

Nursing home fire set by elderly man

DA drops all charges despite confession for fatal blaze

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

The fire at the Pampa Nursing Center Sunday was deliberately set by a 74-year-old male patient, officials said today, but a charge of arson against the suspect was immediately dismissed by District Attorney Guy Hardin.

The fire which killed two patients and injured nine others, and which sent more than 60 elderly residents fleeing for their lives, has been ruled as arson, according to Pampa police and investigators from the state fire marshal's office.

Local fire officials ruled the fire was caused by an accidental short circuit in a patient's television set, and ruled out arson the day after the fire, but following an investigation by state fire marshals and the Pampa Police Department, the cause is definitely listed as arson.

Robert Morris, a 74-year-old nursing home patient, was charged with one count of first-degree felony arson in connection with the fire.

A source close to the investigation said police have a signed confession in which Morris admitted setting the fatal blaze with "some kind of a torch."

The crime of first-degree felony arson, which is an arson fire involving injuries or deaths, carries a maximum penalty of five to 99 years in prison, plus a $10,000 fine.

But Hardin dismissed the charge, and the suspect was whisked away by Gray County sheriff's deputies to the state mental institution in Vernon about 10:30 this morning.

The suspect has been under police guard at the nursing home here since Wednesday night, when the arson complaint against him was first issued, Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said today.

Police did not reveal how they believe Morris started the fire, or what led investigators to name the patient as a suspect.

Hardin said today the suspect was "babbling to himself that he didn't mean to do it — he didn't mean to hurt anybody," and that someone overheard Morris making the statement, according to the D.A.

Ryzman issued only a brief statement about the complaint and subsequent action in connection with charging Morris with deliberately setting the blaze.

Hardin requested the case to be dismissed so that Morris could be placed in a mental institution, the D.A. said.

The motion to dismiss was made in the Pampa Justice of the Peace Court of Margie Prestidge. The motion asks the charge of arson to be dismissed and says: "The District Attorney requests dismissal of the above case in order that the defendant can be placed in a mental health facility."

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy signed the order to temporarily place Morris in the Vernon mental hospital this morning, following statements from two local doctors that Morris is mentally incompetent, Hardin said.

The order amounts to "protective custody" at the request of the police department, according to the D.A. The confinement in the hospital is a "temporary commitment for observation and or treatment," Hardin said.

A hearing will be conducted in Gray County Court next Wednesday at 2 p.m. to determine whether or not Morris should be committed to the institution.

If the suspect is committed, he can be released from the Vernon hospital after 90 days, or the commitment can continue at the request of the mental hospital's administration, officials said.

Hardin said he declined to prosecute Morris on the charge because he said the suspect "is nuts."

"What's the point. The man's nuts. There's no place to keep him. The sheriff doesn't want him over there in his jail. He doesn't have the mentality to talk to you about it," Hardin said of the elderly suspect.

Two residents, John McKinney Bentley, 75, and Bertha McCreary, 89, died as a result of smoke inhalation during the fire.

Ma Bell cracks down on fraud calls

HOUSTON (AP) — Thirty people, many of them college students, were arrested while allegedly making fraudulent credit card telephone calls to Nigeria and Iran, authorities say.

The callers, arrested late Thursday and early today, officers said, will be charged with credit card abuse, a third-degree felony with a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and $5,000 fine, authorities said.

Ken Brasel, a spokesman for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. here, said the crackdown was necessary because the fraudulent calls were costing the company too much money.

"There are more fraudulent calls made from Houston to these two countries than there are legitimate calls (to them)," he said.

Brasel estimated about 9,000 legitimate credit card calls and about 9,400 fraudulent calls were made from Houston to Nigeria each year. He said there were about 8,000 such calls to Iran each year, compared with 8,400 illegally charged calls.

The phone company lost $180,000 in fraudulent calls to Nigeria last year, he said. In the last two months, it has lost $10,000 in illegal calls to Iran, he said.

Most of the fraudulent calls were made from phone booths, Brasel said.

The crackdown was designed so that officers from the Houston Police Department, Harris County district attorney's office or the Texas Department of Public Safety could be dispatched before the callers hung up.

Assistant District Attorney Don Stricklin, chief of special crimes, said the phone company was "red-tagging" calls to Nigeria and Iran, quickly checking the validity of the credit cards.

Card numbers that were used either did not exist or apparently were used without permission from the actual owner, Stricklin said.

Officers were waiting in targeted areas and could easily be dispatched before the call were completed, he said.

"Within a minute, we've got a car rolling. We can get it that fast," Stricklin said.

Brasel said authorities previously had difficulty tracing the calls because Nigerian and Iranian officials have refused to help prosecute.

His love led to death and destruction for others at home

Editor's note: This story was compiled from official and anonymous sources close to the investigation of Sunday's fire at the Pampa Nursing Center. The nursing home employee who provided much of the information as the basis of this story correctly identified the arson suspect to The Pampa News three full days before arson was officially confirmed and before a suspect was named by officials. Since they are in no way implicated in the crime, the names of the female nursing home patient and her executor and brother are not used.

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

His desire for a marriage with a crippled and mentally incompetent invalid brought death and destruction to an institution filled with people too old or sick to care for themselves.

He is a 74-year-old diabetic and minus one foot. She is 52 and nearly crippled from the waist down, her mind and body affected by a brain cell-killing coma following a car accident, her bodily functions passed through a permanent catheter.

According to a nursing home employee who asked not to be identified, and the suspect's later signed confession, they were in love and wanted to get married. They wanted to stay together in the same room at the nursing home, but her executor refused to approve the union, the source said.

Her brother and executor says they were just good friends and never planned to become man and wife.

The employee said they watched jealously, all the while holding hands, as just three hours before the fatal fire, another elderly couple at the nursing home exchanged vows and received official approval to share the same two-bed cubicle in the 100-bed facility.

Her brother says they laughed at the other couple's ceremony and considered it foolish.

The source said they were mad at the world, and said by some kind of twisted logic, he believed that by destroying her room in flames, they could share a relationship in his room.

The brother said she wanted out of her room and into the suspect's wing, because "the service was better."

"He told her the service was better and (that) a room was available in his wing," the brother and executor said.

For whatever reason, for love, or for service in the sturdiest world at the Pampa Nursing Center, 74-year-old patient, Robert Morris, set her room on fire, according to Pampa police and state arson investigators.

Two people died and nine others were injured when fire and smoke swept through the nursing home during the dinner hour Sunday.

The suspect's background is sketchy.

Nursing home administrator Melba Marcum declined to release any information about Morris. She said since Morris was involved in a criminal investigation, all information about the suspect must be released through police.

Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said Morris has no family — his friends at the nursing home were his family — but now two are dead and others are in the hospital.

"He has a long-lost niece nobody has heard from in about six years," Ryzman said about Morris's only living kin.

Though Morris was whisked away to a mental institution without being formally charged in connection with the fire and deaths at the nursing home, the employee at the home who knows him said, "There's nothing wrong with his mind."

Acting on information from the source, Morris on Tuesday granted an exclusive, though short, interview with this reporter.

The suspect was one of 45 patients who were relocated across the street to the Coronado Nursing Center after the fire.

When approached, Morris was sitting by himself in a chair along the wall in the lobby of the Coronado home.

An elder duo on guitar and harmonica was entertaining the crowded room full of nursing home patients.

Morris is obviously hard-of-hearing, and over the noise of the live music, questions to the suspect had to be repeated two or three times.

The suspect was simply asked about his experience during the fire at the nursing home Sunday, and he appeared to fully understand what he was asked.

He responded with precise times, correlated with the events of the fire and other residents he said he was with during the fire, including the woman identified as his want-to-bride.

"We are real close," he said of the female patient, in whose room Morris is accused of starting the fatal fire.

Before any other questions were asked, a woman who identified herself as an employee of the Pampa Nursing Center whisked the suspect away in a wheelchair.

"Come on, Mr. Morris, get in. It's time for your medication," she said, ending the interview and wheeling the suspect away.

The female patient is the mother of five grown children, one son and four daughters.

Since the fire, she has been moved to an area nursing home where one of her daughters is employed.

The woman was employed as a nurse, once working for a Pampa doctor, before the car crash which damaged her brain and body.

She was making a 40-mile northwest drive from her job in Austin to her home in Burnet on a rain-slickened highway back in 1973. A car pulled out in front of her vehicle, she hit the brakes, went into a skid, and crashed.

The injuries from the crash left her in a coma for several months in a Breckenridge hospital. She slowly emerged from the coma, but the accident left her brain damaged and her arms and legs partially paralyzed.

She slowly began to recognize the people she knew before the accident, but "it's the ones after the accident she has trouble with (now)," her brother said.

The woman lived with her children, "until they decided it was too much for them," her brother said.

Since then, the woman has been moved from one nursing home across the state to another, each time seeking better care or physical therapy, according to her brother.

The nursing home employee said the woman has trouble getting along with the other patients.

"She goes into these rages," the source said.

According to the employee, the woman identified as the suspect's friend previously injured another female patient at the Pampa Nursing Center by running over her with a wheelchair.

The employee said the woman has favorite bed sheets, and "if you try to take them away from her, she goes into a rage and tries to run over you."

She had trouble getting along with everyone at the home except the man accused of starting the fire in her room, according to the employee.

It is doubtful the couple who spent most of their time together at the Pampa Nursing Center will ever see each other again.

The suspected arsonist has been transported for an indefinite stay in the mental institution in Vernon, and his female friend now lives hundreds of miles away in the area nursing home.

"They were just like two kids," the nursing home employee said.

Going back home

Patients at the Pampa Nursing Home were helped back across the street Thursday when a careful check showed the burned home was again ready for occupancy. The facility's 100 residents were housed temporarily in the Coronado Nursing Center directly across the street from the ill-fated facility, where an arsonist's fire took two lives and hospitalized nine others. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

fire report

No fires were reported during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

minor accidents

THURSDAY, October 14
 1:45 p.m. — A 1978 Buick, driven by George Marshall Clark, 1054 N. Wells, collided with a 1974 Yamaha motorcycle, driven by a juvenile, at the intersection of Sumner Street and Coronado Drive. Clark was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

Arson...

Nine others, six residents and three nursing home employees, were injured in the fire which erupted shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday.

Seven of those injured remain hospitalized today. All but one are improving, according to a spokesman for Coronado Community Hospital. Walter Johnson said the condition of resident M. tie Atherton, 87, has declined today, and she is listed as serious.

Despite the two deaths caused by the fire, Hardin said the original complaint against Morris was not capital murder, "because there was no intent to kill."

Capital murder is a murder committed during the course of another felony, and is punishable by death or life in prison. "Arson was the proper charge," the district attorney said.

Hardin said Morris will be "charged and tried" at a later date, "if he regains his competency."

Last Monday, the day after the fire, City Fire Marshal L.V. Bruce and Pampa Fire Chief Paul Jones, ruled out arson as a cause for the fire, and they said the point of origin and source of the blaze was a faulty television set in a private room in the far northwest corner of the nursing home.

Bruce said today he will stand by his ruling that arson was not involved in the fire, despite the findings of the state investigators.

"I'm still stickin' with my same opinion (that) it's not arson. They have their own opinion. Of course, it could be, but I still feel the same way," the city fire marshal said.

The fire chief said he was pleased that arson was discovered by the state investigators "in time."

"When you have overrun like that, it's pretty tough to determine the cause of a fire," Jones said.

Though local fire officials completed their investigation of the fire, Pampa police asked arson investigators from the state fire marshal's office to determine the cause of the fire.

Wolf Brand Chili is recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas company has voluntarily recalled nearly 2,500 cases of canned chili that may contain food poisoning organisms, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Officials said the 15-ounce cans are labeled Wolf Brand Chili Without Beans and were produced by Wolf Brand Products, Corsicana, Texas.

