

Missing marshal wasn't: He knew where he was all the time

By JEANTIERNEY

DUMAS — The marshal isn't missing after all. Dennis Davis of Dumas, whom the White Deer city council hired as its first marshal early this month, simply decided he didn't want the job.

Instead, Davis said this morning, he and his wife, Tanya, are going into the appliance store business.

White Deer's mayor, Virgil James, said he expected Davis to start work last Thursday but received instead a phone message at the city offices that Davis had changed his mind. "I'm not mad at White Deer or anything," Davis said today. "They just weren't ready."

Davis said he began having second thoughts about the city marshal's job after learning he would have to use his own unmarked family car and his own police radio on patrol until the city's vehicle had been overhauled and painted. The White Deer car, which the city purchased used from the state Department of Public Safety, would not be delivered until perhaps December, Davis said.

As for the marshal's badge, Davis said the city didn't have one yet and that he had been preparing to use his own, the one he bought for his job as deputy in Dumas. "I was going to have to cover up the Moore County stuff with white label stuff."

Davis said he went to White Deer the afternoon of Oct. 14 and worked patrol in his own Oldsmobile from about 5 to 10 p.m. "to get the feel" of the job and community. "Really, not anything happened," he said of the evening's duty.

But the red flashing light which he already owned would not stick to the vinyl top of his car and left him patrolling in the dark without police lights, he said. If the White Deer car wasn't to arrive until December, "We didn't feel it was right to flag people down for two months in an unmarked patrol car," he said. However, he still prepared to move to White Deer late last week, expecting to start work Friday, and arranged for a moving truck.

Last Wednesday evening, he said, he talked to Mayor James on the telephone again and asked about the city car. He had bought an $800 radio for his own personal use and was preparing to use it for communications until the city car was ready, he said.

But after talking to Mayor James, he decided that perhaps he had "kinda jumped off" in taking the job and changed his mind. He phoned the White Deer city offices the next morning, while Mayor James was at work in Kingsmill, and said he would not be taking the job, he said today.

Neither James nor The Pampa News could reach Davis to find out more about his decision because, he said, he and his wife had already left for Midland to investigate the appliance store purchase.

"We wanted to get into a little business of our own," Davis said.

It would not have been fair to either White Deer or himself, he said, to have taken the marshal's job, with the cost of moving, only to resign a month later. "So I didn't really leave them up a creek," he said. "They just weren't ready." He and Tanya hope to open at least one of the appliance stores on Nov. 1.

For White Deer, the city council received a dozen other applications for the marshal's job. Said Mayor James last week, "We'll hire somebody."

Bus chief fired months short of retirement

Woman driver who accused him of sex harassment won't come forward

By JEFF LANGLEY

The supervisor of bus drivers for Pampa schools was fired for what the school district lists as "insubordination," but his wife says Superintendent James Trusty told her that her 65-year-old husband was fired because, "He won't leave the girls alone."

The school district is saying nothing about Saturday's firing of Given Vance, who lacked just a few months more service to qualify for a school pension.

Deputy Superintendent Paul Boswell confirmed he fired Vance, but said he would have no other comment about the matter.

Vance and his wife of 40 years, Sophie, are outraged at the firing and the school's allegations that Vance sexually harassed the female bus drivers.

The couple says the supervisor of Pampa's schoolbus drivers for the past 10 years was never told by school administrators what he was accused of doing to the female drivers or who made the charges against him.

"Can't I be confronted by my accusers?" Vance said he asked Boswell.

Vance and his wife say he never touched any of the bus drivers, who all except one are women, in a sexual way, and Vance said none of the drivers ever complained to him about sexual harassment or touching.

The fired supervisor said it all began at the start of this school year when Boswell received an anonymous letter from one of the drivers, complaining of sexual harassment.

Vance said Boswell called him into his office September 21, and he said the school's second-in-command told him, using lewd language terms, not to molest the women drivers.

Vance said he was not told which driver or drivers were accusing him of sexual harassment, and he said he can't recall any incident during his nearly 10 years with the district that could be considered as sexual harassment.

He concedes he has touched and hugged some of the women drivers, and he said they have touched and hugged him. But he said the touching was never of a sexual nature, and said it was just part of being close to his drivers. He also said the touching only amounted to an arm around the shoulder or a pat on the back.

"My husband talks with his hands. He pats them on the back. For God's sake, we're human beings. People do these things. It just burns me up," his wife said.

Since he said he was never specifically told what one of the drivers claimed he did to her, Vance said he has thought hard about any incident at the bus barn which may be claimed as sexual harassment.

Vance said the only things he can recall are a couple of jokes made by some of the women drivers about bananas his wife packed for him in his lunchbox.

Boswell indefinitely suspended Vance with pay on August 18, and he fired him Saturday morning.

Vance said Boswell asked him to resign, but Vance said he refused.

Sophie Vance said they have known Superintendent James Trusty on a first-name basis for about 25 years, "ever since he was a teacher over at the junior high school."

She said she called Trusty at home the night Vance was fired, and she said the superintendent bawled her out for calling him on a Saturday.

Mrs. Vance said she asked Trusty if her husband had done a good job. She said the superintendent replied, "Yes, but he won't leave the girls alone."

"Can you imagine how I felt? We've been married 40 years. My husband has no sex drive at all — I wish he did. He had open heart surgery, and his medication takes away all of his sex drive," Sophie Vance said.

"My husband is a kind and gentle man. They're trying to make him out like some kind of dirty old man, and he isn't," she added.

Burglar takes a bride

They got hitched during Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge's first jailhouse wedding, but it may be several years before they have their honeymoon. Paul Gerik, the new groom, has been charged with three Pampa burglaries and with the armed robbery of Keyes Pharmacy, which netted bandits both cash and pills. If Gerik is convicted of the charges, this may be the closest the beaming bride, Cindy Lee Holt, ever gets to her new husband for several years. In a letter to The Pampa News last week, Gerik pledged his undying devotion to Holt, and said he did it all for her. Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan gave the jailed suspect permission to attend the ceremony Monday afternoon.

story from one of the female bus drivers who asked not to be identified.

She said she did not believe Vance had "fondled" any of the drivers, and said she didn't think her boss was treated fairly by the school's administration.

"I don't believe it. I've been there several years, and he never made a pass at me. He's had the opportunity too," she said.

Vance said he believes the charges were brought by some of his disgruntled co-workers.

The fired supervisor said he was going to retire in August after qualifying for a pension from the teacher's retirement fund. But his firing has wiped out the 65-year-old's hopes for a monthly check from the school system, Vance said.

Sophie Vance said she doesn't want anyone to feel sorry for them by thinking the couple is "destitute."

She said she will soon qualify for a social security check, and her fired husband receives a retirement check from his service in the Navy.

The Vances moved to Pampa about 25 years ago, finishing Vance's military career as the Navy's Pampa recruiter.

"We love Pampa. Our kids went through school here. We even have cemetery plots here. We planned to die here — but now I don't know," Sophie Vance said.

Pampa News sponsors Thanksgiving story contest

Each of us has experienced a moment or two in our lives that we are especially thankful for — a time above and beyond the usual experiences for which we are grateful.

This moment could be a reprieve from a moment of tragedy, a happy ending to a sad event, or a flash of insight that has been of lifelong importance.

The Pampa News is looking for first-person accounts of these type events as part of "For this, I'm thankful..."

The search will be in the form of a contest with prizes and a chance for your story to be printed on The Pampa News' front page on Thanksgiving Day.

Entry deadline is Nov. 17 at 5 p.m. Stories will be judged by the editorial staff of The Pampa News. Second through fifth prize stories will be printed in the paper beginning with the Nov. 19 edition. The first prize story will be printed in the Thanksgiving edition, Nov. 24. Winners will not be known until the stories are printed in the paper.

Rules for the contest are as follows:

Each entry is limited to three typewritten pages, lines double-spaced. At the head of the first page, three inches from the top, should be the title and the name of the author. Each page should be numbered and have a one inch border on sides and bottom. The age of the writer will be considered in the case of children in judging.

The story must be a first-person account written by the person who experienced the situation. The writer must be willing to sign and include a notarized statement that the events written about are true and that the writer actually wrote the account.

No employees of The Pampa News or their immediate families are eligible to enter the contest. The Pampa News reserves the right to edit the accounts; and all entries become the property of The Pampa News when they are received.

The number of entries per person is not limited, as long as each account is different.

Prizes, in addition to having your story printed, include a first prize of $25, second prize of $10 and a $5 third prize. First through fifth prizes each receive a year's subscription to The Pampa News.

