

Life support system and palace cover-up

What happened on Grace's last day

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Princess Grace spent her last hours in a coma, kept alive by machines while the world was assured her injuries from a car crash were not critical, senior medical sources directly involved in her treatment said today.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said palace officials knew from the start that the former American movie star was in extremely serious condition.

"She had multiple injuries of the head, thorax and legs and no surgical operation was conceivable," one of the sources said. "The seriousness of her condition was confirmed by a scanner examination."

Initial but unofficial reports from palace sources said only that Grace had suffered a broken leg and her daughter Stephanie escaped major injury Monday when their car plunged 120 feet into a ravine in French territory just outside the Mediterranean principality.

Less than 40 hours later, Grace was dead.

The royal palace's press office had said Monday that Grace's only injury was a broken leg and that she was expected to remain hospitalized for 10 days. It also said Stephanie had been treated for minor bruises and released.

There were only two official palace communiques on the accident.

The first, about nine hours after the accident, said Grace was in "satisfactory" condition but was being watched closely because of a broken leg and other injuries.

Reports that could not be confirmed at the time described those injuries as two broken ribs, a fractured collarbone and a broken right leg. There were also reports that her thigh, not leg, was broken.

The palace statement said Grace had been driving the 10-year-old over and that its brakes had failed on a steep mountain road.

That contradicted other reports that 17-year-old Stephanie, ineligible for a driver's license until her 18th birthday, had been behind the wheel. A witness who claimed to have pulled Stephanie from the wreckage said she was on the driver's side.

Investigators said it was impossible to determine yet who was driving or what caused the accident.

The second palace communique just before midnight (6 p.m. EDT) said Princess Grace had died from a brain hemorrhage about 90 minutes earlier.

It did not elaborate on her injuries but said her condition had steadily worsened through the night and that all avenues of treatment had been exhausted by Tuesday afternoon.

Rumors circulated in Monte Carlo that day that Grace had lapsed into a coma.

The medical sources confirmed this and said Grace was put on a life support system several hours after the accident.

Art Rhode tunes up for the marathon

'Shoe slingers hope to set record, help Kris

By TOM ALLSTON
State Editor

Forty dedicated horseshoe slingers have their sights set on two things this weekend: a world record and a substantial contribution for Kristina Ennis.

Five eight-man teams will compete Saturday and Sunday in a planned 28-hour horseshoe-tossing marathon — four hours longer than the longest such event on record — to raise more than $1,500 for the four-year-old victim of acute lymphocytic leukemia.

And countless other Pampa citizens have chipped in with time, money or other contributions to make the event a success.

Competitors will be attempting what is actually a gruelling event.

"They're going to come out hurting," said Danny Degner, organizer of the benefit event. "I've seen a 24-hour horseshoe marathon, and they came off the field with their hands bleeding."

Degner said teams from Celanese, J. Bob's, Charlie's Furniture, Heritage Ford and the Texas National Guard B Company will compete for trophies and jerseys...and each team has put up a $300 donation to Kristina's medical fund for the privilege of competing.

"We've got most of the teams set," Degner said, "but we still need some people." Anyone available from noon Saturday to 4 p.m. Sunday "who want to help out," he added, should contact him at 665-6850 any time from 8 p.m. to 7 a.m.

"A lot of people have made donations already," he added. "It's not even possible to credit everyone who's donated or helped."

Among the donations, Degner said, are 82 watermelons, from Safeway, Sam White Insurance, Carl Baumgardner and Jim's Grocery.

"It's going to get hot for these people out there pitching horseshoes for 28 hours," he said. To help them make their marathon goal, he added, G.W. James has donated 245 hamburgers, which Burger King will match with fries and soft drinks.

Team, sponsor and individual trophies for the top three teams will be furnished, Degner said, by Holmes Gift Shoppe and Sports Center, Pampa Hardware and Vance Hall. Sponsor trophies for fourth and fifth place teams will be donated by Wayne's Western Wear and Electric Motor Equipment Co., and jerseys for fourth and fifth place team members by T Shirts Plus.

An important contribution, Degner added, is from members of the Packers Tiger League football team: team members will be working all weekend carting sand for the horseshoe pits, keeping the area clean, and ferrying the watermelons to the marathon site.

Wheelbarrows for this and future tournaments have been donated by Alco, Montgomery Ward and White's Auto, and Pampa Glass and Paint has supplied paint.

Another vital set of contributions — six sets of horseshoes — were donated by employee groups from Kmart, Hollywood, Penny's, Gordon's Jewelers, Zale's and Joe Fisher Realty.

Other Pampa merchants and individuals have donated additional money, or articles to be used in other fund-raising activities at the marathon.

Gray County voters move to computer age

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Nameless computers will soon decide the winners and losers of elections in Gray County.

But the human mind of Gray County Clerk Wanda Carter will still be used to make sure the machines don't hit the "tilt" mode and spew ballots all over the second floor of the courthouse.

Commissioners Wednesday approved the purchase of two automated vote counters at a cost of $4,130 each.

Hand counting paper ballots one at a time is out — automated counting in the blink of an eye is in.

But should the machines break down on election night, the specially-printed ballots can always be counted by hand, according to the county officials.

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy and Carter expect to have the automated system in place in time for the November General Election.

However, the purchase of the machines from Computer Election Systems of Dallas is subject to state certification of the system.

The machines are new models and have not yet received the stamp of approval from the Texas Secretary of State.

The machine can "read" both sides of its special ballot cards at one time. The card can handle up to 1,200 races or issues, according to the salesman who demonstrated the system at a previous meeting.

The small squares next to each issue or candidate on the special ballot can be marked with a pen or pencil when votes are cast, according to the computer firm.

As usual on election night, the ballots will be dropped into metal boxes at each precinct. When polls close, the precinct boxes will be brought into the county clerk's office, where the new machines will be located and the votes will be counted.

In other action, commissioners advertised for bids for new electrical wiring for the lights on the main runway at Perry Lefors Airport.

On October 1, commissioners will open the bids during a joint meeting with the airport board.

Kennedy said the lights presently work only on low intensity, due to shorts resulting from frayed insulation around the wiring.

Kennedy said the joint meeting may also include an executive session to consider the airport's operator, who runs the field under a contract with the county.

Wednesday morning's session resulted in a new motorgrader for Precinct 3. Commissioners approved the purchase of a new Caterpillar blade from West Texas Equipment Company of Amarillo. The new machine was purchased at $68,000, after the allowance for trading in the precinct's old machine.

Commissioners also accepted the resignation of County Extension Agent Carl Gibson. Gibson worked as an agent here about four years. He told commissioners he has accepted a new job with Transwestern Pipeline Company.

In other action, commissioners approved the plat of a mobile home park, Country Living Estates, located west of Pampa and north of highway 152, and they approved payment of $85,171 in county bills.

Pampa's team will host rodeo

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

One of the biggest rodeos in the Pampa High School Rodeo Club's history will kick up the dirt at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Grounds this weekend.

The rodeo is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday, with more events to start at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Janice Rucker, one of the parents who is helping organize the rodeo, said she is expecting 195 contestants from 35 Panhandle area schools to compete.

"We're getting them from everywhere," she said, including some recent entrants from Oklahoma towns.

"In fact, this is the most competitors I think we've had in several years."

She said the Pampa high school rodeo drew about 212 contestants a few years ago.

This year, each performance will feature about 100 cowboys and cowgirls, she said, some of whom are testing their mettle in two or three events.

Pampa will be represented by seven of the 22 members in the high school club.

The events include (in order of their appearance in the shows): bareback riding, barrel racing, calf roping, pole bending, ribbon roping, steer wrestling, goat tying, bull riding, breakaway roping, and team roping.

Prizes are buckles and returned entry fees for first place winners in the events, saddles for the best all-around cowboy and cowgirl, and trophies for the best boy and girl roping teams.

Before the riding, wrestling and roping starts, the Saturday show will begin with a grand entrance, and Rev. Joe Stabile, new pastor of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, will sing the national anthem and lead the audience in prayer.

A rodeo queen, selected from the girl contestants, will be crowned before the events begin.

Competition is limited to kids — freshmen through seniors — who are already members of the Tri-State Rodeo Association, and who entered the rodeo before the books closed Tuesday.

It's the only rodeo the club will put on here this year, and Rucker promises a good one.

Admission fees are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for kids.

No alcohol will be allowed on the rodeo grounds, and there will be signs posted to that effect," Rucker said.

The Pampa High School Rodeo Club is part of the Tri-State network of such clubs, and like the others, is not sanctioned or funded by a school district.

Parents of club members pay for training and transportation for the cowkids and their stock — parents are even running the concession stand this weekend.

Budget set for new taxing board

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

The Gray County Tax Appraisal District board gave unanimous approval to appraisal-office budgets for both the remainder of 1982 and 1983 during a meeting Tuesday evening.

New Chief Appraiser Charles Buzzard submitted budgets of $83,585 for the rest of 1982 and $300,000 for 1983.

The central appraisal office, newly mandated by state law, will provide property appraisals to all 10 county taxing entities beginning in 1983.

Buzzard plans to have his first appraisal roll completed for the taxing units by August of next year.

The appraisal office is funded by the taxing units, based on each unit's total tax levy. The largest share of the office operations will be paid by the Pampa Independent School District, followed by Gray County and the City of Pampa.

Within 30 days of Tuesday's appraisal board approval of the budgets, a majority of the taxing units can vote to reject the spending plans.

No vote is required for each taxing unit's approval of the budgets, but Buzzard will send a cover letter to each unit, suggesting they adopt resolutions of approval in order to speed up the office's start-up operations.

The first budget approved by the appraisal board earlier this year and submitted by the first designated Chief Appraiser, Charles Rand, was rejected by the taxing units.

That budget for 1982 was approved at $530,000.

Gray County is one of the last in the state to set up a central appraisal office.

Formation of the district has been delayed by rejection of the previous budget and by a fight among the units over representation on the appraisal board.

A new spirit of cooperation among taxing entities seemed to exist at Tuesday's board meeting.

Formerly designated Chief Appraiser, Charles Rand, who remains the city-school tax assessor-collector, attended the meeting to offer his advice and help to Buzzard.

Rand offered to help locate calculators for the office and other tips.

The school district has offered four of its desks for use in the office.

And a representative from the Alanreed School District said that unit wants to quickly approve its share of office funding, so appraisal work can begin immediately.

Also, as he has done previously, though he is not legally required to do it, appraisal board Chairman Jimmy Wilkerson opened board discussion

Charles Buzzard

Tuesday to the citizens at the meeting, asking for citizen input to the board's discussion.

The appraisal office will have eight full-time employees, counting Buzzard.

