Remnants of Hurricane Paul hit El Paso, but help our farmers

Compiled from Local Sources and The Associated Press
Light rain was scattered across the Panhandle today, remnants of Hurricane Paul which dumped more than two inches of rain in El Paso Thursday, causing flooding in much of the city.

Recent rainfall, following an extra-dry late summer, has been welcomed by eastern Panhandle grain-growers. Gray County Agricultural Extension Agent Joe Van Zandt told the News today.

"Around Gray County," Van Zandt said, "we're sitting in generally favorable moisture conditions. Farmers have been able to stop irrigating and use residual moisture."

Area farmers could use some more moisture to help the late wheat just planted and the sorghum crops near harvest, he added, but "wheat that hasn't cooe up yet could be damaged by a hard, packing rain."

Hard rain was what fell in El Paso Thursday, flooding intersections and stalling hundreds of cars.

The National Weather Service said 2.14 inches fell in the city before skies cleared during the afternoon.

Some underpasses were swamped with water four feet deep, and residents of six apartments in the Continental House complex about three miles west of downtown El Paso were evacuated because of high water.

City and county officials released their employees early Thursday afternoon to avoid traffic backups. Some exits off Interstate 10 were closed during the downpour, and drivers were told to avoid the interstate.

"There's always a problem in El Paso when it rains more than the drains can handle. It can't run off fast enough to clear them," said Lt. Robert Martin of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The worst flooding was on the west side of El Paso and in the Sunland Park area of New Mexico, where several streets were reported under water for a time, Martin said.

As Hurricane Rosa brews in the Baja California area on the heels of Paul, more heavy weather could be in store for the Southwest.

Timing of the first frost could be more important than rainfall activity to area farmers, Van Zandt pointed out.

"We're really hoping we don't have an early frost slip-in here on us," he said. "Some of the sorghum was late-planted, and we really need a late frost" for it to have time to ripen.

As far as rainfall effects are concerned, Van Zandt added, "it depends entirely on how much."

Accused 'buried alive' kidnapper is hospitalized

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Ronald Floyd White remained in his hospital bed today while a justice of the peace advised him he was charged with kidnaping three men, including one buried alive for four days, authorities said.

Justice of the Peace Alex Perez set bonds of $200,000 on the charge involving the man buried alive and $100,000 each on charges stemming from the abduction of one man in Montgomery County and another in Lone Oak County.

Doctors and law enforcement officials were considering transporting White later today to the prison ward at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, said Department of Public Safety spokesman Sherwood Hamilton.

He said a DPS plane was en route to Brownsville this morning for the possible relocation.

Dr. Gaston Magrinat, a cardiologist, said White, who is suffering from high blood pressure, is "still improving, but I think he needs another day in the hospital."

"He hasn't improved as fast as I thought he would," said Magrinat.

White was moved Thursday afternoon from his guarded second-floor room to the intensive care unit at the hospital, authorities said.

"There's less of a chance of him escaping there," DPS spokesman Larry Todd said Thursday. "But let me tell you, no one's going to let him get away after all the chasing we had to do."

Schools ask parents to kill those head lice deader'n a nit

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

School nurses are really nitpicking these days — literally.

A number of cases of head lice have been confirmed in children at several Pampa schools, but school nurses say they expect a few of the critters every year.

"It is not an epidemic," school nurse Marge Penn said.

And she said school officials are taking the necessary precautions to make sure the outbreak of head lice in Pampa schools does not multiply as quickly as you can say, "pediculus humanus capitis," the scientific name for what is commonly called the head louse.

Due to the number of cases reported, the school nurses have teamed up to check the heads of every child in Pampa's elementary schools where lice have been reported.

According to Penn, within about the last two weeks, children from seven families have been confirmed having lice at Baker Elementary; children from eight families have been confirmed with lice at Woodrow Wilson; and an inspection of all kids at Horace Mann Thursday revealed children from 10 families with lice.

A confirmed case of lice among brothers and sisters from one family has also been reported at the Pampa Middle School.

An inspection of all children's heads by nurses will be conducted today at Lamar Elementary.

The head louse is a tiny parasite that sucks blood from its host, and is almost always confined to the head area.

The adult louse has a slender, tapering body and three pairs of legs with delicate hooks. The body color is grayish, except after feeding when it acquires a reddish color.

Its favorite hiding places are those areas behind the ears and on the back of the neck, although it can be found almost anywhere on the hair or hairy surface of the scalp. It is usually not found in eyebrows or eyelashes.

To suck blood, the parasite stabs an opening through the scalp and pours in its own saliva to prevent clotting.

The life span of an adult louse is about 30 days. During her lifetime, a female will lay about three or four eggs every day, for a total of about 100.

The adult female attaches her nits to individual hairs about a quarter inch from the scalp with a sticky substance that cements them in place.

This rapid rate of reproduction and the ease with which the parasites can spread from person to person make it necessary to quickly identify infested school children and halt spreading the infestation to classmates, health officials say.

People get head lice only from other infested people or from clothing, bedding or furniture which has been in contact with an infested person.

The major symptoms of head lice are itching and sometimes tiny, red bite marks.

They can be detected on the scalp and hair only by close examination.

To detect the parasite, a flashlight and possibly a magnifying glass should be used to examine both hair shafts and the scalp.

The eggs, or nits, are attached to hair shafts, while the crawling adults will be found on the scalp.

When school nurses confirm a case of head lice, the child is sent home, and a form outlining necessary treatment is sent to parents.

The child cannot be readmitted to school until the lice have been effectively treated and eliminated, Penn said.

According to Penn, the first step in treating lice is using a shampoo medicated to kill the lice and eggs. Many of the shampoo treatments are available over-the-counter at most drug stores.

Pampa school nurses recommend a prescription product called Kwell Shampoo.

Everyone in the entire family with lice must have the treatment.

After using the treatment according to directions, all eggs should then be removed from the hair.

The school nurse said all eggs, even after they have been killed with medication, must be removed from a child's hair before he can be readmitted to school.

"You can't shake them out. They won't fall out. They say you can use a fine-toothed comb, but it really doesn't work."

"The best way to get them out is with your fingers. You have to pull them off of each hair shaft," Penn said of the attached eggs.

"You've heard of nitpicking — well, that's where that came from," she said.

The next step is to wash all clothing, towels and bedding in the household in very hot water, or by dry cleaning.

Then, all combs and brushes should be soaked in the medication used on the hair for 10 minutes.

Finally, health officials recommend thoroughly vacuuming carpeting, beds and furniture.

Retreatment with the medicated shampoo is recommended eight to 10 days after the first treatment to ensure elimination of the infestation.

Penn said school nurses see cases of head lice in Pampa schools every year.

Two armed robberies here may be related

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Gray and Carson County sheriffs are investigating two armed robberies that took place Thursday on Interstate 40.

Officials do not know if the robberies are related.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said today he had little information on the apparent Gray County robbery, and is investigating the reports today.

According to information broadcast from crime information teletype, a man was robbed at gunpoint on Interstate Highway 40 Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m.

The victim, apparently a hitchhiker, according to Jordan, said the robber was a Mexican-American man, dressed in blue jeans, and driving a dark-colored, weatherbeaten Studebaker.

The man was wearing a light-colored backpack, according to the report.

Although the robbery took place early in the afternoon, the report did not reach local officials until late last night, after it was obtained by city police over their computer, Jordan said.

He said he was not notified of the robbery until about 9:45, when he heard the broadcast report over shortwave radio while he was in the south end of the county.

In the Carson County robbery, a tourist couple who were stopped at the rest area just east of the Potter County line at about 9:30 p.m. were held up by a man with a shotgun, according to Sheriff Connie Reid.

Robert E. Barrett and his wife, of Cupertino, Calif., both in their 60s, stopped at the area to stretch and walk their dog, Reid said.

When both were out of the car, he said, a man wearing a ski mask "jumped out from behind the building" housing the rest rooms and pointed a shotgun at Barrett, demanding his wallet.

Barrett handed him the wallet and the man ran back to his car, Reid said.

The robber got away with the man's driver's license and "possibly credit cards," Reid said. "He had his money in his other pocket," he said.

Barrett gave the description of a man about 5 feet 11 inches tall, with slender build, wearing a ski mask that may have been homemade and dark clothing.

He told police the shotgun may have been a .20 gauge, and the man was driving a dark, older model car, possibly with faded paint.

Barrett did not report that the man had an accent, except to say "he was talking real loud," Reid said.

The robber drove east in his car, and the Barrett couple grabbed their dog, got in their car and tried to follow, Reid said.

"They were pretty much put out by a guy pulling that kind of thing," he said, "and for good reason."

The Barretts were unable to get a license plate number from the car, however.

When they reached Amarillo, they notified officers there, and Carson County and Potter County deputies drove to the scene.

"We never saw anything that would fit the description of what they gave us," said the sheriff.

Historic burned building will become modern office complex

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

The plans for renovation of the downtown building ravaged by fire Sept. 22 are moving almost as quickly as the flames. Just over a week after the blaze ripped through several offices in one of Pampa's oldest buildings, the structure has been purchased by two tenants, Otis Nace and Ruth Osborne, who are planning an office plaza there.

Business offices lost in that fire included the Salvation Army Thrift Store, the Otis Nace insurance office, and the office of Glen Courtney insurance and George Clark tax service.

S.O. Business Services, the Oil and Gas Reporting Service, and a vacant office came out of the fire with only smoke damage. The two businesses moved back into the building Wednesday.

"We've got those (three) cleaned up," Nace said, "and everybody's back in them."

Nace said the former owners, Panhandle Towers Company, came to the two buyers with the offer, because "to build it back would be so expensive, it just wouldn't be worth it."

Nace and Osborne hope to build it back to a smaller size, with "or seven offices," he said, and "the balance of it would be parking."

Parking, he said, "has always been our biggest problem here," and the new structure would allow for 25 car spaces on the east side, where the Salvation Army store and Courtney's office stood.

Razing operations for the remainder of the building will begin in about two weeks, he said.

Because "most all of the partitions are brick," Nace said, structural damage caused by the fire will not be a problem, and several of the north side offices can be saved.

Hrometz Salvage Co. of Amarillo, specialists in knocking down burned buildings, will perform the honors.

Plans for the new building are already set — office fronts along the north side, parking and landscaping to the east, an east side entrance for a corridor behind the offices.

"This all came up in kind of a big hurry," Nace admitted. Nace and Osborne are already researching storefronts to find a stucco facelift for the north side of the new plaza — "we're just looking at some different things, he said."

Once the building is razed, he said, "we can start building back on it."

Offices to the east of the existing spaces will be "a little larger," he said, and the new partnership will be able to build at least one office to the specifications of a renter.

The Oil and Gas Reporting Service has moved into two offices, Nace said, using the undamaged vacant space because they "wanted to expand before but none of the offices were empty."

Nace and Osborne decided to buy the building, he said, because "We kind of found out that good office space in an area you'd like to be in is hard to find."

Seven youngsters to skate for Pampa in competition

Seven young Pampans will compete Sunday in the first step toward a possible national win — on wheels.

They're the Skatetown Speed Club, and they're our roller skate racing representatives to the nation.

This weekend's race, at the Circle Roller Rink in Borger, will begin at 9 a.m. and "probably last most of the day," according to sponsor Il assey.

Along with the Pampa group, it will feature competitors from Borger, Dalhart, Amarillo, Canyon, and Liberal, Kan., amateur members of the Panhandle Speed League.

The meet Sunday will be sanctioned by the United States Amateur Conference of Roller Skating.

"That national group is attempting to 'get roller skating on a national level,'" Massey said, in part by trying to convince officials to make it an event for the Olympics.

That move is "still in negotiation," he said.

In the meantime, winners of the Borger meet and subsequent meets, one per month, may have a chance to compete in the national amateur finals in Dallas after the season finishes in June.

Races Sunday will be held in five categories: tiny tot, primary, juvenile, elementary and masters (over 25 years of age).

Competitors will range in age from six to 35.

Races are broken down into nine length categories and two relays.

Local roller rinks donate time and facilities to these events, and they're open to the public.

Pampa competitors are Dan Barker, Wesley Bennett, Mark King, Keith Massey, Monte Phillips, Tony Strong, and Zane Walters.

Their coaches are Mike King and Ronnie Strong.

Top O' Texas Rodeo elects officers

With one new addition, officers of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association were elected to serve another year by the rodeo board Thursday night.

Archie Maness was elected to serve as treasurer, replacing long-time rodeo supporter Adell Myers, who died August 8.

According to Pampa Chamber of Commerce spokesman Brad Mink, officers traditionally serve two years.

