

Hightower refuses to debate opponent prior to the election

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

The campaign manager for Jack Hightower said the incumbent Democratic congressman will not debate his Republican opponent.

"There will not be a debate," Hightower's campaign boss, Bob Davis, said Monday afternoon.

"We debated and defeated Mr. Slover in 1980 in Wichita Falls, and we feel we only need to defeat him this time," Davis said about Republican Ron Slover.

"I'm sure all he wants to do is get himself some free exposure," Davis said about Slover's challenge to debate. Slover said Hightower refuses to debate him because, "He is afraid I will discuss his voting record in regard to the issues people are interested in."

"I think it is improper for a congressman to hide behind a campaign manager, instead of coming forward to take the flak himself," Slover said during a campaign stop in Pampa Wednesday afternoon.

The Republican said he issued a formal, written challenge to Hightower "approximately two months ago," calling for debates on local television in both Wichita Falls and Amarillo.

He said Hightower, the incumbent U.S. representative from this district, has issued "no response" to the challenge.

"He won't respond to my campaign," Slover said. Davis said the Hightower camp sees no benefit to a televised debate during this campaign.

"We stay in touch with our constituency, and they know how we stand on the issues," Hightower's campaign manager said.

"I want to talk about issues. I want a debate conducted by a neutral organization, with each candidate responding to the same question. That is totally fair and certainly in the public interest as a matter of voter information," Slover said here at the campaign stop in the Baskin-Robbins ice cream parlor.

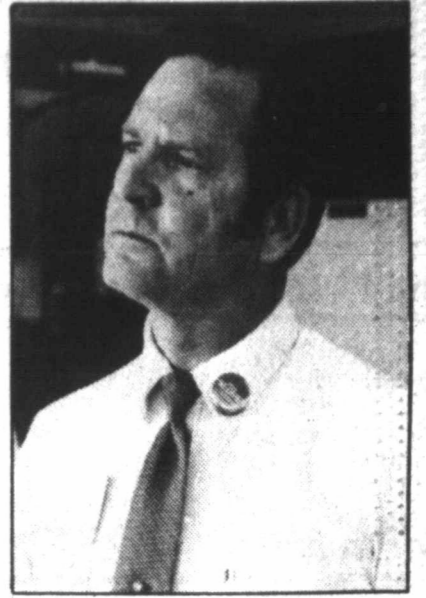

Slover said radio and television stations in both Amarillo and Wichita Falls are interested in carrying a debate.

A series of news releases issued by Slover's campaign office this month repeatedly call for the debate and question Hightower's voting record.

The Republican said he will again issue another challenge for the debate "very soon" during a news conference in Amarillo and "possibly Wichita Falls."

Hightower defeated Slover with 55 percent of the vote in 1980.

The challenger conceded Wednesday Hightower probably is leading the race at the present time "because he's an incumbent congressman."

Charged with murder

Jaime Moriel Meza

Many mysteries remain in the Soto murder

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

After the arrest and arraignment of Jaime Moriel Meza for the August 14 murder of Jose Carlos Soto, police investigation into the case continues.

Police say they still haven't got the full story of Meza's escape to El Paso shortly after the Saturday night slaying at the Tex 'S Rose Lounge.

A Pampa resident was suspected of aiding Meza's escape, according to police, but that information is in doubt now.

"We're not real sure who it was," said Police Chief J.J. Ryzman. He said detectives are "still interviewing people" in connection with the case.

Laticia Soto, a 21-year-old illegal alien who police say is not related to the victim, was arrested with Meza at his apartment Thursday in El Paso.

She is being held by El Paso police for immigration violations in that city, Ryzman said.

Although Pampa police believe she lived in Pampa for some time, they do not suspect her of aiding Meza's escape, Ryzman said.

No charges of unlawful flight, a federal offense, have been filed against Meza.

Ryzman said earlier that "as a last resort" such a charge may be filed to bring FBI officers in to aid a case.

"We felt confident that he was in (the El Paso) area," Ryzman said, and although police believed Meza had traveled across the border "a few times," he said, Pampa police did not feel the charge was necessary.

A 22 caliber rifle found buried by detectives near Tignor Street will be tested to discover if it is the murder weapon, said Police Chief J.J. Ryzman.

"We're still letting it dry out," he said, and it will be sent to laboratories of the Department of Public Safety or the FBI for inspection.

Ryzman said police do not know if the weapon will produce fingerprints to be used in the case.

Bush's death sentence: Nature may beat Texas to the punch

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
and EVIE DAVIS

Paul Barry Bush has been sentenced to die again, but it may be two or three years before he ever sees the needle, if at all.

No one has been executed for a crime in Texas since 1964, according to prosecutor Guy Hardin.

Bush received the capital murder death sentence for the second time Saturday in Lubbock for the 1980 shotgun slaying of Hemphill County deputy M.L. "Corky" Guthrie.

The seven-man five-woman jury returned the verdict after the retrial's punishment phase at about 3 p.m. Saturday, and presiding judge Claude Williams of Dallas ruled that Bush die by lethal injection and ordered that Bush be remanded to the Texas Department of Corrections to await execution.

That might be a long wait, however, according to Hardin.

Hardin estimated today that the automatic appeals process that accompanies a capital murder conviction may take two to three years, during which time Bush may die of the debilitating spinal disease that has forced the defendant to appear in court on crutches.

Bush suffers from a disease with symptoms much like multiple sclerosis.

He was convicted and sentenced to death in October, 1980 for the murder, but a retrial was called by an appeals court judge because "improper testimony" was presented in the first trial.

Hardin, who was in Lubbock for about three weeks to prosecute the case, said the death sentence was a proper decision.

"I always thought that was what he deserved," he said. "I think that anybody who pulls that deserves to die."

Bush was convicted Friday of killing Guthrie while the deputy was responding to a silent burglar alarm at Lad's Pharmacy in Canadian.

Hardin said he believes in the death sentence, and that the sentence acts as a deterrent to crime, or would "if they'll ever execute one of them."

The last execution in Texas was in 1964, he said, and presently there are 50 to 60 inmates on death row in this state.

Defense attorney Floyd Holder had argued for a felony murder conviction, not a capital murder conviction, and after the trial said he was disappointed with the jury's verdict.

"I don't mean to criticize the jury," Holder said. "As a lawyer, you're optimistic in a case like this. You have to be. But this is a verdict you dread from the day you start practicing."

During the punishment phase of the trial, the state's evidence was a letter written by Bush while he was on death row mentioning Bush's offer of "thousands of dollars" to another inmate "payable when I have the bread" if the other inmate would kill four "snitches."

Holder said the appeal of the conviction would center on the court's charge to the jury, which he said was at odds with his request to the jury to lessen the charge from capital murder to felony murder.

Hardin said the trial "wasn't easy," but "it was a very interesting case to try."

"Anything that you're not working on when it happens is going to be harder," he said.

Harold Comer was the 31st district attorney at the time of the Guthrie murder.

Hardin denied today that he offered a plea-bargain agreement to Bush's attorney before the trial.

"I merely responded to one they had made," Hardin said.

A correspondent for The Pampa News "was misinformed" about a plea bargain, Hardin said. "The defense lawyer just neglected to tell her that he made the first offer," he said.

When asked if he would have offered a plea bargain in that case if the defense attorney had not brought it up, he said "No, sir, probably not. I don't think that was a proper one to plea bargain in."

Congress will study flat tax bills today

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dozen bills to radically change the federal income tax system are facing Congress amid growing evidence they would mean tax cuts for the rich and higher taxes for millions at lower and middle incomes.

Officials from the Treasury Department and the Congressional Budget Office were to testify today as the Senate Finance Committee begins hearings on the "flat-tax" plans that would end most deductions and simplify rates.

Earlier this year, tax experts from both agencies said that such revamping of the system would shift a greater share of the tax burden onto those less able to pay.

Further evidence of such a shift was presented Monday by Joseph A. Pechman, a tax authority with the Brookings Institution. A flat tax would simplify tax laws, improve compliance and help ensure that two people in the same circumstances pay the same tax, he told reporters.

Range blazes may be arson

By SHERILL McLEAREN
and TOM ALLSTON

BEAVER COUNTY, Okla. — Extensive range fires in Beaver and Texas Counties of Oklahoma Monday may have been started by an arsonist, Oklahoma authorities believe.

The fires were brought under control Monday afternoon by fire departments from most of the Oklahoma Panhandle, with help from Perryton units.

"The OSBI — Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation — is working on it," Texas County Sheriff's Dept. undersheriff Joe Castoreno told the News today. "We had a three-mile-by-two-mile strip burned here (in Texas County), and they were much more extensive over in Beaver County."

The fires were apparently started first at about 11 a.m. near Elmwood, Okla. Texas County officials received their first report at about 1 p.m.

"They were set about a mile apart, that makes them real hard to handle," Castoreno pointed out. The wind was blowing from the southwest, bringing them toward us."

The fires were "in a string for 15 or 20 miles," according to Perryton fire department personnel. No estimate could be made yet of the actual number of fires involved.

In addition to the Perryton unit, which was located about five miles north of Bryan's Corner, Okla. during the firefighting, there were units from Guymon, Hardesty, Beaver, Balco, Hooker, Adams and Goodwell, Okla. involved in fighting the blazes.

A witness reportedly saw someone starting the fires. According to Castoreno, the OSBI "has a suspect in mind," but no charges had been filed at press time.

Castoreno added that there were three fires in Texas County, but he did not as yet know how many blazes were involved in Beaver.

"Everybody cooperated in fighting the fires," Castoreno told the News. "When you see people working together like that, it's just fantastic."

Lea named new ad chief

The Pampa News announces the appointment of Robert E. Lea as its advertising director.

Lea, who started with Freedom Newspapers here in 1954 as an advertising representative, returns to Pampa after being semi-retired and living in Panama City, Fla.

His career with Freedom Newspapers spans 28 years. After spending his basic training in Pampa, Lea transferred to Clovis, New Mexico, in 1955 where he assumed the duties of advertising director for 17 years. He then transferred to Panama City, Fla., where he held the same title.

"I am very pleased to be back in Pampa. It is amazing to see the growth that has taken place here since 1955," Lea said.

Lea is a widower with three children, Barbara Lea of Corpus Christi, Texas; Robert Lea Jr., who is presently living in Pampa; and Gregory Lea of Clovis, N.M.

He attends the Catholic Church and held the position of Exalted Ruler of B.P.O. Elks in 1955. Lea makes his home at the Caprock Apartments, 1601 N. Somerville.

Farmers asked to support the government wheat cutback plan

By BOB FICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's renewed efforts to rein in the nation's burgeoning grain supplies will be put to the test this week as farmers get their first chance to register support.

Beginning Friday, wheat and feed grain farmers, who are again harvesting record crops despite price-depressing stockpiles, can sign up to participate in the 1983 acreage reduction program. It calls for a 20 percent reduction in planted acreage next year in return for a combination of government payments and higher crop price supports.

"We have put the framework in place," Agriculture Secretary John Block said Monday in Memphis, Tenn. "Now, the ball is in the farmers' court."

Farmers have until March 31 to decide, but the sooner they get in, the quicker they can obtain part of those direct government payments the plan calls for.

The 1982 program that denied federal price support benefits to any farmer refusing to idle land drew only marginal support from producers. Many felt that government price supports were too low to make it worth their while.

"We are now, collectively, paying a price for the record size crops that resulted from those decisions," Block said. "If we are to avoid a repeat performance, then farmers will need to join their neighbors and sign up for this new program with enthusiasm."