Man killed on Canadian River bridge

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

CANADIAN — A Canadian resident was killed early this morning when his pickup struck the rear end of a stationary tractor-trailer rig on the Canadian River Bridge.

Thomas Laverne Chitwood, 55, was pronounced dead at the scene by Hemphill County Judge Bob Guber after the accident.

According to Department of Public Safety trooper Larry Dunham, Dennis Neal Donaldson, 24, of Chittuck, Okla., was driving the 1978 Peterbilt rig south on the U.S. Highway 60 bridge when the power shut down on his truck.

"It just went dead, everything went dead on it — engine, lights and everything," Dunham said.

The trooper told Dunham "it felt like somebody just turned his keys and lights off," said the trooper.

Dunham said the truck was probably shut down by a major short in the electrical system, possibly in the battery cables.

Donaldson attempted to coast the rig across the bridge and get it out of traffic, the trooper said, but did not have the momentum to make it.

He stopped "just on the south side" of the mile-long bridge in the southbound lane, according to Dunham.

Before the trucker could put out warning lights for traffic, he said, Chitwood's vehicle struck the darkened truck from the rear.

The pickup went under the rear of the trailer, crushing its front end and bending the rear axle of the rig into the axle in front of it.

Chitwood was killed instantly by the impact, Dunham said.

Dunham said Chitwood applied his brakes before hitting the rig, but by the time he saw the Peterbilt "it was probably too late."

The accident occurred in a 55 mph zone, the trooper said, but he had no estimate of how fast Chitwood was driving.

Chitwood "probably just wasn't paying enough attention" on his early morning drive, and the rig was probably nearly invisible in the dark.

Traffic in the southbound lane was tied up for about an hour and a half, Dunham said, before a wrecker from Quality Body Shop in Canadian hauled the rig away.

The Canadian Fire Department was called in to wash debris off the bridge road.

It was the second fatal accident involving a Wolf Creek Enterprises rig in less than a month.

That company, based in Chittuck, has been hauling ground hay on Highway 60 to Wheeler for use in cattle feedlots.

In the first accident, Richard Jay Heckman was killed Sept. 2 when his pickup was hit by a Wolf Creek rig south of Canadian on U.S. Highway 83.

The rig was trying to swerve around Heckman's pickup as it pulled out of Farm Road 1258, trooper Dunham said at the time.

Services for Chitwood will be at 2 p.m. Friday in First Baptist Church of Canadian with the Rev. Marvin Kehl, associate pastor, officiating. Graveside services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Fairfax Cemetery in Fairfax, Okla.

Burial will be under the direction of Stickley Hill Funeral Directors of Canadian.

Chitwood was an oilfield driller.

Survivors include: his wife, Lois, of the home; two daughters, Tommie Hope Mackie of Ames, Okla., and Anna Marie Yohe of Pampa; his mother, Mrs. Iva Chitwood of Fairfax, Okla.; two brothers, Troy Chitwood of Denver, Colo., and Barton Chitwood of Perryton, Okla.; four sisters, Gwen Keith of Tuttle, Okla., Juanita Cheney of Abilene, Bernice Riley of Waynesboro, Tenn., and Kathy Aston of Tulsa, Okla.; and five grandsons.

Here's how to wash the car for free

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer
There may be no such thing as a free lunch, but there will be a free car wash in Pampa Saturday.
With no strings attached, members of the high school choir will wash cars from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Coronado Center parking lot, and they won't charge one thin dime.
There is money involved for the service, but it's not from the price of the car washes.
The event is a wash-a-thon.
This week, choir students are asking local merchants and citizens to pledge money to the choirs for each car washed.
The choir supporters will pledge pennies, nickels, dimes or dollars for each car the students clean Saturday, and every car the kids wash adds to the total donated to fund local choir activities, according to the Choir Booster's Club Vice President, Larry Cross.
"No money will be asked for," Cross said about the charge for a car wash Saturday.
However, the choir booster said donations will be accepted.
Cross said the donated money will be used to pay for choir trips, equipment and other activities.

"They raised more than $13,000 last year. The choirs washed 403 cars in eight hours." Cross said of last year's fund raiser.
"There will be 50 to 60 students there at all times, forming two lines," he said about Saturday's planned mammoth car wash.
Cross said the shopping center is donating the space and water, and a local bottling company is donating soft drinks for the students.
Brushes, hoses, and materials are being offered by parents of choir students, according to the booster.

On Wednesday afternoon, Rainier broke the news to Stephanie that her mother was dead, then returned to his ancient hilltop castle with Caroline and Albert.
Stephanie remained hospitalized today. A palace spokeswoman said none of the girl's injuries "threatened her life."
Nadia Lacoste, who had been Grace's spokeswoman since she married Rainier 26 years ago, said she spent some time with Rainier and his children Wednesday after rushing back from a West German vacation.
"They all looked so sad it hurt just to look at them," Mrs. Lacoste said, her face ashen. "The prince looked terrible. He looked beaten."
She said the princess "regained consciousness at some point before her death because she requested that if people were going to send flowers, they be small, simple flowers."
Outside the castle perched atop a rocky peak, residents began paying their last respects to Oscar-winning actress their handsome prince wooed away from Hollywood at the height of her brief but triumphant career.

Camera-toting tourists hovered outside, snapping pictures of the daily changing of the guard and chattering in a dozen different languages.
Palace guards, black armbands on their spotless white uniforms, allowed only Monaco's 30,000 residents into the palace chapel to view the open coffin.

Anti-abortion law fails to make it to full term in the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a setback for the New Right, the Senate has closed off efforts by conservative Jesse Helms to push anti-abortion legislation through the Congress this year.
After two weeks of tense debate and procedural struggle, the Senate voted 47-46 on Wednesday to set aside an anti-abortion package drafted by Helms and bitterly resisted by a small group of liberals.
"We just weren't going to get rolled on this issue which was supposedly so popular," said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., a liberal Helms opponent. "We weren't going to get snowed under by a moral crusade."
The defeat of the abortion measures came despite a last-minute lobbying effort by President Reagan, and threats by anti-abortion groups to work for the defeat of those who voted against them.
Senate liberals won apparently by making clever use of rules on filibusters, thus blocking a direct yes or no vote on Helms anti-abortion measures.
On his third try on Wednesday, Helms was able to get only within 10 votes of the necessary 60 votes to limit the abortion debate.
Helms has also introduced legislation designed to restore prayer in public schools, which was still before the Senate today. But in the wake of their victory, liberals said they would fight that measure as tenaciously as they did the abortion measure.
Both the prayer and abortion proposals were attached to a federal debt limit bill that must be approved by Oct. 1, or the government will be without authority to borrow enough money to pay its bills.
Despite Reagan's appeal for help, 16 Republican senators joined 31 Democrats in agreeing to table or set aside the Helms abortion proposal.
They included such conservative Republicans as John Tower of Texas, Ted Stevens of Alaska, Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming, and William Roth of Delaware.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the leader of the liberal filibuster, said abortion is an issue on which most senators have already made up their minds so they were unlikely to change their minds even if the president of the United States asked them.
For 1982, Packwood said, "The abortion debate is finished as far as the Constitution is concerned."
The Helms amendment included a congressional finding that the Supreme Court was mistaken in 1973 when it legalized most abortions. There was also a provision to facilitate a quick Supreme Court review of any anti-abortion legislation enacted by a state legislature.
It also would have permanently prohibited all direct and indirect funding of abortions, including research and the training of medical students in abortion procedure.
Senate leaders also agreed to shelve a second anti-abortion measure for the year, a constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, which would have permitted Congress or the state legislatures to regulate or ban abortions.
Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee agreed Wednesday to place a constitutional amendment on abortion before the Senate sometime next spring.
Hatch said one reason why any anti-abortion legislation failed to get through the Senate this year was deep divisions within the organizations urging an end to the 1.5 million abortion performed in the United States each year.
"I think there have been some divisive problems outside the Senate," Hatch said. "There has been some infighting that has really been unbecoming."
Some anti-abortion groups supported Helms' approach on anti-abortion legislation. Others, including the U.S. Catholic Conference, wanted to change the Constitution even though an amendment requires two-thirds votes in the House and Senate, plus ratification by three-fifths of the state legislatures.

Pampa okays reduced budget

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer
The amended Pampa city budget and tax rate received the unanimous approval of commissioners Tuesday, following reductions in proposed tax and service fee increases previously submitted by City Manager Mack Wofford.
The amended document was filed with the city secretary Monday and proposes total city spending during fiscal 1983 of $7,226,266.
The tax hike approved Tuesday increases the city tax rate 1.9 cents per $100 valuation, from 56 cents per $100 to 57.9 cents.
The new rate will raise city taxes on a $30,000 home here about $5.70 per year.
The original budget and tax rate called for an increase of four cents per $100 valuation.
Commissioners Tuesday also approved a 65-cent increase in the water rate for the first 3,000 gallons used during a month. The charge for the first 3,000 gallons was increased from $6 to $6.65.
The original budget called for a seven percent increase in all city service fees: water, sewer and garbage collection.
City management and commissioners were able to cancel most of the planned increases in taxes and services, while at the same time total spending approved Tuesday was only slightly reduced, because federal funds in the budget were diverted toward other expenditures.
The city first proposed spending $267,000 in federal revenue sharing funds on replacing 17,000 feet of 2-inch city water lines.
However, Wofford reduced the plan for replacing water lines next year down to 8,000 feet, and that reduction freed $140,000 of the federal funds for other expenditures.
The shuffling of funds reduced the proposed increases.
The new budget and tax rate must pass on a second reading by commissioners before it becomes official. The next meeting to consider the budget will be held September 28.
In other action, commissioners unanimously approved on first reading an "open container" law on public property within the city (see Wednesday's Pampa News).
The ordinance will make it illegal to possess an open container of alcoholic beverage on public property within the city, including most portions of Central Park.
Other city parks will be exempt from the open container ordinance.
Final approval of the ordinance is expected at the commission meeting September 28.
Commissioners Tuesday also appointed Dr. Robert J. Phillips to the Regional Mental Health - Mental Retardation board; approved the first payment for a sewer project in West Pampa; accepted water and sewer lines for city maintenance in the Tumbleweed I Addition; denied a request for a variance in a building permit fee for Hallmark Agricor Incorporated; tabled a request for a variance in construction of a driveway at a Pampa residence; assessed a charge of $5.45 per foot for curb and gutter construction along highway 70; adjusted the delinquent tax roll; held public hearings for three proposed zoning changes; approved pay raises for 10 city employees and other personnel items; and approved payment of $148,205 in city bills.

