride wore a navy blue suit with white accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Miss Martha Hopkins served the cake at the reception, which was in the educational building. Mrs. William Chapman poured coffee. Miss Martha Parks was at the guest register.

An arrangement of white carnations and holly centered the table and candytuft held white candles. Around the edge of the table festoons of greenery were Miss Ann Richardson and William Robert Speer. The bride was dressed in a white gown and veil. The groom was in a dark suit.

Miss Ann Richardson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Speer of Pampa. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. D. Hubbard of Farmington, N. M., and Allan Richardson of Carlsbad, N. M.

The Rev. Leeland C. Saker read the double-ring rites against a background of candles, greenery and holly, arranged to carry out the Christmas theme in the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority house. Mrs. Robert Hinton, pianist, accompanied Mrs. William Hall who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's maid of honor was her sister, Miss Judy Hubbard of Farmington, and bridesmaid was Miss Annette Williams of Carlsbad.

Hansel Kennedy of Pampa was best man to the bridegroom. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown with a ball train and a lace bolero with long sleeves. Her cap caught her shoulder-length veil and she carried an arrangement of red poinsettias and holly leaves.

Miss Hubbard wore a red velvet dress with a long green skirt and a scalloped boat neckline. Miss Williams wore a gown identical to that of the maid of honor. Both attendants wore white hats and mits of matching velvet.

A reception followed the ceremony at the sorority house. For traveling the bride wore a navy blue knit suit with coral and navy accessories.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Speer are students at the University of New Mexico.

What's Cookin' In Gray County HD Club Work

THIS CHRISTMAS SEASON

Installation of home demonstration club officers was held in connection with Christmas parties in the following clubs: Merten Club with Mrs. C. A. Jones as hostess; Worthwhile Club with Mrs. O. G. Smith hostess; Wayside Club with Mrs. J. S. Fuqua hostess.

Bell Home Demonstration Club annual Christmas community party was held in the Bell Community House with 61 attending.

The annual Home Demonstration Council Christmas party was held in the City Club Room. The following members of the Council recreation committee were in charge of the party: Mrs. A. M. Nash, Merten Club; Mrs. E. Montgomery, Wayside Club; and Mrs. Harrold Cockburn, Worthwhile Club.

Mrs. R. E. Montgomery announced the program for the afternoon. Mrs. J. S. Fuqua opened the meeting with prayer. Council officers for 1951 were installed with a candlelight ceremony by the agent. The following officers were installed: Mrs. Charles Warminski, chairman; Mrs. Walter Noel, vice chairman; Mrs. T. G. Groves, secretary; Mrs. Emmett Osborne, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Vern Savage, reporter.

The following council committee chairmen were also presented: yearbook, Mrs. Walter Noel; exhibit, Mrs. V. Smith; education and expansion, Mrs. Grace Morris; recreation, Mrs. A. M. Nash; reporter, Mrs. Vern Savage; marketing, Mrs. W. R. Dunn; visual aids, Mrs. David Collins; library, Mrs. Ernest McKnight; finance, Mrs. O. G. Smith; and 4-H adult leader, Mrs. Fred Haiduk.

Mrs. J. S. Fuqua presented the awards for the club scrapbooks. Mrs. David Collins sang "My Soul Doth Magnify The Lord."

Henry Jordan read a Christmas story, "Another Santa"; Mrs. Emmett Osborne read, "Shopping List"; and Mrs. H. B. Taylor, Jr., read the Christmas story from Luke.

Group singing of carols preceded Santa's appearance. Following the exchange of gifts, refreshments were served to 65 club women and guests.

Mrs. R. W. Orr of Hopkins brought a generous sample of the dark fruit cake she had baked from a recipe given in this column several weeks ago. The recipe was for a dark fruit cake featuring moderate cost and generally available ingredients.

The Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, sent in the recipe and after tasting the cake baked by Mrs. Orr we can recommend it as a good moderate cost fruit cake recipe. By the way, if you have any fruit cake left after the Christmas rush is over, just wrap it snugly in cellophane or foil in order to preserve the rich fruit flavor and the natural moisture. The foil and cellophane is the type used to package food for the home baker. Both come in handy rolls with a cutting edge on the box.

This leftover fruit cake will taste plenty good a few weeks hence.

Joy Williams and Foster Whaley, assistant extension service agents, along with members of the Gray County 4-H Council and 4-H adult leaders certainly made history in 4-H Club activities with the big county-wide 4-H Christmas party this year.

It was hard to tell which had the best time at the party, the 4-H boys and girls or their parents.

CLUB SCRAPBOOKS. Congratulations to the clubs for the interesting scrapbooks kept by the club reporters during 1950. The Bell Club scrapbook won first place. Mrs. Henry Duesterhaus was reporter for Bell Club.

Merten Club won second place with Mrs. H. H. Threath as reporter.

Worthwhile Club placed third in the county. John King was reporter and Mrs. Harrold Cockburn was assistant reporter.

Palaver de Pampa

"Twas the night before Christmas And all through the house . . ."

COULDN'T HELP IT—Just had to put that right at the top of the column. It best describes this most magical, mystical moment of all—Christmas Eve. For the children it's a night of longing and anticipation they'll rarely ever know again. They'll lie wide-eyed far into the night, whispering under bed covers, and listening for just a sound that might indicate Santa is near. And is there a grown-up anywhere who doesn't fall under the spell, and like the children fall asleep wondering just what the dawn of Christmas morn will bring?

WE HAD A few carollers this year but not many. Saw one group of young people on a big, rolling truck singing through town, but you know the whine of engines and the horn blasts sort of drown out the familiar strains. Only advantageous thing about using automobiles while Christmas carolling is that it enables a few people to visit a lot of people in a short time. (Wasn't that a considerable carolling party by the SPEBSQ-YOU KNOW.) Really, though, carolling isn't done like it used to be. Lots of us remember long ago, tromping all over our neighborhoods singing, singing and singing with only the crunch of our galoshes on a deep, crusty snow for accompaniment. Just the "Silent Night"—no motor cars, no horns, no sounds but our occasional squeals of delight when windows flew up and we were invited in for hot chocolate and cookies.

Surely is nice to see all the college people home . . . the A. C. Troop, the Oscar Pirtles' daughter and Bobby Tucker, fresh out of the role of "Judy" in "Junior Miss." Also we see the Jess Clays' family, Joan and Randy, here. It's the first Christmas at home for Randy in four or five bowl games. He's been the toast of New York City on at least one occasion with stores sending him all sorts of handsome gifts, and lots of publicity, etc. Shortly before heading home Randy stood up with a Kansas teammate who married in "The Little Church Around the Corner." Saw pretty 'til Joan Strip shopping the other day (My! but she has a treat in store Christmas morning—her sweet mother, Jessy, selected her gift long ago.) Young Hobart Fatheree is visiting from Texas A&M, and he's getting so tall. Towers over his mom, Mrs. Clyde Fatheree, who, by the way, looked mighty fetching the other day in a burgundy suit.

NOT TO BE overshadowed by the collegiates, the high school set plans for getting into the social limelight. The Sub Debs had their "Snow Ball Dance" Thursday evening, and the Kit Kats set their annual presentation for the 28th, I believe. There'll be a lot of dances during the holidays, but probably no evening will surpass these two in gaiety, excitement, and sheer durability. Somehow these two in gaiety, excitement and sheer durability. Somehow dance programs and glide across the floor as long as there's a stout Harvester on his feet. Then in the wee hours after dancing they're off for a "hamburger" . . . without! and a chocolate malted. Then they go home deliciously happy and sleep the sound, contented slumber of youth, while mothers toss and turn wondering why young people don't die of physical exhaustion or ulcerated stomach.

PANORAMICALLY: This Yuletide yak is all but over, and then we begin saying our farewells with a Happy New Year . . . I'm breathing more easily already . . . in a way Christmas was just here and gone before we realized it. The F. A. Hukills, smart people, were doing their shopping a couple of weeks ago but there were still people shopping yesterday . . . Earlier in the week saw Mrs. A. B. Caruth and her handsome daughter debating which way to go next.

Speaking of Caruths, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Caruth are celebrating their silver wedding anniversary today . . . Spied young Tom Bates dashing across the street with a fistful of little packages . . . "The kind the best presents come in!" . . . Mrs. K. W. Pierrats' mother is visiting here and she is always welcomed back with open arms . . . makes friends easily and very charming . . . Another very handsome shopper was Mrs. Luther Pierson in a copper top coat and brown velvet hat with a band of fancy ornaments . . . And weren't those ornamental Christmas corsages just the thing to add to the spirit of things? . . . Pretty window decorations on First Methodist educational building were getting attention, and also the especially nice job our merchants did on their windows . . . Liked the music coming from the First Christian, too . . . Saw pert June Bull in town . . . know of at least one new hat she's bought especially for holidaying . . . gold and mighty cut . . . her mother was seemingly wise in starting out years ago letting June help make decisions on shopping spree . . . now June is very grown up and quite clever in her wardrobe planning . . . The Dan Gibbons had another new fire . . . the hall again, and it came close to a closet of fine linens and precious old family books . . . Hear that Dan started calling "Fire, fire," and young Bill came running in and dished on a glass of water that was sitting nearby . . . regular firechiefs, those two . . . they did put it out, though!

ACTUALLY, I hesitate to mention any special house decoration because there are so many that I couldn't possibly comment upon it. The interest was apparent everywhere . . . the old-timers who've decorated for years 'n years and the newbies who were sharing their first tree. Whether there was a lot of time and expense involved or just a little, the effect was the same . . . a common and genuine feeling for this one time of the year.

LIKE I SAID, everyone has done a fine job on decorating, but here are a few "absolute musts" on your holidaying trips over town. The J. C. Doggetts have spattered the pane in their picture window and it looks like snow and ice everywhere . . . they also (See PEG O' PAMPA, Page 11)

While they were living at Dublin, Mr. Bell bought a farm near Cisco, about 50 or 60 miles away. He made some improvements there, then took his family to their new home. When he pointed out to Mrs. Bell the fine location he had chosen for the first year on their new farm, it was nice, but it's so far from their new house, she waited return to Dublin. But in 1908, Mr. Bell, too, was ready to farm, their crop was hailed out from home.

'Abe' Bells of White Deer Observe Golden Wedding

WHITE DEER — (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. G. A. "Abe" Bell celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with open house Sunday afternoon at their home east of White Deer.

Miss Peggy Travis registered the more than 100 guests who called during the afternoon. Mrs. Jay Jones, sister of Mrs. Bell, assisted with the gifts. Miss Guyda Baten presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. J. R. Bell, a daughter-in-law of the honorees, served the wedding cake. They were assisted by Mrs. F. J. Travis, Mrs. Carl McAdams and Mrs. Alta Boyd.

A bouquet of golden chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece for the refreshment table at one end was placed the three-tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom within a white wreath bearing the numerals "50" in gold. Bouquets of yellow roses and yellow chrysanthemums were arranged about the room.

On December 20, 1900, Miss Belle Caudle became Mrs. Belle Bell, wife of G. A. Bell. The simple wedding ceremony was performed by a Baptist minister, Rev. Beam, in the home of the bride's parents, in Erath county, Texas. Her wedding dress was of blue serge trimmed in white.

The young people had grown up in the same community, living within a mile of each other, but did not attend the same school. Mr. Bell recalls that on one occasion he went to her school to call for her, but the teacher refused to let her leave with him, so he was forced to go away without her. Undaunted, however, she slipped away, walking across a pasture, and kept her "secret" for many years.

HADACOL Supplied Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin And Iron, Which Her System Lacked

Mrs. Leo Picard, Church Point, Louisiana, is mighty proud of her two daughters, Wilma Jean, 8 years old, and Juanita Marie, 4. She says it's a full-time job just keeping track of them. It wasn't too long ago when it was all Mrs. Picard could do to just barely get her work done. Now all that is changed . . . now that she has been taking HADACOL. Mrs. Picard found HADACOL helped her system to overcome deficiencies of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Nicotin and Iron.

Such Fine Results
HADACOL does not bring just symptomatic relief. HADACOL now makes it possible to actually relieve the cause of vague aches and pains, certain nervous disturbances, and a general run-down, weakened condition when they are due to deficiencies of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Nicotin and Iron in your system.

HADACOL not only supplies deficient systems with extra quantities of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Iron and Nicotin but also helpful amounts of important Calcium and Phosphorus—elements so vital to help maintain good health and physical fitness.

Why These Vitamins and Minerals Come in Liquid Form
There's a very good reason why HADACOL comes in special liquid form. These previous Vitamins and Minerals are more easily and quickly absorbed into the blood stream this way—ready to go right to work. A big improvement is often noticed within a few days.

Don't Be a "Doubting Thomas"
After reading Mrs. Picard's wonderful experience with HADACOL—how can you doubt that this great new nutritional formula will help you if your system lacks Vitamins B-1, B-2, Iron and Nicotin?

What HADACOL did for Mrs. Picard it can do for you if you're troubled with vague aches and pains, certain nervous disturbances, insomnia when due to an upset stomach, stomach distress and a general run-down, weakened condition when they are due to deficiencies of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Nicotin and Iron.

So what are you waiting for? Don't you see that HADACOL is the kind of product you need—the kind you should buy and the kind you should start taking immediately!

Sold On a Strict Money-Back Guarantee
HADACOL even helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to course through your body, carrying these great health-building elements to every body organ. No wonder HADACOL helps you feel wonderful.

Be fair to yourself! Give yourself a break if you have such deficiencies! Why continue to drag yourself around—a burden to yourself and your family—when relief may be as close at hand as your nearest drugstore if you suffer a deficiency of Vitamins B-1, B-2, Nicotin and Iron. This great HADACOL is inexpensive, too—costs only a small amount a day. Trial size, only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. If your drugstore does not have HADACOL, order it direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

lighted up the big tree in front; the Ray Dudleys have outlined their house in lights (similar to the John Bradleys except the Bradleys have an all-blue silhouette); the R. A. Bakers have a fat "fat Santa" on their porch and the big tree decorated; the W. L. Hoskews have those two lovely "stained glass" windows up again . . . one of the very loveliest effects we've seen. Now all of those mentioned "kept the Bradleys are on Somerville Street and I believe it gets my vote for the best-dressed street this Christmas. The Pop Wanners have a pretty scene hung inside their porch. The Lewis Jones have the door covered in tinsel like a big silver package.

Other places over town you don't want to miss are the Crawford Atkinsons, with lights twinkling out from behind every wrought-iron pillar on the porch; Weldon Adairs with tiny reindeer pulling a sleigh-full of a big, laughing St. Nick; the Calvin Jones, lights in all the shrubs and outlining the house; the Bill Frasers, with more lights; the M. V. Wards with the clever little fireplace and Wise Men on the front lawn and Santa waving and disappearing down the chimney; and the Charlie Duenkels, who have covered the front window panes with colored paint, or paper, which goes appropriately with the rest of the house. It's outlined in lights and looks like a church with steeple and all. Very good, only the "stained windows" hide from us the decorating that's being done. Anxious to see that.

DON'T FORGET that right behind Christmas is the new year. Most folks are worried about making resolutions, and I used to worry about adding another year to my age . . . but that was before I heard about HADACOL!

When Mr. Peg noticed in last week's column that I planned to box up some real hints about myself he threw up his hands. "What hints could you give?" he moaned. "Why, you're so changeable nobody'll figure you out." Come to think of it, he's right. I'm a whole bunch of personalities rolled into one: I'm a noisy as Independence Day, sentimental as St. Valentine's Day, and I'm merry as Christmas . . . which reminds me, dear friends, to wish all of you a very, very merry Christmas from

Mary Jean Patton Becomes Bride of Lester Michael

In a simple, but impressive ceremony read at 9 a.m. Nov. 19 in the First Christian Church, Miss Mary Jean Patton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Patton of Pampa, became the bride of Lester Kenneth Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Michael of Lefors.

The altar was decorated in rich autumn colors. The bride wore a ballerina-length white satin dress styled with a lace yoke. Her fingertip veil was caught with a rhinestone tiara which her mother had worn at her wedding. The bridal bouquet of red roses was carried on a white Bible.

The bride's sister, Miss Ottoline Patton, was maid of honor. She wore a duplicate of the bride's gown, fashioned of violet tulle. Her bouquet was of pink roses accented in black to match her velvet and net hat.

Bridesmaids, Misses Margaret McPhillips and Joyce Adams, wore pink and blue taffeta, and each carried blue carnations.

Like Doom served as best man and Willard Doom and Richard Archer were ushers. All are from Lefors.

The bridegroom's niece, Miss Betty Puhm of Lefors, furnished the music.

The bride is a graduate of Pampa High School and is an employee of Zales Jewelry Store. Mr. Michael was graduated from Lefors High School.

The couple left immediately after the double-ring ceremony for Corpus Christi, where they spent their honeymoon.

of water, and went on their way. Some years after their return to Erath county, the call of the northwest came again, and the Pells moved to the Fred Witter ranch near Texhoma. The ranch consisted of nine sections of ranch land and 2400 acres of cultivated land. Mr. Bell bought a section of land adjoining the Witter holdings, but continued to live on the ranch for 12 years. They then moved into Texhoma, but after two years went on to Boise City, where Mr. Bell was in the automobile and machinery business.

Then came the depression. Having lost everything but a ranch south of Clayton, Mr. and Mrs. Bell lived there during the first of the "dust bowl" years. "Broke," they became "the wandering Bells," threshing and working at various other jobs until they finally leased a ranch west of Stratford. Times began to improve; and in 1944, Mr. and Mrs. Bell came to White Deer, where they have spent the last six years in the comfortable farm home on the Fred Witter farm east of town.

Relatives present to join in the celebration of their golden wedding were their sons, Ernest and J. R., their grandson, Aldon; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. R. Bell; Mrs. Bell's sister, Mrs. Jay Jones, and Mr. Jones of Gruver; a cousin, B. B. Caudle, and Mrs. Caudle of Amarillo; and a niece, Mrs. Jewel Jones, and her daughter, Sharon, of Texhoma.

Soviet Weakness In Supply Aired

Lack of oil may be a serious Soviet weakness and the Russians would be hard pressed for petroleum in a major war. Today the Russian oil industry is not substantially greater than in 1940, when it proved grossly incapable of meeting the needs of World War II. Production of crude oil in 1949 only equaled that of 1940, and while there has been progress in engineering methods and refining there has also been an increase in domestic consumption which could not easily be curtailed to divert petroleum products to military uses.

The article, appearing in the Oil & Gas Journal's annual international report issue, was specially prepared by Dmitri B. Shinkin of the Russian Research Center of Harvard University. It includes a detailed analysis of all known data on the Soviet oil and gas industry, gathered by extensive research into Russian and other sources.

"Russia's oil and gas industry retains major elements of weakness, despite large potential reserves of petroleum and natural gas," the report states. "The past decade in oil-field operation, in refining, and in expanding natural-gas output, and postwar access to eastern European production," says Professor Shinkin.

"Fundamental defects exist in poorly mastered exploration techniques, an excessively low rate of oil-well completion, a limited and antiquated cracking capacity, low product standards, and primary dependence upon long-range rail hauls in petroleum distribution."

"Finally, sharply increased needs for truck transportation have more than offset the economies realized from the use of substitute fuels in agriculture within the past 10 years. The U.S.S.R. has become a net importing rather than a substantial exporting nation for petroleum products."

Outside of the Soviet and satellite, however, the Journal's world-wide report finds the international oil industry generally in a healthy and balanced condition. Most of the World War II damage has been repaired, and production, refining, and consumption are increasing steadily. The most significant development of the past year has been the construction of new refining capacity in Europe, supplied chiefly by crude from Middle East fields developed since the war.

The world's oil supply now provides a margin of about 10 percent over demand, consumption is increasing, and projects now under way indicate that sufficient supplies will be available to meet a continued growth in demand over the next several years.

New Locations Reveal Much In Store for 1951 Drilling

Railroad Commission reports showing a new location in Oldham County have given oilmen just cause to wonder this week. The 7,000 foot test is hoped to give much in the way of information about the new territory. This week's tally included 14 new locations, 9 oil completions, and 10 plugged wells. No gas completions were recorded.

THE DRILLER'S LOG By JACK COATS

Received a letter from W. J. Ball in Alameda the other day, much to my interest.
He wrote an interesting letter telling of an active leasing campaign throughout the southern half of Gray County.

According to Ball, about 6,000 acres of land has been leased from less than 15 landowners. Operations on the solid block are expected to begin sometime after the first of the year.

The land is leased by Dodge City interests.
Am still hearing more rumors about the Deaf Smith, Oldham, Farmer and Castro County area. The California interests I mentioned a few weeks ago are almost certain to be Union Oil Co. Of course, this is the first major activity in that area, but anything can happen, and usually does. Look at Snyder and Farmington.

Numerous wildcats were drilled in and around Snyder at different times with little success. You just can't tell about those oil fields.

Activity has been almost nil during the past few weeks as it usually is during December, but just wait until January and February. There are a lot of interesting things due to happen. Watch Farmington, the Deaf Smith-Oldham County area, the Alameda area and the southern end of the Julesburg basin.

That's where your next activity is going to be.
Pampa and West Texas rigs are still making tracks for Farmington. The Sinclair well on the Colorado-New Mexico line has been successful and it looks like the Farmington pool will meet the southern end of the Julesburg Basin, reaching from the Colorado-Nebraska line toward Durango.

