No code violations found in home despite lack of sprinklers

The wing of the Pampa Nursing Center where two residents died, and where other elderly residents were trapped in their smoke-filled rooms, has no sprinkler system, but the absence of a system violates no laws, according to the local fire marshal.

Smoke and fire at the home, located at 1321 W. Kentucky, killed two residents and injured nine others Sunday evening.

The nursing home is owned and operated by one of the largest nursing home operators in Texas and Oklahoma.

The 100-bed facility, which housed 69 patients when the fire erupted, is owned by National Living Centers, with headquarters in Houston.

According to Houston company spokesman, Dee Smith, the company owns and operates 158 nursing homes in Texas and Oklahoma.

In those homes live 12,500 patients, according to Smith. The company has owned and operated the Pampa facility since 1974, Smith said.

The north wing of the U-shaped Pampa facility has no sprinkler system, according to Pampa Fire Chief Paul Jones and City Fire Marshall L.V. Bruce.

Bruce and Jones said the point of origin in Sunday's fire during the dinner hour at the nursing home was in a television set in a private room in the far northwest corner of the facility.

Jones said the fire spread from the television set to the wall behind and then to two beds in the room. The fire spread to the hallway and heavy smoke quickly spread along the entire north wing, Jones said.

Many elderly residents in the wing had to be pulled out of their rooms through smashed windows.

Bruce said the home was built before state law required sprinklers in all nursing homes. He said the home does have sprinklers in "hazardous areas," such as the boiler room and kitchen, but none in the wing which saw two fire deaths.

He said the center must receive a waiver from the state each year to continue operating with no sprinkler system.

The home is inspected by the city fire marshal's office every "three to six months," according to inspector Floyd Steele. Steele said the facility was last inspected less than two weeks before the fire, on September 29. Steele said no violations were found at that time.

Smith said most of National Living Center's nursing homes are equipped with sprinkler systems. She said "80 or 85 percent" of the company's homes have sprinkler systems, and "some are fire resistant buildings."

"We regret two people have died, and (that) several others were hospitalized as a result of the fire. Employees evacuated 69 residents in less than five minutes," Smith said Monday.

Many of the residents are temporarily staying across the street in another nursing home, the Coronado Nursing Center.

That home is not connected with the Pampa Nursing Center, but Coronado Administrator Jim Moore said the two facilities will share staff and work together during this time of emergency.

The Coronado Nursing Center is owned by Beverly Enterprises, Moore said.

National Living Centers plans to move all 69 residents back into the local facility on Wednesday, pending cleanup and inspection of the undamaged portion of the building, Smith said.

Firemen brought the blaze under control shortly after their arrival, but the greatest problem for firefighters were the trapped victims, many who cannot walk unassisted.

Firefighters, police officers and citizens helped to pull the elderly patients out of their rooms and onto the grass and parking lot of the facility.

Their security in the structured routine of daily living was shattered. Fire and smoke — was it a dream, another drill? Where are we going? What will happen next? Where will we sleep?

"You hold onto this now — it's got your name on it. People here don't know who you are," said a volunteer to a confused resident, clutching her name tag after she had been moved to temporary shelter in the unfamiliar surroundings of the nursing home across the street.

She seemed to plead to her comforter for understanding, for an explanation of what had just happened.

Or was it just another dream, a long-forgotten memory come to life? Daddy, mamma, uncle George, aunt Martha and even their third-grade school chums, yes, most are gone now.

Some of the 69 residents in the 100-bed facility had finished. Others were still eating the evening meal when fire and smoke swept through the Pampa Nursing Center, 1321 W. Kentucky, shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday.

Firefighters, police and emergency medical personnel had extinguished the blaze and attended to the residents in need.

About a dozen of the elderly residents had to be rescued and carried out through smashed windows outside the rooms along the fire and smoke-damaged north wing of the home.

The others had to be carried, pushed, or assisted in escaping the smoke and fire.

Two residents, John McKinney Bentley, 75, and Bertha McCreary, 89, died as a result of the fire, their hearts unable to stand the stress of the lung-burning smoke they had inhaled, according to a hospital spokesman.