Chess Club finds castle in S-town

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer
SKELLYTOWN - There's a new game in town — or perhaps an old game.
The Caprock Kings Chess Club, which began early this month, will hold its fourth meeting next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Skellytown Community Center, on the corner of 2nd and Lindberg Streets.
It meets every Wednesday night, same time, same place.
Kerry Anderson, one of the founders of the group, said it includes 16 members, mostly from Pampa, with a few from Borger and Skellytown.
The club's members range in age from 16 to 40, and represent quite a range of experience, too.
"The main purpose of the club is just to get chess players together," Anderson said.
"We have experienced tournament players there, as well as just people who are just learning to play."
"We welcome all skill levels," he said.
Each meeting features "just a few minutes of business," Anderson said, and then a lot of chess playing.
But the club, affiliated with the United States Chess Federation, will be sponsoring special events in the future — lectures and demonstrations of chess techniques.
Last week's meeting featured a demonstration on the "Scotch Gambit opening" (a technique to start a game to your advantage), presented by Dale Campbell, one of the group's more experienced members.
Campbell is "probably our strongest tournament player," Anderson said, and has a few years of competitive play under his belt.
The group also hopes to sponsor a visit from a national grand master, and to hold its own tournament.
Anderson said the tournament will not take place for two or three months, because the group is "right now sort of getting our feet on the ground."
There's another club for chess fans in Amarillo, Anderson said, but the Caprock Kings is the only active chess group in the east Panhandle.
For more information on the club, call Anderson at 669-7328 or Dale Campbell at 665-8872.

State energy advisory group is seeking information on lignite

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An energy advisory council of top state officials has made public its desire to collect a portion of oil company overcharges that the federal government is holding.

The Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council — TENRAC — also stated Wednesday that it wants the state to assume control of permits for waste water discharge.

General counsel John Gooding of TENRAC said $13 billion in overcharges is outstanding but probably only a small percentage of that amount will be collected. He said Texas last year received $618,000 from Chevron.

Nevertheless, in response to a question from Speaker Bill Clayton, who asked if collection of overcharges might mean "several millions of dollars" for Texas, Gooding said, "Quite likely, yes."

TENRAC adopted a resolution stating that the federal government "should direct to the states" money collected from oil companies that overcharged their customers if the money has not been claimed by "injured users." The resolution says the money would be used to benefit state energy consumers.

TENRAC urged the Legislature to study shoreline erosion along Texas bays and the Gulf of Mexico and asked the Texas congressional delegation to support spending federal funds until 1985 on programs to conserve energy.

Another TENRAC resolution recommended that Congress amend the Clean Water Act to enable Texas to regulate waste water discharges under guidelines at least as stringent as federal guidelines.

"If we take this over, it must not be in the spirit of laxness," said Clements.

Louis Beecher, TENRAC member, said the number of waste water inspectors in Texas had dropped from a high of 62 in 1977 to 26 as the federal government has begun to pull out of the program.

"If we need more people, for goodness sakes get more people," said Clements.

H.M. "Moak" Rollins, a public utility commissioner and TENRAC member, told the advisory council about six major lignite plants generated up to 40 percent of Texas' electrical power last year, and an additional 10 plants should be completed by 1990.

Since 1975, according to Dr. William Fisher, another TENRAC member, 25 percent of all the new coal produced has been consumed in Texas. "If everybody was doing what Texas is doing, we wouldn't have an energy problem today," said Fisher.

Joseph Chagra to be rearraigned Friday

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra is scheduled to change his plea from innocent to guilty Friday as part of his plea bargain with prosecutors in the Judge John H. Wood Jr. assassination case.

U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions late Wednesday scheduled the rearraignment for 10 a.m. Friday after Chagra's attorney, Billy Ravkind, completed another case in Dallas.

Sessions earlier this week announced that Chagra was the only one of the defendants in the Wood killing to reach a plea bargain agreement by the deadline on Monday.

Chagra, 35, has agreed to plead guilty to murder conspiracy in exchange for the dropping of four other charges and a sentence not to exceed 10 years in prison, published reports said. In return, Chagra reportedly agreed to testify against Charles V. Harrelson, 44, the man who allegedly shot Wood to death here on May 29, 1979.

Under the agreement, Chagra would not have to testify against his brother, Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, charged with paying Harrelson $250,000 to kill Wood, or Elizabeth Chagra, 28, Jimmy's wife, who was indicted for conspiring to kill the judge and to obstruct justice, reports said.

Neither Sessions, the prosecutors nor Ravkind, however, have confirmed the reported terms of the plea bargain deal.

But the plea by Joe Chagra reportedly enhances greatly the government's case against the other defendants because being an admitted co-conspirator would remove any attorney-client privilege that Joe Chagra could have claimed with Jimmy Chagra and Harrelson.

As an outgrowth of the Joe Chagra plea bargain, defense attorneys are expected to soon file amended motions for changes of venue and for severing the cases and trying the defendants separately.

At least two trials are anticipated now. Sessions previously had scheduled all the defendants for trial on Sept. 28.

Three capital murder cases overturned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has overturned three capital murder convictions and granted new trials to defendants from Lubbock, Bryan and Houston.

The court, returning to work Wednesday after a summer recess, upheld the conviction of a fourth capital murder defendant, from El Paso.

Clarence Allen Lackey of Lubbock was convicted in 1978 of capital murder in the rape of a woman whose home he was burglarizing. Prosecutors said he beat her and slashed her throat. Detectives found her body near Lackey's home.

Police also his fingerprints in her home, found her blood on his boots and gained the testimony of Lackey's live-in girlfriend that he had admitted the killing.

But the appeals court, which had previously upheld the legality of the search of Lackey's home and affirmed his conviction, ruled Wednesday that a juror was improperly dismissed.

A juror in a capital murder case can be eliminated if he says he is so opposed to the death penalty that he could not assess it. The juror in question in the Lackey case stated only that his feelings about the death penalty would affect his deliberations. The juror was "prematurely" eliminated, the court ruled.

Curtis Paul Harris of Bryan was convicted in the 1978 capital murder of Timothy Merka. According to trial testimony, Merka was flagged down on a rural road by Harris and a friend who told Merka they needed booster cables to start their stalled van.

The court granted Harris a new trial because, it ruled, the trial court did not allow the defense to adequately cross-examine Harris' female companion, a witness to the murder.

Sammie Norman English of Houston won a new capital murder trial because the court ruled that he had no legal counsel before he was examined by a psychiatrist.

English was convicted in the 1977 slaying of David Harry Samsel, who was kidnapped during the course of a robbery and later shot to death.

The court upheld the capital murder conviction of John Melvin Dorough Jr. of El Paso. Dorough had been sentenced to life in prison after he was convicted in the 1977 shooting death of Samuel Cocergine.

Dorough was accused of killing Cocergine in the course of raping Cocergine's female companion after abducting them both. The added rape charge made the crime a capital case. Dorough argued the rape and the murder were two separate cases, but the court disagreed.

Bank official took funds to cure for disease

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — The former president of two failed banks says he embezzled $4.8 million to finance a motion picture so he could generate money to battle the disease that claimed the life of his daughter.

Henry Earl Fagan, 45, was sentenced Tuesday to eight years in prison after pleading guilty to embezzling the funds from one of the banks.

Fagan said Wednesday he chose an illegal means to obtain the money because "time was running out" on the fight against cystic fibrosis and the bank's funds were "an available resource."

"My goal, my desire, is to make a significant contribution in the fight against cystic fibrosis," he said. "I hope to do this now through public education."

Fagan, who remains free on $1,000 bond, held a news conference here after the advice of his attorney. U.S. District Judge William Steger said the former bank president will begin serving his sentence Oct. 4.

U.S. Attorney Bob Wortham of Beaumont said Fagan embezzled the money to produce a film "about a race, a girl and a race" called "And They're Off."

Fagan said he hoped to use the movie to turn the $4.8 million into several times that amount, and had planned to contribute all profits from the project to cystic fibrosis research.

Fagan, the former head of Guaranty Bond State Bank of Redwater and the Bowie County State Bank of Hooks, was accused of misapplying money from Guaranty Bond on 45 different occasions between Feb. 10 and July 28.

State banking inspectors making routine checks at the jointly owned banks discovered "questionable loans."

The two banks voluntarily closed July 28, but opened two days later under different names and different owners when Texas banking officials issued new charters.

Fagan's daughter Nancy died two years ago. He said his five other children are carriers of the congenital children's disease, which is characterized by malfunctioning of the pancreas and frequent respiratory infections.

He said he embezzled the money not only to protect the five children, "but the literally thousands of young Americans that are suffering and dying at this very moment because of insufficient research against this orphan disease that's truly a killer."

The rights to the movie were given by Fagan to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., a federal agency that insures banks.

Judge says striking workers not entitled to unemployment

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Union attorneys say they will appeal a decision by a state district judge that denies unemployment benefits to about 2,500 workers who went on a protracted strike at a Texas refinery.

Here's how to wash the car for free

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

There may be no such thing as a free lunch, but there will be a free car wash in Pampa Saturday.

With no strings attached, members of the high school choir will wash cars from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Coronado Center parking lot, and they won't charge one thin dime.

There is money involved for the service, but it's not from the price of the car washes.

The event is a wash-a-thon. This week, choir students are asking local merchants and citizens to pledge money to the choir for each car washed.

The choir supporters will pledge pennies, nickels, dimes or dollars for each car the students clean Saturday, and every car the kids wash adds to the total donated to fund local choir activities, according to the Choir Booster's Club Vice President, Larry Cross.

"No money will be asked for," Cross said about the charge for a car wash Saturday.

However, the choir booster said donations will be accepted. Cross said the donated money will be used to pay for choir trips, equipment and other activities.

"They raised more than $13,000 last year. The choir washed 403 cars in eight hours," Cross said of last year's fund raiser.

"There will be 50 to 60 students there at all times, forming two lines," he said about Saturday's planned mammoth car wash.

Cross said the shopping center is donating the space and water, and a local bottling company is donating soft drinks for the students.

Brushes, hoses, and materials are being offered by parents of choir students, according to the booster.

On Wednesday afternoon, Rainier broke the news to Stephanie that her mother was dead, then returned to his ancient hilltop castle with Caroline and Albert.

Stephanie remained hospitalized today. A palace spokeswoman said none of the girls' injuries "threatened her life."

Nadia Lacoste, who had been Grace's spokeswoman since she married Rainier 26 years ago, said she spent some time with Rainier and his children Wednesday after rushing back from a West German vacation.

"They all looked so sad it hurt just to look at them," Mrs. Lacoste said, her face ashen. "The prince looked terrible. He looked beaten."

She said the princess "regained consciousness at some point before her death because she requested that if people were going to send flowers, they be small, simple flowers."

Outside the castle perched atop a rocky peak, residents began paying their last respects to Oscar-winning actress their handsome prince wowed away from Hollywood at the height of her brief but triumphant career.

