

Pampa man killed as pickup hits load of hay

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

A Pampa man was killed and another man injured in a Thursday morning collision between a tractor-trailer rig and a pickup south of Canadian.

Richard Jay Heckman, 32, of 2101 N. Russell, was killed when his 1982 Chevrolet pickup and a 1979 Peterbilt semi crashed at about 10:30 a.m.

The accident occurred 8.5 miles south of Canadian, near the Hemphill County line on U.S. Highway 83.

Lloyd Scott, 30, of Gage, Okla., who was driving the Peterbilt, sustained minor cuts and abrasions to his face and arms, and was treated at the Hemphill County Hospital in Canadian.

Department of Public Safety trooper Larry Dunham reported that Heckman's pickup was eastbound on Farm - to - Market Road 1258, and stopped at the intersection where the road ends at the highway.

The semi rig was traveling south toward Wheeler.

Heckman stopped the pickup with its front end out in the southbound lane of the highway, and pulled out in front of the Peterbilt in an apparent attempt to enter the northbound lane toward Canadian, according to Dunham.

The trooper reported that Scott attempted to avoid Heckman's vehicle by moving into the lane to his left, but his truck collided with the front end of the pickup.

Heckman was thrown from his pickup by the impact and died immediately, according to witnesses. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Frankie Hill.

Grant Meek of Canadian, an eyewitness to the accident, was driving north toward Canadian at the time.

He said the rig separated on impact. (see Fatal on page 2)

Was there another poisoning at Cabot in 1978?

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Victims of the July 1981 arsenic poisoning at the Cabot Carbon Black Plant now claim that was actually the second poisoning incident at the plant, and are blaming Cabot management in part for their troubles.

They say the company exposed them to the danger of poisoning in the incident that led to a recent assault conviction for a fellow employee.

Seven workers, represented in a union grievance by Cabot employee Joe Grubb, claim there was a similar poisoning at Cabot in May of 1978, using the same type of arsenic, also put in a coffee pot.

"They covered this up. They kept this from the employees," said L. Ray Taylor, representative of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union.

He said the coverup was a breach of contract by company officials, that if plant workers had known about the possibility of a poisoning, they could have avoided the danger of permanent tissue damage from the 1981 incident.

Cabot officials have declined to comment on the allegations, saying it is a matter for the arbitrator to decide.

Cabot management told workers about the 1978 poisoning during the 1981 investigation, Taylor said.

Four foremen at the plant were poisoned with coffee then, he said, and the management's explanation at the time was reportedly that a heating element in the coffee maker was faulty and giving off toxic fumes.

Taylor said he has a document showing that Cabot officials contacted at least one city police sergeant for aid in testing the coffee, and that someone in management probably knew it was poisoned.

The Cabot plant is outside the city limits, and not under city police jurisdiction.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said he was not told of any 1978 poisoning until his investigation of the 1981 incident.

When Cabot management revealed the 1978 incident, they said they believed the person responsible for the poisoning had already left the plant.

An initial hearing was held on the grievance Wednesday, employing an outside arbitrator from Dallas provided by the Federal Mediation and Arbitration Service.

In that hearing, Taylor said, Cabot representatives produced a letter from an Austin Department of Public Safety laboratory that identified the 1978 poison as arsenic.

Taylor said he did not know why Cabot released that document, but he was "glad they did," because he feels it proves Cabot knew more than it was telling its workers.

"I feel like there's a lot that hasn't been said... I think the company has a good reason for it, but we just can't pinpoint it yet," Grubb said.

Plant Manager Stan Burnham testified, but was not at the Pampa plant in 1978.

School board starts budget all over again after story reveals first one was illegal

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

The Pampa school board may be starting all over on its budget and tax rate for the new fiscal year because the way the board previously adopted its higher tax rate violated state law.

Though the budget and tax rate received final board approval August 17th, consideration of the "published tax rate" is again on the school board agenda for a meeting next Tuesday.

Superintendent James Trusty said he would have "no comment" about new consideration of the school district tax rate, "until the board meeting."

"I will make a statement at that time," Trusty said Thursday afternoon.

Asked why the school district tax rate is an item for board consideration Tuesday, after the rate received final approval last month, Trusty replied, "Your article pointed out there was a flaw in publication of the effective tax rate."

In a story in The Pampa News August 19th, the newspaper reported the school district failed to comply with state law in the process of adopting the new tax rate for the current fiscal year, which began September 1st, according to a spokesman with the State Property Tax Board.

The school board must follow several strict legal steps toward adopting a tax rate for the district, according to state law.

First, a board of review must certify property values on the tax roll.

Second, the tax assessor must determine and publish the effective tax rate, including the figures he used to calculate that rate.

Third, the governmental entity must publish notice and hold a public hearing, if the proposed new tax rate is an increase of more than three percent over the effective tax rate.

Fourth, the governmental body must again publish notice of its intent to vote to raise the tax rate during a public meeting.

The effective tax rate is the percentage of taxes per $100 valuation needed to generate the same total tax levy produced the previous year.

City - school Tax Assessor Collector Charles Rand published the effective tax rate in a legal notice July 19th, but in the publication, he failed to include the figures, or calculations, he used to determine the rate, resulting in the violation of state law.

"The calculations must be published," Associate Director of the State Property Tax Board Jim Robinson said in August.

Rand previously said his failure to publish the calculations was "an oversight."

"It's all public information. We are not trying to hide anything. It is just they (the calculations) are rather lengthy. We are trying to do the best job we can to comply with the law," Rand said at the time.

A new legal notice of the school's effective tax rate, including the previously omitted calculations, is published in The Pampa News today.

When the issue was raised, Robinson said the state board is "not an enforcement agency."

"A local taxpayer can file a civil suit in district court," Robinson said in August.

The state spokesman said the school's failure to publish the calculations used to figure the effective tax rate "won't invalidate the rolls or stop people from paying taxes."

"It could force them (the school board) to go back and go through the whole process again, delaying things," Robinson said.

It appears that is exactly what the school board intends to do, with its new consideration of the school district tax rate.

Though Trusty had no comment about the matter, the board apparently intends to restart the entire legal process, including public hearings, votes and legal publications, on the new budget and tax rate.

The illegal tax rate adopted by the board is a 7.9 percent increase over the effective tax rate.

The rate adopted is 63.9 cents per $100 valuation, up from a previous 62 cents per $100.

The tax rate hike will increase school property taxes on a $30,000 home about $6 per year.

The budget adopted by the board shows both revenues and expenditures of $10,173,366.

However, the adopted budget does not reflect a school - district cash surplus of about $1 million when the year began, plus an additional $346,000 in surplus construction funds.

The school board meeting Tuesday is open to the public.

Coming Monday

Pampans will be treated to demonstrations of Indian dancing Monday at the Chautauqua '82 in Central Park, but not by Indians. The Kwahadi Indian Dancers are actually boys from Explorer Post 80 in Amarillo, who have adopted the customs and costumes of the ancient Kwahadi Indians who once lived in the Amarillo area. The demonstration of dancing will begin at 2:30 p.m. Monday and is free to the public, as is the rest of the Chautauqua events.

Bush refuses plea bargain offer by Hardin

By EVIE DAVIS
Special Correspondent

LUBBOCK — Capital murder defendant Paul Barry Bush, accused in the 1980 shooting death of a longtime Hemphill County sheriff's deputy, Tuesday told his attorney he would not accept a life prison term in exchange for a plea of guilty in the case.

The plea - bargaining offer was made this week by 223rd and 31st District Court prosecutor Guy Hardin to Bush's court - appointed defense attorney, Floyd Holder of Lubbock.