Congress, concerned about the lack of cooperation at a time of plunging net farm income, ordered the 1983 price support levels increased and mandated direct payments for idling land as an extra incentive.

But wheat farmers, who traditionally embrace acreage reduction programs, have already been complaining that they've been treated unfairly in the 1983 policy.

Their complaints center on the fact that feed grain farmers are getting full diversion payments for half the land they idle while wheat farmers are getting payments for only a quarter of their idled land and the payment itself has been cut by 10 percent from the level recommended by Congress.

The effect those differences will have on wheat signups is still to be determined.

The 1983 acreage reduction calls for wheat and feed grain farmers to plant 20 percent less than their 1981 acreage or their 1980-1981 average, whichever is higher. The land taken from production must be put to conservation use.

The government has made no decision on whether wheat and feed grains can be placed in the long-term grain reserve immediately upon harvest as they can be this year. Block says that decision will be made later based on domestic and global supplies and demand.

Traditionally, farmers must put their crops under normal nine-month, interest-bearing loans before depositing them in the three-year reserve, which usually carries higher loan rates, limited interest charges and a payment of 26.5 cents a bushel to farmers to cover storage.

But the economic incentives for participation differ among the setaside programs, primarily because of the relative value difference between wheat and corn and between corn and the other feed grains of sorghum, barley and oats.

Farmers participating in the wheat reduction will be eligible for the regular price support loan of $3.65 a bushel, up a dime from this year's level and 23 cents higher than the present national average price.

They'll also remain eligible for government deficiency payments, which are direct payments to farmers made if the national average market price next year falls below the set target price of $4.30 a bushel. That market price is now projected to be below even the loan rate of $3.65, so farmers can expect a direct payment of 65 cents a bushel.

Those idling the 20 percent will also receive a diversion payment of $2.70 a bushel for their normal yield on a quarter of the acres left unplanted. Congress had recommended $3 a bushel but gave Block authority to reduce that amount by 10 percent. Block exercised that discretion in announcing program details last month.

Farmers can get half of the estimated deficiency payment, 32.5 cents a bushel, and half the diversion payment, $1.35 a bushel, at the time they sign up for the program.

Millionaire's mistress says he was 'sick' and she helped with sex

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alfred Bloomingdale was a "Jekyll and Hyde" who was alternately childlike and sadistic, beating women with his belt, riding them bareback and drooling, according to the former mistress suing his estate for $10 million.
 "I'm not kidding when I say that (Bloomingdale's) eyes got glazed, real — something you see in a hospital, or ... in a movie," Vicki Morgan said in a 321-page court deposition made public Monday. The statement was given Aug. 13, one week before Bloomingdale died of cancer at the age of 66.

 Miss Morgan, 30, who says she was Bloomingdale's mistress for 12 years, is suing Bloomingdale's estate and his wife, Betsy, for $10 million. She says she was promised life support by the heir to the Bloomingdale's department store fortune who was a close friend and adviser to President Reagan.

 "Alfred was two people," Miss Morgan said in the deposition. "He was Jekyll and Hyde and in that personality of his, which is the sexual part, Alfred was strange. I don't mean a fantasy. I mean a sickness. I truly mean a sickness."

Perryton jury indicts 15

PERRYTON (Spl.) — Fifteen indictments were handed down by an 84th Judicial District Grand Jury in Perryton late last week.
 Those indicted were:
 Lester Monroe Jr., 55, of Amarillo, driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense, prior conviction December 1979 in Childress County.
 Paul Allen Douglas, 27, formerly of Perryton, DWI subsequent, prior conviction Jan. 25, Martin County.
 Simon Cerda, 29, Perryton, DWI subsequent, prior conviction September, 1979, Ochiltree County.
 Joseph Lynn Matthews, 22, Farnsworth, DWI subsequent, prior conviction September, 1979, Ochiltree County.
 Paul Glenn McClendon, 23, Perryton, burglary of a motor vehicle, arrested July 21 in connection with the burglary of a car belonging to Ken Turner of Perryton.

 Connie Hopkins, 24, Liberal, Kan., possession of marijuana, more than 4 ounces, arrested Aug. 21.
 Debbie Lilley, 21, Perryton, delivery of marijuana, arrested Sept. 7.
 Kerra Gayle Threadgill, 20, Perryton, delivery of marijuana, arrested Aug. 13.
 David LaBlanc, 32, Perryton, delivery of marijuana, arrested Aug. 13.
 Mark Lee Jackson, 23, Perryton, delivery of marijuana, delivery of a controlled substance, arrested Sept. 9.
 Christopher Anthony Strouth, 25, Perryton, delivery of marijuana, delivery of a controlled substance, arrested Sept. 9.
 All of the drug delivery indictments resulted from undercover work by Ochiltree County authorities.

The deposition was filed Friday to support the Bloomingdale family's pending motion for dismissal of Miss Morgan's suit by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Christian Markey Jr. and consists of her answers to questions by Hillel Chodos, a lawyer for the Bloomingdale estate.
 Chodos has said the deposition supports his contention that a purely sexual relationship existed between Miss Morgan and Bloomingdale.

Coronado's lab accredited

Coronado Community Hospital's laboratory just received a two-year accreditation from the College of American Pathologists, according to Administrator Norman Knox.
 The accreditation follows a recent on-site inspection of the lab by CAP officials, Knox said.
 In addition to analysis for the hospital's own patients, the lab provides out-patient lab services to the area's doctors.
 The local lab provides complete diagnostic services, including hematology, bacteriology, parasitology, urinalysis, blood chemistry and anatomical and related studies, according to hospital officials.
 The CAP accreditation is a feather in the caps of Dr. James Tilden, pathologists and the lab staff. It also gives credit to the modern equipment available in the lab, according to the administrator.
 "We have some of the most sophisticated equipment anywhere in the Panhandle; but without a first-class staff to operate the equipment, providing their personal and caring service to patients and physicians, it would not be possible to offer good service to the area," Knox said.

 Special thanks go to lab director Gene Reed for his work in maintaining the high standards of professionalism within his department, Knox said.
 The 24-hour lab service requires a special staff, Knox said, and the administrator offered congratulations for the accreditation to medical technologists, Raymond Neff, Joy Bivens, Wanda Taylor, Jimmie Hines, Judy Curry, Linda Caldwell, Karen Scott and Julie Spigelmyer and to microbiologist Susan Weddle, secretary Teresa Bivens, lab assistants Debra Allen, Laura Tom, Mona Guess and Brenda Lewis.
 Knox said the CAP inspection is one of the most rigorous a laboratory can receive, and it sometimes requires up to a year of advance preparation by the laboratory staff.
 In addition to specific areas of the lab's work in pathology, the inspectors examine the lab's quality control for the past two years, the education and qualifications of the entire lab staff, equipment, and laboratory safety and management, according to the administrator.

Got a berserk beagle, loony lobster, repressed rabbit, or a crazy cat?

NEW YORK (AP) — She lives in a luxurious Park Avenue apartment, surrounded by fine works of art. A silken-haired beauty of impeccable breeding, she seems to have everything money can buy.
 But the minute she steps into the lobby, her confidence vanishes, and she cowers in a corner.
 She's a 1-year-old Norwich terrier named Sweets and she suffers from "a clear-cut case of city neurosis," says Warren Eckstein, the combination animal trainer-pet social worker who is trying to cure her.
 "Not every dog or cat can be Rin Tin Tin or Morris," he says. "But if the problem is sociological or psychological, no animal cannot be trained."
 Sweets' walk around the block is followed by kisses and hugs. Then, briefcase in hand, the tall, bearded Eckstein hurries off to complete his visits to New York's biting birds, dogs and cats.
 Eckstein has been known to bite back.
 "Animals talk body language," he says. "I get down on the floor with them and speak their language. As long as you get on the animal's level, you can communicate."
 There are misunderstandings. Eckstein's hands and arms are tattooed with teethmarks, and wounds on his chest have required 62 stitches.
 He is not a veterinarian, and there is no licensing requirement for his work. Eckstein gives his credentials succinctly: "I have worked with 22,000 pets in 14 years."

 He also has trained pets for the deaf and for victims of Down's syndrome, and has helped countless humans conquer pet phobias. Five years ago he developed the first course of study ever approved by the New York Department of Education for the training of dog trainers.
 Today, he and his wife Fay get $1,500 to $6,000 for treatments that last from two months to three years. The 14 trainers who work for them command less.
 Eckstein first makes friends with his patients, then teaches them basic obedience. "If a dog doesn't know 'come, heel, sit and stay,' it's like not knowing the alphabet."

200 witnesses expected in Wood trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — More than 200 witnesses may testify during the trial of three people charged in connection with the contract killing of a federal judge — a trial the presiding judge said could last two months.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions summoned more than 60 people from a panel of 500 prospective jurors to the federal courthouse today for the beginning of a jury selection process expected to take three days.

The courthouse is named in memory U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., who was gunned down May 29, 1979, in the first assassination of a federal judge in modern times.

The FBI immediately began a massive investigation that cost $4.7 million and resulted in 214,000 computer entries over a three-year period that ended with indictments on April 15.

Sessions, who refused to disqualify himself although he was a longtime colleague of the slain judge, said that a base panel of 46 prospective jurors must be qualified.

Then, he said, the prosecution and defense will make their strikes to seat a 12-jury and three alternates.

On trial are Charles V. Harrelson, a 44-year-old convicted hitman who allegedly shot Wood in the back for a $250,000 fee; his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, a blackjack player already convicted of illegally buying the alleged murder weapon 12 days before Wood was shot; and Elizabeth Chagra, 28, wife of the man who allegedly hired Harrelson to kill the judge.

Harrelson is charged with murder of a federal judge, along with Jamiel "Jimmy" Chhagra, 39, a high-stakes gambler and convicted narcotics kingpin who faces a separate trial at a time to be announced later.

Jimmy Chagra, the prosecution alleges, wanted Wood killed because he feared a life sentence if convicted in Wood's court. After Wood was shot in the back from ambush, Sessions presided at his narcotics trial and sentenced Jimmy Chagra to 30 years without parole on the narcotics charge.

Key witnesses in the first trial are expected to be El Paso lawyer Joseph Chagra, 35, a co-defendant who entered into a plea bargain with the government on Sept. 17 and agreed to testify against the trio. Joe Chagra reportedly will receive a prison term of no more than 10 years for conspiracy to murder Wood, and will not have to testify against his older brother, Jimmy.

Another key witness will be Teresa Starr Jasper, 24, the alleged triggerman's step-daughter, who went to jail for six months last year until she repented and agreed to testify before a grand jury. She allegedly flew to Las Vegas, Nev., picked up $250,000 in cash and delivered it to her parents in Corpus Christi as the payoff for Wood's death.

Harrelson, who got out of state prison just nine months before Wood was killed, served a 15-year penitentiary term for killing Sam Degelia Jr. of Hearne on July 6, 1968, for a $2,000 fee. He also was tried, but acquitted, of the alleged kill-for-pay slaying of Alan Berg of Houston in 1968.

Harrelson is serving 40 years in state prison terms for narcotics, weapons and bond-jumping convictions since Wood's death. He and Jimmy Chagra would receive mandatory life prison sentences if convicted of the judge's killing.

Mrs. Harrelson is appealing a three-year federal prison term assessed last year when she was convicted of purchasing the .240-caliber Weatherby rifle under a fictitious name in Dallas.

Harrelson recently ended a hunger strike in which he complained he was being railroaded for Wood's slaying. His wife testified at a bond hearing she contemplated suicide at one point before her arrest, and Mrs. Chagra, claiming to be a "re-born Christian," wrote a letter reportedly apologizing to Kathryn Wood, the victim's widow.

