

Israelis are back to bombing Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The threat of a showdown between Israeli and Syrian forces looms in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley after repeated Israeli air strikes on Syrian and Palestinian targets there.

The latest raids Monday killed 30 soldiers and guerrillas and left several military emplacements in flames, Lebanese radio stations said.

Israel's military command said the raiders wrecked one of Syria's Soviet-made SAM-9 missile batteries and returned home safely. The Syrian state radio said the Israelis wounded two soldiers and damaged six heavy guns.

It was the fourth time since Wednesday that Israel attacked Syrian and Palestinian positions in central and eastern Lebanon to avenge what it called violations of a July 23 cease-fire. The raid also came a day after Syria put its 220,000-strong armed forces on maximum alert, claiming Israel is the truce breaker in the 13-week-old Lebanon war.

Lebanese radio stations called Monday's air attack the heaviest Israeli assault on Syrian positions in the Bekaa since the cease-fire. They said warplanes roared over the valley for eight hours, hitting missile sites at Dahr al-Baidar and armor concentrations near Zahle, Tenayel, Saad Nayel and Tarshish. One leftist station called the attack a "new round of full-scale warfare."

"We remain extremely concerned over reports of continuing military clashes in the Bekaa," State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said in Washington. "These actions make the situation even more difficult and dangerous and we again call on all involved to act with the greatest restraint and to refrain from further military actions."

At the same time, President Reagan's new peace envoy Morris Draper was bound for the Middle East to begin the second phase of U.S. efforts to achieve a stable peace in Lebanon and the pullout of all foreign forces.

Draper, an assistant secretary of state, planned to continue efforts by special presidential envoy Philip Habib, who successfully negotiated the Palestine Liberation Organization's withdrawal from Beirut, heading off a threatened Israeli invasion of the capital.

The Israeli military command says Syria has violated the cease-fire at least 98 times, killing 12 Israeli soldiers, wounding 20 and capturing nine in the past 50 days. Syria says Israeli warplanes have flown at least 227 bombing raids on its positions in Lebanon since the truce.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has warned Syria to stop PLO guerrillas in Syrian-held territory from harassing Israeli troops in Lebanon. Begin has also vowed to stop the Syrians from deploying mobile missile launchers in the valley.

About 25,000 Syrian troops are stationed in the Bekaa near the Syria border, remnants of the peacekeeping force deployed in Lebanon under an Arab League mandate after the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war.

Israel claims between 4,000 and 5,000 Palestinian guerrillas joined the Syrian forces after the PLO evacuated Beirut two weeks ago and dispersed its fighters among Arab nations.

Engine failure may have caused crash

Some walked away

By FENTON WHEELER

MALAGA, Spain (AP) — Four more bodies were pulled from the wreckage of a DC-10 jetliner today, but 27 passengers were still unaccounted for following a fiery crash that killed at least 50 tourists returning to New York from this Mediterranean resort, the civil governor's office said.

The bodies were removed from a charred tail section that had been inaccessible to firemen until today. The search continued and an official in the civil governor's office said more victims were feared still in the wrecked plane's tail area.

Spantax Airlines, the Madrid-based air charter company that owned the jumbo jet, agreed with the governor's office on the number of passengers unaccounted for, but said they were not necessarily dead.

"They might be somewhere still trying to get recovered from the shock they must have suffered. Neither can we say for sure there are no more corpses in the wreckage," an airline spokesman said.

The Spantax office in New York on Monday said that 332 passengers had escaped the blazing wreckage and only two were missing. A spokesman today said he could not explain the discrepancies in the figures.

The chartered jetliner plunged to earth moments after the 12:30 p.m. (6:30 a.m. EDT) takeoff, careened across a highway and burst into flames. Official figures released today said 316 people escaped death, including 49 who were hospitalized and 267 who were unharmed or discharged from the hospital. Nine people are listed in very serious condition.

The cause of the crash was under investigation, officials said. Military sources at the Malaga airport on Monday mentioned engine failure as a probable cause of the accident and many survivors said the plane apparently didn't have enough power to take off.

"We are about to crash. We cannot do anything, an engine is failing," a Madrid newspaper quoted pilot Juan Perez as saying just before the crash.

The pilot survived along with six other crew members.

Medical personnel aided by airport officials and relatives of the victims are trying to identify the corpses, some of them said to be burned beyond recognition. The corpses have been taken to an airport hangar and those that are properly identified will be flown home for burial, officials said.

The National Transportation Safety Board in Washington dispatched three investigators to Malaga and McDonnell Douglas Corp., the California-based maker of the DC-10s, said it sent two investigators to help Spanish authorities.

One of the jet's engines was found in a field near the crash site.

Company sources quoted pilot Juan Perez as saying the plane was about 60 feet off the ground when it started vibrating and he tried to power down the engines to abort takeoff.

Lisa Kanstroom, 19, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was among the survivors who arrived at Kennedy Airport in New York early today. She said she had been sitting near one of the engines "and it started cutting on and off all the time. That's when we knew something was wrong."

After the crash, chaos broke out with "people pushing and trampling and wanting to get out, out, out," she said. "The roof was caving in and the floor was crumbling because of the fire."

Another survivor, Alfred McKeon, 26, of the Bronx, N.Y., said the pilot braked, "but it was too late, he'd run out of runway."

He said he thought the jet hit "about five cars, a wall, went across train tracks and came to rest in a gully."

Spanish authorities did not say how many vehicles the plane clipped or if there were any casualties on the ground.

Several survivors said the plane's rear exits failed to open. Many of the victims apparently burned to death in the tail section of the wide-bodied jet.

"The rear exits did not work," said survivor Hal Lavine of Tamarac, Fla. "People pushed forward. They were screaming and panic. A big cloud of black smoke poured into the cabin."

The U.S. Embassy in Madrid said 210 American citizens and 85 Spaniards living in the United States were aboard the flight originating in Madrid with a stopover in Malaga. The embassy had no names and didn't know how many Americans were killed or injured.

No definitive list of victims was available early this morning.

A Spantax spokesman advised people whose relatives did not return on today's flight to Kennedy to contact the airline's New York office later in the day (telephone: 212-582-8267).