Merlin A. Nelson of the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service said two lots of the suspected chili were produced on Aug. 2 and distributed in Texas and Louisiana.

No illnesses have been reported, he said.

The cans can be identified by the code numbers PC2H2 and AC2H2, and the official establishment number, 1067, which are embossed on their lids. No other codes or products made by the company are involved in the recall.

police report

Officers of the Pampa Police Department responded to 34 calls during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Benny Dean Wyant, 629 N. Wells, reported theft from a motor vehicle. Estimated loss $239.

James Martin Farrell, 1601 N. Somerville, No. 1203, reported a theft.

Chris Triplet, 315 E. Francis, reported simple assault.

Elaine Lively, 1212 Hamilton, reported a burglary.

Lubbock investigators Clifford A. Rowell and Ricky Womack arrived in Pampa to sift through the rubble Tuesday afternoon at the request of police detective Ken Neal.

The arson probes completed their investigation and departed Thursday, but Rowell said any information about the results of his investigation must be released through his supervisor in Austin.

A.G. Loney, arson section manager for the state fire marshal's office in Austin, said today he has not seen his investigators' report.

The results of the state investigators' fire probe confirming arson were released by Ryzman today.

Sixty nine elderly patients, ranging in age from 52 to 94 were living in the facility when fire erupted shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday.

Flames from the fire spread from a private room into the hallway of the north wing in the U-shaped, 100-bed nursing home. Heavy smoke spread throughout the entire wing, while fire doors prevented most of the smoke from engulfing the remainder of the facility.

The flames were extinguished about five minutes after firefighters' arrival, but twelve of the home's elderly residents, most who cannot walk unassisted, were trapped inside their smoke-filled rooms in the north wing. Firemen, police, employees and citizens smashed out the windows of the trapped victim's rooms and pulled them to safety.

After the fire, 45 of the homeless residents were relocated across the street to another nursing home, the Coronado Nursing Center. Others were hospitalized or taken home to stay with their families.

The company which owns and operates the damaged nursing facility, mammoth nursing home operators, National Living Centers, which is based in Houston, moved patients back into the undamaged portions of the nursing home Thursday afternoon.

Consumers who have bought the canned chili should return it to the store where purchased.
 "Under no circumstances should the product be opened or eaten, even if it looks and smells normal," Nelson said.

The problem was brought to the agency's attention after a distributor in Garland, Texas, reported swollen cans. Tests at USDA laboratories "confirmed the presence of clostridia-type organisms which could be of potential public health significance," the announcement said.

Clostridia-type organisms includes those which can produce botulism, a deadly form of food poisoning. However, a spokeswoman, Karen Stuck, said the kind of organisms found in the chili were not the type which result in botulism.

Reagan to let Russia buy wheat

By JIM DRINKARD

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, under heavy pressure from Republican congressmen, is letting the Soviets buy up to 23 million tons of grain this fiscal year, the White House announced today.

Reagan was set to announce the decision in a radio address to the farm belt, but undisclosed technical difficulties interrupted his speech from the Oval Office about 30 seconds into the address.

His grain sale plans were disclosed in a "fact sheet" distributed moments before the speech.

Reagan began the address by saying he wanted to talk about "increasing American farm exports, restoring our reputation as reliable suppliers" and regaining the nation's share of the world markets.

Reagan had been scheduled to speak at 9:15 a.m. EDT on a radio hookup to farm states. But the technical difficulties forced him to delay the broadcast for about 15 minutes. The 23 million tons would be 15 million tons above the current maximum level the Soviets could import without additional U.S. approval.

But an administration official, requesting anonymity, said there was no certainty the Soviets would seek the higher amount, which would mean that the United States was supplying more than 55 percent of the Soviet imports.

"Things haven't been very good down on the farm," the president told his radio audience. "You are carrying tremendous burdens, sometimes impossible burdens."

He called the grain embargo imposed by the Carter administration in January 1979, "mistaken," and said it eroded confidence in the United States as a supplier.

"We will honor our word," he said, announcing that Agriculture Department officials were being authorized to make available the 23 million tons in U.S.-Soviet meetings to begin in two weeks.

"We can't guarantee the Soviets will make these purchases, but we know they're shopping," Reagan said.

The Soviet Union will have until the end of November to sign contracts for the larger purchase and then take delivery within 180 days, Reagan said.

How to love a mesquite tree

By CARRIE WHITE
 Texas Tech News

LUBBOCK — Mesquite has acquired undeserved bad ink over the years, according to a Texas Tech University landscape architect.

For the most part people, not mesquite itself, are responsible for the plant's proliferation in the Southwest, says Nancy Ewalt.

That proliferation doesn't have to be all bad, she said. Ewalt believes a landowner who negotiates the sale of two or three attractive mesquite trees per acre on 100 acres of land for use in landscaping could pay the $12 to $15 per acre cost of spraying to kill brush mesquite on the entire acreage.

"The mesquite brush is generally what people think about when you mention mesquite," Ewalt said. "But with tender loving care and some water, mesquite can grow into trees which are attractive and offer pleasant shade."

Ewalt said a nurseryman in El Paso has long advocated the use of mesquite in landscaping. Planting mesquite in his own backyard 25 years ago, that "brush" has grown into attractive, soft-leaved textured trees of 40 and 50 feet.

"In view of the fact that there is limited water available in the Southwest, mesquite is ideal as an ornamental," Ewalt said. "Mesquite survives drought. It's a plant which has a tap root to the water table and also lateral roots. It will not rely on that tap root, however, unless there is a severe drought."

Of the 44 mesquite species native to North America, two dominate the Southwest — honey mesquite and velvet mesquite.

"For the most part, the mesquite population was pretty constant until the early 1900s," Ewalt said. "After 1900, the cattle industry boomed and the range was overgrazed."

With grasses disappearing from the rangeland, cattle turned to mesquite for food. Mesquite only has a 25 - 35 percent germination rate under natural conditions. But, by passing through the livestock's digestive tract, that germination rate can increase 80 - 85 percent.

"Cattle being moved to various grazing sites resulted in further spreading of mesquite," she said. "The range also used to periodically burn naturally. But, for the most part, man has stopped that phenomenon. I would have to say that the spread of mesquite was due primarily to poor range management."

Mesquite, Ewalt said, has a kindred spirit with man. Its survival instincts are seen in its reaction to extreme drought.

"In a very wet year, mesquite will not flower very much and does not produce many beans," Ewalt said. "When mesquite is under a lot of stress, it produces an abundance of flowers and beans. It's as if the plant realizes the danger it is in and tries to perpetuate itself."

The mass of cream colored blooms mesquite bears each spring is another of the characteristics which make it desirable as an ornamental.

"Unlike many plants which are not indigenous to the Southwest, mesquite is not fooled by the false springs we get," Ewalt said.

In fact, the researcher said a person can tell from the mesquite when the seasons have changed. In the spring, mesquite will not leaf until all bad weather is past.

"If people in the Southwest are going to continue landscaping their homes and business, they are going to have to look more closely at using the native plants," Ewalt said. "People are going to be forced to do this with the water situation as it is. If they don't, we will have no landscaping."

Ewalt will present her paper "Ornamental Landscaping as a Market for Mesquite Trees" at the Mesquite Utilization Symposium at Texas Tech University Oct. 28 - 29.

Twenty-two papers on uses for mesquite will be presented by researchers from across the country.

More newspapers need recycling

The need for additional quantities of old newspapers for recycling in the southwestern and western United States is creating new income opportunities for individuals and groups involved in paper recycling in the region, the American Paper Institute (API) said.

This increased need for clean old newspapers within a nine-state region has been spurred by the addition of a second newsprint machine recycling old newspapers at the Snowflake, Arizona, paper mill of Southwest Forest Industries.

"The mill's need for old newspapers has increased to 650 tons a day — or 230,000 tons per year," J. Rodney Edwards, vice-president-Paperboard Group, of API, the paper industry national trade association, said.

This new need is sparking local newspaper recycling demand in a region encompassing Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Nevada, Utah, California, Oklahoma and Kansas.

"To help increase the recovery of old newspaper, a 'Save A Bundle' recycling awareness campaign is being launched in the area. It's hoped that the campaign will generate that important extra tonnage of newspapers needed for recycling," Mr. Edwards said.

Those who have been recycling are asked to continue this important activity, and those who have not been recycling are urged to begin. The newspaper collection system includes waste paper dealers, private trash haulers, community groups and individuals who make extra income by collecting old newspapers.

Many people are surprised, once they begin recycling, by how rapidly they can collect large quantities of old newspapers, according to Dave Romberg, secondary fiber coordinator for Southwest's Snowflake mill. "A typical family's weekly newspaper subscription, including Sunday, can generate about 10 pounds of newspaper. A stack of newspapers three feet high totals about 100 pounds. Many people have found they can collect a ton of newspapers in their neighborhood in just a few hours."

Paper recycling provides a series of important benefits, according to API. "In addition to being a good source of income for individuals, groups and towns, recycling is also good for the economy, since it is a valuable raw material that keeps paper mills operating at high levels and provides employment at mills and waste paper plants. Paper recycling also benefits the environment because paper that's collected for recycling reduces the volume of solid waste that municipalities must collect and dispose of in landfills," Mr. Edwards said.

Individuals and groups interested in collecting old newspapers should contact waste paper dealers listed in the yellow pages of the local telephone directory. Also, a step-by-step guide to establishing a recycling program is available by writing the American Paper Institute, Paper Recycling Committee, Dept. "Save A Bundle," 201 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10016.

PUC says White's proposal means bigger bills

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Public Utility Commission lawyer says gubernatorial candidate Mark White's proposals for cutting utility rates could lead to consumers being "nailed" with bigger bills in the long run.

White on Thursday called for an end to fuel adjustment charges. The Democratic nominee also wants to ban utility companies from charging customers for construction work underway.

The PUC allows utilities to pass fuel costs on to customers in the form of a monthly fuel adjustment charge, which reflects current costs of fuel needed to produce electricity.

White complained the incentive for electric companies to shop for the cheapest fuel is gone.

"They no longer have to negotiate for fuel. They don't care what the price is, it's 100 percent pass-through," he said.

But Allen King, PUC general counsel, said utility companies are allowed by law to recover their operating costs. If White gets his way and the fuel adjustment charge is abolished, the companies will find another way to recover the fuel cost, he said.

"You can call it a spotted-tail zebra, but it's still going to end up in the rates," said King. "Anyone who implies otherwise is misleading people."

At a Capitol news conference, White said the fuel adjustment charge has helped push Texas electric rates to "some of the most outrageous" in the nation.

A PUC consumer information sheet on fuel adjustment charges says they are "the most practical means of dealing with these fluctuating fuel costs."

White has made the fuel adjustment charge a key issue in his campaign. At a Monday debate, he criticized Republican Gov. Bill Clements for not doing something to get rid of the fuel adjustment charges. White also is talking about the charges in a television ad.

Clements on Monday defended the fuel adjustment charge as a cost of business that should be passed to consumers. The cost is passed along on "an absolutely no-profit basis," the governor.

"(White) plays on the imagination of the Texas public trying to play on a phony point," Clements said.

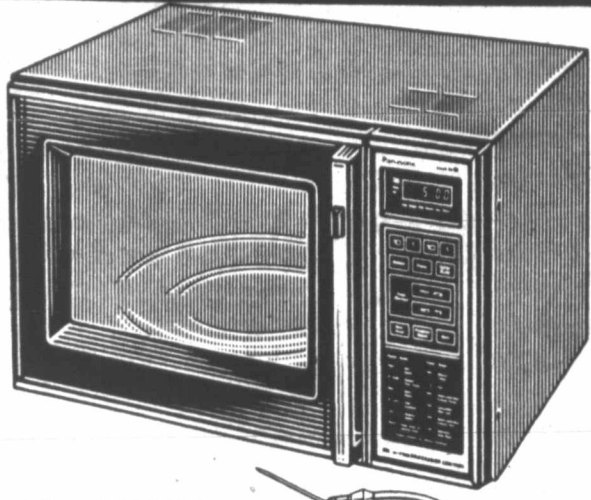

"They (utility companies) have a constitutional and legal right to recover all their reasonable expenses," King said, adding that companies' monthly fuel adjustment charges reviewed by the commission.