Pilot nears end of round-world helicopter trip

DALLAS (AP) — After facing gunbarrels in Egypt and Burma and Eskimo villagers in Canada who thought he was a spy, H. Ross Perot Jr. says he looks forward to the end of his around the world helicopter flight.

Perot, the 23-year-old son of a Dallas computer magnate, is in Alaska on the final leg of his quest to become the first to pilot a helicopter around the world, said a spokesman with his father's Dallas computer firm.

"Right now I'd say either Thursday or Friday (he) will be back in Dallas," said Electronic Data Systems spokesman Jerry Dalton.

The troubles during the trip have been many. Perot told the Dallas Morning News last week in a static-filled phone call from Singapore.

The Soviets refused to let the specially modified chopper enter the Soviet Union to refuel, so Perot and co-pilot Jay Coburn made a treacherous landing on an American cargo ship in the North Pacific last weekend in a 50-knot wind and 12-foot seas.

Early in the trip, a malfunctioning fuel pump spilling jet fuel forced an emergency landing in an Eskimo fishing village in Quebec.

"We were worried they wouldn't have any jet fuel for us. But the Eskimo chief had a full tank at his house, which is pretty amazing for that part of the world," said Perot.

"The whole time, they (the Eskimos) thought we were spies on a secret mission. Or Russians. Or members of the American military," he said.

In France, a language barrier caused confusion with air traffic controllers. At Luxor, Egypt, soldiers surrounded the chopper and demanded answers to questions and signatures on a billiard of forms.

In Saudi Arabia, they passed over fighter planes dug into mountains, camel trains creeping through the desert, and gas flares burning in oil fields.

Over the Persian Gulf, the pair passed just 13 miles from Iran, where Coburn was wounded because of his second-in-command role in Perot Sr.'s 1979 raid on an Iranian prison to free two EDS employees. The raid resulted in a jail break of 11,000 prisoners.

In Burma, a heavy thunderstorm forced a landing in the town of Marguie. An air traffic controller began yelling "No land. No land." But Perot told them if he didn't land, he would crash. When the chopper did set down, a large band of troops and villagers greeted them.

"That has been the only part of the trip I was nervous over. I felt like a prisoner of war," Perot said.

After the pair wrote an apology, let villagers sit in the helicopter, and gave the army officers cigarettes, the journey resumed.

"I really look forward to getting back to the United States where you can pretty much fly where you want to," Perot said.

Perot, a land man for an energy firm owned by his father, and Coburn, an EDS pilot, left Dallas Love Sept. 1 on the 26-nation trip.

More Texas Instruments layoffs

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments Inc., one of the world's largest makers of semiconductors, is laying off another 2,600 workers this fall, bringing the number of employees furloughed in the last two years to early 10,000.

Company Vice President Norman Neureiter said the layoffs would be spread among many of the diversified electronics concern's 50 plants worldwide.

Texas Instruments, which employees 80,000 people in 19 countries, had already laid off 7,000 workers since May 1981.

Neureiter said he did not know in what specific categories of workers or cities the layoffs would occur, but 600 of the layoffs will be in the Dallas area where Texas Instruments is based, the Dallas Morning News reported.

"It's pretty generally across the company," he said. "It's a series of actions affecting a number of (plants) in a number of countries."

The recession, falling prices and inroads by foreign competitors have dampened sales of semiconductors for Texas Instruments and other U.S. companies for more than a year.

The furloughed employees will receive partial pay and recall rights for up to six months or severance payments in amounts based on seniority, officials said.

Two months ago, National Semiconductor Corp. of Santa Clara, Calif., eliminated about 1,000 jobs in the United States.

"We share the view of many forecasters that the general economy and semiconductor sales will continue to be flat for the next several months," National Semiconductor said at the time.

Texas Instruments also makes small computers, calculators and microprocessors, and it provides geophysical exploration services. In the first half of this year, its profit rose 44 percent to $64.5 million on revenue of $2.17 billion.

Texas-New Mexico feud heads to Supreme Court

PECOS, Texas (AP) — Texas and New Mexico officials say they hope a recommendation to the U.S. Supreme Court that could come this week will settle a longstanding feud between the states over nearly four trillion gallons of Pecos River water.

Texas sued New Mexico in 1974, claiming its western neighbor has shortchanged Texas by 1.2 million acre-feet of water over the last 20 years, said Jean Breitenstein, a 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals justice appointed special master in the case.

New Mexico controls the source of the river and claims it has apportioned Texas the water fairly.

But officials in this West Texas city say they have received so little water from the river that farmers who use it for irrigation are being forced into bankruptcy while the New Mexico valley is green and thriving. Breitenstein, who heard arguments in the case six weeks ago, told the Pecos Enterprise this week that he may issue his recommendation as early as this week.

An agreement between the states, called the 1947 Pecos River Compact, established a commission for mediating disputes and set a formula for measuring the river's water flow — a formula the states interpret differently. The three-member commission, composed of a representative from Texas, New Mexico and the federal government, has deadlocked on the formula's interpretation. The federal official cannot vote in case of dispute.

Breitenstein said his recommendation will propose new guidelines for a formula if he believes the high court has jurisdiction in the case.

Should the Supreme Court decide it can select a method for measuring water flow, it will determine how much water, if any, New Mexico owes Texas, Breitenstein said.

Pecos officials say they aren't sure if a court ruling in their favor will ever actually bring more water to the parched Texas side of the valley. But they say they're confident of winning the dispute.

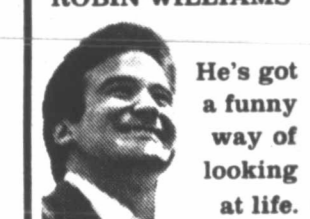

Lloyd Goodrich, vice president of the Red Bluff water power district board of directors, said New Mexico probably doesn't have enough water to quickly meet any court demands.

"Even if we won the whole shooting match, we would go on like we have been for a long time unless there was a flood in New Mexico and they said, 'Here comes the water, catch it,'" Goodrich said.

Missing firefighter escapes from trunk

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A kidnapped firefighter leaped from the trunk of a car being towed by a wrecker early today after his abductor, apparently the ringleader of a group which buried another man alive, abandoned the vehicle and fled on foot, officials say.

Coby Garland Hamilton, a Houston firefighter who has been missing since Sunday morning, pried open the trunk of the car where he was imprisoned and jumped out near George West in South Texas, Montgomery County sheriff's spokesman Ed deForest said.

Live Oak County Sheriff Larry Busby said Deputy Roy Hart found the car about 2:30 a.m. and discovered through a license check that it was stolen. He called the sheriff's office and asked for a wrecker.

"Coby was in the trunk, but he kept quiet and didn't make any noise because he thought maybe the suspect had returned," Busby said. But when the driver began towing the car, Hamilton pried open the trunk lid with a tire tool, leaped out and ran to a nearby house.

Busby said officers are still searching for Ronald White, being sought on an aggravated kidnapping warrant from Montgomery County in the abduction of Michael Baucom, 21, of La Marque. Baucom was buried alive for four days but crawled from his grave Sunday morning.

Officials say White is the prime suspect in Hamilton's abduction.

Hamilton was uninjured, Busby said. "He was hungry, so I ordered him a meal, and I imagine he's a little bit tired," Busby said. "He's in here making a statement."

Busby refused to let Hamilton speak with The Associated Press until he had finished talking with officers from Live Oak and Montgomery counties.

"He was abducted at approximately 2 a.m. Sunday from a Jiffy food store very close to the point where the people were arrested in the Baucom kidnapping," deForest said. He said the two drove through a series of East Texas towns, then turned south.

"From time to time he would put Hamilton in the trunk of the car," deForest said. "Yesterday afternoon, he put him in the trunk and fled on foot."

deForest said Hamilton described his abductor as "mentally erratic."

"He said he was convinced that had they been stopped by a law officer there would have been shooting," deForest said.

He said Hamilton was to be brought to Conroe, where Baucom was buried, later today.

Hamilton had been delivering the Houston Chronicle in an area near where deputies arrested three people and rescued Baucom from the box where he had been buried for four days.

deForest said Hamilton's wife said she had not heard from her husband since he called home early Sunday and said he had met a friend and they were taking a short trip.

"She said that was entirely unlike her husband and that he sounded strange and under pressure," said deForest.

White was named in an arrest warrant issued Sunday charging him with the kidnapping of Baucom, 20, who was abducted late Tuesday, buried early Wednesday and rescued early Sunday morning.

Grand jury clears officer

DALLAS (AP) — A grand jury has decided not to indict a Dallas police officer on allegations that he compelled a 23-year-old Richardson woman to have sex with him, a prosecutor said.

Officer Jack L. Cranford, 44, was cleared because of problems with the woman's credibility, according to Assistant District Attorney Hugh Lucas.

The woman told police she was stopped by Cranford about 1:30 a.m. Aug. 27 after running a stop sign in North Dallas. She said the officer threatened to arrest her for drunken driving unless she agreed to have sex with him.

Lucas said a breath test showed the woman had a .244 blood-alcohol level, more than twice the legal limit for intoxication. The woman also said Cranford did not force sex on her, the prosecutor said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

U.S. picks up Mideast tabs

The Camp David peace process, widely hailed at the time Israel and Egypt signed a pact under Jimmy Carter's watchful eye, is subject to more frequent questioning. It is becoming obvious that, however successful it was, American taxpayers will be paying for the side effects for years to come. Likewise, the Reagan administration's determination to sell advanced AWACS aircraft to the Saudis, the subject of hot debate last fall, will be used for some time to come to justify higher expenditures for foreign aid to Israel.

Close observers got a hint about the continuing costs toward the end of May, before the Israeli incursion into Lebanon, when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee took up the subject of foreign aid.

The administration had asked for foreign military sales (FMS) credits to Israel in the amount of $1.7 billion, of which $500 million was to be an outright grant. But Sen. Rukdy Boschwitz, R - Minn., arguing that the United States was to some degree responsible for the burdens borne by Israel due to the AWACS sale and the evacuation of the Sinai, got their committee to make $850 million of the FMS credits an outright grant. That would be $300 million more than the $550 million the United States gave Israel this year for military purposes.

When it came to economic support fund (ESF), or non - military aid to Israel, the bill is to be raised even more. The administration had asked for $785 million in outright cash grants. But Sen. Alan Cranston, D - Calif., wanted to up the ante considerably.

Cranston's proposal was a marvel of chutzpah. Pointing out that Israel was scheduled to pay $910 million in debt service to United States next year because of previous loans, Cranston wanted to raise the cash grant by $125 million, to $910 million, so the U.S. would be giving Israel enough money to stay current on previous loans without paying anything out of pocket.

Cranston went a step further, however. According to Congressional Quarterly, he proposed to put into law that, in the future, Israel's annual payments on its U.S. debt could not exceed Israel's ESF aid. In other words, over time the U.S. government would pay Israel's U.S. debts, which (Illinois Sen.) Percy said amounted to $7.5 billion at present.

That's a deal we'd like to have. Can you imagine a bank making you a loan and agreeing, at the same time, to give you enough money, as an outright gift, to make the payments every year? Sen. Cranston is a mighty generous fellow, but then it's our money he's playing with, not his.

The rationale for this generosity was (you guessed it) similar to the arguments for higher military grants: By previous actions in the Middle East (especially the AWACS sale), the United States had created an obligation to help Israel further.

Cranston's ambitious scheme was too much even for the generous Senate Foreign Relations Committee. They agreed to up the grant to $910 million next year, and asked the president to study whether U.S. aid should cover Israel's annual U.S. debt in the future.