Carefree David, a Miami tour broker, said it had booked 208 travelers for a two-week tour of Spain that left Aug. 30 from New York.

Agency President Leonard Lansburgh said most of the tourists were from the New York area, two to four from Florida, and some from Canada. A Toronto tour operator said he had booked 26 Canadians on the flight and that six were reported injured.

The crash was Spain's worst since 585 people perished in Tenerife on the Spanish Canary Islands when a Royal Dutch KLM Boeing 747 slammed into a Pan Am 747 taxiing on the runway. The March 27, 1977 crash was aviation's worst.

U.S. carriers temporarily grounded DC-10s for checks on Federal Aviation Administration orders after an American Airlines DC-10 crashed in Chicago on May 25, 1979 after one of its engines ripped away upon takeoff.

Weeping and exhausted, these passengers who survived when a DC-10 crashed and burned in Spain Monday, walk away from the smoldering wreckage. The Spantax Airlines jumbo jet crashed on take-off from Malaga airport. The charter flight was heading home loaded with American tourists when it crashed, skidded across a highway and caught fire.

It was chaos, pushing and panic to get out

By ULA ILNYTZKY

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 200 survivors from the crash of a Spanish jetliner arrived in the United States recalling the chaos and panic aboard the burning plane that "ran out of runway" in Malaga, Spain.

Many survivors of the Spantax DC-10 crash wept as they embraced relatives after arriving at Kennedy Airport on Monday night.

Some were too distraught to speak with reporters, and at least one woman had to be helped from the terminal because her knees had buckled beneath her.

Those who could talk recalled the horror and confusion of panicked passengers as the blazing Spantax airliner collapsed around them Monday.

Lisa Kanstroom, 19, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., said passengers were "pushing and trampling" one another while "the roof was caving in and the floor was crumbling because of the fire."

She said one engine "started cutting on and off all the time" while the plane was flying from Madrid to Malaga, where it picked up passengers before crashing shortly after takeoff.

Jay Boyarsky, 29, of New York, who was on his honeymoon with his wife, Arlene, explained the passengers' confusion, saying that "the rear doors failed to open. Only the center emergency doors worked."

Alfred McKeon, 26, of New York, said, "The plane started to take off and it was a little bit up in the air... It seemed as if the back wheels never got off the ground." He said the pilot put on the brakes, "but it was too late, he'd run out of runway."

Elrey Vicente, 40, of Toronto said he and other passengers got out of the plane quickly because of "the fire and fear of explosion." He said that after sliding down the emergency chute he turned around to look at the plane.

"I saw flames shooting out from inside and dark fumes and people ducking to avoid the fumes," he said.

Carlton Maloney, 30, of New York, who got off the Iberia jet that carried survivors back to New York without cab fare home because his money burned in the fire, called the crash "an experience you never want to go through again."

In Davenport, Iowa, meanwhile, Vern and Phyllis Parry awaited word of their daughter, Jayne, who they believed was aboard the flight.

Miss Davenport, 25, had spent a month in Spain to join a reunion of Americans who had studied in Spain four years ago.

"We didn't want her to go," Mrs. Parry said, but emphasized their concerns at the time were for Miss Parry's finances, not any danger of flying.

"... She said, 'Mom, in two more years, the kids (the other students) will be gone.' She saved her money for this and she really wanted to go."

The Parrys said they had received no word on their daughter's fate. "We're kind of dangling in midair," Mrs. Parry said, but added: "We have hope."

The 13th unlucky for Lucky 13

The Lucky 13 Truckstop in Groom ran short on luck Monday night when a truck hauling a load of bubble bath and shampoo ran into a gas pump canopy there.

"It just kind of offset everything," said Jo Ann Britten, wife of manager Art Britten, when the driver miscalculated the height of his rig by about a foot and a half.

Minor damage was done to the top of the trailer, she said, and none of the bubbly load was lost.

About $8,000 damage was done to the canopy, however.

The accident occurred at 8:31 p.m., when a rig driven by George Conner of Greensburg, Pa. pulled in the truckstop at the intersection of Farm Road 2300 and Interstate 40.

The Gemini Trucking cross-country rig, hauling its soapy load to Oklahoma City, came in at the wrong entrance, Britten said.

"He was pulling in to the diesel fuel pumps, he thought," she said.

When he hit the canopy and "skewed it over," he felt pretty bad, according to Britten.

"It didn't tear it off, but it nearly did. It was the first wreck he ever had in 11 years," she said.

Repairs will cost "quite a bit," Britten said, but no one was hurt in the accident.

Art group plans paint-out

PERRYTON (Spl.) — The first regular meeting of the Ochiltree County Art Association was held Monday evening at the hall above Edna's Flower Shop.

Amarillo artist Marlin Adams presented a painting demonstration to highlight the meeting; a business meeting was held immediately afterward.

Members of the organization have expressed thanks to the city, First National Bank and the Chamber of Commerce for their support in the recent highly successful art show. The group also lauded efforts of area news media for coverage of the event, and of Daley's and Gibsons in Perryton, who loaned easels for the showing.

Two classes have been scheduled by the group for Perryton area artists.

Adams will conduct a course in oil painting Oct. 8-13, and Ben Kones will teach a course on various art forms Nov. 8-13.

The group has also scheduled a "paint-out" Sept. 20 at the Schroeder Ranch on Wolf Creek. Members will bring lunches and spend the day painting the scenic view there.

Perryton to get new restaurant

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held last week for the new Ambassador Inn Restaurant, to be constructed adjoining the Ambassador Inn motel just east of the intersection of Loop 143 south and Highway 83.

KeSchaffer, owner of the motel, said the new facility is expected to be completed in 140-160 days at a construction cost of $600,000. A & M Construction Co., Guymon, Okla., is in charge of the construction.

When completed, the restaurant will contain an 89' by 105' main room seating 200 people, two meeting rooms, and a lounge that will seat 83. The motel lobby will be relocated between the motel and the restaurant areas.

Schaffer's father, Frank Schaffer, will be general manager of the motel and restaurant.