Elected to their second year of service for the 1983 Top O' Texas Rodeo were Bob Schiffman, president; Wayne

Stribling, first vice president; Bob Caddell, second vice president; and Floyd Sackett, secretary.

Following the recent addition of 11 new members, the rodeo board of directors now includes 33 Pampans.

The board members recently elected to three-year terms include Ben Eads, Neil Fulton, Jim Greene, Fred Kinkle, Archie Maness, Ronald Maul, Bill Skaggs, Wayne Stribling, Brian Vining, J.R. Baggett and Ed Vincent. James Ray was also elected to fill a one-year vacancy on the board.

'Marvin' joins the comics daily in The Pampa News

The comic strip "Marvin" will replace "Pricilla's Pop" in The Pampa News, beginning Monday.

The artist and creator of "Marvin" is Tom Armstrong.

"I started cartooning probably before I could talk," Armstrong says.

His first comic strip is reported to be a cartoon about camels, which Armstrong drew when he was five-years-old.

Armstrong studied art in high school and then entered the University of Evansville, where he was staff cartoonist for the campus paper, The Crescent.

At the college the artist drew a weekly strip about campus life called "Two-S."

Armstrong received numerous awards at the school and received a bachelor's degree in fine arts.

Once graduated, the father of "Marvin" began free-lance illustrating for such publications as Conservative Digest, the National Star, Modern People, the Saturday Evening Post and the National Review.

Tom both writes and draws "Marvin," which centers around a precocious six-month-old baby boy and his beleaguered parents.

Information about the strip from the Field Newspaper Syndicate says: "Love and laughter are a part of every lesson as Marvin teaches the Millers the joys of parenting."

SMU says no rally

DALLAS (AP) — The president of Southern Methodist University said "no" Thursday to a national Republican staffer who inquired about renting a campus auditorium Oct. 11 for a political rally featuring President Reagan.

"No matter who is coming, we do not feel it is appropriate to the best interests of SMU to serve as a staging area for political rallies, whatever the partisanship," SMU president Donald Shields said.

"We don't in any way wish to embarrass the president of the United States," he said. "We would be delighted any time to have the president of the United States."

Addition to the library in McLean is open Sunday

McLEAN (Spl.) — The new 1600-square-foot addition to the Lovett Memorial Library in McLean will be the feature attraction at Sunday's open house from 2-4:30 p.m.

In addition to the new room, the library sports new carpeting and paint throughout.

The new room contains the book stacks, a special children's reading area, the library's tapes, large print books, Spanish language books, sound filmstrips and the library's travelling art collection.

The previous reading room has been converted to a meeting room.

The new addition to the library was first proposed by the late Boyd Meador, library board member who worked for the addition for several years.

A bequest of $15,000 in the will of library supporter Alice Short Smith began the building fund, and in 1981 the M.K. Brown Foundation added $45,000 to complete funding. Construction was begun in March of this year.

McLean's public library was begun in the summer of 1940 as the result of efforts by Catherine Patterson Phillips, now of Tacoma, Wash.

For 17 years the library was a room in the city hall, until August, 1957, when the Lovett Memorial Library was dedicated.

The library's art display and three flags donated to the library and the city will be on view during the Sunday open house.

Congress parties while the nation runs out of ready cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opting instead for an evening of political partying, Congress abandoned its race against the clock Thursday to keep the government from going broke upon the midnight start of the new fiscal year.

But negotiators for the House and Senate reached agreement on a compromise spending measure they said would win swift approval on Friday, and a Reagan administration spokesman said there probably would be no interruption of regular government operations.

Although agreement on the compromise bill came several hours before the midnight deadline, congressional leaders decided against a late-night session to pass the measure on an evening when major social events were scheduled for both Democrats and Republicans.

The Democratic Party had a $1,000-per-person fundraising dinner that many members of Congress were expected to attend. And President Reagan invited the entire Congress to a barbecue at the White House in what amounted to a counter-event dominated by Republicans.

The stopgap spending plan will keep the entire government in business until Dec. 17, thereby assuring a post-election session of Congress in which lawmakers will debate the regular money bills that have not yet been approved. Only one of 13 regular bills has cleared Congress, and it is still awaiting Reagan's signature.

For domestic programs, the catch-all measure generally is within the budget that Congress set for itself several months ago, meaning many programs will be frozen at roughly the 1982 levels.

On defense spending, it calls for roughly $6 billion below the amount contained in the budget Congress approved last summer, and about $17 billion below Reagan's original request of last winter.

The interim measure temporarily prohibits purchase of the first five MX missiles, which the administration wants to buy, and blocks any spending on the second of two new nuclear aircraft carriers Reagan wants to build. Construction of the B1 bomber may proceed, however.

The interim measure also calls for substantially less in foreign aid than either Reagan or the Republican-controlled Senate voted for, about $9.7 billion. The Senate recommended $11.1 billion, while Reagan asked for $11.6 billion.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., did not mention either social function when he told reporters that negotiators for the two houses estimated that no compromise bill would be ready for floor action until shortly after the midnight deadline.

"We'll pass that tomorrow so I don't think there will be any effect" on government operations, he said.

Edwin L. Dale, a spokesman at the Office of Management and Budget, said no disruptions in operations were likely, as long as the compromise that is reached is acceptable to Reagan.

Dale said all government agencies were notified earlier in the day to prepare to begin "shutdown" operations on Friday.

But he said that if the compromise measure appears to merit Reagan's approval, agencies will be told Friday to continue business as usual. In any event, he said, all federal workers are expected to be on the job on Friday.

Tylenol capsules laced with cyanide kill 5

PAM

At press time this morning, the federal Food and Drug Administration warned all Americans not to use Extra-Strength Tylenol.

containing 50 capsules each. They were distributed in August in all states east of the Mississippi River and in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and part of Wyoming. Kniffen said no product from lot MC2880 should be bought or consumed until further notice. The lot number is printed on the upper left-hand corner of the label glued to the bottle. The deaths began Wednesday when Adam Janus, 27, of Arlington Heights, stopped off at a Jewel store after picking up his 4-year-old daughter at a preschool class. Janus bought cut flowers for his wife, steak for dinner and a bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol. Janus was suffering from a cold and took some of the medicine. A short time later, his wife, Teresa, 28, found him comatose. He was taken to a hospital and confirmed dead a short time later.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Investigators following the trail of a cyanide-tainted pain reliever linked to five deaths have discovered the Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules were "pried open and placed back together" before being sold. The Cook County medical examiner's office said it was treating the deaths as possible homicides and was trying to determine at what point the poison could have been put into the capsules. Across the country, thousands of drugstores and drug distributors moved swiftly to take off the market a suspect batch of Extra-Strength Tylenol — lot number MC2880 — that was distributed in 34 states. The batch was not distributed in Texas, investigators said today. Even though there were no confirmed poisonings outside the Chicago suburbs, the nation's poison-control centers reported being swamped by calls that still trickled in early today from worried consumers who had taken the nation's best-selling, over-the-counter pain reliever. Two victims were brothers who swallowed capsules Wednesday from a bottle bought hours earlier at a Jewel Food Stores supermarket in Arlington Heights, west of Chicago, police said. The wife of one of the brothers also took the pain reliever and was in critical condition early today with brain damage. A 12-year-old girl from the neighboring community of Elk Grove Village who had a cold died after taking capsules that may have come from a different Jewel store. Cyanide was found in all three bodies, as well as the body of a woman from nearby Downers Grove, in DuPage County, who collapsed at work and died Thursday after taking two capsules. Lab tests on another DuPage County woman who died Thursday morning only a few days after giving birth to her third child were not complete, but a coroner said she had taken Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules from a bottle containing cyanide-filled pills. Two more victims were in fair and stable condition early today at Good Samaritan Hospital in Downers Grove after swallowing Tylenol capsules. So far, authorities have traced the Tylenol bought from Jewel to a warehouse in Franklin Park, another Chicago suburb. Robert Kniffen, a spokesman for the manufacturer, said the batch went directly from a McNeil Consumer Products Co. plant in Fort Washington, Pa., to the warehouse sometime between Aug. 19 and Aug. 25. Lawrence G. Foster, a spokesman for Johnson & Johnson, which owns McNeil, said he was told by Cook County investigators that the cyanide-loaded capsules "had been pried open and placed back together." Sgt. Michael R. Ossler of the Arlington Heights police department said investigators were searching records for clues to a likely suspect "such as someone who had poisoned medicine before." Dr. Edmund R. Donoghue, deputy assistant medical examiner, said the more widely distributed the cyanide is, the more likely the point of contamination "was closer to the point of manufacture." "We believe it (the contamination) occurred after it left the manufacturer," said Foster. "We believe it happened somewhere in the distribution or at the point of sale." Cyanide is not used in the manufacturing process for Tylenol, officials said. McNeil, which is wholly owned by Johnson & Johnson, recalled nearly 4.7 million capsules in a lot of 93,400 bottles

Bomb explodes while being defused in Gulf Oil petrochemical plant

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — A bomb exploded Thursday as it was being defused at a Gulf Oil Co. petrochemical plant, but four other explosive devices were safely deactivated, authorities said. No injuries were reported as authorities neutralized the five bombs at the company's Cedar Bayou facility, said Sgt. W.D. Marsh of the Texas Department of Public Safety. Marsh said the devices were deactivated using a water cannon. No details of the operation or the composition of the bombs were released. Authorities were continuing to search for other bombs, Marsh said. Gulf completed its shutdown at the facility Thursday after receiving a bomb threat. About 650 Gulf employees and 450 contract construction workers usually work at the plant, which manufactures petrochemical components used in plastics, cleaning materials and solvents, all highly volatile. Company officials and authorities refused comment on reports of a warning that 10 bombs would be detonated if a demand for at least $15 million was not met within 120 hours. The deadline would be about noon Sunday. An unofficial source said the bomb threat was in a seven-page letter that specified the location of one of the 10 bombs and said four others could be found easily. The Baytown Sun reported. The source said those five bombs were found. The source said a federal bomb squad found the bombs to be "very sophisticated and modern," possibly operated by remote control and sensitive to touch, shock and electricity. Each device would have cost $18,000 to $20,000 to build, the source said. The Baytown Sun source said the letter demanded $17 million. The Houston Chronicle reported that a plant employee who requested anonymity said a supervisor told him the demand was for $15 million. Gulf said "several suspicious devices" were found after the bomb threat was received Tuesday afternoon, but the company refused to say whether those devices were bombs. The FBI, Houston police bomb squad and Army explosives experts from Fort Hood were called to investigate. Gulf began the step-by-step process of shutting down the plant Wednesday and finished the next day. "As of 6 a.m. this morning, our Cedar Bayou chemical plant has been essentially shut down," Gulf officials said Thursday. "The plant will remain shut down until we feel it is safe to resume normal operations." About 1,100 employees normally work at the plant eight miles north of Baytown and 30 miles east of Houston, but the only ones remaining at the plant were those "needed to do such jobs as required surveillance of plant systems, security and necessary maintenance work," Gulf said. Company spokesman Michael Kumpf said the chemical feedstock was drained from the tanks to eliminate any possible danger. Helicopter traffic near the plant was restricted by the Federal Aviation Administration and some service roads were blocked off. The plant is near Interstate 10 on more than 400 acres of a 1,000-acre tract. Gulf spokesman Kirk Vogeley said no homes or businesses are near the plant, and the company said it believed the community was in no danger. However, one resident, Kenneth Lauderdale, said he planned to move his family to the other side of town until he receive assurances the area was safe. "We're just too close to the plant," said Lauderdale, 42, who lives about one mile from the facility.

Congress OKs guns for Texas' River Riders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill authorizing Agriculture Department health agents who patrol the U.S.-Mexican border to carry firearms was approved by the House on a voice vote Thursday and sent to the president. The agents, called "tick inspectors," are animal health technicians who patrol the international border along the Rio Grande in Texas to guard against violations of animal quarantine laws and to help keep dangerous and costly livestock pests out of the country. In explaining the need for the legislation, House Agriculture chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, said agents should be able to carry firearms for self-protection on their "lonely and sometime dangerous rounds." He said that when agents are on patrol, they can meet with threats from lawbreakers who are not involved with livestock but who fear the presence of any U.S. government agent.