The House foreign aid bill had some different numbers, so the final version may be a little less expensive (or it may cost more).

Our objection to this annual payment doesn't imply a judgment of the Israeli action in Lebanon. We just wonder whether U.S. taxpayers should be required to pay so many of the bills when U.S. diplomats embark on their undoubtedly good - hearted efforts to ease tensions and stop fighting in the Middle East. Don't be surprised if you the taxpayer find yourself providing support (direct or indirect) for both Israel and the PLO for the foreseeable future.

U.S. land sale

The land sale is about to begin. Without much fanfare, the federal government has posted for sale signs on more than 300 parcels of valuable government land across the country ranging from Waikiki Beach to midtown Manhattan.

According to Reagan administration plans, this is just the start. Under the stewardship of Interior Secretary James Watt, the administration plans to sell 35 million acres of federal land - and areas as big as Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts - in the next five years. It will be the biggest real estate sale since the Oklahoma land rush.

Watt and President Reagan are convinced that the United States owns far more land than it needs or can manage, and they are right.

HEY...ONCE A CHILD,
ALWAYS A CHILD...

A city comes back

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

CLEVELAND, Ohio - If the United States is to emerge from the current recession and enjoy a major business and industrial revival, the old cities of the heartland must regain their former vitality.

Happily, there are signs that one of those cities, Cleveland - long identified with American success and prosperity, appears to be on the road back.

For some years, Cleveland suffered from a bad image. It experienced disastrous municipal leadership. Remember "Dennis the Menace" Kucinich, the youthful populist mayor? The city encountered severe financial difficulty and other problems.

All that has changed, however. Cleveland now has a very capable mayor in the person of George Voynovich. His first act as mayor was to recruit 90 business executives to review and examine city finances and operations. In 1980, Cleveland emerged from default.

Restoration of sound municipal government has been the most important advance for Cleveland. The city has a comprehensive financial recovery strategy, and city government has been streamlined.

Most significantly, there has been a strong, new financial commitment to downtown Cleveland, as evidenced by large - scale private investment in new buildings and the renovation of old ones. Sohio is building a $200 million headquarters building in the heart of downtown. New construction includes the 31 - story Medical Mutual Building and Ohio Bell's $41 million corporate headquarters. Other multi - million dollar business structures are in place or being built. These investments represent the business community's faith in Cleveland's future.

This is not to say that Cleveland's problems are solved. The downtown in heavy industry in the U.S. has had an impact on this and other Midwestern cities. Traditionally, Cleveland's wealth has been related to the steel, automobile and machine tool industries. Each of these industries is in trouble and in process of change. Iron mines in Michigan's upper peninsula, which ship their ore to Cleveland, are shut down. In time, however, these industries will revive as the economy revives.

Cleveland has a huge reservoir of skilled workers. The city is the home of people of rich variety of ethnic backgrounds. The descendants of Central and East European immigrants are skilled, hard - working, self - reliant, and community - minded. They represent a great resource for the city in the future, as they have in the past. It would be a mistake for Americans elsewhere to write off a heartland city such as Cleveland.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 28, the 271st day of 1982. There are 94 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 28, 1781, American forces began the Revolutionary War siege of British forces at Yorktown Heights in Virginia.

On this date:

- In 1939, Germany and the Soviet Union agreed on a plan to partition Poland in World War II.

- In 1968, French President Charles de Gaulle declared that France could get along without the European Common Market but assured West Germany it could not count on French help in the event of a Soviet attack.

- In 1969, Britain sent additional troops to Northern Ireland as violence between Catholics and Protestants flared anew.

- In 1970, Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser died of a heart attack at age 52.

Ten years ago: Japan and China agreed to end a state of war and establish diplomatic relations.

Five years ago: Japanese urban guerrillas held 156 hostages aboard a hijacked Japanese airliner in Dacca, Bangladesh.

ART BUCHWALD

A great sport

By ART BUCHWALD

I hadn't been on a golf course since I was a kid. The reason was that in my youth I was a caddy, and after carrying around heavy bags filled with irons and woods every weekend, I vowed when I grew up I would never step on a fairway again.

But the other day a friend named Riley, who plays every week, persuaded me to go out with him. "You'll love it," he said. "It's great exercise and the most relaxing sport in the world."

"I'll go along with you," I said, "but I won't play."

So the next morning we showed up at the golf course.

"The first thing we have to do," Riley said, "is rent an electric golf cart."

"Why do you need a golf cart?"

"Because they won't let you play here on the weekend unless you drive around the course. If people walk they slow up the game."

"But if you drive around the 18 holes, how do you get any exercise?"

"Looking for your ball. They permit you to get out of the cart to look for it. But they don't want you to look too long because the people playing behind you will get sore."

"How long do they let you look for your ball?"

"Three minutes."

"That long?"

"It gives you just enough time to stretch your legs, but at the same time it doesn't tire you out. Here come the other three guys we're playing with."

I was introduced to Hal, Chris, and George. They each had their own golf cart.

"Why do you each need a golf cart?" I asked.

"We like to race each other up and down the hills," Hal said. "And besides, if you have your own golf cart you can block the view of your ball and kick it to a better lie."

Chris said, "Sometimes if one of the other players gets a real good shot and you can get to his ball first, you can run over it, so he can't find it."

"Frankly," said George, "I find golf cart racing is far more fun than playing the game. It gives the average guy a chance to drive like Evel Knievel."

The foursome teed off and then we all got into our carts and raced to our respective balls. Since I wasn't playing, Riley let me drive his vehicle. "Park as close to the ball as possible," he told me, "so I don't have to walk."

Riley hit his second shot into a sand trap and started cursing. "I knew I should have used a seven iron instead of a five."

"Relax, Riley," I told him. "It's only a game."

It took him three shots to get out of the sand trap, two to get on the green, and three to putt into the hole.

He slammed the bag with his putter, as Hal, Chris, and George laughed at him.

"I don't care which one you hit," Riley muttered, "but I want you to ram one of their golf carts."

"But we could hurt somebody seriously."

"So?"

"Look, Riley, I haven't been on a course in many years and I just remembered why. Golf is the most frustrating game in the world. I've never seen anyone on a course who had any fun while he was playing."

"Shut up and drive," he said.

The next 17 holes went about the same way with each player cursing and grating his teeth after he hit the ball. But for the most part we just kept driving from one shot to another. I figured that if you counted how many steps they took to measure their ball to the flag, each player had actually walked the equivalent of two city blocks for the entire 18 holes. The rest of their exercise came from carrying their golf bags from their cars to the locker room.

I'm not trying to put down golf because I know millions of people play it. Actually it's a great contact sport. It's like auto racing, and it takes a heck of a lot more skill than driving the bumper cars on the Boardwalk at Atlantic City.

Book writer admits timing is off

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As Herman Kahn acknowledges in the preface to his new book, his timing might seem to be off.

The book is called "The Coming Boom: Economic, Political and Social," and it appears at a time when a boom of any sort looks like a distant prospect indeed.

The unemployment rate is at a post-World War II high of 9.8 percent. When the next government report on the jobless rate is issued on Oct. 8, many economists believe it could climb into double figures.

According to Dun & Bradstreet Corp., businesses are filing bankruptcy petitions at a rate not seen since the 1930s — 85 out of every 10,000 through the first 8½ months of this year.

At many other companies, earnings are under pressure. Last year,

Standard & Poor's Corp. reports, profit margins of a sample of 400 large industrial companies averaged out to a near-record low of 4.86 cents for every dollar of sales.

"As dismal as 1981 was for profit margins, 1982 is likely to prove even worse," Standard & Poor's reported.

In short, suggests Raymond F. DeVoe Jr., an investment analyst at the firm of Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc., it is a time when paranoia might be defined as "being in possession of all the facts."

Kahn, chairman and director of research at the Hudson Institute, says something very similar at the outset of his book (published by Simon and Schuster, New York, and priced at $14.95).

Surveying recent economic conditions, he concedes, "some sober concern, if not paranoia, is clearly justified."

Still, in the 228 pages that follow, he lays out his case for "a revitalized America — revitalized in terms of traditional values, of worldwide status and influence, and of citizenship and morale, as well as of economic improvement."

Some of the principal reasons he cites for that prediction: Reduced inflation, new technologies and increased savings to help encourage "a long-term capital boom," improving productivity resulting partly from the maturing of the baby-boom generation, and the prospect that "energy should no longer be a depressing influence on the economy."

Kahn labels himself a "guarded optimist"; he does not assert that the picture he paints is a certainty. As he acknowledges in a footnote, the phrase "barring some perverse combination of bad luck and bad management" appears several times in his discussion.

EPA cracks down on tampering with auto air pollution equipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Save Fuel, Save Money," proclaim the ads for gadgets that allow motorists to junk a pollution control device that some motorists claim is a waste of money.

The problem with the devices, according to the Environmental Protection Agency, is that they can be used to violate many state laws and can increase a car's pollution emissions eight-fold.

EPA officials say there is growing trend among motorists to tamper with their auto pollution controls in the mistaken belief that they can increase fuel economy or car performance.

In the minds of many motorists, the catalytic converter — a muffler-like chamber through which a car's exhaust gases are filtered — cuts down on performance. The converters have been required equipment on most cars sold in the United States since 1975.

Critics say the converter's chambers can clog, causing the car to operate poorly or not at all. Motorists also complain because they can only use unleaded gasoline — which sells for about 6-cents-a-gallon more than leaded.

Many motorists are fighting back by getting rid of their catalytic converters by installing the conversion kits, the EPA says. In recent spot checks, pollution controls on 20 percent of the cars have been tampered with and on 8 percent of the cars checked the catalytic converter has been removed.

In an enforcement crackdown, the EPA on Monday announced it was seeking to levy civil fines of $327,500 against four muffler shops and a cab company accused of removing catalytic converters.

The largest fine is $120,000 against Lew Smith's Muffler and Parts, a small shop in Covington, Ky., where officials say 48 converters were taken off cars.

Lew Smith, owner of the shop, said he was surprised by the threatened fine since the conversion kits he bought are advertised in national magazines and sold openly in many department stores.

Top PLO military commander said killed

By The Associated Press
The Palestine Liberation Organization's top military commander was reported killed today in an ambush in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, the right-wing Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said.

A broadcast quoting the Palestinian news agency Wafa said Brig. Saad Sayel, the PLO's chief of staff, was killed while inspecting guerrilla positions near the city of Baalbeck overlooking the Bekaa, where both Israeli and Syrian forces are deployed. The broadcast quoted Wafa as blaming Israel for Sayel's death.

Earlier, the British Broadcasting Corp. said Sayel was ambushed by 30 men with rifles and grenade launchers but did not further identify the attackers. It said Sayel died later at a Syrian hospital.

The reported death came as the Israeli Parliament in Jerusalem opened a special debate on whether to launch a full-scale judicial probe into Israel's conduct during the Beirut massacre of Palestinians earlier this month.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet members, bowing to intense public pressure, were reported ready to support such a probe, and Begin himself was reported as saying it was needed.

Twelve-hundred U.S. Marines were poised off Beirut's shore, ready to move into the war-torn Lebanese capital as part of a tri-national peacekeeping force after Israeli soldiers leave. They will join 1,100 French soldiers and 1,100 Italian troops.

In Tel Aviv, Israel's military command said its forces would be out of the Moslem west Beirut by Wednesday, but said it will take longer to pull back from the Christian eastern section of the city.

French and Italian troops Monday moved into Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps where the Lebanese government said about 600 Palestinians were slaughtered Sept. 16-18 by Lebanese Christian militiamen. The camps were under Israeli control.