No center for Skellytown

SKELLYTOWN (Spl.) — Three Skellytown women have abandoned their plans for a day care center here, citing a lack of response from Skellytown residents on the need for such a facility.

The center had been planned by Cathy Reyes, Teresa Hicks and Gwen

Reid. The trio had run newspaper ads and passed out questionnaires to determine whether Skellytown citizens felt the town needed a day care facility.

According to the women, response indicated that not enough Skellytown parents were interested in using a day care center to make the project feasible.

A helping hand

Two local members of the Telephone Pioneers, President Bill Stephens of Pampa and Vice President Bob Johnston of Borger, devote some of their free time to help the mentally retarded adults at the Pampa Group Home, 321 West. Stephens and Johnston put up some paneling in the basement of the facility, which serves as the home's recreation room. The members of the company club also plan to install new carpeting in the room. The residents of the Pampa Group Home live at the facility full-time. The huge two-story house includes numerous bedrooms and kitchen and bath facilities. Stephens and Johnston belong to the Top O' Texas Telephone Pioneers' Club. To join the service organization, phone company employees must have at least 18 years' service. Cancer group declares open war on smoking, asks for volunteers

SEATTLE (AP) — The American Cancer Society has issued a call to arms against the tobacco industry, hoping to dispatch volunteers, instead of paid lobbyists, to pressure congressmen in the fight against smoking.

Allan K. Jonas, chairman of the society's national board, told the 13th International Cancer Congress on Monday: "For far too long the tobacco industry has played the political game as if it were solitaire. We have lost nearly every battle to them. Now our time has come."

Jonas, a Los Angeles businessman, said the 2 1/2 million-member society has formed a Public Issues Committee to coordinate political action, and noted that the society often joins forces with the American Heart Association and American Lung Association to aim greater numbers at certain issues.

But he emphasized in an interview that the effort would not be lobbying in the traditional sense. "We can't put money into lobbyists because that's one we can't win" against the well-heeled tobacco industry, he said.

"Constituent pressure — getting people to write letters or to walk the halls of legislative bodies to talk to their legislators — can be so much more effective than hiring lobbyists."

In Raleigh, N.C., tobacco specialist John H. Cyrus of the state Department of Agriculture said tobacco industry officials were aware several weeks ago of the cancer society's plans.

He said state tobacco officials had not made any plans to mount a counter-campaign, but will listen closely to what kind of information the society puts out.

"We would just hope they would use factual information and not use half-truths and get them out of perspective," Cyrus said.

Jonas said the cancer society "must recruit all of our volunteers, acquaint them with the tools of political activity and make sure they get to know their legislators."

One cause for optimism, Jonas said, is sheer numbers. "The majority of us are non-smokers. Only about a third of the country are smokers," he said.

High on the list of targets, Jonas said, is the federal tobacco subsidy, a system of loan guarantees and services.

Joseph Chagra plea bargains

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra was the only defendant in the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. to reach a plea bargain agreement with the government before the deadline, a federal judge says.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions would not reveal details of the plea bargain agreement, but confirmed minutes after the 5 p.m. Monday deadline that "the government has notified me of an anticipated agreement with Joseph Chagra."

"There is no anticipated agreement involving any other defendant," Sessions said after expiration of the deadline, which he had extended twice at the request of defense attorneys.

Sessions said he was "sure there will be motion but I haven't received any yet" as a result of Chagra's plea bargain.

Neither federal prosecutors nor Chagra's chief defense attorney Billy Ravkind of Dallas would reveal details of the plea bargain.

Published reports have said Chagra will plead guilty to conspiracy and testify against alleged triggerman Charles V. Harrelson, 44, in return for a sentence of not more than 10 years.

Harrelson's attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr., could not be reached by telephone in Brownsville for his reaction to the plea bargain.

Chagra, 35, reportedly will not testify against his brother, Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, or Jimmy Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, 28 — necessitating at least two separate trials.

Prosecutors also will drop four other charges filed against Chagra in connection with the May 29, 1979, slaying of Wood, the reports said.

Galveston lawyer Warren Burnett, representing Mrs. Chagra, said Monday he anticipated a government motion to be filed this week asking that the cases be severed.

Bell responds to PUC charges

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has responded to an unprecedented attempt to dismiss its rate increase request by stating the phone company does not lie to the Public Utility Commission or the public and will not stand for such accusations.

Southwestern Bell responded Monday to motions by the PUC staff and two customer groups to dismiss Bell's case for a $471.5 million rate hike. A Bell spokesman said the Texas Municipal League also had asked the PUC to dismiss the case.

Oral arguments were scheduled today before hearing examiner Jacqueline Holmes.

Bell said in its 18-page response to the motions that the charges were "totally without merit or foundation. ... Southwestern Bell has not been 'deceptive' or 'misleading,' 'flagrantly' or otherwise."

As evidence of its honesty, Bell said that on Sept. 6 one of its witnesses advised the examiner and other parties of data that reduced the company's pension expense in Texas by over $17 million. This information was known only to the company, the response said.

"No clearer evidence is available that Southwestern Bell does not deceive this commission nor the public. Graceless accusations that it does are not to be tolerated," Bell said.

The Friday motions followed a day-long disagreement over information Bell and its parent company, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., had provided.

The staff sought the information during the summer to prepare its case against Bell's claim to $63 million paid to AT&T under terms of their 50-year-old "license contract."

Bell defends the payments as necessary contributions to AT&T's research, legal, technological and financial assistance. Opponents say many projects — such as AT&T's long anti-trust fight with the federal government, a new Manhattan office building, artwork and stockholders' meetings — should not be subsidized through Texas customers' rates.

Two PUC lawyers said in their motion that Bell and AT&T's response to their information request was "misleading" because the data covered two years rather than one year, ending last March 31, that is relevant to the case. They complain the data does not indicate which AT&T projects fall within the proper year.

They asked the hearing examiner to throw out Bell's entire $471.5 million case, or at least the $63 million license-contract payments. If that is not acceptable, they urged a two week postponement in the hearing to examine new information AT&T has promised to furnish.