Six of their neighbors at the home, Ed English, 85, Eva Richardson, 89, Lessie McNeil, 79, James Thurman, 73, Mattie Atherton, 87, and Annie Teal, 83, suffered injuries from the toxic fumes of the smoke and are being treated at Coronado Community Hospital.

Three of the nursing home's employees, Donna Blackwell, 21, Andrea Roberson, 37, and Anita Sasaus, 29, who scrambled to help the residents escape, were also overcome by the smoke and treated at the hospital.

For many, it is the only home they have known for years, a place for care when they can no longer care for themselves, a place where most will live their final weeks, months or years.

"Some of them don't even have any family. Some of them don't have anybody," an employee of the home remarked.

For others, it is a place to begin a new life.

George Baker, 78, and Minnie Robertson, 83, were married at the home, just three hours before the fire erupted and killed their fellow residents.

They sat in wheelchairs, lips quivering, many staring straight ahead and looking at nothing in particular.

Blankets had been snatched from the destruction of the smoke and fire, and were wrapped around the residents to give them warmth and comfort from the cool evening air of early autumn.

Many have fragile, delicate bodies. Their hair stands disheveled. Their eyes and toothless mouths hang wide open.

Most did not protest as they were moved from their home into the cool night air, and one who did really did not understand that people were trying to help.

Police and citizens and nursing home employees helped 45 residents into cars and vans for the trip across the street to another nursing home, the Coronado Nursing Center.

"Now daddy, stand up and get in the car."

"Can he get up by himself?"

"Yes, he can do it, just give him time."

"That's it, daddy, put that foot down here."

"Oowww! Let go of me! Stop it! Stop it! You're breakin' my foot! Let go! You're breakin' my leg! Aahhhh!"

"Now you stop that. Don't you hit me, daddy. Stop it, daddy. Don't you hit me! Daddy!"

"I come down here to help him, and he hits me."

An elderly male patient, dressed in a bathrobe and slippers and wrapped in a blanket, struck his helpers and knocked two of them to the ground, as several people tried to help the man from his wheelchair and into a car for the ride across the street.

Teal is worse

...A victim of Sunday's fire at the Pampa Nursing Center quit breathing Monday afternoon and was placed on a respirator, according to a spokesman at Coronado Community Hospital.

...Resident Annie Teal, 83, was overcome by smoke from the fire and was reported in good condition at the hospital Monday morning.

...But the nursing home patient took a turn for the worse Monday afternoon and sustained respiratory arrest.

...A respirator continues to breathe for the fire victim, according to Walter Johnson, and she is now listed in serious condition.

...The two residents who required intensive care at the hospital as a result of smoke inhalation, Ed English, 85, and Eva Richardson, 89, remain in fair condition today.

...Other residents hospitalized after the fire, Lessie McNeil, 79, James Thurman, 73, Mattie Atherton, 87, and nursing home employee Donna Blackwell, 21, are listed in good condition today.

It appeared he really did not understand why his evening's routine had been interrupted.

"As far as I know, I think we got them all," remarked a nursing home employee during the evacuation.

"Nobody got back into the dining room, did they?" another asked.

"I don't know, let's go check the whole place again," said the employee.

Employees were counting heads — eight patients were transported to the hospital — 45 were relocated to the nursing home across the street — the rest were picked up and taken home by their families.

At the Coronado Nursing Center, employees scrambled to accommodate the new temporary residents from the Pampa Nursing Center.

The new mob of residents sat in their wheelchairs around the Coronado lobby. Few were talking. Most were just sitting and waiting.

Aides scrambled to locate bedding and other necessities for the new guests.

"If we have to go three to the room, then we will just have to go three to the room," shouted Coronado administrator, Jim Moore, as an employee dashed by with an armload of bedding.

"Are you the administrator?" a nervous-looking man dressed in a three-piece suit and walking through the lobby was asked.

"No, I'm a minister. I'm just trying to calm them down," he replied.

The relocated residents range in age from 54 to 96. Ten of the residents from the fire-damaged home are completely bedridden. Most cannot walk without assistance, according to the nursing supervisor, Jess Hardy.