Bush's acceptance of the offer would have pre - empted his capital murder trial, scheduled to begin Tuesday in Lubbock County Courthouse, in which the death row inmate will again face a penalty of death by injection, should he be convicted.

Neither Hardin nor Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley could be reached today to comment on the plea - bargain offer.

The secretary for the District Attorney's office said both were out of town this morning on private weekend trips.

Hardin and Hendley will both travel to Lubbock next week for the trial.

Next week's date is the third scheduled for Bush's retrial, after an appellate court reversed his October 1980 conviction because evidence of an extraneous offense was admitted at that trial.

Bush is accused of killing Hemphill County Sheriff's deputy M.L. "Corky" Guthrie when the lawman answered a silent burglar alarm at Lad's Pharmacy in Canadian during the early morning hours of July 12, 1980.

Testimony in the first trial indicated that the intruder shot Guthrie in an attempt to escape when he discovered the front door was the only exit.

An autopsy report showed Guthrie was struck by three shotgun blasts, two at close range and one in the head.

Investigators then reported that the first shot came from inside the store. The burglar reportedly then crawled outside and shot again through the deputy shield, before moving to the driver's side to shoot again through the open window.

Guthrie reportedly told a radio dispatcher that "I'm shot," shortly before he died.

Bush was arrested about 15 hours later in Dumas.

Former District Attorney Harold Comer called witnesses in Bush's first trial that said Bush broke into the pharmacy to steal drugs.

Testimony revealed then that Bush had been convicted previously on a 1979

Potter County drug charge, and appeals court judge Odom ruled this evidence improper.

The Potter County decision was overturned later on the grounds that officers engaged in entrapment in the arrest.

Comer appealed for a reversal of the decision of the appeals court on the murder charge last fall without success.

Individual voir dire examination of potential jurors, all of whom already have been mailed jury summonses in the case, is expected to last more than a week beginning Tuesday.

The new trial was moved to Lubbock County when visiting Dallas judge Claude Williams granted a joint motion by Hardin and Holder for a change of venue because of extensive publicity surrounding the first trial.

The same reason was given for the venue change of the October trial to a Wichita Falls courtroom.

The trial is expected to include about a week of testimony.

A retrial scheduled for July 12 here was postponed when authorities were unable to locate a pathologist scheduled to testify as a material witness.

Another rescheduling for August 2 was postponed at the request of Judge Williams, who told Hardin he had scheduling problems.

All in all, it was a snakebit afternoon...

McLEAN — The McLean Tigers' season opener against White Face turned into one of those times when nothing goes right.

For starters, the Tigers were "home team" on a field more than a hundred miles from McLean.

Because of the 200 mile - plus distance between the two towns, Happy was selected as the site of the game, about midway between the towns. McLean was chosen by draw as host team, to provide officials, etc.

But Happy High needed the field for their own game tonight, so the match was scheduled for Thursday night instead.

Then on Thursday morning, a problem of pain and control loss in new head coach Joe Riley's left arm sent him to the hospital in Shamrock for a series of tests, so the Tigers' coach had to miss his first football game.

The Tigers headed for Happy Thursday afternoon, and about 10 miles out from McLean their bus developed tire trouble.

Arriving an hour late, the team hurriedly got ready to play, and the 7:30 - scheduled game got under way a few minutes before 8 p.m.

The game itself was mostly uneventful — so much so that 2:15 before the end of the contest, it remained a scoreless defensive duel.

Then White Face scored, and a short time later the Tigers' first 1982 football game ended in a 7 - 0 loss.

 Leta Louise Jones pleaded guilty to assault July 8 for poisoning coffee at the plant in the 1981 incident, as part of a plea-bargain agreement with Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley.
 Jones was fined $2,000 and sentenced to one year of probation in exchange for the plea, which was reduced from a charge of attempted murder.
 After the trial, she said she planned to file a sexual harassment complaint because the actions of a fellow worker drove her to the poisoning.
 Jones dropped the complaint later because she wanted to forget the incident, she said.
 But the victims of that poisoning apparently can't forget it. "Had we known about the 1978 arsenic the night of the 1981 poisoning," Joe Grubb said, "we could have had most of it pumped from our stomachs."
 As it happened, according to Grubb, the victims did not

 Numerous problems with the fire alarms at Coronado Community Hospital, including one at 9:05 a.m. Thursday, has required the Pampa Fire Department to make several emergency calls, when the department may be needed elsewhere, according to Fire Chief Paul Jones.

Troopers keep a watch for drunk holiday drivers
 By DAVID CHRISTENSON
 Operation Motoreide, the Department of Public Safety's holiday traffic death prevention program, will be in force this Labor Day weekend, September 3-6.
 During the next few days, all available DPS troopers will be on duty, and will be monitoring accident-causing violations to help prevent deaths and injuries on Texas highways.
 The two violations troopers will look for most will be excessive speed and driving while intoxicated.
 The operation will begin at 6 p.m. today and conclude at midnight Monday.
 State DPS officials are predicting 47 people will die in highway traffic accidents during this year's Labor Day festivities.
 That prediction is down by three from last year's predicted figure.

It's the death penalty for Garrett in rape slaying of elderly nun
AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishop of Amarillo says he does not believe a teen-ager, convicted in the brutal death of an elderly nun, should have been sentenced to die.
 Johnny Frank Garrett, 18, was sentenced Thursday to death by injection in the slaying, rape and beating of Sister Tadea Benz, 76, a resident of Amarillo's St. Francis Convent for more than 30 years.
 But Bishop L.T. Matthiesen, spiritual leader for the Amarillo diocese, said he believes taking a human life is wrong, regardless of the circumstances.
 "I believe in respect for life everywhere, even that God-given life that is accused of snuffing out another," the bishop said during an interview with the Amarillo Globe-News. "Instead of condemning the accused to die, we need to address ourselves to the root causes of violence, such as the problems in our society."

seek medical attention immediately, and the arsenic had time to enter other organs of their bodies — with possible permanent effects.
 Arsenic can collect in the liver, or in the bone marrow where it may cause symptoms much like leukemia.
 It can also cause loss of memory and permanent brain damage.
 "It's the same thing as if somebody shot you and nothing happened right away, and you went up to him, and he said 'Oh, it's all right,'" Grubb said. "In other words, we're walking around with bullets in our bodies."
 "Arsenic is like a time-bomb. It could reactivate at any time."
 Cabot officials reported at the time of the 1981 poisoning that several employees became mildly ill, and none required hospitalization.
 "We were more than mildly ill, and they did wrong by saying that," Grubb said.

 He said management's understatement of the symptoms was unfair to the victims and may even have hurt the prosecution's case in the Jones trial.
 All but two of the poisoned workers continued their work shift that night "on guts alone," Grubb said.
 Of the workers that stayed on the shift, he said, many suffered intense pain, and "the ones that didn't throw up have had a real high arsenic count."
 "Picture two-thirds of the crew leaning up against buildings and over railroad tracks, and throwing up on lawns," Grubb said.
 Most of the workers who drank the tainted coffee filed workman's compensation claims soon after the incident, just in case disablement or loss of work time should occur later, Grubb said.
 No compensation or money damages are mentioned in the grievance.