Camera-toting tourists hovered outside, snapping pictures of the daily changing of the guard and chattering in a dozen different languages.

Palace guards, black armbands on their spotless white uniforms, allowed only Monaco's 30,000 residents into the palace chapel to view the open coffin.

Anti-abortion law fails to make it to full term in the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a setback for the New Right, the Senate has closed off efforts by conservative Jesse Helms to push anti-abortion legislation through the Congress this year.

After two weeks of tense debate and procedural struggle, the Senate voted 47-46 on Wednesday to set aside an anti-abortion package drafted by Helms and bitterly resisted by a small group of liberals.

"We just weren't going to get rolled on this issue which was supposedly so popular," said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., a liberal Helms opponent. "We weren't going to get snowed under by a moral crusade."

The defeat of the abortion measures came despite a last-minute lobbying effort by President Reagan, and threats by anti-abortion groups to work for the defeat of those who voted against them.

Senate liberals won apparently by making clever use of rules on filibusters, thus blocking a direct yes or no vote on Helms anti-abortion measures.

On his third try on Wednesday, Helms was able to get only within 10 votes of the necessary 60 votes to limit the abortion debate.

Helms has also introduced legislation designed to restore prayer in public schools, which was still before the Senate today. But in the wake of their victory, liberals said they would fight that measure as tenaciously as they did the abortion measure.

Both the prayer and abortion proposals were attached to a federal debt limit bill that must be approved by Oct. 1, or the government will be without authority to borrow enough money to pay its bills.

Despite Reagan's appeal for help, 16 Republican senators joined 31 Democrats in agreeing to table or set aside the Helms abortion proposal.

They included such conservative Republicans as John Tower of Texas, Ted Stevens of Alaska, Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming, and William Roth of Delaware.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the leader of the liberal filibuster, said abortion is an issue on which most senators have already made up their minds so they were unlikely to change their minds even if the president of the United States asked them to.

For 1982, Packwood said, "The abortion debate is finished as far as the Constitution is concerned."

The Helms amendment included a congressional finding that the Supreme Court was mistaken in 1973 when it legalized most abortions. There was also a provision to facilitate a quick Supreme Court review of any anti-abortion legislation enacted by a state legislature.

It also would have permanently prohibited all direct and indirect funding of abortions, including research and the training of medical students in abortion procedure.

Senate leaders also agreed to shelve a second anti-abortion measure for the year, a constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, which would have permitted Congress or the state legislatures to regulate or ban abortions.

Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee agreed Wednesday to place a constitutional amendment on abortion before the Senate sometime next spring.

Hatch said one reason why any anti-abortion legislation failed to get through the Senate this year was deep divisions within the organizations urging an end to the 1.5 million abortion performed in the United States each year.

"I think there have been some divisive problems outside the Senate," Hatch said. "There has been some infighting that has really been unbecoming."

Some anti-abortion groups supported Helms' approach on anti-abortion legislation. Others, including the U.S. Catholic Conference, wanted to change the Constitution even though an amendment requires two-thirds votes in the House and Senate, plus ratification by three-fifths of the state legislatures.

Pampa okays reduced budget

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

The amended Pampa city budget and tax rate received the unanimous approval of commissioners Tuesday, following reductions in proposed tax and service fee increases previously submitted by City Manager Mack Wofford.

The amended document was filed with the city secretary Monday and proposes total city spending during fiscal 1983 of $7,226,266.

The tax hike approved Tuesday increases the city tax rate 1.9 cents per $100 valuation, from 56 cents per $100 to 57.9 cents.

The new rate will raise city taxes on a $30,000 home here about $5.70 per year.

The original budget and tax rate called for an increase of four cents per $100 valuation.

Commissioners Tuesday also approved a 65-cent increase in the water rate for the first 3,000 gallons used during a month. The charge for the first 3,000 gallons was increased from $6 to $6.65.

The original budget called for a seven percent increase in all city service fees: water, sewer and garbage collection. City management and commissioners were able to cancel most of the planned increases in taxes and services, while at the same time total spending approved Tuesday was only slightly reduced, because federal funds in the budget were diverted toward other expenditures.

The city first proposed spending $267,000 in federal revenue sharing funds on replacing 17,000 feet of 2-inch city water lines.

However, Wofford reduced the plan for replacing water lines next year down to 8,000 feet, and that reduction freed $140,000 of the federal funds for other expenditures.

The shuffling of funds reduced the proposed increases.

The new budget and tax rate must pass on a second reading by commissioners before it becomes official. The next meeting to consider the budget will be held September 28.

In other action, commissioners unanimously approved on first reading an "open container" law on public property within the city (see Wednesday's Pampa News).

The ordinance will make it illegal to possess an open container of alcoholic beverage on public property within the city, including most portions of Central Park.

Other city parks will be exempt from the open container ordinance.

Final approval of the ordinance is expected at the commission meeting September 28.

Commissioners Tuesday also appointed Dr. Robert J. Phillips to the Regional Mental Health - Mental Retardation board; approved the first payment for a sewer project in West Pampa; accepted water and sewer lines for city maintenance in the Tumbleweed I Addition; denied a request for a variance in a building permit fee for Hallmark Agricorp Incorporated; tabled a request for a variance in construction of a driveway at a Pampa residence; assessed a charge of $5.45 per foot for curb and gutter construction along highway 70; adjusted the delinquent tax roll; held public hearings for three proposed zoning changes; approved pay raises for 10 city employees and other personnel items; and approved payment of $148,205 in city bills.

Chess Club finds castle in S-town

By DAVID CHRISTENSON

SKELLYTOWN - There's a new game in town — or perhaps an old game.

The Caprock Kings Chess Club, which began early this month, will hold its fourth meeting next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Skellytown Community Center, on the corner of 2nd and Lindberg Streets.

It meets every Wednesday night, same time, same place. Kerry Anderson, one of the founders of the group, said it includes 16 members, mostly from Pampa, with a few from Borger and Skellytown.

The club's members range in age from 16 to 40, and represent quite a range of experience, too.

"The main purpose of the club is just to get chess players together," Anderson said.

"We have experienced tournament players there, as well as just people who are just learning to play."

"We welcome all skill levels," he said. Each meeting features "just a few minutes of business,"

Anderson said, and then a lot of chess playing.

But the club, affiliated with the United States Chess Federation, will be sponsoring special events in the future — lectures and demonstrations of chess techniques.

Last week's meeting featured a demonstration on the "Scotch Gambit opening" (a technique to start a game to your advantage), presented by Dale Campbell, one of the group's more experienced members.

Campbell is "probably our strongest tournament player," Anderson said, and has a few years of competitive play under his belt.

The group also hopes to sponsor a visit from a national grand master, and to hold its own tournament.

Anderson said the tournament will not take place for two or three months, because the group is "right now sort of getting our feet on the ground."

There's another club for chess fans in Amarillo, Anderson said, but the Caprock Kings is the only active chess group in the east Panhandle.

For more information on the club, call Anderson at 669-7328 or Dale Campbell at 665-8872.

State energy advisory group is seeking information on lignite

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An energy advisory council of top state officials has made public its desire to collect a portion of oil company overcharges that the federal government is holding. The Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council — TENRAC — also stated Wednesday that it wants the state to assume control of permits for waste water discharge. General counsel John Gooding of TENRAC said $13 billion in overcharges is outstanding but probably only a small percentage of that amount will be collected. He said Texas last year received $618,000 from Chevron. Nevertheless, in response to a question from Speaker Bill Clayton, who asked if collection of overcharges might mean "several millions of dollars" for Texas, Gooding said, "Quite likely, yes."

TENRAC adopted a resolution stating that the federal government "should direct to the states" money collected from oil companies that overcharged their customers if the money has not been claimed by "injured users." The resolution says the money would be used to benefit state energy consumers. TENRAC urged the Legislature to study shoreline erosion along Texas bays and the Gulf of Mexico and asked the Texas congressional delegation to support spending federal funds until 1985 on programs to conserve energy. Another TENRAC resolution recommended that Congress amend the Clean Water Act to enable Texas to regulate waste water discharges under guidelines at least as stringent as federal guidelines. "If we take this over, it must not be in the spirit of laxness," said Clements.

Louis Beecher, TENRAC member, said the number of waste water inspectors in Texas had dropped from a high of 62 in 1977 to 26 as the federal government has begun to pull out of the program. "If we need more people, for goodness sakes get more people," said Clements.

H.M. "Moak" Rollins, a public utility commissioner and TENRAC member, told the advisory council about six major lignite plants generated up to 40 percent of Texas' electrical power last year, and an additional 10 plants should be completed by 1990. Since 1975, according to Dr. William Fisher, another TENRAC member, 25 percent of all the new coal produced has been consumed in Texas. "If everybody was doing what Texas is doing, we wouldn't have an energy problem today," said Fisher.

Joseph Chagra to be rearraigned Friday

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra is scheduled to change his plea from innocent to guilty Friday as part of his plea bargain with prosecutors in the Judge John H. Wood Jr. assassination case. U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions late Wednesday scheduled the rearraignment for 10 a.m. Friday after Chagra's attorney, Billy Ravkind, completed another case in Dallas. Sessions earlier this week announced that Chagra was the only one of the defendants in the Wood killing to reach a plea bargain agreement by the deadline on Monday. Chagra, 35, has agreed to plead guilty to murder conspiracy in exchange for the dropping of four other charges and a sentence not to exceed 10 years in prison, published reports said. In return, Chagra reportedly agreed to testify against Charles V. Harrelson, 44, the man who allegedly shot Wood to death here on May 29, 1979. Under the agreement, Chagra would not have to testify against his brother, Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, charged with paying Harrelson $250,000 to kill Wood, or Elizabeth Chagra, 28, Jimmy's wife, who was indicted for conspiring to kill the judge and to obstruct justice, reports said. Neither Sessions, the prosecutors nor Ravkind, however, have confirmed the reported terms of the plea bargain deal. But the plea by Joe Chagra reportedly enhances greatly the government's case against the other defendants because being an admitted co-conspirator would remove any attorney-client privilege that Joe Chagra could have claimed with Jimmy Chagra and Harrelson. As an outgrowth of the Joe Chagra plea bargain, defense attorneys are expected to soon file amended motions for changes of venue and for severing the cases and trying the defendants separately. At least two trials are anticipated now. Sessions previously had scheduled all the defendants for trial on Sept. 28.