The fire started in a television set in the room at the far northwest corner of the facility, according to Fire Chief Paul Jones and City Fire Marshall L.V. Bruce.

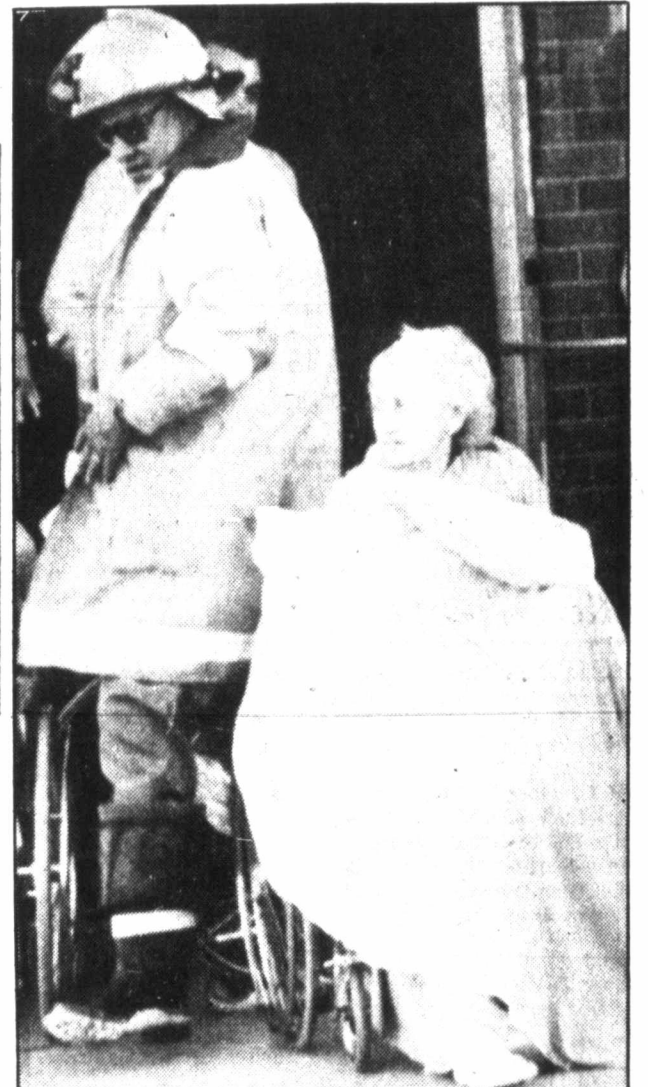

The lone resident of the room where the fire started was still in the dining room eating dinner when the flames erupted, according to a nursing home employee who asked not to be identified.

"She is one of those you have to coax to get to eat," the employee said.

Hardy said the residents can probably return to the undamaged east and south wings of the home by Wednesday. He said the gas lines were being checked Monday afternoon, in order to restore heat to the undamaged portion of the facility. The floors are being mopped and cleaned of soot, he said.

The outcome of the game and perhaps their futures in baseball were on the line. It was a nothing — nothing battle at the time, with the World Series looming ahead. The St. Louis Cardinals and the Atlanta Braves were battling for the National League title on the television set in the Coronado lobby.

No one was watching.

Curtis charged with running over policeman

The President of Curtis Well Servicing Inc., Jack T. Curtis, 52, of 2557 Aspen, has been charged in connection with ramming a police officer with a car at a roadblock set up near the burning Pampa Nursing Center Sunday.

Police said a car attempting to go around the roadblock at the intersection of Sumner and Kentucky Streets struck officer Rod Bishop, after the driver ignored the officer's order to stop, according to police.

Bishop was thrown over the hood of the car as the vehicle continued down the street, and the officer drew his pistol to force the driver to stop, police said.

Bishop was treated for minor injuries at Coronado Community Hospital and released.

Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said Monday Curtis had a relative in the burning nursing home, perhaps influencing his actions.

The incident was presented to the district attorney's office, which issued a formal complaint against Curtis on Monday, police said.

Police said Curtis was arraigned and booked on a charge of aggravated assault on a police officer.

Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge set Curtis's bond at $20,000.