Entries can be mailed to The Pampa News, P.O. Box 2198, Pampa, 79065 or brought to the news office at 403 W. Atchison in person.

For more information, contact Anthony Randles or Dee Dee Laramore at 669-2525.

Rabies scare

Friendly black cat terrorizes west Texas town

BIG LAKE, Texas (AP) — An affectionate, lovable but rabid cat caused a rabies scare in this tiny West Texas town that was heightened when area hospitals ran out of vaccine.

City officials said the 27 children and adults who befriended the cat traveled 70 miles to San Angelo hospitals for vaccines last weekend, but eight were turned away when doctors ran out of the anti-rabies vaccine.

Available vaccine supplies also were drained in Abilene and more had to be ordered from state health officials in Austin, said City Secretary Tony Wille.

None of the residents have been found to have rabies, an almost-always fatal viral disease.

"There was no serum in Big Spring or San Angelo," said Tina Ajirogi, a sister of a man who was bitten by the cat. "What are we supposed to do, sit around and die?"

"This is a life-or-death matter," Mrs. Ajirogi said. "...We're taking a chance if we don't take the shots."

More vaccine arrived Monday at Angelo Community

Hospital, and the vaccine also was on re-order at Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital, spokesmen for the hospitals said.

Eight people, including five children, were not treated during the weekend because both hospitals ran out of the vaccine, said Nina Hallmark, the mother of one untreated child who compiled a list of those who did not receive treatment.

Officials feared the worst when the black and white cat, cared for and fed by neighborhood children, was found to have rabies, said Wille, who coordinated local efforts to prevent an outbreak in this town of 3,400 people.

"This cat was an affectionate, lovable stray that was in the neighborhood for some time," he said. "All the children were feeding it and playing with it."

"The people who have been affected have been quite concerned. In some families, the whole family has been involved," Wille said. "It's all kind of traumatic for them."

"I wasn't that worried about it until I talked to my pediatrician in Houston, and he couldn't understand why we hadn't got the shots," said Angela Dodd, whose two children also had not yet received treatment.

The rabies scare began Tuesday when a man was bitten by the cat, which had recently had a fight with a group of dogs, Wille said.

A veterinarian in Big Lake killed the cat and sent its head to Austin where tests determined Friday that the animal had rabies, said Wille.

"The thing is, we just don't know how long it had rabies," he said. "It is quite likely that the exposure level was less than was thought. There are a lot of people being vaccinated on the supposition that a lot of small children were exposed."

The shots must be administered in a painful series of injections over 21 days.

Medical experts believe only three people have survived rabies, a viral disease that attacks the central nervous system, can cause paralysis and usually transmitted through the saliva of an infected animal.

San Angelo pediatrician Dr. Jane Rider said the shots to the 26 people not thought to have been bitten by the cat were a necessary precaution.

"These are young children," she said. "We don't know for sure if they haven't been scratched or bitten. Secondly, some people feel rabies are transmitted from saliva to the mucus membrane of the lips or mouth."

In 1979, a rabies outbreak ravaged Texas' wildlife, with 1,195 cases reported.

That same year, more than 8,500 dogs were killed in the Texas border city of Eagle Pass and its Mexican sister city Piedras Negras during a rabies outbreak.

Three children died, one of them infected on the Texas side of the Rio Grande.

Since 1960, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta reports, rabies in humans has appeared at a rate of about two cases each year.

Excedrin headache Number One

Excedrin banned in Colorado after poisoned capsules found

DENVER (AP) — Colorado stores were urged to pull extra-strength Excedrin capsules from their shelves after a man became ill from taking a capsule of the pain reliever laced with toxic mercuric chloride, authorities said.

After the poisoning Monday, state health officials advised residents to stop taking Excedrin and return what they have to the stores.

"I want people at home to put it in plastic bags and not touch it any more than they have to" in case police need to check Excedrin bottles for fingerprints, said Dr. Barry Rumack, director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Control Center.

He said handling capsules containing mercuric chloride, used in mercury batteries, fireworks and dyes, probably would not poison anyone who did not swallow them.

Larry Gomez, Denver district director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said he lacked authority to order stores to quit selling Excedrin, but called for voluntary action and said federal agents were checking store shelves for other tainted capsules.

The Excedrin incident was the latest in a rash of product taintings around the nation since seven people died in Chicago near the beginning of October after taking cyanide-laced capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol.

William Sinkovic, 33, was listed in stable condition today, improved from critical, in the intensive care unit at Aurora Community Hospital after taking Excedrin found to contain the toxic substance.

A nursing supervisor said Sinkovic was conscious early this morning and able to speak.

Rumack said Sinkovic took three capsules at about 10 a.m. Monday. About a half hour to 45 minutes later he developed acute stomach pains and began vomiting and bleeding — symptoms of heavy metal poisoning, Rumack said.

Sinkovic's wife and mother both said late Monday they did not know where he bought the capsules. Rumack said the pills apparently were purchased within the past month, possibly at one of two local supermarkets.

Harry Levine, spokesman for New York-based Bristol-Myers, which makes Excedrin, said early today the company no immediate comment on the Colorado incident.

But Rumack said he talked Monday to Ben Lanan, medical director of the company, who hoped the spiking was a local problem and offered the services of Bristol-Myers labs.

"I believe it is time we remove all products made in capsules from sale," said Rumack. "It's too easy to contaminate them."

Texas expects 2.5 million voters to cast ballots next Tuesday

By The Associated Press

Texas Secretary of State David Dean is sticking by an earlier estimate that about 2.5 million voters will turn out for the Nov. 2 general election.

Dean said Monday that he based his prediction on a survey of absentee voting in 40 counties that contain about 66 percent of the state's registered voters.

He said estimates by county clerks of the turnout in the counties ranged from 24 to 66 percent, with an average estimate of 45 percent.

"I continue to believe that voter turnout on Nov. 2 will range from the low to mid 40 percent range," Dean said.

Dean said there would be another survey after absentee voting ends Friday, Oct. 29.

Meanwhile, Gov. Bill Clements' campaign manager charged Monday that $70,000 in reported loans to the campaign of Democratic challenger Mark White do not exist.

Ed Smith, executive vice president of Allied Bank in Houston, verified the bank has no record of four loans totaling $70,000 that White reported on a campaign finance statement earlier this month, the Dallas Morning News reported.

White said he has commitments from four individuals, but "probably the paperwork hasn't cleared the bank."

Jim Francis, Clements' campaign manager, said White has shown "incompetence or worse" by not complying with financial disclosure laws.

White said the law does not require candidates to differentiate between loans received from a bank and those still unapproved and unfunded.

"We just reported it exactly as the law requires," White said.

Clements, campaigning in South Texas on Monday, predicted he would carry Cameron and Hidalgo counties which, with Bexar County, comprise the state's largest concentration of Mexican-American voters.

Addressing a meeting of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers in San Antonio, Clements indicated a proposal to raise the state's drinking age to 21 would face a tough fight in the Legislature.

"I don't intend to beat my head against a stone wall. I am not going to snap at a goat and swallow a camel," Clements said when asked if he would push for the change.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, battling for re-election against Republican challenger Jim Collins, predicted Monday that more hard economic times could be ahead.

Bentsen said he does not foresee a quick reduction in the national unemployment rate and warned the United States can expect "tragic consequences" if the Federal Reserve Board should permit interest rates to go up after the Nov. 2 elections.

Ten thousand apply for 250 jobs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Kelly Air Force Base officials say test scores will be used to weed out 10,000 applicants who showed up Monday for 280 job openings.

The waiting line stretched for six blocks by 8 a.m.

Those filling out applications will be tested in December to determine who is hired, said Kelly spokesman Harry Nixon. He did not know what type of test will be given. Those scoring the highest on the test stand the best chance of being hired.

Civilian personnel officials at Kelly continued accepting applications today but Nixon said he doubts that anyone who fills out an application today will be tested in December since base officials had planned to take only 2,000 applications through today.

The positions are for 280 trades and crafts apprentice jobs. Starting pay for the blue-collar, Civil Service jobs is $5.55 an hour, Nixon said. Such jobs are offered on a year-to-year basis, pending congressional allocations, the spokesman added.

Jobs offered involve maintenance on B-52 and C-5 aircraft. There are 15 job categories, ranging from aircraft engine repair to welder. Those hired will not report for work until the summer of 1983. They will begin a two- to four-year program leading to journeyman status.

Nixon said those hired will eventually take the place of workers who will be retiring in the near future.

"The apprentices are needed because our work force is aging and retiring," Nixon said. "We must keep a skilled work force."