It's the opening day of duck season, and Alaskans Bill Sheffield, left, and Tom Fink, right, are going out again to bag the birds as they have for the past 15 years together. They may rule out politics as a topic of conversation in the cabin this fall, however, as Sheffield is the Democratic nominee for governor of the largest state, and his pal Fink is the Republican nominee. Clements blasts opponents during Panhandle campaign

VERNON, Texas (AP) — While Democrats were on the road with their candidate preaching unity, Gov. Bill Clements took his campaign to North Texas, where he sparred with one fellow Republican and said the rest "couldn't elect a dogcatcher."
 "If I had to rely on only Republicans to win this election, I'd go home and retire right now," he told a rally in Sherman after a day of campaigning in the Panhandle.
 Clements repeatedly stressed that he needs the estimated 45 percent of Texas voters who are "ticket-splitters" to beat Attorney General Mark White.
 At a stop in Fort Worth, Clements showed little of the intra-party lovey-doveyness the Democrats were displaying.
 He accused Republican U.S. Senate candidate Jim Collins of committing "a breach of good taste and a breach of etiquette" in releasing a poll that showed Collins within 4 percent of incumbent Lloyd Bentsen — and Clements trailing White by 10 percent.
 "I don't care what Mark White says. He's my competitor and he's in the race and he can do whatever wants," Clements said. "But I don't want somebody else dipping into my race."
 "I also feel very strongly that, if under those circumstances it continues, what's good for the goose is good for the gander," he concluded ominously.
 Clements said he has done no polls since late June, when four separate surveys showed him with between 5 and 16 percentage points on White.

 The tractor turned over and slid east and the trailer, loaded with hay, slid on its side toward his pickup.
 "I saw that trailer headed for me and I thought it was all over," Meek said. "So I pulled my pickup over to the fence."
 "The sound that trailer made when it was sliding down the road sounded like the end of the world," he said.
 "It just covered my pickup truck with hay, and I was real surprised to still be here when the dust settled."

False alarms at hospital plague fire dept.
 By JEFF LANGLEY Staff Writer
 Numerous problems with the fire alarms at Coronado Community Hospital, including one at 9:05 a.m. Thursday, has required the Pampa Fire Department to make several emergency calls, when the department may be needed elsewhere, according to Fire Chief Paul Jones.
 The department usually rolls two and sometimes three units to the false alarm fire calls at the hospital.
 "We've had a lot of trouble out there, Jones said about the hospital alarm system.
 "We burn more gas, subject the equipment to danger, plus the men are tied up when they might be needed somewhere else," the chief said today.
 "Their alarm system is tied into the sprinkler system, and they have had a

Border banks are trading in pesos again

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — United States border bankers are trading in pesos again, but say they are awaiting the Monday reopening of Mexico's newly nationalized banks to see how the border will be affected.

"We won't know the full impact until next week," said Tom Martinez, international banking officer at El Paso National Bank.

El Paso's two largest banks had stopped exchanging the Mexican currency Wednesday after President Jose Lopez Portillo's final State of the Nation address before leaving office Dec. 1.

In the address, the president said the government would take control of the nation's banks and impose controls to keep money from flowing out of the country.

Mexican banks are closed until Monday, leaving U.S. bankers without a way to get pesos for their customers or to get more information about the changes.

Bud Luckett, senior vice president at El Paso's State National Bank, said bankers "have to make a local market" to determine a rate of exchange for pesos until their counterparts to the south reopen.

State National was buying pesos at 110 to the dollar, but was not selling them "because we're trying to accumulate pesos to take care of our customers," Luckett said Thursday.

Martinez said his bank was selling pesos at 100 to the dollar and buying them at 120 to the dollar. El Paso's First City National Bank was not trading in pesos.

Banks in other areas of the border resumed trading limited amounts of pesos Thursday.

Luckett said there could be a big demand for pesos on the U.S. side of the border once Mexico implements a planned control that would make Americans convert their dollars into pesos at the border.

"It depends on the amount of pesos that might be available over here," he said. "We don't know if, by Monday, we'll even have any pesos."

Lopez Portillo blamed Mexico's burgeoning economic problems on an exodus of capital to other countries, particularly the United States, and said bankers had "sacked" Mexico by encouraging foreign investment.

Experts say they won't know how Mexico's new currency exchange controls will affect the border until Monday, when the banks reopen and implementing regulations are issued.

"The regulations are the kicker right now," said Don Shuffstall, international banking officer at El Paso's State National Bank. "We're waiting on them."

Shuffstall, a former Army Latin America specialist, said decrees issued by Lopez Portillo "implied a lot of very stringent measures. How effectively they can be implemented, it's hard to say."

Lopez Portillo announced currency exchange controls that will make it technically illegal for anyone in Mexico to possess U.S. dollars except for the government-controlled banks. That would include Americans traveling in Mexico.

However, it appeared late Thursday that the controls may not affect travel between border towns.

One section of the government decree says border area Mexicans will be allowed to accept dollars, but must deposit them in the government-controlled banks within 24 hours.

That would indicate that the exchange points would be at customs stops on the way into the interior rather than at international bridges across the Rio Grande.

Enrique Hubbard, Mexican consul in Brownsville, said customs officials were awaiting the regulations from Mexico City that would explain the mechanics of the currency controls.

Solution to unemployment fund crunch still sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton has urged a House committee to help keep the unemployment tax fund from going broke without throwing the 1983 Legislature "into a tizzy."

Last week Clayton joined with other state officials in supporting a "quick fix" to the problem, but he said Thursday proposals would be presented today for a "more permanent solution."

The Committee on Employment Practices scheduled its second day of hearings on the unemployment fund today.

The Legislature goes into special session Tuesday to keep the fund solvent. The fund has been drained heavily in recent months through payments to hundreds of thousands of out-of-work Texans.

Administrator Jim Hine of the Texas Employment Commission said Thursday more than $61 million in benefits were paid out in August, which is a record high, and payments for the first two days of September have exceeded $6.5 million.

Hine said if present trends continue "the fund will be broke before Thanksgiving."

One barrier to a temporary solution of the problem toppled Thursday when Attorney General Mark White held that the state could borrow money from the federal government to replenish the fund. White's opinion said borrowing the money would not violate the Texas Constitution's pay-as-you-go provision.

"We have a problem that's real — no question about it," Clayton said. "One that we must take action on."

Water plan is recommended

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas voters rejected a state water plan because they thought it was not for them, and a new campaign to win support for water projects is needed, Texas Municipal League President Alan Henry told a state task force.

Adopting a more detailed water program with the slogan "Water for People" was recommended Thursday to the Governor's Task Force on Water Use and Conservation by Lubbock's mayor pro tem.

The new slogan would convince voters the plan is "for that person sitting at home watching the 10 o'clock news," Henry said, rather than for some unexplained "entity."

Janet and Gene Rogers are serving as coordinators for the area pledge center. The Texas Panhandle segment of the telethon will be broadcast on Channel 10, KFDD - TV in Amarillo.

During the telethon, which originates from Las Vegas, Nev., MD patients will be interviewed and reports made from participating cities and towns.

Precautions urged for safe holiday

LAKE MEREDITH — Lake Meredith park service officials, expecting large numbers of visitors for the Labor Day weekend, have issued some precautions and reminders to make it a safe holiday.

"It takes three to ski," they point out: a skier, a boat operator and an observer. Skiers must wear a flotation device, and skiing is not allowed within 500 feet of harbors, swimming and mooring areas. Either vocal or hand signals should be possible between skier and tow boat.

Officials warn swimmers that there will be no lifeguards at Spring Canyon. Parents should watch their children if they swim, and swimmers are asked not to dive from docks or cliffs. Alcoholic beverages are not permitted in the Spring Canyon swimming area.

Boat operators are reminded to park their boat trailers only in designated areas.

Officials also remind dune buggy and trail bike drivers to be cautious in the Rosita Cycle Trail area.

Some rattlesnakes have been seen around the lake, so hikers should be on the lookout for them.

Finally, park officials ask visitors to the lake to cooperate in keeping the area clean by packing their own trash out. Trash containers are available at the lake, but with heavy visitation it is difficult for park staff to keep up with trash removal.