Old-time fun

Horace Mann school teachers Ken Chesser and Judy Forister don pioneer logs with Betty Powers's help to assist an historical theme slide presentation to the students last week. Powers, an intern at the Panhandle-Plains Museum in Canyon, was in town to talk to the children about life in the early days of the Panhandle. The "models" explained the uses for each item of clothing used in those times. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

West's tallest building will resemble Phillips screwdriver

HOUSTON (AP) - The city's skyline will reach higher than ever before if developers build a proposed office tower, which at 1,400 feet would be the tallest building outside of Chicago and New York.

The world's tallest building is the 1,454-foot-tall Sears Tower in Chicago. Houston's tallest is the 1,049-foot-tall Texas Commerce Tower, measuring six inches below the maximum specified by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Kenneth Schnitzer, chairman and founder of Century Development Corp., conceded the FAA has not yet approved the application for approval for a 1,400-foot-tall building. But he said it would be unfair for the FAA to reject the building, since New York and Chicago have taller ones.

Century Development and Southwest Bancshares Inc. on Monday unveiled a model of a design from three submitted in an architectural competition.

The winning design - by Murphy-Jahn of Chicago - envisions a tapered shaft of steel, granite and reflective glass, encompassing 82 floors and two million square feet of office and retail space covering a full block in the center of downtown Houston.

Four peaks rise to the top of the building and come together to make a point, resulting in a cap somewhat resembling the head of a Phillips screwdriver. Atop that is a 150-foot-tall spire included in the 1,400-foot height.

Cost is estimated at $350 million to $400 million. Schnitzer said work toward financing is just beginning and no construction start date has been determined, though occupancy has been projected to begin in late 1986.

Helmut Jahn, president of Murphy-Jahn, said the building "can become a true centerpiece for Houston" and offer the city more than just another skyscraper.

"The building is designed to provide a major civic space, to welcome people and foster human activity by the configuration of its entrances and their relationship to the street, tunnels and other facilities for pedestrians," he said.

Public areas include a 7th floor completely reserved for use as an observation deck, and a 10-story, street-level pedestrian arcade that could be used for art shows and other events, the developers said.

Instead of directly facing the streets, the building would sit at a 45-degree angle to the streets, with each of four peaked entrances facing a street corner.

"This is not a building that can turn its back on any part of the city," said Richard Everett, president of Century Development. "The building will stand as a landmark of Houston's progress and a symbol of the city's economic prosperity."

The building site is bounded by Walker, Milam, McKinney and Louisiana streets. A fourth of that block now is occupied by the Southwest Tower and the rest by parking lots.

The Southwest Tower, a 20-floor office building built in 1963, will be torn down next year to make room for its successor, which tentatively has the name of Southwest Tower, Schnitzer said.

Southwest Bancshares Chairman John Cater characterized the location as a "perishable opportunity" to make a significant contribution to the city.

"We are fully committed to making that block a landmark site for the city of Houston for years to come," said Cater, whose company has 37 member and pending member banks.

Century Development has developed more than 13 million square feet of space in 30 major buildings in the Houston area in the 29 years of its existence. It now is building the 71-story Allied Bank Plaza in downtown Houston.

Its projects also include Greenway Plaza in southwest Houston and Allen Center in downtown Houston. Greenway Plaza covers 127 acres and includes 5.5 million square feet of office space, a Stouffer's hotel, a retail mall, two condominium towers and the Summit sports arena. Allen Center, on 21 acres, includes the 50-story Capital Bank Plaza, the Hotel Meridien, office towers of 36 and 34 stories and a retail mall.

Murphy-Jahn's buildings include the McCormick Place Convention Hall on Lake Michigan, the Daley Civic Center in downtown Chicago, and the Kemper Arena and Kansas City Convention Center in Kansas City. Others include the J. Edgar Hoover FBI Building in Washington, D.C., and the Richmond Courts building in Richmond, Va.

Trapped submarine may be crippled

BERGA NAVAL BASE, Sweden (AP) - Frogmen searched for a possibly crippled alien submarine today after a submerged mine blew up, spreading mud and oil south of where a suspected Soviet-bloc sub was first spotted 12 days ago.