703,000 jobless file new unemployment claims

But Washington insists recovery is just around the corner
By The Associated Press
The Reagan administration announced gloomy current and future economic indicators and a new one-week record for state unemployment claims. But it insisted better economic times are around the corner. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige told reporters Thursday that "at this point we are in the interim period between a recession and a recovery. The signs of recovery will be more clear as the fourth quarter unfolds." The secretary made the remarks after a Commerce Department report that its gauge of future economic activity, called the Index of Leading Indicators, fell 0.9 percent in August after rising for four consecutive months. A companion index, designed to measure current economic conditions, continued to fall in August and hit its low point of the recession, the department said. The Labor Department, meanwhile, said initial claims for state jobless benefits soared to 703,000 in the week ended Sept. 18, the highest recorded since the department began its current form of tabulation in 1967. In other economic developments Thursday: —The National Association of Realtors said resales of existing houses fell 6.3 percent in August to an annual rate of 1.79 million. That was the lowest rate of the current recession, which began in July 1981. —Major banking legislation to shore up financially troubled savings and loan associations sailed through the Senate. The measure, which, among other things would allow S&Ls to operate more like commercial banks, goes to the House for final action today. —Chrysler Corp. said it would cut prices on many of its 1983 model cars by an average $70, but consumers will see an average decrease of only about $3 after accounting for increases in the prices of optional equipment. —The five major domestic carmakers reported 235,775 U.S.

autoworkers on indefinite layoff this week, up more than 3,000 from last week. The trade journal Automotive News said carmakers will build 11.3 percent fewer cars in the United States this week compared with last week. —The Commerce Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development reported that sales of new single-family houses rose a slight 2 percent in August but remained 1.4 percent below the level for the same month one year earlier. —F.W. Woolworth Co. said it is selling its majority interest in its struggling British arm, F.W. Woolworth PLC, which operates more than 1,000 stores in Britain, Ireland and the Caribbean Islands. Last week, the company said it is closing the 336 stores in its U.S. discount chain, Woolco. —Dome Petroleum Ltd., the big Canadian energy company that expanded rapidly and then found itself hemmed in by debts in the oil slump, accepted a $1 billion bailout plan that would give operating control of Dome to the Canadian government and four Canadian banks.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Academic freedom attack

We take notice of the battle being waged against the mighty federal bureaucracy by Grove City College, a small Presbyterian school in Pennsylvania. It is a fight with tremendous significance for all higher education.

The struggle is not going well. A federal appellate panel recently overruled a district court and told Grove City that it must obey the Title IX (sex-discrimination) guidelines first laid down by HEW and now enforced by the education Department. It must do so despite the fact it eschews any form of direct federal aid in an attempt to safeguard its independence.

No actual sex discrimination is at stake here. The college's enrollment is half women. Rather, it is Grove City's refusal, on principle, to file a form assuring Washington it is not violating Title IX. The school fears this innocuous request is only a beginning.

The leverage the bureaucrats have over Grove City is that a few hundred of its 2,200 students receive federal financial assistance to attend college. The school plays no part in this, but is found to benefit indirectly and therefore be subject to U.S. regulations.

This ruling, if upheld (Grove City officials said they would pursue the matter to the Supreme Court), makes it impossible to remain free of federal tentacles without denying admission to anyone getting government aid (a policy which itself would probably violate some law). It immediately stands to affect two schools (Hillsdale College in Michigan, home of columnist Charles Van Eaton, is the only other institution to have refused to sign the compliance document), but it would erect an insurmountable barrier to any campus's escaping political control.

Academicians at more famous schools who make high-sounding speeches about the importance of their independence have been predictably silent over Grove City's stand. Let them know, if they really care: The bell tower tolls for thee.

A leaner Detroit gives autos muscle

The U.S. auto industry is still mired in a virtual depression marked by anemic sales, burgeoning debt and massive layoffs of salaried and hourly workers. But, here and there, a ray of hope is beginning to shine through the gloom.

Consider, for example, the industry's progress in cutting costs and increasing productivity. General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors have slashed their overhead by $9 billion. They have negotiated contract concessions with the United Auto Workers worth $4 billion in saved labor costs.

As a result of these savings and generally leaner, more efficient operations, the automakers have reduced by 3 million units the numbers of vehicles they must sell in order to break even. This is an impressive achievement by any standards. Also, this week General Motors announced price cuts in some new cars and others that would hold their line. Ford and Chrysler were expected to follow GM's lead.

That these savings have been accomplished in the midst of the industry's most expensive retooling in history makes it all the more remarkable. By 1985, the American automobile industry will have spent $70 billion or more to redesign its entire line in accordance with a changing market.

Whether the industry then can stage its long-awaited comeback and recapture at least a portion of the 28 percent market share lost to foreign competition remains uncertain.

Despite these huge question marks, the industry has at least confounded the doomsayers on one score. American automakers are demonstrating that they can, in fact, restructure their industry and boost productivity.

Nader takes one on the chin

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
NEW YORK (NEA) — One of life's little mysteries to me has been the continued popularity in certain quarters of Ralph Nader. After bursting onto the national scene in the mid-1960s as a result of General Motors' foolish decision to play Goliath briefly to his David, Nader has parlayed the reputation he thereby acquired as a giant-killer into a career as a national nuisance.

In pure theory there is nothing wrong with a gadfly — not even one who concentrates as relentlessly as Nader does on cultivation of a politically exploitable hatred of one particular segment of the community: business. But in ancient Rome such gadflies (called "tribunes of the people") had to be elected; and even today individuals chosen for such watchdog status — now usually called "ombudsmen" — are ordinarily selected for their special qualities of fairness, experience and judgement.

But nobody ever elected Ralph Nader to anything, and as for fairness, experience and judgement, he wouldn't know any one of the three if it walked in and nested in his nose.

He trained as a lawyer but left his chosen profession clearly to assume his mantle as self-appointed spokesman for the American people. In that capacity, his central message has at least the virtue of simplicity: The only good corporation is a dead corporation. Every tin-horned front he has ever created — every phony "center," every pre-judged "project," every biased "research group" — and every book he has written is one long, tedious, tendentious assault on the alleged evil of American business. Few men have ever divided this country more bitterly, more diligently or with less cause.

That is why I rejoice to report that, in one important respect, this gold-plated faker has just had his ears pinned back by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. I hope the details may please you as much as they pleased me.

As you might expect, the compost in which Nader thrives best is America's colleges. There, even at this late date, the winding of his horn can bring out large crowds of clods who wouldn't bother to listen to Lincoln read the Gettysburg Address. Nader has long recognized and duly tapped the financial potential of this undergraduate thirst for his particular brand of snake oil; but some years ago, in the interests of efficiency, he began creating Public Interest Research Groups ("PIRGs" for short) all around the country.

Suitably stupefied student governments and college administrations in 25 states have been encouraged to collect fees — in many cases mandatory — from every student to be passed along to the appropriate PIRG and used for whatever caused Nader and his cronies chose to support. Nader, in short, had found a way to muscle cash out of potentially every college student in America without going to the trouble of collecting it individually, let alone persuading anyone to contribute it.

Up rose Joseph Galda, a student at the Camden, N.J., campus of Rutgers State University, where "fees" payable to New Jersey PIRG are mandatory. Galda, whose opinion of Nader is almost as low as mine, enlisted the support of Philadelphia's Mid-Atlantic Foundation, a public-interest legal group of conservative bent, and hauled NJPIRG into federal court on the ground that its money-raising technique was unconstitutional.

Fat is not funny

By PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Considerate Americans no longer look down on people because of the color of their skin or the length of their noses or the shape of their noses.

But Americans still do look down on anybody with a fat body.

Tufts University President Jean Mayer says the final victims of native bigotry will be fat people.

We can find compassion in our hearts for anybody with any other physical disability, but we construe anybody with a figure flaw to have a character flaw.

With negative consideration for our nation's one-in-five minority of fat people we discriminate against them in society, in academia and in business.

Oh yes we do!

No mainline college or university will admit it, but an obese boy has just half the chance of acceptance; and obese girl less than a one-third chance.

Television in drama and advertising equates skinny with desirable. By implication, anybody else is undesirable.

In business and industry, the lean and tall get the promotions. A national sampling of business managers affirms that employees may expect an extra thousand dollars per year per inch — as long as the inch is up and down and not sideways.

Fat is not funny. The causes for it are infinitely complex and results of obesity treatment are remarkably poor.

Naive attitudes by many, even within the medical profession, chastized individuals as being gluttonous and mandated starvation diets which may compound the problem.

Various factors play on the hypothalamus to control feeding behavior. Frequently, the fewer the meals the greater the tendency toward obesity.

More dollars are spent on worthless cures for obesity than for all medical research combined — and still American grows fatter.

Part of the problem is genetic. If both your parents are obese you are 11 times more likely to be. One parent, five times more.

Twins raised apart follow the weight of their genetic parents, not their foster parents.

So where fat is inherited, anti-fat prejudice can be nothing less than overt bigotry.

The popular term "exogenous obesity" implies that obesity is a simple consequence of overeating and is therefore unforgivable; that the fatty should tie a knot in his neck.

Obesity is a medical disorder which compounds several diseases which may enhance morbidity and mortality. It is not funny.

Yet, it is the only physical handicap which we laugh at!

Fed loans Mexico $700 million, is left holding devalued pesos

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Federal Reserve Bank of New York swapped $700 million for an equivalent amount in Mexican pesos just before the devaluation, and some officials now say they do not know when the money will be repaid, the El Paso Times reported Thursday.

Three similar exchanges in April, June and July were repaid within one day, said Sam Cross, an executive vice president with the U.S. Federal Reserve in New York. All four swaps were requested by Mexico.

Since the Aug. 5 devaluation, the peso has dropped almost 100 percent in value against the dollar to between 95 and 105 pesos to a dollar in El Paso. Thus, the $700 million worth of pesos the Federal Reserve received is worth about half that much now.

Cross said he did not know on what day the early-August, dollar-for-peso credit was given to Mexico. But "we do expect to receive the dollars back," he said.

An international finance official with the Federal Reserve, who did not want to be identified, confirmed that the bank exchanged the $700 million for pesos sometime between July 31 and Aug. 5, but he would not say when.

He said he did not know when the Fed would get the money back, considering Mexico's shortage of dollar reserves.

Art Samanski, a public information specialist with the Fed in New York, also declined to say which day the dollar-peso swap occurred.

"It is longstanding Fed policy not to comment on foreign exchange operations," he said.

Cross told the newspaper that Mexico has 90 days to repay the $700 million amount — plus interest — in dollars. An extension on the swap can be granted.

Lawrence Fuller, a New York banking analyst, said it appears unlikely Mexico will meet the deadline because of the country's $80 billion foreign debt.

Cross said the $700 million swap in August was requested by Mexico before international bankers and American officials began a separate billion-dollar bail out for the dollar-short country.

At a Sept. 15 press conference in New York City, the Federal Reserve announced three similar swaps of dollars for pesos with the Mexican government: $200 million April 30; $600 million June 30; and $700 million July 31.

Each $700 million exchange represented the maximum credit that Mexico can draw upon under the so-called "swap line," Cross said.

The United States maintains a similar swap-line with 13 other countries to help them with short-term cash needs.

Aug. 5, the Mexican government let the peso "float" on international money markets, and since has struggled to make payments on its huge foreign debt. Sept. 6, foreign creditors — principally U.S. banks — gave Mexico an extension on principal payments until the end of 1983.

Marine dies in Beirut

Welcome, soldier

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Parts of a cluster bomb, undetected by troops who swept Beirut airport for explosives, were tripped by patrolling Marines and exploded Thursday, killing one soldier and wounding three others, U.S. military spokesmen said.

Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Lee Delorme told a news conference at west Beirut's Commodore Hotel there was "no indication" anyone had fired at the Marines.

One of the survivors was in serious condition today with groin injuries, and the other two were slightly wounded, one in the arm and shoulder and the other in the leg, the spokesman said. They were being treated aboard the amphibious ship Guam, where the fourth Marine died during surgery, they said.

The explosion rocked the southwestern end of the airport runway near the Mediterranean beach several hours after hundreds of Marines waded ashore from the field was reopened by President Amin Gemayel, who became the first Lebanese president to visit Moslem-dominated west Beirut since the 1975-76 civil war.

The Pentagon in Washington identified the dead Marine as Cpl. David L. Reagan, 21, of Chesapeake, Va., no relation to the president. A spokesman said the wounded were Pfc. Leslie R. Morris, 19, of Pasadena, Calif.; Cpl. Anthony D. Moran, 21, of Macon, Ga.; and Lance Cpl. George Washington, 19, of Elgin, Ill.

They were the first casualties among the Marines, who had been deployed in Beirut.

Radio Liberty takes on Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department counselor James C. Buckley was named president of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty on Thursday. He said those two government-run stations can help raise discontent in the Soviet bloc "that even a totalitarian state cannot ignore."