King said White's proposal to ban charging consumers utility company construction work in progress — or CWIP — would raise rates in the long run.

"(The companies) will eventually recover it. They eventually recover more than without CWIP," he said. "Let after Mark White and Bill Clements and Allen King are gone, the rate payers out there are going to get nailed."

The PUC allows a portion of CWIP — in some cases all — part of the base used to figure rates.

Foes say Bentsen's family cheated on soil bank land

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Backers of Republican senate candidate Jim Collins have charged that U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr. and some of his family illegally "cashed in" on lands in Hidalgo and Starr counties through the Soil Bank Conservation Reserve Program.

Collins, a U.S. representative, faces Bentsen in the November general election.

Richard Harvey of Tyler, chairman of the Texas Conservative Union, said his research showed Bentsen, his father, and uncle, the late Elmer Bentsen, received almost $1 million from soil bank payments between 1957 and 1966 on land allegedly sold to individuals directly under their influence.

The land later returned to the ownership of the Bentsens, Harvey said Thursday during a Capitol news conference.

"This is an old charge, brought up many times over many years and thoroughly discredited, that will prove damaging to no one but James M. Collins," said John Mobley of Austin, chairman of the Business for Bentsen campaign organization.

Harvey said the Texas Conservative Union, which he said has about 1,000 members, has made no endorsement but that he personally is supporting Collins.

He said that in 1963 and 1964 — during the administration of "Bentsen's political ally, Lyndon Johnson" — a quiet compromise was made allowing Bentsen to keep about $550,000 received between 1957 and 1960 and partial payments of about $80,000 for 1961.

Quake shakes Panhandle

DALHART, Texas (AP) — A minor earthquake that rattled windows and dishes in the northwest corner of the Panhandle was only the second on record for the region, a geophysicist said.

The tremor, centered about 10 miles south of Dalhart, occurred at 7:53 a.m. CDT Thursday. The earthquake's magnitude registered 3.9 on the Richter scale, authorities said.

Waverly Person, a geophysicist at the Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the last earthquake to hit the area — and the only other one on record — took place on March 11, 1948.

"We didn't have any damage reports," said Dalhart Police Chief C.L. Sanborn. He said his dispatcher told him, "It felt just like a sonic boom. Rumbled a little bit, felt like a big train was coming through and that was the extent of it."

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area, 4 moderate damage, 5 considerable damage, 6 severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 8.3 on the Richter scale.

Johnny is reading better

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The reading and math scores of Texas students were up this year over the past two years, and minority children made greater inroads in closing the gap between their results and those of white children, an education official says.

Overall, however, students scored "lower than desired" in parts of the latest statewide public school tests that dealt with abstract matter, according to Tom Anderson, deputy commissioner for planning of the Texas Education Agency.

"For instance, fifth-graders did really well on using an index and using maps and charts," he said, "but scored lower on predicting outcomes, distinguishing fact from non-fact, drawing conclusions and identifying the main idea of a written passage."

Anderson presented the results of the tests Thursday to a governor's task force on public education. The tests were given to grades three, five and nine.

"We still have a gap (between whites and minorities), but the gap is closing," Anderson said.

He said one reason the minority children are improving at a faster rate could be simply that teachers are concentrating more on them.

"When you start out lower, you can increase faster when you concentrate on a particular thing," he said. "School districts are focusing in on these basic skills to a greater degree. White students in the lower performance level are getting concentrated on too, but they don't represent as big a percentage."

Copies of the test results were not made public, because they have not yet been printed and mailed to the governor and the Legislature, but Anderson told the task force that overall, they were encouraging.

Liberace employee sues for palimony

Scott Thorsen, 23

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Liberace says the chauffeur-bodyguard seeking $113 million from him in a "palimony" suit is a "disgruntled former employee" trying to "assassinate my character."

Scott Thorsen, 23, said in his suit filed Thursday that he had been the entertainer's live-in lover since 1976. The affair ended in April when Liberace's aides assaulted him and threw him out of the penthouse he thought Liberace had given him, the suit said.

The suit includes a detailed chronology of an alleged love affair which began in Las Vegas and ended in Los Angeles after Liberace began "dating other gentlemen."

The lawsuit said Liberace promised him lifetime support, including a salary of $7,000 a month and between $20,000 and $30,000 a year to tend the entertainer's animals. The different salaries were not explained.

Liberace, 63, who was performing in Westbury, N.Y., when he heard of the suit, later said, "He is a disgruntled former employee who was fired in early 1982 because of excessive use of alcohol, drugs and carrying of firearms, among other reasons. This is an outrageous, ambitious attempt to assassinate my character."

Suharto tours Texas space center

Indonesian group buys $2,000 of souvenirs in 20 minutes

Suharto, his wife, and a party of aides, security agents and interpreters conducted a 22-hour, whirlwind tour of Houston that concluded Thursday with a 20-minute stop at the Johnson Space Center souvenir shop.

A clerk, who asked not to be named, said the Indonesian group took only a few minutes to spend more than $2,000 on T-shirts, cloth patches, plastic spacecraft models, souvenir plates, ballpoint pens, postcards, photo slides and viewers.

"We've never had such a run of business," the clerk said. Suharto and his party arrived in Houston Wednesday evening, greeted at the airport by Mayor Kathy Whitmire. Early Thursday morning, the Indonesian party toured the cardiac treatment center of Methodist Hospital with famed heart surgeon Michael DeBakey as an escort.

DeBakey's cardiac treatment team is helping to train a group of Indonesian doctors and nurses who will establish a heart treatment center in Indonesia next year. Suharto and his party motored to the the Johnson Space Center and were greeted there by astronauts Robert Crippen and Sally Ride. The astronauts are scheduled to fly a space shuttle mission next year that will deploy in orbit an Indonesian communications satellite.

Suharto and his wife followed the astronauts through a small hatch into a full-scale model of the space shuttle cockpit. Mrs. Suharto removed her shoes and climbed an interior ladder in her bare feet. The couple was forced to crawl on hands and knees to exit the spacecraft.

The group later visited the Mission Control Center for a briefing by Johnson Space Center director Gerald Griffin. He presented Suharto with an Indonesian flag which was carried aboard the shuttle during its first flight in 1981.

As American security agents held back the usual crowd of tourists, the Indonesians scurried around the souvenir shop, grabbing items from counters and shelves. Several loaded their arms with purchases within minutes and the cashier quickly rang up individual sales of $200 and more.

A smiling Suharto watched for a few minutes and then strolled over to a counter and picked up a handful of multi-colored $2 pens. He handed them to a clerk and told an aide he was buying them for his grandchildren.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Sure, we approve of letter-writing

The letter from the Office of Communications, U.S. Postal Service, Western Regional Office, expressed a modest enough hope: "We feel you will share the concern of the Postal Service that grade-school students should know how to prepare correspondence and address envelopes.

Actually, that concern hadn't yet topped the Middle East or the size of the Federal deficit on our list, and we spent a moment wondering how an institution rather than a person could have a concern to share. But no matter. It's probably important enough that second-grade teachers should spend a few minutes on the subject, perhaps even repeating the lesson a couple of times until everybody got it.

The Postal Service, however, isn't thinking small about this. In cooperation with the National Council of Teachers of English, it has prepared a 64-page booklet, complete with photos of people raptly reading and carefully writing letters, endorsements of letter-writing from celebrities, comments on letter etiquette from Miss Manners, a bibliography of collected letters of various luminaries, and other neat stuff.

There's also the obligatory overview of the history of the Postal Service. Whoever prepared the volume overlooked that glorious moment in the 1840s when the Post Office persuaded Congress to make it a crime for anybody else to deliver First Class Mail, and neglected to note that it was private mail companies that pioneered low-cost postage. They did note the wonderful day in 1950 when residential delivery was cut from twice a day to once a day, but, undoubtedly through an oversight, forgot to note that before competitors were declared criminals, some of them provided delivery four times a day. That's all right. We wouldn't want to confuse grade school students with too many facts, now would we?

It would probably also be a little mean-spirited to wonder how much it cost us to have this marvelous tome produced and printed. So we won't.

All this is by way of noting that we recently celebrated National Card and Letter Writing Week. We're all for writing letters, of course. Without them our pages might be considerably less lively. We just wish there were non-criminal alternatives for having them delivered.

Focus in Germany turns center-right

It is a measure of the volatility of political life among the four major Western nations that all of them have changed governments and leaders since 1979. In that year, Jimmy Carter, James Callaghan, Valery Giscard d'Estaing, and Helmut Schmidt gathered at Guadeloupe to discuss foreign policy. Schmidt held on as his colleagues fell one by one. And now there are none.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's 13-year-old ruling coalition has collapsed, the victim of political shifts, scandal, the worldwide recession, and its own long tenure. German voters had simply become weary of Schmidt's liberal Social Democrats. Their increasing disenchantment finally brought down the government in Bonn's parliamentary complexity that is as little understood by Americans as is our political system by Europeans and others.

In order to form a parliamentary majority following the 1980 elections, Schmidt brought in the Free Democrats, the smallest of the three major political parties in West Germany. This fragile coalition recently began to fall apart when the Free Democrats demanded drastic spending cuts, including slashes in unemployment benefits, that the Social Democrats could not accept.

Attention now focuses on Helmut Kohl, chairman of the opposition Christian Democrats (CDU), who replaces Schmidt as West German chancellor. An uncertain factor is the growing strength of the "Greens," a loosely knit coalition of left-wing environmentalists and "peace" groups. Their gains in recent elections have raised the possibility that they may replace that Free Democrats and assume West Germany's traditional third-party role.

Just as the takeover of the West German government by Willy Brandt and the Social Democrats after 20 years of rule by the pre-war CDU was not nearly as American as many Americans feared at the time, so the return of the CDU may not usher in as rosy an era as some now predict. But there is reason to believe the Christian Democrats, in the tradition of their great founder Konrad Adenauer, will work much more closely with the United States than did the Social Democrats.

By PAUL HARVEY

"The poor," the Bible says, "we will always have with us." What is "poor" today might have been rich in Bible times, but poorness has been brought into sharper focus by a worldwide recession.

Some of us are likely to pontificate about the "work ethic" and point derisively to "help wanted" signs and ads ... forgetting that for three generations of Americans "living off government" has become an accepted "way of life," indeed the only way of life they know.

Under President Johnson's Great Society programs money for the poor skyrocketed from 188 billion dollars in 1960 to 430 billion dollars.

Yet, we have more poor, partly because any family with earnings of less than $4,000 a year was considered "poor" in 1960 and today the government accepted "poverty line" is $9,287.

Federal outlays for food stamps, Medicaid, welfare and housing subsidies have escalated from $3.3 billion in 1965 to $53.1 billion this year.

Princeton University economist Alan Binder says, "The war (on poverty) has dragged on longer than most people had expected and has cost far more than had been imagined. Now there is a feeling that we have sacrificed too much economic efficiency at the altar of fighting poverty."

Is war on poverty unwinnable? No nation ever has won it. Rome and Spain and Greece and China bankrupted themselves trying.

Close California race

By ROBERT WALTERS
SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — Although this city has lost its famed calbe cars for two years of repairs, it has a temporary replacement that could be almost as entertaining — a political race between two exceptionally colorful politicians.

The incumbent in the race for the House seat in California's 5th congressional district is Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., one of the most intense, productive and politically savvy members of Congress.

A member of the House since 1964, Burton is like the little girl with the curl on her forehead: When he is good he is very, very good — but when he is bad he is horrid.