HONEY... GET READY,
LET'S GO FOR A DRIVE

Good intentions are not sufficient

The nuclear freeze movement includes lots of thoughtful people sincerely convinced that a Soviet-American freeze offers the best argument was given a fair hearing in the House of Representatives recently.

Its defeat — albeit by a paper-thin 204 - 202 margin — preserves the prospects for negotiating a less dangerous arms agreement with the Soviets. Had the House vote gone the other way, the Reagan administration's efforts to achieve actual arms reductions would have been seriously undercut. And the Soviets would have been encouraged to hold out for the "freeze" they too profess to desire.

Indeed, the 202 House members who voted for an immediate freeze ought to reflect on why the Soviets are pushing the same proposal. Maybe it's because the Reagan administration is dead right when it contends that the Soviets now hold a significant margin of superiority in strategic nuclear weaponry. Or maybe it's because a freeze would be inherently unverifiable, and thus would permit the Soviets multiple opportunities to cheat just as they are now cheating on existing arms control agreements. The Reagan Alternative — reduction to equal, and lesser, numbers of nuclear weapons on both sides — won a solid 273 - 125 endorsement by the House following rejection of the freeze - strike threat posed by the Soviet Union's current monopoly in heavy, land-based missiles.

The freeze movement would, however unknowingly, make that ominous monopoly permanent. And that would amount to making nuclear war, or nuclear blackmail, more rather than less likely.

Notwithstanding its defeat in the House, and the certainty of similar fate in the Senate, the call for a nuclear freeze will continue to attract adherents. Its seeming simplicity will continue to suggest an easy way out of a nuclear arms race that no one likes.

But the arduous task of avoiding nuclear war or nuclear blackmail requires something more than good intentions. Keeping the peace requires above all that the Reagan administration proceed with rebuilding an adequate nuclear deterrent — an option the freeze would foreclose.

Sohio doing very respectable job

Oil companies have been the butt of liberals ever since John D. Rockefeller put big oil on the map. Standard of Ohio, now being one of the biggest — its sales last year totaled $13.8 billion — comes in for its share of diatribes. They are undeserved. Sohio is one of the success stories of American industry.

Sohio and its competitors are alleged to get undue favors from the government. The latest is the privilege of drilling for oil and gas in large offshore areas, hitherto reserved.

"This incomprehensible rush to turn America's coastline, an irreplaceable and irreparable national resource, over to private interests for wholesale exploitation is ridiculous," states the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It is the forced hoarding of oil off our shores, while we import vast quantities from the tumultuous Middle East and elsewhere that is ridiculous. The charge that private interests are exploiting the oil reserves on a wholesale scale only shows how little is known about offshore oil drilling. It is a long-odds gamble. Hundreds of millions have been spent by oil companies whose drills tapped nothing but "dry holes" under the sea.

Sohio recently plugged a $28 million dry hole off Florida's east coast. In partnership with five other oil companies, Sohio plugged a $104 million dry hole off Massachusetts. In fact, according to the Washington Post, there has been a lot of costly drilling along the Atlantic coastline with little to show for it.

On Sohio's total sales of $13.8 billion in 1981, the company made $1.9 billion, net. This is a substantial but not excessive profit for a firm in this hazardous a business.

Individual freedom best safety device

If the ruling of a federal appeals court holds, the next car you buy, beginning in the fall of 1983, will come equipped with an automatic seat belt or an air bag that will pop out in case of accident.

Whether you want either of these or not. That's what the court ruled recently.

You can moan and groan and say why don't they make you wear helmets or if they want to make the driver really safe require that he put on a suit of armor before driving off or outfit him in foam rubber — you can complain and cough and snort but if this court's decision holds, you can get ready for seat belts or air bags. The court has decreed.

But it probably won't be the end of the issue. It has been around for years and no doubt will be around for some time to come.

It was the Carter Administration that supported the theory that the driver didn't know what was best for himself and, therefore, had to have someone tell him what to do. Automatic devices got a boost and the auto industry tried to put the issue on the front burner.

Along came the Reagan Administration, however, and contended that such devices were unduly costly and would not offer significantly more protection than the manual belts now installed in cars. The devices went to the back burner.

The issue wound up in court and the appeals court handed down its ruling recently. Consumer groups heralded the ruling as a momentous decision. People concerned with individual rights saw it as another blow to freedom.

Auto manufacturers, acutely aware that the prices of their products are already dampening car sales, would rather forget the whole thing.

That's what the courts ought to do. Such devices are an idea whose time got bogged down in the right of the individual to choose for himself. Like so many other ideas that stagger out of Washington's think tanks, this one needs to be sent back for major overhaul.

Debunking AT&T's myths

By ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (Nea) — With the federal government's landmark antitrust suit against the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. now finally resolved, the nation is poised to enter a new era of telecommunications.

But a panoply of old myths — many of them engendered, embraced and encouraged by AT&T — inspired deception is the myth that local telephone service is a money-losing enterprise that must be subsidized by generous financial "contributions" from long-distance service.

A related canard holds that AT&T's business customers are the principal users of long-distance service while residential customers' telephone usage is concentrated on local service.

Residential telephone users who accept those myths have been led to believe that their monthly bills would double or triple because the settlement of the antitrust case calls for an unprecedented separation of local and long-distance service, thus presumably eliminating the opportunity for perpetuation of the "subsidy" or "contribution."

William G. McGowan, board chairman of the MCI Telecommunications Corp., one of AT&T's most aggressive competitors in recent years, suggests that the entire concept of a long-distance-to-local service subsidy is a fraud:

"For years, AT&T has carried out a massive public-relations campaign to convince the media, consumer organizations, state and federal regulators and members of Congress that local exchange service is a real dog, propped up by subsidies from profitable long-distance service.

"AT&A controls every major local service market in this country, fully 82 percent of the business. They've got the New York market — and Los Angeles, Chicago, Atlanta, Denver.

"Local service is more than 40 percent of their business, and they have absolutely no competition for it. Yet they want you to believe they do it all at a loss."

If there is a subsidy, AT&T claimed that in 1979 local service received a "contribution" of $1.5 billion from long-distance service.

But at approximately the same time, AT&T was telling the Federal Communications Commission that the 1979 subsidy totaled $3.2 billion — and in another antitrust suit, being considered by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago, AT&T said the 1979 subsidy was almost $6.1 million.

"The simple truth is that no one is able to answer with any precision the question of where there are subsidies from one line of service to another in the telephone industry," says Herbert N. Jasper, executive vice president of the Ad Hoc Committee for Competitive Telecommunications, whose members include affiliates of ITT, RCA and MCI.

The myth that business customers are the dominant users of long-distance service and thus indirectly subsidize residential customers is debunked by AT&T's own statistics, which show that residential users make 42 percent of all long-distance calls, account for almost 62 percent of the total minutes of usage and contribute more than half of all AT&T's long-distance revenues.

There is, however, evidence that unwarranted subsidies have been flowing in a direction opposite to the one that AT&T claims — from the Bell System companies that provide local service into AT&T's coffers.

Those operating companies paid $10.2 billion in 1980 to Western Electric, an AT&T subsidiary, for equipment purchases. William F. Baxter, assistant attorney general in charge of Dictators?

We all thought we lived in a democratic society, but after reading the article on the front page of August 18th newspaper I would think a lot of us will wonder.

We have at least two dictators in Pampa; Mack Wofford and the school tax system.

I was present at a city commission meeting and the subject of Somerville Street was raised. Wofford didn't say it was under study; it was a very emphatic "there will be nothing done with Somerville Street."