Lone Star wants rate increase

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lone Star Gas Co. asked the Texas Railroad Commission today for a $90 million rate increase, which would increase residential customer bills by $4 a month. The rate increase request is opposed by the Texas Municipal League, representing many of the 540 Texas cities served by Lone Star.

"Lone Star Gas Co.'s operating income declined 15 percent in 1981, and has declined 23 percent the first six months of 1982 versus the same period in 1981," said Lone Star President Carol Neaves, in testimony filed in advance with the commission.

"Certainly a significant part of this income problem is the decline in residential and commercial sales volumes during 1981, due principally to conservation, and this trend continues."

Vice President Douglas Williams told a news conference Monday the requested rise in city gate rate would affect about 1.1 million residential customers.

About 100,000 commercial customers would get an average increase of $6 per month.

The Lone Star request also asks that the company be allowed to pass on to consumers 100 percent of any increased cost in natural gas. The commission allows only a 95 percent pass-through at the present time.

Williams estimated the partial pass-through cost the company $13.5 million from February 1980 through April 1982. During that same period, the average cost of purchased gas increased from $1.85 per thousand cubic feet to $3.38.

"To compete successfully for new gas supplies, we must recover the increased costs of buying and providing to our customers this premium fuel," said Williams.

"Only with a full cost recovery can we pay these increasing prices and hope to meet successfully the intense competitive pressures that now exist to secure additional supplies which our customers rightfully expect."

Mexico explains its export restrictions

CIUDAD REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) — Its program restricting export of basic groceries to Texas and other border states is not intended as a repressive measure, Mexican government officials say.

The assurance came during orientation meetings by the Commerce Department with Mexican border businessmen.

The meetings came as government officials prepared to post signs along the 1,760-mile border with the United States, warning American visitors that a wide variety of food products can not be carried out of Mexico without special permission.

"This is not an attempt to establish repressive measures for North American tourists or to affect Mexican workers who have jobs on the U.S. side," the department said in a statement released at this Mexican city along the southeast Texas border, about 40 miles from McAllen, Texas.

It said the new rules are intended "to guarantee the supply of basic products to the border population, especially in areas of few resources."

The new measures earlier this month, following continued weakening of the Mexican peso in terms of the dollar. The peso, which opened the year at 27 to the dollar fell as low as 150 to the dollar in free trading before Mexican treasury officials fixed a rate of 70 on Sept. 1.

The weakened peso made shopping in Mexico a bargain for Americans, with prices of less than 50 cents for a gallon of gasoline and eggs for about 40 cents a dozen.

Some Mexican business leaders claimed the bargain prices brought hordes of Americans, who sometimes stripped the shelves, threatening to clean out supplies for Mexican shoppers.

Other measures imposed by the government prevent anyone from entering or leaving Mexico with more than 5,000 pesos, require those entering the country to change their foreign currency to pesos and set a $250 exchange limit for Mexicans and residents traveling abroad.

Officials said visitors would not be searched unless suspected of a specific violation.

Commerce officials said they would begin posting signs and enforcing the ban as their regional border meetings progress westward. Spot checks in San Diego, Calif., El Paso, and Laredo, Texas, showed no rigorous search or enforcement measures were in effect on Monday.

Appeal court throws out Klansman conviction

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has thrown out the conviction of a former Texas Ku Klux Klan leader who was accused of illegally using federal property for military exercises.

In ordering the charge dismissed, two justices said former grand dragon Louis Beam was convicted of a U.S. Forest Service regulation so ambiguous that it violated his constitutional rights.

U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr. of Fort Worth fined Beam $500 and placed him on six months' probation after he was convicted of using the LBJ National Grasslands in North Texas for military exercises without a permit.

5th Circuit justices Irving Goldberg and Will Garwood said in a majority opinion last week that signs at entrances to the federal property, located near Decatur north of Fort Worth, stated that the land was "open to the public ... hunting and fishing permitted under state game and fish regulations."

The signs did not refer to any regulations requiring permits, the justices said, noting that the Forest Service did not require Bob Scout groups to get permits before camping there.

In a dissenting opinion, Justice Jerome S. Williams accused Goldberg and Garwood of nit-picking.

The Klan members, who according to testimony stationed sentries with orders to stop anyone that approached the group's headquarters, obviously were trying to sidestep the government regulations, Williams said.

"This was not a camping trip," he wrote. "It was an organized specific act by a militant group which obviously constituted an assembly and raised questions about the effect its activities might have on lands which are owned by all of us and which others were entitled to use."

With the First Truly Fully Automatic Hearing Aid

THE AUTOMATIC SIGNAL PROCESSOR... functions in this way...it is designed to operate essentially like any other conventional hearing aid when used in the presence of speech only or noise only. However, when speech and noise are presented to the hearing aid simultaneously, these two sounds are recognized by the hearing aid circuit and the circuit then begins to function in a way that allows the hearing aid wearer to distinguish and understand (in most cases) speech over noise. This activity within the hearing aid system is called phonetic compression.

THE AUTOMATIC SIGNAL PROCESSOR... was developed and designed for those hearing impaired people who have difficulty in hearing speech in noisy environments.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Dunlop crosses Atlantic

Congratulations to William "Small Boaf Bill" Dunlop who bested the Atlantic Ocean in a 9-foot, 1-inch sailboat — smallest ever to make the voyage from west to east.

It took Dunlop 78 days to make the 3,000-mile crossing, from Portland, Maine, to Falmouth, England. During the stormy trip through the North Atlantic, Dunlop nourished himself on 300 cans of soda pop, a case of beer, a gallon of wine and 450 cans of such basics as chili, beef stew and fruit cocktail.

The sailor reported a rust problem with his canned goods. The spoiled ones had to be "deep sixed" — except the fruit cocktail, which was most welcome with slight fermentation.

The skipper is no novice. He spent 4½ years in the Navy, mostly on a destroyer, and he sailed the Atlantic both ways in his 35-foot sloop three years ago.

Dunlop arrived in Falmouth near exhaustion. The British, who have great admiration for derring-do on the high seas, provided a joyous welcome.

The voyage was a lot rougher than he expected, but Dunlop likes living on the edge. And once rested, he may just keep going around the world.