The appointment of Buckley, a former Republican senator from New York and brother of conservative columnist William F. Buckley, will signal the Soviet Union and Western Europe "that this so-called contest of ideas is going to be played henceforth by members of the A team," said Ben J. Wattenberg, who is vice chairman of the Board of International Broadcasting.

Buckley was chosen for the job by the board, which is the government agency that has overseen the stations since surreptitious CIA funding ended in the 1970s. They now get openly appropriated funds.

Buckley will become one of the country's best-paid public servants — with compensation exceeding the salaries of the vice president, chief justice, speaker of the House or members of the Cabinet.

Board member Thomas Quinn said Buckley's contract would provide a salary of $95,000, an overseas allowance of about $10,000, an allowance for such expenses as entertaining of about $15,000, plus cost-free housing, a car and driver, maid service and a pension still to be negotiated — a package possibly worth $145,000 a year. Buckley will live in Munich, Germany, where the service is based.

His State Department post pays $58,500.

Heads of other quasi-governmental corporations get comparable pay. The president of the Synthetic Fuels Corp. receives $135,000.

At a news conference, Buckley vowed to use the stations to tell the peoples of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union the truth about what is going on within their own borders.

Asked what the broadcasting service could do if its goals are entirely achieved, he mentioned spreading discontent and doubt in the Soviet bloc.

The Reagan administration is seeking to enhance the roles played by broadcasting in the ideological battle with communism.

The Voice of America's mission is to explain America to people overseas.

Sheriff gives life for hostages

BROOKHAVEN, Miss. (AP) — A county sheriff who exchanged himself for a woman and three children being held hostage was shot to death by his captor, authorities said. The assailant was then killed by officers at the scene.

Franklin County Sheriff James Posey, 37, was slain Wednesday afternoon as he sat in a deputation to Derald V. Coghlan, 25, of Brookhaven, said Highway Patrol Chief Donald Butler.

Coghlan had taken the captives after an attempted robbery, officials said. He agreed to swap the sheriff for the hostages, who were not harmed, after being stopped at a roadblock outside Brookhaven, about 45 miles south of Jackson.

"While they were in the car, Coghlan had a gun and he fired at least one shot into Sheriff Posey's chest," said patrol spokesman Edd Jusely Posey slumped out of the car and officers opened fire, killing Coghlan.

The hostages were identified by the Highway Patrol as Eve Welch, 41, her son, Charles, 14, and daughter Maria, 17, all of McCall Creek, and an infant, Larry Hawley, whom the family was babysitting.

District Attorney Don Lampton said Coghlan had been awaiting trial for manslaughter in a 1981 shooting.

Wednesday's incident began when Coghlan apparently tried to rob a grocery store owned by his girlfriend's father, Melvin Jordan, saying he needed money to flee to Mexico, said Franklin County Constable Joe Spring.

Coghlan left the scene in his own car, returning in a stolen pickup truck about an hour later as Spring was interviewing the girlfriend — who was not immediately identified — and Jordan. Coghlan fired a shot from the truck, but no one was hit and he drove away, Spring said.

Coghlan drove to the home of the Welches, whom he apparently knew, forced them into their car and had Maria Welch drive back roads until they were stopped by more than a dozen officers at a Highway Patrol roadblock in Lincoln County about 15 miles away, Spring said.

DiMaggio stops Marilyn's roses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For 20 years, Joe DiMaggio remembered ex-wife Marilyn Monroe by sending red roses to her crypt three times a week. But DiMaggio's florist said Thursday the baseball great has stopped sending the flowers.

Florist Bob Alhanati said another man who claims he was married to Miss Monroe for only a week in 1952 has taken over the regular delivery.

DiMaggio canceled the order without explanation on Sept. 1, said Alhanati, co-owner of the Parisian Florist Shop, which has delivered the roses for two decades.

"Joe contacted a mutual friend of ours some weeks ago and just said that he would like to discontinue the service," Alhanati said, declining to name the mutual friend. "He didn't give any explanation."

DiMaggio, a New York Yankees baseball star, was the second of Miss Monroe's three husbands, but considered by many to be the great love of her life.

She died of a drug overdose on Aug. 5, 1962 and a short time later, the roses began to arrive at her Westwood Memorial Park crypt.

Fans were captivated by the romantic gesture and those who visited her crypt — as many as 25 a day — frequently went home with one of DiMaggio's flowers.

"But they usually replace them with other flowers," Mike Steen, director of the park. Alhanati said Robert Slatzer, who says he was married to Miss Monroe for a week in October 1952, has now signed a year-long contract to continue the deliveries.

Fired worker kills boss, hurts another

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — A 56-year-old energy company employee, killed after he fatally shot his boss and critically wounded another administrator, had been fired the same day for fighting and arguing with other workers, authorities said.

An autopsy has been ordered in the death of Lloyd Cowden, a process operator at Mitchell Energy Corp.'s natural gas liquids processing plant west of here. Cowden died of multiple injuries Wednesday after his pickup truck collided with a gasoline transport truck as he fled from the shooting scene, a sheriff's spokesman said.

His truck burst into flames and Cowden was pinned inside the wreckage about three miles east of Jacksboro at the intersection of U.S.

Highway 380 and Highway 199.

Cowden's daughter, Michelle Mann of Decatur, said her father "wasn't a lunatic or anything. He was just a depressed man."

The man left the plant offices Wednesday morning after he was told he had been dismissed, said sheriff's investigator Pat Howard. Cowden then returned at about 12:15 p.m. with a deer rifle and began shooting.

Jack Chamberlain, 48, regional manager of plant operations, was killed by two blasts from the rifle.

"It appeared from the wounds on Chamberlain that he tried to duck behind his desk and was hit in the shoulder," Howard said.

Charles Kelley, 52, received two gunshot wounds in the abdomen and one in the right arm, and underwent surgery at Harris Hospital in Fort Worth, 30 miles away.

Plant officials said Cowden had been fired for arguing with other employees Monday, and one associate said that there had been another, earlier incident in which blows had been exchanged.

"I understand that there was a situation existing from Monday where there was a disturbance between ... Cowden and employees at the plant," Howard said.

Doug Whitehead, assistant city administrator and constable, said Cowden had fought with employees.

"(Cowden) was evidently under a lot of pressure," said Howard. "His wife had passed away about July 30. Then he was laid off permanently. He was fired from the job, and it was because of the disturbance."

Cowden "walked into Chamberlain's office and said, 'I'll show you,'" before firing five shots, Howard said.

He then jumped into his pickup truck and headed west toward Jacksboro, driving at more than 80 mph, pursued by a Texas Department of Public Safety patrolman.

He lost control of the truck, veered across a center median and struck the transport truck, said Howard.

Cowden was pronounced dead at the scene with multiple injuries, but the driver of the transport truck was not injured and the fuel on board did not explode.

He said other people were in the plant's general offices when Cowden entered, and a secretary close by heard the former employee curse at his superiors.

Roadblocks were set up by authorities after the shooting at the plant, located about three miles west of this North Texas city. Cowden died about 45 minutes after the shooting, Howard said.

Cowden had been a plant employee since 1946, the plant's personnel manager told officers.

Kelley is manager of Liquid Energy Corp.'s Bridgeport Crude Co., both part of Mitchell Energy, said Robin Worthington, Harris Hospital spokesman.

California plans 160 mph train

By The Associated Press
Legislation giving the green light to the nation's first "bullet train," between Los Angeles and San Diego, has been signed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Meanwhile, in Houston, city officials have approved construction of a $1.8 billion, 18.2-mile rail system to ease traffic on two congested freeways.

California's 160-mph electric train, patterned after the "bullet trains" of Japan, would make the 120-mile trip between Los Angeles and San Diego on a specially built track in less than an hour. Backers hope to have it in service by 1988.

The bill, signed Wednesday, would set up a four-member state commission that could authorize up to $1.25 billion worth of revenue bonds, to be paid off by revenues from the operation.

The rest of the cost of the $2 billion project, still in the planning stages, would be made up by the sale of stock, loans and export credits in Japan for equipment, with about $500 million expected from Japanese investors. Amtrak financed the $750,000 cost of the original marketing study.

In Houston, Metropolitan Transit Authority directors Wednesday unanimously approved the rail project and construction could begin in a year, said General Manager Alan Kiepper.

Thirteen miles could be finished by 1987, and the entire system completed two years later, Kiepper said.

Amusement ride owners must insure

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — House committee members, rejecting a suggestion for state regulation of amusement rides, have recommended mandatory liability insurance for ride owners.

The action drew criticism from committee member Paul Elizondo, D-San Antonio, who said insurance does nothing to protect riders against injuries.

"Mandatory insurance only protects people who own the rides," Elizondo told the House Committee on State Affairs on Wednesday. "It doesn't protect people riding the rides."

Despite Elizondo's push for state regulation and inspection of rides, the committee voted 6-4 for the mandatory insurance plan, which requires $1 million in liability insurance for ride owners.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, said the insurance companies would have inspectors check the rides. Ceverha said the state has no right to regulate amusement park rides, although there have been several injuries and deaths in recent years at Texas carnivals and fairs.

He said the number of injuries and deaths has been "insignificant" and far less than the number in other nonregulated industries.

"A great many of the injuries are cuts and bruises—where the people are treated and released," said Ceverha, adding that children suffer similar injuries on bicycles every day, and "we don't regulate bicycles."

"A great majority of the injuries (on rides) are caused by the actions of the riders," said Ceverha.

Amusement park ride injuries rank 164th on a federal report about causes of injuries, according to Ceverha.

Elizondo complained that the committee seemed more interested in protecting animals. Earlier Wednesday, the committee recommended stiffer penalties for promoting dog fights.

"We voted to protect dogs. It seems ludicrous we would not vote to protect Texas children," said Elizondo, whose 1981 effort for state regulation of amusement rides was approved by the House, but killed by the Senate.

Life with autistic child

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1967, Clara Claiborne Park wrote a book, "The Siege," about the efforts to bring her autistic daughter, whom she called Elly, into the world around her.

At that time Elly, whose real name is Jessy, was 8 years old, attending a class for the educable retarded at a Massachusetts public school, and had a limited vocabulary. She seemed to lack drive and purpose and Mrs. Park recalls that at that time she was not optimistic about her daughter's future.

Now, 15 years later, Jessy has graduated from public high school, where she completed the minimum competency test. A slim, blonde, 23-year-old, she lives at home with her parents and works part time in the mailroom of a Massachusetts college. She helps with household chores, and she exhibits and sells her own paintings.

Her mother has updated Jessy's story in a new edition of "The Siege," considered a classic on the subject of autism. Contrary to her earlier fears, Mrs. Park said Jessy was not embarrassed by the original book and knows that Elly is the name used to describe her.

It was a difficult struggle, Mrs. Park said in an interview, remembering Jessy's childhood. At 22 months she did not walk, talk or respond to speech. At the age of 5, her vocabulary consisted of 51 words. She would not do anything voluntarily.

"You were always going back to square one," Mrs. Park explains. "And you had to realize that it was two steps forward and then you hoped it was only one step back. But you had to have the faith to try again. That's why I used the metaphor of the siege.

"It was overwhelming; you had to keep at it and at it and at it, and gradually you began to realize that you've got a friend in the citadel, a friend in the fortress. However little she seemed to notice — and this is true of everyone, of normal human beings, however defended and walled they are, they want you to come in. And it's your business to find the way."

Mrs. Park said autism may be defined as a severe disorder of communication and behavior and relatedness. "It's as if," she said, "the fact of a human being has no significance." She said an autistic child may look at you "as if you were a pane of glass." Speech development isn't normal, there's a lack of comprehension, and an eerie, orderly, repetitive behavior.

Research has not discovered the cause of autism, if there is a simple, single cause, or a cure, Mrs. Park said. The syndrome varies in severity from individual to individual. Autism is apparently rooted in the brain, she said, and no one any longer imagines that inside the autistic child there is a normal child waiting to get out.

Hospital tests when Jessy was 2 years old indicated she was at the bottom of the "normal curve" for infant development, but it wasn't until she was 3 that she was diagnosed as being autistic.

After consultation with specialists, Mrs. Park and her husband worked at home with Jessy and later the child attended nursery classes and kindergarten.

"We were lucky that Jessy could go to a public school and have her own special individual education plan," Mrs. Park said. "It's essentially in the last years of school that she learned to read functionally. She can read a recipe and follow it. She can read directions. She can read street signs. She can even read a story with me. We read out loud."