Woman in extortion plot can't pay bond

HOUSTON (AP) — Jill Renee Bird, one of five persons charged with trying to extort $15 million from Gulf Chemicals Co., hoped to be released from jail today after her bond was reduced from $1 million to $200,000.

Ms. Bird, who earlier had been promised immunity by federal officials, could not post five percent or $10,000 of her bond Monday and was jailed while her family tried to raise the money.

Charles Szekely, Ms. Bird's attorney, said he was pleased that U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley had reduced the bond. But he noted he was disturbed the government had reneged on a plea bargain agreement that would have freed his client from prosecution.

Federal authorities promised Ms. Bird immunity in exchange for information from John Marvin McBride, 46, the alleged mastermind of the scheme in which five bombs were planted at Gulf Chemical's Cedar Bayou plant near here. The plant was closed for five days in late September and early October.

U.S. Attorney Dan Hedges said, however, McBride failed to live up to his part of the agreement and also argued that the immunity pact was not binding since the government entered into it under duress.

During Monday's hearing, U.S. Attorney Ron Woods had two letters read into the record which he said were presented to bolster the government's argument that Ms. Bird, 34, should be held on $1 million bail for her role in the extortion plot.

One letter, the original Sept. 28 extortion note sent to Gulf officials, stated that the conspirators "are all professional criminals who have never been caught."

The other, a Sept. 29 "love letter" to Ms. Bird from her common-law husband, John Marvin McBride, stated that McBride was "proud of the courage you've shown in our last investigation together."

Botley said he interpreted that as a reference to the extortion plot.

FBI agent Terrance P. Donahue testified that the FBI had traced a long distance telephone call that had been made from a motel room in Phoenix that had been rented by one of the persons indicted to a room in Houston that had been rented by Ms. Bird.

Ms. Bird and McBride were indicted Friday along with Theodore Duane McKinney, 45, Timothy K. Justice, 30 and Michale Allen Worth, 34. All are from Durango, Colo.

Five bombs were found at the plant, about 30 miles east of Houston. One exploded harmlessly during efforts to disarm it.

The 12-count indictment, prepared against all five defendants, accuses each of conspiracy to extort, attempted extortion, illegal use of explosives, illegal transportation of explosives across state lines, mailing a threatening letter and threatening to damage a facility. If convicted, each could face a maximum sentence totaling 100 years in prison.

Last week, Botley set bond for all five defendants at $1 million.

Election day's over

It appears as if election day is over as John Dozier of the Dallas Street Department removes campaign signs from a Dallas street Monday afternoon. With the election still eight days away Dozier is just removing the signs that were illegally placed along the roadway. From the number of signs in his truck it looks like his work is cut out for him both before and after Nov. 2. (AP Laserphoto)

Bond denied for two charged in cocaine flight

LAFAYETTE, Ga. (AP) — Two men were being held without bond today and five others on bonds of $5 million following the seizure of $300 million worth of cocaine at a northwest Georgia airport, authorities said.

The seven were arrested early Monday by federal and state agents who said they confiscated a plane load of South American cocaine.

FBI agents said the twin-engine Piper-Navajo-Panther arrived from Colombia about 12:45 a.m. with 647 pounds of "very high grade" cocaine. Gunfire was exchanged as the officers closed in, but no one was injured, said FBI agent Al Millard.

The seven men — including the pilot, co-pilot and five men waiting on the ground — were charged with violating federal narcotics laws, Millard said.

U.S. Magistrate Clinton Morgan denied bond for John Oscar Luck, 52, of Clarkston, Ga.; and Franklin Crump, 44, of Alpharetta, Ga.

Morgan set bonds of $5 million for Ralph Larry Pace, 24, of Cumming, Ga.; William Page Vicary, 48, of St. Claire Shores, Mich.; Gene Claude Easterling, 50, of Cayce, S.C.; Charles Donald Boldin, 43, of Clarkston, Mich.; and Johnny Ray Moore, 50, of Houston, Texas.

Prosecutors said Luck already was out on bond in connection with the bombing of an Atlanta strip club in August. They said Crump was out on bond on a motor vehicle theft charge.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Wisebran had asked Morgan to deny bond to all seven, arguing that each of the men had the financial resources to leave the country.

After setting bond, Morgan scheduled a preliminary hearing on Nov. 2 for the seven, who were being held in the Floyd County jail today.

It was the third major cocaine seizure in the area in four months. In July, state and federal agents seized about 1,100 pounds of cocaine valued at about $400 million in Bradley County, Tenn., just north of the state line. Last month, cocaine valued at more than $500 million was found in containers in a wooded area near Ellijay, Ga., about 60 miles east of here.

Millard said agents "do not know what connection" the latest seizure may have with either of those cases.

Agents of the FBI, Drug Enforcement Administration, U.S. Customs Service, Georgia Bureau of Investigation, Georgia State Patrol, Lafayette police and Walker County sheriff's office staked out the small Lafayette airport.

"We didn't know in advance how they were going to unload the drugs," Millard said. "We had the whole airstrip covered."

In addition to the airplane and the cocaine, the agents seized a small amount of marijuana and four cars that were waiting on the ground to pick up the drugs, authorities said.

Walker County Sheriff Ralph Jones said the plane was empty of seats except for the pilot's and co-pilot's seats.

Sheriff corrals suspect quickly

YORKTOWN, Texas (AP) — In Dewitt County, Sheriff Bobby McMahan says he always gets his man.

When a man used a 20-gauge shotgun Monday to rob the Yorktown Community Bank of $5,206, McMahan arrested a suspect within 30 minutes.

"We don't fool around down here," McMahan said.

McMahan said a gunman walked into the bank at 2:25 p.m. and demanded money. About 30 minutes later, McMahan said, a car matching the description of the bandit's car was spotted in the nearby South Texas town of Runge.

The car ran through a fence and slammed into a tree, McMahan said.

Harrelson's stepdaughter returns to witness stand

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys have had three days to review the sensational testimony from the stepdaughter and parttime lover of Charles V. Harrelson, the man accused of assassinating U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Theresa Starr Jasper was scheduled to return to the stand today, three days after she linked Harrelson to the $250,000 prosecutors say was the payoff for the murder of the judge.

Defense attorneys used the weekend to review her testimony and listen to 60 hours of conversations secretly recorded by her now estranged husband, FBI informant Michael Jasper.

The trial was recessed until today because presiding U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions had another commitment Monday.

Mrs. Jasper was the 43rd witness called by the prosecution during the first 10 days of testimony of a trial attorneys say could last two months.

Harrelson is on trial for murder and is accused of being the triggerman in the May 29, 1979, slaying of Wood. He is on trial with his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 42, and Elizabeth Chagra, 28, the wife of the man accused of paying Wood $250,000 to kill Wood.

Mrs. Chagra is charged with conspiracy to murder the judge and with obstruction of justice. Mrs. Harrelson is accused of perjury and obstruction of justice.

Imprisoned drug trafficker Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, will be tried later on murder charges that allege he paid for the assassination.

Mrs. Jasper, who spent six months in jail last year before agreeing to testify under immunity before a grand jury, said Friday that she went to Las Vegas, Nev., less than a month after the slaying and picked up a package of $100 bills that the government alleges was the payoff.

She said she delivered the money to Harrelson in Corpus Christi, Texas, and he told her it was to pay off a gambling debt.

Mrs. Jasper also testified she later had a four-month affair with her stepfather. Wood was killed by a single bullet in the back. Prosecutors allege Chagra paid Harrelson to kill the judge so that Wood could not preside at Chagra's then-pending drug-related continuing criminal enterprise trial.

Chagra was subsequently convicted and sentenced by Sessions to 30 years in prison without parole.

Council favors tax hikes over axing police department

RISING STAR, Texas (AP) — Presented with a choice of firing this tiny West Texas town's two policemen or raising taxes, Rising Star councilmen say they would rather opt for higher tariffs.

More than 400 of the 1,200 Rising Star residents jammed a high school auditorium Monday night to hear the City Council explain how it plans to end the town's financial crisis.

The money crunch reached a crisis proportion two weeks ago when Rising Star's general fund dropped to less than $15.

Councilmen presented a budget based on hikes in property taxes and utility rates that countered former Mayor H.L. Killion's plan to save money by firing the two-man Rising Star police force.

Killion, who resigned Friday to protest the council's insistence that the officers be retained, said the city's tax base would only yield $44,000 for all city services, and would not cover the $53,000 required for the current police budget.

Rising Star resident J.R. Morrow supported Killion. "If we don't have the money to pay our policemen, we don't pay them. If you don't have food on your table, you don't eat," Morrow said.

Several residents said at the meeting they believed that Rising Star needs at least two policemen to combat what several called "a major drug problem."