The city invited the public to a meeting concerning a raise in school taxes, but evidently a citizen could have talked himself blue in the face and it would have made no difference.

So, "if people want mud streets, we will have mud streets". That sounds very juvenile. What they're saying in effect is, if these people won't do what I want, then I won't even try.

I wonder if any one ever thought to ask him what happened to the money that came from a bond issue in the early sixties. The issue was approved for the widening of 23rd street from Duncan west to Hobart. The street is just like it has always been.

We don't need a dictator at City Hall. That place should be cleaned out and started over from scratch.

A few years ago taxes on a new house in Pampa were double what they were in Amarillo.

There is the reason for the fall in the population when the census was taken.

All of us pay taxes to run the city. They have plenty of cars up there, but if they take someone from the city jail to the courthouse they march them across that street on foot, in handcuffs.

That burns me up. Supposedly we have freedom of speech, and freedom of the press.

I will know just how far that goes when I see if there is anybody up there who will see to it that this is printed in the Pampa News.

Immigrants, obey our laws

By PAUL HARVEY
Thousands of immigrants in the United States, mostly from Cuba, persist in their practice of a religious rite called Santeria.

I will spare you graphic detail, but Santeria is a mixture of African folk religion and Spanish Catholicism fashioned by slaves.

It involves the ritual slaughter of animals.

Some Haitian immigrants ceremonially mutilate animals.

And these groups, in the United States, demand their right to do so in the name of "religious liberty."

How far should any country go in altering its own traditions to accommodate outsiders?

Because ours is a nation of immigrants and their children, any prospect of Draconian measures to limit immigration or to preserve our traditional culture appears contradictory.

So we have hurried — perhaps unwisely — to open our borders to almost limitless legal and illegal immigration. Until, the situation beyond remedy or repair, our Congress decides the only way to resolve the problem of illegal immigration is to make the illegals legal.

This amnesty for millions we cannot even accurately count would make illegals further eligible for welfare, unemployment pay, housing subsidies, food stamps, medical care and — for their children — a free education. And IN THEIR OWN LANGUAGE!

Richard Rodriguez, son of Mexican immigrants, who has accumulated degrees from Stanford and Columbia and Berkeley — and in London on English only. He says teaching the language of the ghetto or the barrio tends to keep those young people out of the mainstream, evokes majority society, solidifies a feeling of public alienation.

To come to the United States because it is what is and then to try to change it into something which it is not is at least impolite and ungrateful, at worst seditious and subversive.

To perpetuate heathen rites such as animal sacrifice in the name of "religious liberty" ignores limitations which Americans have already legally placed on that prerogative.

Our Supreme Court has ruled that polygamy is a no-no, whatever religious group seeks to justify it.

Blood transfusions have been court ordered over the objections of religious groups which oppose those.

In our representative republic, Americans are not free to do what they WANT; they are free to do what they OUGHT.

This brings us to the immigrant's obligation to discipline himself in accordance with the customs, mores and laws of his adopted country.

As our Congress moves to legalize the illegals, may I suggest a study of the system adopted in Switzerland and West Germany.

There, illegals may stay and work — but they are not sanctified with a halo of legality. This way, the first time any one of them breaks the law of his adopted land he is automatically deported. It has worked there.

(Editor's note - Regarding the bond issue Mrs. Robertson refers to, we called Mack Wofford to find out. Mr. Wofford wasn't in the city government when this occurred, in the late fall of 1981, but he looked in the records and discovered that in November, 1981, the city commission authorized an election to approve some $1.1 million in bonds for improvements on 23rd Street. In December, one month later, that issue was soundly defeated, with 1,064 votes in favor, and 1,767 against the issue.

So to answer Mrs. Robertson's question: there never was any money from the bond issue to do anything with.)

A Special Couple

September 4th, is a special day for a most unusual and outstanding Pampa couple. That day is Clyde and Hazel Rodcape's 50th Anniversary.

This is a grand accomplishment for any couple — but much more for them.

Those who know the Rodcapes are aware that for more than the last half-decade Hazel has been confined to a "close-home" situation and wheelchair as a result of a massive stroke during a surgery in January, 1972, and Clyde has been her constant devoted companion, cook, interpreter, chauffeur, etc.

The years prior to '72 were also riddled with tragedy and illness.

This wonderful couple deserves our praise, adoration, love — and above all praise and prayers. For their constant stability and devotion to each other and to their friends and the community of Pampa.

I would ask that you of the Pampa community, join me in remembering them by visits and or calls on this memorable day.

Mexican bank president urges business leaders to be calm

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The new president of the central bank says the bank nationalization ordered by President Jose Lopez Portillo does not mean Mexico is on the road to socialism.

The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, known here as the PRI, called for a massive rally today at the Zocalo, the huge square in downtown Mexico City, to show support for the measure.

Carlos Tello Macias, president of the Bank of Mexico, on Thursday urged people with bank deposits to remain calm and keep their trust in the nation's banking system. He replaced Miguel Mancera, who resigned as head of the central bank after the government decree Wednesday that nationalized the banks.

Bankers, industrialists and business leaders, meanwhile, reacted to the nationalization with dismay. Most said it will push Mexico deeper into its worst recession in more than half a century.

"Nationalization of private banking will aggravate the current crisis and will not help solve any crucial problem," said Carlos Abedrop Davila, president of the Association of Mexican bankers.

Lopez Portillo announced the takeover of private banks and issued tough foreign currency exchange controls during his sixth and last state of the nation address Wednesday.

He accused Mexican bankers of "sacking" the country and said the measures were aimed at halting the flight of capital from Mexico.

Lopez Portillo said Mexican speculators have taken more than $22 billion out of the country in the past two years, mainly through foreign bank accounts or the purchase of U.S. real estate.

Mexico has a foreign debt of $81 billion, largest in the Third World, and is suffering from a 60 percent inflation rate. A critical unemployment problem — 40 percent of the work force is without jobs or underemployed — is expected to grow worse as the country struggles with its most serious economic crisis since the 1910-1920 revolution.

Dollar and other transactions in foreign currency were declared illegal by the presidential decree, and the peso is now Mexico's only legal tender. Only banks will be allowed to accept dollars. People caught selling foreign currency in the black market will face five to 15 years imprisonment.

Beginning Monday, Americans and other foreigners entering Mexico will have to convert all their money into pesos at customs, the government said.

Calm reportedly restored in Lubin

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Calm has been restored to the copper-mining town of Lubin after three days of violence that left two protesters dead and a few buildings burned to the ground.

"It's calm now. That's all we can say," said a Lubin factory worker, who was reached by telex Thursday since phone lines had been cut and roads into the southwestern town blocked by police.

Disturbances began in Lubin Tuesday as part of nationwide protests called by the outlawed Solidarity trade union to commemorate its founding on Aug. 31 two years ago in the Baltic seaport of Gdansk.

On Thursday at about 5 p.m., witnesses said hundreds of Lubin residents, angry over the deaths of two men, clashed with police again. The police fired tear gas and flares at them. Warsaw television said calm was restored about eight hours later.

The two protesters authorities acknowledged killing were aged 32 and 25 and worked in electrical and construction businesses, sources said. A sign on the wall of a house said "Mieczyslaw Pozniak, born 1957, was killed here. The funeral will be Sunday."

The official news agency PAP reported that more than 130 protesters and police officers were wounded and 4,050 people were arrested during protests in Lubin, Wroclaw, Krakow, Czestochowa, Gdansk, and other cities. Press reports indicated the unrest was the most violence since martial law was imposed Dec. 13 to end labor and social turmoil inspired by the union.

The Communist Party Politburo condemned the nationwide rioting in a meeting Thursday and authorities threatened punishment for Solidarity supporters and underground leaders who had called for the protests.