Mrs. Park says Jessy misses her older brothers and sisters, who have moved away from home, and all the young girls who have worked over the years as mother's helpers and "Jessy-friends." "Jessy is happy when they come back, she gives them big hugs and they do things together," Mrs. Park says. "She is very immature, with childish emotions, but Jessy is a friendly, loving person now. People love to work with her."

Mrs. Park says Jessy likes video games and railroad crossings, and she used to like construction, although no one knows why she likes those things. "Those are the strange, sort of weird, autistic, private emotions," she said.

Jessy has no concept of the future, Mrs. Park said. "She's never even asked the question, what will happen to me when you die? Where am I going to live?"

But Mrs. Park says Jessy continues to learn and grow, with the help of others. "She will always need the help of others."

Women should prepare for some years alone

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a woman marries a man, she imagines growing old with him when she vows "till death do us part." But current statistics indicate women are becoming widowed at an average age of 56, says Mona Shevlin, an assistant professor in the School of Education at the Catholic University of America.

To help women prepare for the probable return to singlehood, Ms. Shevlin, who sees many women in her counseling practice at the Counseling Center for Greater Washington, advises them to be realistic. "You'll probably be either widowed or divorced at least once in your lifetime," she tells them.

Little formal preparation for widowhood exists, says Ms. Shevlin, who teaches in the university's counseling and guidance master's and doctoral programs. She feels there should be more.

An area of great hardship for many widows who have had satisfactory marriages is the loss of an intimate companion and a partner for decision making. Financial decisions are an area of particular weakness, says Ms. Shevlin.

"Women are trained early on to espouse dependence and passivity," she points out. "They are taught to nurture and serve others. When they lose their mates, they often lose their identities because all their married lives they've been 'somebody's wife.' When their husbands die, they feel as though their lives are over, and they proceed to merely tolerate the rest of their lives."

An elderly widow must face the fact that if she does desire to date and possibly remarry, there is a much larger pool of single elderly women than men, she explains.

Ms. Shevlin counsels women that while it may be desirable, it is not necessary to have a mate. And thus women who have lost their husbands must learn to live alone for perhaps the first time in 30 to 50 years in a world that is totally different from the one in which they may have been single years before. The idea of preparing for widowhood is a much avoided topic, suggests Ms. Devlin, because people have difficulty accepting that there are usually beginnings, middles and ends in all relationships. "And the ends don't always come when they're expected or wanted."

In addition to enrolling in seminars and workshops when they're available, women should foster and encourage both male and female friendships, Ms. Shevlin advises. "Enjoy the person you're married to, but make sure to build other relationships as well," urges Ms. Shevlin, who adds that throughout her life a woman should expand her interests and continue to engage in them.

To cope with a common feeling of anger directed at the dead spouse, Ms. Shevlin tells women, "Give yourself permission to be angry. For anybody who has experienced a loss, it's a normal feeling. Talk about the anger with other people. Vent it."

Though there are not many seminars or workshops to prepare for widowhood, there are self-help, support groups for the already-widowed, which she suggests joining. The advantage of joining a group, she says, is that the people in it have all experienced the loss of a spouse, and there is a commonality and understanding that can't be found among the best intentioned of friends and relatives.

"Friends and relatives can listen and be helpful up to a certain point, but then they often get bored or impatient," she says.

To confront depression, Ms. Shevlin suggests viewing it simply as "learned helplessness and hopelessness," that can be unlearned. Socialize, be involved with people; be active. It's important to establish companionship, especially in cases where there is no family support system, she says.

If widowed women can do many things to help themselves, those people around them can also help to smooth the way, she adds.

Harvesters open district action tonight

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor

If the Pampa Harvesters are to stay in the race for a playoff spot in District 1-4A, there must be more offensive production.

It's a simple statement of fact, but the solution remains complex.

"Our offense has got the coaching staff worried," Pampa head coach John Kendall said as the Harvesters head into tonight's first district clash at Levelland. "We've had the opportunities to score, but the mental mistakes are keeping us from getting across the goal line."

Pampa has punched across only one TD in three games, that coming in the season opener against Hereford. Cliff Baker scored on a one-yard run in the third quarter of the Harvesters' 34-6 loss to Hereford. Since then the Harvesters have been blanked by Clovis, 23-0, and Perryton, 6-0, last week.

"Our defense has been super the last two games, especially against Perryton," Kendall said. "We've just got to get some points on the board. That's our goal this weekend."

Levelland is 2-1 under new coach Gene Mayfield after coming off a winless season The Lobos whipped Lamesa, 12-7, and Muleshoe, 16-14, in their first two games before losing to Big Spring, 10-0, last week.

"Levelland is a big team which has a lot of experience in the offensive and defensive line," Kendall said.

"They've got a lot of people back, plus they're a well-coached team."

Levelland had gone 10 seasons without a winning football team, and his won only a dozen games in the last five years. However, that could change under Mayfield, who has a reputation for building winning football programs.

"This is a very important game for us," Kendall said. "We're going to have to start scoring. We've been some thing well on offense, but turnovers and missed blocking assignments are keeping us from scoring."

Three more Harvesters are on the injured list and could miss tonight's 7:30 p.m. kickoff. Defensive tackle Bill Carter has been out of action all week because of a knee injury. Linebacker Wade Barker and lineman Ricky Baird are both slowed by ankle injuries.

"The kids have taken on the challenge of district," Kendall said. "They're not mentally down despite losing three games. They're going to keep punching away."

Advance tickets for the Pampa-Levelland game are on sale now at the Athletic Office in the Harvester football fieldhouse. Tickets are $4 for adults and $1 for students.

"I want to remind the fans to wear green tonight," Kendall said.

No progress reported in strike talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 11 hours of negotiations produced no progress Thursday in the 10-day-old National Football League players' strike, but both sides agreed to resume bargaining talks on Friday.

Meanwhile, the strike officially claimed its second regular-season weekend.

"There was no progress..." Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the NFL Management Council, said after the day-long session ended at 11:45 p.m. EDT. "It's not an optimistic thing. The truth is they want to emasculate the clubs."

Gene Upshaw, president of the NFL Players Association, said: "Nothing has changed. Absolutely nothing of substance happened. It's a sad state of affairs. The players out there should be concerned."

Donlan added that while negotiations will resume Friday he thought there would have to be some change in attitude.

"We talk money and the union talks control, and that's been an issue since the beginning," he said.

The day's bargaining talks began at 1 p.m. and marked the longest session since preliminary negotiations began in February.

The Management Council took a dinner break at 9 p.m. while members of the players' union caucused. Both sides returned to the bargaining table at 10 p.m.

Ed Garvey, the union's executive director, said: "We spent the last six hours just trying to negotiate rights for these guys are robots and never get hurt."

"One of the reasons we moved off economic issues was to try to make headway on medical issues which are just as important to us," Garvey said.

Jim Miller, public relations director for the management Council, said the management team believes the union's medical proposals "are aimed at emasculating the clubs and the rights they have had."

He said earlier the owners were prepared to offer the players access to their medical records.

Running back Clarence Harmon of the Washington Redskins, observing the negotiations, said: "There's nothing going on in there. It's frustrating."

John Bunting, the Philadelphia Eagles player representative, left the meeting about 9 p.m. and accused the Management Council of practicing "Soviet-style negotiations — we will give you nothing."

Giants rally for 7-6 win over Astros

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pinch-hitter Ron Pruitt drove in two runs with a bases-loaded bloop single to center field — his first hit of the season — climaxing the San Francisco Giants' second comeback of the game and giving them a vital 7-6 victory over the Houston Astros Thursday night.

The Giants trail first-place Atlanta by one game in the National League West race, and San Francisco has just three games remaining — all here against the Dodgers, who are tied with San Francisco.

Pruitt hit a 3-1 pitch from reliever Dave Smith, scoring Darrell Evans and Jeff Leonard. Pruitt was the second batter to face Smith, who relieved Dan Boone, 1-1, with two out and runners at first and second.

Evans had walked and Leonard had singled. Smith then walked pinch-hitter

Jim Wohlford before facing Pruitt, a former American Leaguer who spent most of this season with the Giants' Phoenix farm club.

The win went to Gary Lavelle, 10-7, the sixth Giants' pitcher.

The Giants trailed 5-0 early in the game, came back to tie the score, but fell behind in the top of the ninth when Harry Spilman hit his second homer of the game.

Spilman, batting cleanup despite a .240 average, had four hits and four RBI. He had only one previous homer this season in 50 major league at bats.

Spilman's two-out single in the first inning scored Terry Puhl, who led off the game with a double, to give Houston a 1-0 lead. In the third, Spilman hit his second homer of the season after Ray Knight reached base on a two-out throwing error by Giants pitcher Jim Barr.

The Astros added two runs in the fourth on a double by Dickie Thon, then the Giants stormed back to tie.

Houston starter Mike LaCoss allowed only four hits through six innings and retired the leadoff batter in the seventh before the Giants struck for three runs, collecting five singles. Joe Morgan drove in two runs with a bases-loaded and Jack Clark followed with an RBI double.

Bert Roberge then relieved and struck out Evans to end the inning, leaving runners at first and second.

But San Francisco tied it in the eighth off Roberge as Reggie Smith singled, Milt May doubled and pinch-hitter Duane Kuiper's grounder to shortstop scored Smith.

Pitt meets surprising West Virginia

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

For the third time in four games, the Pitt Panthers are faced with the prospect of meeting another Top Twenty opponent, one bent on knocking off the team picked as No. 1 in the Associated Press preseason rankings.

Saturday's foe is No. 14 West Virginia, a neighbor of Pitt's from 75 miles down the road, and the Mountaineers never need any extra incentive for this backyard brawl.

Anyway, Pitt is no longer No. 1 despite a 3-0 record, but the Panthers, who edged North Carolina (No. 5 at the time) 7-6 and slipped to second place and then beat Florida State 37-17 only to drop to third, whipped No. 19 Illinois 20-3 last weekend and vaulted back to second place, only seven points from the top.

With the emergence of West Virginia (3-0 just like Pitt) and Boston College on the national scene, the East has something to crow about besides Pitt and Penn State.

"The Mountaineers are for real," says Pitt Coach Foge Fazio. "You can't beat Oklahoma and Maryland and not be for real. West Virginia is now on a par with Pitt and Penn State."

Be that as it may, the line is 10½ points and the favorite is Pitt 35-24.

Last week's record was 41 right, 10 wrong and one tie for a percentage of .804. For the season, it's 141-36-2 — 797. Against the spread, last week's score was 16-11-0 — 593, bringing the count for the season to 49-36-0 — 576.

No. 8 Nebraska (favored by 9½) at No. 20 Auburn: Pat Dye has the Tigers growling again. Can the Cornhuskers recover from that heart-breaking loss to Penn State? Upset special of the week... Auburn 20-17. San Diego State at No. 1

Washington (no line): Huskies warm up for the Pac-Ten schedule... Washington 35-14.

LSU at No. 4 Florida (7½): the unbeaten Bayou Bengals will find out if they're for real... Florida 21-17.

Arkansas State at Alabama: two coaches from Fordyce, Ark., but Larry Laceywell never rassled a bear like the Bear did. That might be easier than playing... Alabama 38-7.

No. 6 Georgia (4) at Mississippi State: the Bulldogs will win... and the Bulldogs will lose... Mississippi State 20-17.

North Texas State at No. 7 Southern Methodist: Eric Dickerson, Craig James and the rest of the Mustangs keep galloping along... SMU 42-7.

No. 9 UCLA (21½) at Colorado: having beaten up on the Big Ten (Wisconsin and Michigan), the Bruins move on to the Big Eight... UCLA 27-13.

Hospital volleyball results

In volleyball action earlier this week, the Coronado Community Hospital Business Office took a second-round lead with their second victory on the courts, squeaking past X-Ray with a 15-11 tally, and then posting quick 15-6 win to seal their 2-0 lead.

In other second-round action, Respiratory Therapy faced tough competition in its first game after drawing a bye in first-round play, edging past Medical Records, 15-11, 15-9.

Closing out the evening, Housekeeping picked up their first win with a quick 15-4, 15-2 victory over Nursing Service in the First Assembly of God Church Gymnasium.

Trailing Business Office's 2-0 record are Physical Therapy and Respiratory Therapy, each with 1-0 tallies, and X-Ray and Housekeeping, each with a 1-1 record. Both Nursing Service and Medical Records, plagued with key players missing, close out the eague with 0-2 won-loss records to date—a record that can easily change for the better.