Israel television reported Monday all Cabinet members at today's meeting were ready to back a commission inquiry with full subpoena powers and the right to force witnesses to testify under oath.

The state television also said Begin himself decided that failure to establish a full inquiry was damaging Israel's image.

Last week, the Cabinet adopted Begin's proposal that Israel's chief justice conduct an investigation, but without subpoena powers.

Many Israelis who supported the country's June 6 drive into Lebanon to rout the PLO are now demanding the resignation of Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

In Lebanon, a massacre investigative committee appointed by newly elected President Amin Gemayel met Monday and decided to ask survivors to testify in the military court today. Lebanese radio said. Gemayel is a leader in the Phalange Party, whose militiamen have been blamed by Israel for the killings.

Israeli troops had the two camps surrounded during the massacre, and Sharon said the assault was mounted with Israeli planning and support to rout diehard PLO fighters reported in the camps.

Begin and Sharon claim the Israeli army acted to stop the massacre as soon as it knew what was happening. But Israeli news reports say senior army officers knew of the slaughter the day it began.

After the massacre, the Lebanese government requested the return of the tri-national peacekeeping force which had overseen the withdrawal of PLO fighters from Beirut last month to sanctuary in eight Arab nations.

Officials said 302 Italian soldiers were deployed Monday in the Palestinian camps and 250 Frenchmen were stationed in the camps and south of them. The rest were waiting for the Marines to arrive.

The French and Italians said initially they would wait until the Israelis withdrew from Beirut before sending in their troops. But officials said Monday they changed their minds at Gemayel's request.

Schultz, Gromyko have first meeting today

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz meets Soviet counterpart Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko for the first time today, but the meeting is expected to produce little progress toward improving troubled U.S.-Soviet relations.

Schultz, in New York for the 37th session of the General Assembly, also was scheduled to have breakfast with British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym, one of a series of meetings with the United States' European allies.

U.S. officials would not disclose publicly what Shultz and Gromyko planned to discuss during the Soviet minister's ninth meeting with an American secretary of state.

But one official said privately that Shultz was certain to urge the Soviets to withdraw from Afghanistan and drop their backing for the Cambodian and Polish governments. Shultz and Gromyko also were expected to discuss the nuclear weapons control talks in Geneva.

But U.S. officials say incentive is lacking on both sides to take steps to improve relations.

At the same time, one U.S. official who is an expert on Soviet affairs said the Kremlin is showing interest again in a meeting between President Reagan and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev. The official said the Soviets have raised the subject on four recent occasions, including once with U.S.

Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman in Moscow this month.

The official said Gromyko might suggest a summit. But it is unlikely that Shultz will respond.

Shultz has followed the Reagan administration position that good relations with Moscow depend on what the United States considers acceptable global behavior by the Soviet Union, and that such behavior has not been forthcoming.

Gromyko sent Shultz a congratulatory telegram after his confirmation by the Senate earlier this summer to replace resigned Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Harvester news conference

International Harvester President Donald D. Lennox, left, speaks to Ohio Governor James A. Rhodes Monday at a news conference in Springfield, Ohio. Lennox later

formally announced that his company would keep and expand a truck and bus assembly plant in Springfield and close a similar plant in Fort Wayne, Ind. (AP Laserphoto)

Harvester toasted by Ohio city

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Relieved workers and community leaders raised toasts in taverns and placed thank-you signs in windows as International Harvester Co. ended a two-state tug-of-war by deciding to consolidate its bus and truck operations here.

"Everyone's happy about it," said Kathy Atchison, an employee of the Harvester Inn near the IH body plant, where workers began gathering at about noon Monday after hearing the city's largest employer declare it would stay.

But it was bitter news for residents of Fort Wayne, Ind., which will lose 2,200 jobs with the decision by Harvester, although the company will retain about 1,900 workers there in non-assembly jobs.

"The decision comes as a harsh blow to thousands of individuals who work for this major employer," said Fort Wayne Mayor Winfield Moses Jr.

Financially troubled Harvester, which expects to lose $1.5 billion this year, announced in August it would close one of its North American truck plants, prompting a $30 million bidding war between Indiana and Ohio.

However, Donald D. Lennox, Harvester's president and chief operating officer, said Monday the decision to consolidate in Springfield hinged on its more efficient plant, 40 years newer than Fort Wayne's.

In Springfield, a city of 73,000 people in central Ohio, Harvester workers and community leaders gathered in taverns and at private clubs to celebrate. Signs saying "Thanks IH" and "Springfield Loves IH" appeared at businesses.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, in town for the announcement, said, "You know, there's not much of a line between misery and happiness."

It was a line the people of Springfield had grown weary of walking. Ms. Atchison said recent talk at the tavern centered on the possibility the truck assembly plant would be lost.

"You know, they'd see an ad for something and then they'd say, 'None, I better not use that money in the bank,' because they didn't know what would happen."

Monday's jubilation was tempered by concern for Harvester's future. Lennox admitted that the company's efforts to rid itself of unprofitable lines have not yet shown results.

But he said the consolidation at Springfield would save Harvester $50 million a year and put it back on the road to profitability.

For Ohio, it will mean about 1,500 new jobs in the next 15 months as Harvester expands its truck and bus production at Springfield from a present rate of about 150 per day to around 400 a day.

Teen has new gun, thumb

HONOR, Mich. (AP) — A hunting accident that nearly cost a teen-ager his right hand apparently hasn't discouraged him from the sport — and he'll use a thumb that used to be a toe to hold the gun.

"I've got a new shotgun and I've shot a couple times since," said Mark Rhodes, 15. "I am going to try again for a deer this year."

Rhodes lost his right thumb Nov. 15 when his shotgun discharged on a deer hunting trip. His hand was severely damaged, requiring six operations to repair.

During the most recent surgery on Aug. 26, the second toe on Mark's right foot was transplanted to his hand, said Dr. Ronald Clark.

Clark, the surgeon, said that with the new thumb, Rhodes will have feeling and the ability to write. But he will need further surgery to repair the rest of his hand.

Clark estimated about 200 toe-hand transplants have been done in the United States since the procedure was developed in 1969.

House takes up drunk driving bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House determined to get drunk drivers off the nation's highways, is considering a bill aimed at offering states incentive grants if they pass tough alcohol-traffic laws.

The legislation would establish a three-year, $125 million grant program to encourage states to set up comprehensive, coordinated drunk driver control programs.

After the bill was approved by the House Public Works and Transportation Committee, Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., said it would set aside $25 million in fiscal 1983 from the Highway Trust Fund, and $50 million the following two years.

Barnes said the grants would be used as "seed money" to reward states which take recommended steps toward setting up programs to deter drunk driving and to remove the bottlenecks in the enforcement and adjudication systems. The Senate passed similar legislation last May.

Cold shoulder for High Frontier

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The concept is staggering: station 432 killer satellites in orbit, each with 40-50 rockets ready to knock out attacking Soviet missiles before they can reach their American targets. The cost: $50 billion.

The plan, labeled High Frontier, was introduced to the public in March. Its chief architect says it has received considerable attention on Capitol Hill and some response in the White House — but little notice from the State Department and a cold shoulder from the Pentagon.

"We have several hurdles to get over, but we feel confident," said retired Army Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, former head of the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency and a military adviser to Ronald Reagan during the 1980 presidential campaign. "We hope within a month or so to have either an amendment in Congress or instructions for the administration to consider."

High Frontier resulted from a seven-month study commissioned by The Heritage Foundation, a conservative, Washington-based public policy research institute. It was drawn up by a team of 31 scientists, space engineers, economists and military strategists directed by Graham.

Other proposals in the plan are a defense system around U.S. ballistic missile silos, an advanced manned space shuttle to open up industrialization of space and development of solar power satellites to beam energy to Earth.

The killer satellite network is the centerpiece of the plan and has drawn the most attention and created the most controversy.

Graham said that perhaps the biggest obstacle to the satellites is the large political community that advocates the Mutual Assured Destruction doctrine, under which nuclear war becomes "unthinkable" as long as each side retains enough nuclear bombs for a second strike.

With 432 killer satellites in orbit, Graham said, at least one-fourth of them would be in position at any time to repulse a Russian missile attack. They would be in two layers — the first to intercept rockets as they rise into the atmosphere, the second to knock out those along the path to their target in case they get by the initial defense line.

Here's how the system would work: —A Soviet missile bursts out of its silo aimed at a target in the United States or Western Europe.

—An American early warning satellite tracks the missile using infrared sensors and radar and computes its course, selecting a high-probability point in the atmosphere through which the missile will pass.

—A designated killer satellite launches one of its rocket-propelled canisters containing a conventional explosive at the interception point. As the canister nears the missile it explodes, somewhat like a grenade, into several hundred small explosives, some of which hit and destroy the missile.

—Any missile which penetrates both layers of the satellite defense is cleaned up by a ground-based anti-missile net protecting U.S. silos.

Graham said that even though he had been a Reagan military adviser just two years ago, he had "some initial trouble getting through the palace guard" in attempts to present the plan to the White House.

But in recent weeks, he said, he has talked with White House science officials, and "we believe the presidential science adviser, Dr. George A. Keyworth, is moving from a rather negative view to a view that we should have a spaceborne defense system against missiles." However, Graham said, Keyworth's concepts might not necessarily agree with those of High Frontier.

On Pentagon reaction, Graham said: "This is one source of difficulty, and understandably so, because we're recommending a major shift in strategy that knocks over a lot of programmatic apple carts." Some defense officials, he said, might fear a loss of authority in the High Frontier recommendation that development of the killer satellite force be given independent status so it can be implemented quickly.

Graham said, however, he was encouraged when Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger recently spoke of the need for a space-based defense system against missiles.

Graham said major High Frontier supporters in Congress, all Republican, are Sens. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, William V. Roth of Delaware, William L. Armstrong of Colorado and Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming.

Flooding moves eastward from California

By The Associated Press
Utah residents began digging out of a soggy blanket of mud and debris, but more rain was falling today as downpours that broke a dam and endangered $450 million worth of crops swept eastward from California.

In Salt Lake City, officials issued an appeal early today for volunteers to help with sandbagging, and the Utah Highway Patrol reported parts of two main city routes fender-deep in water.

More than 1,000 homes were flooded and 400 people were forced to evacuate Monday after one of Utah's worst storms in 50 years — an early fall tempest that took forecasters by surprise.

"The probability of this kind of storm happening is once every 100 years," Keith Goates of the National Weather Service said Monday.

Rain also fell in the water-logged High Sierra of California, but today's forecast called for clear skies that could let waters recede and residents clean up. Dozens of residents were still isolated Monday after a rain-swollen dam broke on North Lake near Bishop, Calif., washing out roads and forcing hundreds of residents from their homes.

Three days of rain have pounded harvest-ready crops in California, devastating raisins and wine grapes and causing damage that could reach $450 million, the state Farm Bureau said Monday.

In Colorado, up to a foot of snow was expected in the Rocky Mountains today as the storms moved in from the west. On Monday, rain at lower elevations "really made a mess" of a mudslide that began Sunday before the storm, a Colorado State Patrol dispatcher said.

A California couple died in a traffic accident Monday on a rain-slickened road in Colorado, authorities said.

After Utah Gov. Scott Matheson declared a state of emergency in Salt Lake County, the weather service issued a flash flood watch for all of Utah late Monday and early today as rain poured from slate-gray skies for a fourth day. Salt Lake County, the state's most populous, could be soaked by more than half an inch overnight, officials said.