While we are looking into new locations for 1951, it might be well to consider Elk City, Okla. Lots of activity expected up there. Shell is erecting a large gas plant at Elk City.

Talked to Fred Neslage of the West Pampa Repressing Assn. the other day. He had some interesting facts and figures concerning the West Pampa and Watkins fields. The West Pampa Field has 142 injection wells and 662 producing wells now in operation. The wells are producing an average of 11.7 barrels per day. Gas being returned to the reservoir through injection wells totals over 19,300,000 cubic feet.

Gas for the Pampa Field is furnished from repressing plants owned by Cities-Service and Skelly.
The Watkins project installed its 82nd injection well Nov. 20. A total of 948 producing wells are now operating within the Watkins area. Gas is supplied by the Skelly-Watkins plant, 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day is being injected.

Work on the Crawford plant is rapidly nearing completion. The plant is expected to produce somewhere near 16,000,000 cubic feet per day.

Now then, here's what all those facts and figures mean. Those pessimists who thought the Pampa and Borger fields were dying out are sadly mistaken. At the start of both projects in 1948, the average production per well was 12.5 barrels per day. The latest figure reported of present production is 11.7 barrels per day.

This repressing business is effective, as you can see by the figures.

Hold in Prices Seen in Future

By MAX SKELTON
HOUSTON — (AP) — There was little open grumbling this week as government officials asked the oil industry to hold its price line.

Oilmen, in general, apparently were willing to abide by the request provided attention also is given to prices in industries from which oil supplies and equipment are received.

This reaction can be traced back to World War II price controls. Oilmen believed the price ceilings established in January 1942 placed the oil industry under a handicap in that their peacetime prices had not increased as rapidly as those of their suppliers.

Officials of the old Petroleum Administration for War agreed but were unsuccessful in their efforts to obtain a 35-cent per barrel increase in the crude oil price ceiling.

Oil industry sources are well armed with statistics showing that their price hikes since the end of the war also have failed to keep pace with other industries.

Walter Hallanan, chairman of the National Petroleum Council this week said, the current average price of crude oil is $2.54 a barrel compared to $2.59 two years ago.

During the same period, he said, Bureau of Labor statistics reports show the wholesale price index of all commodities climbing from 165 to 173.4.

The tax economics bulletin of the American Petroleum Institute quotes July 1950 gasoline prices as being only 95.8 percent as great as the levels, compared to 138.4 percent for all other retail commodities.

It also quotes Department of Labor statistics showing July 1950 petroleum products whole-sale prices as being 115.5 percent of 1928 levels, compared to a 162.9 percent average for all commodities.

Most open opposition to the Tuesday price request from the Economic Stabilization Administration came from the west coast where seven companies have made a 25-cent per barrel hike in crude prices since October.

The government at first asked the industry to voluntarily hold prices to levels existing December 8. On Wednesday the date was changed to December 1.

World War II crude price controls also began with an informal freeze, made effective by the Office of Price Administration in June 1941.

Official crude ceilings at October 1941 levels were ordered in January 1941. Adjustments later were made to California and Wyoming prices.

On April 7, 1943, the Petroleum Administration for War recommended a 35-cent per barrel general hike to the OPA. P.A.W. said the increase would correct maldistributions in crude prices and stimulate exploration and development.

The recommendation was rejected on May 1, and again on August 7.

PAW then lost an appeal to the Office of Economic Stabilization, which suggested additional government financial aid to operators of wells producing small quantities of oil.

PAW termed the plan impractical but the economic stabilize on June 28, 1944, ordered subsidiary payments for the "stripped" well operators.

MOSCOW — (AP) — The Soviet Army newspaper, Red Star, renewed charges today that the United States is remilitarizing Japan at an ever-increasing pace despite official American denials.

Keep Your Eye On KPDN

By PHIL SOLBERG

Hello there: This is the second of a series of little weekly get-togethers acquainting you with the "better listening policy" now in effect, 6 a. m. to midnight, on your Mutual Top of Texas Station, KPDN, 1340 on your radio dial.

Most people have heard about the program "FORWARD AMERICA" heard every Sunday at 12:30 p. m. But there is much to tell about it just the same. The program itself is in part transcribed by the World Broadcasting System, and ably handled by Kay Fancher of KPDN. The show features the immortal voice of Walter Houston and the New World Singers. It makes for very good listening and most of all it's sponsored by your friendly Pampa Merchants as a group. The program has been very instrumental in relaying their civic thoughts to you. Any large donations for the future will be announced so you may plan well ahead of time to attend. Don't forget the time its 12:30 every Sunday.

And while we're talking about Kay Fancher, its good to remember this time tonight 7 o'clock. That's when Kay assumes the title of 1st mate on the program "Steamboat Jamboree" featuring Captain Lanny Ross with a half hour of the most enjoyable listening possible. Plenty of Dixie Land music and banjo music you are sure to tap a foot to.

If you like mysteries (and who doesn't?) KPDN offers you a complete block of radio mysteries to keep you in suspense with such programs as Under Arrest, Martin Kane, "Private Eye," The Shadow, True Detective, Nick Carter, and the Affairs of Peter Salem, starting from 8 p. m. today and every Sunday. Now to top off the mystery shows on KPDN, Jack, Doc, & Reggy bring you adventure plus! every week day night at 9:15 with a running exciting story on "I love a mystery."

There is a portion of the morning schedule set aside just for the ladies. This portion of KPDN listening starts off at about 8 every day, "8:35 to be exact" with Gordy Anderson bringing his jig saw tidbits to the ladies. It's a short short five minutes but really worth listening to. Then at 9 Jan Olson brings you "Around the Town." This happy personality opens her notebook of local notes and news about Pampa every morning, with household hints, cooking tips, and the stark corner with announcements of new arrivals here in Pampa and surrounding areas. Then don't forget "Queen for a Day" with Tom Moore and "Ladies Fair," plus the newest of programs "Tiny Tot Time," with Barbara and Carol which includes lots of news from the world of babies which is especially good listening for the expectant mother.

Before we close this little weekly get-together I can't forget the wee tots and that's the little reminder for them to tune in to Uncle Coy when he presents Lullaby Lane each evening at 7:45. And say, Coy Palmer reads the funnies each evening at 8:45. So all in all for the family, from the grandparents on down, there is a program for "you" on KPDN, 1340 on your radio dial.

Well, thanks for tuning your "eyes" to this little column and there will be more "mike notes" next week.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

The next day, Scrooge got to the office early. Sure enough, Bob Cratchit was late to work. "What do you mean by coming in here at this time of day?" growled Scrooge.

BELLS OF PEACE
Christmas time is drawing near
To a world torn by hate and fear;
We all stop, wonder, hope and wait
That we might hear the words
Overrun by ringing bells of peace.

There is many a home that is torn this year

By the absence of a love whom they hold dear;
We wonder what their fate might be
In a world so full of the hate and greed
That overruns the ringing bells of peace.

We all, this Christmas morn,
When once a babe was born,
Will then bend down and pray
That next when we see the day
We shall hear the ringing bells of peace.

CHRISTMAS

When this time of year comes around
I take my purse and go to town.
Many gifts I'll buy, you see—
Good things to eat and trimmings for the tree.

When we get busy and trim the tree
The spirit of Christmas starts for me.

Holly a-hanging and red candles around,
We know that Santa is coming to town.

Christmas should mean to you and me—
Giving to those, less fortunate than we.
We should be happy and not forlorn
For on this day, Christ was born.

THE GALILEAN

He walked the shores of Galilee, Ne'er thinking of Himself,
But even then, most people thought
Of nothing more than self.

How could man scorn someone who looked
With pity on his soul,
Who sought to save him from all sin,
To make for him a goal?

If thoughts are turned to others,
Our own cares disappear,
We then may hope for the reward
Of His own presence near.

THE STORY: Sgt. Eddie Starnes commended a squad of men who had been in action. Only when they had themselves in Westway, home town of Eddie, did he realize they were dead. Eddie, who was a private, saw the men: Duke, Eddie's dog, and Margie Lou, a girl. Eddie was in love with her. He was a Chinese cook, which she found out the day Eddie was driven.

XIX
MARGIE LOU laughed. "No-body's asked me for a date for almost ever and now I'm all tangled up with two for the same day." She put the lucky coin in her uniform coat pocket.

"What do you say, Margie Lou?" Margie Lou didn't say anything. She didn't act as if she had heard. Eddie waited and then repeated the question.

Someone signaled for a stop and a lady got off.

When they were rolling once more Margie Lou said, "If you'd really like to see me later would you mind coming to my house? My aunt's sick—I live with her—but we could sit outside on the front steps. Is that okay?"

"Sure," Eddie agreed. "Any place they can talk."

"Why don't you say something?" Margie Lou asked a trifle impatiently. "I can't be away from home for—"

"But where's that soldier who was standing just in front of you?" Margie persisted.

"Heck, dearie," answered the overfussed passenger, "I didn't notice if there was a soldier there. What's one soldier when there's so many?"

Margie Lou shook her head. "He must have got off at the last stop."

"Who with?"

"A soldier—he's home on leave." "Soldiers are a dime a dozen. Don't waste your time on a junk who's apt to get bumped off before you see him again. I'm going to be here right along. Where'll I pick you up?"

"You'd have to call at the house." "I get it. Wait to pretty yourself up. Don't blame you. I like

MERRY CHRISTMAS and HAPPY NEW YEAR EVERYBODY

I say this honestly—despite the fact that I've done a whale of a real estate business this year, handicapped as I have been with all my ailments—and worried sick over the impending income tax return that I'm going to have to make this coming January 15th—

I'm deeply grateful to you all though—because if you hadn't of had so much confidence in me I wouldn't of got any of your business—and if I hadn't got any of your business, I wouldn't have had a good year—and if I hadn't had a good year, I wouldn't of had enough money to even run this ad.

WISHING YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR

New York Caring For Its Animals

NEW YORK—(AP)—Unwanted, strayed or lost dogs, cats, pigeons, canaries and parrots have a new place to call their own in New York City. It is the $1,000,000 shelter and hospital of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. There is room for 450 animals.

For bathing, there is a chrome tub equipped with hose, shower and an electric dryer. Food is kept in electric deep freezer chests. Ramps set at easy-walking angles lead from one floor to the next.

There are no odors. Machines called electrical ionizers do away with smell and kill all germs. Outdoor play yards for the animals are kept free of snow. Buried steam pipes keep the ground dry.

CANDY HOUSE—A lot of people may have larger houses, but there isn't a home owner in Pampa who is any prouder of his home than Mrs. Dorothy Nelson, 518 N. Somerville, is of her candy house. Mrs. Nelson made most of the candy that went into the house and, with the aid of her son, Marshall, constructed it herself. The roof is of two layers of divinity candy and the walls of gingerbread. It took 15 hours to build the house. (B-E Studio Photo, News Engraving)

Candy House Given No Prize But Is Sweetest in Pampa

Although it won no prizes in the annual home decorations contest, the house built and decorated by Mrs. Dorothy Nelson, 518 N. Somerville, is probably one of the most colorful and interesting ones in the city of Pampa.

Built entirely of candy and sweets, the house looks like a fairyland gingerbread house made brighter by softly fallen Christmas snow.

Everything in the house, except the cardboard frame, is edible. After 15 hours of work,

Mrs. Nelson proudly displayed her new house in the chamber of commerce office where she works.

The walls of this unique house are of gingerbread decorated with candies. The roof is of pure divinity with a slight green tint. Eaves are formed by rows of lifesavers and the chimney is constructed of candy nuggets moulded together with green cake icing.

The weathervane or chandelier is of gingerbread with a gumdrop base. A vine on the front of the house is of green gumdrops, carved out to create the right impression.

Figures in the yard are of gingerbread in a yard of sugar snow. The path is of many colorful beads of candy that stand out sharply against the white sugar.

Corner posts on the house are peppermint sticks and the fence is made of candy canes.

Mrs. Nelson made the walls, roof and figures herself. She was assisted in the construction by her son, Marshall.

Bell Sets Up Wave System

DALLAS—(AP)—A micro wave system to handle up to 1,000 long distance telephone calls at one time will be constructed between Austin and San Antonio next year.

W. L. Prehn, general manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for Texas, said it will be the first micro wave system in the Southwest.

Under such a set up, telephone calls or television programs are relayed through the air over sending towers spaced between points. He said no television is expected to be relayed over the Austin-San Antonio system at present.

The "heavy message requirements" between San Antonio and Austin, Prehn said, was the reason the company decided to erect the system.

Four towers will be built, spaced about 27 miles apart. One will be at Austin, another on Lone Mountain, a third on Blueridge Mountain and the fourth atop the company's ten-story administration building in San Antonio.

Kindness Didn't Pay For Malay Woman

Christmas Carols Express Happiness

The Christmas spirit is expressed most beautifully through the singing of carols.

Songs of old, that ring upon the cold night air from the hearts of children and into the warm homes where Christmas trees shimmer and vibrate with the tones of the songs of peace and love.

The word "Carol" itself signifies joy and was originally used to accompany a dance. William Wallace Fyfe concludes that the term carol "signifies a song of joy or exultation." Another definition states: "a carol is a hymn of praise especially such as is sung at Christmas in the open air."

In England, where most of the carols came from, they were sometimes gay and sometimes sad, until the time of the Puritans, who tried to suppress the Christmas spirit.

After the Restoration, the religious nature of the day was, for a time, almost forgotten in reaction from Puritanism, and the carol was temporarily lost in the songs.

There are many quaint customs associated with the early carolers that might be used today to break the monotony of going from house to house singing Christmas hymns.

It was at the 16th Century that caroling became a Christmas custom and is supposed to have been brought to England from Italy by the traveling clergy. The first real Christmas carol is attributed to St. Francis of Assisi, who made a model of the Bethlehem manger to help him tell his people the Christmas story.

The idea of caroling fitted admirably into the English conception of Christmas as a combination of religious celebration and a great home day with neighborly feeling, so it grew and flourished in that country.

Little bands and groups of singers which sprang up in the towns and villages came to be known as "waits." A natural explanation of the name seems to be that it refers to watching and waiting, for Christmas Eve is called the Vigil of Christmas.

As early as Dec. 21, which is the day dedicated to St. Thomas, mummers and carolers would begin going from door to door, announcing the great feast at hand. It was natural for the house holders to offer hospitality to these Christmas troubadours, and gradually in many places the custom of giving alms and presents of various kinds was established.

This custom began to become a little commercialized, however, and the singers were gradually turned away. But this did not kill the want for song and warmth at Christmas time, so the custom grew and stayed.

Only Minority Is Celebrating Today

Tomorrow is Christmas, but it festival in honor of the victory will be just another day as far as the goddess Durga over the most of the people in the world buffalo-headed demon Mahishasura are concerned. Only an estimated 31 percent of the world's population profess Christianity, leaving a billion and a half non-Christians who do not celebrate the birthday of Jesus Christ.

About 285,000,000 Mohammedans commemorate instead the birth of Mohammed on the twelfth day of the third month on their lunar calendar and the birthday of El-Hoseyn in the fourth month, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica. The chief festivals of Mohammedanism, as listed by the reference work, are 'Eed es-Sagheer, which lasts for three days, and 'Eed el-Kebber, beginning on the tenth of Zulfikar, the last month of the Mohammedan year, which goes on for three or four days.

The Mohammedans, who make up thirteen percent of the globe's population, also keep holy the first ten days of Moharram, the first month of the year, particularly the tenth day, called Yom Ashura. The anniversary of the prophet's miraculous ascension into heaven in the seventh month and one or two lesser anniversaries are also marked, the Britannica points out.

Another substantial proportion of the world's people are Hindus, who comprise 11 percent, and celebrate Holi in the spring and Durga-puja at the time of the autumnal equinox, a ten-day festival in honor of the goddess Durga over the most of the people in the world buffalo-headed demon Mahishasura are concerned. Wedding of Virgin Mary Said Solemn and Sumptuous Affair

From legend, tradition and imagination of the people have come the pictured design of the wedding dress of Mary, Mother of Christ.

Mary's parents, Joachim and Anna, were well-to-do people, although Joachim was no longer living at the time of the wedding.

The wedding was celebrated in Jerusalem in a house near Mount Zion which was frequently let for similar occasions and, according to custom, the festivities lasted for seven or eight days. It was solemn and sumptuous. Many lambs were killed and offered in sacrifice.

Mary's bridal dress, which Anna had bought for her, was a loose gown, fastened down the front. The sleeves were large and flowing. The gown had a blue background strewn with red and white and yellow roses, intermingled with green leaves. The lower border was trimmed with fringe and tassels.

'Silent Night' First Sung With Guitar Accompaniment

The night before Christmas in 1818, "Silent Night" — most beloved of all Christmas carols — had not yet been composed. But on Christmas Day it was sung for the first time by children in an Austrian village to the accompaniment of a guitar.

That Christmas Eve the village priest, young Josef Mohr, sat reading the story of the Nativity when a peasant woman knocked at the door. A child had been born in one of the humble homes in his parish in the Alps. He went to bless and it returned so filled with the meaning of the Christmas story that he sat down to write what he felt. The lines kept turning into verse: "Silent Night! Holy Night! All is calm, all is bright..."

A second knock at the door brought his friend, the organist and school master Franz Gruber, with work that the church organ had broken down. If there was to be music tomorrow it must be a very simple hymn since there was little time to rehearse the children. Gruber, there and then composed the music for "Silent Night," later erroneously attributed to Hayden. Next morning, with only a guitar to guide them, the village children sang the song that was to become the carol of the world.

Nearly 20 years later four brothers and sisters were asked to sing it at the court of the king and queen of Saxony. The journey of "Silent Night" had begun. It was introduced to America by bands of Tyrolean singers and bell ringers who toured the German-American communities that sprang up from Boston to Milwaukee.

And yet "Silent Night" and most of the other Christmas songs America knows are not really carols at all. They are Christmas hymns set to solemn music by such famous composers as Bach, Handel and Mendelssohn.

Strictly speaking, carols are to be sung merrily and the term originally meant a dance. Perhaps the only real Christmas carol known to many Americans is "Deck the Halls With Boughs of Holly." Other real carols that appear as favorites are "Boar's Head Carol," the "Cherry Carol," the "Hunting Carol," and "Good King Wenceslas."

America seems to be the one country in the world where the terms "carol" and "hymn" become interchangeable at Christmas time. But all the songs Americans have claimed as their favorite carols have one thing in common — extreme simplicity of the music. There is almost no choir or group anywhere that can make "Silent Night" or "Little Town of Bethlehem" sound bad.

The origins of all these songs are obscure and varied. As in the case of "The First Noel" or "Nowell," books engage in a genteel battle as to whether its genesis is English or French. Thus the two different spellings. It was first printed in England, but perhaps even there few people realize that the complete text of all its stanzas tells the entire Nativity story as told to the shepherds by an angel. Biblical text is "Joy to the World," based on the 97th Psalm, it was written by an Englishman named Isaac Watts in 1719. Its tune is from Handel's "Messiah."

Charles Wesley, brother of the great John Wesley, wrote "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing." The melody comes from the second chorus of a Mendelssohn cantata that was originally composed to celebrate the birthday of printing.

And Martin Luther wrote that children's favorite "Away in a Manger" for his children, who formed a domestic choir. The origin of the music is in doubt.

"Oh Come All Ye Faithful!" has no clear history but its Latin origin is attested by the fact that all present day Latin countries have their own versions. It is believed it was once sung to a fast tempo and dance around the "Chirche" or crib that was always set up to commemorate the Nativity. The carol's certain history began in 1751 when it was sung at Stonyhurst College. It was sometimes referred to as the Portuguese hymn because it was a favorite at the Portuguese chapel in London as well as at other Roman chapels.

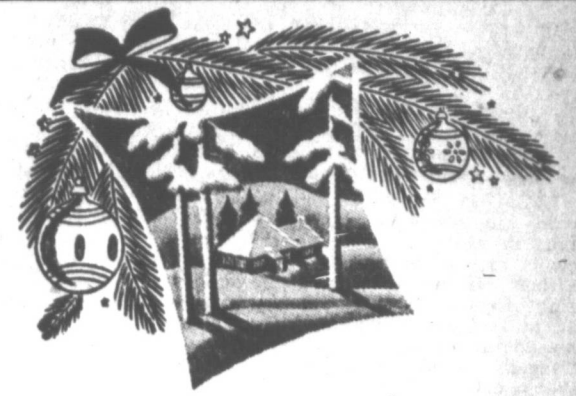

Only one of the favorites is of strict American origin: "We Three Kings of Orient Are." Written by John Henry Hopkins, an Episcopal clergyman in 1857, its dramatic stanzas imply that it may originally have been meant for a homemade drama in the village church.

Some of the most interesting histories belong to the songs that are properly carols. "Good King Wenceslas" was originally a springtime song of happiness. In Bohemia, where Wenceslas ruled in the Tenth Century, street singers used to make their appearances in warm weather and sing these words about the like extreme generosity as ahint to passerby to loosen ups their own pockets. Being associated with generosity, it naturally became a song of Christmas and gifts.

Gifts and cards have today become more the symbols of greetings.

Christmas greetings and communications than carols. But in former times the Christmas carols which were sung by practically everybody instead of special groups, were the accepted medium of exchanging Christmas greetings.