In Lubin, PAP reported, "several hundred" people gathered early Wednesday morning and began to march on the Communist Party headquarters. It said the group "grew and grew" as the day progressed.

On Tuesday, PAP said, police had fired on the protesters, killing two and wounding 12 others, three of them seriously. Twelve police officers also were wounded, according to official reports.

Other reports said 24 civilians and 12 police officers were injured in Krakow, 29 civilians and 42 police officers were hurt in Gdansk, and 24 streetcars were "immobilized" in Wroclaw.

New nail clipper could save marriages

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer
CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)

Bill Hannon was fed up with trimming his nails and watching the clippings fly across the room, onto the rug, under the couch or into his wife's lap. So he invented a clipper-catcher that he figures may also save some marriages.

The 3-inch-long gizmo, which looks like a standard nail clipper but is a bit larger, works by pushing the nail inward into a little box.

The 59-year-old Truckee, Calif., man got the idea about two years ago while trimming his nails at home near Carson City, watching clippings "flying from one end of the room to the other."

He tried putting his hand in a plastic bag to keep the errant nails off the floor.

Then he tried to put a cardboard platform around a standard clipper.

Then, he got the idea for the tiny box. He says he has spent about $45,000 in development, marketing and patent expenses on the object, which he proudly calls "the perfect clipper" for fingernails or toenails.

His nail catcher isn't for sale yet because he hasn't found a manufacturer.

Hannon figures the clipper will sell for about $3 and make him and an investor a lot of money — and could wipe out one of the many stumbling blocks to marital bliss.

"I hope so," he said. "I'm sure of it, in fact. From all indications, there is nothing but a good response to this."

"Everybody's wife has sent them out on the porch, whether it's snowing or raining. That's the answer I got from everyone."

The invention also can be used on cats and small dogs, Hannon says, keeping a spouse out of the doghouse for not cleaning up errant clippings.

Hannon, a left-hander, designed the clipper for left-hand or right-hand use. He beveled the cutting edge of the clipper to push the nail inward, and a nail file on the clipper swivels aside to reveal the tiny enclosure where nails are held until thrown away.

Hannon isn't the only inventor with a toehold on such a device. His patent research indicated three similar gadgets, none of which was ever marketed widely. Hannon's was unique enough to qualify for "patent pending" status, he said.

Four arrested in two robberies

HOUSTON (AP) — Police were considering charges against four men arrested after a high-speed chase and held in connection with two department store armed robberies, an investigator says.

The men were apprehended within minutes of the second robbery, said police Lt. Alan Tharling.

The robbers entered a store about noon Thursday, carrying a shotgun and a .38-caliber automatic pistol, and took money from the store cash registers and customers, he said.

Fall bible conference at Pampa Bible Church

A Fall Bible Conference will be held at the Bible Church of Pampa, 300 W. Browning, in four services this Saturday and Sunday.

Guest speaker for the conference will be Dr. John F. Walvoord, president of Dallas Theological Seminary.

Walvoord, a leading conservative evangelical theologian and Biblical prophecy specialist, will speak at all four services.

Topics and times for services are: on Saturday, "The Significance of the Middle East Crisis" at 7:30 p.m.; on Sunday, "The Judgement of the Nations" at 10 a.m., "The Blessed Hope" at 11 a.m. and "How Soon Will the Lord Return?" at 7:30 p.m.

Following the first service, at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, refreshments will be served. A sandwich and dessert supper will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Nursery will be provided at the conference, and no special offering will be taken.

After earning a doctorate in theology from Dallas Theological in 1936, Walvoord served as an associate professor there until 1952.

During this period, he also served as pastor in a Fort Worth church.

Walvoord took the presidency of the seminary then after the death of former president Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafer.

Walvoord is the author of over 20 books including several on interpretations of Biblical prophecy. He has traveled to the Middle East, Europe, Central and South America, Australia and New Zealand.

He is listed in "Who's Who in America" and "Who's Who in American Education," and was chosen "Alumnus of the Year" for 1981 by Wheaton College in Wheaton, Ill.

Regional Baptist Sunday School Convention planned

A Texas Baptist Regional Sunday School Convention will be held at First Baptist Church in Borger Sept. 20.

The convention is one of 28 conducted statewide for pastors, church staff members, Sunday School workers and general officers to build enthusiasm for outreach programs, Bible teaching and evangelism for the new church year.

The sponsor of the conference is the Sunday School Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Theme for the conference will be "8.5 by '85, Reaching People, Training Leaders."

Southern Baptist Conventions hope to increase Sunday School enrollment from 7.4 million to 8.5 million by 1985.

Afternoon "Reaching People" sessions in Borger will be held from 1:30 to 4:30. The evening "Training Leaders" session will be held from 6:45 to 9:15.

Special speaker for the convention will be Wayne Allen, pastor of First Baptist Church of Carrollton, who will deliver messages on "The Power of Effective Bible Teaching" and "Why 8.5 by '85 Must Succeed."

All convention conferences are geared toward the small church with specific conferences for large churches, Spanish-speaking churches and cradle roll.

For the first time, a conference will be conducted this year for general officers of small churches.

Lutherans discussing plan for unification

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Geographically dispersed, three-ring proceedings among Lutherans across the country next week are expected to launch them toward unification. If any hitch occurs, its likeliest locale is in San Diego, Calif.

That's where the largely Midwestern American Lutheran Church is holding its convention Sept. 6-11, simultaneously with conventions in Ohio and Kentucky of two other U.S. Lutheran bodies involved.

For those two — the Lutheran Church in America, meeting in Louisville, and the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, meeting in Cleveland — indications were the unifying plan was a virtual sure thing.

But some questioning has arisen in the ALC that could cause a snag in the San Diego proceedings, although prospects remain high that the merger plan will get approval in all three arenas.

It calls for a new, united Lutheran church of 5.4 million members by 1988, third in size among American Protestants to the 13.7 million-member Southern Baptists and 9.6 million-member United Methodists.

In any case, San Diego remained the spot to watch for the outcome. The ALC is at a "volatile" stage, says Iowa district Bishop L. David Brown. He says critics may have some influence, but probably not enough to defeat the plan.

Results of the tripartite decision-making are to be announced to delegates of the three conventions in a three-way teleconference on Wednesday, Sept. 8.

About the only organized sign of opposition was in the ALC, in which a theologically conservative group of 20 clergy, the Committee for Church Cooperation, has registered misgivings.

The Rev. Duane Lindberg of Waterloo, Iowa, head of the committee, says committee members feel there has not been sufficient discussion of polity differences between the LCA and ALC.

Among differences, he said, is that the LCA is an organization of clergy and congregations, while the ALC is a union of congregations, and that the LCA belongs to the interdenominational National Council of Churches while the ALC does not.

In a 1981 poll, which precipitated the merger move, 96 percent of the AELC and 87 percent of the LCA favored it, while only 64 percent of the ALC did so. Identical proposals to the three conventions are that they set up a joint 70-member commission to oversee formation of the new church by Jan. 1, 1988.

Hats off to Labor

America would be a vastly different place but for the skilled and dedicated laborers that have graced our land. We should indeed doff our hats to labor on the first Monday in September.

No nation, however, can become great by its labors alone, no matter how skilled and dedicated the men are to their task. The Bible reminds us "except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city the watchman watches in vain."

It is trust in the Eternal Creator God that makes or breaks any people. Our destiny is in His hands. Go this week to worship the God who gives meaning to all labor done in His name.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church rejection no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church in everyone!