More than 400 Salt Lake County residents fled their homes as the Jordan River flooded after Sunday's downpour.

As of Monday, water damage was placed at up to $15 million, said Salt Lake County Public Works Director Don Spencer. Commercial losses ranged between $5 million and $10 million, while residential damages totaled about $5 million, he said.

Matheson activated the Utah National Guard, which provided manpower and heavy equipment to help towns dig out from the debris.

Forecasters said the Sunday rainfall was the heaviest to hit Salt Lake County in 50 years.

Almanac predicts mild winter in the west

By ELIZABETH NOYES
Associated Press Writer
DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — The Old Farmer's Almanac, the 191-year-old yellow and black weather bible ready to hang in pantry or privy, predicts a frigid winter for the East and a mild one for the West.

The 1983 edition of the nation's oldest continuously published periodical, issued today, says it makes forecasts based on both "the latest scientific technology" and a secret formula locked in a black box in the almanac's offices.

But Abe Weatherwise — a pseudonym for publisher Rob Trowbridge and editor Jud Hale — cautions that the April 4 eruption of the Mexican volcano El Chichon could throw off this year's forecasts because the almanac went to press before the volcano's effects could be assessed.

Weatherwise predicted severe cold waves rolling across the East in January, February and March after a mild and sunny December.

The West may face a serious drought as a result of a warm and dry November, then rain and relief in December and a cold snap at the end of the year, he said. The Middle Atlantic region should expect a wet spring and possible flooding.

The publishers claim an accuracy rate of 80 percent, and the U.S. government took them at their word at least once. During World War II, all copies of the magazine were confiscated after German spies were captured off the East Coast consulting its forecasts.

The Old Farmer's Almanac's most recent success was predicting last winter's bitter cold wave. The forecast was for a major snowstorm and cold wave in the East and South during the Christmas-New Year's holidays. The forecast was a bit narrow, though: The cold wave spread into the Midwest and lasted through January. The almanac is not to be confused with a younger publication called simply the Farmers' Almanac, which is only 166 years old. That almanac, published in Lewiston, Maine, is given away by businesses as an advertising promotion.

The younger almanac's winter forecast — prepared by Caleb Weatherbee, a pseudonym for an unidentified weather buff from New Hampshire — also predicts a colder-than-normal winter, with above-average snowfall virtually everywhere but the Pacific Northwest. But the Farmers' Almanac, which also claims 80 percent accuracy, did not predict last winter's killer cold wave.

The Old Farmer's Almanac, on sale for $1.50, offers anecdotes and stories along with its year-long forecasts for 16 regions of the country, tide and planting tables, and breeding charts.

This year's almanac offers these tidbits:

- An old-fashioned cure for insomnia: Smell your socks before retiring.
- A list of printers' errors in various editions of the Bible, including a 1632 publication in which the Seventh Commandment admonished: "Thou shalt commit adultery."
- Instruction on hulling corn. "For the three, possibly four people in the world who would be interested."

Bigger trade deficit might be good sign

By The Associated Press
Some economists say the government's report of a big surge in the U.S. trade deficit last month might be a sign that businesses are expecting a consumer buying spree to lead the nation out of recession.

The Commerce Department reported Monday the trade deficit, not counting financial transactions, hit a one-month record of $7.1 billion in August. Exports fell slightly.

The biggest reason for the deficit growth — from $2.4 billion in July — was a 20.2 percent August increase in imports, the biggest jump Commerce Department analysts could remember in recent years. Exports declined slightly in the month.

David Lund, a Commerce Department economist, said the figures were a signal that companies may be stepping up their purchases of foreign goods in anticipation of a jump in U.S. consumer spending.

Texas Instruments Inc., a large electronics company based in Dallas, said it was laying off 2,600 of its approximately 80,000 workers between now and the end of the year.

And International Harvester Co., the ailing farm-implements producer, announced it would close a Fort Wayne, Ind., plant and cut 2,000 jobs there.

Mass murderer transferred to prison

HOUSTON (AP) — Coral Eugene Watts, who admitted to the slayings of 13 women in Texas and Michigan, has been transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections diagnostic unit in Huntsville.

Watts, 28, was sentenced earlier this month to 60 years in prison after pleading guilty to a charge of burglary with intent to commit murder. He admitted, however, to killing 13 women in Houston, Austin, Galveston and Michigan. Watts was given immunity from murder charges under terms of a plea bargain. Authorities in Indiana also want to question Watts about the deaths of two women in that state.

Lifestyles

DEAR ABBY: One night our son said to his wife, "Go get the book I left in the hall." Although he is not crippled, and she is not mute, she complied without saying a word. Our son is 28 and his wife is 23.

Neither my husband nor I said anything at the time, but later we agreed that it was unpleasant behavior on our son's part, and pathetic behavior on the part of his wife. This wasn't the first time we observed his chauvinism and her meek compliance. Right after their wedding, we dropped them off at the house where they were to spend the night, and she carried their bags while he walked ahead, burden-free.

I think we should say something to our son about his lack of consideration for his wife. My husband says it's none of our business, and to interfere would be tampering with their relationship. Also, he says that perhaps our son needs a "slave" and his wife enjoys the role.

Are there no instances where interference is appropriate? If we saw our son stealing money from his wife or beating her up, would we not feel compelled to say something about it even if his wife were too shy or insecure to complain or defend herself?

DISTRESSED BUT STILL SILENT

DEAR DISTRESSED: As I view it, the only problem here is that you are dismayed with (1) the rude and inconsiderate way your son treats his wife, and (2) her uncomplaining acceptance of it. Although it's unpleasant to witness, as long as he doesn't physically abuse her and she's not complaining, you'd be wise to offer no suggestions.

DEAR ABBY: My friend, Cyndi, is 25, a good dresser, has a nice personality and lots of common sense. She has held well-paying, responsible jobs that involve contact with the public. With all her exposure to the public and bosses, why does she say, "I seen him the other day" or, "He don't know nothing"?

Abby, this girl is no dummy, but the way she talks sure makes her come across like one. I know she knows better, but I wonder if she can hear herself, doesn't care, or simply doesn't think it matters that she sounds like a dumb broad. Why does she do this?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Cyndi may "know better," but apparently constant exposure to poor grammar during her early years has made her insensitive to poor grammar. Even with all you say she has going for her, she won't last long in a job that requires her to meet the public unless she cleans up her act. If she's your friend, help her.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, my husband started to collect X-rated movies (the silent type) as a hobby. I wasn't aware of it until I found them, then he asked me to watch one with him. Just to please him, I did, but it didn't turn me on at all. It's so mechanical and impersonal.

I enjoy sex and have no problem with my imagination. It's far superior to those celluloid dummies. My husband must enjoy this sort of thing, otherwise why would he collect it? Whenever I'm away from home, I know he watches these films. Am I unreasonable to bug him to get rid of this trash?

REDWOOD CITY

DEAR REDWOOD: Yes. The fact that he hid his hobby from you indicates that he's somewhat immature and ashamed of his hobby. But it's his home, too, and as long as he doesn't impose his "trash" on you, you have no right to bug him to dispose of it.

If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

PAMPA GARDEN CLUB

Members of the Pampa Garden Club met for a coffee in the Flame Room of the Energas building for the first meeting of the year with Mrs. A. B. Cross presiding on Monday, Sept. 20. There were 11 members present. Hostesses were Mrs. Lee Morre and Mrs. A. B. Cross.

Mrs. A. B. Cross welcomed each member and outlined some events for the coming year. On Monday, Oct. 11th the members will visit the Amarillo Garden Center and have lunch in Amarillo.

Mrs. H. H. Boynton presented the program on irises. She told the group that irises lend themselves easily and they make a good cut flower. The foliage is great in arranging as well as adding a beautiful background to the flower border all season long.

Your garden may be many things but it certainly bears an expression of your own taste and certainly you will find the iris a most helpful flower in portraying the picture you desire.

It is said that a dirt gardener very seldom has heart trouble.

The next meeting will be Oct. 4 in the Flame Room with Ms. Joy Gibson, consumer information specialist, giving the program.

The most popular renovation projects

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Kitchens and bathrooms have been the glamour rooms in American homes for many years. Statistics indicate that remodeling these rooms are two of the most popular home-renovation projects in the United States.

Two events held recently in New York suggest inflation, austerity and changes in American household makeup will have little effect on the love affair of Americans with their kitchens and baths.

Participants at a conference sponsored by the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers agreed that even with a relative decline in traditional values and family types, the kitchen will continue to occupy center stage in the home. At a bath-products show sponsored by Kohler Co., executives said the luxury bath was becoming more widespread.

At the AIKD conference, Barbara Caplan, a researcher who specializes in tracking the effect of changing values on consumer behavior, said changes in typical American households were already affecting the way families used their kitchen.

With more single-parent families and more mothers working outside the home, there are more novices in the kitchen and a less routine approach to the details of preparing and consuming meals, she said. The whole family may not sit down together to eat their meals. Yet, more meals are cooked as family members pursue their separate schedules.

Nowadays, consumers are seeking custom solutions to what they see as their special needs and problems. The fast-growing segments of households are those usually defined as non-traditional — single adults, single-parent families, unrelated adults living together. Consequently, she foresees a growing demand for flexibility in the kitchen, for appliances which are easy to use in rooms that reflect the individuality of those using them.

Unlike the 1950s and '60s when keeping up with the Joneses was in fashion, consumers today seek to be different from the Joneses. They want products which differentiate them from others, and this should lead to more variety in what is made available.

Barbara Kafka, cookbook author and consultant to the food industry, spoke of the growing sophistication of some American consumers. The types of foods being cooked have expanded tremendously, mostly as a result of greater travel and the custom of eating out more often.

An interest in gourmet and ethnic cooking has helped create a vast new market for special-use kitchen appliances, she said. The commercial success of appliances such as steamers, woks, pasta machines and ice-cream makers is an indication of the growing diversity of American behavior in the kitchen.

As the center of food preparation, the kitchen has been the heart of the home. Today, it is the pre-eminent place where Americans create themselves in the image they desire by their choice of foods, appliances and decor, she said.

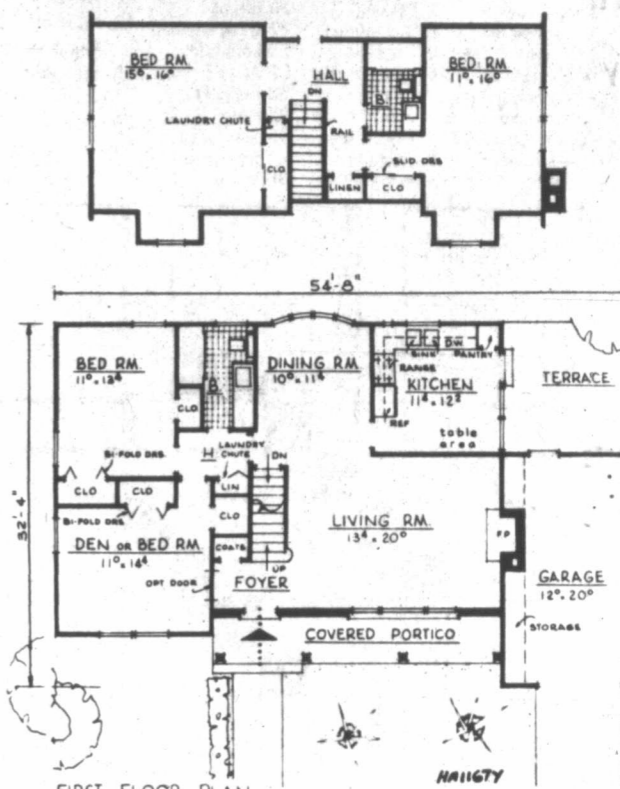

If the kitchen is the spot to polish a public image, then the bathroom is the place where Americans work on improving their private image. The bathroom is becoming a center for fitness and relaxation as well as the place to get clean, said Michael O'Malley, a Kohler official.