Legends Associate Mule, Camel With Gift-Giving Custom

Syrian legends have associated the Magic Mule and the Gentle Camel of Jesus with gift-giving, for reasons that are at once different, and yet similar in their association with the Christ Child.

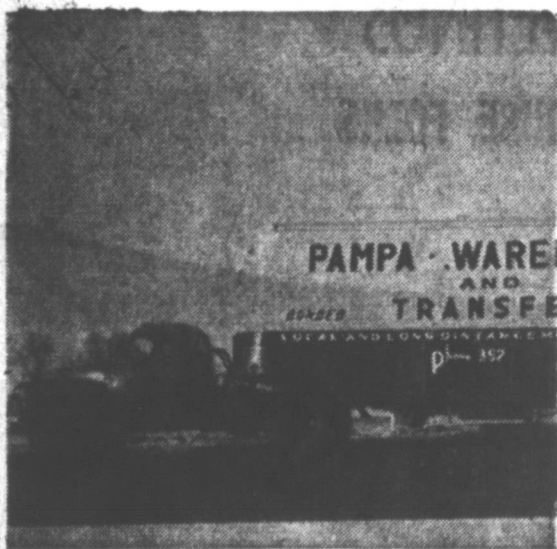

It seems a certain traveler tied his mule to a tree when he went into an inn for refreshment on Epiphany Eve. Just at midnight, when the boughs of the tree bowed down in homage to the Holy Infant, the mule was caught up on the rebound and found cradled high up in the branches by its returning master.

The youngest camel of the three ridden by the Wise Men was exhausted by the pressing journey and was blessed with immortality by the baby Jesus as it lay moaning near the Nativity scene.

World's Yuletide Customs Have Become Most Complex

Our Christmas customs have become more and more complex as we hang our stockings year after year.

Where did they all come from and what are people of other lands doing to make the time of year even more beautiful and their loved ones happy?

Suppose you are spending Christmas in Australia. There, no snow is seen — or Christmas trees; there is no reason for a roaring fireplace because the weather is still warm and sunny. Instead of having all the family together in a cozy house, Australians celebrate the day with a picnic or an outdoor trip.

But at the other end of the world, Alaskans are forging through snow and ice, going from house to house with a bright colored star, singing carols. This custom is performed for three days followed by three more days in which other groups go to the same houses, masked as "Herod's Soldiers." They attempt to "overtake the star."

This procedure, which might be compared to our own Halloween customs, contrasts sharply with the highly religious and ceremonious customs of the people of Austria.

In each Austrian home, two large loaves of bread are baked, representing the Old and New Testaments. Three wax candles are made. On Christmas Eve, one of the candles is lighted and the family sings a hymn.

Before they begin to eat, the father takes the candle in his hand and says, "Christ is born." Then, each child in turn takes the taper and standing on a stool repeats three times "Praised be the Lord! Christ is born."

The second candle is lighted on Christmas Day, and the third, on New Year's Day, ending the Christmas activities.

In the Netherlands, a very different version of our own fat and jolly Santa Claus is watched for by the children. The legend in that country goes that he is a saint dressed as a bishop carrying a gilded book in which he writes the names of all good children.

But he does not travel alone. His servant accompanies him, with a black book for the names of the bad children and a black bag used to carry away any very naughty children.

It is the custom of these children to recite their prayers and then ask for the toys they would like to have. Their older sisters take candles to the well on Christmas night in the belief that the light will reflect the face of their future husbands in the water.

Among the southern Slavs, if a girl is curious as to her future husband, she sets the table on Christmas Eve, putting on a white loaf, a plate, knife, fork and spoon. At midnight, when she is asleep, the spirit of her future husband will come and fling the knife at her. If the knife falls without hitting her, she will get a good husband and be happy. If she is hurt she will die early.

The popularity of the Christmas tree comes from England. It was in 1840 that Queen Victoria and Prince Albert took a small evergreen into the palace and decorated it. Germany, however, is the home of the Christmas tree.

An odd custom of the English, which is a little outdated, is playing cards as strictly a Christmas pastime. Also, in the 17th Century, it was a fashion in England to present the ladies of the household with a silver spoon at Christmas. The spoon was of high value and of rare and unusual pattern.

In Germany, the Christ Child is the popular source of Christmas gifts. He is often represented as a sort of combination angel and fairy, impersonated by a girl dressed in white.

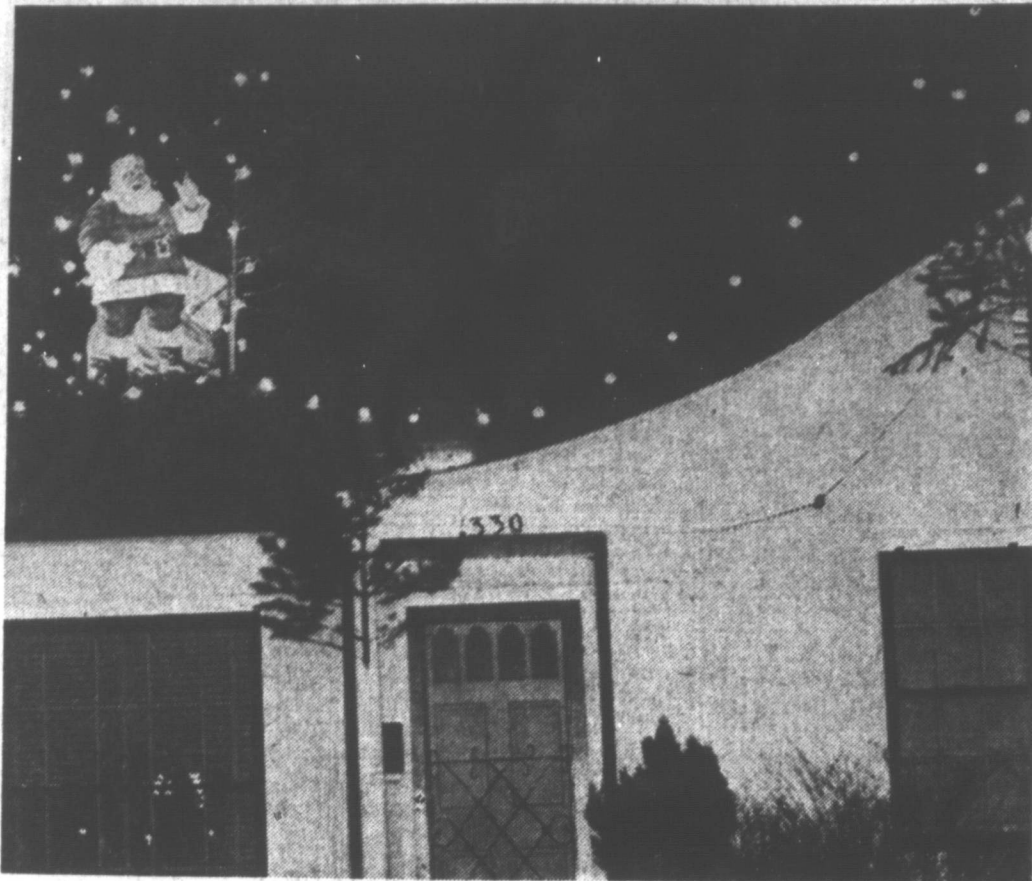

A German legend tells that on Christmas Eve all the bells of the churches, chapels, monasteries and cities destroyed by war will ring and whoever listens properly can hear them chime.

Who in all the world loves a bit of fantasy more than the Irish? And as they would have it, a beautiful custom is theirs for the Christmas holidays.

Our own custom of placing lights in windows comes from the Irish. In their country, the candles are placed in the windows on Christmas Eve as a guide and an invitation to all who, like Mary and Joseph on the first Christmas Eve, may be wandering about unable to find a place to stay.

Poor wanderers and tramps are welcomed everywhere in the land of the shamrock; they are given a good meal, a place to sleep and are sent on their way the next morning with gifts.

Another beautiful custom belongs to Mexico. This is the nine-day Christmas festival, the "Posada," which means inn. In their homes, the children form in groups and march up stairs and down singing hymns. All doors are shut and the singers knock at each in turn, for they represent the journey of Mary and Joseph to Bethlehem. Each room is supposed to be an inn, but none of them open until the little pilgrims are tired out. Then a door opens unexpectedly and the children behold a doll, representing the Infant Jesus, surrounded by Christmas greens and toys.

Santa Wins Confidence of German Child

DAYTON, O. — (AP) — Only persons who don't believe there is a Santa Claus need read on.

Three-year-old Margery Bidstrup obviously was frightened by the bustling court-like setup Santa had in the gaily decorated department store. Mrs. Henry Bidstrup was having no luck comforting her daughter.

Margery watched the line of children file up to see Santa — and sobbed.

Finally, her mother leaned down and whispered in tones easily heard by Santa.

Quick as a reindeer's wink Santa beckoned to the damp-eyed little girl.

"Kommt Du Hier, Kleine Maedchen."

Margery's sobs stopped, her eyes widened.

And in half a reindeer's wink, she was in his lap.

A few moments more conversation, and Margery rattled off her Christmas list.

"Ein weihnachtsbaum (she just couldn't remember Christmas tree) . . . a plate . . . and a skillet."

She was all smiles as she waved farewell to her new-found friend.

"Aufwiedersehn," he called out with a jolly wink.

Margery winked back.

"So different from last Christmas in Kiel, Germany," said Mrs. Bidstrup.

Although St. Nicholas is the patron saint of Russia, it is against the law to observe Christmas there. Before the modern rule, however, there was a legend of "Babushka," who was supposed to have refused an opportunity to accompany the Three Kings on their journey and misdirected them to Bethlehem. It is said that regretting this later, she goes about from house to house, on Christmas Eve, looking for the Christ Child and distributing gifts to all the children.

Actually, there is no end to the myriad of Christmas customs of the world. Almost every one of the American customs stems from one of another land, making our Christmas, as well as our ideals, universal.

Christmas Is A Time of Joy

By ROBIN TIBBETS

Christmas is a time of joy.
If I am good little hitty boy.
If I don't fight.
If I don't cry.
If I don't punch sister in the eye.
If I don't pull the kitty's tail.
If I don't make the baby wail.
If I don't pinch the little dog.
If I don't catch an old toad frog.
If I the neighbor girl don't slap.
If I don't dirty up my cap.
If I don't drop candy on the rug.
If I don't scare mama with a bug.
If I don't scratch my daddy's car.
If I don't tell I saw him in a bar.
If I don't use up all his nails.
If I don't punch holes in his water pails.
If I get in bed when I'm told.
If I wear my coat when the air is cold.
If I "sir" old men, an' "ma'm" ol' gals.

Little Hans Is a Symbol of A Battle to Be Waged Here

Two years ago, a story appeared in one of the Eastern newspapers about "Hans," a small German boy in American-occupied territory, who was going through an ordeal seldom experienced by any man, no matter how long he lives.

Hans was an orphan. He had no home, no loved ones and certainly not any food and clothing.

The story tells how American soldiers adopted Hans, gave him what he needed, and set him on the road to rehabilitation. The writer wove an interesting yarn of Hans' experiences with other German boys and how his only Christmas present was stolen by a European form of "carpet bagger."

This story appealed to a large number of people of all beliefs and colors. It was human, and above all, it was typical of what war orphans were going through.

Several years have passed since the end of World War II, and people have nearly forgotten the many war stories that were published.

The evil still exists, and boys like Hans are still around, but the eyes of Americans are now focused on America.

There are many children in this country who are as bad off as Hans. Some even have a harder row to hoe than Hans.

Will there be any kindly American soldiers to take care of them? Arthur Brisbane once said "We in America are fighting a continual war against poverty. All of us are soldiers, and therefore it is our responsibility to fight for our ideals that made this country what it is today. If there be poverty, let us fight against it."

Perhaps that is what those GI's were thinking when they helped Hans. Or perhaps they had never heard of Arthur Brisbane. At least, they had the right idea, and that's what counts.

The war is over now, but we still have to fight the battle for poverty, both in the United States and abroad. Naturally we are interested in poverty from a national scope, but let's think about our own Panhandle, and especially, Pampa.

Pampa has a very good record for employment and a high standard of living for its size. No matter how small the percent age is, however, we still have a certain amount of poverty.

We have a number of boys and girls like Hans, and we do have the needy, even in Pampa.

Pampa is an oil town. Along with oil comes the various trades that are necessary to make the oil industry successful. During winter months, the trades are at a minimum of business, and that means unemployment. Unemployment means hard times, and hard times means a certain amount of poverty.

There will be several Joes, Johnnies, Marys, and Susies who will not have a good Christmas if it weren't for the many civic organizations and private individuals we have who make it their responsibility to be the kind of soldiers Arthur Brisbane was talking about.

Christmas in America is a symbol, and Christmas in Pampa is a symbol. Aside from paying reverence to the birth of Christ, Christmas means that citizens are fighting the battle against poverty and that people haven't forgotten one another.

Christmas is a symbol of brotherhood, and a constant reminder to children like Hans that he is not alone.

Pampa wants to help and has helped Hans, and people like Hans, young and old. Pampans are soldiers of the Christmas movement. Pampans give, and to give is one of the greatest attributes possible.

As long as there are people like Hans, whether German or America, citizens of this country have a battle to wage. A battle against poverty.

Christmas Has Not Always Been a Very Merry Occasion

Merry Christmas has not always been merry in American history. Unhappy times started very early. The Pilgrims landed at Plymouth four days before Christmas 1620. Christmas day found them between the Mayflower and the cold, hostile shore. Most of them were still living on the ship. And they didn't believe in celebrating Christmas anyway.

Washington's ragged troops were crossing the icy Delaware in the dark early morning hours of Christmas 1776. They defeated the Hessians at Trenton next day.

Christmas 1786 found unrest in New England. Shay's rebellion flared that day. The rebels had a rough time.

In 1837, Col. Zachary Taylor and his troops were down in Florida fighting the Seminole War. Christmas day found them fighting and defeating the Indians at Lake Okechobee.

The Mexican War also saw Christmas day action when Col. Doniphan and 450 volunteers defeated 1,100 Mexicans at Brazito in 1846.

The national capital had trouble the Christmas of 1851 when the Library of Congress and part of the Capitol burned.

Nine years later on Christmas 1860, South Carolina issued its declaration of independence, the spark that made the Civil War inevitable.

One of the early railroad strikes, that of 1887, started Christmas day. Some 20,000 employees of the Reading Railroad walked out.

The surrender of Hong Kong on Christmas 1941 was not part of American history, but Americans watched the event anxiously. It was one step in the advance of the Japanese which came after the Pearl Harbor attack in 1941.

One of the classic Christmas of the unhappy type will long be remembered by the men defending Bastogne in 1944. The Battle of the Bulge and the fight for the defense of the little town were at a climax. It was just two days later that the isolated Bastogne garrison was relieved. That Christmas day found the boys deep in the fighting.

Now, 1950 can add its contribution of woe to the unhappy picture. Mounting world tension and cold and hot wars with Communists over the world set a grim background to our mind's picture of a Merry Christmas.

Scenes of Nativity Dear to Heart of Christian World

Dear to the heart of Christians are the ethereal scenes depicting the scenes of the Nativity.

Beautiful things become more beautiful with age, but the simplicity and purity of the first Nativity can never be shown as it was.

There was no room in the inn that night, so Jesus was born in a stable; a place of shelter hewn into a rocky ledge of the Judean countryside. It was cold and dark and damp. Shabby and brown was the birthplace of the King of kings. But the place was welcomed by the Mother — the place where beasts were not even made comfortable as comfort is known in this day.

The heat of the bodies of the animals was the only warmth.

The cave, which was the birthplace of the Savior, is now a grotto beneath Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity; and though fascinated by the plainness of the original scene, Christianity has been unwilling to maintain its poverty and has covered the entire surface with costly ornamentation.

Scandinavia Is Kind To Its Jule-Nissen

In the Scandinavian countries for many years the children have believed in "Jule-nissen," which are little old men-elves.

The Jule-Nisse may live in the attic of the home and it is a wise thing to leave a bowl of milk and rice for him at times, so that he will be kind at Christmas time.

Make Bird Feeder Of Discarded Tree

Here is a suggestion for your Christmas tree after it has served its indoor purposes. Plant it upright in your own back yard and festoon its branches with lumps of suet, strings of popcorn, cranberries and dried slices of bread. You will be amazed at the number and variety of birds that will visit your tree and garden.

During the winter months your ornamental evergreen may suffer from the drying effects of winds and cold. To prevent injury from this source, make a windbreak of burlap stretched over a wooden frame or around stakes driven firmly into the ground. In order to secure an adequate supply of soil moisture, water evergreens plentifully before a freeze, especially if dry weather has prevailed.

The Danes practice a quaint ritual of "merrying" fruit trees to each other by binding them together with straw.

Uncle Dan Sends Out Gifts to Loneliest Kids in the World

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Who says Vinson, a jolly, robust man who, with whiskers, would be a natural Santa, always has more than enough volunteers to help fashion the toys and mail them.

Even if Vinson does not get another donation of material, he still will have enough to supply another 2,000,000 children in 1951.

Last month, Vinson sent our letters to more than 400 penal institutions in the western hemisphere explaining his project.

He asked that each convict write how many children he has and their ages.

The mail started coming in, and its volume rivals anything the North Pole Santa gets.

The packages are mailed directly to the convicts, who in return re-address them to their children so they will have a personal touch.

This year there were a dozen different toys Uncle Dan mailed out. Included are little aluminum airplanes, jigsaw puzzles, balloons, hair ribbons, scarfs and cloth dolls.

Vinson, who personally has helped more than 500 paroled convicts; feels that his project is paying off in aiding prison authorities as well as making a real Christmas for their children.

Warden A. F. Dowd, of Indiana State Prison at Michigan City, estimates the project has increased prison morale 50 percent at his institution.

Santa's Undergone A Transformation

It's little wonder Saint Nick is especially generous to the American people. History says Americans have done a lot for Saint Nick.

According to Mable Johnson, research expert with the World Book Encyclopedia, the Americans have given Saint Nick a new name, a new face, a new figure and a new means of transportation.

The original European version of Saint Nick pictured him as a tall, angular man who rode on a bony, gray mare. Both the horse and Saint Nick looked like they hadn't had a good meal in some time. The Saint had deep sunken eyes, and wore a flowing, threadbare cloak and a black skullcap.

The early English settlers in this country started giving Saint Nicholas his "new look." The English children had trouble pronouncing Saint Nickolas. Somehow the name changed to Santa Kalont, and finally it was corrupted to Santa Claus.

However, this was only the beginning. In 1809 Washington Irving, in his "Knickerbocker's History of New York" wrote of the Saint as the guardian of New York City. New York still maintains Santa is a home-town boy who has expanded his operations.

Irvin described Saint Nick as a jolly fellow with a broad-brimmed hat and huge breeches. He taught Saint Nick to smoke.

a long pipe, and, in the story, replaced his shuffling hayburner with a trim wagon that floated over New York house tops.

A short time later, Saint Nicholas' transformation was aided by Clement Moore in his famous poem, "The Visit from Saint Nicholas," written in 1822. Moore, a professor of Divinity in New York Theological Seminary, gave Saint Nick a sleigh, twinkling eyes, cheeks like roses, nose like a cherry and a round little belly.

Today's Santa Claus is by no means streamlined, but he is a far cry from the lean, ascetic, somberly dressed fellow who, for centuries, on Christmas Eve, guided his mare through the streets of Europe.

This means that if you want to have a real, old-fashioned Santa Claus running around Christmas, have him go on a diet — or leave out the pillows.

Santa put on weight, according to Jeannette Lee, supervisor of creative art for Hall Bros. of Kansas City, through a combination of artistic progress and public demand. People's taste has changed away from the anemic bean-pole of 100 years ago.

Miss Lee, considered an authority on the artistic and corpulent growth of the jolly citizen, offers this version of the growth of old Saint Nick:

When Santa made his bow as a magazine cover boy back in the 1840's, he was a tiny, plixie-like figure. He had spindly legs, no shoulders and no round little belly.

Artists of the mid-nineteenth century must have been rugged individualists, Miss Lee points out.

How Santa Became A Maker of Toys

Santa became a toymaker out of necessity — and because he is the most generous person in the world.

Hundreds of years ago, when Santa was a little boy, he had a crippled sister that he loved very dearly. The little girl's name was Santelle. Her brother went out each day and picked up pretty stones and flowers for her to enjoy and in the evenings he told her stories and performed tricks to make her laugh.

But at Christmas time, Santa was a bit sad because their father was too poor to buy Santelle any real toys. Near Christmas, Santa was only nine years old, and he made up his mind he would get some toys for Santelle.

He went to an old toymaker, who made toys for the rich children and asked him for some cheap leftover toys for his little crippled sister. The cross old toymaker told Santa that poor children could not have toys.

Right then, Santa vowed that when he became a man, he would see to it that all poor children had toys at Christmas time. He returned home and went to work in the cellar of his house, and nobody knew what he was doing although they could hear him hammering and sawing every day.

At last Christmas came and he brought up from the cellar a big doll house, big enough for Santelle to sit in, and some small toys. Santelle was so delighted that she cried. It was the happiest Christmas the Clauses ever had.

Right after Christmas, Santa started to make toys so that all the poor children of the town from the cross old toymaker, he could have some the following cause Santa's toys were better, Christmas. He made so many Santa has grown older and madder and made them so well that rier since then, but he still after the poor children had their, makes toys to give to the children still were some left which dren on Christmas Day.