Mayor Pro-Tem Doug Owens opened the meeting by cautioning listeners to speak calmly "without pointing fingers or raising voices" and "pull together and run this city as we would our business."

The projected budget calls for revenues from city utilities to rise from $277,000 to $393,000, with most of the increase earmarked to start payment on a $125,000 natural gas debt.

"Our water and sewer departments have been operating at a loss for some years due to the fact that the rates have remained the same, but the years kept rolling by," Owens said.

Most of the increase in general fund revenues are expected to come from boosting property taxes from the current rate of 44 cents per $100 valuation to 60 cents per $100 valuation.

"I think we're taxed to death, but we need to raise money," former city councilman John Lee said.

The budget was hammered out recently by a citizens' committee composed of three council members and several residents.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A ticket to overreach

The First Lady's declaration of war on drugs has drawn some interesting recruits. Last week Dan McKinnon, the Reagan-appointed chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, put various airlines on notice that he's prepared to start excluding airlines whose employees are determined to be involved, whether willingly or through negligence or carelessness, in smuggling drugs into this country.

According to McKinnon, a recent veteran of San Diego political wars, drugs can destroy the moral fiber of the country, and complicity in the drug trade should be a factor when the CAB determines whether airlines are fit to fly.

Regulatory reform passed in 1978 calls for the CAB to be dissolved on Jan. 1, 1985. Apparently McKinnon has in mind for the board to go out of business with a bang, by threatening to lift licenses for activities that ought to be the concern of other law enforcement agencies, if anyone. He is stretching the CAB's mandate out of any recognizable shape.

The rationale for CAB licensing of airlines (or granting permits to land in the U.S. to foreign-based carriers) is to protect passengers from unreliable carriers. It is stretching that rationale to ask them to be responsible for passengers or employees who thwart the law and use their carriers for drug smuggling. Should passengers, or even employees, be involved in illicit trade — assuming we wish to outlaw any form of commerce — appropriate remedies exist in criminal law for such activity. To use the CAB's economic power to prevent them from flying at all is punishment that does not fit the crime.

The Reagan administration has claimed that it is committed to deregulation. Apparently, however, that commitment depends on whether some activity pushes an emotional button. If an airline is being used to smuggle drugs, the CAB, even as it is going out of business, is willing to intervene without evidence of a threat to passenger safety or convenience.

It is not surprising to find people, who are very human after all, willing to use regulatory power to wage unrelated crusades. That is one reason such power is so dangerous and so subject to abuse.

The CAB is one of the few government agencies whose size has actually been reduced in the last few years. It would have been better for it to go out of business quietly.

With October waning, winter is just around the corner, and forecasters are saying it will be a cold one, especially in the eastern states. Ohio University meteorologists foresee temperatures running 3 to 4 degrees below average, while Cornell University wetherman say they'll be 6 to 11 degrees down. The Athens authorities judge by the jet stream, while the Cornellians stick to the sun spots.

Some doubt if the weather can be accurately forecast so far ahead. Suffice it to say the winter will be cold (it always is) and householders will do well to prepare for it. The steep increases in prices of natural gas will not make the frost easier to bear.

An obvious step that one can take to insulate his house, if that has not already been done. Renters complain that their landlords will not bear the cost of insulating. In such case the tenant should insulate since it is his feet that will get cold.

Time to make ready

One could make sure that all openings are protected by storm windows and doors. One layer of glass being an easy conductor of heat, there should be two, with air space between. If a storm window is broken or lacking, a good substitute can be made of plastic obtainable at any hardware. Flexible and easy to cut, it should be cleated firmly to the wooden frame.

If there is the least danger of exposed water pipes freezing, they should be wrapped, or better still, packed. To protect a sill cock, the valve inside should be shut off and the sill cock opened. You won't need to water the garden for a few months!

Speaking of garden — your strawberry bed might appreciate a winter blanket. Straw is best, though leaves or grass clippings will do, but be sure to rake them off in early spring before they smother the crop. Stop berating the late weeds that grow in the strawberries. This is one time when they may prove useful.

If you have young fruit trees, when the first snow comes, tread it down around each tree. This is to discourage mice from lurching on the bark.

Some latitudes may get snow for the first time. What does one equipped with as good snow shovel. Use it as soon as the storm abaters. If you wait, pedestrians will use your walks, packing the snow into ice. Then some luckless coddler may slip and fall, breaking a bone. In most towns, the property owner is responsible for the sidewalks in front of his house, as well as the one leading to it.

Use the snow shovel, but don't use it too vigorously, for it is easy to overtax the heart when the cold is spurring you to hurry.

Another timely consideration is winter footwear. Is there anything more pitiful that a person wading in snow with only low rubbers or none at all on his shoes? Four — buckel overshoes, called gilaoshes or, fittingly, Arctics, the kind you can tuck a foot of pant leg into, are more appropriate. They cost, but a severe cold from wet feet costs more.

Those who have trouble meeting their fuel bills — and some did last winter, more this — can be ingenious in packing their loved ones into smaller space. Families grow, but houses don't. I have heard of 5 kids sleeping in one bed, but it would seem more feasible to set up a bed or two in the basement.

If one positively cannot pay for his gas on time, he should notify the company and arrange to make payments each month. Don't ignore fuel bills and let them run until the company, despairing, cuts off your supply. Proving one is willing to pay but unable in the emergency, may well be effective. In winter, the fuel supplier is a good fellow to have on your side.

These are just a few seasonal things to think about, when you get tired worrying over Begin and Beirut, Reagan and the recession. Most of the winter warmers will tell you all about how to get the government to pay part of your fuel bill. You'll get warm a lot more quickly and easily by calking your own cracks and fitting your own storm windows.

Jobs and technology

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The complexity of forces bearing on the nation's economy is such that a comprehensive understanding is very difficult to attain. Nevertheless, certain underlying forces can be identified.

One of these is technological change. An editorial in Challenge, a magazine of economic affairs, recently commented that: "We are facing an ongoing technological revolution as significant as the Industrial Revolution of the 18th century."

Thirty years ago, a third of the nation's employees were in services, finance, and wholesale and retail trade. Now, roughly half are in the services sector. The American people continue to use the goods that come from manufacturing, but an even higher percentage of these goods are purchased from foreign producers. The jobs that made possible the American-produced items have disappeared.

The situation is complicated by the fact that American manufacturers, in an effort to preserve a share of the world's industrial production, are being driven to introduce more and more automatic machinery. In the years ahead, completely automated factories will replace many of the plants now crowded with workers.

Challenge speculates that "It may well be that labor will be turned out of the factories in the 1980s and 1990s, much as farmers fled the land in the decades following the Second World War."

If this speculation is borne out by events, how will the displaced industrial workers be employed? One truth is central: the United States cannot afford to have a large pool of permanently unemployed workers. The system has to work for everyone. That's been the great success of the free enterprise system.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that foreign companies have a huge share of the so-called brain industries. If this trend continues, it could spell disaster for the American worker now being displaced from older industries.

At the moment, the United States lacks a national policy with respect to these basic problems. The talk in Congress and the media is largely of restaring old production lines and rehiring of workers who have lost their jobs in the recession. This may be wishful thinking. Certainly, it ignores the transformation in manufacturing that is taking place in this country. These problems constitute a crisis that is much more significant than most of the crises that are occurring on the international political scene.

He lost his job

By ART BUCHWALD

I was sitting in Lafayette Park facing the White House when an unshaven man in a rumpled suit, and no shoe laces, sat down next to me, and looked hungrily at my lunch.

"Would you care for a bite?" I asked. "If it isn't too much trouble," he said, "I'm unemployed, as you can probably gather."

"I'm sorry to hear that," I said sincerely. "Where did you work?"

He pointed to the White House. "Over there."

"I didn't know the White House was laying off people," I said. "Ordinarily they aren't. But they made an exception in my case. I was the guy who invited Gary Arnold to attend the President's pep rally in the East Room for congressional candidates."

"Gary Arnold? You mean the fellow who started haranguing Ronald Reagan about his tax program, until the President lost his temper and told him to 'Shut up.'"

"That's the one. I sent out the invitation to him in San Jose, Calif."

"Here have another sandwich," I said. "Didn't you have any idea he would make trouble when you invited him?"

"What did I know about Gary Arnold? He was just another pretty face on a computer. My orders were to invite all the Republican faithful to the White House, so Reagan could give them a pep talk for their congressional campaigns. I figured anyone from California was a team player."

"You would think that," I said. "It wasn't your fault he became a household word."