The Swedish navy's chief spokesman Capt. Sven Carlsson said divers from the submarine salvage vessel Belos were hunting the frigid waters of Hors Bay and Mysingen Bay after the powerful mine exploded Monday afternoon.

He told reporters he was "more optimistic than before," that searchers would resolve the fate of the mystery vessel, reversing the navy's earlier gloomy reports that the sub may have escaped.

The mine exploded at the southern outlet of Mysingen Bay, just south of Hors Bay where sonar readings exposed an unidentified submerged vessel lurking Oct. 1 near the top-secret Musko Naval Base.

"The divers are searching a limited area but also wider areas of the two bays," Carlsson told reporters.

The Belos is equipped with a diving bell that can be used to rescue a submarine crew, Carlsson said.

Today's editions of the national Dagens Nyheter newspaper said the mine blew up "right on the object passing the mine field," at the entrance to the Mysingen bay and spread pools of mud and oil on the surface.

The navy said Monday the mine exploded after "indication of a possible submarine" in the southern Stockholm archipelago 19 miles south of Hors Bay.

The explosion, apparently in an outer defense mine field ringing the naval base, came after navy officials for days had been downplaying chances that the sub would be caught and that another alien sub lurked nearby.

Poison pill manhunt continues

CHICAGO (AP) - Authorities have canceled twice-daily news briefings in the investigation into seven Chicago-area deaths of people who took cyanide-packed Extra-Strength Tylenol.

"Leads continue to be followed otherwise there is no significant reportable change in the status since the last briefing," said Mort Friedman, spokesman for the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement.

Authorities have briefed news reporters twice a day on developments in the case since Sept. 30, the day after the first death was discovered. But Friedman said Monday that future news briefings would be announced when scheduled.

A task force of more than 100 investigators from federal, state and local agencies is still working intensively on the case.

Meanwhile, Jerome Howard, 20, of Chicago, accused of threatening to put cyanide in a hospital's Tylenol, remained in the federal Metropolitan Correction Center awaiting a hearing Friday.

Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner has dismissed Howard as a suspect in the seven deaths between Sept. 29 and Oct. 1.

U.S. Magistrate Olga Jurco set Howard's bond at $100,000 Sunday. The young man is charged with trying to extort $8,000 from Gottlieb Memorial Hospital, where he had previously worked.

Authorities said Howard threatened to "put cyanide in every bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol to see what it will do."

An extortion letter left at the receptionist's desk at the hospital in Melrose Park claimed responsibility for the seven poisonings and threatened more unless $8,000 was paid, authorities said.

Now someone's tampering with Visine eye drops

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) - Police theorize a "nut" trying "get on the bandwagon" after the Chicago Tylenol murders put hydrochloric acid in Visine A.C. eye drops, burning a man's eyes and prompting a county ban on sales of liquid eye care products.

"It was like getting hit with a hot poker, I hollered pretty loud," said Larry Martin Tingley, a patient being treated for depression at the Veterans Administration Hospital. He said the two drops he took Monday burned so much he dropped to the floor in pain.

Police theorized that whoever tampered with the Visine may have been a copycat who got the idea from the seven Chicago-area deaths between Sept. 29 and Oct. 1 in which cyanide was placed in Extra-Strength Tylenol, Grand Junction Police Detective Tom Freeman said. Last week, a woman in Rialto, Calif., complained of being burned by Visine A.C., but tests showed the acid level was normal.

Freeman said authorities don't think the cyanide killer in Chicago contaminated the eye drops in Colorado.

"Anytime there is a poisoning of major proportions which is reported in the press, all the nuts out there want to get in on the fun," said Dr. Barry Rumack, director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Control Center in Denver.

"I'm unhappy with it, but we assume someone else wanted to get on the bandwagon," Rumack said.

After Tingley was injured, police found a second acid-laced bottle of Visine A.C. at a store in Grand Junction, the biggest city on Colorado's Western Slope of the Rocky Mountains. The seals on the bottles had been broken and they contained a yellow, smelly liquid.

"Somebody obviously tampered with it," said Rumack. "What we don't know is whether it was done in the store, the distribution chain or exactly where."

Rumack cautioned consumers nationwide to make sure eye product seals are unbroken and to check for a pale yellow color and a sharp smell indicating acid contamination.