Thieves Figure In Legend of Yuletide Tree

Among the thousands of legends about the Christmas Tree is a quaint story about two robbers and a little old man.

A cry was heard to ring out from the depths of an evergreen forest one cold night long, long ago.

Soon, two vicious-looking men carrying a heavy sack between them emerged. Sitting down, they opened the sack and found, to their great disappointment, thousands of toys and sweetmeats. In their fury, the robbers threw the toys about them and at each other. Soon the trees and the ground were covered with the toys and candies. When there was nothing more to throw, the robbers grappled with each other and rolled down into a deep ravine. They were never seen again.

Meanwhile, an old graybeard, who had been the victim of these robbers, found help, and with a party of young peasants, returned to the woods where he had been robbed, hoping to find his stolen property.

As the crowd reached the spot where the robbers had been, a thousand dancing lights appeared and settled on the boughs of the pine trees, which were laden with toys.

The peasants looked at the old man with amazement and questions in their eyes. He smiled and said, "You have been kind to Father Christmas, now accept the gifts he offers you. These are yours." He then disappeared.

Dr. Moore, Author Of 'Night Before' Was Ashamed of It

Everyone knows and loves the poem which begins —

'Twas the night before Christmas
When all through the house
Not even a mouse—
Not even a mouse—

but the man who wrote it, Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, was ashamed of it and would not allow it to be published under his name for more than 20 years.

Dr. Moore, an aloof professor of Greek and Oriental literature in the Episcopal Seminary in New York, wrote the poem on Christmas eve, 1822, and read it to his seven children.

He had not planned for the poem to go further than his own family, but a relative who was visiting the Moores put a copy in her diary. The next year the relative's father sent it to a newspaper.

Other newspapers printed the jingles and they quickly became known all over the country. The dignified Dr. Moore was embarrassed and considered it beneath a man of his scholastic standing to be the author of children's jingles.

Twenty-two years later, however, he finally publicly admitted authorship of the jingles and it was published in book form under his name for the first time.

Christmas Derived From the Medievals

Christmas is derived from the medieval "Christes Masses," the Mass of Christ, the feast observed by the Christian Church annually on the 25 of December.

It was, according to many authorities, not celebrated in the first centuries of the Christian church, as the Christian usage in general was to celebrate the death of remarkable persons rather than their birth. The death of the martyr Stephen, and the massacre of the innocents at Bethlehem, had been already long celebrated, when, perhaps in opposition to the doctrine of the Manichaeans respecting the birth of the Saviour, a feast was established in memory of this event in the 4th Century.

In the 5th Century the western church ordered it to be celebrated forever on the day of the old Roman feast of the birth of Sol, as no certain knowledge of the day of Christ's birth existed. Among the German and Celtic tribes the winter solstice was considered an important point of the year, and they held their chief festival of Yule to commemorate the return of the burning wheel. The holly, the mistletoe, the Yule log and the wassail bowl are relics of pre-Christian times. In the East, Christmas was celebrated on January 6.

The feasts of the martyr Stephen and the evangelist Saint John were united with Christmas, and a feast of three days' continuance was thus formed. In the ecclesiastical year this festival gives name to a period extending from the first Sunday of Advent to the feast of Epiphany, January 6. Most Christian churches celebrate this great festival in some way, and practically the entire community in Christian countries including Jews and nonchurch-going people nominally classed with Christians, join in its social observance. The custom of making a list of gifts at Christmas time is derived from ancient usage, but it has become consecrated by ages, and contributes greatly to make this festival an interesting event to families. The sending of Christmas cards by way of friendly greeting and remembrance has grown up since 1860. The Christmas tree has been traced back to the Romans, and went from Germany to Great Britain, and is almost universal in the United States, where the customs of so many nationalities meet and gradually blend into common usage.

Dickens Shows Human Heart Can Change for the Better

"A Christmas Carol" is a short story by Charles Dickens, first published in 1843, which has become the most beloved story of Christmas in English fiction. On Christmas Eve, Ebenezer Scrooge, a selfish, disagreeable merchant in London, returns to his living quarters with no thought of celebrating the holiday. He has just had an invitation to spend Christmas with his nephew Fred, and only begrudgingly created a one-day holiday to his underpaid clerk, Bob Cratchit.

When a request for charity is made of him in the name of his dead partner Jacob Marley, he answers that the Christmas spirit is wasteful and foolish. After Scrooge goes to sleep, three spirits appear to him: the Ghost of Christmas Past, Present, and Christmas Yet to Come. They result in completely changing Scrooge, who becomes generous, kind, and thoughtful to relatives and to his fellow men on Christmas Day and for all days to come.

The great affection which readers have for the story is caused by the realization that the human heart is capable of complete regeneration from selfishness to love. That the transformation occurs on Christmas Eve gives it additional spiritual triumph. The most frequently quoted lines occur between Bob Cratchit and his crippled son, Tiny Tim. Bob makes the toast: "A Merry Christmas to us all, my dears. God bless us," to which Tiny Tim replies: "God bless us every one."

A living Christmas tree makes a gift that will live in the recipient's memory for years.

RUDOLPH AND CREATOR: For Robert L. May, it began as a stunt.

Puritans Banned Christmas For Being A Frivolous Time

Christmas was outlawed in England by the Puritan government of England in 1643 and, although the restoration of the Stuarts brought a revival of Christmas customs and traditions, Christmas never regained its former prestige in England.

It is observed religiously in the churches and as a day for family reunions and social gatherings, in contrast to the lavish feasting and boisterous merry-making of olden times.

Merry-making and gift-giving come in for their share, however, on Dec. 26 which is Boxing Day. The origin of Boxing Day antedates Christmas and can be traced to the custom of gift-giving during the Roman festival of Saturnalia.

In Christian liturgy Dec. 26 is observed as the feast of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr, and during the centuries when journeymen and apprentices were in the habit of leaving upon their masters' customers, Christmas Boxes were collected on St. Stephen's day.

Thus, the children receive their presents, in boxes, as do old servants, the postman and everyone else. And reminiscent of the Roman Saturnalia, householders dance with the servants and, toward evening, there is revelling in the streets as groups of merry-makers gather on street corners or ride about London-town dancing on the "flats" of trucks.

CHRISTMAS BOXING DAY

In England the first week day after Christmas Day, is called Boxing Day. It is so called from gratuities or presents given to servants on this day, the gratuities being at one time placed in boxes. Boxing Day is a bank holiday in England and Ireland.

Reindeer With Bright Nose Throws Light on New Story

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (NEA) — Once upon a time there was a little reindeer. By some strange biological quirk, he came equipped with an illuminating schnozzola. No other reindeer can make that statement.

Anyhow, to make a short story shorter, the kid made good. Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer (hereinafter known as Rudy) is one of the few 20th Century creations likely to become a full-fledged fairy tale. The story of the little reindeer with the built-in beacon is as familiar to fairy tale fanciers as Cinderella, Rumpelstiltskin and Rita Hayworth.

Rudy's meteoric career as a first-string myth is remarkable when you realize the animal got off on the wrong hoof. He started as a sales promotion giveaway, the creation of a Chicago advertising man named Robert L. May, who works for Montgomery Ward.

In 1938, May dreamed Rudy up specifically as a Christmas stunt.

He decided to write a little story around the character. For his plot, he simply took the Ugly Duckling theme and substituted antlers for feathers. Rudy is the Ugly Duckling with four legs. He isn't exactly ugly, but he has that flashing nose which sets him apart and made him sad.

To overcome Rudy's inferiority complex was a job for Santa Claus, May decided. Santa had trouble getting around on foggy nights and another reindeer like Dancer, Prancer, et al, was cheaper than a set of fog lights. So Santa and Rudy got together and everybody lived happily ever after and Montgomery Ward sold lots of Rudy dolls.

In 1938, the firm gave away some 2,400,000 books with words by May and illustrations by artist Denver Gillen. Rudy hibernated during the war, but pranced back in 1946 as Montgomery Ward gave away another 2,600,000 copies.

Since then, the book has been published commercially, with May sharing in the royalties. He expects that a million copies will be sold this year.

One of those early give-away books was spotted by New York songwriter Johnny Marks in the pre-war days. Marks, who had written hits like "Address Unknown" and "She'll Always Be a Member," keeps a notebook full of possible song titles. He casually jotted down the words "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer" in the book.

But then came the war. Marks went off, won captain's bars, a Bronze Star, five battle stars and, eventually, his discharge. Resuming his song writing chores, he leaped through that old notebook. The Rudy idea struck him again and that's how the song was born.

Its success was tremendous. Marks, who was convinced that he had written a hit, went out on the limb and established his own music publishing house, called St. Nicholas Music. He got Gene Autry to record it and that one record sold more than 2,000,000 copies last year, the first for the song.

This year, there are 16 different recordings on the market, ranging from a boogie-woogie record by Sugar Chile Robinson to Bing Crosby, and from a cowboy singer like Montana Slim to Spike Jones. St. Nicholas publishes 29 arrangements of the song, for every type of musical unit from an organ to a marching band.

Led by Montgomery Ward, merchants have capitalized on Rudy's allure for the kiddies. A quick trip through their catalogue unearthed 43 different items decorated with Rudy and his red nose. Altogether, says May, there are over 100 items adorned with his picture.

There are mittens, jackets, snowsuits, slippers, suspenders, wristwatches, soap, banks, flashlights, school bags, lamps, radios, musical milk mugs and toothbrush holders, paperweights, mother-daughter apron sets, umbrellas, pens, pencils, scarfs, mufflers, bibs, handkerchiefs, socks and even a Rudy rug.

Many of these have noses that light up. The radio has a nose that goes on when the set is turned on; the wristwatch nose glows at night; the bank nose lights up when a coin drops through a slot in the back; and the flashlight nose lights when the tail is pushed.

Experience Needed To Burn Yule Log; Beech and Oak Best

The yule log is a tradition of Christmas, but due to central heating and natural gas stoves, it is becoming a lost tradition in this country. Few city dwellers have open grates or desire a log fire. And those living in the country find coal more efficient and less troublesome.

However, for those who have a place to burn the yule log and want one, tradition says it should be oak, ash, olive, apple or pine. Further, the fire on which it is placed should be kindled from a brand saved from last year's log and that it should not be allowed to go out during the night. For those determined to have the yule log, the voice of experience says get hold of all the wood you can. Some kinds burn better than others, but reject none these days.

Ash is highly praised by some and can be used without being seasoned. It burns quickly, but throws off great heat. Poplar, on the other hand, should be seasoned or it will spark badly. Elm is condemned as undesirable, but can be used. It is slow to get burning, but lasts a long time and brightens up when it gets going. A few logs of birch, pine or fir will help it along.

Beech and oak are among the best logs. Beech is especially good, having a pleasant aroma and a steady glow. Oak has the outstanding merit of burning slowly.

If none of these are available, wood from all kinds of fruit trees are prime favorites for the yule log because of their pleasant smell when burning.

A liquid which can change instantly to a solid and then return to a liquid again is the basic feature of an improved magnetic fluid clutch. Only six inches long and six inches in diameter, the device is capable of carrying enough power to lift one ton 1000 feet per minute.

Pampa Can Answer Question 'Is There a Santa Claus?'

Is there really a Santa Claus? Well, Pampa has an answer to that, because it not only has one, but several of them.

The annual Christmas program for the needy here is one of the best-organized and efficient programs in the country.

Pampa's many civic clubs and private groups organize each year to formulate a gift program. Each organization decides what its part will be in the wholesale giving, and sticks to it.

One club will decide to give food. Another toys or clothing. Still another club or organization will give glasses to needy children.

The system eliminated repetition, and makes sure that each needy person or family in Pampa gets what they need most.

In many other towns and cities, gifts to the needy are haphazard, and much repetition is uncovered. Pampa's method makes sure that this doesn't happen, and everyone is sure to get what he or she needs most.

This method, together with the Christmas spirit needed to make such a method work, is the symbol of a progressive city.

Many residents of Pampa remember the Sunshine Christmas Tree last year.

This is only a start, according to local civic leaders. There are going to be more plans this year, and even more plans in Christmases after this.

Pampa is proud of its citizens, and Pampa wants to take care of the ones who are unfortunate.

This sort of an attitude has even decreased the number of unfortunate. Pampa boasts one of the smallest needy lists for a town its size in this part of the country.

Is there really a Santa Claus? When asked, this question, Pampa proudly thumbs through its records, and reports not only one, but many Santa Clauses.

The inner parts of the flaming gases in the exhaust of a jet engine, in which higher temperatures exist than unprotected metals can withstand, can be examined with a special, water-cooled periscope. Hoses running into the periscope carry 45 gallons of water per minute to cool the optical system.

Mistletoe Known for Jekyll-Hyde Traits

In America the high-hanging mistletoe is treasured chiefly for its power to invite a kiss from a pretty girl. The bulk of the holiday decoration comes from the Carolinas, Tennessee and the Southwest where off-season agricultural workers gather the branches for shipment throughout the nation.

The white-berried plant also serves as a winter food supply for mockingbirds, robins and waxwings. These small birds are responsible for the spread of the tree-damaging parasite. After eating the berries the birds clean their beaks on the trees, firmly planting the mistletoe seeds they do not eat. The tap root of the seedling pierces the tenderest portions of the tree — young branches or buds — and the tree sap is drawn into the thick leaves and translucent berries of the guest plant.

Though the mistletoe plays the dual characters of destructive killer and promoter of love, superstition has it that the plant can switch roles in a twinkling. For instance, if the Yuletide mistletoe bough isn't removed from a house by Candlemas Eve (February 1), each leaf left will produce a goblin to plague the careless occupants during the year.

Holland Has Faith On Christmas Day

Indicative of the integrity and trustfulness prevailing throughout the world at Christmas time, people of Holland often entrust gifts to total strangers requesting the passerby to leave the package on such-and-such a doorstep.

Half-way across the globe, Negro families in Virginia long have observed the table-covered-with-a-sheet custom. The dining room table is covered with a sheet. Names of everyone in the household are written on slips of paper and pinned to the sheet. Gifts are sneaked under the sheet when everybody is supposed to be asleep, and even the youngest child refrains from 'peeking' until the gifts are unveiled Christmas morning.

We can be thankful the weather isn't half as irritating as the people who constantly complain about it.

Dickens' 'Life of Our Lord' Is a Moving, Religious Story

Last year the heretofore unpublished Dickens' manuscript "The Life of Our Lord" was presented to the world.

Written 100 years earlier for the exclusive audience of the author's own children, it is a child's life of Christ — a simple, moving narrative, understandable even to a child and yet touched by the incomparable Dickens genius which insures its place by the side of the famous "Christmas Carol" among the great masterpieces of Christmas literature.

Because he felt such deep veneration for the life and lessons of our Saviour, he left instructions that this particular manuscript should not be commercialized.

But when Sir Henry Fielding Dickens, the author's youngest child, died in 1933, it was finally brought forth and sold for the staggering amount of $210,000, or $15 per word.

Purchased by the London Daily Mail, the manuscript became a literary event of the first magnitude, destined to be read and cherished forever wherever thoughtful parents, like Dickens himself, want their children to know something about the history of Jesus Christ. For, according to Dickens:

"Everybody ought to know about Him. No one ever lived who was so good, so kind, so gentle, and so sorry for people who did wrong, or were in any way ill or miserable, as he was. And as He is now in Heaven where we all hope to go, and all meet each other after we are dead, and there be happy always together, you can never think what a good place Heaven is, without knowing who He was and what He did.

Santa Claus Town Popular

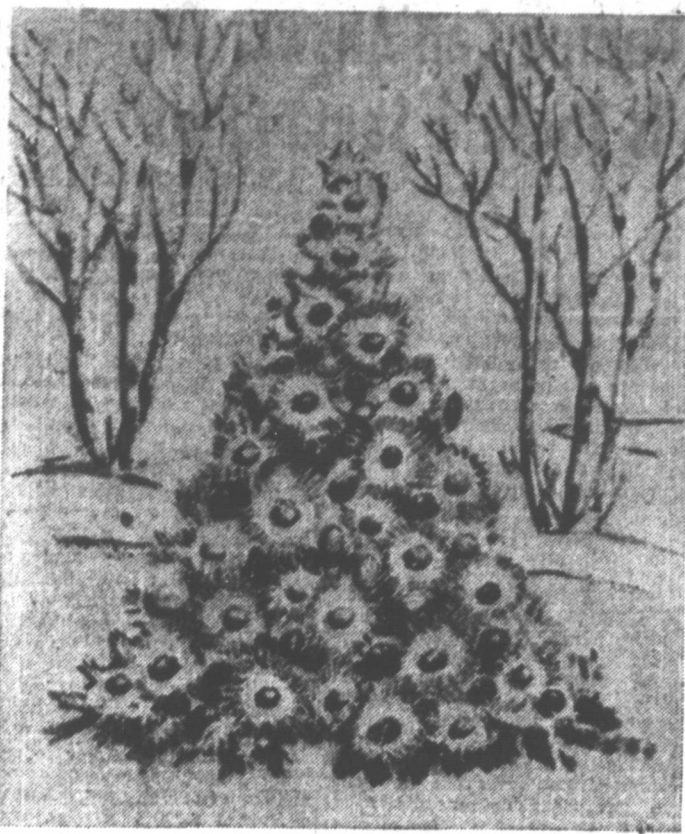

Postoffice officials in Santa Claus, Ind., are accustomed to overloaded sacks of mail during the pre-Christmas rush. Senders want their cards and gifts stamped with the famous Santa Claus postmark, plus thousands of wistful letters "Santa Claus, Santa Claus, Ind."

And then there is the annual crop of "Santa Claus" letters written by youngsters in far-away places who haven't heard about Santa's permanent address in Indiana, U. S. A. At least a dozen versions of the time-honored note-in-the-bottle story find their way into metropolitan newspaper every year.

The notes, sealed in small bottles and securely tied to Christmas trees, are discovered by Christmas tree dealers, housewives, and even enlisted men at naval centers and military barracks. They come from places like Renous, a village in New Brunswick, Canada, boasting a total population of 88 inhabitants.

The notes range from the wistful to the desperate, requesting such things as a mamma doll, a sled, a sweater or a pair of overalls.

SLAVERS
Prior to the Civil War, several thousand Negroes owned slaves. Most of these were free Negroes, who purchased relatives or family members to release them from bondage, making them slave owners technically.

Many Legends Have Been Told of Christmas Tree Origin

Multitudinous legends claim innumerable origins for the Christmas tree. One better known legend concerns an early Christian missionary, sometimes identified as St. Wilfrid, who once came upon a group of Druids preparing to make a human sacrifice under a large oak.

He had the oak cut down and, as it fell, a young fir tree sprang up in its place. The missionary seized the evidence and made the fir tree a symbol of the new faith; henceforth, the tribesmen were to set this symbol of immortality in the halls of their lodges at Christmas time and surround it with feasting and love and the laughter of children.

The legend of the Faithful Pine which sheltered the Holy Family during the flight to Egypt is less well known perhaps, but so very charming and touched by the mysticism appropriate to the Nativity theme. With Herod's soldiers in pursuit, Mary simply had to rest awhile and sought shelter within the hollow trunk of a huge fir tree. As the soldiers approached, the tree bent its branches to conceal the hidden little group. When the danger had passed, the baby Jesus blessed the old tree. And if you cut a pine cone lengthwise at Christmastime, you can still see the imprint of His little hand.

Nor has legend overlooked the bright baubles which bedeck our modern Christmas trees. The first Christmas tree was really an apple tree, according to legends collected by Florence B. Robinson. And although the fir tree long since has supplanted its predecessor for Christmas use, the popular tinsel bauble of today is the representative of the fruit which for the early Christians symbolized the fall of man in the Garden of Eden and his redemption by the birth of the Saviour.

Tinsel Came From Spiders

Glittering tinsel adorns almost every decorated Christmas tree. There is a legend that tells the story behind its use.

Many years ago, a good woman lived with her large family of children. The woman kept an exceedingly clean and neat house. One Christmas Eve, she prepared a tree for the children and trimmed it with many beautiful things. During the night, spiders visited the tree and crawled from branch to branch, leaving their webs behind them.

The legend goes, that the Christ Child saw this and knew the good woman, so clean about her house, would feel very badly in the morning when she showed the children the tree and found it covered with cobwebs. To reward her for the goodness she did to others, He blessed the tree and all the spider webs were transformed into silver.

In the morning, when the children saw the silver-threaded tree, they were overjoyed and were envied by all the neighborhood. Copies were made of the silver stuff and became what we know as tinsel.

Kris Kringle Isn't Really Santa Claus

Popular notion seems to imply that Kris Kringle is a German term of endearment for Santa Claus. Just what motivates this idea is not at all clear, since Kris Kringle is really a modification of Christkind who, although endowed by German legend as a gift-giver, resembles Santa Claus not in the least.

Santa Claus, as we know him in America, never really caught on in Germany. St. Nicholas comes around on his liturgical feast day, Dec. 6 — with his pockets bulging with candy and nuts and trinkets. Well and good, but German parents maintain, as did their predecessors of the Reformation era, that the central idea of Christmas, the birth of Jesus, should dominate the observances.

Nor is Christkind depicted as the infant Jesus himself, but rather as his messenger and gift-bearer who comes to earth at Christmastime to bring happiness to good children. The Christkind is usually represented as a child dressed in white robes, wearing a golden crown and having big, golden wings.