"He is probably more responsible than any other single person for the changes that have made the House an open, responsive place today," says the widely respected Almanac of American Politics in profiling Burton.

Even his critics view with awe what the Almanac describes as Burton's "uncompromising advocacy of positions he considers to be in the interest of the poor and working people."

But one of the most oft-repeated characterizations of the congressman, widely ascribed to a fellow liberal democrat, is devastating: "He gives arrogance a bad name."

Politics in America, a reference book published by congressional Quarterly, accurately describes Burton as "brilliant, passionate, obsessive and given to abusing even his friends when they do not go along with him."

Burton's Republican challenger, State Sen. Milton Marks, claims that a public opinion poll conducted on his behalf earlier this year showed that 43 percent of those surveyed described the congressman as "arrogant" or abrasive.

Marks, who has been a member of the state legislature ever since he defeated Burton's brother in a 1967 race, also inspires strong emotional reactions — both positive and negative.

He provides constituent service with a vengeance, allowing few civic group achievements or 50th wedding anniversaries in this city to pass without a resolution of commendation from the state senate.

Marks has become a local legend among those who believe that he has attended every wedding, funeral and bar mitzvah held in the city during the past two decades. His record for greeting constituents reportedly was set one busy evening in which he visited no fewer than 14 different public events.

"He's practically a member of the family to half the people of San Francisco," says one local political observer.

But Marks also has his detractors. When the authoritative California Journal last year rated the effectiveness of the 40 members of the state senate, he was dismissed as a relatively unimpressive politician who "wears down his opponents with his whines and complaints."

Although Burton has been repeatedly re-elected to Congress by massive margins (his share of the vote during the past decade has ranged from 66 to 82 percent) he is in a race for his political life this year — and therein lies an ironic tale.

Like other states, California was required to construct new congressional districts on the basis of the 1980 census results — and Burton deftly maneuvered himself into position to control that procedure.

He devised a redistricting plan that infuriated not only Republicans, who found themselves gerrymandered out of their expected opportunity to control several new congressional districts, but also some Democrats and independents, who were offended by the crudeness of the partisan scheme.

At the same time, however, Burton shifted some of the city's most reliably Democratic neighborhoods from his own district to an adjacent district represented by his brother, John, who was re-elected to a fourth term in the House in 1980 with only 51 percent of the votes cast in the close contest.

Not long after the redistricting plan was locked into place, John Burton announced that he would not seek re-election — leaving his brother stranded in a marginal district and under attack by White House political operatives who believe they have a rare opportunity to defeat an outspoken liberal.

A radical notion

He added: "If a big corporation misinvested or disinvested, its shareholders, not the public, would bear the costs."

The directors of the system would be politically appointed or elected. In other words, bureaucrats and office-holders would decide "whose investments were productive job-creating and socially responsible." Prof. Zeitlin would have us believe that politicians and consumer activists would have the skill to determine which are the best investments.

Prof. Zeitlin apparently doesn't realize that the U.S. Constitution bars any design aimed to limit lawful commerce. General Motors is under no obligation to get approval from any political board in order to invest in California or any other state.

This proposal would scrap a key feature of American democracy — the right to allocate capital as one pleases.

The Zeitlin plan is a limited form of nationalization. At the least, it is a design for requiring private business to pay tribute to the state. Not only would the system misallocate private resources, but it would cut across our most basic freedoms in this country.

Is war poverty unwinnable?

retraced the poverty cycle backward, then forward through three generations of North Carolina family.

Juanita was pregnant at 16. At 22 had five children. At 28 she began to collect welfare.

Juanita hoped her three daughters would do better. They did not.

Two gave birth before they were 18. The third, now 16, is pregnant. All are unmarried. All are on welfare.

And dropping out of school when they had children has robbed each of her best chance of ever escaping unemployment.

And the most recent census shows the number of unwed teen-age mothers has increased 44 percent in the past 10 years.

Ford Foundation researcher Susan Berresford says, "The likelihood of a welfare family begetting a welfare family is very strong."

Now, during industrial layoffs, we have another group of "new poor." These are traditional wage earners who cannot pay their bills.

For them to accept some of the low-pay jobs advertised in newspapers may cost them their tax-free unemployment pay. But in extending their coverage for additional weeks we create a situation wherein at least some "new poor" may get hooked on the habit.

Can private charities take up the slack — provide rescue for the poor wrying to United Way increased 10.3 percent last year. Business giving to charities increased 11 percent. Is that the way out?

Inflation drops to 3.1%

Food and fuel prices continue to fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fueled by sharply falling automobile costs, prices at the wholesale level fell in September at an annual rate of 1.7 percent, the government said today.

The monthly decline, the fourth this year, also was driven by lower food and energy costs, the Labor Department said in its report on the Producer Price Index for finished goods.

Prices for new cars tumbled 6.3 percent from August, and costs for light trucks were off 3.5 percent as dealers cut prices to make room for 1983 models, the report said.

Food prices, partially reflecting abundant crop harvests, fell 0.5 percent in September, the second sizable drop in the past three months. Gasoline prices dropped 0.9 percent in September after rising in each of the previous three months. The cost of home heating oil fell 1.6 percent after a smaller decline in August.

The new figures meant that for the first nine months of the year inflation at the wholesale level was running at an annual rate of 3.1 percent. If that rate held steady for the rest of the year, it would be the smallest increase since the 2.2 percent rise recorded for all of 1970.

Producer prices — one merchandising step before the prices paid by retail customers — had surged 7 percent in 1981 and 11.8 percent in 1980.

Economists have attributed the better results on inflation to the stifling recession and the worldwide oil glut as well as bumper crops.

In September alone, producer prices dipped a seasonally adjusted 0.1 percent, compared with 0.6 percent increases in July and August, the report said. They also fell by 0.2 percent in February and by 0.1 percent in March and May.

If prices fell for 12 straight months at September's 0.1 percent, the yearly decline would be 1.7 percent. The annual rate reported by the Labor Department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public.

The new report said that for the 12 months ending in September, producer prices rose 3.6 percent.

Refinery unit still scalding hot

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Intense heat has hampered the efforts of three safety teams to examine a 13-story refinery unit that spewed scalding powder, killing five workers and injuring eight, a spokesman for Texaco Inc. says.

Occupational Safety and Health Administration officials arrived at the refinery Thursday to join company officials and investigators of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, but their efforts have been stymied by heat, said Texaco spokesman Charles Rentz.

"There has not been quite a lot of progress into the investigation because of the condition of the facility," Rentz said.

Tons of powdered catalyst remained in ankle-deep drifts around a fluid catalytic cracking unit, where a pipeline ruptured Wednesday morning.

Rentz said the hot powder was slowly cooking late Thursday. Officials said the powder was at a temperature of 1,200 degrees when it escaped from the No. 1 fluid catalytic cracking unit.

Gerald Baty, OSHA regional director in Houston, said results of the agency's investigation would not be available for a "minimum of a week" to several weeks.

Baty said investigators were not able to survey the immediate area where the accident occurred because of "all the heat."

actory bombed

Bomb blast rips through Toronto factory

TORONTO (AP) — A bomb blast ripped the brick front off a suburban Toronto plant that makes guidance systems for the U.S. cruise missile, moments after police received an anonymous telephoned threat, authorities said today.

The bomb, hidden in a van, exploded in a fireball Thursday night injuring five to nine people, at least two seriously. The blast shattered windows and hurled debris hundreds of yards, witnesses said.

The two-story plant is owned by Litton Systems Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of Litton Industries Inc., of Beverly Hills, Calif.

Police said five people were hurt, but local hospitals reported nine people were admitted for treatment and two were seriously injured.

The explosion came minutes after police received an anonymous telephone warning, and less than a day after a judge ruled that Litton executives could not be forced to testify at a trial of local anti-war activists.

"I don't know the details about what was said on the phone, but shortly after our men arrived it exploded," a police spokesman said.

Police declined to say what the caller said, but Constable Richard Haines said the bomb was deliberately set.

Acting police Inspector Gordon Fenton said three policemen drove to the plant after the tip was received and found a van with a small box inside marked "Danger Explosives." Early reports said the vehicle was packed with dynamite.

As the men walked away to radio for assistance, the van blew up, Fenton said.

Moments before the blast, a security guard told workmen at the plant that there had been a bomb threat and told them to "get out of here fast."

"We started running toward the exit when suddenly there was a big bang and everything shattered," said technician Leo Bailey, 50.

Bailey said he and two fellow workmen were trapped inside the building by debris until firefighters rescued them.

"The truck was parked and when it exploded it just blew the front part of the building away," said firefighter Jim Williams of the the Borough of Etobicoke Fire Department.

Williams said 10 trucks and 40 firefighters rushed to the scene about 11:30 p.m. EDT, and quickly extinguished the blaze caused by the bombing.

Police said fragments of a box found at the scene indicated the bomb was made of dynamite. Initial reports said the truck was full of explosives.

"There was just a flash, a bright light in the sky, a tremendous boom and before I could react, pieces of debris were flying by me," said tow-truck driver Keith Sibbert, who was driving on Highway 27 nearby when the bomb exploded. He was not hurt, he said.

The Litton plant is building the sophisticated guidance system that enables the Tomahawk cruise missile to hug the ground and evade radar. The rocket can carry nuclear warheads.

The plant has been the scene of several anti-nuclear protests recently. Twenty-two demonstrators are on trial for trespassing on the company's property last year.

The bombing came less than a day after the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled that five Litton executives could not be forced to testify at that trial.

The court upheld a lower court decision to quash subpoenas for the Litton executives. The defense sought to call them to establish its claim that Litton is committing a crime against mankind by making the guidance systems and therefore the protesters had a right to try to shut down the plant.

More rioting erupts in Poland

By THOMAS W. NETTER

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Rioting exploded again in Nowa Huta after police tear-gassed mourners at a memorial service for a steelworker mortally wounded by police gunfire in a pro-Solidarity protest, informed sources said today.

The riots erupted as fugitive labor leaders urged Poles in Warsaw's biggest plants to strike in sympathy with others who risked police bullets and tear-gas to protest the banning of the Solidarity union.

There were no immediate details of the latest rioting in Nowa Huta, a steel-producing suburb of Krakow, 160 miles southwest of Warsaw.

Official sources said the disturbances continued until about 2 a.m. (8 p.m. EDT Thursday).

Mourners returned today to a memorial for the slain steel mill electrician, but there were no reports of violence as police blocked streets and clouds of tear gas hung in the air, the sources said.

Officials say the 20-year-old man was killed and nearly 100 people injured in the bloodiest rioting so far on Wednesday in Nowa Huta.

Bodgan Wlosik died Thursday, one day after he was shot by a plainclothes police officer, the official PAP news agency said. It said the officer fired two shots in self-defense after being "assailed and brutally knocked to the ground" during vicious street fighting at Nowa Huta, a model Communist city erected in the 1950s.

Workers pelted police with firebombs, rocks and steel bolts Wednesday and police used tear gas, water cannon and flares.

PAP said a 67 police officers and 27 civilians were injured in that clash and "few dozen police vehicles were damaged." It said 21 policemen were hospitalized, two of them in serious condition.

Salvadoran leftists claim control of even more land

By ARTHUR ALLEN

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist rebels today claimed control over a large chunk of Morazan province after vicious fighting, and said they were pushing into neighboring San Xiguel province in a renewed drive to seize power.

Scattered but heavy fighting between guerrillas and government soldiers also persisted in the northern and western parts of this Central American nation beset by three years of civil war, battle reports said Thursday.

Both sides admitted heavy casualties in what military experts in the U.S.-backed rightist government called the strongest and best coordinated operation in six months by the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, a coalition of six rebel groups.

"The FMLN controls northern Morazan province," the rebel coalition's clandestine Radio Venceremos said in a broadcast early today. It also said guerrilla legions were advancing into San Miguel province. Both provinces are in eastern El Salvador.