Rescuing social security

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — How long must retired workers collect Social Security benefits before they recover the original contributions made to the Social Security system in the form of payroll deductions while they were employed.

The answer is not five, 10 or more years, as many people believe. For the average wage earner with a non-working spouse, the payback period is a surprisingly short 11 months.

Recovering accrued interest as well as the original contribution requires slightly more than two years, while recouping employer and employee contributions and interest takes less than 4 and a half years.

Those statistics vividly illustrate two crucial facts about the Social Security system:

— One of the principle reasons the system is financially shaky is the inherent generosity of the formula that provides most individuals with benefits far in excess of their contributions.

— Carefully crafted revisions of that formula to restore fiscal integrity to the system would hardly cheat recipients by depriving them of benefits to which they are entitled by virtue earlier contributions.

The Social Security system today represents a "pending calamity," says Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee's Social Security subcommittee and probably Congress' leading expert on the subject.

Pickle, however, has been politically bound and gagged by House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neal Jr., D-Mass., and other fellow Democrats who place a higher premium on exploiting President Reagan's inept handling of the issue than on stabilizing the retirement system.

Virtually every time Reagan or a Republican candidate for office suggests the need for modifications in the system, the Democrats — in a demagogic approach that borders on irresponsibility — seek to embarrass the GOP by alleging that it is insensitive to the need of the nation's elderly citizens.

The president, however, is hardly credible on the issue because he has acquired a well-deserved reputation for insensitivity to most problems faced by the country's low- and middle-income citizens.

To delay full-scale debate on the future of Social Security until after this year's elections have been held, political leaders in both major parties have turned to a time-honored device — referral to a committee.

Thus, the 15-member National Commission on Social Security Reform is preparing yet another report on the issue, which must be submitted to the president by the end of this year. "We do not need another task force," says Pickle. "We know what the problems are, and we've known them for a long time."

One of the most severe problems is

'HE MAY NOT WIN, BUT WE'RE STILL BEHIND HIM. RIGHT FELLAS...'

Upping jobless pay a mistake

By OSCAR COOLEY

Congress is about to increase unemployment compensation. It would extend the period for which a person could collect such compensation by 10 weeks. This is the very kind of action that should not be taken.

Hard-hearted, am I? Not at all. Jobless pay is typical of the kind of action which is causing the inflation and the prolonged recession. With millions of people producing nothing but consuming normally, the nation's stock of goods and services is diminishing. Meanwhile, the nation's money is increasing. People are spending freely. Result: the supply of goods are rising. This is hardest on the poor.

Why is the nation's money on the increase? Because the government is borrowing heavily from the banking system, and every dollar borrowed and spent is a new dollar created and put in circulation.

All economic reasoning should begin with the consumer. It is for him that work is done and goods are produced. The United States is a nation of nearly a quarter billion consumers, all hungry.

Berry's World

By Rusty Brown

I leafed through a familiar book, rereading some of the quotes.

"I watch my daughter. From morning to night her body is her home. She lives in it and with it. When she runs around the kitchen, she uses all of herself."

"Occasionally, I feel jealous of the ease with which she lives inside her skin... It's hard to get back that sense of body as home."

I can identify with that passage, as can many women. Especially those of us who grew up knowing little about our bodies or how to feel about our femaleness.

As children, we often tried to learn more but were rebuffed. Even those of us lucky enough to have articulate mothers still had more questions than answers.

As teen-agers, we were awkward and insecure with only the vaguest perceptions of ourselves as persons. Bewildered by inner stirrings, we perched precariously, somewhere between inhibition and passion.

As adults, our bodies stayed pretty much a mystery, known better by doctors and husbands than by us. We often did not understand the things doctors said, nor were we able to speak openly about our sexual needs to husbands. We were too shy to compare wonderings with another woman.

And what did we really know about pregnancy? Could we admit ambivalence?

"I'm not the same anymore. I'm a pregnant woman. I'm in this category and I don't want to be. I won't matter to people now, only my baby will."

And what did we know about birth?

"I was amazed that this tiny human being, fully equipped for life and very beautiful could come out of me."

And what did we know about the things that could go wrong inside us?

"This March I went for my routine gynecological check-up... Three days later the clinic notified me that my Pap smear was 'positive,' or abnormal... For several minutes I was powerfully, irrationally terrified."

Such lack of information, such fears would have continued, no doubt, were it not for the woman's movement that spawned, among its many awakenings, the book "Our Bodies, Ourselves," from which all the italicized quotes are taken.

A dozen women in Boston, getting together to share feelings, decided their bodies were the part of themselves they knew least about. They wanted more control of their lives through knowledge. They set about getting both. They talked to doctors and professionals. They read medical research and asked questions of other women.

They mimeographed their notes and taught a course. The notes eventually became the book "Our Bodies, Ourselves." As authors, they call themselves the Boston Women's Health Book Collective.

Published first in 1973, the book has been updated and revised several times. Contents include: how to take care of ourselves and live with our sexuality; the anatomy of sexuality and reproduction; the illnesses we fall heir to; and what to expect from doctors and drugs.

Yes, the book explains abortion and cautions women to assume total responsibility for what happens to them.

"That means," write the authors, "that if we don't have some kind of birth control and we are pressed to have intercourse, it is up to us to say no."

For many years, this award-winning book has been considered a revelation, a volume of knowledge long overdue.

But now, there are those who would keep its cover closed to youth. It turns up on the banned book list, or on "closed" shelves in high school libraries.

It is keeping company with more than 100 off-censored titles, including "The American Heritage Dictionary," "The Wizard of Oz," "Lysistrata," "The Good Earth," "Brave New World" and "For Whom The Bell Tolls."

In an effort to demonstrate there is nothing to fear from such books, the week of Sept. 5-11 has been declared "Banned Books Week," sponsored by the American Library Association, the National Association of College Stores and American Booksellers Association.

It is hoped people will discover that reading banned books is not dangerous to their bodies or their selves.

Donovan cleared again, blasts accusers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan, cleared for a second time of allegations he once associated with mobsters, says he's angry he had to endure months of public scrutiny because of "groundless charges by nameless accusers."