Train gunman was confused

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - A gunman charged with killing his sister and her infant in an Amtrak passenger car he held for nearly three days was difficult to deal with because he was confused and scared, officials say.

Mario Evangelista Villabona Navas, 29, was charged with first-degree murder in the deaths of Maria Navas Villabona Ramirez, who was shot in the head, and her 9-month son, Juan Ramirez, who died of dehydration in the stifling train car.

Navas also was charged with kidnapping his sister's 3 1/2-year-old daughter, Zulie, who was passed to police through a window of the train shortly before Navas surrendered Monday morning. She was not harmed.

His arraignment was set for 2 p.m. today.

White, Clements recite litanies

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements and Democratic challenger Mark White recited their campaign litanies and stayed, for the most part, away from personal attacks during Debate II.

That's not to say Clements and White practiced absolute abstinence from name-calling during the Monday night debate that was telecast statewide. But the confrontation was calmer than the Sept. 24 debate in Amarillo that featured a post-debate exchange of heated words.

White spent much of the hour-long debate blaming Clements for Texas' economic dip. Clements, who spent much of the night on defense, quipped that White knows little about creating jobs.

"After all, if you're sick and you need a doctor, you want a doctor. You don't want some quack. What you want is someone who knows something about creating jobs. I am a businessman. I'm not a career politician like my opponent," he said.

But White complained it's "cruel" for Clements to lure non-Texans into the state in hopes of finding work.

"That kind of bragging may enhance Bill Clements' reputation, but it also causes unemployed people from the north to move to Texas looking for work," he said. "Every time a person from Michigan or Ohio moves into Texas and gets a job, I can't help but think about the more than 600,000 Texans who need a job so they can feed their families."

Clements, reacting to a record day on Wall Street, predicted an economic "silver lining to this cloud that we have."

Both sides claimed a clear win in the debate. Clements said there was no change in strategy for the Amarillo debate. However, the White side said they made changes because of the much-larger audience for the statewide telecast.

The Amarillo debate was telecast only in Amarillo. Debate II was telecast in every major Texas market. The third debate, scheduled for Saturday night in Dallas, will be telecast on public television stations throughout the state.

"This was more of an in-home debate, seen by more people," said Lindsey, adding White tried to stick to issues and not personalities.

The debate was sponsored by Texas Monthly magazine and the League of Women Voters. League officials said the television audience could have been in the "several millions." But David Doak, White's campaign manager, said studies show many viewers would not stay with a debate for more than a few minutes before changing channels. That's why White chose to give the first opening statement, said Doak.

Here's what the candidates had to say on some of the issues:

—Clements, who has been endorsed by an anti-DWI group that favors raising the drinking age to 21, said it would be a tough measure to push through the 1983 Legislature.

"When we raised the age from 18 to 19 in 1981, this was to help the teaching-learning environment.

White, who is being heavily outspent, said Clements is trying to buy re-election.

Defense to cross-examine woman who identified Charles Harrelson

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The defense today plans to cross-examine a woman who testified she saw ex-convict Charles V. Harrelson in a parking lot minutes before U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was shot to death nearby.

In a dramatic courtroom scene on the first day of testimony Monday, San Antonio attorney Chrys A. Lambros pointed to Harrelson, a convicted hitman, and said, "This is the man I saw that morning."

Defense attorney Tom Sharpe Jr. questioned the woman's credibility because she was placed in a hypnotic trance at FBI headquarters here about two weeks after the assassination to help her remember details of the morning.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions, on Sharpe's motion, allowed the jury Monday to view two FBI videotapes of Ms. Lambros' hypnosis session. The final 30 minutes of videotape was to be seen today.

Sharpe contends he will prove Harrelson was 300 miles away in Dallas at the time Wood was shot in the back at the Chateaux DiJon Townhomes on May 29, 1979.

Sharpe told jurors in his opening statement that the FBI charged the wrong man with the killing. He said he will name the real killer during the course of the trial, expected to last as long as eight weeks.

Ms. Lambros, the sixth witness called by the government, resided in the same townhome complex as Wood, 63, who was gunned down as he prepared to get into his car.