"That's what I told Meese, Deaver and Baker. But they said I should have smelled he was an off-the-wall conservative. I believe the thing that really got to them was when Arnold started shouting 'We have a Tylenol taxing situation here, and we have Reagan - mortis setting into the nation's body politic.'"

"He shouldn't have said that in the President's house."

"Look, you can keep the left-wing looks out of the White House, but where do you draw the line on the right-wing fringe?"

"You should have been tipped off when you saw the guy had a beard. A conservative with a beard is much more dangerous than a liberal with one."

"We know that now, but we didn't then. In fairness to me, he was wearing a suit and a tie."

"That should have been your clue. A right-wing guy with a beard wearing a suit and tie is bound to cause trouble in the White House. You want an apple?"

"I'd rather have your banana. I haven't told you the whole story. After I invited all the congressional candidates for the pep rally I got a brainstorm. I suggested the President make it a media event and invite in all the press and television cameras to cover it. I said the President wouldn't have a more loyal audience in the East Room during his entire term, and they would pitch him nothing but softballs so he could articulate his program. The guys around the Oval Office thought I was a political genius, until Gary Arnold said the Emperor had no clothes on."

"I have a hard-boiled egg," I said. "The way I see it, you did everything right, and they're just making you the fall guy because the Republicans can't keep their right-wing fanatics under control."

"That's nice of you to say. You don't have any salt for the hard-boiled egg do you?"

I handed him my salt shaker. "So just because a hothead congressional candidate dumped all over the White House Republican party in the East Room in front of the TV cameras and press, you were given your walking papers. Didn't you at least try to take your case to the President?"

"I did as soon as the meeting was over."

"What did he say?"

"He told me to shut up."

Catholic statement condemns first use of nuclear arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops would condemn any first use of nuclear weapons under a draft declaration on modern arms to be debated at the National Conference of Catholic Bishops' annual meeting.

The position contrasts with the "flexible response" policy adopted by the United States and its European allies. That policy would allow each side to use tactical nuclear weapons in Europe if necessary to repel an attack with conventional arms.

"We do not perceive of any situation in which the deliberate initiation of nuclear warfare, on however restricted a scale, can be morally justified," the proposed bishops' analysis says.

"Non-nuclear attacks by another state must be resisted by other than nuclear means."

The 105-page draft document, prepared by the bishops' Ad Hoc Committee on War and Peace, says the overwhelming evidence is that a nuclear exchange would be impossible to limit.

The new draft is the second version of a major pastoral letter on which the committee has been at work for more than a year. It was released prior to the bishops' annual meeting in Washington, scheduled for Nov. 15-18.

The bishops are expected to do more work on it there prior to it being formally issued in 1983.

Humanity faces its "supreme crisis because nuclear war threatens the existence of our planet," the new draft says. "It is a threat more devastating than any the world has ever known."

Top Reagan administration officials have sharply criticized the condemnation of any first use of nuclear weapons, as contained in letter's first draft, but it was retained in the redrafting.

Secretary of Defense Cas Weinberger said that without the op of a nuclear response to mass conventional attack in Europe, the and NATO allies would lack flex means to prevent aggression.

The bishops' committee, headed Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardini of Chicago, gives reluctant and high qualified approval to possession nuclear weapons as a "deterrent" prevent their use.

But the deterrent policy is accept only provided it is a step on the toward progressive disarmament, document says, adding:

"As clearly unsatisfactory as deterrent posture of the United States from a moral point of view.

Israel-Lebanon to negotiate troop withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — With U.S. help, Israel and Lebanon are preparing to open talks aimed at drafting a detailed plan for the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon, a senior U.S. official says.

Direct negotiations would be an important step in the U.S. goal of removing all foreign forces — Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian — from Lebanon by the end of the year.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, briefed reporters Monday on a plane returning Secretary of State George P. Shultz from a meeting with Canadian officials in Ottawa. He said that the United States would be a participant in the talks.

At the same time, the official reported that special U.S. envoy Morris Draper, en route to the Middle East to direct U.S. efforts at achieving Israeli withdrawal, cut short his mission during a stopover in London after developing a kidney stone.

However, the official said it is not believed Draper's temporary absence should slow the negotiating process significantly and that the talks still are expected to open next week's end.

"One thing is pretty clear," the official said. "If we're going to make it (a complete troop withdrawal) by the end of the year, we've got to get a plan into shape promptly."

He said the United States will now concentrate on the need to create a security zone in southern Lebanon to protect northern Israel, an area that in the past was shelled frequently by Palestine Liberation Organization forces.

He noted that Lebanese President Amin Gemayel has called for an immediate pullback of Israeli forces from their current positions as a sign of good faith.

U.S. officials "think that is a good idea, if it can be brought off," he said.

Such a step might require redeployment of some elements of the 3,000-man multinational force now positioned in Beirut, the senior official said. The force is made up of French, Italian and U.S. troops.

After the Israeli withdrawal, there might be a need to place neutral military presence along the main highway leading from Beirut to Damascus.

Astro-Graph
 by bernice bede osol

The foundations you've laid for old ventures will serve as successful launching pads for new projects this coming year. Build upon that which is already proven.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Give priority today to matters important to you financially. You're fortunate in this area and could do yourself a lot of good. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. It reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Ways could open today to enable you to bring nearer to reality something you've been hoping for. Act promptly once you see the "go" signals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your ability to make something worthwhile from small opportunities will be in full gear today. Gains might result from several situations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your ambitions will be easily motivated today. Once you set your mind on something you are not likely to fall short of your mark. Assist yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your chances for success will be greatly enhanced today if you can figure out ways to show how, by helping you further your interests, others can gain as well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to get others more closely involved in projects you're now pursuing. Their help and input could be instrumental in speeding progress.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Normally you don't like to juggle several matters at once. Today, however, the more you have to do the better you'll perform.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You need projects today which stimulate you intellectually. You also need activities which give your muscles a workout. Appease both your mind and body.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be a little more persistent today if there are changes you wish to make which you feel will be of benefit careerwise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) One of your greatest assets today is your ability to make everyone you deal with feel important. You'll have the occasion to use it successfully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a possibility today that two unrelated channels could open up to make it possible to add to your earnings or resources. Be ready to move.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have the ability today to competently manage situations too difficult for others to handle. Step in where you are needed.

Eighth contaminated Tylenol bottle discovered

Undercover queue

CHICAGO (AP) — A newly discovered eighth bottle of cyanide-tainted Extra-Strength Tylenol was purchased by a woman who turned it in without taking a capsule, says a law enforcement source.

The contaminated bottle, detected in lab tests Monday, was turned over to FBI agents who planned to use laser technology in hopes of finding fingerprints that could lead to the killer, officials said.

Five of the poison-spiked bottles led to the deaths of seven people in the Chicago area between Sept. 29 and Oct. 1. The other tainted bottles found so far did not cause any harm.

In another product poisoning case, federal officials Monday urged stores throughout Colorado to pull bottles of extra-strength Excedrin from their shelves after an Aurora man became ill from taking capsules laced with toxic mercuric chloride.

The newest tainted Tylenol bottle found in the Chicago area was purchased by a West Chicago woman, according to a law enforcement source in Washington, who asked not to be identified by name or department.

The source said the bottle was turned in to police "some time ago, perhaps weeks ago" but was "just processed today (Monday)."

The source said the woman, who was not identified, turned the bottle over to police, who mailed it to a lab operated by McNeil Consumer Products Co., the makers of Tylenol.

Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, who is heading the cyanide investigation, said the bottle was purchased at a Frank's Finer Foods store in Wheaton. One of the poisoning victims, Mary Reiner, 27, purchased her fatal dose at a Frank's Finer Foods store in Winfield, about eight miles from Wheaton.

Fahner said the bottle did not come from the same lot as any of the seven previous tainted bottles. The new bottle came from lot No. MC2873, he said.

Meanwhile, police discounted reports that they have a prime suspect described as a relative of one of the victims, in the Tylenol case.

NBC News reported Monday night that officials are investigating whether a conspiracy existed between a relative of one victim and a man named Roger Arnold. He was arrested on a minor weapons charge Oct. 11 and officers found books on poisoning at his home.

Arnold, who was scheduled to appear in court today on a charge of possession of unregistered weapons, has denied any involvement in the Tylenol case.

Area agriculture meet scheduled in Amarillo

Farmers and cattlemen in Gray County will hear what a group of industry leaders and specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service see just ahead for Panhandle agriculture during a Wednesday meeting in Amarillo.

The program will be held at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd., West, with registration to begin at 8:30 a.m. The conference starts at 9:20 a.m. and concludes at 3:30 p.m. A $10 registration fee includes lunch and conference proceedings, according to Joe VanZandt, Gray County Extension Agent.