U.S. Place Names Express Christmas Idea Many Ways

Santa Claus, Ind., Bethlehem, Wis., and Christmas, Fla., are a few of the more familiar post offices which each year handle a flood of mail from senders wishing to obtain yuletide postmarks.

Although the federal post office has now barred extra flourishes by local postmasters using Christmas symbols and mottoes, a town's own holiday name can still give that festive touch to a greeting or package of toys.

Indiana's Santa Claus is the only town so designated in the United States. The privilege is reserved to its post office by congressional act. There is, however, Santa, Idaho. There is also only one Christmas — the one in Florida — plus a Christmas Cove, Maine.

On the other hand, seven Bethlehems answer the seasonal roll call: they can be found in Connecticut, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania. The Bethlehem, Conn., post office was one of the several stations that figured in headlines recently on the use of especially designated cancellation stamps bearing the now-forbidden Christmas tree decoration. The town's population is about 350.

There are two Noels — in Virginia and Missouri. Last year Missouri's Noel post office reported hand-cancellation of a record 650,000 pieces of Christmas mail — 800 for each of the town's residents.

Besides a specific Christmas names that dot the land there are dozens that call up Biblical or holiday associations. There is Advent, W. Va., for the Nativity. Kentucky has a Mary and Oregon and Utah a Joseph each. One Wiseman is found in Alaska and another in Arkansas. The third, it may be assumed, is in

Mistletoe Has Come A Long Way Since Days of the Druids

Mistletoe, amazingly enough, has a dual personality. It is known both as a killer and a peace-maker.

In its killer role the plant latches itself onto trees in forests sapping the water and mineral salts from the trees, starving them to death.

On the other hand, the translucent berry is more famous for having in its power to invite a kiss from a pretty girl. In this capacity, it is used as decoration during Christmas time.

From the land of myths comes the story that the plant was responsible for the killing of the beloved Balder, the Scandinavian light god, whose palace stood in the Milky Way. A mistletoe arrow pierced his heart, but he was restored to life at the intercession of the other gods. Custody of the mistletoe was then entrusted to the goddess of love who ordained that henceforth anyone passing beneath its bough should receive a kiss in token of love, not vengeance. Held high, it never could be evil.

So it is, that when, wittingly or unwittingly, a pretty miss finds herself standing below a bough of the plant, she may expect a kiss from any gentleman in the room.

Though the mistletoe plays the dual characters of destructive killer and promoter of love, superstition has it that the plant can switch roles in a twinkling. For instance, if the yuletide mistletoe bough isn't removed from a house by Feb. 1, each leaf left will produce a goblin to plague the careless occupants during the year.

Legends of Flowers Express Much of Beauty in Christmas

There are many legends concerning Christmas, but some of the most beautiful have to do with flowers.

The Christmas rose, for instance, was divinely created. A shepherd maid wept at having no gift to lay before the Babe in the Manger. Suddenly an angel appeared before her—

The Angel spoke, his voice was low and sweet. As the sea's murmur on low-lying shore,

Or whisper of the wind in ripened wheat.

Then, after hearing why the maiden wept, he touched the ground where her tears had fallen, with the branch of lilies which he carried, and immediately the place was white with Christmas roses, which the maid gathered and laid on the manger.

And the snowdrop is the flower of the Virgin Mary, and is said to be the emblem of the

December Is Most Consistent Month for World's Christmas

Various lands celebrate Christmas at different times. Most consistent, however, is December. Historians, with research and study, show that the Nativity has been celebrated in January, March, April, May, September and October.

It was for the purpose of substituting a Christian festival for pagan ones of Romans and druids that celebrations of Christmas in December was popularized.

The confusion resulting from celebrations in seven months of the year caused the western church authorities to meet in 340 A. D. to set a definite date for the celebration. The eastern churches did not cooperate until the Sixth Century, when Dec. 25 was set as the day to be observed.

This month was chosen in order that a Christmas festival could compete with those of the pagans, because December was noted for its feasts and holidays in nearly every civilized land.

Greeks, Romans, Saxons, and Scandinavians all took part in the celebration of these festivals which had originated before the birth of Christ.

From the Saxons came the ceremony of burning the Yule log. From the Romans came the giving of presents.

With customs from all over the world—even from the pagans and the ungodly—have come the universality of Christmas, its love and righteousness and goodness.

Answer Truthfully 'Santa' Questions Psychologists Say

Kids ask questions all the time, but never so much as at Christmas time. Probably the hardest to explain is "Who's Santa Claus?"

The best explanation plan, according to modern psychologists, is to tell the truth. It's the easiest way, too.

Santa Claus' real name is St. Nicholas. He lived in Asia Minor and was the beloved bishop of the Greek church of Myra in Lycia. He is the patron saint of the young and in European countries a person dressed as a bishop still assembles the children and distributes gifts of nuts, sweetmeats and other nice things to the good boys and girls.

Children loved St. Nicholas and followed beside him as he trudged the dusty roads of the Lycia countryside, bringing fruit and candy to the sick and needy.

The goodness of St. Nicholas became famous and through the many years, has grown into the universal belief in his kindness and generosity.

We hope we've told all our friends, but if we've missed you, then

Christmas Reading Can Add Significance to Celebration

The reading of literature's most loved Christmas stories, including the Gospels, is one of the best ways for a family to celebrate the day itself.

A family reading session, either on Christmas Eve or during the day — after the initial festivities have been concluded — has long been practiced by many people and can be recommended as one of the best ways to draw the family group together and emphasize the true meaning of Christmas.

Christmas is, first of all, religious and the New Testament accounts of the birth of Jesus ought always to be read first. Both the Christmas tales of Matthew and Luke are beautiful poetry and literature.

Perhaps the most famous Christmas book in the world, after the Gospels, is Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," written in 1843, and retold as long as there is Christmas. It is profound enough for the most adult taste and is still a children's classic.

Henry Van Dyke's "The Other Wise Man," is another story which has become a Christmas classic. It tells of a fourth wise man who saw the star rising and set out to follow it. The great desire of this pilgrim was denied, yet fulfilled in the denial.

For a good, unoffensive, funny story about Christmas try "How Come Christmas?" by Roark Bradford. It concerns the efforts of a group of Negroes to decide which came first: Santa Claus or the little Lord Jesus.

Probably the most famous American Christmas tale is Kate Douglas Wiggin's "The Birds Christmas Carol." There are other American Christmas stories well worth reading, though, such as Louisa May Alcott's "Christmas at Orchard House" and Vincent Starrett's "Snow for Christmas." Christopher Morley's "The Worst Christmas Story" happens to be almost one of the best.

Trimming the Tree Can Be Fun - If You Live Over It

So you're new to this business of being the family Christmas tree putter-upper? Well, it's the first time for everything and we wish you well at the task. But, maybe a few suggestions would help even if they do confuse one at times.

Last year we meticulously drew up a set of suggestions to follow and advised clipping and saving for this year. But so many new folks have moved here we thought these might bear repeating, with a few recently learned innovations to the finer art of tree trimming.

So, let's go and get the job done. But, wait, there are some preliminaries to follow — first things coming first.

You'll first need a little practice. Grandma's rosebush is of great value — the thorns making a good imitation of a short circuit in electrical wiring. This helps make one just a wee bit more cautious in handling live wires. It also serves as a proving ground for the vocabulary. Cleaning it up, that is.

The next step is more or less of a three-in-one step. To trim a tree it is usually necessary to procure one and to procure one it necessarily follows that a type, such as fir, pine, spruce or other be selected. The third point is explaining to the family why you, instead of Santa, are bringing in the Yule tree. An almost foolproof answer, this year, is that Santa wired asking you do that little chore since so many of his helpers were caught in the draft, or recalled to active duty.

The time worn excuse that Santa is in the dog house with Mrs. Claus has fallen flat since the kids have asked why it is that Santa has a red nose and is in the dog house at the same time. Better throw that one away.

Now, you have a proud unit of the forest primeval in the parlor and it's time to decorate it. The next step is getting the off-spring out of the way. This is the time children should not see — and hear. You have two alternatives.

1. Farm them out to a baby sitter.
2. Chloroform is a big help. With the younger citizens safely (?) out of sight and ear shot, the meat of the project gets underway.

With a good stable base of a jar of sand, coal, gravel, or other suitable material, the tree is jockeyed into a corner or workable part of the parlor. A stout cord is entwined around the trunk and stretched to two good anchorage points where nails can be hammered in to a joist, beam, pillar or wall, to augment its steadying.

You lift the hammer and let go. "Crash." What a marksman, but then that thumb nail is bigger.

Remember that cleaned-up vocabulary or you might offset the effect of the chloroform.

Finally the tree is in place and the job of lighting it follows. By this time the air feels dry and you imagine some dust has settled in your throat. However, keep the cork on the bottle and the tree will stay in place.

Carefully, ever so carefully, unwind the light wiring from the box and begin to string it out through the branches. It's always best to start at the top and work down. It's about the only place where you can start at the top, so take advantage of it.

If the tree is a tall one don't use a wobbly step-ladder or a card table. Baby's highchair is pretty strong and if your feet are of the smaller dimensions, use it. The chances of finishing the job are greater and your accident insurance company will think more of you.

The wiring is finished and the bulbs are in place. Ready, now, for the test. Be sure your hands are dry when plugging in the socket, because the chloroform is slowing wearing off.

The next step — and here's where trouble starts — is hanging the multi-colored toys. Wife, mother-in-law and the whole shebang have worlds of ideas, but never put them into practice themselves. An even temper will tide you over that billow, or you can get out the ear plugs used last summer for high - diving stunts.

Start hanging the toys from the inside out, working well within the foliage. Be very careful, however, with this operation; you may get tangled up and the toys look better hanging on the tree than you do. Besides, they can hang longer.

Next comes the radar fooler — tinsel to most of you — with everybody getting in on the act, especially those who like to throw things.

Now tinsel tossing is an ancient and honored custom. Through the years it has also been brought down into some mighty practical refinements such as proper aiming, the right twist of the wrist and a correct stance.

The more approved methods call for the family being formed, by the master of the house, into a semi-circle no further than four feet from the tree. The first strands are flung in an upward direction with the tossers standing evenly, if possible, on two feet. The right foot is placed about three inches to the rear of the left foot. A few strands are grasped loosely in the right hand, the hand being drawn well back. The tree master counts three; you pray a split-second prayer for accuracy. Heave, shut your eyes and make a wish. When you open your eyes the tinsel will probably be hung on the floor. You start over again. After about three tries your back is so tired from picking tinsel from the floor you'll hit the mark through sheer desperation.

The job is done. You look admiringly over your work and sigh as wife tells the guests, "he was a little nervous tonight or he would have done a much better job."

"Thanks," you say, and now let's all go to bed.

Goodnight — Merry Christmas.

Christmas Card Celebrating Diamond Anniversary Today

The American Christmas card, cheerful symbol of the holiday season, celebrates its Diamond Anniversary this year.

In 1875, a Boston lithographer, Louis Prang, hesitantly published the country's first Christmas cards—and wondered if anyone would buy them.

This year, more than 1,500,000,000 Christmas greetings will sparkle from the nation's mantels—an average of better than 40 per family. In a brief 75 years, Christmas cards have become an inseparable part of our colorful Yuletide traditions.

The world's first Christmas card was actually engraved in 1842 in London by William Maw Egley, a 16-year-old apprentice. Offered for sale to his friends, it was a complete failure and was never printed.

When Prang arrived in New York City in 1850, just a century ago, a skilled calico printer from Germany, he was 26 and almost penniless. He worked for six years as a wood engraver and leather goods finisher and managed to save $300. With this money, he opened a small lithographing shop in Boston.

Prang loved Killarney roses, and he specialized in delicately tinted flower prints. But when the Civil War nearly ruined his trade, he switched hurriedly to war maps and portraits of generals. Meanwhile, he perfected the recently-invented process of color lithography.

By 1870, Prang's "album cards" and reproductions of oil paintings were so fine they were being ordered from England. A woman employee in his London office suggested that he print "Merry Christmas" on some of his floral cards in the space left blank for a signature. He tried it in 1874—but only on cards being shipped to England.

The cards sold well overseas. Encouraged, Prang offered them to the American public in 1875. They were an instant success, with their new combination of beauty and holiday sentiment.

Prang's early cards pictured spring-like roses, daisies, scarlet geraniums, sprays of apple blossoms—but not today's familiar holly and poinsettia. In 1877, Prang added a humorous portrayal of Uncle Sam and John Bull shouting at one another over Alexander Graham Bell's new-fangled invention, the telephone.

That same year, Prang's printing plant burned to the ground—a $100,000 loss. But he borrowed money and rebuilt. When his new cards appeared, they began to carry Christmas-like scenes—children romping in the snow, fir trees, glowing fireplaces, even Santa himself.

By 1881, Prang was printing 5,000,000 Christmas cards a year and they formed a major part of his business. He paid one artist, Eora Wheeler, $2,000—an unheard-of price—for one prize design.

Prang's cards are still famous among collectors because of their appealing art work and painstaking craftsmanship. Designs were printed in as many as 20 different colors to achieve delicate, life-like gradations of tone. Many of the cards were trimmed with luxurious silk fringe. They usually cost from 45 cents to $1 each.

Prang abruptly discontinued publishing Christmas cards in 1890. Cheaper photographic reproductive processes had been developed and crude but low-priced Christmas picture postcards were flooding in from Germany.

An era of cheap novelty in Christmas cards developed rapidly. Greetings were extravagantly ornamented with dried flowers, chenille, swansdown, bits of colored glass, even corks and seaweed to illustrate some twisted pun.

Many of today's leading Christmas card firms were founded about 1910, when the modern era of greeting cards began. The custom of exchanging Yuletide greetings had its most rapid spread after World War I.

Adoption of offset printing and watercolor inks enabled Christmas cards to regain the beauty of Prang's day at a much lower cost. And with the rapidly increasing variety of designs, people everywhere began to regard Christmas cards as their personal messengers of holiday good cheer.

Hospitalized servicemen in this country and Japan will express Yuletide good wishes this year with 750,000 free Christmas cards contributed by the nation's greeting card publishers.

The colorful greetings are being made available to 150,000 patients in all military and veterans' hospitals from coast to coast; also a shipment of 45,000 cards has been made to military hospitals in Japan.

Traditional designs, such as glowing fireplaces and snowy country landscapes, are favorites among servicemen. In accordance with their expressed preference, nearly 200,000 of the cards being provided by the greeting card industry this year carry these designs. In all, nearly 300 million Christmas cards of religious design have been produced for the 1950 season.

Recently, the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers made a survey of representative Christmas card lines for 1950 and came up with some interesting conclusions.

They found the traditional Christmas symbols are far and away the most popular. For instance, the five leading design motifs, Holly and Poinsettia, Winter Scenes, Bold Merry Christmas Titles, Christmas Candle illustrations and Santa Claus himself, clearly show that when remembering friends and loved ones Mr. and Mrs. America have a decided preference for the symbols which carry their greetings in a simple direct manner.

Second, the survey revealed a tremendous upsurge in the popularity of truly reverent Christmas cards. As has been said before, nearly 300 million religious Christmas greetings have been produced for the coming holiday season.

A third result from the survey was the evidence of an entirely new trend in what might be termed novelty and whimsical Christmas cards. The Christmas card designers have vied with one another to come up with creations that sometimes border on the fantastic. Such new ideas as cards with sound effects, movable gadgets and special construction to permit hanging on Christmas trees bring a refreshing new note to the 1950 cards.

A fourth highlight of the survey showed that folks who wish to select just the right card for friends or relatives will have a much greater choice this year. The special title classification is no longer limited to members of the family such as mother, sister, father and so on. Demand for special purpose Christmas cards has widened the variety to include Merry Christmas to the boss, the milkman, the family doctor, postman, and even to the mother-in-law. Her card reads: "Merry Christmas to the Mother of the one I love the best."

Scots Become Happy Hosts
On Christmas

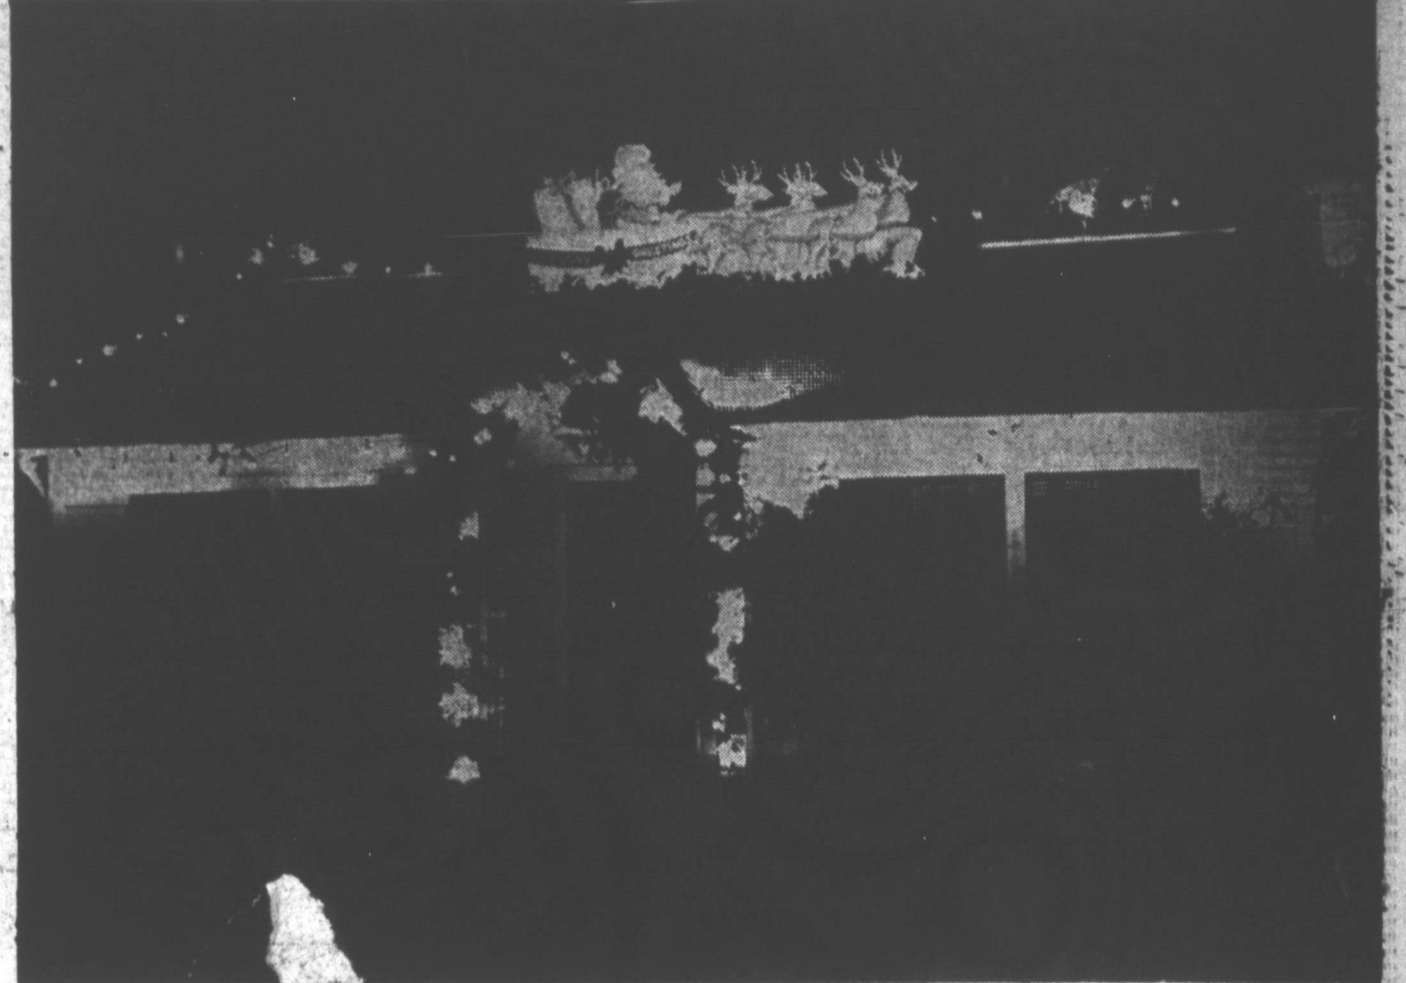

The Scots break over on New Year's and become the world's most charming hosts—for Auld Lang Syne.

They pile into wagons or sleighs, carrying kettles full of wassail, cheese and buns. The party stops at various houses in the community and the refreshments go around at each, stop with little attention paid to the coming dawn.

From the Scots came the old American custom of Open House on New Year's Eve that became particularly popular in the big 20's.

During this gay time, newspapers carried columns of "at home" notices announcing the hours during which visitors would be received. And, having duly received their guests, the hosts and hostesses joined the merry groups, closed their homes and attended other "open houses."

So "open" did the parties become, that intruders began to crash then, prompted by the free punch. A succession of several open houses sometimes resulted in the most welcomed guests arriving in excessively boisterous or mellow moods and caused some upsets.

There Was No Paved Highway
For That First Christmas Trip

There was no madacam highway leading from Nazareth to Bethlehem when Mary and Joseph undertook their memorable journey nearly 2,000 years ago.