Military spokesmen refused to confirm or deny the report, and reporters could not immediately verify it. Telephone links with eastern El Salvador have been out since Wednesday, when guerrillas dynamited three microwave towers.

There were conflicting figures about casualties. Rebel radio claimed in an early morning broadcast that guerrillas killed or wounded 112 soldiers and took 95 prisoners this week.

It mentioned no guerrilla casualties but said they captured 186 automatic rifles, 11 mortars and machine guns, 230 hand grenades and 58,521 rounds of ammunition.

Military reports Wednesday placed the death toll at 33 soldiers and 34 guerrillas with more than 100 wounded, mostly rebels. No later figures were available Thursday.

About 500 soldiers, backed by artillery, U.S.-made warplanes and helicopters, were reported attacking rebel positions at Osicala, eight miles north of the Morazan capital, and along the road between Jocoaitique and Meanguera.

U.S.-made Huey choppers and 81mm mortars also pounded guerrilla deployments in the area, but it was not immediately known if Osicala, a key road-junction town to the Honduran border, had fallen to the rebels.

Radio Venceremos said guerrillas had moved along Morazan's main north-south highway to within eight miles of San Francisco Gotera.

Reagan's war on drugs welcomed

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan's national narcotics task force is an idea long overdue, law enforcement agents say, especially since a federal crackdown in southern Florida has encouraged drug traffickers to take their business elsewhere.

"It's really welcomed," said Lt. Joseph Newman, head of the Baltimore Police Department's narcotics task force. "It appears to me this is a little more than a finger in the dike solution. It's been needed for some time."

On Thursday, Reagan announced in Washington that federal officials would blanket the nation with 12 regional task forces. The $200 million effort would add up to 1,200 federal agents and investigators in Boston, New York, Baltimore, Atlanta, Houston, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego.

"Our commitment to this program is unshakable. We intend to do what is necessary to end the drug menace and cripple organized crime," Reagan said.

Across the country, news of the federal plan was received with open arms, especially in the South, where officials have been calling for help since March when Vice President George Bush was appointed head of a Cabinet-level task force to fight drug trafficking in southern Florida.

The Florida effort has pushed drug smuggling operations to other coastal states like Louisiana and Georgia, officials say.

"It's like squeezing a balloon," said Jimmy Davis, a Georgia state investigator. "You squeeze one area and it pops out in another."

Ray Vinsik, head of the DEA office in Atlanta, said recently that the Bush task force probably increased smuggling in Georgia. "It's put an awful lot of pressure on drug smugglers to try to find other ways to get drugs into the United States."

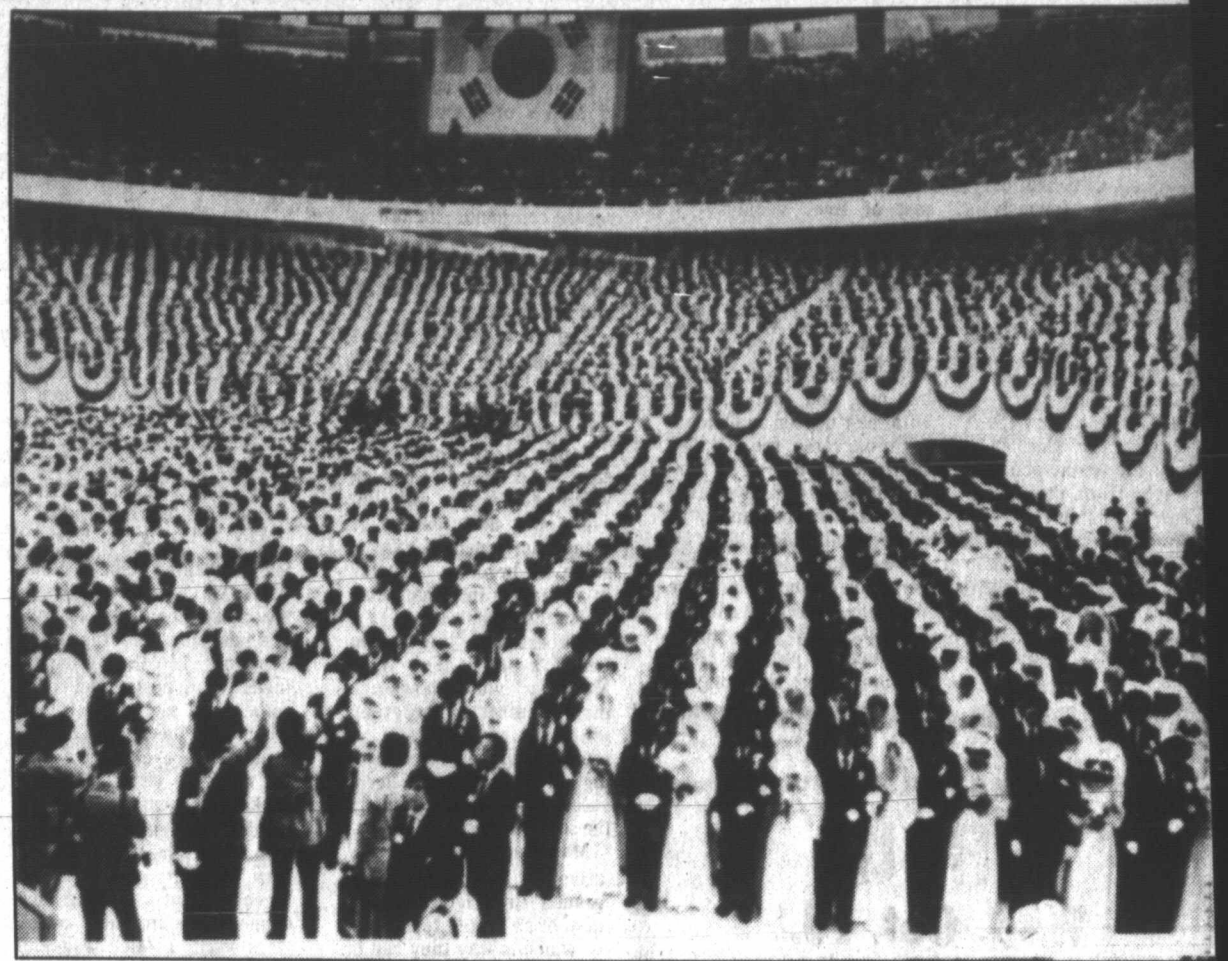

Jean Phillips of the Louisiana state police said, "We not only appreciate but we expect assistance from the federal government." Because drugs come from outside the country, she said, "This is not a state problem. This is an international problem."

The federal task force will "make a tremendous difference in our ability to investigate and prosecute" drug cases, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven Nelson in San Diego, considered one of the nation's chief narcotics smuggling points.

"San Diego always has had a tremendous problem with narcotics traffic," said Nelson. "We're the first port of the United States on the West Coast so, geographically speaking, drugs are going to touch this area in major quantities."

"We're elated. We'll finally have the manpower and equipment," said Rudolfo Ramirez, a federal Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman in Baltimore.

Marilyn's 'Red Diary' unearthed in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The contents of Marilyn Monroe's so-called "red diary," recently the object of intense publicity, will remain secret as far as actor Tom Jordan is concerned.

Jordan said Thursday he returned to Ohio from Los Angeles this week to dig up a jewelry box which he said contained the diary and other personal items belonging to the actress, who died Aug. 5, 1962. Her death was ruled a suicide.

The actor said, "I brought it back to Ohio in October 1962 and buried it at the top of Mount Pleasant in his native Lancaster, Ohio. He said he dug it up on Wednesday."

"I put it there for sentimental purposes — just for memories," said the 57-year old actor, who played freight office operator Nathan Burke on the "Gunsmoke" television series between 1964 and 1975.

Jordan worked with Miss Monroe when both were under contract at 20th Century Fox in the 1940s. He said they became lovers in 1944.

The existence of the mysterious diary, however, remained unconfirmed. Jordan said he had mailed the book to Los Angeles. He refused to say to whom he had sent it.

Jordan has made several inconsistent statements about the diary.

In August he said he had the diary in his possession. Later that month, the actor said the "diary" was merely a book of love poems he and the late actress once shared and that it was stolen from the trunk of his automobile.

Thursday, Jordan produced the scarred and faded leather jewelry box. The box contained a pair of gloves that supposedly belonged to Miss Monroe as well as a knit sweater, a bracelet, an assortment of costume jewelry and a locket holding their photographs.

Friends of Miss Monroe who believe the diary exists say she was murdered because she was about to reveal its contents — purported government secrets she learned through an alleged romance with then-U.S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. Those secrets allegedly included a CIA plot to kill Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

Jordan refused to comment on whether the diary contained such allegations. "I don't want to discuss those things," he said.

Jordan said he fears for his safety because of the publicity involving the diary. "Maybe they think I might know too much," he said without elaborating.

Jordan said he intends to contact the Los Angeles district attorney to discuss the diary.

Rock music creates video jukebox

rew J. Edelstein

Rock 'n' roll on TV has a long way from the days of "American Bandstand" where pimply teenagers danced to records and swooned as their idol nervously read his latest hit. The state of the art in rock TV of the 1980s is presented by Warner's MTV (Music Television) all-music cable TV channel that recently celebrated its first anniversary. As different from the 'n' roll TV of the '50s and '60s as the synth-pop of Cell is from the doo-wop of the Moonglows. According to an MTV spokesman, the channel is sent to 700 cable affiliations reaching an estimated million subscribers in its target audience: 12- to 34-olds.

Whereas rock 'n' roll used to be relegated to after-school hours or late-night TV, MTV broadcasts stereo rock 'n' roll 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Instead of a grinning Dick Clark, MTV has a rotating cast of five "veejays" — ultra-casual types who joke in between video clips and bring viewers the latest rock news. The veejays stand or sit in MTV's New York studio, which is furnished as sort of a hip suburban den, and chat cheerily with their unseen audience. Unlike radio, the veejays' routines are not aired live, but taped several days earlier. Thus the spontaneity of rock 'n' roll radio is lost. While their level of conversation is no less inane than the average top-40 deejay, they are more esthetically pleasing than Wolfman Jack shrieking on "The Midnight Special," a popular late-night rock show of the 1970s. Seventy-five to 80 percent of MTV's programming consists of free promotional videos of rock groups that have been produced by record companies for use in dance clubs and on outlets such as MTV. (The channel also programs interviews and performances.) The most popular videos are repeated every four hours, while the more esoteric selections play every six to eight hours. Some things remain the same, of course: In the rock videos, the singer still lip-synchs, but now instead of being imprisoned on a small stage, he becomes an actor in a small drama that illustrates the group's hit. For example, the Human League's "Don't You Want Me Baby" video shows one male member of the group plotting revenge on a female member for spurning him after he made her a success — as spelled out in the song's lyrics. Many rock videos are creative — borrowing underground film effects or imaginative animated techniques — which is why they can be repeated several times a day on MTV (the way radio rotates its top 40) and still retain viewer interest. In fact, it's the straight performance clips that are the most boring when repeated. With radio playlists becoming increasingly tight, record companies are seeking new vehicles such as MTV to break their new acts. To its credit, MTV has not been shy in this regard. While it does program plenty of dull "corporate rock" (Journey, REO Speedwagon, Loverboy, etc.), MTV often airs videos by "new music" bands such as Bow Wow Wow, the Jam and Depeche Mode, who are favorites in the dance clubs but are rarely heard on AOR (album-oriented rock) radio. MTV is taking the credit for breaking "Don't You Want Me Baby," arguably the most popular song of this past summer. Repeated exposure of the group's inventive video spurred consumer interest in the tune, which had been an underground dance club favorite for nearly a year before it broke wide open. Oddly enough, the channel was never aired in the big New York City market until recently. But a series of commercials in which rock stars such as Mick Jagger and Peter Townshend implored viewers to call their cable company and demand "I want my MTV"