Next week, Business Office faces Nursing Service in the opening game at 6:30 p.m. Two of the hottest games will be Physical Therapy vs. Respiratory Therapy at 7:30 p.m. (each with a 1-0 record) and Housekeeping vs. X-Ray in the 8:30 slot, again each with a 1-1 record.

Nebraska, Auburn square off in one of top college grid games

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Nebraska Cornhuskers, who traveled East last week and lost to Penn State in the final seconds, take the road South Saturday, this time to meet Auburn.

It will be the eighth-ranked Huskers' first regular-season trip to the Deep South since 1978, when they lost a 20-3 decision to that year's eventual national champion, Alabama.

Against No. 3 Penn State, which is idle this week, Nebraska finally succumbed to the passing of quarterback

Todd Blackledge, who has thrown 15 touchdown passes in four games this season. In contrast, Auburn has broken into the rankings in the 20th spot with a sparkling running attack.

After last week's 24-14 victory over Tennessee, their third straight triumph this year, the Tigers were No. 3 in the nation with 335 yards rushing per game.

That will present problems for Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne, but his worries are no greater than those of Auburn Coach Pat Dye because Nebraska is first in the nation in rushing with 417 yards per game and first in total offense with 619.

"They really don't have a weakness," Dye said of Nebraska. "They have a strong offensive line and perhaps the strongest center in college football ever (Dave Rimington). They have two great running backs and great receivers and a quarterback who can get the ball to them. We're scratching our heads trying to figure what to do to slow them up a little bit."

Dye said Nebraska quarterback Turner Gill "is probably in the Top 10 in the nation as far as skill and ability."

Countering Nebraska's 1-2 rushing tandem of Roger Craig and Mike Rozier are Auburn running backs Bo Jackson and Lionel James, who are averaging nearly 200 yards per game between them. All of the Tigers' runners are averaging 5.7 yards per carry.

Pampa splits tennis duel with Dumas

Pampa divided a high school tennis duel with Dumas Thursday, with the girls winning, 9-0, and the boys losing, 6-3.

Pampa girls won every match, including two forfeits. Trecia Hawkins defeated Trica Capistrano, 8-1; Andi Elliott defeated Rhonda Terrell, 6-4, 6-1; Colene Holfacket blanked Kelli Bauer, 6-0, 6-0, and Cheryl Starnes downed Jessica Stevens, 8-3.

Stephanie Trollinger and Kelli Welborn won their doubles match for Pampa.

Mike Spence was the only Harvester to win a match as the boys' division. He defeated Lyle Maddox, 6-3, 6-3, in the No. 1 singles match.

Spence is unbeaten in singles play with a 2-0 record. Pampa goes to Tascosa Monday for a duel match.

Pampa 8th rallies for win

CANADIAN—Pampa rallied in the final quarter to defeat Canadian, 24-22, Thursday in eighth-grade football action.

Ron Wallace scored the tying TD for Pampa with 17 seconds to play and then James Ellison ran across the two-point conversion for the victory.

Other scores by Pampa came from Ron Wallace and John Thomas, who also scored twice on conversion runs.

Pampa eighth graders are now 1-0-1 for the season. "It was a great comeback for these kids," Pampa coach Pete Erwin said. "The kids put everything they had into it." The score was knotted at 8-8 at halftime, but Pampa fell behind, 22-8, going into the fourth quarter.

Mike Spence was the only Harvester to win a match as the Pampa boys fell to Dumas, 6-3, Thursday in a high school tennis match. Spence defeated Lyle Maddox, 6-3, 6-3.

AL roundup

Orioles, KC stay alive in pennant race

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It's the final weekend of the regular season and the surprise of the two American League races is that the Baltimore Orioles and Kansas City Royals are still in them.

All but counted out earlier this week, both the Orioles and Royals stayed mathematically alive in their respective races with pressure victories Thursday night.

"It was pretty exciting out there tonight," said Gary Roenicke after his RBI single capped a four-run rally in the ninth inning that led the Orioles to a dramatic 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The Orioles' victory, coupled with Milwaukee's 9-4 defeat by Boston, left them three games behind the front-running Brewers in the East as the two teams headed into their climactic four-game season-ending series in Baltimore.

"We kept coming back and back," said Roenicke, referring to Baltimore's 4-0 deficit after five innings. "That's the kind of way it was in 1979 and early this year. We've had a good year this year. Not a great year, but if we sweep Milwaukee, we've got a chance to be the American League champs."

The Royals, meanwhile, further tightened the AL West with an 11-4 rout of the Oakland A's. The victory shaved first-place California's lead to two games with three games left to play. The Angels, idle Thursday, finish with a three-game series at home against Texas while the Royals complete the regular season at home against Oakland.

In the other AL action, New York defeated Cleveland 7-5 and Toronto stopped Minnesota 6-4.

The Orioles were losing 5-2 when they rallied to beat the Tigers. Eddie Murray hit a sacrifice fly before Cal Ripken Jr., Jim Dwyer and Roenicke stroked RBI singles.

Red Sox 9, Brewers 4
Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski combined for seven hits, and rookie Wade Boggs drove in three runs as Boston beat Milwaukee.

Dennis Eckersley, 13-13, blanked the Brewers for seven innings before the Milwaukee bombers shelled him in the eighth, when Paul Molitor and Cecil Cooper hit two-run homers.

Bob Stanley replaced Eckersley with none out in the eighth and went on to set an American League record for most innings pitched in a season for a reliever with 1681-3. The new standard breaks Bill Campbell's mark of 1672-3 for Minnesota in 1976.

Royals 11, A's 4
Willie Aikens hit a grand slam homer and a three-run shot to power Kansas City past Oakland.

With the score tied 2-2 in the fifth, Mike Norris, 7-11, walked George Brett and Hal McRae with two out before Aikens drilled his 15th homer.

U.L. Washington singled and stole second with one out in the Kansas City seventh, and Brett walked. Davey Lopes misplayed a grounder to load the bases for Aikens, who smashed reliever Bob Owchinko's first pitch over the center field fence at Royals Stadium.

Aikens' seven RBI tied him with Jerry Grote for the club record.

Yankees 7, Indians 5
Oscar Gamble's two-out single drove in Dave Collins with the lead run as New York scored four runs in the top of the ninth inning to defeat Cleveland.

An error by loser Dan Spillner, 10-12, helped to fuel the rally. Spillner fielded a sacrifice bunt by Dave Collins, but his throw sailed over third baseman Toby Harrah's head, allowing a run to score.

Another came home when Ken Griffey hit into a double play, tying the score at 5-5. After Dave Winfield was walked intentionally, Gamble singled to give the Yankees a 6-5 lead, and Roy Smalley capped the uprising with an RBI single.

Dear Abby

Some people get a charge out of pay restroom

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a small cafe in an area that caters to summer tourists.

We have two nice, clean rest rooms for the convenience of our customers, but because so many people stop in only to use our rest rooms, we decided to put up a sign:

"If you are not a customer, we charge 50 cents for using our rest rooms."

Abby, I wish you could have heard some of the names we've been called by people who have come in only to use the rest room! Some have caused terrible scenes, saying they have never heard of anything so cheap, and they will never set foot in our place again if they are starving!

Don't these people realize that we have to pay for the toilet paper, soap, towels, water (hot and cold), air-freshener, plus the electricity for the lights and the fan that provides ventilation while they are in there? All these things add up.

Abby, do you think we're out of line to charge non-customers 50 cents for the use of our rest rooms?
BAD-MOUTHED IN CASCADE, COLO.

DEAR BAD-MOUTHED: Has the revenue collected since posting the sign compensated for the bad-mouthing and noisy scenes it's created? If not, take down the sign. The tourists will be relieved. And so will you.

DEAR ABBY: While shopping at a very nice supermarket, I came upon something I'd never seen before and wonder if anyone else has ever encountered a similar experience.

I saw a woman take a bottle of ketchup from the shelf, remove the lid, extend her finger down into the bottle, then lick the ketchup from her finger! She continued to do this with several different brands of ketchup, then chose a small bottle that she hadn't opened. I was shocked and a little sick to my stomach thinking that someone was going to buy a bottle of ketchup that this woman had stuck her finger into. She looked to be about 80, was very well-dressed, and I doubt that she was hungry.

Needless to say, I don't shop in that store anymore. What would you have done, Abby?
HOLD THE KETCHUP IN HONAKER, VA.

DEAR HOLD: I would have quietly reported the lady to the management.

DEAR ABBY: There's a problem in our neighborhood, but maybe if you print this, it will give the guilty ones something to think about. We are stuck with this nuisance because we've let it go for so long that nobody wants to tell a nice young man that he has been disturbing our peace for 10 years. Except for this younger couple, everyone in our neighborhood is retired.

Our young neighbor leaves for work at 6:45, backs his car out into the street and honks his horn with a little "beep beep" as he drives away. At first we all thought it was rather sweet of him to bid his wife a second goodbye, but some of us older people do not sleep well at night, and once we're awakened it's impossible to go back to sleep again.

Retired folks have had to get up early for many years, and we think we've finally earned the right to stay up late and sleep in the morning.

Please remind people that unnecessary horn-honking is inconsiderate and downright irritating. Thank you.
NO MORE BEEP BEEP

DEAR NO: I agree, unnecessary horn-honking (and dog-barking and lawn-mowing and kid-calling) is inconsiderate. So let all you guilty ones out there repent, and sin no more.

Business booming at state-owned lodge

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

FORT DAVIS, Texas (AP) — When she was a girl of 15, Annie Claire Baldwin visited the Davis Mountains in West Texas and she's returned virtually every year since. That first visit was 65 years ago.

"I've been to nearly every part of Texas and I think this spot right here is the prettiest," the Houston resident said as she sat in the courtyard of the Indian Lodge in Davis Mountains State Park.

"You can see why the old-timers used to want to keep this to themselves," Mrs. Baldwin said with a sigh, "but now, it's just overrun."

Mrs. Baldwin and her husband, Salty, started coming to the Davis Mountains before the lodge was built in 1933, but they've become two of its best-known guests, staying several times a year while they visit friends at nearby ranches.

"We get a lot of people who come back to visit every so often," said lodge manager Jane Russell. "The Baldwins are one of two couples who we have right now who come every year. The other couple is from Maine."

Many tourists use the Indian Lodge as a place to get away for anniversaries and family reunions. The lodge is the only full-service hotel run by the state of Texas and its mountain location and low rates draw a heavy tourist business. Ms. Russell, who has managed the lodge for three years, said business had increased more than 20 percent in the past few years, bringing in the most tourists since it opened in the late 1930s.

The pueblo-style lodge, like many public works from its era, was built by the Civilian Conservation Corps in what was then just another wooded canyon in the rugged Davis Mountains. The land was donated to the state by an area rancher, who kept only the grazing rights, said park superintendent Ken Benad.

"We still have cattle roaming around in the park nine months out of the year," he said. After the donation, the CCC crews camped at an old windmill in the canyon and erected the adobe structure by hand, Ms. Russell said.

"Every day, they'd run 4 1/2 miles over to Fort Davis and back for the exercise and then they'd start to work," she said. "They built 15 rooms. All the furniture was hand-carved by the CCC men. The reeding in the ceiling was brought from the Rio Grande by them and all of the ceiling beams were made from trees cut from this area."

Forty years later, the state added 24 more rooms, a dining room and a meeting room, sticking close to the original style, but using concrete blocks instead of adobe and store-bought furniture.

The lodge is decorated with the strange blend of flora that is native to the mountains — willows and cholla cactus, cottonwoods and yucca.

Sometimes, it's decorated with fauna, too.

"We have a raccoon that drinks out of the swimming pool every night and then he goes over to where the garbage cans are stored," Ms. Russell said. "He's got a regular path worn through there."

She said lodge workers had an occasional brush with bigger game.

"Some mornings we'll be coming in real early to open the office and there'll be a deer in the little courtyard out there," she said. "They'll come charging out of there and about scare us to death."

Running a state-owned hotel has its problems. For example, the governor's austerity program hit the lodge staff as well as other state agencies and there are the mountains of paperwork that the government requires for everything.

But the state ownership is the reason for the lodge's low rates, which range from $16 a night for a single to $23 for a suite with two double beds.

"Business is getting to the point where the lodge can turn a profit," Ms. Russell said. "The only thing that's keeping us from it is inflation. The state won't let us raise our prices and, of course, the price of everything else keeps going up."

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — If you need to shorten a piece of clothing in which the hem has been put in with a chain stitch, you can reuse the same thread to reweave the hem. Carefully pull out the hemming thread, lay it over your ironing board and press it with a steam iron. The pressed thread will be perfectly fine and straight to sew with and you'll have a perfect match to go with the fabric. — LOIS

Homemakers attend convention

Several members of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association from Gray County took part in the association's annual professional meeting El Paso, Sept. 14-16.