As far as routes were concerned, there were three. The western route led along the sea coast and through the plain of Sharon. This route was unpopular with pious folk like Mary and Joseph who shunned the heathen cities, rowdy travelers, etc., as much as possible.

The shortest route, via the fruitful plains of Esdraelon into the mountains of Samaria and through Shechem and Bethel, was not very popular either. The road was tolerable, but steep; however, the Jews had little use for the Samaritans and vice versa.

The Jordan route, which descended into the Jordan valley and followed the river's east bank around Jericho, was favored by the majority of Galilean travelers who for one reason or another (the Passover, etc.) went down to Jerusalem at regular intervals and knew their way around, as well as suburbanites know their way around modern metropolitan areas.

If the Jordan route was a bit the roundabout, it was fairly level. And, steep in places, it was not very popular either. The road was tolerable, but steep; however, the Jews had little use for the Samaritans and vice versa.

of Endor, to the tomb a little before Bethlehem where the first Joseph buried his beloved Rachel.

It is fairly certain that Mary and Joseph did not choose the western route when they planned their very special journey. Whether they chose to go by way of Shechem and Bethel, or around the walled city of Jericho man never has determined definitely.

But, the distance—nearly 100 miles—was, in any case, unrelenting and conquered only by persistent plodding. And when Mary was too tired to go another step, Joseph took the packs upon his own shoulders, as this was the night ride the little donkey which trudged faithfully at his side.

Mary appreciated the shelter of the stable that night—no one could have been more grateful or more happy than Mary. And Joseph, who was a carpenter, sought his "witch" son, and laid him in a manger.

his 12-year-old son near death. Virgin Mary had given each of the kings a part of the awad-ding clothes of the Christ Child as a gift. When a piece of this cloth accidentally touched the king's dying son, he was revived.

Other visitors to the cave-like grotto where Christ was born, were the three shepherds, who were watching their flocks on a nearby hillside, when they saw the Star of Bethlehem and were told of the birth of Christ by the choir of angels.

Legends have been spun about their journey to the grotto, their fear and their wonder of the Babe. Legend has it that Joseph, seeking fire to warm his new-born Son, saw the glowing coals on the hillside where the shep-herds were. He approached them and they were happy to let him have some of their coals, but wondered how he was to carry the burning wood. Joseph took off his mantle and put the fire inside it, but the mantle did not burn.

Joseph returned to the grotto and placed the fire beside the manger, where the glow was renewed and warmed the Child. So it is that thousands of stories have grown from the one Great Story and have lived in the hearts of men for centuries. Each of them is beautiful, each of them good.

United States Meeting Place Of All Carols

In towns and cities throughout America, in churches, public squares and along home-lined streets, over millions of radios and public address systems come the strains of the world's Yuletide melodies — old as bygone centuries, young as "I'm dream-ing of a white Christmas. . . ."

The United States, meeting place of carols from all Christen-dom, contributes yearly to the traditions of Christmas music by writing new songs and pop-ularizing old ones.

The carols of Europe arrived with the peoples who came to America to settle. "O Come, All Ye Faithful" (Adeste Fideles), eventually translated into 119 languages and dialects, belonged to no one nation but was the common gift of the continent. From Germany came Luther's hymn for children, "Away in a manger, no crib for a bed. . . ."

England sent "God rest you, merry gentlemen, let nothing you dismay. . . ."

And France provided the beautiful "Cantique de Noel" or "O Holy Night."

Three American composers did much to revive the ancient cus-tom by writing new songs which are, today, among the world's best beloved carols.

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" was the inspiration of Edmund H. Sears, a Massachu-setts Unitarian minister, in 1849. Less than 10 years later Dr. John Henry Hopkins, Jr., Epis-copal rector from Williamsport, Pa., composed both the words and music for "We Three Kings of Orient Are."

Perhaps the best-known Amer-ican carol, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," was written in 1865 by Phillips Brooks in Philadel-phia. The young Episcopal min-ister, later bishop of Massachu-setts, was inspired to write the poem by the memory of a trip to the Holy Land two years earlier. The rollicking "Jingle Bells," though non-religious in theme, also came from the pen of a churchman, John Pier-pont, and has enjoyed almost a century of popularity.

The volcanic soil of Guatemala is extremely rich. Poinsettias grow as tall as trees, and Easter lily blooms reach quart size without forcing.

Christmas Can Be Safe With A Few Rules

To make this Christmas a safe one, remember these don'ts listed by the National Safety Council.

The Christmas tree shouldn't be placed near a stove or fireplace.

Don't give children any toys that could prove dangerous.

The Christmas tree should not be decorated with lighted candles. Carefully - wired electric bulbs are much safer.

Fires must be prevented. Don't leave open fires unwatched at any time.

Don't use a rickety, unsafe ladder in decorating the tree.

Don't place Christmas candles near the trees; curtains, paper wreaths or any other inflammable decorations.

The tree can be made fire-resistant. Divide the weight of the tree by four and buy that many pounds of ammonium sulphate.

Dissolve it in water — one and a half pints of water to each pound. Cut the end of your tree trunk on a diagonal. Put some of the solution in a jar and stick the diagonal butt of the tree into it.

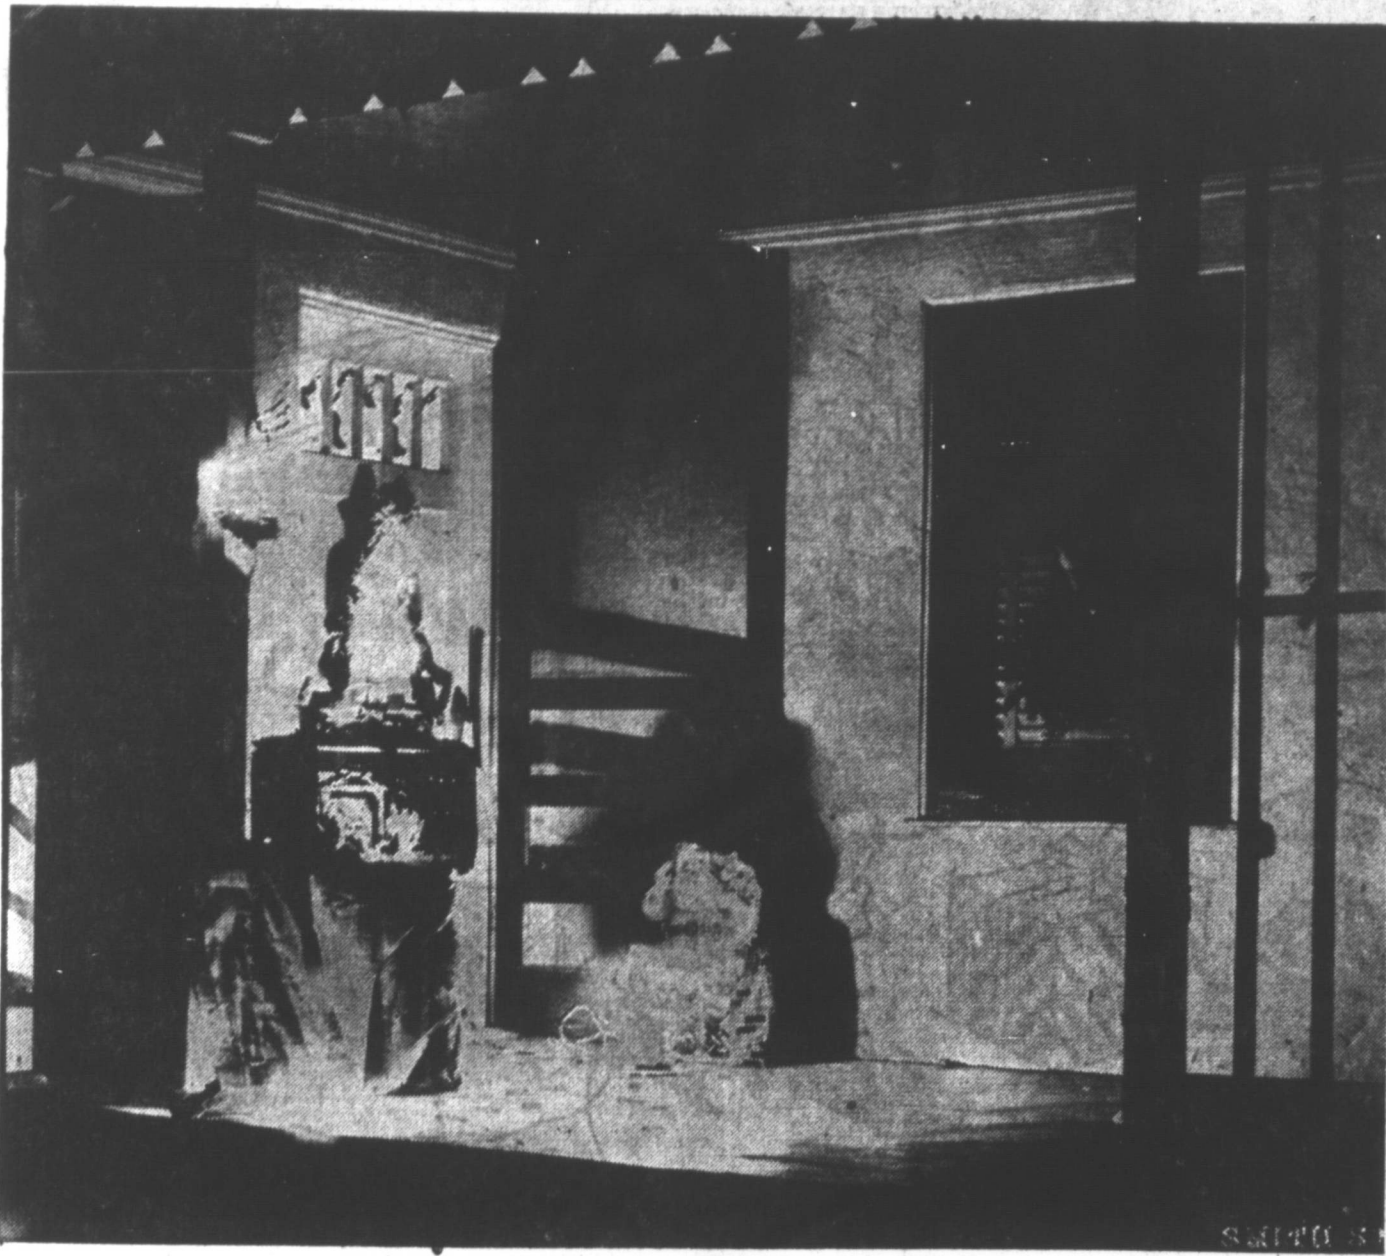

Add more of the solution as the tree drinks it up.

Don't be excessive about Christmas "spirits."

Keep toys out of places where people might trip over them.

Remove the tree from the house before it dries out.

If your steps are icy, sprinkle them with salt. With the right kind of prevention of accidents, your Christmas can't help being white.

Nativity Scene Is Popular in Yuletide Cards

Modern Christmas cards feature literally hundreds of interpretations of the popular Nativity theme. Many of these are reproductions from the old masters, while many others have been created especially for the Christmas card industry.

The Nativity theme, which naturally lends itself to an almost endless variety of interpretations and a wealth of detail, long has been a favorite subject of Christian artists. Many of the details, based upon certain Bible texts, have fostered various legends — such as those concerning the Magi — which grew until the Wise Men were identified and given kingdoms.

The Annunciation is among the earliest subjects represented in Christian art, antedating the Madonna and Child theme by several centuries, and it is interesting to note that the fathers of the Church determined how the Madonna should be portrayed: her dress and mantle are usually blue and red.

Instead of Wreath, Hang Bells on Door

Instead of the conventional frames bright and cheerful by wreath on the outside of the door why not string some bells and tree ornaments on a narrow baby ribbon and hang from a wide sash bows for colorful effect.

New Yorkers Say Santa Is A Native Son

New Yorkers say that the fabulous fat and frolicsome Santa Claus that every American knows is a native of their state.

They say that not only did he land in Manhattan with the Dutch settlers, but for almost 200 years, he never took his activities or presents out of New York state.

When Santa came from the old country to New York, he lost the grim, stern aspect he had and became the bulging, benevolent mien he now offers.

It was in New York, too, they assert, that Santa got his reindeer sleigh and his habit of arriving on Christmas instead of on the Dutch St. Nicholas eve (Dec. 6).

From little old New York, Santa traveled to the rest of the United States like a Tin Pan Alley song.

New Yorkers will tell you that as in its old form, New Amsterdam, the city was dedicated to St. Nicholas by its Dutch settlers. For Santa Claus is only the centuries-old pet name which Dutch children gave to their patron and gift bringing good priest. It is said that the ship which brought the first Dutch children to Manhattan Island bore his face as figurehead.

With this ship came the custom of having Santa's special day on Dec. 6 as one of the five chief holidays of the new colony, just as it had been in Holland.

For weeks before this big day, children sat expectantly, learning their lessons and helping with the chores in an agony of good behavior. On the big day, they sang songs in Santa's behalf.

In the midst of the song would come a knocking at the door and Santa would appear. In one hand he carried a basket of presents or a purse, but in the other was a birch rod.

Each child was questioned about his behavior and given a pat of approval. They were bid to look for presents in the morning and the good saint suddenly flung a handful of lollipops into the room and in the ensuing scramble, vanished into the night.

However he did it — and the tale varies in many lands — Santa made his world-wide journey that night. In the cold, marvelous morning, gifts appeared on the mantels, and all good Dutch fare overflowed from the once-empty stockings.

Once upon a medieval Yuletide, King Richard III of England celebrated at Litchfield — and during the festivities 2,000 oxen and 200 tons of wine were consumed.

Of course, the feudal set-up provided the great lords with the wherewithal for magnificence — the lords received gifts from their tenants and kings received gifts from their nobles; and the graduated scale for giving and receiving was as well ascertained as the quiddam honorarium of any barrister or physician.

Queen Elizabeth received a large part of her wardrobe as gifts from her courtiers, and if the quality or quantity was not satisfactory, the donors were unceremoniously informed of the situation.

When Henry III entertained a thousand knights, peers and assorted nobles who came to attend the Yuletide marriage of the Princess Margaret, his majesty received a royal Christmas gift of 2,700 pounds, plus 600 fat oxen from the Archbishop of York.

With similar assistance, whether exhorting or given in the spirit of generosity appropriate to the season, his majesty could well afford to give Christmas feasts for the poor like the one given in Westminster Hall in 1246, which lasted a week.

Striving to outdo his predecessors and give his successors something to shoot at, Henry VIII kept one Yuletide at which the cost of gold cloth that was used amounted to 600 pounds alone. He had tents erected and artificial gardens plotted within the spacious hall of his palace. Knights came out of the tents to joust in tournaments and fantastically dressed dancers, covered from head to foot with gay ribbon streamers, emerged from the gardens to entertain the guests.

Preparation for the feasting on such occasions is perfectly appalling to epicures of the 20th Century, and can only be vaguely comprehended by considering that Richard II normally employed 2,000 cooks to prepare food for the 10,000 persons who dined — irrespective of special feasts — at his expense every day.

Christmas Tree a Part of Church Services 99 Years

For 99 years the Christmas tree has been a part of the American Christmas church services.

A Lutheran minister lighted the first one in 1851 in Cleveland. He was Rev. Henry Schwan and his action on that Christmas brought on a great deal of controversy. This was because the Christmas tree had so long been associated with pagan observance of the season that many people believed it should stay out of the church.

However, some of Rev. Schwan's congregation, especially the children, thought the gaily trimmed and candle glowing tree was perfect for the Christmas season.

Still, the objectors were determined to have their way and were to be sure that this would be the last of the Christmas trees erected in American churches.

During the entire following year, the minister did all in his power to learn of the origin of the Christmas tree tradition in order that he might show that the tradition was far from the "heathen" ceremony it had been called.

He wrote countless letters to friends all over the world. He asked questions of church authorities and made long notes of their conversations.

When he learned of a particular part of the world having the tradition of Christmas trees, he marked that place on a large map which hung in his office.

The pastor made his search for knowledge of the tree almost a crusade.

But as Christmas time approached in 1852, Rev. Schwan had not found enough church support for the tradition to light another tree at his services that year. So he resigned himself to the end of his hope of establishing the custom.

On Dec. 24, 1852, he received from the pastor of one of Cleveland's older churches the present of a new tree. Rev. Schwan realized immediately that the present meant the acceptance of the custom by the churchman far more influential than himself, and his sadness vanished.

He had won his point — and once accepted in Cleveland, the custom spread all over the United States.

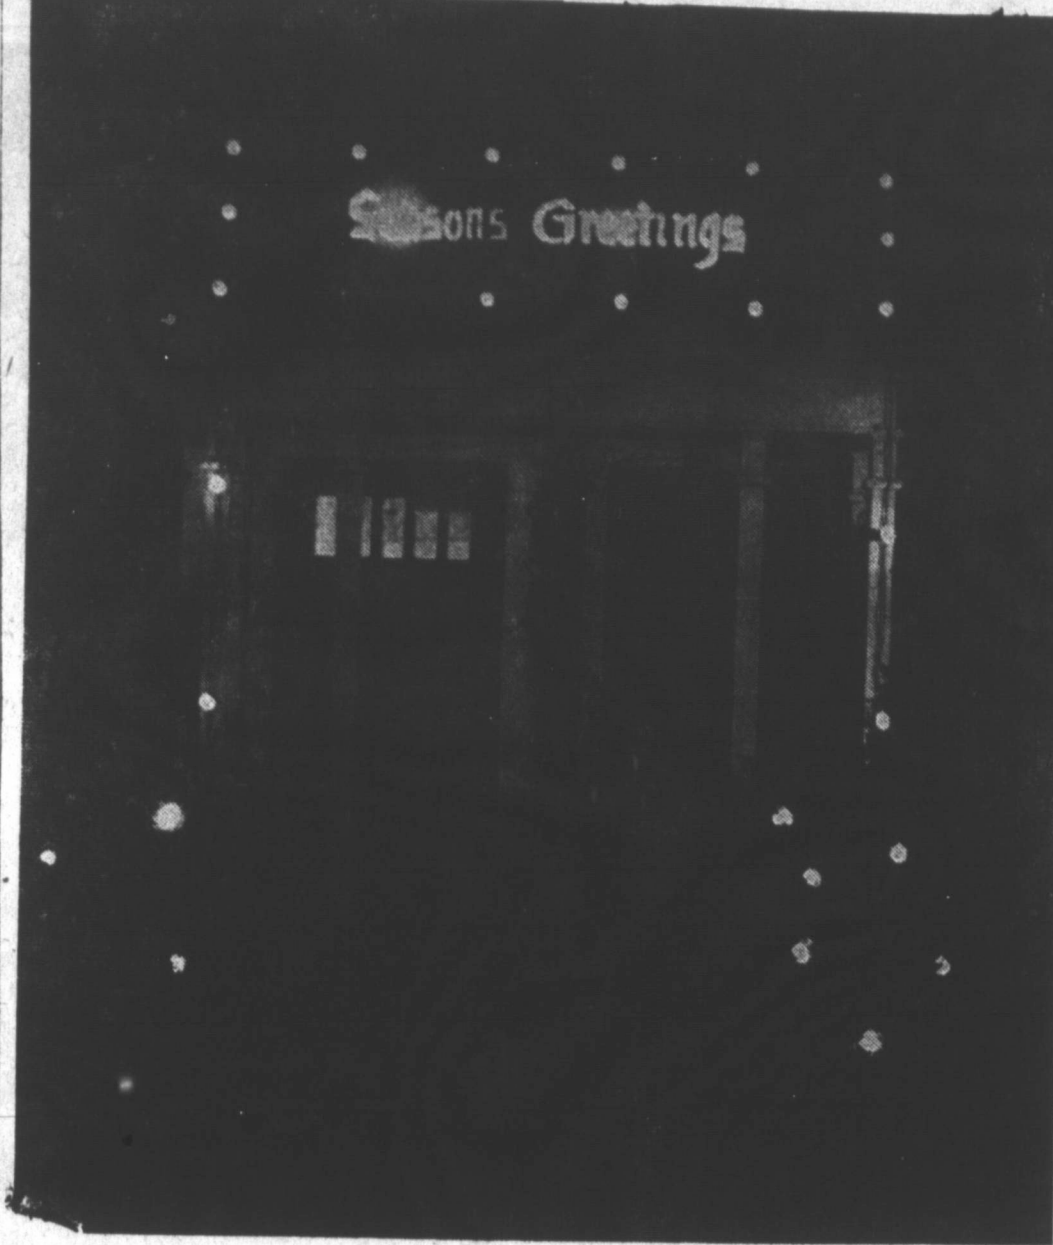

York Street, where Pastor Schwan's church once stood is changed now and long ago was renamed Hamilton Avenue; and the first tree, decorated with candles and a gold star at its top, has given way to trees with brighter, more colorful decorations.

But the tradition of erecting and lighting Christmas trees, which is observed throughout the nation is the same tradition which the Lutheran pastor introduced to this country in the city of Cleveland nearly 100 years ago.

Poinsettia, Given By South America, Can Be Propagated

While it seems rather odd, it certainly is interesting that America has given the world its most beloved Christmas Plant — the poinsettia.

You can then put it outside if you wish in the shade of a

There is a sentiment that goes with most Christmas plants — we hate to throw them away. What can be done with the poinsettia? Most of us figure that it is easier and cheaper to throw it away. U.S. Picture Of Santa Claus Made in 1860

To every American, the same picture comes into the mind when he thinks of Santa Claus.