Dear Abby

Jazz musicians planted 'The Big Apple' seed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: How did New York City come to be known as "The Big Apple"? Everyone I've asked has a different version, but nobody seems to know for sure. Do you?
BIG QUESTION

DEAR BIG: No, but I decided to get to the core of it, so I asked Roger Wood, my editor at the New York Post, who passed the assignment on to his assistant, Sonia Reyes. Here's the juice:

In the early 1930s, American jazz musicians who toured the country playing one-night stands coined the slang expression "apple," meaning any town or city.

Charles Gillett, president of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau at that time, commented, "There are many apples on the tree, but to play New York City is to play the big time - The Big Apple!" Henceforth, New York City was known as "The Big Apple."

P.S. If the above turns out to be applesauce, please write to Sonia. (Roger?)

lot further than I should have. (He's 17 and much more experienced than I.) I have to admit I was having fun and didn't put up any resistance.

Since that time, we've talked on the phone but we have yet to go out on a date. Now I'm worried that if we start dating, or if we're alone again, he will expect what he got the first time, and I'm not ready for that. He's a nice, intelligent person, but he could be moving too fast for me.

I know he would stop if I said "Stop," but I like him so much, it's next to impossible to get that one little word out of my mouth. Are there any alternatives? Please help soon. And don't send a personal reply to my house.

ONLY HUMAN

DEAR HUMAN: The cardinal rule is: Don't set yourself up for any situation you feel incapable of handling. And the next time you're alone together, tell him you have no intentions of repeating your previous performance because you're not ready for it. And say it with conviction and authority, as though you are calling the signals - and you will be!

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of parents who arrange to have their bodies cremated immediately after death so there will be no body for a funeral?

One of our parents is hopelessly ill and can go anytime. They live on one coast, and most of their children live on the other. I was home for a visit within the last month, and it would be a big financial drain to go back again to attend a funeral service for a can of ashes!

If the body were there for a viewing, I can see going home for the service, but not for a can of ashes. I also feel that viewing the body after death has therapeutic value for the family. It makes the "goodbye" more realistic and final.

I believe my parents made these funeral arrangements without considering us children. What can we do? Or more to the point, what should we do? We are heartbroken and confused.

GRIEVING CHILDREN

DEAR CHILDREN: I suggest you talk frankly with your parents now. In all probability their first concern was you - their children. It is important that you know how they feel, and they know how you feel.

DEAR ABBY: Another reason for securing youngsters in car seats: We always know where their little fingers are when we slam the car doors shut.

Gene on Genealogy

Where to begin tracing the family tree

BY GENA WALLS

Are you interested in compiling a family tree, but do not know where to begin? The place to start is right in your own home, with the "bare essentials" about yourself.

Write down your full name, date and place of birth (including county), and, if applicable, date and place of marriage and name of spouse. Now you are ready to begin to build your pedigree chart, starting with yourself and moving backward to your parents, then your parents' parents, and so on.

A genealogy of nothing but names, dates and places makes for extremely dull reading so be sure and expound on the facts with interesting tidbits about personalities, nicknames, occupations and things that make a family live from one generation to another.

Try to find the answers to the questions "who, what, where, how and why?"

Why did your ancestors move to the Panhandle and how did they arrive? Where did they come from and who traveled with them? Generally there is some element of truth in most "family traditions." The truth might not be as grand as the story but could be as significant and worth the effort to uncover the facts.

Once you have exhausted your knowledge of genealogical data, it is time to approach your relatives. Do not expect all of them to be as enthusiastic as yourself and try to see them personally when making your requests. Make notes of each interview, being very careful to check the spelling of names, places and confirm dates. For example, in researching my DUVALL line, I found the surname spelled "DEVAL, DUVALL, DUVAL, AND DEVOL," but have proven it is the same family.

Genealogy is not only the documented account of family relationships, but is simultaneously a study of individual character, and a study of the history of a nation based on oral and written records.

The formation of towns, counties and states are important clues as to the migration of our families. Changes in state lines might find a family living on the same land but in different states at different times. When your research is complete, if you are thorough with your work, you should be able to talk for at least thirty minutes about the history of the area.

BYU shuts out Nevada in football opener

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Steve Young had big shoes to fill when he took over from All-American quarterback Jim McMahon at Brigham Young University, but he acquitted himself well in the college football season opener.

The Cougars rolled over the University of Nevada, Las Vegas 27-0 on Thursday, gaining 468 yards in total offense in the non-conference game, which was nationally televised by WTBS-TV of Atlanta.

"I thought Young played well," said BYU Coach LaVelle Edwards. "He's tough but he can't get tackled like that all the time."

Young, who was sacked several times, hit 19 of 26 passes for 271 yards and one touchdown in the heat that was a blistering 108 degrees at kickoff. A crowd of 26,769 looked on.

Strategy Session

Harvesters kick off season at Hereford

After four weeks of conditioning exercises, blocking and tackling drills, wind sprints and a couple of scrimmages the Pampa Harvesters are set to open the 1982 football season against the Hereford Whitefaces.

Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m. tonight at Hereford.

Although Hereford returns only four starters (two on offense and two on defense), Pampa head coach John Kendall is concerned about the Whitefaces' new-found winning tradition.

"They've got a good, solid program going over there," Kendall said. "We're going to have to have some young kids come through for us to win it."

Hereford posted a 13-1 record a year ago and reached the Class 5A state semifinals, losing to eventual state champion Richardson Lake Highlands, 10-7. Hereford has won 21 of its last 24 games.

Two returnees for Hereford on the offensive line are 170-pound guard Mark Collier and 200-pound center Tim Martin.

In the backfield, Alfred Ball, a 160-pound tailback, will lead the Whitefaces' ground game. He rushed for 500 yards a year ago. Charles McDowell, a 180-pounder, who started in the defensive secondary last year, will take over the quarterbacking chores this season.

Hereford's defense won't have the size it had last year, according to head coach Don Cumpton, but it should have the edge in quickness.

In addition to McDowell, 195-pound linebacker Fred Garcia is the only returning defensive starter.

Kendall is concerned with Pampa's injury situation going into tonight's opener.

Offensive guard Bryan Bowen, a 190-pound returning starter, is a question mark tonight because of a bruised thigh. Wade Gardner, a 190-pound senior offensive and defensive tackle, has been out for two weeks after becoming ill in practice. He has not received a medical release to return to practice.

Two varsity players are still recuperating from injuries received in motorcyle accidents.

"With these guys being out it sure doesn't help our depth very much," Kendall added. "We're going to have to shuffle some people around."

Senior quarterback Randy Skaggs, who started last season, will direct the Harvesters' slot-I offense. Skaggs passed for 192 yards in the Harvesters' two-victory season a year ago.

Junior tailback Danny Sebastian, second leading rusher on the team last season with 240 yards, is expected to spearhead Pampa's rushing attack. Senior fullback Dennis Kuempel, who has been impressive in practice and senior slotback Devin Mason, who will start again at defensive safety, are the other backfield starters.

Pampa's probable lineup is as follows:

Offense— Ends—Brad Voyles, 160-pound senior, and Kenneth Jackson, 165-pound senior; Tackles—Ricky Stout, 180-pound junior, and Bill Carter, 180-pound senior; Guards—Wade Barker, 185-pound senior, and Ricky Baird, 160-pound senior; Center Bill Fritz, 200-pound junior; Quarterback—Randy Skaggs, 160-pound senior; Fullback—Dennis Kuempel, 165-pound junior; Tailback—Danny Sebastian, 185-pound junior.

Can Ellis do it again?

Will Richard Ellis continue to dominate the Top O' Texas Golf Tournament?

That burning question will be answered during the next three days of 72-hole play at the Pampa Country Club course.