Attending sessions at the convention center were Roselle Collingsworth, Marilyn Butler, Laura Bell Golden, G. C. Davis and Janice Carter.

Approximately 900 members from across Texas took part in the session, the 56th annual meeting of the homemakers organization.

The Texas Extension Homemakers Association has members in 1326 clubs in 250 Texas counties. During the past year, members have reached and taught more than 100,000 other Texas homemakers through a wide array of educational programs.

Locating Gray County's old-timers

By GENA WALLS

My search for the oldest resident in Gray County led me to Mr. Joe Shelton, the son of Charlie and Janie Shelton, born in a dugout in Eldridge on May 6, 1888.

Charlie Shelton came to Gray County by stagecoach in March 1883 and married Janie Woods on January 4, 1887 in the Eldridge settlement of Gray County.

Eldridge was located six miles north of the present town of Alanreed and the only thing left of the town is a small cemetery, possibly the first in the county, at a fork of McClellan Creek.

As a child, it was Mr. Shelton's responsibility to walk the six miles or so each Sunday to get the family mail. He remembers working for thirty-five cents a day shucking corn. "Now that wasn't no eight hour union day — that was from sun-up 'till it went down. But then when you had a dollar back then, you had something, not like today. Why, a dollar ain't worth a nickel today," Mr. Shelton said.

Mr. Shelton has had many different occupations, from farmer to cowdrover. He gave the cowboy life up in 1912 after finishing a cattle drive in Kansas. He returned home and hung his saddle on the fence telling his father he could leave it, that he wouldn't need it anymore.

His favorite job was working for the railroad "but you needed money to pay your room and board and I didn't have it."

He was a soldier in World War I and when he returned home, he married Estelle Cecil on April 27, 1919 in Durham, Okla.

"I've had jobs take me out of the county and they'd keep me out as much as two years but this has always been home to me, right from the beginning, when I came to Pampa in 1912. The job I held the longest was supervising the school buses here for thirty-five years," Mr. Shelton said.

And he is still driving today, cruising the city streets in his 1972 Plymouth.

When asked his plans for the future he said he was looking forward to the Gray County 80th Birthday celebration and taking part in activities and after that, "guess I'll just plan on living to 100," he said.

Today you might find Mr. Shelton at the Senior Citizen Center playing dominos or visiting friends, or at home where he lives with his son and daughter-in-law.

Mr. Shelton revealed so many interesting things during the afternoon visit. He had this to pass on, "I remember the old-timers saying this here country wouldn't amount to a hill of beans. Nobody will ever live up there and I reckon they was just a little bit wrong. Why it's the garden spot of the country."

"Pampa is the best if anyone wants to know where to live," Mr. Shelton concluded.

GIRL SCOUTS

A 7th grade Girl Scout-Cadette Troop is now being formed. Meetings will be held Tuesday evenings at the Girl Scout Little House and any 7th grade girl interested in scouting is welcome to attend.

The first meeting was held Tuesday, Sept. 28 at 7:15 p.m. Leaders are Jan Chambers and Helen Barnett. For more information call the leaders at 665-2067 or 665-5398 or the Girl Scout Office, 669-6862.

Girls are urged to join now in order to be registered for upcoming activities.

PHI EPSILON BETA

Phi Epsilon Beta met Sept. 21 at 7 p.m. in the home of Beverly Alexander, hostess. Assisting Ms. Alexander was Roxanne Jennings.

Prior to the business meeting guest speaker, Dr. Rod Albracht, spoke to the members about nutrition.

The business meeting was called to order by president Donna Maul. Thank yous were exchanged by secret sisters. Roxanne Jennings announced the expected arrival of a new baby in May by giving candy to members.

Chairmen of committees gave reports on their respective committees. The membership committee is planning a salad supper as a girls rush social on Sept. 28 at the Mary Ellen Church of Christ at 7:30 p.m.

The Service Committee chairman reported that for October they will sell Kidney Foundation candy and make a donation of clothes and kitchen items to the Jim Green family who lost their home to a fire.

The door prize was won by Louann Waggoner.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Francie Moen with Connie Carpenter serving as co-hostess.

EPSILON SIGMA ALPHA

Epsilon Sigma Alpha, Kappa Alpha Chapter 3001, met Sept. 9 at 8 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Energas Building with Reba Cline, Elsie Floyd, Shirley Haines and Lorie Miller, hostesses.

The opening ritual was led by Reba Cline, presiding for Helen Danner, with eight members and one guest present. Plans were made for service and ways and means projects for the forth coming year. Members agreed to continue selling pecans and hold a dance in November. Plans were made to help Meals on Wheels.

Plans were also made to enter a float in the Gray County celebration parade in October.

Reba Cline conducted a skit "Key to the World of ESA", with members participating, explaining the history of ESA, how and why it was originated and maintained through the years.

The 33rd Annual Texas State Convention was recently held at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo, with twelve chapter members attending: Dorothy Miller, Jean Sells, Helen Danner, Elsie Floyd, Shirley Haines, Katie Taylor, Lorie Miller, Reba Cline, JoAnn Stevens, Bonnie Jones, Barbara Shearer and Frankie Hildenbrand.

State awards won by Kappa Alpha were: Gold Link Award; Perfect Content - Chapter Yearbook Award; Civic and Service Award; Educational Award; and the Chapter Scrapbook placed in the top ten.

Rush session began with a Get Acquainted Coffee held at the Lovett Memorial Library, with seven members and two guests attending.

Hostesses were Reba Cline, Elsie Floyd and Lorie Miller. A salad supper was also held in the Flame Room with eight members and one guest, Jane Jacobs. Each member brought a salad and exchanged recipes. Hostesses were Reba Cline and the Rush Committee.

A couples party is planned for Oct. 2, in the home of Ann Turner.

The next business meeting will be held in the Lovett Memorial Library on Oct. 7 at 8 p.m.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose met Sept. 27. Betty Johnson received her green cap honors in Corpus Christi. This honor was bestowed upon Betty by Abbie Archer.

New officers were installed: June Summers, chaplain; Lou Terry, junior regent, Wilma Eubanks, mooseheart; and Dottie Neil, academy of friendship.

The next regular meeting will be Oct. 12. All co-workers are urged to attend.

VARIETAS STUDY CLUB

The first meeting of the fall season for Varietas Study Club was held in the home of Mrs. J. E. Gibson with Mrs. Georgia Mack and Mrs. James Goff as co-hostesses. A special guest was Mr. W. A. Bohot, husband of a club member. He was welcomed and thanked for his typing and assembling of the club yearbooks. Mrs. B. G. Gordon presented him with a gift from Athens, Greece, where she vacationed recently.

Dr. Lamb

In support of hose

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — After major surgery six months ago my heart doctor prescribed surgical white support hose for me and I got two pairs. I read on the package that anyone with high cholesterol deposits and hardening of the arteries should not wear them so I have not worn them since I got out of the hospital.

My varicose veins are very bad on my right leg, way up to my groin, but they do not hurt or bother me at all. I can walk or stand for hours and I do not have any aches or pains.

About 20 years ago another doctor told me unless the veins bother you, by all means do not wear support hose and get dependent on them.

I hate to approach my doctor on this since I am on Medi-Cal. He may get huffy and tell me to see someone else. So I really need your opinion.

DEAR READER — Do what your doctor says, not what you read on a package. He knows your case and is quite familiar with the effects of support hose.

You don't become dependent upon support hose or other pressure garments used to manage or prevent varicose veins. The basic problem is that the veins become overdistended and the excessive stretching causes them to stay dilated, like an overstretched balloon. One of the most important of all measures to prevent varicose veins or to prevent progression is to prevent overdistention. It is the same thing as preventing overstretching a balloon by not blowing it up.

Support hose are fine for mild cases. They are often not adequate if there is swelling or more severe problems. In those cases you need more pressure as may be provided by graded pressure with the greatest pressure at the ankle which decreases as you progress up the leg and thigh. The Jobst stocking is an example.

You will understand the problem and what can be done about it better when you read The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read an article that taking three safflower oil capsules of 750 milligrams before each meal will help burn up fat in one's body. Right now about eight people in my apartment building are starting on the safflower oil. Would you please let us know if there is any truth to the claim? We are all retired people and very concerned if it would cause any side effects or even put on weight.

DEAR READER — There was once a gentleman who wrote a famous diet book and sold safflower capsules with a similar claim. He had legal problems because the claim is false.

Safflower oil is fat. It is excellent for cooking and for salads if you are going to use fat. Why? Because it is low in saturated fats and high in polyunsaturated fat. Each gram contains about nine calories. The nine capsules a day (6.75 grams) represents about 60 calories so you won't gain much weight from them, but you can be sure they will not help you lose fat, much less "burn up fat," unless they nauseate you and cut your appetite. They won't harm anything but your pocketbook.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been told that it is worse to have food intake during the evening and late evening hours than in the morning and early part of the day. And also I have

Artist to gather for annual event

Mrs. Harold W. Taylor, arts and crafts chairman, and Dan Snider, librarian for the Lovett Memorial Library, hold a painting by Carolyn Stallwitz of Dumas, Texas, which will be given away at the Pampa Fine Arts 16th

Annual Top O' Texas Arts and Crafts Festival to be held in the M. K. Brown Auditorium Oct. 9 and 10. The watercolor features blue quail and will be on display at the Lovett Memorial Library this week. The annual festival brings in outstanding regional artists to display and sell their work during the two-day event. For more information on the painting contact Mrs. Taylor 669-2034 evenings; or Peggy Palminter 665-5402. (Staff Photo by Bruce Lee Smith) been told that doing exercise in the morning is more beneficial than before going to bed. Is this true? If so why?

DEAR READER — It is a common misconception that you will gain weight if you eat in the evening rather than in the morning. A calorie is a calorie, is a calorie. It doesn't make any difference whether you eat it when you get up, at noon, evening, midnight or at 2 a.m. It will have exactly the same effect.

Heavy meals in the evening may cause indigestion when you lie down soon afterward but in terms of calories there is no difference.

Alcohol and child abuse

NEW YORK (AP) — A report issued here on abuses suffered by perhaps as many as 500,000 children of alcoholic parents has recommended legislation to compel an alcoholic parent to undergo treatment as a condition of retaining custody of children.

The report also suggested the alcoholic beverage industry finance research on alcoholics' children.

Among findings of the state-sponsored report were that alcoholic parents are most likely to produce alcoholic children. Approximately 58 percent of adult alcoholics in 13 state treatment centers were the children of alcoholic parents.

"At an early age, these children are trapped in a self-destructive cycle of despair and failure that ruins their lives and harms the society of which they are a part," said Gov. Hugh L. Carey in releasing the report prepared under the auspices of the state Division of Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse.

THE REV. CAROL S. WOOD

New associate pastor for First Presbyterian

The Rev. Carol S. Wood is the new associate pastor at the First Presbyterian Church in Pampa. Wood will serve as Minister of Church Education and Programs. Her duties will include primary resource assistance for the Church Planning Committee, the Christian Education Committee — including leadership development — and the Evangelism Committee as it oversees the assimilating of new members and participation of members in the life of the church. Wood will also serve as Education Consultant for Palo Duro Union Presbytery. She graduated in May, 1980 from Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary. Wood was raised in Dalhart. Before coming to Pampa she completed a chaplain internship at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo and held a staff position in the chaplain's office. Wood was a ruling elder in St. Andrew Church of San Antonio. She was the Director of Christian Education in the First Presbyterian Church of Albuquerque, N.M. and was under the care of St. Andrew Presbyterian Church while in seminary.

Buddy Lytle will present a concert of gospel music at Calvary Baptist Church Saturday at 7 p.m. Lytle is an evangelist from Anson, Texas, where he works as a rancher and is a deacon of the First Baptist Church. The public is invited to the concert.

THE REV. JOE HOWARD

Lefors revival planned

The First Baptist Church of Lefors will hold revival services Oct. 4-10. The services will feature Rev. Joe Howard, pastor of Keeler Baptist Church of Borger as evangelist, and John Glover of First Baptist Church of Pampa will lead the music. Morning services will be at 11:00 a.m. Monday through Friday. Evening services will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and Saturday. Friday night services will begin at 6:30 p.m. A Brotherhood Breakfast will be held Saturday morning at 7 a.m., and all men are invited.

Slide show at Grace Baptist

Grace Baptist Church, 824 S. Barnes, will hold a special service Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The service will feature a slide presentation by Lynn McCathern of photos taken during his trip to the Holy Land. The public is invited to the service.