He said the program will deal with current obstacles to agriculture in the state and the North Plains, United States and international trade and policy decisions such as the recent decision to sell grain to Russia, the worldwide recession and its effects upon area agriculture, and commodity markets.

VanZandt said an outstanding group of speakers from Texas and other states will examine the economic outlook and offer marketing strategies to help crop and livestock producers in the area cope with the situation.

Powerful Florence archbishop dies

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Cardinal Giovanni Benelli, the powerful Florence archbishop who helped select popes and twice was considered a papal candidate himself, died early today after spending four days in a coma induced by a massive heart attack. He was 61.

Benelli, once called the Vatican "Kissinger" because of his influence on church policy under Pope Paul VI, had awakened from the coma briefly Monday night and requested to spend "the last moments of his life on earth" in his own bed, the Florence University Careggi Hospital said.

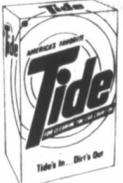

"His Eminence died at 6:42

(1:42 a.m. EDT) this morning at his residence, after being transferred from the hospital."

Hundreds of faithful, some weeping and praying on their knees, gathered outside the cardinal's residence on St. John's Square to pay their last respects to Benelli, church officials said.

Hundreds of job hunters take shelter from an icy pelting rain early today in a line of make - shift shelters stretching along three city blocks in midtown New York. Some had been in the line since Friday waiting until the city's carpenters' union hands out applications for 400 apprenticeship jobs. (AP Laserphoto)

Dear Abby
Woman spins her wheels
while boyfriend idles

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've always been the "Dear Abby" in my group, and now I'm writing to you for advice. I've been living with "G" for nearly two years. He's 29 and has been divorced for three years. I'm 24.

The problem is that "G" refuses to make any kind of commitment to me, but I'm totally committed to him! We never spend any holidays together. He always goes to his ex-wife's to be with her and their 5-year-old son.

He says he cares for me and doesn't want us to break up, but he just can't commit himself to anything yet.

He calls his ex-wife to talk to his son and ends up talking to her for an hour. I have the feeling that "G" is trapped in an emotional bind with his ex mainly because of their son. I make nearly as much as "G," but he is paying off a lot of old debts, plus child support, so I carry the bigger share of the load financially — rent, utilities, groceries, insurance, etc.

What is your advice? I love the guy, but I don't want to waste the best years of my life in a relationship without a future.

"M"

DEAR "M": I don't have a crystal ball, but from your letter I see no "G" in your future. He's not "trapped" in an emotional bind — you are. Your love for him is preventing you from doing what you ought to do for your own sake. Say goodbye to "G," and run like "h".

DEAR ABBY: I have been married and divorced three times, and am engaged to be married to a man who has been divorced. We both have grown children.

We had planned to be married quietly out of state, but a friend of ours wants us to have a big wedding and reception for all our family and friends. Would this be appropriate under the circumstances? Please help us make the right decision. We want to do the right thing.

FORTYISH BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: For a couple who have been to the hitching post a total of four times, I think a quiet, out-of-state marriage would be more appropriate.

DEAR ABBY: Last week I received the following commercially printed announcement in the mail (made-up names).

"James Smith and Nellie Brown are celebrating nine years together with the marriage ritual on Oct. 25, 1982. For this new stage in our lives we have chosen the names of John and Nellie Born. We ask your love."

Abby, can you please tell me what this means? Is it an invitation to a wedding? Is it a legal name change? Or what?

I can't keep up with the younger generation. I don't know whether to send a card, a gift, or just accept it as an announcement of some sort.

NELLIE'S CONFUSED AUNT

DEAR CONFUSED AUNT: Accept it as an announcement. If it were intended as an invitation, the time and place of the "marriage ritual" would have been included.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to put in my 2 cents' worth about those printed announcements people send to everybody whose address they happen to have. I refer to graduation announcements, wedding announcements and "baby-is-here" announcements.

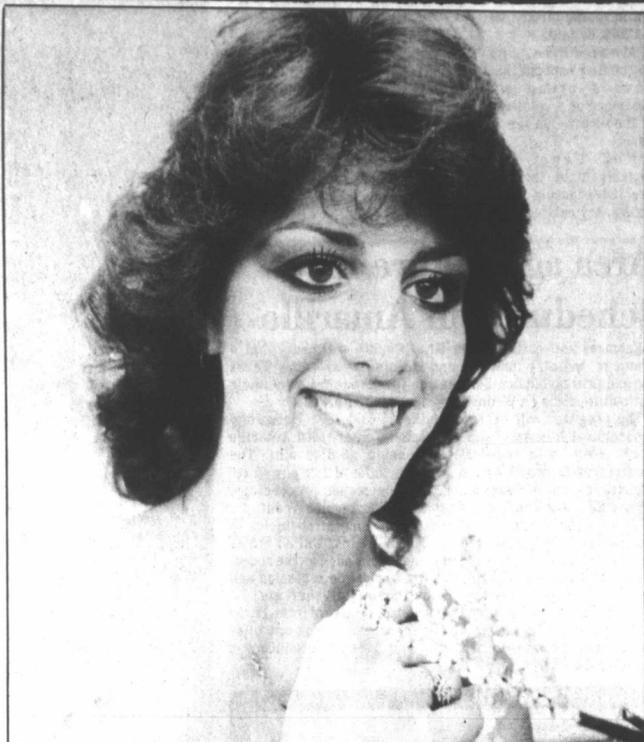

When people ask if sending an announcement is the same as asking for a present, why don't you come right out and say, "You'd better believe it is!"

Just try not sending out any announcements, and see how many presents you get!

SICK OF ANNOUNCEMENTS

DEAR SICK: When in doubt, don't send an announcement. But believe it or not, some people are so thrilled to have a graduation, wedding or new baby, they want to tell the world.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Brandi Huff, a Pampa High School senior, looks at the crown she won Saturday in the Miss Aggie Princess Pageant at Panhandle State University in Goodwill.

High school senior wins
Oklahoma beauty pageant

Surprise! Surprise! Surprise! Until her name was called, Brandi Huff, a senior at Pampa High School, had no idea that she would be chosen Miss Aggie Princess of Panhandle State University (PSU) in Goodwill, Okla., Saturday night.

Brandi, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Huff of Pampa, won the contest in a field of 21 contestants from area high schools. Judges selected the winner on the basis of interviews, talent and poise in evening gowns.

A veteran of several beauty contests, the Miss Aggie Princess pageant was the first she had won, Brandi said.

Her attitude is that beauty pageants "should not go to your head. You should go with the attitude of having fun, not cut somebody's throat," she said.

Miss Aggie Princess pageant has been presented as part of the homecoming festivities at PSU for the past 10 years. It has been several years since a Pampa High School senior has participated in the contest, however, Brandi said.

Through the pageant, high school senior girls have the opportunity to represent their school and city, compete with others in talent and evening gown categories and vie for $600 in scholarships to Panhandle State University.

Brandi participated in the homecoming parade the morning of Oct. 23, then the contest and as winner participated in the half-time activities of the PSU and New Mexico Highlands University football game.

The contest was the first large contest Brandi had ever competed in, she said. "It was well done, you could tell it was organized," she said.

Pampa High School's Student Council members chose Brandi to represent the high school in the contest.

Brandi played a rendition of "Rhapsody in Blue" on the piano as her talent presentation.

Music is a large part of her life. She has participated in concert choir, dancing and won first place in district and regional piano composition.

She is also a member of the National Honor Society and is Student Body secretary and vice president of the concert choir.

Pampa will be seeing Brandi in pageants closer to home early next year beginning with the Miss Top O' Texas pageant and later in the Miss Dance contest here.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

All roads lead to roam...

Autumn charms of Colonial Williamsburg

HA1161G

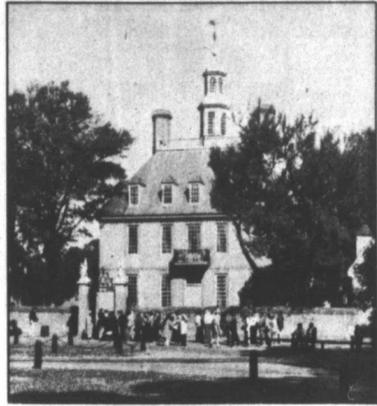

A SHELTERED SIDE PORCH, FRAMED by planters, leads to the main entrance of this home. A living-dining "L" combination occupies the front portion of the interior. There are three bedrooms. Plan HA1161G has 1,685 square feet. For more information write — enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope — to architect Carl E. Gaiser, 25600 Telegraph Road, Southfield, Mich. 48034.