Special prosecutor Leon Silverman concluded Monday that there "remains insufficient credible evidence" on which to prosecute Donovan on allegations of past ties to mobsters when he was a New Jersey construction executive.

Silverman's 111-page "final report" came nearly three months after he released a 1,025-page report in which the prosecutor arrived at the same conclusion. The earlier document was issued June 28. Donovan, in stark contrast to his triumphal Labor Department appearance following release of the initial report, appeared bitter Monday as he said: "It is tempting, and probably politically orthodox, for me to say how pleased and gratified I am that this entire matter can now be consigned to the historians," the 52-year-old labor secretary said.

"But I am angry. Angry that I've had to endure months and months of relentless press coverage of groundless charges by nameless accusers. Angry that my wife and children have suffered as only a family can suffer. Angry that my former business associates have been unfairly maligned."

Focusing on Silverman's disclosure that a witness admitted having deliberately lied about some 17 allegations made against the labor secretary, Donovan said: "I have always known that the charges against me were lies and I have told you so."

"That is why I believe the public, with their American sense of fair play, shares my anger."

Donovan refused to discuss publicly his immediate plans. But a Labor Department spokesman, who asked to remain anonymous, said Donovan planned to remain on the job.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Silverman's final report "was not unexpected and we're pleased with it."

Detroit schools to be closed during strike

By The Associated Press

Detroit school officials canceled classes today after only a small fraction of the district's 200,000 students showed up on the first day of a teachers' strike, and 8,000 non-teaching employees face layoffs for the duration of the walkout.

The Detroit strike, which began Monday, left more than 17,000 teachers on strike in Michigan, New Jersey, Illinois and Pennsylvania, affecting more than 316,000 students.

Detroit's 11,000 teachers, who earn between $15,000 and $30,000 a year, rejected a proposal by the school board to give up four days of holiday pay. No new negotiations were scheduled.

The school board had also demanded that teachers take an 8 percent pay cut to help ease a $23 million budget deficit, but board President George Bell said any cut would be put off for three months pending a report on the budget problems by an independent panel.

Negotiations broke down early Monday on the issue of holiday pay.

At a picket line in front of Barton Middle School, Detroit Federation of Teachers representative Thomas Cook said many of the city's 114,000 unemployed — 18.1 percent of the population — "have been supportive" of the striking teachers.

But as he spoke, a motorist stopped at a nearby traffic light leaned out of his window and called the teachers "money-hungry," saying that when he was a teacher he was glad to earn $8,000 a year. But a driver behind the first urged the pickets to "hang in there."

Elsewhere in Michigan, about 1,550 teachers were on strike in six other districts with 34,000 students.

Teachers in Wyoming, a suburb of Grand Rapids, walked out Monday, and strikes continued in Troy, Novi, Traverse City, Lake City and Fenton. Teachers in Ferndale voted to report to work today without a contract.

In Pennsylvania, strikes crippled 17 school districts, involving about 2,700 teachers and 47,750 students, including new strikes Monday in Johnstown, West Greene and Girard College.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS GENERAL ELECTION NOVEMBER 2, 1982

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 1 proposes a constitutional amendment that prohibits any state ad valorem tax. Receipts from previously authorized state ad valorem taxes that are collected after the effective date of the proposed amendment shall be deposited to the credit of the general fund of the county collecting the taxes and may be expended for county purposes. Taxes collected before that date shall be distributed by the legislature among educational institutions eligible to receive those funds under prior law. The proposed amendment also repeals a section of the Constitution levying an ad valorem tax for a construction fund for 17 state colleges and universities.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment repealing the state property tax."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 62 as amended by Senate Joint Resolution 10 proposes a constitutional amendment that would eliminate the $80,000,000 ceiling on state welfare aid during any fiscal year. The amendment would set the state welfare spending limit at $160,000,000 for the 1982-1983 biennium. The amendment further provides that, for each subsequent biennium, the maximum amount spent for state welfare shall not exceed one percent of the state budget.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to provide assistance through the appropriations process to needy persons and to place a ceiling on payments for needy dependent children at one percent of the state budget."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 8 proposes a constitutional amendment that would exempt machinery and equipment used in the production of farm and ranch products from taxation. No dollar limits would be imposed and the exemption would apply to corporations and partnerships as well as to families and individuals.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment exempting implements of husbandry (agricultural machinery and equipment) from ad valorem taxation."

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 77 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the Legislature to set a four year maximum term of office for board members of certain water districts and conservation and reclamation districts.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to provide terms not to exceed four years for members of governing boards of certain water districts and conservation and reclamation districts."

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 119 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize Tarrant and Bee counties to hold county-wide elections to abolish the county treasurer's office by majority vote. Should the county treasurer's office be abolished, the duties, powers, and functions of that office would be transferred to the county auditor or the successor to the auditor's functions.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment to abolish the office of county treasurer in Tarrant and Bee counties."

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 6 proposes a constitutional amendment that would raise the constitutional interest rate limit on state general obligation bonds from 6% to 12%. The new 12% ceiling does not, however, apply to bonds issued by the Veterans' Land Board. The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:
"The constitutional amendment increasing the maximum interest rate allowed on state general obligation bonds to a weighted average annual interest rate of 12%."

and fully engaged" in the diplomatic effort.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz met here Monday evening with Israeli Finance Minister Yoram Aridor. According to Aridor, they had a "thorough discussion" of Reagan's proposed overall peace plan for the Middle East.

He said he restated to Shultz Israel's objections to the plan, which calls on Israel to give up all control over the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. Aridor said he came away from the meeting satisfied that the administration would not threaten to cut back on economic aid to Israel to force Prime Minister Menachem Begin to change his position to Reagan's plan.

Talking cash registers are taken out

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — A supermarket chain has muzzled its talking cash registers at one store, after customers complained that they didn't like the artificial voice and thought the gadget would raise prices.

"Customers basically felt they were not necessary," said Stop & Shop spokeswoman Aileen Gorman from the chain's Quincy headquarters. "They didn't like the additional noise in the store and they particularly did not like the woman's monotone voice."