Three capital murder cases overturned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has overturned three capital murder convictions and granted new trials to defendants from Lubbock, Bryan and Houston. The court, returning to work Wednesday after a summer recess, upheld the conviction of a fourth capital murder defendant, from El Paso. Clarence Allen Lackey of Lubbock was convicted in 1978 of capital murder in the rape of a woman whose home he was burglarizing. Prosecutors said he beat her and slashed her throat. Detectives found her body near Lackey's home. Police also his fingerprints in her home, found her blood on his boots and gained the testimony of Lackey's live-in girlfriend that he had admitted the killing. But the appeals court, which had previously upheld the legality of the search of Lackey's home and affirmed his conviction, ruled Wednesday that a juror was improperly dismissed. A juror in a capital murder case can be eliminated if he says he is so opposed to the death penalty that he could not assess it. The juror in question in the Lackey case stated only that his feelings about the death penalty would affect his deliberations. The juror was "prematurely" eliminated, the court ruled. Curtis Paul Harris of Bryan was convicted in the 1978 capital murder of Timothy Merka. According to trial testimony, Merka was flagged down on a rural road by Harris and a friend who told Merka they needed booster cables to start their stalled van. The court granted Harris a new trial because, it ruled, the trial court did not allow the defense to adequately cross-examine Harris' female companion, a witness to the murder. Sammie Norman English of Houston won a new capital murder trial because the court ruled that he had no legal counsel before he was examined by a psychiatrist. English was convicted in the 1977 slaying of David Harry Samsel, who was kidnapped during the course of a robbery and later shot to death.

The court upheld the capital murder conviction of John Melvin Dorough Jr. of El Paso. Dorough had been sentenced to life in prison after he was convicted in the 1977 shooting death of Samuel Cocergine. Dorough was accused of killing Cocergine in the course of raping Cocergine's female companion after abducting them both. The added rape charge made the crime a capital case. Dorough argued the rape and the murder were two separate cases, but the court disagreed.

Bank official took funds to cure for disease

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — The former president of two failed banks says he embezzled $4.8 million to finance a motion picture so he could generate money to battle the disease that claimed the life of his daughter. Henry Earl Fagan, 45, was sentenced Tuesday to eight years in prison after pleading guilty to embezzling the funds from one of the banks. Fagan said Wednesday he chose an illegal means to obtain the money because "time was running out" on the fight against cystic fibrosis and the bank's funds were "an available resource." "My goal, my desire, is to make a significant contribution in the fight against cystic fibrosis," he said. "I hope to do this now through public education."

Fagan, who remains free on $1,000 bond, held a news conference here against the advice of his attorney. U.S. District Judge William Steger said the former bank president will begin serving his sentence Oct. 4. U.S. Attorney Bob Wortham of Beaumont said Fagan embezzled the money to produce a film "about a horse, a girl and a race" called "And They're Off." Fagan said he hoped to use the movie to turn the $4.8 million into several times that amount, and had planned to contribute all profits from the project to cystic fibrosis research. Fagan, the former head of Guaranty Bond State Bank of Redwater and the Bowie County State Bank of Hooks, was accused of misapplying money from Guaranty Bond on 45 different occasions between Feb. 10 and July 28. State banking inspectors making routine checks at the jointly owned banks discovered "questionable loans." The two banks voluntarily closed July 28, but opened two days later under different names and different owners when Texas banking officials issued new charters. Fagan's daughter Nancy died two years ago. He said his five other children are carriers of the congenital children's disease, which is characterized by malfunctioning of the pancreas and frequent respiratory infections. He said he embezzled the money not only to protect the five children, "but the literally thousands of young Americans that are suffering and dying at this very moment because of insufficient research against this orphan disease that's truly a killer." The rights to the movie were given by Fagan to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., a federal agency that insures banks.

Judge says striking workers not entitled to unemployment

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Union attorneys say they will appeal a decision by a state district judge that denies unemployment benefits to about 2,500 workers who went on a protracted strike at a Texaco refinery. Judge Thomas A. Thomas affirmed Wednesday a Texas Employment Commission ruling that union employees at Texaco's Port Arthur refinery were not entitled to jobless benefits. Leonce J. Norris, a member of Oil, Chemical & Atomic Workers union local 4-23, had filed suit for the benefits during the 32-week strike. Union attorneys maintained any court action would apply to all OCAW members who applied for unemployment benefits. Attorney Tom Rugg said about 2,500 union members could have received up to $7.5 million in benefits. Thomas ruled Texaco did not terminate the workers by refusing to grant the union's last-minute request for a contract extension at a Jan. 7 bargaining session. Union attorneys had argued Texaco, in effect, fired the workers by refusing the grant the extension. But the judge said union members would have had to make an "unconditional" offer to return to work and that offer been denied by Texaco officials. Thomas issued his decision Wednesday just minutes after Texaco, TEC and union attorneys presented their final arguments. He said he did not deliberate further because, "I want to resolve this dispute and set this community to rest."

The legal tangle began in early April when local TEC appeals officer John Summerfield ruled Norris should receive unemployment benefits. He said Norris was "involuntarily unemployed." The commission overturned Summerfield's decision May 7, saying union members set up pickets and refused work available to them. Later that month, State District Judge Jack Brookshire issued a temporary injunction setting aside the commission's ruling and ordering the TEC to pay jobless benefits to Norris. But the 9th Court of Appeals voided Brookshire's order and said he had no right to issue the injunction.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Tomorrowland

On the day before he died in December 1966, Walt Disney lay on his hospital bed staring at the ceiling, mentally planning a second Disneyland. According to his older brother, Disney imagined the ceiling's acoustical squares as quarter-sections of land in central Florida.

"Now there is where the highway will run," he told Roy Disney. "There is the route for the monorail."

The park would be called Disney World, and the centerpiece (as Walt Disney imagined it 16 years ago) would be "a showcase to the world of the American free-enterprise system." The dying Disney referred to it as "Epcot."

On Oct. 1, a $1 billion "experimental prototype community of tomorrow" is to open at Orlando, Fla. Its 260 acres, which dwarf the existing Disney World and loop around a lagoon in a figure-eight with such eye-catching structures as an 18-story silver globe and a Mayan-style pyramid.

To some degree, Epcot is not exactly what Walt Disney foresaw. According to a longtime associate, Disney World president Dick Nunis, Disney wanted real houses, schools and offices at Epcot. "It should always be in a state of becoming," Nunis told Nunis, a utopia with the latest technology in everything.

Reality, however, dictated a mix of rides and attraction together with a "Future World" showing technology in six pavilions, and a "World Showcase" displaying nine nations in stylized minitowns. Several corporate sponsors such as Exxon will add about $300 million in displays to what the Disney organization has already spent.

There's more, of course. The trademark of every Disney creation is constant change, endless planning, continual innovation, perfection down to the smallest detail, and the gathering of talent and genius to turn the impossible into reality. For instance, work is in progress at Epcot to depict a swarm of locusts besetting a field of grain, a robot Benjamin Franklin walking up a flight of stairs, and a jar of mustard that plays the saxophone.

We often wonder what the world would be like of more attention were paid to history's creative geniuses and less to the power-hungry, whose political adventures have brought our planet so much misery. Working in precisely opposite directions, the despot destroys and accentuates the negative while the Disneys of mankind build.

As Nunis puts it: "Isn't there a need more than ever to have a positive feeling? I mean, we've gone through some terrible times, two wars that weren't really wars. As Walt once said, 'I don't want the public to see the world they live in while they're in the park. I want them to feel they're in another world.'"

Neither borrow nor be a lender

Neither a borrower nor a lender be, Polonius advised his son. The world runs on credit, nonetheless. It is left to bankers to exercise prudence on borrowers, to prove that the high-principled Polonius was wrong.

But the gathering problems for the international banking community suggest there has been something less than prudence by both lenders and borrowers in the flow of credit from the United States, Western Europe and Japan into the Third World and the communist bloc.

The bad news from Mexico has been especially bad for U.S. banks. By one calculation, our nine biggest banks have the equivalent of 40 percent of their capital and reserves tied up in the faltering Mexican economy. Falling oil revenues and fiscal mismanagement have left Mexico scrambling to cover payments due on and $80 billion foreign debt.

Mexico's predicament is not unique. Disappointing oil exports also have made Nigeria a basket case. Sudan and Zaire are rescheduling debts because of a slump in export revenue. The list of problem-clients for international bankers in this hemisphere includes not only Mexico but Costa Rica, Jamaica, Nicaragua and Bolivia. Even Argentina otherwise doing well in managing its credits, may be

Mexico needing reform

No visitor to Mexico can deny the burst of public works and private development fueled by Mexico's five-year oil boom. The motto of the government was growth with inflation.

But a recent visitor cannot ignore the lines gathered before banks as panicked Mexicans trade pesos for dollars. Mexico's progress and prosperity have fallen victim to a collapse of its currency. Mexicans wonder what to do—who to blame.

The severity of the crisis cannot be overstated. It reaches down to the institutional and cultural problems that have plagued Mexico in modern times, but were hidden by the oil boom.

If the current crisis strengthens economic ties with the United States, that will be a positive step. We must increase oil trade between the two countries. Mexico provides America a way to become more independent of Mideast oil; the United States provides Mexico a sure market for its petroleum.

If the crisis frightens Mexican politicians away from corruption and irresponsibility, if the government honors Miguel de la Madrid's campaign promise for moral regeneration, it will be a valuable lesson.

Finally, if bankruptcy convinces planners that growth must not be built on inflation but on a firm financial basis, it will set Mexico on the road to recovery when oil markets stabilize.

Mexico needs institutional reform.

The underclass

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Only a few weeks ago, I witnessed a particularly ugly scene on the streets of a medium-size city. Two nice looking young couples in a compact car stopped at a red light. The car was a couple of feet into the pedestrian crossing lane, and two very rough young characters in front of the car. As they crossed, they shouted obscenities at the people in the car and threatened them. This scene took place less than one hundred yards from a police station.

The young men in the car didn't do anything. What could they have done? The two thuggish characters might have been carrying knives or guns. No policeman was in sight.

The point I want to make here is that these street ruffians were part of what has been termed the American "underclass." There's a new book out entitled The Underclass. The author is Ken Auletta. He estimates that the underclass population may be as large as nine million.

Leslie Lenkowsky, in a review of this book published in Fortune, says that Mr. Auletta is "thinking of certain groups: long-term welfare recipients, hostile street criminals, various kinds of 'hustlers' in the underground economy, and the drunks and the drifters. They are, in short, the people who make life in every large city (and not a few small ones and rural areas as well) unpleasant and dangerous."

In an earlier time, when people were less inclined to rely on euphemism, they would have been called a rabble or the scum of society. Nowadays, after several decades of liberal conditioning, Americans tend to avoid such accurate descriptions. Even the reference to an "underclass" is a step in the direction of truth, honesty and accuracy, however.

How did this underclass come into being? Certainly, it came about partly because of welfare as a way of life, people who are accustomed to careers as handout recipients. Today, we have a class that expects and demands financial assistance from the responsible elements in society. Consider the fact that in recent years we have seen the emergence of welfare "rights" organizations.