Moore, Steenburgen head comedy

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Hollywood movie making is a very strange business. On the one hand, they are sticklers for authenticity. On the other hand, they fake a lot. I visited the set of "Romantic Comedy," an MGM/UA project with the inspired casting of Dudley Moore and Mary Steenburgen. This is what I saw: 1. In the kitchen set, a room so impeccably and thoroughly furnished that when you open up the cabinets (and they will not be opened in the movie) you find dishes and glassware and half-used bottles of catsup and salad oil and spices. Everything. You could move in today and make a boeuf bourguignon tonight. 2. Outside, there are only a couple of shrubs at the side of the door, put there to conceal the fact that the front door cannot be opened. "What happened with the door was this," explained producer Walter Mirisch. "We filmed the outside of a townhouse on Sutton Square in New York. But the owner, as a stipulation for letting us shoot there, said that nobody could so much as set foot inside the front door. "We wanted to make it look as though people were going in and coming out. So we put two big, bushy junipers alongside the front door. So you really can't see the fact that the front door isn't ever opened. It just looks like people go in and come out." So here on the Hollywood soundstage they have copied

MARY STEENBURGEN and Dudley Moore star in a film version of the play, "Romantic Comedy." She says: "We're trying to capture the flavor of the old romantic comedies, like 'The Philadelphia Story.'" the exterior of that New York mansion — and they have brought those same two big, bushy junipers to stand next to that front door. "Romantic Comedy" is a romantic comedy based on the New York stage hit, which starred Tony Perkins and Mia Farrow. Morton Gottlieb, who produced the play in New York and is co-producing the movie with Mirisch, says that Perkins and Miss Farrow were great, too. "But this is a different interpretation of Bernard Slade's play," says Gottlieb (though Slade also wrote the screenplay). "Dudley and Mary are playing the characters as more vulnerable than Tony and Mia were." Moore said he was tired, and he looked it. "Romantic Comedy" is the third of four movies he will be doing back to back. The first two were "Six Weeks" and "Love Sick," and this one will be followed by a remake of "Unfaithfully Yours." "And," Dudley says, "while I was acting in 'Love Sick,' I was writing and conducting and playing and recording the score of 'Six Weeks.' So all I can really think about now is taking a vacation after I finish

"Unfaithfully Yours." "I'm just planning on going somewhere where I can sit in the sun for a little while, but I'm not sure where that will be." He was visited on the set by his sister, Barbara. Where Dudley is short, for a man, Barbara, curiously, is tall (5 feet 8 inches), for a woman. No accounting for genes. Mary Steenburgen, possibly our premiere film comedy actress of the moment, was talking about her last movie, which wasn't funny at all. It was called "Cross Creek," and in it she played novelist Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, who wrote "The Yearling." "And Malcolm played Maxwell Perkins, the editor who helped Mrs. Rawlings so much," Mary said. Malcolm is her husband, Malcolm McDowell. "It was a difficult part for me — heavy drama, and I've only done comedy on film, except perhaps for a little drama in 'Ragtime.'" She says that the location was difficult, too. It was filmed near Ocala, Fla., "and when you stepped outside it was like stepping into a sauna — and when we shot at night, my legs were covered with mosquito bites." The two stars make a dandy combination and everybody here hopes this film will be start of something old. "We're trying to capture the flavor," says Mirisch, "of the old romantic comedies, like 'The Philadelphia Story.' I think today's public will go for that sort of thing."

A Japanese actress with a Jewish accent

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Director John Frankenheimer cast the lovely Japanese-American woman with the unusual non-Japanese name, Donna Kei Benz, as Scott Glenn's leading lady in the film "The Challenge." She did a great job, but... "But he kept telling me," Donna Kei Benz says, "that I wasn't Japanese enough. He said I sounded more like a Jewish housewife than a Japanese girl." Funny — she is a Jewish housewife. So she had to learn to sound and act like a Japanese woman for the part. Donna Kei is a strange case. She is actually constructed from the purest Japanese genes. She was, however, born in Hawaii — "right near Diamond Head" — and the Benz in her name came from a stepfather. When he married her mother, when the little girl was 7, he adopted her. She was educated in Michigan, at Albion College, where she was the Snow Queen. She is now married to Michael Goodley, who is a Jewish dentist. She converted to Judaism when they were married. Her professional career is as unique as her heritage. She never thought of doing any acting. After her college career, she went back to Hawaii and she worked as a hostess in the Kahala Hilton Hotel. That was the hotel, coincidentally, where "Hawaii Five-O" put up all their visiting guest stars and directors. The people from that show were always around the hotel, and could not help but notice the lovely Japanese hostess. "And they would cast me often in the show," she says. "Just little parts, but it was fun."

She came back to the mainland, where she did some modeling and appeared in several television commercials. When she saw those commercials, she says, she realized she was not very good at acting, so she began studying. "And that hooked me," she says. "When I started studying, I realized I liked acting a great deal." She seems to have carved out a little niche for herself as a martial-arts expert even though she really isn't. But she was part of the "Force Seven" pilot — a spin-off from "CHiPs" — in which she was a martial-arts whiz, and in "The Challenge" she again has that distinction. "I'm learning," she says, "but I'm far from being an expert. But I seem to have a natural talent for it — I'm well-coordinated. I move well. When I was in Japan, for 'The Challenge,' they told me that I had more natural aptitude than most of the Japanese actresses they had tested." She says her husband tells her that when she is doing a fight scene, he doesn't recognize her. He says she gets a strange look in her eyes, a combative, competitive look. She says she is competitive, that she likes to win.

'Macho' has new look on PBS 'To Serve'

By David Handler

David Powlett-Jones stands out as a most unusual TV hero in this, the season of swaggering male hunks in tight trousers. He's a tall, stooped Welshman with a baggy tweed suit, quavering voice and trembling hands. He just got out of the hospital, a shell-shocked WWI vet who gets nightmares and jumps every time someone slams a door. He is deathly afraid of women — has never possessed one. To top it off, he's neither a millionaire private eye nor a penniless adventurer. He's a schoolteacher. But he's a hero nonetheless. And "To Serve Them All My Days," the 13-week Masterpiece Theatre import that rolls Oct. 10 on PBS, is a gentle, poignant and very satisfying portrait of a man on the mend. Based on the R.F. Delderfield middle-brow best-seller, "To Serve" is also a mature, soothingly pastoral antidote to the screeching tires and unrelenting beefcake on the other channels.

In episode one, we meet up with Powlett-Jones (John Duttine) when he shows up for a job interview at Bamfylde, a small, affluent public school (that's private to us) in the English countryside. He appears unsuited to the job of schoolmaster. The son of a Welsh coal miner, he seems unable to find himself, let alone guide with firm hand a roomful of pampered, arrogant young men — young men whose privilege he deeply resents. Furthermore, he has never taught before.

True, Powlett-Jones has some leadership experience as an army second lieutenant, but he is quick to point out that he is not of the "officer class." "When everyone's dead they have to promote someone," he says bitterly. Fact is, our hero does everything he can to talk the headmaster, Algy Herries (Frank Middlemass), out of hiring him. But the cheery, robust clergyman gives him the job. The war has created a severe shortage of male faculty, and he senses some fire there in Powlett-Jones.

Okay, so he's cute. And he's got a dynamic voice, plays great guitar and can make a tenor sax sing. So what if he has a hot band of pros called the Parker Brothers. And that his debut album, Pretty Boy Floyd, was recommended by Billboard magazine. Who cares if he makes girls scream and swoon at his concert appearances like a certain Mr. Presley did in the '50s. Or that he stars in the Emmy award winning series The Guiding Light as none other than the up and coming singer-songwriter, Floyd Parker. Big deal that 25 million people watch him every week. What DOES matter is that all this is true. At age 27, Tom is nothing less than an all round entertainer. Besides his acting role on The Guiding Light, Tom's music is garnering critical acclaim, both on the record and in performance. His debut appearance at New York's important music club, The Bottom Line, received rave reviews from both audiences and critics. Billboard said of the group's performance that they have "...enough panache to establish strong footing on the trail blazed by fellow soapster Rick Springfield".

Born and raised in Milwaukee Wisconsin, Tom was constantly surrounded by music. Everyone in his family played a musical instrument—his father, the violin, his mother, three sisters and brother played piano—and at nine Tom decided to add to the family orchestra by taking trombone lessons. He later took up clarinet, tenor sax and guitar as well. After a year of majoring in drama at the University of Wisconsin, Tom left, moving to Los Angeles at the age of 20 to begin work on an acting career. But roles were scarce and at one point he was seriously considering joining the marines. Luckily though, Tom met Lee and Anna Strasberg, founders of the famed Strasberg Institute, and moved to New York in 1977 after they offered Tom a scholarship at their acting institute there. In April 1980 Tom joined the cast of The Guiding Light as Floyd Parker, a hospital janitor. Tom would bring his guitar to work and sing his songs during breaks between sets, which quickly drew the attention of the producers and writers of the show and the character of Floyd was developed into a singer-songwriter.

For Tom Nielsen, both real life and fantasy are now running parallel with each other. As the acting role of Floyd Parker progresses, the real life musician in Tom Nielsen is doing the same with amazing speed and energy. With his debut album Pretty Boy Floyd now released and an east coast tour in the planning stages, the singer-songwriter and actor has a lot to look forward to...and so do his audiences! Now a look at what's been happening and what will happen on all afternoon dramas.

Blackie gets in hot water with Leslie again over schoolwork. Bobbie Spencer comes home again.

Dear Abby

Tipping right is elementary

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: After six years of waitressing, I've come to the conclusion that many people don't tip 15 percent because they can't figure 15 percent of the bill, so I've prepared a "tip table" for people to clip and carry in their wallets for quick and easy reference:

Amount of check	15 percent
$15	$2.25
$16	$2.40
$17	$2.55
$18	$2.70
$19	$2.85
$20	$3.00
$25	$3.75
$30	$4.50

I'm sick of breaking my back to give excellent service and getting a measly 10 percent tip. And because most people get so flustered when the bill comes they can't figure 15 percent, I'd rather have people whip out their calculators than just take a wild guess, because they usually come up short.

ONE FOOT IN THE POORHOUSE

DEAR ONE FOOT: Don't assume that people who tip less than the customary 15 percent do so because they can't figure 15 percent of the bill. Some leave whatever they can afford. But for those who would like to leave 15 percent but can't figure it, your quick, easy chart will be appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to the same man for nearly 30 years. We have a good relationship and see eye to eye on almost everything. He's kind and considerate and I love him dearly. Now for the problem:
He has smoked for 35 years, but only in the last few years has it been getting to me.

His lungs are now so congested that he has a chronic cough, and every time he laughs, I can hear all that phlegm rattling in his throat. It's sickening! When we make love, I actually have to turn my head the other way. I just can't kiss him, but he doesn't seem to mind not being kissed.

I've tried to tell him that his smoking is hurting our marriage, but he always has the same answer: "I can't help it, I'm hooked."

He has cut down some (doctor's orders), but he still smokes a pack and a half a day. He says he enjoys it and doesn't want to give it up. I don't want to make him miserable by nagging, but I'm beginning to resent his lack of consideration for me.

Mouthwashes don't work. I can smell the tobacco in his hair and through his pores. Is there an answer?
SMOKE HATER

DEAR SMOKE HATER: I'm often asked if I've ever had a letter I couldn't answer. My seemingly smug and simplistic reply is: "No. When something cannot be changed, the solution is learning to live with it." Your husband's habit is something you can't change.

You could nag him (for his own good), but it would only make him angry and defensive. Face it, he is addicted to nicotine. He could, if sufficiently motivated, become "clean" with professional help. But unless he wants to change, you will have to live with his addiction as long as you live with him.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school student. My mom is divorced and she doesn't have a boyfriend at present. One of my teachers at school is also divorced, and he and my mom have many of the same values. I would like to get them together. But how?