This is because the Santa we know was created by an American — almost 90 years ago.

Creator of the round and jolly modern Santa was Thomas Nast, one of America's greatest cartoonists. During the early 1860's he was asked to illustrate Clement Clark Moore's poem, "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Before Nast's day, a few artists had drawn Santa, but could not seem to agree on how the old gent should look.

Nast set his imagination to work and came out with the most beloved character of fiction.

He located Santa's home in the North Pole and gave him a sleigh drawn by reindeer. He then gave Santa a spy-glass so that during the year he might pick out the good children from the bad, and also a big book in which to write their names and keep their records.

This conception of Santa Claus first appeared in 1836. Since that time, the pictured Santa has been the same, although the spy glass and pipe seem to have dropped by the way.

IT'S AN AVERAGE

Generally speaking, a man of 50 has slept 6000 days, worked 6500 days, walked 800 days, amused himself 4000 days, eaten 1500 days, and been ill 500 days.

Aerial mapping photography has been made twice as effective as before with a new device known as the Twinplex. The instrument can reproduce a 22.5-square-mile area in a single photograph. Using paired aerial photographs, it produces three-dimensional effects — a decided advantage in aerial bombing.

Miracle Plays Presented in Rio Christmas

Brazilian Christmas festivities embrace an aggregation of modern observances entwined with ancient traditions brought over from the mother country of Portugal.

The Christmas season in Brazil begins on Christmas Eve and ends with Epiphany on January 6. And because it is really summertime (south of the equator) festivities and entertainments appropriate to summertime hold sway throughout the season.

Miracle plays have always been performed in adoration of the Holy Child. From olden times, the plays have had all the dramatic fervor of a religious performance together with the gracious hospitality of a social function.

The scene is at once solemn and fantastic, with costumes bedecked with feathers, spangles, jewels and what-not sparkling in a setting of luxurious tropical foliage and blossoms.

Out of the great variety of miracle plays, all on different themes, of which many are in the form of elaborate dances meticulously performed and accompanied by the music of an orchestra, the dance of the Four Parts of the World may be cited as a typical example.

The roles are enacted by girls

School for Santas

With all his experiences, the modern trend makes the old-fashioned Santa Claus embark on technical education. "School for Santa Claus," sponsored by a Hollywood actors' organization, is coaching Kris Kringle "doubles" for their roles during the holidays.

Cultivation of a hearty, or belly, laugh is in the curriculum (top photo). Santa is shown how he must open his mouth wide to force-booming "Ha Ha" through chin brush. Photo in center shows instructor demonstrating application of tourniquet so that Santa will know what to do if a boisterous celebrant happens to injure himself. At bottom, melodious renditions of "Silent Night" are practiced at each class session.

dressed for the part and, in succession, Europe, Asia, Africa and America, declaimed. The discussion finally involves their respective rights to make obligation to the Christ Child. Eventually, Father Time appears and settles the dispute to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Christmas Once Almost Eliminated

The celebration of Christmas in this country has deep and permanent roots, although at one time its observance was nearly exterminated.

The first Christmas observance was shortly after Columbus discovered America. The Santa Maria beached on Christmas Eve and all Christmas day Columbus and his men worked to free her. When it was found hopeless, she was stripped and as much gear as possible taken to the Nina. However, the Nina was unable to carry all the men, and some were left behind in a fort, that in honor of the season, was called La Navidad, the nativity.

The Swiss are extremely careful not to hear cattle speak during the Christmas season.

At Christmas Time, we wish to all our friends the happiest of holidays. Because your friendship makes our Christmas bright, we hope that your happiness will be greater because of our sincere good wishes for your success and a most joyous Christmas.

Santa Hasn't Always Had An Easy Time

Santa Claus hasn't always had it so easy. There have been times when the old gent has been curbed by the long arm of the law.

In Newark, N. J., for instance, Santa is required to pass a stiff physical examination before he can serve in a department store.

And even then, he is barred from kissing any of the children who perch on his knee.

Santa is forbidden in Charleston, S. C. to set up a charity basket on the street on the grounds that children flocking around him may create a traffic hazard.

Over the United States, Santa has had trouble, too. In Montreal, Canada, an influential organization fought against holding the city's annual Santa Claus parade on the ground that it was "merely a display of grotesque and vulgar buffoonery."

Some people have even tried to oust the old gent completely from the scene, trying to substitute ancient gods for the good St. Nick.

Some old stuffed shirt in a northern university once made this statement—"The Santa Claus myth has lived too long. Parents should substitute philosophy."

This fad didn't "catch on." Then, a sharpie that called himself a psychiatrist pulled this one out of his hat. It should be made clear to children," he said, "that Santa Claus is not necessarily a real man any more than any other character out of a story book." He didn't explain how. After all, what child can you persuade that there was never a Little Black Sambo?

Santa Claus Makes a Stop Out West

Denmark Had World's First Yuletide Seal

Christmas seals had their origin in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1904.

A children's hospital was needed in that city and Einar Helboell, a postal clerk, conceived the idea that stamps especially designed to decorate Christmas letters and packages would, and could, be made to finance the cost of the building.

The idea was endorsed by the Danish royal family and the first Christmas seal was designed and placed on sale in the post office of that country. The citizens of Denmark purchased enough to insure medical care for the sick children.

Jacob Riis, in America, who was interested in social service, received a letter from his mother country bearing one of the bright stamps and inquired about its purpose. The possibilities of its use in the United States impressed him and he wrote an article describing what the stamp had achieved in Denmark.

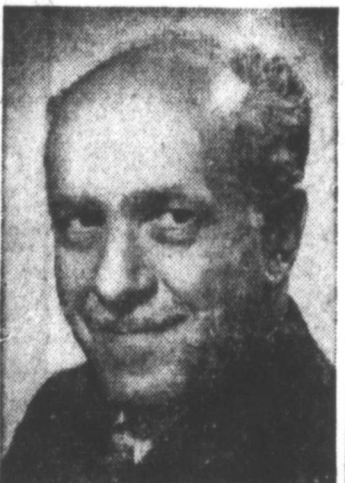

Inspired by this article, Miss Emily O. Bissell of Wilmington, Del., organized the first sale of Christmas seals in the United States and as a result a $3,000 tuberculosis pavilion was built.

In 1908, Miss Bissell induced the American Red Cross authorities to undertake a nationwide sale of Christmas stamps and from then until 1920, the Red Cross conducted the sale of seals.

The National Tuberculosis Assn. had been organizing from 1907 with little funds. To strengthen the organization, the American Red Cross joined with it in the sale of Christmas seals.

This partnership lasted until 1920, when it was dissolved and since then only the double-barred cross emblem of the anti-tuberculosis movement has appeared on Christmas seals.

Seal Artist

Andre Dugo of Suffern, N. Y., artist of international fame, designed the 1950 Christmas Seal, being sold throughout the country by 2,000 voluntary tuberculosis associations from Nov. 20 to Dec. 25 to raise funds for their tuberculosis prevention and control programs. (Raymond K. Martin photo.)

CHRISTMAS EVE IN OLDTIME FINLAND

The Christmas Eve bath was quite a tradition in Finland before the advent of modern plumbing.

The oldtime Finnish bathroom was usually a three-room hut; one room was used for steaming and scrubbing, one for rubbing, and one for dressing.

The hut was warmed by a stone oven, heated for hours before the scheduled bath, and the "bathroom" was really steaming. After bathing came the rub-down and the switching of the body with birch twigs to increase the circulation, topped off by a roll in the snow, supposedly to whet the appetite for Christmas Eve supper.

For supper there was usually a stockfish and prune tarts to be enjoyed, plus the traditional barley porridge in which cream and sugar and almonds were mixed.

After supper the boys and men matched their strength; while the girls—garbed in the men's work clothes—blackened their faces and stole away to visit other homes incognito and "see Christmas." The girls never spoke nor accepted food, but went from house to house merely to watch the festivities.

And when the evening's festi-

Lithuania Carries Tradition of Poppy

The poppy leaf, traditionally a part of Christmas Eve supper in Lithuania, is a small leaf made of bread dough and baked hard in a bread pan. When cool, the leaves are dipped in a solution made of water and sugar and ground poppy seed which is also used as a traditional holiday beverage.

Tradition prescribes that the poppy seed should be ground in an iron kettle using an iron handle as a mallet, and no Lithuanian would think of grinding seeds for the Christmas poppy leaves by any other method.

Yule Tree Is 150 Years Old

A Christmas tree will be put up in two out of every three American homes this year. Yet the trimmed Christmas tree, as it is known today, is only about 150 years old in this country. The Pilgrims forbade Christmas celebrations on the grounds they were pagan. A Massachusetts law in 1689 subjected anyone to a fine who observed the day by feasting, refraining from work or in any other manner. It was not until near the end of the American Revolution that the Christmas tree took hold.

German immigrants homesick for the tradition of their native land, put them up. The custom of the lighted Christmas tree, some historians tell, originated with Martin Luther. He was fascinated by evergreen trees, glistening with starlit-snow, pointing to the heavens at Christmas time. So he brought an evergreen tree into his house and lighted it with candles for his children.

Another old German legend credits St. Boniface with the origin of the Christmas tree.

The practice of singing Christmas carols appears to be almost as old as the celebration of the day itself. In the first days of the church, the bishops sang carols on Christmas Day. They recall the songs sung by the angel at the birth of Christ.

By HENRY S. GORDON

BOOM!
The northside of Vincentown reverberated under the lusty peal of the huge bronze bell on College Hill as it sounded 10:30 p. m. Even the howling wind that was driving a fresh snow before it wasn't enough to keep the throaty sound from the Christmas Eve merry-makers.

As the peal echoed away over the frosty hills, 12-year-old Bobby Maxwell was heading into the wind along Wortham Avenue toward the little cottage on Elm Street that he and his mother called home.

Bobby had left the brightly colored Christmas lights on Vincentown's business section behind him as he plodded homeward through the wind and snow. Going home tonight was just a little harder than it had been several nights before.

There were several reasons.

First: Bobby and his widowed, paralyzed mother were poor. Bobby's father, big Jim Maxwell, had died eight years before, leaving a small insurance policy, about $3,000 in cash and $1,500 in debts.

Second: Bobby was forced to work after school and on Saturdays to help his mother and for two years now had to bear the full burden himself.

Third: The next tax installment on their little home was due and he was wondering how he would make it, pay the utility bills and doctor bills, plus trying to get enough together to buy Mother a Christmas present, have a Christmas tree and a small Christmas dinner.

On top of all this, Bobby — See CHRISTMAS STORY, Page 26

like his father, couldn't say "no" to people in trouble, want or danger — had picked up an old derelict he found lying unconscious in an alley just a block from where he was walking now. He took the old man in, fed and kept him. Still no one turned up to claim the old man. Bobby knew, only that he had lost his memory and apparently had been robbed shortly before he found him.

The youngster tried to remember the day his Daddy died, as he slithered over the slippery sidewalks and across snow covered streets. It was getting dark, now as street lights were more widely separated in this part of town. Only the tavern lights shone weakly through the falling snowflakes. He could hear the sour notes of garbled Christmas carols coming from beer halls filled with Christmas Eve frolickers.

"What a way to celebrate Christ's birthday," thought Bobby as his mind flicked away from the vague remembrance of Daddy's funeral.

Things had gone along "fairly" after Daddy died. They had money to live on, but had to use it sparingly. Finally Mother got a job as a clerk in Baskins Department Store. This helped out quite a bit. But Bobby was the enterprising kind and inclined to be independent. First he got a paper route, then he started running errands for Mr. Kuter's grocery store. After that he took to shining shoes after supper at the railroad station and bus depot.

His friendly nature and bright smile won him a long list of customers and tips. With the three jobs he was able to gather just enough together to keep body and soul alive and support his mother.

He crossed Belmont Boulevard and jumped to safety just as a car swerved around the corner, almost hitting him. The wind increased and cut through the youngster's threadbare overcoat—a coat his mother cut down to fit him three years ago from his father's old wardrobe.

He reached the north side of Belmont Boulevard safely, quickening his pace north along Worham Ave. It wouldn't be long until he was home. There would be banking the fire, seeing if Mother was comfortable, and see how "Mr. Mystery" was getting along.

Again, Bobby's mind reflected on the past. He saw his mother shaking the rug in their yard that hot Sunday afternoon in August; saw her stumble against the back door as she tripped on her way into the house. As he remembered it, Mother was back against the door knob and gave just the tiniest cry of pain. Her back, he reflected, hurt all that night and next day. She went to work and came home complaining of a numbness developing in her legs. She walked toward her bedroom; toppled and fell, unable to move. The neighbors phoned for the doctor and he put her to bed. She had been in bed ever since — the doctor didn't seem to be able to help her.

That was two years ago. Bobby was only 10 then, and had to bear the whole burden of supporting them after school. He worked hard. First he would leave for the newspaper office, get his route and "acrouge" a few extras to sell along the way. He would make the route hurriedly; get back to Mr. Kuter's store, deliver groceries; go home get supper (under Mother's watchful eye through the open bedroom door) and then leave for the bus and railroad stations with his shoe shine kit. He managed to study his lessons between customers — which usually meant between buses and trains.

But, Christmas, this year, wouldn't be as merry as he had hoped. They would have a Christmas dinner — roast beef, but no Christmas tree. Mr. Kimble down at the department store let Bobby buy his Mother a bed lamp at cost and gave him a tie for the old man. These he had wrapped in the gift department this morning and now had them tucked securely under his right arm. Over his left shoulder hung the portable shoe shine kit, banging against his hip at every step.

"Merry Christmas, Mr. Carter," Bobby shouted to the patrolman on the Glenside Park beat as he passed him trying to warm his hands.

"Thanky, youngster," the policeman said.

Teddy's Merry Christmas

Chiming with glee the old clock spoke,
(All expecting the six o'clock stroke)
And every child in the house awoke, Wishing a "Merry Christmas to all the folk."

Shouting with glee and lusty good cheer,
"Hurrah! old Santa's surely been here."
"Hurrah! for Kris Kringle," exclaimed little Jean,
"My stocking is filled!" shouted Arlene.

"Hurrah for Santa, come, mother, see,"
Called brother Tommy beside the tree,
Finding an airplane he claimed as his own,
He vowed it was one old Santa had flown.

Hiding 'neath the tree for girls and boys,
Were dolls and buggies and games and toys,
There was a package, all round and red,
A big bass drum for little boy Ted.

Quickly he seized it with ecstasies wild
To beat Merry Christmas for every child,
Dancing with merriment, little boy Ted Played with his drum till time for bed.

Hidden for all, in the big Yule tree,
Were happy surprises opened with glee,
Never was Christmas so filled with cheer,
And joys to last them all the year.

Then listening again to the carols of old,
The beautiful story of Jesus retold,
They bade "Good Night" to mother and dad, Thanking all for the joys they had.

Softly chiming, the old clock spoke,
Bidding "Good Night" to all the folk,
Soon little boy Ted was dreaming of a land
He led with glee by his own little wand.

Some Predict Weather on Christmas Day

Christmas means many things to many people but one use with which few modern-day people are familiar is that the coming year's weather may be forecasted by cocking an eye at the sky during Christmas week. Of course many are based on common sense, others on superstition. Some may apply to one part of the world and be all wet in another. But, the fact remains, there are certain beliefs centered about next year's weather as influenced by the weather conditions on Christmas day. Some conflict but here are a few examples.

If the sun shines through the apple tree, none in the Panhandle — on Christmas day, there will be a good crop the following year.

If ice will bear a man before Christmas, it will not bear a mouse afterward.

Thunder and lightning Christmas week means much snow the balance of the winter. This is a cousin to the groundhog story.

Rain causes more damage than frost before than after Christmas.

At Christmas if meadows are green, at Easter they will be covered with frost. This might prove a boon to designers of the Easter bonnet.

If the wind blows on Christmas day, trees will bear much fruit.

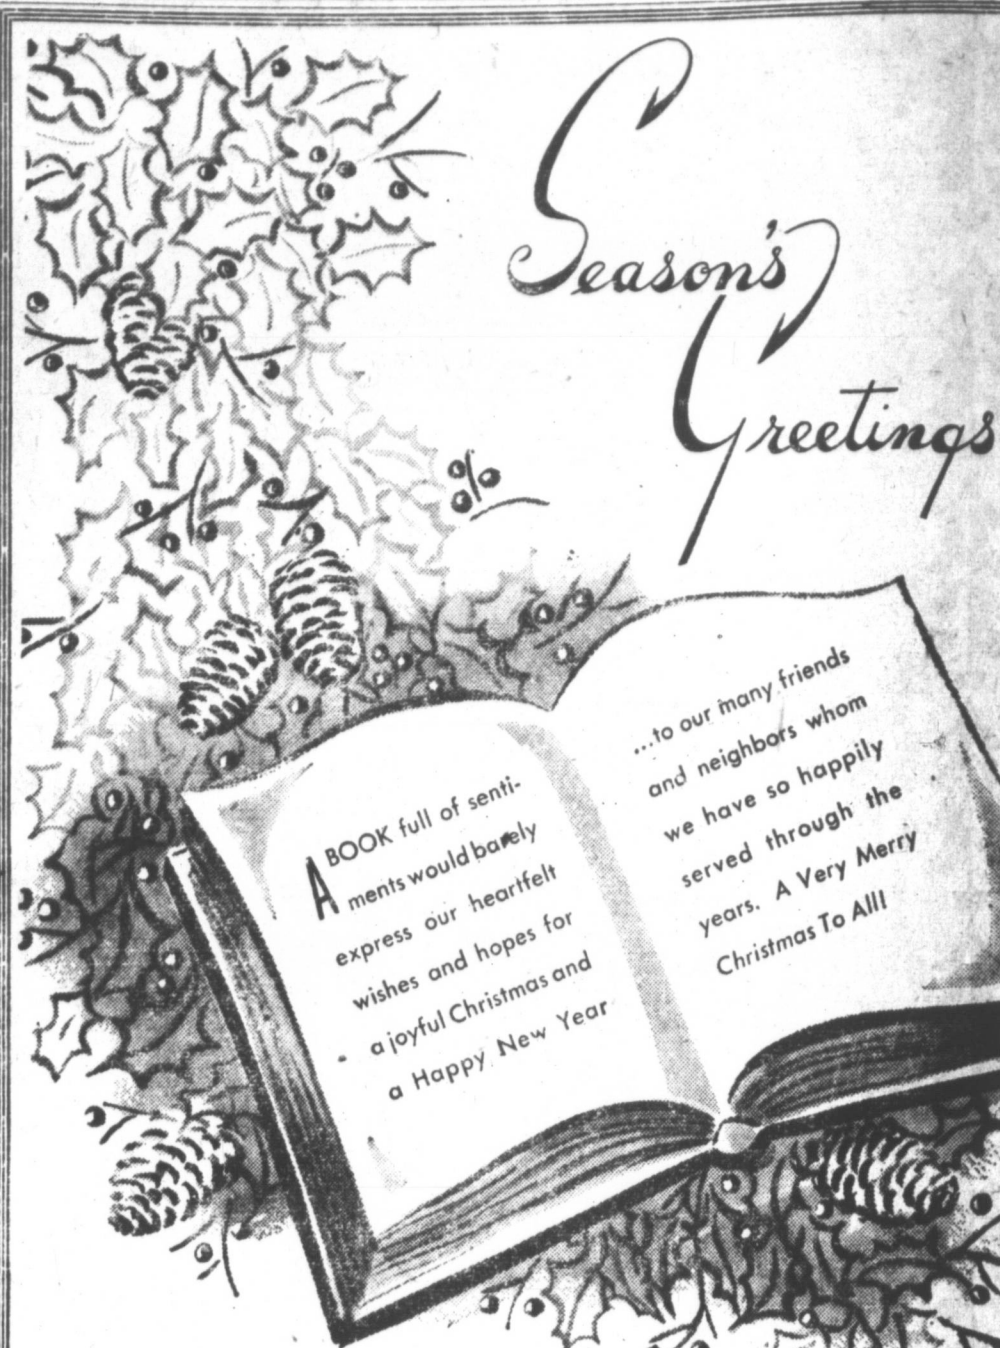

A wet Christmas means an empty granary and barrel.

A green Christmas makes a fat graveyard.

A warm Christmas means a cold Easter.

A green Christmas is followed by a white Easter.

Norwegians have a myth that the spruce tree grew from blood-soaked ground where two lovers died. Lights on the tree symbolize their love, faith and hope.

Heenan answered through chattering teeth.
Bobby stooped when he saw the officer wanted to chat with him.

"This is a mighty blustery night for a boy your size and age to be out. Have many customers tonight, I hope."

"Yes sir, I did," Bobby answered, adding, "I'll bet you'll be glad when midnight comes and you can go home too."

"I'll certainly be a relief," the big bluecoat smiled back, asking, "and how is your mother these days, I hear she hasn't improved much, if any at all."

Bobby shook his head sorrowfully. "No, but I'm sure some day I can afford to take her to the big university hospital and let them see if they can help her. Those things cost so much money that I can't afford it just now, but I have a few dollars I managed to save by selling 'extras' along my paper route."

Carter slapped Bobby on the back with strong affection and smiled grimly.