The underclass exists and terrorizes communities because policing has been cut back in recent years. New York City has 5,000 fewer policemen than a quarter century ago, though the city has suffered an explosion of crime. The federal courts also have made a contribution by stripping away the right of communities to deal a firmly with vagrants and loiterers.

The intellectual establishment has refused to face the facts of contemporary society, specifically the threats to it by hostile elements from within. Public education has failed to discipline students who are wayward. Society as a whole has allowed the family to become fragmented.

The existence of the hostile underclass makes life in central cities almost impossible after sundown. In the nation's capital, beautiful areas can't be visited after dark because of the horde of muggers and rapists. In New York City, Central Park is a jungle at night. The same conditions prevail in small cities across the country.

American society seems incapable of dealing with the underclass which makes towns and cities unsafe. The nation doesn't seem to know what to do with those who don't want to work or make a contribution to society. Certainly, provision of more counseling and job training programs isn't the answer. The liberal "Great Society" of the Sixties threw money at the underclass problem and failed to solve it.

Nevertheless, the underclass problem must be addressed. This subclass may be growing. I am reminded of the saying of the late W. R. Inge, dean of St. Paul's cathedral in England, that in our society "We breed our own barbarians."

A short-term approach to the problem must involve some form of workfare, a term coined in the Nixon administration. Loafers and drifters must be compelled to perform useful work if they are to receive welfare. More close policing of city streets is expensive but essential.

The U.S. public can't allow the underclass to mushroom in the decade ahead.

Ghotbzadeh is executed by firing squad

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, the former Iranian foreign minister who fell from favor after opposing spy trials for the American hostages in Tehran, was executed by a firing squad plotting to topple Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's government, the official Iranian news agency reported today.

The news agency IRNA said the execution was carried out in Tehran Wednesday night on the basis of a verdict issued by the Army Revolutionary Tribunal and approved by the High Judicial Court. IRNA gave no other details of the execution.

Ghotbzadeh, 48, was arrested early in April and charged with masterminding a plot to overthrow the Islamic government and assassinate Khomeini, his one-time mentor and Iran's supreme revolutionary leader.

His close ties to Khomeini were evident in 1979 when Ghotbzadeh returned home after 20 years aboard on the same airplane as the exiled religious leader and promptly emerged as one of the most powerful men in Iran. He had been one of Khomeini's closest confidants ever since the ayatollah was exiled by the late Shah of Iran, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, in 1963.

Ghotbzadeh was named foreign minister a few days after student radicals seized the U.S. Embassy, taking Americans hostage in November 1979. After 44 days in captivity, the 52 hostages were released Jan. 20, 1981 — the day President Reagan took office.

During the early months of the hostage crisis, Ghotbzadeh's face became a nightly feature on American television screens as he answered questions and gave his government's position on the hostages.

In June 1980, he openly opposed spy trials for the hostages that were being demanded by Iran's Moslem militants. At one point, Ghotbzadeh had supported such trials, but later moderated his stance to say only the United States — not the hostages themselves — should stand trial for alleged crimes against Iran.

Ghotbzadeh's opposition to the spy trials put him on a collision course with the militants holding the Americans and the Moslem extremists running the Parliament.

Later he was arrested by Islamic revolutionary guards and charged with criticizing government officials but was freed. He was stripped of his position in August 1980 and kept a low profile after leaving office.

Officials seeking more body parts

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Severed parts of three human bodies found floating in the murky waters of a Lake Conroe inlet may have been "surgically cut" by professional killers, authorities say.

Divers found four hands and five feet Wednesday afternoon under a bridge near Corinthian Point, a fashionable subdivision 15 miles northwest of here, authorities said.

The grisly discoveries were being treated as a multiple homicide, said Montgomery County Sheriff's Capt. Art Collins, head of the detective division.

The mutilations looked like a "neat job," Collins said.

Divers will continue to look for other parts, and Sheriff Joe Corley called a 3 p.m. CDT news conference today to discuss the bizarre events.

Judging from the size of the feet, Graeter said, one victim appeared to be a male and one a female.

Ghotbzadeh executed

Former Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, seen here at the last session of his trial, accused of plotting the overthrow of the Iranian government and assassination of Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini, was executed by a firing squad in Tehran during the night the official Iranian News Agency, IRNA, reported Thursday. Willie Nelson testifies in murder trial

WACO, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor called the pony-tailed country singer an unusual character witness, and one jury member said the panel wasn't overly swayed by the man's testimony.

Willie Nelson returned Wednesday to his home state of Texas to testify on behalf of murder defendant Marjorie Lundy, 61, who gave the singer one of his first paying singing jobs.

Mrs. Lundy was acquitted, after jurors deliberated about an hour and 20 minutes. "Whatever she did, she had a good reason for doing it," Nelson said during his brief testimony. "I've never heard anyone say anything bad about Margie."

Mrs. Lundy was charged with murder in the July 2 shooting death of her brother-in-law, Louis Dickson Jr., 50. She contended it was self-defense.

Nelson said he has known Mrs. Lundy for 25 years. She hired Nelson to sing at her Nite Owl Club in nearby West years ago, and he grew up about five miles away in the Central Texas town of Abbott.

Nelson traveled here Wednesday from Fork, Pa., and crowds kept the singer busy signing autographs outside the courthouse for 30 minutes.

Dear Abby TV gets neighborhood CB interference

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a neighbor with a home-based CB radio. He talks with people along the Gulf Coast and in Canada. He is on his CB some mornings, all afternoon and most nights. He loves the theme from "The Lone Ranger" and plays it often. How do I know? Because it comes over my television set!

I watch TV for my own entertainment, not to hear this man. Don't get me wrong, he's an upstanding citizen with a charming wife and family, but my set isn't the only one that his CB interferes with. Almost everyone in the neighborhood knows when he's on because we hear everything he says.

Many of my favorite TV shows have been interrupted, which frustrates me no end. What a man does in his own home is his own business, but when it comes into my home, it becomes my business.

What should I do?

TIED OF "154" IN CHARLESTON, S.C.

DEAR TIED: If you haven't already complained directly to your neighbor, you should. If you have, but to no avail, either call or write to your local Federal Communications Commission office and ask someone there to please send you the booklet, "How to Identify and Resolve Radio-TV Interference Problems." The booklet offers tips on how to correct this interference. (Perhaps your set is at fault.)

If the problem persists, write to: The F.C.C., 1919 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20554.

DEAR ABBY: This isn't exactly an earthshaking problem, but it's one I'm sure many people have had to wrestle with. Friends keep giving me gifts — little knickknacks that should be displayed. I love these people and don't want to offend them, but my house is beginning to look like an arts and crafts shop. There is also the problem of having to keep them dusted. Add that to the fact that I have a small apartment and dislike clutter.

Is it necessary for me to keep all these gifts on display indefinitely? My wee apartment already looks like I'm ready to hold an auction.

ENOUGH ALREADY IN PALM BEACH

DEAR ENOUGH: Accept each gift graciously, display it for a while, then put it away. Your surroundings should please you.

DEAR ABBY: I asked one of my closest friends to be my bridesmaid, and she immediately said, "No, I can't afford the dress." A week passed, and I called and told her I would pay for the dress. Then she hemmed and hawed and asked, "Are you really going to have a formal church wedding?" I said, "Yes, of course."

Then she asked, "Won't you feel hypocritical having a wedding like that after living with your fiancé openly for two years?"

I told her, no, I would not feel hypocritical. Then she came right out and said she couldn't be my bridesmaid because she didn't think I deserved to have a church wedding with a gown and veil and bridesmaids.

I felt hurt, angry and shocked that she would sit in judgment of me. (She is not exactly a saint herself, if you know what I mean.)

Should I invite this girl to my wedding?

BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: A bride usually invites friends and relatives to her wedding. This young woman doesn't seem to qualify in either category.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DOWN IN UPLAND, NEB.: Someone said, "Health is the greatest wealth." And may I add, "— and the least appreciated until it's threatened."

$40,000 reward offered for return of kidnap victim

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH — A three-year-old girl was kidnapped August 26 from a school playground in Sunset, Utah, and the Salt Lake Area Chamber of Commerce is trying to help.

The chamber is contacting other such organizations in cities all over the country in hopes of finding the girl.

A $40,000 reward has been offered for her return.

Her name is Rachael Marie Runyan. She was born June 23, 1979. She has long, blonde, naturally curly hair, blue eyes, and a "severe" habit of sucking her thumb.

She was last seen wearing a white background play-suit with a green and blue flowered print, brown leather shoes with bright yellow laces printed with the word "Smile," a blue ribbon in her hair, pierced ears with gold studs.

The suspected kidnapper is a black man, between 25 and 35 years old, six feet tall, with a slender to medium build, short Afro-type hair, fair complexion, and a handlebar mustache.

He was seen wearing old blue sneakers with white stripes, blue jeans, and a blue T-shirt with a red stripe.

He was driving a mid-sized dark blue car, possibly with a brown woodgrain stripe down the side.

The car has a chrome rear bumper, high front seats, and a rear windshield wiper.

If anyone has any information to assist in the case, they are asked to contact Chief Archie Seale, Sunset Police Department, Davis County, Utah. The number is (801)-825-1620 or (801)-776-3060.

A photo of Rachael and a composite drawing of the suspect have been posted at The Pampa News office.

At Wit's End

What would we do without Woody?

Every three years, for the last decade, everything stops in this country while we dissect Woody Allen.

Critiquing Woody hasn't replaced baseball yet as a national pastime, but it's getting there. Is Woody's current humor as funny as his earlier humor? Has he out-Fellini Fellini? Has he peaked too far over the comedic line and is he stuck at tragedy? Is he rewriting himself?

I actually heard a child the other day on the street ask a playmate, "Do you remember where you were and what you were doing when you first heard Woody Allen was making a serious movie?"

I honestly don't know what this country would do if Woody Allen didn't surface every three years with a new venture. It has almost become a ritual. First, the critics get out reviews of all his past movies and compare them with the present one. Is it funnier than "Take the Money and Run"? As classy as "Annie Hall"? As serious as "Interiors"? As solid as "Manhattan"? The debates begin.

I personally refuse to hold a scalpel over Woody Allen. He is funny! I don't care what makes him that way. And I don't need to look back. I either laugh at the current movie or I don't. It stands alone.

In fact, I know of no other profession where your present is judged by your past. When was the last time you said to your plumber, "I personally liked the way you installed our first water heater. Somehow this one doesn't work for me."

For some reason, critics find humorists a challenge. They don't want to accept laughter for what it is... an illusive bit of mystery that bubbles out of control for no apparent reason.