People are opting for larger bathrooms with more functions built in, he said. Whirlpool bathtubs top the list of desired bath features.

"I would have said last year that middle-America was not ready for the two-person whirlpool bathtub," but, O'Malley says, Kohler introduced such a tub and he was proven wrong. Extra-large whirlpool tubs are selling well all over the United States, he says.

Other features in demand include decorative faucets, extra counter and storage space and water-saving toilets. There is also a less widespread but growing interest in physical-fitness equipment in the bathroom, he added. In recognition of the interest in physical fitness, his firm has printed a booklet featuring fitness exercises which it plans to distribute to interested consumers.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

HERE IS A MODERATE SIZE FARMHOUSE style of house. It has two bedrooms on the first floor and another two on the second floor. Interior features include a wide bow window in the dining room and a window in the kitchen that overlooks a terrace. Plan HA1167Y has 1,117 square feet on the first floor and 708 on the second. For more information write — enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope — to York & Schenke, 226 Seventh St., Garden City, N.Y. 11530.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — For non-stick frying pan cooking, sprinkle a little flour in the pan.
If you want to open a sealed letter without damaging the envelope, hold it over a pot of boiling water and slide a thin knife blade under the flap. This also works when taking a stamp off an envelope.
When you feed a baby commercially prepared baby food, do not feed directly from the jar. Saliva on the spoon will cause leftover food in the jar to spoil more quickly when stored in the refrigerator. Spoon the desired quantity of food into a separate dish for feeding, then recap and refrigerate the remainder in the jar. — VIOLA

by bernice bede osol

This coming year will be a very busy and important one for you where your social interests are concerned. You'll have many friends, but you'd be wise not to mix business with pleasure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you're rather sharp at discovering the true worth of things. However, today your judgment may lead you into making expensive miscalculations. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be appreciative of what others do for you today without trying to do twice as much for them in return. It might make them feel their gestures were insignificant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful today not to swing too quickly into action based upon your initial observations. For safety's sake, take a second look.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have a little nest egg tucked away, it would be prudent not to talk about it today to a friend who is always a trifle short and in need of a loan.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though your better judgment may dictate otherwise, there is a possibility you could do something foolish today which might reflect unfavorably on your image.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Though it may cause you some inconvenience, take pains to dig out all the facts before making an important decision today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Subdue temptations to share too liberally confidential information today. Instead, talk to your friends about topics of mutual interests.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll know what types of productive things you should be doing today, but lazy urges may tempt you to postpone them. Don't yield to the "manana" syndrome.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you hope to make today count for something, it's important to keep your priorities in order. Put important matters first on your agenda, not last.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When probing for information today, don't get hung up on insignificant factors to the point that you may obscure the major premise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A deal which you put together today will contain promise, but perhaps not on as grand a scale as you envision. Come down to earth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Material conditions tend to favor you today, but your gains might not be up to your expectations. Be content with anything on the plus side.

Goods piling up as trade flow halts

Papoose, Thailand style

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer
EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Goods from clothing to machinery are piling up in El Paso warehouses because of Mexico's economic crisis, which has brought the flow of merchandise across the border to a grinding halt.

"We're sitting on a powder keg," said Pete Araujo of ABACO Customhouse Brokers. "I'm sure every broker in town has some sort of receivables we're going to have trouble collecting. They just can't raise the dollars."

Since the Aug. 5
devaluation of the battered peso, the Mexican government has issued a variety of regulations aimed at keeping American dollars in the country. Mexico needs the currency to pay the interest on its $80 billion foreign debt — the largest among developing countries.

devaluation with the stipulation that the buyers would pay within 30 to 60 day.
But those deadlines are rapidly approaching and many buyers are having the warehouses return the goods because they don't have the dollars to pay.

An additional problem
arose when the government
canceled all import permits and initiated a stricter application system that requires Mexico City's approval. The resulting delays could mean more goods are shipped back to the suppliers.

"A lot of merchandise in El Paso already has been returned because they (the buyers) were afraid they couldn't get the dollars to pay for them," said Joe Quezada, manager of Martin Brokerage. "The suppliers are glad to take their merchandise back rather than taking a chance on not getting paid."

For others, however, the delays already have meant too much time to return the goods. One of Araujo's customers has $24,000 worth of equipment used to preserve railroad ties and fence posts sitting in a warehouse.

"We've had it over six months," Araujo said. "We can't send it back."

Marie Tarvin-Garland,
owner of Sun City
Warehouses Inc., said the backup at her warehouse won't last much longer. She said businesses that placed orders before the devaluation have claimed them and
"they've stopped ordering."

The distribution end of Ms.
Tarvin-Garland's business has been hurt the worst.
Usually, businesses can consolidate loads of goods and cut shipping costs, with the warehouse distributing goods on arrival.

"Now, rather than consolidate their loads, they're having to buy and ship immediately, which has really cut down on distribution," said Wayne Porter, Ms. Tarvin-Garland's warehouse manager. "We usually average about 65 to 70 trailers a month. Now, it's dropped to about five a week."

For other brokers, the problem is how long to hold goods when the buyers cannot pay.

A hill tribe woman carries one child on her back like a papoose and another in her arms after arriving at the resettlement village last month in Petchabun, Thailand. Former communist insurgent families were temporarily housed at the village before they took advantage of a government amnesty program. Thai officials said they counted 7,444 men, women and children who fled their northern mountain stronghold. (AP Laserphoto)

Bad news for legislators

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's been nothing but one piece of bad news after another for national legislators eager to get the 1982 elections behind them and quit for the year.

"Just a month ago, I was announcing to my colleagues the possibility of the Senate recessing no later than Oct. 1 and returning in January," lamented Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee. "At home, my wife and I were making plans for after Thanksgiving... But I should have known better than to plan ahead."

First, Baker said, progress on the Senate floor slowed to the pace of rush hour traffic in the nation's capital.

Then, President Reagan went and suggested that Congress come back after the elections to take care of spending bills. Leaders reluctantly agreed to call a December "lame duck" session.

And that's when things took a turn for the worse, Baker said.

"Now it appears that not only will we have to be in session for a good portion of the year, but we will not even be able to escape into the throes of a NFL game," Baker told the Senate.

"We might as well stay in session on Sundays; we might as well throw out the TVs in the cloakrooms; we might as well give up trying to understand Howard Cosell; and we might as well just give up on the notion of being happy."

NL roundup Cardinals clinch NL West crown

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO
Associated Press Writer
And who, pray tell, are the St. Louis Cardinals going to meet in the National League playoffs? Don't ask.

While Whitey Herzog's Redbirds nailed down their first-ever NL East pennant Monday with a 4-2 victory over Montreal, the tight-as-a-drum NL West got even tighter. Phil Niekro, 36-4, hurled a two-hitter as the Atlanta Braves snapped San Francisco's five-game winning streak with a 7-0 victory, while Cincinnati's Mario Soto five-hit Los Angeles 6-1. That put the Braves and Dodgers — both with 85-71 records — into a first-place tie, while the Giants trail by the co-leaders by one game with six to go.

In other NL action, Chicago topped Philadelphia 8-1, New York beat Pittsburgh 4-1, and Houston defeated San Diego 7-3.

"I want to play the Braves," said Cardinal outfielder Willie McGee. "I don't want to have to deal with the Giants the way they're playing right now." McGee's three-run, inside-the-park homer off Bill Gullickson, 12-13, highlighted a four-run first inning. Dave LaPoint, 9-3, was the winning pitcher.

"I thought we had a good chance to win it in spring training, but then I started to wonder when we hit a rash of injuries in May," said Herzog, who had won three American League West titles as manager of the Kansas City Royals. "The first one is always the most exciting, but to me they're all good because that's what you're in this game for, to win."

"This is like winning the first leg of the Triple Crown," said Jim Kaat, the Cards' 43-year old reliever. "We've just won the Kentucky Derby, and now there's two big races to go."

While the race ended in the East, it reached fever pitch in the West.

"Everything is of bigger magnitude right now," Niekro said after blanking the Giants. "Every pitch, every strikeout, every hit is of bigger magnitude."

"Pitching is the key to any pennant race," said Brave first baseman Chris Chambliss, whose two-run double topped off a five-run Atlanta fourth inning. "He's (Niekro) been pitching great all year but I've been here three years and I've never seen him so good. His knuckleball can't be hit when he gets it over the plate. They just can't hit it."

Which is something the Dodgers haven't done much of, either.

"Everybody's stopped hitting," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda. "Nobody knows why people go into slumps. It seems like lately it's just been everybody."

Soto, 14-12, allowed just one hit after the fourth inning as he handed the Dodgers their sixth straight loss.

"The last time I faced them, I pitched my worst game in baseball," said Soto, who lost to the Dodgers 7-2 on Sept. 6. "I never forget things like that. They beat on me like I was a pitching coach. I felt bad. I remembered that tonight. In the first couple of innings, I was thinking about that."

"I'm just hoping we can pull something out of the hat tomorrow, get started again," said Lasorda.

But tomorrow are running out for the Dodgers, Giants and Braves. For the Cardinals, they're just beginning. Cubs 8, Phillies 1. Bill Buckner's RBI triple highlighted a four-run Cub third inning. Randy Martz, 11-10, scattered seven hits before being relieved by Dick Tidrow in the ninth, as the Phillies were eliminated from the East race with their loss and the Cards' victory.

"Sure, I'm disappointed," said Phillies Manager Pat Corrales. "I expected us to go into the last week fighting for it (the division title), which we didn't do. It got away from us."

"We weren't that great," said third baseman Mike Schmidt. "We didn't have it together at any point. We were lucky enough to hang close."

"We did have our fate in our hands three or four weeks ago and that's what makes this period of frustration possible."

First baseman Pete Rose added, "You can say we choked but I wouldn't say that. Anytime you go in a slump people say you're tight. I'm not tight."

effect as a pickax striking pavement. Pete Rose, "Charlie Hustle," the man for whom baseball had become a lifelong love affair, might be losing some of his aggressiveness.

He had gone from hitting .325 in 1981 to a paltry .273 so far this season. If he finished the season at that mark, it would be his worst batting average since 1964 when he hit .269 in his second season with the Cincinnati Reds.

"I guess when you've got a lifetime average, this has to be considered an off year," Rose says. "It's taken me a long time to adjust to hitting second ... my whole philosophy has always been to be aggressive, but I've taken so many pitches this year, I think I've lost some of my aggressiveness."

Rose's entire career has been a succession of changes. While with the Reds, he moved from second base to the outfield to make room for Joe Morgan. He played all the outfield positions, finally moving from left field to third base to make room for George Foster. When he went to the Phillies, he played first base because Mike Schmidt was at third.

All that time, he was a leadoff hitter, the tablesetter, the run scorer. In order to do his job, he had to get on base. So, he got hits, and he did his job better than any man since Ty Cobb. With 3,864 lifetime hits, he trails only Cobb's major league record of 4,191.

Rose, 41 years old, first was moved into the No. 2 spot in the batting order late last season behind Lonnie Smith, who since was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I was hitting .337 when they switched me," Rose recalled, "then I went down to .325 while I was hitting behind Lonnie Smith."

When Rose found out he would be hitting No. 2 again this season, this time behind rookie Bob Dernier, he wasn't sure what goals to set for himself.