The voice, produced by a computer chip, reads out the price of items as their labels are scanned by the cash register.

The price also appears on a digital readout on the register and on sales slips, according to Linda Baker, public relations manager for the manufacturer, National Semiconductor of Santa Clara, Calif.

"The basic reason was to offer consumers one more way of verifying price accuracy," Ms. Gorman said.

The voice is based on a "broadcast voice" from an unidentified woman with a Midwest accent. The voice is tape recorded, then changed to a digital format and recorded on a microcomputer chip, Ms. Baker said.

"She wasn't a winner," Ms. Gorman said of the voice.

A survey several months after the eight registers were installed last December in a store here found that customers believed the devices added to their food bills, increased the noise level in the store and were unpleasant to hear, she said.

"No way did it have any effect on food prices," Ms. Gorman said. "That is a perception we were not able to overcome."

Ms. Baker said the devices, called Postalkers, add about $300 per checkout lane to the $90,000 cost of the supermarket scanner setup.

She said other supermarkets using the devices have received complaints about excessive noise, but solved the problem by turning down the volume.

Stop & Shop, which has installed scanner systems in about 80 of its 121 New England stores, has not given up on the Postalkers.

Ms. Baker said 185 stores nationwide have installed Postalkers.

Mending Mature Marriage

Void of laughter, couple takes life too seriously

BY LOUISE PIERCE

"DEAR LOUISE: Pop and I aren't ready to break up our 40 years of marriage, but we sure aren't enjoying our life much any more.

"We thought you'd be wonderful to be married and do all the things we used to say we would. But now that we're at home all the time and don't have the money we used to think we would, there isn't much to do that is fun any more.

"Pop says real stupid things and wants me to laugh at them. His jokes never were real funny but they're worse now, so I don't laugh. He isn't much amused when I say something I think is funny either, so he doesn't laugh.

"It's real frustrating when I read something out of the paper and wait for him to laugh and he doesn't. Like I say, I treat him the same way.

"We seem to get more bored with each other every day. Now don't tell us to get out and go to other people's houses or to old folks gathering or things like that. We don't have extra money to spend or real good clothes to wear. Besides, we used to like to stay home together. Can't we find some way to get back to enjoying each other's company? E.K."

DEAR E.K.: Indeed you can — if you have the will power to do it. Haven't you often laughed politely when a friend or neighbor told a joke you'd heard several times before? And didn't you feel better, more relaxed, because you offered that politeness to the story teller? Most of us have.

So why can't you give each other the same consideration? Since you were the one who wrote to me, you are more concerned than Pop is. So my suggestion is that you start laughing when he says something that seems funny to him. Force the laugh at first if you have to. We all like to be popular with listeners, especially at home. We don't like our touches of intended humor to be put down.

The good thing about laughter is that it is contagious. You will feel better when you laugh — and the laughter will become real sooner than you think it can.

Pop should be so pleased because he makes you laugh that his spirits will pick up. He should start laughing at your jokes before long.

A noted psychologist, Jacob Levine, once said, "Finding something funny is not only a prerequisite to a real friendship but often the first step to its formation."

Don't blow a fuse

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — Our fuse box in the utility room has the regular type of fuses in them — the kind that screw into place like an electric light bulb. I have just been told there is some way of telling when a fuse blows out whether it is caused by an overload or a short. Unfortunately, the person who told me doesn't know the difference. Can you help?

A — Generally, on a regular fuse of that kind, the little metal strip at the top of the fuse will break when an overload has caused the fuse to blow. When the see-through material at the top of the fuse gets black, the cause usually is a short.

Q — Our kitchen sink is beginning to drain a bit slowly. It hasn't prevented us from using the sink, but I see trouble ahead in the near future. I know the best way to unclog the drain is to take off the clean-out plug at the bottom of the trap under the sink, which may be a good idea except that our sink trap has no such plug. What do I do?

A — You will have to remove the trap itself, which you will see is connected to the vertical pipe and the horizontal pipe under the sink. Loosen the nuts holding the trap in place, working very carefully with a wrench and placing adhesive tape or something similar over the places which come in contact with the wrench to prevent marring the metal.

"DEAR LOUISE: My wife and I felt real good in our 60s and 70s. But now we're in our 80s, we're about to give up. Even our doctor says we have to expect to have aches and pains at our age. I guess we're old and might as well act like it. Can you tell us any way to get over feeling like we do? W.S."

DEAR W.S.: You are among millions of older people in the U.S. and the number is growing every year. But the majority of seniors, in my opinion, are not sitting in rocking chairs and commiserating. They are finding work, play, hobbies, new friendships — and dozens of other ways to forget their ailments. Often they discover that most of their health problems were imagined. Some of them were not being able to adjust to having lived longer and to the feeling that society was putting them on the shelf.

If your doctor adds to your feeling of defeat, get the opinion of another doctor. Hundreds of physicians encourage oldsters to feel younger by acting that way — walking more, visiting more, finding hobbies, doing small jobs or bigger ones.

"DEAR LOUISE: My gentleman friend and I have been widowed for several years. We each have a little money but we're not rich. We hear so much about how you can keep so much more of your money if you're single than if you're married. We want to live together but don't want to give all our money to the government. We're both over 65.

"What's your opinion of our living together? At our age, nobody should criticize us, should they? C.N."

DEAR C.N.: I believe everybody should. I'm for marriage every time, whether two can live as cheaply as one or not.

The greatest gift you can give a bedwetter and the rest of the family, too, is an end to this serious problem, and make no mistake, bedwetting is serious. It can cause complicated psychological problems that last a lifetime. It's so needless because bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended. Dear Abby

Husband's beers bought at wife's expense

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Why does a man have to stop off in a tavern after work to have a few beers with the guys he works with all day? We've been married nearly three years and have a 6-month-old son. I know Joe loves us, but after an 8-hour day working at construction, he feels he has earned himself "a few beers." So how many is "a few," Abby? When he comes home two hours late he says, "One guy buys you a beer, then you buy him one and so on..." I never know when to start cooking dinner because I never know how late he is going to be. Am I wrong to feel that he is being inconsiderate? I can understand stopping off for a beer or two once in a while, but he's made a habit of stopping every night now. Joe has plenty of freedom. He bowls two nights a week in the winter, and in the summer he plays softball. I'm home with the baby all day, and if he came home at a decent hour after work he could take over for a while and give me a rest. I hate to nag him, but this is really getting to me. What should I do?

ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: You have a right to be angry. You and Joe should set up some ground rules and decide which nights he will be late — and how late he will be. The uncertainty and endless waiting are unfair to you.

DEAR ABBY: Why don't you quit sending people to church to "meet" a nice man — or woman? I was always under the impression that people went to church to pray. If I am mistaken, please set me straight. Sign me... ALWAYS ON SUNDAY

DEAR ALWAYS: There are a variety of reasons why people go to church. Some go to pray, some go to pray that they meet someone. Other reasons:

1. Habit.
2. Training.
3. Fear of punishment from the Lord if they don't go.
4. To be seen.
5. To see who else is there.
6. To show off a new outfit.
7. To get spiritual inspiration.
8. To socialize.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just had our first baby. We've been married only 14 months, and although this baby wasn't exactly planned, we are thrilled.

My mother-in-law said, "I hope you kids aren't going to send out any birth announcements to all our friends who sent you wedding presents, because it's the same as asking for a baby gift."

We had planned to send some, but now we don't know what to do. In your opinion, is sending birth announcements the same as asking for a present?

BABY MAKES THREE

DEAR BABY: It's not "the same," but it could be interpreted to some as a hint. Send birth announcements only to those of your friends who are far away and may not have heard the good news. If there is a doubt as to whether you should send one — don't!

Retail sales, steel production down; foreclosures up

By The Associated Press

A drop in retail sales last month has dimmed hopes that July's federante a consumer spending spree to help the nation's economy emerge from recession.

A report by the Commerce Department on the lackluster sales for August was also accompanied Monday by other signs of a sluggish economy. A private industry organization reported the lowest operating level for the steel industry since 1938, and a lenders group said a record percentage of Americans are facing loan foreclosure proceedings on mortgage loans.

Meanwhile, an influential group of monetarist economists, known as the Shadow Open Market Committee, split sharply on prospects for a sustained recovery. It expressed concern over "a rising probability of defaults by major borrowers" worldwide.

"Some foresee the economy reverting to stagnation or recession in 1983 after a brief period of expansion," said the committee after two days of meetings in New York.

"Others foresee sustained recovery with growth of real output rising as much as 6 percent in 1983 and beyond."

Also Monday, the United Auto Workers union rejected the latest contract offer from Chrysler Corp., and threatened a strike unless it has an agreement by 12:01 a.m. Wednesday. Chrysler's offer included no pay increase or pension improvement, but did offer a cost-of-living increase based on profits, UAW President Douglas Fraser said.

The Commerce Department reported retail sales fell 0.9 percent in August after rising 1.2 percent in July. The major decline was a 5.6 percent drop in car sales.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the August sales figures reflected "the normal pattern" after a tax cut, such as the 10 percent cut in income tax rates in July. Baldrige said sharp spending gains often lag several months behind a tax cut.

But Sandra Shaber, an economist at the private consulting firm of Chase Econometrics, called the report "uniformly dismal."

In the nation's credit markets, traders received the retail sales report as a sign the economy was performing worse than expected, and prices rose more than $15 for each $1,000 in face value for some long-term U.S. Treasury bonds.

When the economy is down we demand for credit declines, pushing down interest rates. Bond prices rise when interest rates fall.

The American Iron & Steel Institute reported steel producers used 39.8 percent of plant capacity last week, down from 40.6 percent the previous week, and the lowest operating rate since the 39.6 percent for all of 1938.

The trade group said production so far this year has used 51.1 percent of capacity compared with 82.6 percent a year earlier.

The Mortgage Bankers Association of America reported a record 0.55 percent of the nation's 27 million home loans were "in the process of foreclosure" during the second quarter. It said about 5.56 percent, or 1.5 million, were 30 or more days past due, also a record.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Debra Sue Maffett says being Miss America gives her the opportunity to write her own ticket in life, and she hopes some day to be a talk-show host or run for political office.

The former Miss California, who was crowned Miss America 1983 in Atlantic City, N.J., on Saturday, said she hopes to use the pageant's $20,000 scholarship for undergraduate and graduate degrees in music at Lamar University in Texas.

"With the scholarships and notoriety, I believe I can pursue any area I want to very successfully," she said Monday.

Miss Maffett, 25, said she would like a career in entertainment, such as being the host of a talk show, and may even run for public office eventually.

Speaking of politics, Miss Maffett said she admires President Reagan.

"I didn't vote for him (in 1980), but if he runs again I would vote for him," she said. "As I'm getting older, I'm getting a little more conservative in my thoughts."

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — The dress was blue jeans and high school sweaters. The entertainment was old rock 'n' roll records. And the guest of honor was Gov. Bill Janklow, who was celebrating his 43rd birthday.

The partygoers, who included Republican leaders and party faithful, paid $10 each to dance to the sounds of Bill Haley and the Comets and Fats Domino at a birthday party Monday night that doubled as a campaign fund-raiser billed as "The '50s Revisited."

Janklow cruised to the party in a green 1950 Ford and walked in with his shirttail hanging over his blue jeans and white sneakers. His wife, Mary Dean, was dressed in a white high school athletic sweater and skirt, bobby socks and sneakers.

Janklow, who is fascinated by the 1950s, is trying to collect the top 300 records of every year of the decade, and says he is now only about 100 short of his goal.

"I guess it's when life was simpler," Janklow said in explaining his interest in the era. "It was something we could all understand. We all have our memories of our youth, and this is mine."

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor were back in each other's arms, but it was only an act — put on for comedian Bob Hope's upcoming television special.

In the show, Hope portrays a doctor who performs surgery on a hidden patient. The patient, who turns out to be Burton, jumps up after the operation to kiss the surgeon's assistant, played by Miss Taylor.

Before Sunday's taping, Burton and Miss Taylor — who were married twice to each other — spent several hours chatting in her dressing room.

Gov. BILL JANKLOW