Ellis has won the tournament title four times, including the last three years in a row. No other golfer has won the crown more than twice. Only three golfers—Rex Baxter (1952-53), Don Kaplan (1955-56) and Lloyd Moody (1971-72)—have had back-to-back victories.

Ellis, a Pampa native now living in Plano, has to come from far back to win his fourth TOT last year. Trailing by 9 strokes after the opening round, Ellis chipped away at the lead and finally overtook Cliff Pierce and Mark Hammond to win by one stroke.

Ellis won his first TOT title in 1969 with a four-stroke win over Marvin Dick of Amarillo. He didn't win again until 1979 when he won by two strokes over Bill Turner.

After a practice round today, the 206 entrants tee off on the first 18 holes Saturday morning. There will be 18 more holes Sunday and then the final 36 holes will be played Monday. Players will be divided into eleven flights after the first 36 holes.

Past TOT winners are listed below:
1938—Dale Storie, Borger; 1939—Frank Foxhall, Memphis; 1940—O.B. Smith, Memphis; 1941-45 (no tournament); 1946—Billy Holmes, Shamrock; 1947—Billy Cole, Quanah; 1948—Jack Garrett, Plainview; 1949—Billy Houck, Borger; 1950—Grover Austin Jr., Pampa; 1951—Jack Williams, Plainview; 1952—Johnny Thronto; 1953—Rex Baxter, Amarillo; 1954—Rex Baxter, Amarillo; 1955—Don Kaplan, Borger; 1956—Don Kaplan, Borger; 1957—Jim Russell, Amarillo; 1958—Don Prigmore, Pampa; 267; 1959—Roland Adams, Lubbock; 276; 1960—Don Seamster, Borger; 274; 1961—Les Howard, Pampa; 210; 1962—Charles Coody, Stamford; 274; 1963—John Farquhar, Amarillo; 272; 1964—Bobby Greenwood, Cookeville, Tenn.; 276; 1965—Steve LaCrone, Amarillo; 283; 1966—Bobby Greenwood, Cookeville, Tenn.; 270; 1968—John Farquhar, Amarillo; 284; 1969—Richard Ellis, Pampa; 271; 1970—John Shepperson; 273; 1971—Lloyd Moody; 269; 1972—Lloyd Moody; 274; 1973—Jody Richardson; 272; 1974—Dickie Weston; 283; 1975—Britt Harrison; 272; 1976—Barry Prost; 274; 1977—Jim Haren; 276; 1978—Ladd Larsen; 279; 1979—Richard Ellis; 277; 1980—Richard Ellis; 273; 1981—Richard Ellis; 283.

Library of America reprints the classics

By David Handier

NEW YORK (NEA) — The late Edmund Wilson got the ball rolling 20 years ago when he complained in print, "It is absurd that our most read and studied writers should not be available in their entirety in any convenient form."

And now his dream has come true. It is the Library of America, a $1.8 million publishing project bankrolled by the Ford Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities. It is getting America's literary classics back into print and keeping them there permanently — in compact, durably bound volumes of acid-free paper. Each runs 1,300 to 1,500 pages and costs $25 over the counter ($19.95 by subscription to Time-Life Books).

The first four — volumes of Walt Whitman, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Herman Melville and Harriet Beecher Stowe — are already out.

THE WORKS of Harriet Beecher Stowe and Walt Whitman are just two of the many classic works from American authors that the newly established Library of America is reprinting.

Twenty-one more tomes are projected by 1985, among them favorites by Jack London, Edgar Allan Poe,

James Fenimore Cooper, Mark Twain, Stephen Crane. There'll be grand storytelling, nature writing, sea adventure, poetry, comedy. "It is our hope," says Daniel Aaron, the pipe-smoking, Harvard American-literature professor and president of the Library of America, "that Americans will find them more interesting than Judith Krantz."

Based on sales and correspondence to date, Aaron believes they are.

"We've touched a nerve," he feels. "A lot of readers, in the heartland especially, are dismayed by the junk that publishers today are putting out as best-sellers, these juiceless, semi-pornographic books appealing to sensationalism. People today are disturbed by the erosion of values. Here at last are books they can give their children and grandchildren to read."

"In addition, with the country in difficult straits, there's a move to the past, a desire to reestablish roots and to ask where we went wrong. Because of the stuff being turned out now, these books haven't been available. We want there to be a national library of America's most beloved books. We want to start people reading again."

Aaron believes a lot of people have gotten out of the habit. "The idea of families reading aloud together is going by the board, the idea of having books in the house, of reading to your children. I find this is even true of my students at Harvard. They don't know how to read aloud anymore."

Obviously, TV is partly to blame. "There is a mechanizing of our ideas and our culture," he acknowledges. "But I think kids are getting bored with TV once they get to be 14 or 15. It's earned. It's passive. We are offering this as an option."

Aaron also blames bad teaching techniques for why so many Americans are losing touch with their national literature. He hopes young people will find and read these books before they're taught them. Otherwise, he says, they may be sore by the experience.

Next? 'Real' movies created by computer

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — "Tron" may not be the box office blockbuster the Disney people had hoped for, but it will go down in movie annals as one of the most spectacular visual films of all time.

It is certainly a trailblazer of a movie. There is a 73-minute hunk of the film that is virtually all special effects, and much of that is the kind of thing never before seen by the human eye. Most of those 73 minutes were created by computers.

Richard Taylor is the young genius responsible for a lot of the "Tron" trickery. He says that much of what you see on the screen as "Tron" unfolds is revolutionary. Adventurous. Brand new. And very, very exciting and expensive.

Taylor tries to explain the computer-based sequences in language that laymen can understand. But it is almost impossible, because the whole affair is terribly technical. It's like trying to get a straight answer out of a politician. Very difficult.

What happened when Taylor and his people turned their computers loose on "Tron" was basically this:

They started with an object. (A person, a car, a projectile of some kind). And they put it into the computer, with digits taking the place of every aspect of the object.

"Then," Taylor says, "the computer shows you what happens when that object is subjected to other forces. It shows you what happens when that object bumps into other objects, or when it is lit from various angles, or when it slows down or speeds up."

And, he says, the objects you see in "Tron" could not have been seen in any other way. Human beings could not have created the movements the computer created.

Taylor feels that we are barely into the infancy of "computer-simulation" for motion pictures. He thinks that, within a decade, computers will be able to simulate living people accurately.

"We will be able to take an actor and program into the computer," he says, "and the computer will do the rest. The computer will show that actor in any other scene you require."

He does add, however, that that will apply only to medium shots and long shots, not to close-ups. He says that the human face is

Europeans meet on U.S. sanctions

LONDON (AP) — British, French, West German and Italian officials are meeting today to discuss U.S. sanctions against firms working on the Soviet gas pipeline amid signs a compromise may be developing between the Reagan administration and its allies.

Foreign Secretary Francis Pym said in an Independent Television News interview here Thursday night he believed American officials "are as keen as we are to end this difference... What we've got to do is to resolve this for the sake of the (Western) alliance."

President Reagan's special trade representative, William Brock, reportedly told British Trade Minister Peter Rees Thursday that Washington was ready to drop the sanctions if the Europeans agree to pressure the Soviets by tightening credit controls and imposing closer restrictions on the export of strategic materials.

The report, carried in the Financial Times and the Daily Telegraph, did not elaborate on the British response.

The Reagan administration seeks to block construction of the 3,500-mile Siberian pipeline as a protest against the Dec. 13 imposition of martial law in Poland, which it argues was backed by the Soviet Union.

Last week the U.S. Commerce Department banned all U.S. exports to two French companies, Dresser France, a subsidiary of Dresser Industries Inc. of Dallas and Cruet-Loire, after they shipped four compressors for the pipeline.