Karate teacher uses skills for preaching

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Karate instructor Samuel Doyle smashes boards with missionary zeal as he talks to his students about Christ and the virtues of resisting temptation. "That way I show people that the word of God is quick and powerful and sharper than any two-edged sword," Doyle says. "With his help, you can slice through any temptation." This is Karate for Christ, Doyle's new martial-arts school in Grand Rapids, and he says teaching people to defend themselves is the best way for him "to continue my walk with Jesus." "Karate does not hinder your life as a Christian," Doyle says. "I think it only enhances it. I believe the Lord works through you, and that karate helps build your confidence. Karate cultivates self-control and self-confidence, as well as respect for others — all very Christian values." Doyle says he hopes to expand and convert the entire third floor of a Grand Rapids warehouse into a training center complete with dressing rooms, weight machines, punching bags and boxing rings. But that expansion will be determined by the success of the school, and Doyle only charges what the students think they can pay. "It's all being done on a free-will, donation basis," he says. "I'm doing it all in the belief that you should give and it shall be given back to you." For students who are interested in religion, Doyle gives Bible-based karate lessons. He sometimes sets up five boards and talks about resisting temptation before smashing the wood with his calloused hand. But religion is not a condition of entry into the school. "You don't have to be a devout Christian to come in here," he says. "Anyone can come in and work out. I'm not going to preach to them."

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

If you feel you have a worthy project or enterprise to offer this coming year, don't be hesitant to launch it. You could be extremely lucky with things which you originate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The results will be better today if you attend to matters personally, instead of delegating them to someone else. Keep the control in your hands. Find out more of what lies ahead for your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 21-Nov. 22) There is material opportunity around you today, but it may be veiled and difficult to perceive. Rely upon your instincts and you'll spot it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you are optimistic, but today you might be apprehensive regarding the outcome of events. Be hopeful. Your fears are groundless.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This can be a day of major achievements, and that which you desire can be accomplished. However, you may be a trifle slow getting out of the starting gate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Valuable knowledge could come your way today from the least-suspected sources. Be a good listener, even to those whose opinions you seldom respect.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be rather lucky materially today, but it's not likely to come from the course which you have charted for yourself. Providence will provide the path.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Let your heart rule your head where your mate or special someone is concerned today. Things will work out better than if you plan every step logically.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good day to launch ventures or projects of an artistic or creative nature, even though you might feel that they still need more development.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You should do quite well today in involvements having elements of friendly competition. This includes vying for the attention of someone to whom you are attracted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're not likely to take as much interest in your own work today as you will that of another who needs your help. You'll then put forth your very best effort.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Instead of trying to change someone you're fond of, point out his or her virtues and build upon them instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be rather fortunate today financially or materially if you're involved in something with an imaginative partner of the opposite sex.

Pavarotti on the screen: a $12.4-million gamble into solid rock market

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Franklin Schaffner, a filmmaker accustomed to directing army divisions and revolutionary mobs, wanted to find a different kind of movie and he succeeded. It's called "Yes, Giorgio." The star is Luciano Pavarotti, the wide opera tenor, who engages in a romantic fling with pencil-slim Kathryn Harrold. Such a plot, as well as a sprinkling of operatic arias, would seem a risky bet in today's youth-oriented, rock-conscious film market. MGM has high hopes for the $12.4 million musical and is giving it a careful release, opening first in five major cities before spreading across the country.

"That's a wise move," says Schaffner. "I think the Pavarotti fans will flock to the picture when it opens, then it will have to prove itself with the wide audience."

The director's association with "Yes, Giorgio" began two years ago when he was searching for "something different" after the ill-fated "Sphinx." Having directed such large-scale films as "Planet of the Apes," "Patton," "Nicholas and Alexandra," "Papillon" and "The Boys from Brazil," he seemed typed.

"I was looking for a romance or comedy, perhaps with music, a political allegory or a western," he said. Schaffner hadn't directed anything musical since live television in the 1950s. The director's first meeting with Pavarotti took place at a lunch with eight of their advisors.

"Luciano said, 'Let's take a walk.' He was very frank and open and scared," he said. "I reassured him, and when we finished talking he said, 'I think I can do it; let's trust each other.'"

Schaffner had no armies to direct, but the logistics of "Yes, Giorgio" were awesome: a concert for 100,000 plus at Hatch Shell in Boston; a performance of "Turandot" at the Metropolitan Opera; a concert in San Francisco, plus locations in the Napa Valley and a seacoast town in Italy.

Pavarotti had canceled all engagements for three months last summer so he could make the film. Just as production started in Boston, the threat of a Directors Guild strike loomed. If "Yes, Giorgio" had to be postponed, it would have taken two years for the singer to clear his schedule again.

"We were calling the Guild every night for news of the strike," said Schaffner. "Fortunately for us it didn't happen."

The director found Pavarotti to be "a true professional — he knows to what edge he can go before it becomes unbelievable."

Moonshine runner is hitting the charts

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Twenty years ago, Eddy Raven used to put five 10-gallon jars of illegal moonshine in his six-cylinder, 1958 Ford and drive from south Georgia to Jacksonville, Fla.

"I did it for the thrill of it," Raven says. "And it was good money back then — $1 a gallon, $50 a load."

He's no longer running moonshine, having given it up after six months for more legal pursuits. He's getting his thrills now as one of the most promising singers in Nashville.

In the past 16 months, the long-haired 38-year-old has had four songs reach the upper levels of the country music charts. His most recent one is "She's Playing Hard to Forget," which made the top 10 in August.

The others were "I Should've Called," "Who Do You Know in California?" and "A Little Bit Crazy."

The Louisiana-born Raven also was a finalist for most promising male singer, as selected by the Academy of Country Music. And his album, "Desperate Dreams," has been on the country music charts for almost a year.

"It's been good," he said of his success in the past year or so. "It takes time to get that following, but we're getting folks to come to see us (at concerts) from 200 to 300 miles off."

Nashville music business as a songwriter to fulfill the last wish his father made before he died of emphysema and throat cancer in 1970 in Lafayette, La.

"In our last conversation, he made me promise to go to Nashville and try to 'make it' in Nashville," Raven said. "I told him I would."

"It was the only time I had ever promised him anything. I probably wouldn't have taken that step if it hadn't been for him. It was a gamble, but my daddy was so avid about it. He was just so sure I should do it."

So Raven, the oldest of 10 children, made the move and began writing such hits as "Country Green," recorded by Don Gibson, and "Back in the Country," made by the legendary Roy Acuff.

He eventually began recording music himself. Last year he hired a four-piece band to travel with him on the road.

SPEAKING OF SOAPS
by Mary Ann Cooper

Victoria Principal plays Pam Ewing on "Dallas."

She's been known as a lady who lives in the fast lane — literally, since beautiful Victoria Principal once raced stock cars. But she puts on the brakes for her latest role, playing a gorgeous but determined woman who insists she'll remain celibate until she marries. It happens in the romantic comedy "Not Just Another Affair." A new motion picture for television to be broadcast on the "CBS Saturday Night Movies" Saturday October 2, 1982.

Gil Gerard, familiar as star of televisions "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," plays the handsome lady's man who falls in love with her and does his best to make her change her mind.

India's president coming here for medical attention

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indian President Zail Singh left Thursday for the United States where he will undergo a heart examination and possible surgery at the Texas Medical Center in Houston.

The 66-year-old chief of state was seen off at Delhi airport by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, Vice President Mohammad Hidayatullah, cabinet members and armed services chiefs. He appeared cheerful and acknowledged the greetings of hundreds of well-wishers.

Singh departed on a special Air-India jetliner for Houston, with an overnight stop at Geneva, Switzerland. His entourage includes cardiologist H.S. Wasir of the All-India Institute of Medical Sciences and two other eminent physicians, his daughter, brother and a nephew. The daughter, Mani Kaur, also is a doctor.

The government announced Sept. 16 that Singh had been advised by doctors to go to the Texas Heart Institute in Houston for "specialized investigations to evaluate the condition of his coronary arteries," followed, if necessary, by immediate treatment.

Officials said later he would be out of India at least two weeks.

Singh, elected and installed as president last July, had been hospitalized earlier in the year with reported heart trouble.

September was bright for American farmers

By BOB FICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — While it may not mark the start of an economic recovery in rural America, September was a bright spot in what has been a bleak stretch for American farmers.

Overall market prices for all farm goods, which have been severely depressed for months, shot upward over the past month while production expenses, which have been eating up the whatever income farmers have been getting, held steady.

According to the Agriculture Department's Crop Reporting Board, September also was the first month in the last 14 during which prices farmers got for their raw products exceeded year-earlier levels.

Production expenses in September, however, also remained well above those of a year ago, meaning little extra for farmers' pocketbooks when compared to the fall of 1981. While feed and replacement livestock costs fell, farm machinery and seed expenses moved higher.

The Crop Reporting Board said Thursday that higher market prices for milk, cotton, eggs, oranges and apples sent September prices up 2.3 percent above those posted in August.

The price increase over September 1981 was also 2.3 percent, but it was more than offset by production costs that remained 3.3 percent higher than a year ago.

The stronger prices for many commodities, however, were moderated by some significant price declines in major cash commodities for many farmers. Corn, at $2.17 a bushel, was down 5.6 percent from the month before, soybeans fell 5.5 percent to $5.28 a bushel, and cattle dropped nearly 4 percent to $55.80 a hundred pounds.

Despite the September figures, commodity prices still remain at low levels and that has helped cool retail food prices this year. Department economists estimate that retail food prices will rise about 5 percent this year compared to 7.9 percent last year. That's the smallest annual gain since the 3.1 percent increase in 1976.

Revised figures for August showed the price index dropped nearly 3 percent from July instead of less than 1 percent as the preliminary August figures suggested.

With the September jump, the month-to-month price index has now risen in five of the months this year and declined in three. It held steady during March. In 1981, the index failed to show an overall gain in any month, the first time that's happened since the Depression year of 1933.

Record inventories of grain, led by huge harvests last year and prospects for another buildup after this year's record production, have depressed crop prices. Foreign demand for some commodities also has been dampened because of sluggishness in the overall global economy.

The September increase, breaking a string of three straight monthly declines, gives at least a little boost to financially strapped farmers still struggling against high interest rates. But USDA analysts still predict net farm income will fall for the third straight year this year, plunging to $19 billion. When adjusted for inflation, that's the lowest level since the Great Depression.

The preliminary price figures for September, which are based mostly on mid-month averages, showed that the index for feed grain and hay dropped 4.3 percent from August and averaged 17 percent lower than last year. Oil-bearing crops, mainly soybeans, averaged 5.8 percent lower than in August and 16 percent below a year ago, the report said.

Fruit prices, overall, soared 57 percent from August and were 133 percent higher than at this time in 1981, mainly on the strength of huge price hikes for oranges and tangerines.

Meat animal prices were off 1.8 percent from August but remained 3.2 percent ahead of year-earlier averages, primarily on the strength of record-setting hog prices that rose nearly a full percent from last month's record level.

Farm prices in September averaged 136 percent of a 1977 base-price average used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures. That was up 3 percentage points from the revised figure for August.

The September parity ratio was 58 percent. August's 57 percent ratio, the same posted last winter, was the lowest since the indicator averaged 54 percent in April 1933, one of the worst years of the Great Depression.

At 100 percent, the indicator theoretically would mean farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-1914. For example, the average actual price of corn in September was $2.17 a bushel, down from August's $2.30 and well below last September's level of $2.55. That was 43 percent of the September parity price of $5.06 a bushel.

For other commodities, the report said:

- Cattle averaged $55.80 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally compared to $58.10 in August and $58.80 a year earlier. The parity price is $95.40. These are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.
- Hogs averaged $61.80 per 100 pounds compared to $61.30 in August and $48.60 a year ago. Parity was $85.40.
- Wheat prices at the farm, according to the preliminary figures, averaged $3.38 a bushel, compared to $3.34 in August and $3.65 a year ago. Parity was $7.28.
- Rice averaged $7.32 per 100 pounds, compared to $7.19 in August and $10.70 in September of last year. Parity was $21.
- Soybeans were $5.28 a bushel against $5.59 a bushel in August and $6.21 a bushel a year ago. Parity was $12.90.
- Upland cotton was 55.3 cents a pound on a national average compared to 52.1 cents in August and 58 cents a year ago. Parity was $1.19.
- Eggs were 56.8 a dozen compared to 50.7 in August and 64.8 a year ago. Parity was $1.14.