At a gathering the other night, I wandered into the following conversation:

"Comparing 'Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy' to 'Annie Hall' is like comparing Marie Osmond to Beverly Sills."

"I think you missed the statement Woody's trying to make."

"Well, it certainly wasn't vintage Allen."

"Actually, I think he peaked with 'Play It Again Sam.'"

"I loved it and I don't know how he can top it."

A man leaned over to turn on the TV set and said, "I wonder what's happening with the president's tax proposal?"

It was good to get my mind off Woody for five minutes.

Moses Leaves Houston

Newly-acquired Philadelphia 76ers center Moses Malone and team owner Harold Katz sit together during a news conference at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium Wednesday. The 76ers acquired Malone from the Houston Rockets for Caldwell Jones and the 1983 first-round draft choice. (AP Laserphoto)

Moses expected to lead Philly to title

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers, perennial playoff contenders, may have found the big rebounder they need to win a National Basketball Association championship in center Moses Malone, last season's Most Valuable Player.

The Houston Rockets, who traded the 6-foot-10 free agent to Philadelphia on Wednesday, are looking toward the future... specifically, the future of the Cleveland Cavaliers and possibility of getting two-time college basketball player of the year Ralph Sampson of Virginia.

Houston sent Malone — who had signed a six-year, $12.7 million offer sheet with Philadelphia on Sept. 2 — to the 76ers for 7-foot forward Caldwell Jones and Philadelphia's first-round pick in the 1983 college draft. That first-round pick was acquired by Philadelphia from Cleveland in a 1977 trade for the late Terry Furlow, meaning the Rockets will now draft in Cleveland's spot.

"Cleveland won 15 games last year and the club closest to them had 31 victories, so the law of averages suggests Cleveland will not finish very high (in 1982-83)," said Houston General Manager Ray Patterson.

The Rockets hope to use that pick to draft either the 7-foot-4 Sampson or possibly 7-foot Georgetown center Pat Ewing, if he chose to pass up his last two years of college eligibility.

"We're capable of winning a championship, but everybody's got to play together and everybody's got to work hard," Malone said at a press conference in Philadelphia.

Malone, 28, a five-time All-Star and two-time MVP, said he thought he would fit in well with Philadelphia's fast-break style, rather than Houston's deliberate offense.

"I think I'll be a better player with a team that runs," he said.

Malone has been one of the top centers in the NBA since coming to the league in 1976. He is considered one of the best rebounders in league history.

Last season, Malone played in 81 games and averaged 31.1 points, second in the league, and better than 14 rebounds per game, best in the NBA. He handed out 142 assists.

Jones, 32, played six years with the 76ers and averaged 7.2 rebounds per game.

The trade ended a dispute over the multimillion dollar offer sheet signed by Malone, who has been with five teams during an eight-year pro career.

Houston, which had until Sept. 18 to match the offer, claimed that the offer contained illegal provisions aimed only at making the Rockets pay more to keep Malone. NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien and the Rockets challenged the agreement.

Special arbitrator Kingman Brewster, who oversees the Robertson Agreement that covers the movement of free agents, on Monday invalidated one clause and was to have ruled on four others by Monday. O'Brien approved the trade Wednesday and allowed two of the provisions to remain.

NFL strikes may start Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association will go on strike Tuesday, just two weeks into the season, unless there is a breakthrough in contract negotiations resuming Friday, union leader Ed Garvey says.

Garvey confirmed Wednesday night what sources in the NFLPA and elsewhere in the labor movement told The Associated Press earlier: that Monday night's Green Bay Packers-New York Giants game will be the last one played until a new collective bargaining agreement is reached.

The formal decision will be made by the union's nine-member executive committee at a meeting Monday in New York, Garvey said.

The first game to be affected by pro football's first regular-season strike would be Atlanta at Kansas City on Thursday.

The owners have indicated they will try to put on games despite a strike, using free agents along with any regular players who defy the union. The NFLPA has signed a contract with Ted Turner's cable television superstation, WTBS, to stage a series of makeshift all-star games.

"This is totally consistent with what we have heard all along," Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the owners' NFL Management Council, said of the Tuesday strike date. "The NFLPA has had a master plan to strike."

He vowed that a strike will not gain the players their main goal, a salary scale based on a fixed percentage of the 28 clubs' gross revenues.

Harlingen trio tops honor roll

Glenn Youngblood, Venustino "Tuffy" Martinez and Sammy Garza practiced the same magic act on different high school football fields last week and all three players pulled victories out of the hat for their teams.

Garza threw his fourth touchdown pass of the game with 41 seconds left to play, to lead Harlingen to a 35-30 victory over San Benito.

Port Isabel's Martinez intercepted three passes, the last a 55-yard return for the winning touchdown with 5:53 to play in a 13-12 victory over Class 4A Brownsville Pace.

Youngblood scored the winning touchdown on a 13-yard run with one minute to play to give Three Rivers a 40-35 victory over Nion.

Youngblood, a 6-2, 165 halfback, moments earlier had returned an interception 100 yards for a touchdown. He also caught a 43-yard touchdown pass.

"He doesn't look like he's running fast but those long legs are stretching out," Three Rivers Coach Curry Newport said. "He's just a good all-around athlete. He runs on our sprint relay and mile relay team and he was an all-district basketball player last year."

Port Isabel Coach Alex Leal had to do a double take after watching Martinez' winning run.

"He ran over four or five tacklers and e's only about 150 pounds," Leal said. "It was sheer determination. When he broke into the open it looked like everyone else was on the ground."

Garza completed 16 of 22 passes for 236 yards, had touchdown passes of 27, 20, 16 and 10 yards and ran one yard for another score.

Groom defense faces another stern test

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Writer

It was almost like a victory for the Groom Tigers, who battled Nazareth to a 0-0 tie last Friday night.

Groom was unended by White Deer, 37-7, in its 1982 opener, and the Tiger weren't expected to do much better against Nazareth. However, the Groom defense went at the Swifts like a pickax.

Nazareth, which was ranked No. 23 in the Harris Ratings going into the contest, had its offense chopped down twice by Groom on goal line stands.

Groom jumped from 134 to 76 in the latest Harris Ratings.

"I was real proud of the kids," Groom coach Frank Belcher said. "They really got after them on defense. We were moving the ball on them and had several chances to score, but our mental mistakes stopped us."

Groom faces another tough foe in unbeaten Happy (2-0) at 8 p.m. tomorrow night at Happy. Happy has victories over Bovina, 18-13, and Claude, 36-6.

Happy has some good players and they're sound fundamentally," Belcher said. "They're the type of team that waits for you to make a mistake and then they capitalize on it."

However, another good showing by the Groom defense could make Happy sad.

Senior linebacker Russell Britten had five solo tackles and was in on 11 others against Nazareth. Rex Ruthardt intercepted a pass on the Groom five-yard line to stop a Nazareth drive. Rodney Bohr and Wesley English were also defensive standouts.

Groom's probable lineup for Friday night's game is as follows:
Offense—Rodney Bohr at tight end; Wesley English and Scott Peeples at tackles; Travis Ruthardt and Heath Cave at guards; Lewis Leven at center;

Jeff Britten at split end; Ted Britten at quarterback; Russell Britten at fullback; Rex Ruthardt and Tim Weinheimer at running backs; Defense—Bohr and English at ends; Peeples and Leven at tackles; Cave at noseguard; Russell Britten and Travis Ruthardt at linebackers; Jeff Britten and Rex Ruthardt at cornerbacks; Ted Britten and William Ruthardt at safeties.

In other area games Friday night, Lefors hosts Pampa Junior Varsity. McLean welcomes Valley, Wheeler travels to White Deer, Panhandle visits Canadian and Perryton goes to Liberal, Kans. All the games, with the exception of Lefors and Miami, start at 8 p.m. Those two contests get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Grid season finally gets here for Texas

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The season opener is finally here for the defending Cotton Bowl champion Texas Longhorns, who have been most restless to start the season.

Two Longhorn players had to be disciplined for taking liberties with a stop sign and linebacker Jeff Leiding hurt himself trying to hurdle a chain blocking a driveway.

"We didn't think the season would ever get here," said Longhorn Coach Fred Akers, who leads his 18th-ranked team against Utah in Austin Saturday night.

Texas was a 10-point favorite over the Utes, who have already played two games, beating Montana State 30-12 and losing to Arizona State 23-10 after leading 10-6 at halftime.

In other games involving SWC teams, Arizona State at Houston was rated a pick 'em affair; Texas Tech was a seven-point favorite in Jones Stadium over the Air Force; Arkansas was a 17-point nod over Navy in Little Rock; Kansas was a seven-point choice over Texas Christian in Lawrence, Kan.; Texas A&M was a three touchdown selection over Texas-Arlington at College Station; Tulane was a seven-point favorite over Rice in New Orleans; and No. 6 ranked Southern Methodist was a prohibitive favorite over Texas-El Paso which lost 55-0 to Washington last week.

Baylor will be idle after almost upsetting Ohio State last week before falling 21-14.

Leiding will play for Texas although he cut his face trying the high jump.

Texas will need him to help stop Carl Monroe, an exciting running back who returned a kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown against Montana State.

The Longhorns' tailback, John Walker, has overcome a knee injury suffered in spring training and will be ready to go.

It will be the first meeting between the two schools.

The only other times SMU played Texas-El Paso came when the Miners were known as the Texas School of Mines and Metallurgy. SMU won 26-0 in a special 1932 post-season exhibition game played in El Paso.

LA blanks Padres on Hooton's 3-hitter

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

They call Burt Hooton "Happy," yet this has been anything but a happy year for the 32-year-old right-hander. Hooton underwent knee surgery on June 21, missed six weeks and only now is recapturing the form which has made him a mainstay of the Los Angeles Dodgers pitching staff. On Wednesday night, Hooton indicated that the remaining aches and pains are a minor annoyance as he blanked the San Diego Padres 5-0 on three hits. The Dodgers' sixth straight victory upped their National League West lead to 2½ games over Atlanta, which lost 5-4 to Houston.

Elsewhere, it was Montreal 6, New York 5 in 11 innings; St. Louis 8, Philadelphia 0; Chicago 7, Pittsburgh 2, and San Francisco 5, Cincinnati 4.

It was Hooton's second shutout of the season, but his first since April 29. In his eight starts since his surgery, he has allowed 12 earned runs in 49 innings, a 2.20 earned run average.

Pedro Guerrero slammed his 30th home run to help the Dodgers hand San Diego its fifth straight loss.

Expos 5, Mets 4
Andre Dawson, another player plagued by injury, ripped his 20th homer of the season in the 11th to lift the Expos over the Mets. Montreal is two games behind St. Louis in the East, but just a

Chris Speier cleared the bases with a three-run triple in the seventh to aid the Montreal cause. Cardinals 8, Phillies 0. St. Louis hurler Joaquin Andujar threw a three-hitter Wednesday for his fifth shutout of the season as the Cardinals grabbed a 1½-game lead over Philadelphia in the NL East. It was the second straight shutout for St. Louis.