I would feel embarrassed going to him and saying, "Hey, I'd like you to meet my mom; you two might like each other."

I'd sure appreciate your advice.
NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Every school has parents' night, consultations and functions when parents come to school to get acquainted with the teachers. Be sure your mom doesn't miss such an occasion, and leave the rest to her. And him.

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS

The arrival of the railroad into the Panhandle brought about growth and new settlements to Gray County. The 1900 federal census listed 480 people representing 108 families as compared to 12 families in the 1880 census. The black population increased from one man to 13 people and no Indian or Mexicans were listed.

Perry LeFors was the only person listed on both censuses for Gray County indicating that the people on the 1880 census were deceased or had moved from Gray County in 1900.

Probably due to the law that only United States citizens could own property, all men born in another country had become naturalized citizens.

Eighty-four of the families owned their own land and 14 did not have a mortgage but held the deed free and clear. Birthplaces of the settlers varied.

Occupations of the people in the area were indications of towns and villages, not just farms and ranches any longer, although farmers and farm laborers (those that worked for someone other than themselves) made up most of the population. Others were railroad employees, night watchman, store managers, an assistant postmaster, a teacher and a merchant.

Many people at that time had not been able to attend school and did not have a formal education. However, all of the heads of the household listed on the census were able to read and most were able to write.

Those interested in the census can find a copy of it at the Amarillo Public Library. Gray County is on Roll No. 1622 between Collingsworth and Colorado counties. Why? Many people in the government could tell us. I am sure the reason must be something other than just making it hard to locate.

Volunteers hold Tootsie Roll Banks filled with candy they will be selling Saturday at the Pampa Mall to help raise funds for the Kidney Foundation. Assisting in the project are, from left, Paul Trolin, a kidney dialysis patient; Leah Sikes, 15; Kelly Finkenbinder, 14; Mary Summers, a member of the Telephone Pioneers club and Charlene Gambill, 10. Sikes, Finkenbinder and Gambill are "JR's" who model and help with community service programs. The girls are sponsored by the Hollywood. (Staff photo by Dee Dee Laramore)

The desire to travel and get around more will be accentuated within you this coming year. You may now get to see the places you've always hoped to visit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This could be a very restless day, so you'd better schedule what you hope to accomplish or you may not get anything done. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The opinions of others will be very important to you today. If you are too concerned about what they think of you, you'll fail to express your true personality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) New friends will find your interest in them flattering, but you must be careful not to ask questions which they might deem to be none of your business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your friends and associates aren't apt to have any trouble determining where you stand on major issues today. Speak your mind, but do so tactfully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Others may be taken in by what someone says today, but not you. You'll be able to differentiate between what's fact and what's fiction.

Homecoming Game Tonight

Senior quarterback Randy Skaggs (2), shown picking up yardage on a keeper against Lubbock Estacado last week, will be leading the Pampa Harvesters into tonight's District 1-4A homecoming contest against the Dumas Demons.

Pampa hosts Dumas in Harvester homecoming

By L.D. STRATE
News Sports Editor

Pampa's offense hasn't had much trouble gathering real estate this football season. The problem lies in keeping the property once it's attained.

"We've been working on holding onto the ball this week," Pampa coach John Kendall said. "We're going to have to reduce our fumbles and eliminate the mistakes we've been making."

In last week's 26-0 loss to Lubbock Estacado, Pampa coughed up the ball six times with four fumbles coming in Estacado territory. Four of those fumbles led to Estacado touchdowns.

"We've been able to move the ball against almost every team we've played, but we either freeze up when we get near the goal line or we start making mistakes," Kendall said.

Pampa will try and break into the win column against Dumas at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the annual Harvester Homecoming game. Pampa brings a 0-4-1 record and 0-1-1 league mark into the District 1-4A game at Harvester Stadium.

Dumas is averaged 223 yards per game in total offense, compared to Pampa's 184.4. Pampa has the edge in defense, giving up 254.6 yards per game to 283.4 yards for Dumas.

"I feel like Dumas has a good ballclub," Kendall said. "Their offense is starting to move the ball. They scored 42 points against Dumas last week."

Dumas quarterback Jimmy Hodges is ranked third among district signal callers in passing with 20 of 43 completions for 326 yards and three touchdowns.

"Their quarterback is a good thrower and they've got two or three good running backs," Kendall said. "Dumas is a lot like us in that they've played some pretty tough competition."

Two of those losses, 7-6 to Caprock, and 13 to 6 to Dalhart, could have gone either way.

For the first time since the season started, the Harvesters will have most of their players healthy. Fullback Dennis Kuempel, tailback Harold Ellison and linemen Bryan Bowen and Bill Carter are expected to return to the lineup.

"We've had some real good practices this week considering we're 0-4-1 and it's homecoming week," Kendall said. "I think it's indicative of the type of kids we have. With all the outside activities going on, they've kept their minds on football and have really got after the program."

Dumas coach Maurice Hodges feels Pampa's losing record is highly misleading.

"They've got the best football team in the world that hasn't won a game," Hodges said. "Kendall has done an excellent job of coaching when you consider the misfortune that has kept this team from winning."

"Pampa has a physical team and they've got some speed in the backfield," Skaggs is a talented runner and passer. I've also been very impressed with Pampa's defensive input."

Like Pampa, Dumas has fallen prey to a staggering amount of injuries this season.

"Injuries have hurt us worse than anything else Hodges said. "We've had two starters out for three weeks and last week was the first time we've had our front five on defense healthy this season."

John Romo is Dumas' leading rusher, with 2 yards on 72 carries. Jeff Cohn has 210 yards on steps.

GRID GLIMPSES— Pampa is trying to avoid breaking a record set by the 1981 Harvesters. Last year's Harvesters scored only 45 points, a record for the least points during a season in school history. Pampa has scored 14 points in five games this season... Wheeler's Scott Wright is averaging 170 yards rushing since he was switched from quarterback to running back three games ago. Overall, Wright has rushed for 602 yards in five games. "We run out of the I and if the offensive linemen are doing their job, the guy carrying the ball is going to make a lot of yards. That's the whole story," says Wheeler coach Preston Smith. Vince Koelzer is averaging 15 tackles (assists and solo combined) per game for Wheeler... Pampa's Devin Cross is District 1-4A top punter with a 39.2 average per kick... Unbeaten White Deer is climbing steadily toward that top spot in the latest Class 2A state rankings. The Bucks (6-0) are ranked No. 12 in the Harris Ratings with 144 points... Panhandle whose only loss was to White Deer, is ranked No. 16 in the state with 139 points... Lubbock Estacado, who defeated Pampa, 26-0 last week, is ranked No. 11 in Class 4A with 163 points.

College football picks

Easy week expected for pigskin prophets

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The schedule-makers have conveniently provided just what the doctor ordered for college football prognosticators — a midseason breather after last week's disaster.

Of the top 12 teams in the Associated Press ratings, seventh-ranked Arkansas is idle, there is no line on third-ranked Pitt vs. Temple or No. 10 Arizona State vs. Texas-El Paso and the only member of the group which is less than a 12-point favorite is fifth-ranked Southern Methodist.

Last week's score was 29 right, 15 wrong and five ties for a percentage of .659. For the season, it's 206-64-8 — .769. Against the spread, last week was a dismal 13-18 — .419, dropping the count for the year to 76-68 — .528.

No. 1 Washington (favored by 30) at Oregon State: The Beavers snapped a 14-game losing streak by tying Washington State last week, but their next four opponents include Southern Cal, Arizona State and ... Washington 42-10.

No. 2 Alabama (13½) at Tennessee: Even though Gen. Neyland is no longer around there's no team Bear Bryant likes to beat more than the Vols... Alabama 38-14.

Temple at No. 3 Pitt (no line): The Panthers have had a week off to contemplate their narrow escape against West Virginia... Pitt 31-14.

Vanderbilt at No. 4 Georgia (18½): Vandy can score, but the Commodores can't stop anyone, least of all Herschel Walker... Georgia 35-14.

Houston at No. 5 Southern Methodist (7½): Eric Dickerson and Craig James are ready to roll again after their close call against Baylor... SMU 27-13.

Kansas State at No. 6 Nebraska (28): K-State is much improved, but not this much... Nebraska 28-10.

Syracuse at No. 8 Penn State (26½): Syracuse is 1-4 and still has to play Pitt, West Virginia, Boston College and ... Penn State 45-13.

Arizona at No. 9 Notre Dame (12): The Wildcats have had a penchant for pulling upsets since Larry Smith took over as coach and they tied UCLA last week. Upset Special of the Week... Arizona 21-20.

Texas-El Paso at No. 10 Arizona State (no line): At 6-0, the Sun Devils are more than halfway home... Arizona State 41-7.

North Carolina State at No. 11 North Carolina (17½): If tailback Joe McIntosh is healthy, the Wolfpack could make it interesting... North Carolina 24-14.

Washington State at No. 12 UCLA (23): After last year's excitement, the Cougars are finding life in the fast lane a bit too fast... UCLA 34-14.

No. 13 West Virginia (6½) at Virginia Tech: The Mountaineers were fortunate to beat Boston College and could be looking ahead to Penn State. Second Upset Special... Virginia Tech 20-17.

No. 14 Southern California (5½) at Stanford: A national television audience will find out if a week off helped the Trojans figure out how to stop John Elway... Southern Cal 28-21.

With most of the ranked teams favored by 10 or more points, the Southern California-Stanford game on national television stacks up as one of the best of the weekend.

The Southern Cal defense ranks 14th in the nation in fewest yards allowed (239.8 per game) and has given up only one touchdown in the last 14 quarters. The Trojans also are 12th in pass defense with a 137.5-yard average.

But they will be facing rifle-armed John Elway of Stanford, who is the third-ranked passer in the nation with 129 completions in 197 attempts for 1,712 yards and 14 touchdowns. Elway also is second in total offense with 333.8 yards per game.

Southern Cal, 3-1, still runs the ball 65 percent of the time, but Stanford Coach Paul Wiggin says he fears the Trojans unpredictable offense, which will run on third-and-long and pass on second-and-short. "They've got a new wrinkle with the quarterback passing in any situation," Wiggin said. "They'll also run in any situation."

January leads Seniors golf tournament

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — Don January took a two-stroke lead over Miller Barber into the second round here of the $135,000 PGA Suntree Seniors Classic.

January fired an 8-under-par 64 Thursday in the opening round. He carded a 32 on the front nine and repeated the score on the backside of the par-72, 6,530-yard Suntree Country Club.

Barber turned in a 35-31 to complete the round with a 66.

Pampa tennis program growing fast

By L.D. STRATE
News Sports Editor

Pampa High's tennis program has led an obscure existence in past years. There's been a few outstanding players here and there, but never enough to put together a solid team. Last spring, for example, not a player in the boys' or girls' division advanced past the quarterfinals of the district tournament.

Look for a change this year, starting with a talented Pampa High girls' squad. The boys' squad, loaded with underclassmen, should be in line for a district crown in a couple of years.

This turnaround is a result of the increasing popularity of tennis, which is bringing out the youngsters in droves.

Pampa coach Stacey Foster had the difficult duty of turning youngsters away in the junior high program, but he had no other choice.

"We just don't have enough courts for all of them," Foster said. "I had 75 kids sign up in junior high and I had to cut it down to 60."

Foster, who is in his second year as head coach of the Harvesters, said the quality of play can't help but improve with each passing year.

"With more people out, it's going to create more competition for each spot," Foster said. "It's going to improve the attitude of the kids by making them work harder for a position. I've really been enthused with their progress."

The future may be now for the Lady Harvesters after weekend victories over Canyon, Caprock and Palo Duro.

"I'm really looking forward to spring when district play starts," Foster said. "The girls should really do well."