"If all the boys I know of looked at life and their responsibilities the way you do, I'd be out of a job. If anybody ever deserved a break it is Bobby Maxwell, I always said. By the way, son, the boys down at the precinct house have been asking why you don't come around. We need some shoes shined too, you know, and there isn't anybody we like to do business with better'n you."

"Gee, thanks, Mr. Carter. But I've been so busy here of late I just couldn't get around any more."

Bobby didn't say anything about Mr. Mystery and the big policeman didn't ask. Besides he didn't know about Bobby's added burden, the youngster was too proud to tell anybody. All he wanted to do was help the old man.

"You still have pretty far to go Bobby. What say I call a cruiser car and have them take you home? Bill Winston and Fred Murrow, your two buddies, are on this run and they'll run you home in a jiffy."

"Golly, thanks a lot," Bobby answered, "but wouldn't that be out of their way?"

"Not a bit of it," Carter snapped, "They'd cuss me out if I didn't."

Bobby didn't want to raise any hard feelings with the policeman and he could stand the ride home. He yielded to the offer. Carter grabbed him by the hand, led the boy to the corner restaurant where he put in the call to headquarters then bought Bobby and himself some steaming, hot chocolate.

By the time the two had finished the welcome swallows of the warming and refreshing chocolate, Winston and Murrow pulled up to the curb in their black police car.

"Merry Christmas, pardner," Murrow yelled as he saw Bobby come out of the restaurant with Carter.

"Same to you fellows," Bobby yelled back starting for the car. "Take good care of Mother."

Carter reminded him, "and you'll get your reward some day."

"Thank you, Mr. Carter; goodnight and Merry Christmas to Mrs. Carter too," Bobby replied as he stepped in the rear seat of the cruiser.

Inside the warm car, Bobby settled back on comfortable cushions. Winston and Murrow, he thought, were two of the swell-est guys he knew. He wondered why they were so anxious to take him home and why they were so jovial tonight.

The black sedan purred on toward the Maxwell cottage on Elm Street. Bobby discovered he was beginning to feel the pangs of hunger and fatigue. He started to slump over as Winston and Murrow began to talk to him, promising that Santa wouldn't forget youngsters such as he. Bobby thought differently but didn't say anything.

As he leaned to the left his body hit a sharp object like the edge of a big brick. He sat upright and resumed joking with his two policemen friends. Finally they reached Bobby's front door.

The policemen got out too. "Now, that's strange," Bobby mumbled under his breath, "they never did that before. Maybe they just want to see Mother. Maybe they heard about Mr. Mystery and want to question him. Maybe something happened and they want to be with me."

Bobby was too polite to ask any questions and started for the house. But, the policemen logged behind, whispering and he thought he heard Winston giggle. Then he noticed the lights were out. He specifically remembered telling Mr. Mystery when he left after breakfast to turn them on after supper. He looked

Behind him and saw the policemen getting back into the car — BUT THEY WERE GETTING IN THE BACK SEAT.

"Oh wall, what they do is their business, but they sure acted mighty queer tonight."

He reached out to open the usually unlocked door and found it locked.

"Now, that's funny," he thought. "I know that door was unlocked when I left this morning. Something must be wrong with Mother, but why would Winston giggle at something like that?"

A gripping fear ran over Bobby as he reached into his pocket for his key. Unlocking the door he went in, turned on the light and called:

"Mother, I'm home."

There was no answer. The house was deathly still.

The youngster ran from room to room switching on lights wherever he went. His mother's bedroom was bare. The bed neatly made and the whole house looked as if someone had thoroughly gone over it with a fall housecleaning like Mother used to do. He looked in the kitchen. No one there. He looked in his room. Mr. Mystery was gone.

THE HOUSE WAS COM-

PLETELY EMPTY OF ANY HUMAN BEINGS.

Then he found a note on the dining room table.

"Bobby Maxwell," it read. "Your mother has been taken to Lakeland University Hospital by ambulance."

There was no signature.

Just then the front door opened with a crash. A strong gust of wind almost knocked the youngster over and blew the note from his hand. Bobby looked up to see the back of a man in a blue overcoat backing into the house. He recognized Murrow's back immediately and then saw Winston's smiling face over Murrow's bowed head.

"I told you Santa wouldn't forget the likes of you," Winston bellowed gleefully.

The two policemen plunged the rest of the way into the room dropping the heavy object with that sharp edge right in the middle of the floor.

Bobby was mystified all over. Here were these blustering policemen laughing and having a good time while he was worried sick about his mother in the hospital.

But Winston wasn't to be bothered "with such matters as that."

After all, Mother was safe in the hospital where it was warm with all those good doctors and nurses around to watch over her.

There were things that had to be done here at home, Murrow argued with Bobby, growing more stern when he told him Bobby was not to ask too many questions. Murrow finally quieted Bobby's fears, promising to radio headquarters that they were on an emergency and would drive him to the hospital.

What Bobby didn't know was that Car 23, Winston and Murrow, were detached for the remainder of Christmas Eve for Bobby's own special benefit. Those were welcome orders for the two bluecoats and came direct from Police Commissioner Rutland himself.

"But, what is that big box?" Bobby pressed.

Winston smiled and chuckled: "Bobby, you're no cripple. Open it and see."

The youngster, bewildered at the policeman's attitude, stared at the large black box resting in the middle of the living room floor.

It was about four feet long, 18 inches wide and almost a foot high. It was made of wood, roughly painted and its lid fastened only with a hasp. Cautiously, Bobby stooped, flipped up the hasp and pulled up the lid.

His boyish eyes all but popped from his head as he saw the contents of the box.

"Merry Christmas to a real, true boy — From just a bunch of Cops," read the card on top of more Christmas gifts than Bobby ever knew.

Just then a clatter that sounded like a troop of Cavalry pounded like a cavalry troop pounded porch as almost half of the precinct station poured in to wish Bobby a Merry Christmas.

Through all the hubbub of noise and laughter the youngster started to open the packages.

In the big box was a new overcoat from the traffic squad. In another was a pair of shoes and a pair of galoshes from the Motor Bandit Patrol Unit of the precinct; a third box contained a warm woolen cap from Patrolman Carter; a small box contained a 17 jewel wrist watch from Winston and Murrow; still another box contained a bank deposit receipt to Bobby's account for $100 from the detective squad; and a final box felt cold — in it was a 15 pound frozen turkey from the police commissioner.

Besides that there was a wide assortment of ties, socks, candy, two books, and a pair of ice skates from various patrolmen who had had their shoes shined on numerous occasions by Bobby.

"We'll have to pack all of these things and take you to the hospital. Run along now; Winston and Murrow will drive you there. We'll straighten up this mess of paper and leave later."

Bobby hopped in the police car, still wearing his threadbare coat and, in a roar of power the black cruiser sped off toward the university hospital, two miles away.

A few blocks from the house Bobby heard again the deep boom of the huge clock on College Hill as it toned out 11:30. He began to whimper as he thought of the Christmas presents all the policemen had given him and that Mother had to spend another Christmas in bed — this one away from home.

By the time the cruiser reached the hospital the storm showed signs of decreasing its former fury. The snow flakes were coming straight down now instead of falling at an angle. It was already seven inches deep on the level. Snow plows had been out hours ago tracing and retracing former paths to keep Christmas Eve traffic moving.

Inside the huge hospital the policemen led Bobby to the nurse's desk and asked for Mrs. Maxwell's room.

"A . . . quizzed Bobby, 'Golly, I can't even afford a ward bed.'"

"Quiet, lad, there's some sick people around here," Winston scoffed.

"Never did see any place like a hospital. They always have a bunch of sick people hanging around."

With that, the trio was hustled into an elevator and shot up to the fourth floor. Down a long corridor they walked, talking only in whispers. At last they came to Mrs. Maxwell's room.

Half afraid, Bobby softly opened the door. Then he got his second shock.

There in the corner of the large double room was his mother — and half sitting up in bed. A smile of victory, hope and pride of her son was over her face. Sitting in a chair, dressed in an expensive suit, sat Mr. Mystery, his face wreathed in a smile that would have put St. Nick to shame. A third man, youngish, good looking and dressed in the white hospital clothes of a surgeon, stood by his mother's bed.

Bobby was more surprised to see his mother in a half sitting position and looking so cheerful the first time in two years. She even looked younger and prettier, Bobby thought, then before she bumped into that door knob. The boy was speechless and had to be pushed the rest of the way into the room by Winston and Murrow.

"Merry Christmas, honey," His mother's warm voice came clear and sharp across the hospital room. "Come here darling, Mother's all right now. Let me just hold and squeeze the best little boy in the world."

Bobby needed no more prodding. He made the 15 feet in something less than nothing flat, by track timing standards.

Neither mother nor child spoke for several minutes. All Bobby knew was that something had happened for his mother's good and that was all he needed.

"And now Mr. Mystery wants to talk to you, Bobby," his mother said. Bobby turned to the elderly man and walked slowly toward him. Mr. Mystery reached out and grabbed the little fellow, and hauled him on his knees.

"Come here son," he said gently, "and let me tell you a Christmas story."

"It's been a long time since I held a little boy on my knee. That big one over there," he laughingly pointed to the doctor, "is a little too big to crawl on his daddy's lap." Bobby looked started, but said nothing. Mr. Mystery continued:

"Several days ago I was coming home after tinkering around in a friend's garage. All of a sudden something hit me from behind, something heavy and soft like a sugar bag or a mattress. When I came to my wallet was gone, my watch and everything on me that was of any value. I temporarily lost my memory and you took me in, sheltered and fed me with your meager earnings. Well, last night, after you were in bed, I got up to get a glass of water. The bulb in the kitchen had burned out but I knew enough to borrow one from another's socket. In the dark I accidentally stuck my finger in the socket. The resulting shock brought back my memory."

"This morning, after you left, I told your mother what had happened. She told me all about you and her accident. You called me Mr. Mystery, but my right name is Dr. Alfred Small, a retired physician. That big lug over there is my son, Dr. Emmett Small, as you know the leading orthopedic surgeon of the university. We immediately called him and told him the story. Your mother was brought here within three hours and it was I who wrote that note. But, maybe he better tell you the rest. He operated on Mother, you know."

"Operated?" cried Bobby, "but—"

Huge, strong-fingered Dr. Small smiled and said:

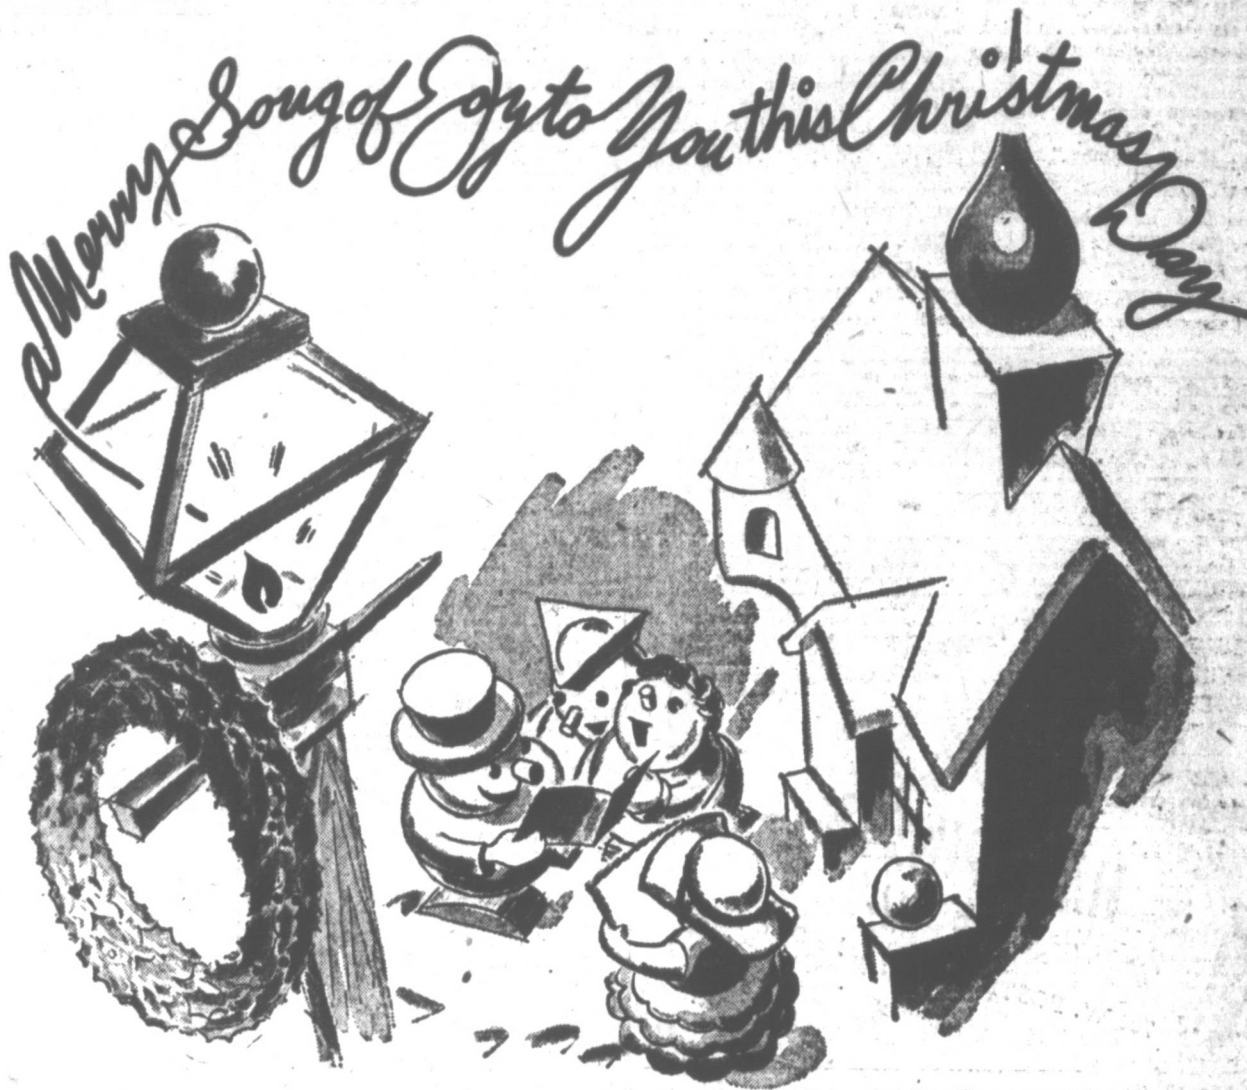

"Bobby, when your mother bumped into that door knob the shock temporarily dislocated one of the vertebrae in her back. This caused a pressure on her spinal cord — that cord, you know, that carries all of the nerves — and the pressure caused a slight pinch that resulted in the delayed action of paralyzing her legs. The dislocation worked itself back into place but the pinch wasn't relieved. This morning we X-rayed her back and found the source of the trouble. The operation was delicate, but not too severe so that the after effects didn't last long. Your mother will soon leave the hospital, Bobby, and see CHRISTMAS STORY, Page 31

Christmas Memory Christmas Song

By ROBIN TIBBETS

Remember the Christmas of childhood days.
When all was gay and bright.
When tinkle bells rang on horse-drawn sleighs.
And carols rang out in the night?

Remember the mother used to work.
A-gettin' the cooking done.
And none of the children would dare to shirk.
For fear St. Nick wouldn't come?

Remember the nights by the fireside.
When we used to sit and dream.
And wish as how that we could ride.
With Santa and his reindeer team?

Those days when we popped the popcorn
To string all o'er the tree.
And the bright colored balls, some new, some worn.
We'd hang with highest glee?

And when the coal oil lamps were blown.
And the fire had burned down low.
We'd listen to the cold wind moan.
And watch the falling snow.

Then the day was no more in my head.
It came like a quiet mouse.
I went to sleep dreaming of my sled.
And you of playing house.

Then morning came, the night was gone.
And we leaped right out of bed.
There was your doll, as you'd dreamed all along.
And there was my bright red sled.

The years have passed and we are old.
But still I remember when.
We played all day out in the cold.
Till Mother called us in.

Ah, sweet past! Sweet days gone by!
I can recall thee yet.
And I can rejoice, though here I lie.
With my old eyes soft and wet.

And though I'm old, and though I'm gray.
And you are long since gone.
I shall remember to my very last day.
Those Christmas joys at home.

she'll be walking out, just as good as dead.

"But, how can I ever, ever, begin to pay for all of this — and even mother, if she should get her job back," Bobby worried.

Young Dr. Small walked over and pulled up the window shade. Outside the storm had abated; a bright blue moon shone on a silvery, fluffy layer of snow. The huge clock on College Hill started to boom out a melodious background to the doctor's voice:

"Son," he said slowly, "when you (BOOM) took my father in and sheltered him (BOOM) your pride kept you from trying to get rid (BOOM) of him by asking for help. Your Christian like act (BOOM) saved his life and is just another notch (BOOM) in your crown. I wanted to do something for you (BOOM) and I knew how much your mother's health meant to you. So we decided (BOOM) to see if anything could be done (BOOM) to relieve her. As you know we found the trouble (BOOM) and licked it shortly before noon today. You and your mother (BOOM) can really celebrate Christmas tomorrow (BOOM). I want you to consider the operation and the hospital bill as my Christmas gift to you and Mother."

BOOM!
The last stroke of midnight seemed to blend with Dr. Small's last sentence, then trailed away across the frozen hills to the south.

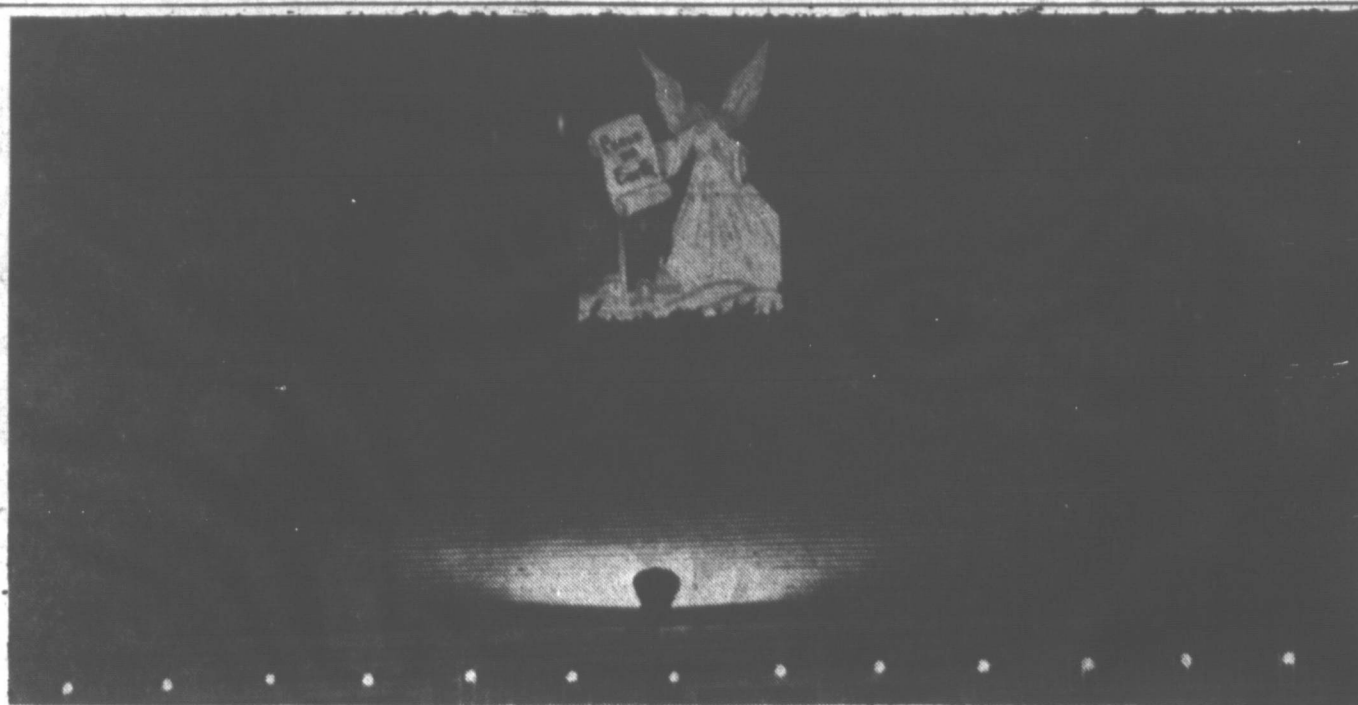

Bobby looked at the doctor, rushed to his mother and locked his arms around her neck.

It was Christmas morning . . .

(THE END)

In Denmark, if one visits and does not partake of food, it is believed he takes Christmas away with him.

Calabrian shepherds in Italy come down from the mountains and play before carpenter shops in special deference to Joseph.

Trees in Tubs Can Enhance Christmas

Living spruces, firs or hemlocks, properly planted in tubs, half-barrels or similar containers have grown popular in recent years as an annual Christmas tree. When weather conditions permit, these may be set in the open. Year after year, with careful handling, the same tree can be used successfully, building up on itself many happy traditions.

Many Evergreens Used in Christm

Many species of evergreen trees can be used as Christmas trees. If a group, a dozen or less, spaced about four feet apart, were grown for this purpose, the owner could grow and cut his own Christmas tree year after year, replacing those taken out annually, of course. A four-year-old tree probably would be adequately large in most cases.