"I set my normal goal to hit .300, but I didn't set a goal to get 200 hits, which I usually do," Rose said. "I didn't know what goal to set. My role had changed, and I'd become a move-'em-along kind of guy."

"We were winning a lot, and I'm not the kind of guy who goes 0-for-4 or 0-for-5 and tears his locker apart. I don't worry about myself when we're winning," Rose said.

While Rose ranks in the top 10 in almost every offensive category except homers and RBI, he set a record this season of which he wasn't particularly proud.

Names in the News

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Billy Graham says there's no political motive in his upcoming visits to six cities behind the Iron Curtain next month.

"I'm going to preach the gospel," Graham said Monday of his decision to travel to East Germany and Czechoslovakia. "I'm certainly not going on a political trip."

The 63-year-old evangelist visited the Soviet Union in May to address a conference of religious leaders and to speak out against the nuclear arms race. He drew criticism for saying that he found no evidence of religious persecution during his visit.

His visit to East Germany is scheduled for Oct. 15-25. The trip to Czechoslovakia will begin Oct. 29. Graham said he will identify the cities he will visit later.

ATLANTA (AP) — Lillian Carter, mother of former President Jimmy Carter, has been undergoing tests at Emory University Hospital since last week, according to aides at her son's office.

Mrs. Carter, 84, has asked that the nature of the tests not be made public, said hospital spokeswoman Julia Hoyer. Faye Dill of the former president's office in Plains said Monday that Mrs. Carter entered the hospital last week and will be released "whenever the tests are completed."

"They just want to make sure she's OK," Ms. Dill said.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — President Zail Singh will travel to Houston this week for a cardiac examination and possible heart surgery.

Singh, 66, who will be out of the country about two weeks, will leave Thursday for tests at the Texas Heart Institute, the presidential palace announced Monday.

On Sept. 16 the government announced that Singh was advised by his doctors to go to the hospital "to evaluate the condition of his coronary arteries."

Singh, inaugurated in July, had been hospitalized earlier in the year in an intensive care unit with reported heart trouble.

Apartment fire was arson, official rules

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Arsonists spread a flammable liquid along the stairwell of an aging, multi-story apartment building to start a fire whose death count has climbed to six, officials said.

The fire began in a second floor hallway about last Friday night and raged through the 72-year-old Alexandria Apartments, shooting flames that could be seen from several miles away.

The bodies of three victims were found in the charred rubble of the downtown-area building. Two other victims died while hospitalized Saturday. A sixth, Josefine Gonzalez, 70, died Monday.

No arrests have been made in the case. "We have found positive evidence of arson," Fire Chief M.L. Coleman said Monday.

"We were reasonably sure all around (that it was arson), and we kept cleaning and digging, cleaning and digging, until we found it," he said.

Fire Marshal Joe Wilson said investigators found "definite patterns of flammable liquid," but he would not specify the liquid.

All the victims lived on the third floor. The first five were Mrs. Gonzalez's husband, Rafael, 72, her grandson, Rafael Gonzalez III, 6, Durwood Morris, 68, Pedro Perez, 42, and an elderly woman whose name has not been released pending notification of her relatives. About 45 people were left homeless.

News Briefs

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Eight female coal miners who claimed male workers spied on them while they dressed and showered have settled a $5.5 million lawsuit against Consolidation Coal Co.

The suit said a peephole enabled men to watch their locker room from a foreman's office at the Shoemaker Mine in Benwood, and that the company knew about the hole for a year before it was closed.

The settlement was reached Monday in U.S. District Court after five days of testimony but before the case went to the jury. Judge Charles T. Haden did not announce the damages. The women's attorney, James Bordas, said it was an amount "we could live with."

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — A medical school dropout has been sentenced to two years in state prison for posing as a psychiatrist. He also was ordered to repay the $7,660 he made during the masquerade.

Patrick Arthur Dixon, 40, was sentenced Monday after pleading no contest to charges he assumed the name of a former college roommate, now practicing psychiatry in Washington state, to land a high-paying job with Imperial County, where he treated more than 100 patients.

An investigation of his background was ordered after a woman with a history of suicide attempts was found to have overdosed on drugs allegedly prescribed by Dixon.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A judge has ordered Mobil Corp. to pay $2 million to the state of Alabama by Friday and another $500,000 in cleanup costs because of the illegal discharge of drilling wastes into Mobile Bay. Mobil has admitted to the illegal dumping but denies any corporate responsibility, saying the fault lay with 16 employees, including the supervisor of the bay natural gas drilling operations, who have been fired. Eight other employees also have been disciplined, Mobil said. State Attorney General Charles Graddick said it was the largest civil penalty in the state's history.

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — At least nine people are dead and another 600 stricken with cholera following an outbreak of the disease on the Caroline Islands, the World Health Organization regional office said today.

A WHO spokeswoman said reports from the area indicate the disease has been contained in the western part of the archipelago but continues to spread in Moen and Lagoon islands. WHO estimates the island chain's population at 40,000.

She said of the 636 people reported to have contracted the disease since the end of August or early this month, WHO has so far been able to confirm only 50 cases through laboratory tests.

Recession in Western Europe mirrors the United States

By MARK S. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Like the recession-hit United States, Western Europe is in an economic sickbed with raging unemployment, stunted growth and an epidemic of bankruptcies.

Inflation, though slowing, is still high and even the most optimistic are guarded about the outlook.

An Associated Press survey of West European economies discloses jobless rates ranging from Great Britain's record 13.4 percent to France's 8.9 percent and West Germany's 7.4 percent, both post-World War II highs.

Europeans feel their economic fate is bound to that of the United States.

"In the early part of the year, the very high level of American interest rates was among the most depressing factors on European economies," said Max Wilkinson, economics correspondent of London's Financial Times.

"Now, everybody is worried about the U.S. recession," he said.

He says the same factors that have sent the U.S. economy into a tailspin — the high cost of borrowing and low level of demand — are present in Europe.

"Though interest rates have come down, they're still at a relatively high level compared with inflation," Wilkinson said.

As to stimulating demand, there appears little chance that hard-pressed West European governments can or want to spend what that would take.

The result is a map of Europe with few bright spots:

BRITAIN — The all-time high of 13.8 percent unemployment works out to more than 3.2 million people, or nearly one-in-seven workers. Businesses are going under at a rate of 5,500 a year, 21.7 percent faster than last year. Laker Airways and DeLorean Motors are among 1981's most spectacular failures.

But Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Europe's No. 1 monetarist, refuses to waver from her tight credit and spending policies. She cites progress in the fight against inflation, down to 8.7 percent a year from a peak of 21.9 percent just after she took office. The Gross National Product rose just 0.2 percent in the second quarter, largely on the strength of North Sea oil, but living standards actually fell by 2 percent last year.

FRANCE — The 8.9 percent jobless rate translates to more than 2 million people, bankruptcies are up 5.5 percent over last year and the rate is accelerating. The GNP dropped 0.1 percent in the first quarter, the trade deficit so far this year is double last year's and the franc is at an all-time low.

President Francois Mitterrand has now made inflation a priority and switched from pump-priming to wage and price controls. Still, prices are rising at an annual 11.9 percent.

WEST GERMANY — Joblessness in August was at 7.4 percent or nearly 1.8 million people, highest in post-war records. The government had to step in with a $437 million credit guarantee to rescue the insolvent electronics giant AEG-Telefunken in August, with bankruptcies forecast to rise more than 30 percent this year to about 16,000.

The GNP could climb only 0.5 percent this year — a far cry from the growth scene in the years of the German "economic miracle."

The economic problems have also hurt Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's left-of-center Social Democrats whose 13-year coalition with the centrist Free Democrats collapsed Sept. 17 when four Free Democrat ministers quit the Cabinet.

ITALY — The inflation rate is Europe's highest, 17.2 percent, while unemployment is climbing. The most recent government figures, from April, show 8.6 percent, but more recent Common Market statistics suggest double-figures. The lira's 16-percent decline against the dollar this year has made it difficult to service Italy's foreign debt of $46 billion.

SPAIN — Just under 14 percent are out of work, but the government forecasts a 1 percent to 1.5 percent increase in GNP this year with boosted exports and tourism.

BELGIUM — The current jobless rate, 11 percent, is just one-tenth of 1 percent below the all-time high set in July. The government is planning an austerity program to cut spending, limit wage hikes and deal with an $89 billion foreign debt.

THE NETHERLANDS — In August, unemployment hit a post-war peak of 12.6 percent. Bankruptcies leaped 42 percent last year to 7,268 and the trend appears to be continuing.

SWITZERLAND — This nation, noted as a bastion of cautious optimism, has an unemployment rate of 0.4 percent, Western Europe's lowest. Although the watch and heavy machinery sectors are pinched by recession, the most recent trade figures show a surplus of $62.4 billion and there have been just 538 bankruptcies this year.

AUSTRIA — A jobless rate of 1.4 percent masks some underlying problems. Bankruptcies are up nearly 20 percent from last year, when the Kneissl ski factory and Eumig camera business hit the skids. Inflation is running at 5.1 percent.

DENMARK — July unemployment edged down to 7.9 percent of the work force from 8.5 percent in June. But with mounting trade and budget deficits, the respected Privatbanken is warning of "disaster" on the horizon. The Social Democratic government quit this month because it couldn't get backing for spending cuts and higher taxes.

NORWAY — Unemployment is at a post-war high — but a rate most other Europeans envy of 2.7 percent.

Vietnam Viet to be added to Unknown Soldier tomb

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An unidentified Vietnam War casualty probably will become the fourth body to be placed in the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, according to the national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

James Currie said Sunday that federal officials are on the verge of changing a rule that has made it difficult to find a body for the tomb in Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia.

The tomb now contains the remains of unidentified veterans of World War I, World War II and the Korean War. Department of the Army regulations require bodies for the tomb to be unidentified and 80 percent intact.

Currie, a Korean War veteran and resident of Sierra Vista, Ariz., said improvements in medical science have made it difficult to find the remains of a unidentified Vietnam veteran to place in the tomb. Bodies that are 80 percent intact are easily identified, he said.

"Today's medical science can identify small fragments of bodies," Currie said during a visit here for a celebration of the 35th anniversary of a local VFW post.

He said Secretary of the Army John Marsh has indicated he would revise the rule to allow the burial in the tomb of a body that is less than 80 percent intact.

Army spokesman Major Bruce in Washington declined to comment on the report Saturday.

Several bodies being held in Hawaii could qualify if the rule is revised, according to Currie.

Stress and 'burnout'

By the Editors of Psychology Today

People who are not teachers generally assume that unruly students are the cause of stress and "burnout" among public school teachers.

The teachers themselves, however, make a plausible case for being more upset by unsympathetic school administrators and parents.

Their views came out recently when a psychologist at Columbia University Teachers College sent questionnaires about stress to 300 teachers randomly picked from suburban and rural public schools near New York City.

More of the teachers cited problems with school administrators as a source of strain than cited discipline problems with students.

Over 86 percent said that administrative meetings never or rarely helped solve their problems; 62 percent said they never or rarely had rewarding contact with their principals.

The loneliness of the teachers was underscored by the finding that two thirds of them said that parents never or rarely made their work easier.

The researcher, Barry Farber, argues that chronic physical and emotional exhaustion on the job is not often the result of stress itself. That, Farber says, "may be inevitable in teaching."

Rather, Farber thinks the problem comes from unrealistic stress — from "being stressed and having no 'out,' no buffers, no support system."

The four-day week is catching on rapidly in rural school districts, spurred in part by the enthusiastic results of a trial run in rural Colorado.