Steady seniors Leslie Eddins and Treicia Hawkins are the backbone of the team, but a pair of freshmen, Kelly Welborn and Stephanie Trollinger, just keep getting better and better. Welborn is unbeaten in singles play this fall while Trollinger won two of her last three matches in straight sets.

"Both these freshmen have a lot of ability," Foster added. "If they work hard they're going to beat a lot of people this spring."

The boys' squad has only one senior in Mike Spence, who has been a consistent winner throughout his high school career. Spence is not only unbeaten, but has not lost a set in singles play yet.

"I've really been pleased with Mike's attitude and the way he's been playing this fall," Foster said. "If he keeps working hard he should go a long ways this spring."

Pampa boys lost to Canyon and Caprock over the weekend, but defeated Palo Duro in duel matches. Pampa's next duel is Oct. 25 at Borger.

As soon as the boys get a little more experience, they're going to start doing better," Foster said. "That's why I've scheduled as many fall matches as I can so they get the experience."

Another freshman, Salil Mohan, has been impressive since returning from having surgery for an infection.

"He won two of three matches last weekend and he's only been practicing for about three weeks," Foster said.

Seven of the nine varsity players on the boys' squad are freshmen.

"They're a good bunch of kids and they're willing to learn," Foster said. "In two or three years we're going to have a pretty solid team."

Right now, Foster isn't overly concerned with won-lost records.

"Improvement is the key," Foster said. "I don't expect them to win. I base their performance on how much they improve each time out."

In the near future, watch for the won-lost records to improve right along with the players.

Results of Pampa's last three duel meets are listed below:

Pampa junior varsity, eighth graders notch victories over PD, Canyon

Kyle Roberts broke loose for a 67-yard touchdown run in the third quarter to give the Pampa Shockers a 25-19 win over Palo Duro last night in junior varsity action at Harvester Stadium.

Pampa jumped off to a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on Eugene Smith's six-yard run.

Pampa was leading 18-16 at halftime when Jeff Steward scored on a two-yard run and caught a 10-yard scoring pass from Brian Kotara.

Roy Perry's 30-yard field goal gave Palo Duro JVs a 19-18 advantage before Roberts broke loose for the winner.

Pampa JVs host Dumas JVs at 7 p.m. Oct. 28.

In eighth-grade action Thursday, Pampa battled Canyon Purple to a 6-6 tie.

Canyon was leading 6-0 after scoring a TD in the third quarter on a long scoring drive. Pampa knotted the score in the fourth quarter on a pass from John Thomas to Mark Williams.

Pampa's top players were Williams, Clifford Medley and James Miller, according to coach Sam Porter.

The Patriots host Dumas at 4:30 p.m. next Thursday at the Pampa Middle School Field.

"This is probably the most important game of the season for us," Pampa coach Sam Porter said. "Dumas was unbeaten last year as seventh graders and they're unbeaten so far this year. We've got to beat them and then beat Dumas the following week to win the district title."

The church's Education Department will honor some 64 Sunday School teachers and their families during the supper.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

BRICK UPON BRICK

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redemption of love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church in everyone!

Quickly and accurately this workman lays the bricks in this wall. He knows that the manner in which he lays bricks will determine the strength and beauty of the completed wall.

Day by day we build our lives in just the same fashion as the bricklayer builds his wall. What we put into our lives and the way in which we do so will make us what we are to become. No worthwhile life can be built without the stone of faith and the mortar of love, all of it crowned by hope. The Church has specialized in these three essentials of life for centuries.

Go to Church Sunday and begin to learn from the only Masterbuilder, God our Creator.

Tylenol tries to save its reputation

By MICHAEL BEZDEK
Associated Press Writer
NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J.
(AP) — Johnson & Johnson executives say they would like to begin in earnest the task of rehabilitating Tylenol's good name, but the chore will be difficult until the poisonings of seven people are resolved.

"What we need is a fast arrest," said Lawrence Foster, vice president for public relations for the New Brunswick-based health care giant.

Johnson & Johnson officials say they've done everything possible to expedite the capture of whoever put cyanide in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules, killing seven people in the Chicago area. And they've also worked hard to help consumers.

The company has recalled and examined millions of Extra-Strength and regular Tylenol capsules, offered a $100,000 reward, set up a telephone hotline, cooperated with investigators and hired private detectives. It has also offered cash refunds or tablet exchanges for some 22 million bottles of Tylenol — offers Johnson & Johnson has said could cost $79 million.

Joseph Chiesa, president of McNeil Consumer Products Co., the subsidiary that makes Tylenol, said the battle to save the aspirin-free pain reliever will be waged whether or not arrests are made.

He said the effort involves both Tylenol — the nation's best-selling over-the-counter pain-reliever until two weeks ago — and Johnson & Johnson, because "there is a clear number of consumers who now identify Johnson & Johnson as the maker of Tylenol along with McNeil."

Chiesa said he would not detail plans for the rehabilitation effort, except that the product would be made with new tamper-resistant packaging and that the name Tylenol would be retained.

Keeping the name is a wise move, said Stephen A. Greyser, a marketing professor at the Harvard Business School. "The cost of relaunching — even though that would be expensive — would be less than starting a new brand name," he said.

Chiesa also said the company has no plans to eliminate Tylenol capsules in favor of tablet and liquid forms, which are still sold.

New advertising for Tylenol will "be different than our normal messages" of the past and be "reflective of the current situation," he said.

Chiesa would not speculate on the dollar loss to Johnson & Johnson, which had sales of $5.4 billion in 1981, but said the firm expects to feel the impact of the poisonings through 1983.

Analysts have estimated 1981 Tylenol sales at about $400 million, for a 37 percent share of the analgesic market — more than Anacin, Bayer aspirin, Bufferin and Excedrin combined. Sales of Tylenol, which contains the aspirin substitute acetaminophen, have doubled since 1976.

Neil Sweig, a health products analyst for Shearson American Express, said the poisonings could cost the firm about $75 million in net profits.

He predicted the recall and destruction of capsules would be reflected in a 25 cents per share loss in the third quarter, and that repackaging costs would result in another 15 cents per share loss in the fourth quarter. Johnson & Johnson last year earned $2.51 per share.

Sweig and others said Johnson & Johnson will be able to rebound, but the experts are less sure about Tylenol. The drug is the leading product among 120 Johnson and Johnson subsidiaries, but accounts for only about 7 percent of company sales.

Tylenol suspect was murder suspect in 1978

CHICAGO (AP) — A nationwide appeal was issued for information about a man wanted for questioning in seven cyanide deaths after it was learned he was charged for a time in a Kansas City killing four years ago.

Kansas City police identified James Lewis, 36, who also uses the name Robert Richardson, as a former suspect in the murder of Raymond West, 72, of Kansas City. West's dismembered body was found in his attic in 1978 in a "semi-mummified condition," Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner told a news conference Thursday night.

A federal extortion warrant for Lewis, using the name Richardson, was issued Wednesday in a matter related to the cyanide poisoning of Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

The warrant said Lewis wrote a letter to McNeil Consumer Products Co., maker of Tylenol, demanding $1 million "if you want to stop the killing." The letter was delivered Oct. 6, a week after the first cyanide victim died.

Charges against Lewis were dropped in the Kansas City murder when a judge ruled that Lewis had been arrested illegally and evidence had been taken from his apartment illegally. In addition, the medical examiner in Kansas City could not determine the cause of West's death because his body was so decomposed, according to Fahner, who heads a multi-agency task force handling the case.

Fahner said Lewis also was indicted in December 1981 in Missouri on theft and forgery charges in an alleged land fraud scheme. Illinois officials became aware of charges against Lewis after a Kansas City detective recognized him from a photo circulated across the country by the task force.

The attorney general said Lewis was known to frequent the Amarillo, Texas, area, and a Chicago detective was sent to Oklahoma and Texas to look for him.

Lewis' wife, identified as Leann Lewis, 35, is named in a federal warrant charging her with using a fictitious Social Security number to try to obtain work in the Chicago area. Known as Nancy Richardson, Mrs. Lewis worked as a bookkeeper for a now-defunct Chicago travel agency operated by a businessman whose inactive bank account number was listed in the $1 million extortion letter.

Miami rounds up its vagrants to impress the travel agents

MIAMI (AP) — A special police "trash patrol" has swept hundreds of vagrants off the streets this week to impress a convention of travel agents, but the move has upset civil libertarians who say Miami is putting on a "phony face."

Since Sunday, when 6,000 members of the American Society of Travel Agents arrived here for a convention, police have arrested nearly 400 people on misdemeanor charges such as sleeping and drinking in public, loitering and fighting. All but 32, who were released on their own recognizance, were still in jail today.

Officials want to please the out-of-towners who could send millions of crucial tourism dollars to Miami, and police have stepped up their "Operation Clean Sweep," a police campaign started earlier this year to put vagrants behind bars.

Normally, the program averages 30 arrests a day. On Tuesday and Wednesday, police picked up 127 drifters — more than twice the usual rate.

"This is a one-week clean sweep strictly for ASTA," said Officer Luis Alvarez. "We wouldn't be doing this under normal conditions."

Capt. Kevin Hickey, a county corrections officer, said if the program convinces travel agents to steer tourism to Miami, "then it's worth every bit of this."

Another police officer, Capt. George Green, called it a "trash patrol."

The week's sweep has cost the police department $17,000 in overtime pay, but a host committee for the travel agent's convention is picking up the tab from its $600,000 convention budget, said Mike Stewart, police information officer.

When asked Thursday night who ordered the stepped-up action by police, Mayor Maurice Ferre said: "I haven't the foggiest idea."

Police say they are following the letter of the law. "It's not against the law to be a bum, so we have to wait for them to fall asleep," Green said.

Let's talk.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Community Relations Manager.

Preparing for major industry changes

Two changes are coming up which will have a significant impact on how Southwestern Bell provides telephone service to its customers.

First, there's the decision by the Federal Communications Commission (which regulates telecommunications on the national level) that AT&T (the parent company of the Bell System) should set up a fully separate subsidiary to market telephone equipment.

This subsidiary, called American Bell, is expected to begin operations on January 1, 1983.

Southwestern Bell will continue providing telephone equipment after that date. Under current plans, all business or residential equipment on our customers' premises or in Southwestern Bell's inventory will be regulated by tariffs filed with the Texas Public Utility Commission. Beginning January 1, equipment provided by American Bell will not be subject to such regulation.

Competition Offers Customer Options

Competition in providing customer equipment has been an established fact for several years now. The introduction of American Bell into the picture will provide one more option for customers when it comes to selecting a vendor for such things as telephones, PBX's and other communications equipment.

An even bigger change is slated for January 1, 1984. That's the target date for Southwestern Bell being divested from AT&T.

After this divestiture, Southwestern Bell will be primarily a local telephone company. Most of our long distance calling facilities will remain with AT&T.

The 22 divested Bell telephone companies, like Southwestern Bell, will be reorganized into seven regional units. Southwestern Bell will be one of these seven units.

After divestiture, we'll continue to provide basic local phone services, Custom Calling Services, Yellow Pages and special network services. We'll also be allowed to offer telephones and other terminal equipment.

Now I don't pretend to have all the answers on how these two major developments will affect your service. But you can rest assured that as more information becomes available, I'll certainly pass it on.

Free Booklet Explains Anticipated Trends

If you'd like a free "Let's talk" booklet, which tells more about anticipated changes in our industry, just send your name and address to: Southwestern Bell, "Let's talk", P.O. Box 225265, Dallas, Texas 75265.

Bell Statewide Service Commitment Continues

While the structure of the Bell System may soon be changing we're not changing our service ideals.

For more than a century, Southwestern Bell's driving goal has been to provide the best possible service at the lowest possible cost — and to improve that service with the introduction of new technology.

You can count on that same commitment remaining undiminished in the future. Southwestern Bell... at your service for 100 years.