By HELEN KLEIN
The autumn season does justice to Colonial Williamsburg. The mellowed colors of the gently aged brick and stone are at their best framed by rustling russet and amber leaves, lit by the intensely golden fall sun.
The elegant, understated architecture of this living relic of America's heritage is set off by still-lives of gourds and pumpkins, propped up against the buildings with disarming casualness, and by the blazing colors of autumn flowers in vases on mantels or windowsills.
Whatever the time of year, Williamsburg's main thoroughfare, Duke of Gloucester Street, bustles with Historic Area personnel, dressed in colonial costumes, and an endless stream of tourists come to admire what is probably America's foremost restoration.
They come to view the historic houses, furnished with period pieces to recreate the ambience of the 18th century, and they come to dine in the colonial taverns, where present day sojourners can enjoy meals similar to those served to their 18th century counterparts.

They purchase gingerbread men from the baker's shop behind the Raleigh Tavern, drawn there by the enticing scent of yeasty breads and spicy cakes.

They visit the apothecary, their attention captured by the row of blue and white porcelain jars deftly reflecting sunlight and shadow, and they visit the wigmaker's, their husuch a pleasurable experience that it is difficult sometimes to recall that it is also educational. Something this enjoyable just can't be "good for you."

We forget, when we sit entranced in Chowning's Tavern, watching jugglers and magicians perform, that these nightly gambols are based on period entertainments; perhaps George Washington himself whiled away an idle evening in precisely the same fashion — before returning tired to one of the seemingly hundreds of beds which he made famous.
If George Washington happened to sleep here, he — not incidentally — also ate here and relaxed here and, most important of all from our perspective, participated here in events that would lead to the American Revolution.
His companions carried names equally resonant in the annals of the time — among them, Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson.

Local to sing in opera

Bill Combs, a sophomore vocal performance major at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, will sing the role of Dr. Grenvil in Verdi's classic opera "La Traviata," Oct. 28-30 at Lubbock Memorial Civic Centre in Lubbock.
Combs, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel R. Combs of Pampa, was active in Lubbock Summer Rep this past summer, performing minor roles in "Jesus Christ Superstar" and "The Pirates of Penzance." His first two performances with the Texas Tech Music Theatre include last year's operetta, "Die Fledermaus," in which he was an understudy for the role of Frank; and "Iolanthe," in which he had a leading role of Lord Chancellor.
"La Traviata" will begin each night at 8:15 p.m. The production is sponsored by Civic Lubbock, Inc., Texas Tech Music Theatre and Texas Tech University Theatre.

Inexpensive decorating ideas.

Are you on the lookout for some inexpensive do-it-yourself decorating ideas to perk up your home?

Here are some thoughts to consider from the wall coverings industry:

- Cover three mailing tubes of different heights with metallic wallpaper and slip clay or glass pots inside them. Group the three together to make an indoor planter area.
- Buy or make two different size plywood boxes. Cover each one with straw matting or other grass cloth-textured wall covering. Stack one box on top of the other for an easy and inexpensive contemporary coffee table.
- Make a decorative folding screen with two or three hinged plywood panels covered in a wallpaper pattern that matches your decor.
- Create interest at the end of a long hall by wallpapering a "garden view" or trompe l'oeil scene on the back wall.
- Cover an unpainted chest with wallpaper and use a different coordinating pattern to line the drawers.

The versatility of these simple-to-execute ideas is based on wall covering.

Living Legends Rodeo

The Living Legends Rodeo, sponsored by the Old Timers Rodeo Association, has chosen Amarillo as the site of its 1982 Finals. The rodeo will be held in the Amarillo Civic Center Wednesday through Saturday. The top 300 contestants from rodeos in 20 western states will meet in head-on competition in the The Civic Center for more than $40,000 in rodeo's major events. All contestants are over 40 years old and defending champions include such well-known rodeo names as Benny Reynolds, Melrose Montanta, former All-Around PRCA champion; John McBeth, former PRCA champion saddle bronc rider; Ron Rossen, three-time world champions bull rider, and Junior Garrison, twice PRCA world champion calf roper. The legendary Freckles

Brown (pictured above in the 1966 Cheyenne rodeo), former PRCA world champion bull rider, will serve as honorary rodeo arena director. Tickets for the performances: Wednesday, Pepsi Bargain Night, all seats $4.50; Thursday, Friday and Saturday $6.50, $5.50, $4.50 reserved. Thursday and Friday, Kids 12 and under and Senior Citizens one-half price.

Kuenn to manage another year

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Harvey Kuenn, the man who managed the Milwaukee Brewers to the 1982 World Series, is coming back in 1983, and the applause being heard is from team management and players.

The rehiring was "just great," said pitcher Jim Slaton after Monday's announcement.

Brewer President Bud Selig said he was delighted with Kuenn's decision to return. Said third baseman Paul Molitor: "There is definitely no one on the team that dislikes the man."

"From a personal standpoint, we're all pleased to have him back," said Harry Dalton, Brewers' executive vice president and general manager.

The Brewers announced that Kuenn had agreed to a one-year contract, terms of which were not disclosed.

Kuenn, 51, said he didn't want a contract for a longer period. "I guess I'm different than a lot of people," he said. "I wouldn't want to tie the club down for two years."

Kuenn became interim manager June 2, replacing Buck Rodgers, who was fired after the Brewers had lost 14 of 21 games and had fallen into a tie for fifth place in the American League East.

Kuenn's message to the club when he took over — "Be loose. Have a laugh. Go out and play the game and have fun" — resulted in the team finishing with a 72-43 record under Kuenn and capturing the division title with the best record in baseball, 95-67.

They went on to win the American League championship before losing the World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games.

"Harvey was a very key factor in the success of this team," said Dalton.

"He was just laid back, even as a coach," said Molitor, referring to Kuenn's position as batting coach since 1971. "There's no question you need to be managed somewhat, but it comes down to chemistry over the course of a long season."

Slaton, too, praised Kuenn's management abilities.

"He's seen the different managers, and he knows the personalities, and that's the biggest thing about managing," Slaton said.

Kuenn's health had been a consideration in naming him interim manager, Brewer officials said.

He underwent heart bypass surgery in 1976, stomach surgery in 1977 and amputation of his right leg in 1980.

"The only concern Harry (Dalton) and I had from June 2 on was Harvey's health — that was paramount," said Selig. "Once we were fully satisfied that Harvey was well, that was it."

Kuenn said he remained in good health throughout the season.

Martin waiting to turn another team into a winner

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Billy Martin is baseball's "Mr. Fix-It." Head-strong, fiercely independent, fiery and untamed, he has emerged as the most coveted and highest priced manager in the game.

He's worth every penny of whatever he gets. But put him on a short leash. He is impatient and restless. He doesn't like deep roots. He gets the job done — pronto — and then starts looking around for other fences to mend.

There's no manager in the world better able to take a tattered, disorganized and uninspired ball club and turn it into an instant winner. Trouble is he doesn't like to stay around and admire his handiwork. He outwears his welcome. Always he's got to hit the road again.

So now the fractious, pigiron-tough Casey Stengel protege is out of the corral again — a frisky maverick waiting to be grabbed by someone in dire need of help.

And there are a lot of eager grabbers. Gabe Paul, boss of the Cleveland Indians, is dangling a $1 million, three-year bait under Billy Boy's nose. New York newspapers keep insisting he's coming back to the Yankees for the third time — or is it four? Out on the West Coast, talk is he is owner Gene Autry's choice to replace the highly respected Gene Mauch, who quit after failing to put the California Angels into the World Series. Autry denies it.

What kind of a guy is this wiry, mustachioed rebel who turned sow's ears into silk purses at Minnesota, Detroit, Texas, New York Yankees (twice) and finally Oakland only to be fired when the work was done?

You have to let him tell you himself. When he takes over a ballclub, Billy says, the first thing he does is get rid of what he calls "the clubhouse lawyers, alibiers and complainers."

"When I'm managing, you'd better take your job seriously or you won't be around long," Martin says in his autobiography, "Number 1," written in collaboration with Peter Golenbock.

"If you play for me, you play the game like you play life. You play it to be successful, you play it with dignity, you play it with pride and you play it aggressively."

Billy said when he first came to the Yankees in 1975, he found the locker room operating like a country club.

"Players were bringing their friends in ... others were baby-sitting their own kids, and I noticed that in the bullpen during the game the pitchers were playing cards and eating sandwiches."

Martin quickly put an end to such informality, contending this lack of professionalism was reflected in the team's play.