Cubs 7, Pirates 2
The Cubs used the longball to subdue Pittsburgh as Jody Davis smashed a three-run homer and Keith Moreland and Leon Durham added solo shots. Ferguson Jenkins gave up 11 hits in posting his 27th career victory, good for 20th on the all-time list.

Astros 5, Braves 4
Houston severely damaged Atlanta's pennant hopes by sweeping the Braves. Dickie Thon's three-run double snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh and the Braves couldn't catch up against Nolan Ryan and Dave Smith, who pitched the ninth inning to earn his 11th save.

AL roundup

Orioles creep closer to Brewers

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Dave Winfield and Roy Smalley are on a home run binge for the New York Yankees — but the defending American League champions aren't getting much relief from their bullpen these days. For the fourth straight game Wednesday night, the Yankee bullpen blew a lead and the result was an 8-5 loss to the charging Baltimore Orioles, who won their 23rd game in the last 27.

The triumph kept the Orioles 1½ games behind Milwaukee in the AL East race. The division-leading Brewers stopped Detroit 5-3.

In the AL West, the division-leading Kansas City Royals beat Seattle 5-4 in 11 innings and improved their lead to two games over the California Angels, 8-3 losers to Chicago. Elsewhere, Cleveland beat Boston 7-4, Toronto took a doubleheader from Oakland, 3-2 and 12-11 and Minnesota walloped Texas 10-2.

As they had in the three previous games with the Orioles, the Yankees took the early lead — this time 5-2 after 5½ innings — on a pair of two-run homers by Smalley and a solo shot by Winfield, all off starter Mike Flanagan. Smalley has hit eight of his 20 homers in the last 12 games and Winfield eight of his 34 in the last 13 games.

But the Orioles came back to score six runs in the sixth inning. Cal Ripken Jr., tied the score with a two-run double and then scored the go-ahead run on Eddie Murray's double.

Don Welch allowed one hit in 12-3 innings of relief and was the winner in his major-league debut for Baltimore. Sammy Stewart hurled the final three innings to pick up his fifth save.

Brewers 5, Tigers 3
Roy Howell drove in three runs with a double and a single to lead Milwaukee over Detroit.

Howell's RBI double featured a two-run second inning and his two-run single in the fifth provided the Brewers with a 5-2 lead.

Milwaukee starter Pete Vuckovich, 17-4, went 71-3 innings, allowing 11 hits before getting relief help. Dwight Bernard finished up for his fifth save.

Jack Morris, 16-15, went the distance for the Tigers, giving up nine hits while striking out five and walking two.

Royals 5, Mariners 4
Steve Hammond lined a one-out, bases-loaded single off first baseman Jim Maler's glove in the 11th inning to carry Kansas City over Seattle.

Willie Wilson opened the 11th by beating out an infield bouncer for a hit, then stole second. Walks to U.L. Washington and George Brett by Seattle reliever Bill Caudill, 11-8, loaded the bases and set the stage for Hammond.

Dan Quisenberry, 8-5, gained the victory in relief, pitching the final three innings. Quisenberry aided his cause by picking two Mariners runners off first base.

Hammond had struck out in the ninth with the winning run on second.

White Sox 5, Angels 3
Vance Law stroked a two-run triple to highlight a five-run fourth inning as Chicago defeated California and snapped the Angels' five-game winning streak. Law's triple in the fourth knocked out Geoff Zahn, 16-8, and gave the White Sox a 5-1 lead at the time.

Jerry Kosman, 9-6, allowed two runs and seven hits over the six innings he worked before being relieved by Warren Brusstar.

Indians 7, Red Sox 4
Andre Thornton drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Larry Milbourne and Ron Hassey collected three hits apiece, leading Cleveland over Boston.

Len Barker and Dan Spillner combined to check the Red Sox on five hits and just one earned run. Barker, 13-11, went the first six innings before Spillner came on to earn his 19th save.

Blue Jays 3-12, A's 2-11
A pair of Oakland errors allowed Damaso Garcia and Al Woods to score in the seventh inning.

Twins 10, Rangers 2
Gary Gaetti belted four hits and Lenny Faedo drove in three runs to power Minnesota over Texas behind Bobby Castillo's six-hitter. Castillo, 10-11, saw his streak of 202-3 scoreless innings snapped in the sixth inning on a two-run triple b Jim Sundberg. Loser Frank Tanana, 6-18, lasted until the fifth, when the Twins scored three runs for a 6-0 lead.

Electricity is a product that must be manufactured. To help our customers understand the process of generating electricity, we offer tours of our power plants. Tour guides conduct business and civic organizations, clubs, school classes and other groups through these plants, discussing equipment and the production process according to the ages and interests of tour participants. Contact your SPS manager to arrange for your tour of a power plant.

Susan McKissack, Plant Clerk, Harrington Station.

SPS has a Speakers Bureau. Our specialists are available to present programs on such topics as using energy wisely or how electricity is made from coal. These programs, designed to inform our customers about electric energy and related subjects, are available at no charge for schools, clubs or other organizations. Many programs include special demonstrations, slide shows or films. Your local SPS manager can suggest a speaker for your next meeting.

Randy Eminger, Consumer Services Representative, Lubbock.

You and SPS are partners in energy management. SPS does its part by operating its power plants as efficiently as possible and by planning now for future demands for electricity. You do your part when you use electricity wisely. Remembering to switch off lights and appliances when not in use can help keep down your electric bills. Insulating your home or using energy-efficient appliances, like the heat pump, can help too. Working together to manage electricity benefits us all.

Stock market at 13-month high

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

Despite the gloom of a nationwide recession, one bright spot has emerged on Wall Street, where the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks has climbed to a 13-month high.

The blue-chip average rose Wednesday for the third straight day, even though interest rates were also rising and the Federal Reserve Board reported the 11th decline in U.S. factory output in the last 13 months.

The central bank was to report today on factory use in August. In July, factories operate at 69.5 percent of capacity. The post-World War II low of 69 percent was recorded during the 1975 recession.

The board also reported Wednesday that output of the nation's mines and factories dropped 0.5 percent in August.

Reports earlier this week of an August decline in retail sales and an early September drop in new car sales also have raised doubts about consumer spending leading the economy out of recession.

But on the New York Stock Exchange, the Dow industrial average rose 7.45 points to close at 930.46, its highest finish since Aug. 14, 1981.

Consumer stocks were among issues rising to 12-month highs, an indication that investors still expect an economic recovery in the months ahead, fueled by consumer purchases.

But bond prices fell and interest rates rose as traders said they were taken by surprise when the Federal Reserve Board drained reserves from the banking system Wednesday through the sale of government securities.

The central bank's action came just as the Treasury was preparing to sell $6.5 billion in two-year notes. At the auction, the average annual yield rose to 12.2 percent from the 11.67 percent average at the previous auction, Aug. 25.

It was the highest interest rate on such an issue since July 21, when the Treasury auctioned two-year notes at an average yield of 13.09 percent.

Donald Maude, chief financial economist at the investment firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., said the Fed's move was "a departure from the velvet-glove approach it used in recent weeks" as interest rates fell.

During July and August, the Fed lowered its discount rate four times, reducing the interest on loans to banking institutions from 12 percent to a two-year low of 10 percent.

House nears vote on federal jobs bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats are looking toward victory on a $1 billion jobs bill they hope will call attention to the nation's soaring unemployment rate less than two months before the election.

A vote on the measure — which would provide 200,000 temporary public service jobs — was expected in the House this afternoon.

Seeking to build on the momentum gained last week when Congress overrode President Reagan's veto of a $14.2 billion supplemental spending bill, Democratic leaders have mounted a nearly non-stop public relations campaign for the bill leading up to today's vote.

Majority Leader Jim Wright,

D-Texas, said the bill is "the centerpiece of this week's effort."

House GOP Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi scoffed at the effort: "This is fun and games season ... and Jim Wright is leading the charge. ... This is blatantly political."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., dismissed such charges as "part of the American political scheme of things."

Democrats, hoping the measure will call attention to the nation's 9.8 percent unemployment rate as the November elections draw near, say the measure will send a signal to the nation.

At a Wednesday news conference called to plug the measure, Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., said,

"Consistently, this administration is opposed to putting people to work." Passage of the measure would be a "signal to the nation that this madness should end."

At the same news conference, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said: "Americans do not need more pink slips, more unemployment slips, more welfare slips. They need to be on payrolls."

In any case, House action on the measure will be largely symbolic.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., indicated the bill faces a bleak future in his GOP-controlled chamber.

"I do not" intend to bring up the bill in the Senate, Baker said.

Movie ape tests open-ended zoo enclosure

SAN DIEGO (AP) — C.J., a 160-pound orangutan who starred with Bo Derek in the film "Tarzan the Ape Man" and Clint Eastwood in "Any Which Way You Can," is making a solo performance this week at the San Diego Zoo.

This production could become a simian sequel to "The Great Escape," but C.J. has spent most of the first two acts apparently just pondering his lines.

His mission: Try to escape from the zoo's new open-ended ape enclosure, an unusual $3 million pen measuring 100 by 150 feet has walls on three sides but only a moat fed by quickly running water to prevent flight on the fourth.

Zoo officials asked for C.J.'s help because "we figured if he can't break out, nobody could," spokesman Jeff Jouett said. As a suave and famous movie star, C.J. might be expected to be highly intelligent, too, he explained.

C.J. was installed in the enclosure on Tuesday and is expected to stay until Friday — unless, of course, he escapes. But by Wednesday night he still hadn't made a break for freedom.

The experiment has generated some results. At one point, C.J. untied a heavy climbing rope that was hanging from artificial trees to resemble a natural vine. A zoo workman said C.J. proved that "we'll just have to weld those things down tighter."

C.J. also found a couple of footholds in a rock wall, but went nowhere.

Jouett said, "Orangutans don't swim but they're not necessarily scared of water like gorillas. Of course, C.J. could jump or wade across or climb a tree and bend it down enough to get over to another tree."

Boone Narr, head trainer for the Gentle Jungle, which was paid $2,000 for C.J.'s services, called to the orangutan from the public side of the moat, hoping to get C.J. to try to escape over or through the running water. So did others from the Hollywood animal-training company.

But the 11-year-old ape stayed put, except to pound on the thick viewing glass at another part of the enclosure a couple times without breaking it.

A trained chimpanzee named Doc jumped out with ease Tuesday, to the dismay of zoo officials. They want to mix rare pigmy chimpanzees with the larger orangutans in the enclosure.