Yet he insists he is not a strict disciplinarian. He is against driving a team in training, one of the few managers favoring brisk one-a-day workouts. He says, going to a new club, he soft-shoes it during the adjustment period, allowing players to sink or rise to their own level.

Coronado hospital VB results

Coronado Community Hospital Volleyball League action Monday night saw Respiratory Therapy fight off X-Ray's challenge for a tie for second place, while Business Office maintained their 5-0 record for the league leadership. Physical Therapy and Respiratory Therapy share second-place honors.

The top-ranked game of the night was the opening bout with Respiratory Therapy taking an 11-15 loss to X-Ray, before rebounding for twin 15-3 wins in the following sets.

The win cost X-Ray their bid for a possible comeback, leaving them with a 3-3 season standing. Correspondingly, the match cemented RT's share of second-place honors with Physical Therapy, both boasting 4-1 standings and leading to a possible three-way tie for first place next week.

Business Office picked up a 15-7 win over Medical Records, but then faced a serious challenge in the second frame, as the Record Wreckers, fresh from their victory last week over Housekeeping, kept pace with the top-ranked league leaders, as the lead see-sawed back and forth before climaxing with a 15-13 win for Business Office.

In the final game of the evening, Physical Therapy posted a neat 15-8 tally over Housekeeping, but had to battle in the second frame against a re-nerved fervor, as the Housekeepers blazed back for a 10-15 win, closing out the set in the third frame, 15-6, giving the Physical Therapy six a 4-1 standing in the hottest game of the evening.

The night's first game will see Medical Records with a 1-4 record face Nursing Service with an 0-5 standing, followed by Housekeeping vs. Respiratory Therapy. The Housekeepers have a 1-4 standing, compared with RT's 4-1 tally.

The final bout will determine if Business Office takes the league championship with an unblemished 6-0 record or faces a three-way playoff against Physical Therapy and Respiratory Therapy, both presently tied for second with 4-1 standings.

Game time starts at 6 p.m. at the First Assembly of God Church gym at Cuyler and Brown Streets next Monday.

Rangers undecided on new manager

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have backed off naming a new manager immediately and General Manager Joe Klein says "we'll see what happens by the end of the week."

Klein tentatively had scheduled a news conference for today, but he backed off Monday.

Although Klein has refused to confirm publicly who is in line to become the team's 12th manager in 12 years, published reports have named Chicago White Sox coach Jim Leyland and minor league manager Doug Rader as the top candidates.

Bobby Valentine, a minor league instructor for the New York Mets, confirmed Monday that he has been dropped from consideration.

Leyland, 37, managed for 11 years in the Detroit farm system.

Rader, 38, has been the pilot for the Hawaii Islanders, San Diego's AAA farm club in the Pacific Coast League, for the past three years.

Klein, who was scheduled to fly to Tampa today for a meeting of general managers, said it was unlikely a manager would be named before Monday.

McCurdy wins 10-k classic

CANADIAN—Canadian's Cliff McCurdy, winner of Amarillo's Wellington Square 10-K Classic in July, won the 1982 Kiwanis Lake Marvin 10-K Classic last week.

McCurdy's winning time was 32:22. Pampa's Lou Allred finished second in 34:21 and Chris Hansen, Also from Pampa, was third with a time of 35:41.

Borger's Jimmy Fowler was the first woman finisher, crossing the line at 44:28. Canadian's Mary Alice Parnell was next in 49:16 and Borger's Lita Lenderman followed in 49:42.

Pampa's Fred Venal topped the two-mile fun run in 11:37. Canadian's Kimberly McEntire (14:28) and Theresa Price (14:49) were second and third respectively.

Pitt takes over top spot in AP football poll

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh is No. 1 again, edging Washington out of the spot it had held in The Associated Press college football poll for six consecutive weeks, but neither team's coach was particularly excited by the change.

"It's best to be undefeated. If you're winning, everything else takes care of itself," Pitt Coach Foge Fazio said Monday night.

"As I've been saying all year, it's the final poll that counts. The national championship is still our goal," Washington Coach Don James said.

Despite an offensive struggle for Saturday's 14-0 win over unranked Syracuse, Fazio said he isn't surprised his Panthers were back on top.

"Nothing surprises me anymore. Nothing surprises me about how they vote," he said.

The Huskies received more first-place votes in the poll released Monday, but Washington missed the top spot by four points. Both teams remained unbeaten and untied.

The Panthers were No. 1 in the preseason and first regular-season polls, but dropped behind Washington after beating North Carolina and then slipped to third after defeating Florida State.

Fazio and James said they don't emphasize poll rankings.

"I'm sure our team will look at that tomorrow morning and say, 'Wow, that's really great.' But I don't think anyone's going to do cartwheels," Fazio said.

"I really haven't given the polls a whole lot of thought," James said.

Yet, Fazio acknowledged the poll can affect the Panthers' opponents.

"If I was coaching a team and we were unranked and we were playing the No. 1 team in the country, that's an added incentive. It's easy to get up for that," Fazio said.

But James said, "I think we've been getting everybody's best shot, but we may have gotten it anyway."

The Panthers' much-touted offense, with quarterback

Danny Marino at the controls, has yet to deliver on its preseason promise of exciting football.

Against Syracuse, it produced just two touchdowns out of its 381 total yards.

Fazio said the win didn't disappoint him, although specific plays may have.

"We may have been ripe for an upset," he said, adding he was glad it didn't happen.

Pitt's first four victories were over teams ranked in the Top 20 when Pitt played them — North Carolina, Florida State, Illinois and West Virginia.

The Panthers received 21 of 58 first-place votes and 1,109 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Cowboys' Johnson says season can be salvaged

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Butch Johnson says he thinks National Football League teams can extend the 1982 season into February to salvage a season after the long strike.

"I don't feel the season is over," Johnson said Monday. "We could play an extended season until February. We had a playoff game in 37-degree-below-zero temperatures last year."

Johnson addressed a luncheon of the Dallas-Fort Worth Sports Media Association. "Thanks for the free lunch, I needed it," he said.

most fans were becoming apathetic about professional football as negotiations between management and the players' union have stalled.

Players have begun to show more divisiveness at team meetings, Johnson said.

"A lot of things have been said (by players) that won't be forgotten," Johnson said.

But disagreements between players won't show up on the grass and astro-turf, Johnson said, "because we all are professionals."

The Cowboys have missed games with Minnesota, the New York Giants, Washington, Philadelphia and Cincinnati. Dallas was scheduled to play the Giants again this Sunday.

Player representative Robert Newhouse left Dallas Monday for a week's work in San Antonio as players scatter to make ends meet during the strike.

Lady Harvesters take command of first place

BROWNFIELD—Pampa regained sole possession of first place in the District 1-4A standings Saturday with dual victories over Brownfield, 15-1, 15-3 and 4-15, 15-4 and 15-8.

Shaun Simmons scored 12 points in the opening match while Teresa Jernigan added nine.

The Lady Harvesters are now 10-1 in district play and will meet second-place Borger there Tuesday, starting at 6:30 p.m.

Pampa also won the junior varsity match, 15-10, 6-15 and 15-8. Monica Kelley scored 10 points and Renee Aiken seven from the service line. Rosalind Meadows had three dinks.

Pampa's ninth-grade volleyball team closed out the season Saturday by placing second in their own tournament. The junior varsity team placed third.

The ninth-grade varsity had good serving from Shannon Churchman and Lori Green.

Lanie French was the B team's outstanding server, according to coach Jo Karbo.

Amarillo Travis won the tournament title.

Pampa's ninth-grade closed the season with a 13-6 record.

Akers: All is not lost

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — After a "couple of big disappointments," the Texas Longhorns need to remember "that all is not lost," says Texas coach Fred Akers.

Texas was 3-0 before losing to Oklahoma 28-22 and 30-17 to undefeated Southern Methodist.

Next at Lubbock comes Texas Tech, which was edged by No. 1-ranked Washington 10-3, and Akers told his weekly news conference Monday. "Playing Texas Tech is no easy chore, especially after they just played a very emotional and inspirational game against Washington. We're going to have to remind ourselves that what we're doing is not all bad."

After the loss to SMU, a game that turned on a deflected pass for a touchdown, Akers said he told his players they could wallow in "self-pity" or forget it and get on with the season.

Akers said the pass from SMU quarterback Lance McIlhenny was so poorly thrown it "shouldn't have been caught by anyone."

The ball bounced off defensive cornerback Jitter Fields' arm into Robert Leach's hands, and Leach raced for a touchdown on a 79-yard scoring play that put SMU ahead 17-10 in the fourth quarter Saturday.

"Some times what looks like a mistake turns out to be a jewel, and I think that's what happened there," Akers said.