She told jurors Monday that she met a man, whom she later identified as Harrelson, as she left her apartment.

Ms. Lambros said she picked Harrelson out from five photographs shown to her by FBI agents on Nov. 6, 1980. She then traveled to Houston and identified him in a police lineup on Nov. 20, 1980, she said.

Harrelson, 44, is charged with murdering Wood for $250,000 from El Paso convicted narcotics trafficker Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra. Chagra, 39, will be tried separately later on charges he hired Harrelson to shoot Wood.

Prosecutors contend Chagra did not want Wood, who was known for his harsh drug sentences, to preside at his 1979 narcotics trial.

Also on trial with Harrelson are his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, and Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, 28.

Another key witness in the current trial is expected to be El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra, 35, who pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy last month in a plea bargain with the government.

Ms. Lambros relived the morning of Wood's killing three times Monday afternoon — once from the witness stand and twice on videotape. The videotape showed her being placed under hypnosis by Richard B. Garver, an Air Force doctor.

She testified Monday that she started to meet the man as she reached the landing of the stairs, heading for her automobile in the parking lot.

She said, "Oh, good morning," but the man did not answer, mumbling something as he shoved past her in an archway. She gave a detailed description of the man.

"First of all, he was standing quite close to me. I also feel I'm a very observant person," she replied, when asked how she remember such detail from the brief encounter.

The videotape showed the hypnotist asking the woman several times to "freeze" the action she was describing — particularly when she was asked to describe the man's face and the automobiles in the parking lot.

"Stop him where he is. There is no movement. It's as if you're viewing a Polaroid picture that's developing in front of you. When you can see it clearly, let me know," the hypnotist said.

The eyelids of several people in the courtroom became noticeably heavy as Garver's voice droned from the videotape.

"Drift back in time ... gradually, day-by-day, at your own pace to the 29th of May," he said.

"... Way down into a nice deep trance ... way down," Garver intoned. "Is that deep enough or do you want to go deeper?"

"Are things becoming more clear to you?" he asked.

"Uh, huh," she said, before beginning her description of the clothing and face of the man she later identified as Harrelson.

Texas Republicans say Reagan visit big boost to fall campaign

IRVING, Texas (AP) — President Reagan's popularity has slipped nationally, but Republicans say he still wears long coattails in Texas and his visit here will give candidates a chance for a ride to victory in November.

Reagan swooped into Texas for a 1½-hour stop Monday, attended a private reception at U.S. Rep. Jim Collins' Wildbriar Farm, and spoke to an enthusiastic crowd of Republican campaign volunteers and candidates afterward.

Collins is running an uphill race against incumbent Democrat U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Reagan came to Texas from California, where Democrats said he had "absolutely no coattails" because of the slump in the economy and the recent release of figures showing 10.1 percent unemployment, the highest national rate in 42 years.

Bentsen campaign director Jack Martin would not comment on Reagan's general popularity in Texas, but said:

"He has no coattails as far as Mr. Collins is concerned. Ronald Reagan coming to Texas to campaign for Jim Collins reminds us of the old western lyric of someone having a $40 saddle on a $10 horse."

"The president's visit will be the turning point," contended Collins' campaign manager Dee Travis.

Travis said the visit showed Collins' campaign was "viable, because the president wouldn't have come here if he didn't think we could win."

"The symbolism of the two of them together is very important because it will associate Collins with the president," Travis said. "The rally was just Republican volunteers, but the exposure of the president's visit was obviously statewide."

National Republican spokesmen said privately they gave Collins little chance of victory. And local GOP officials stressed the benefits the visit would bring the party generally, rather than Collins particularly. All said the president is personally very popular in Texas.

Travis said the Collins' campaign's most recent poll showed Reagan had a 62 percent favorable rating in Texas. Texans are among the most generous Republican contributors in the country, and Reagan carried the state by 57 percent in 1980.

A recent Gallup poll for Newsweek magazine showed that nationally, Reagan had only a 41 percent favorable rating, the lowest midterm approval rate of the last five elected presidents.

Local Republicans said that with the election only three weeks away, Reagan's visit was important to get out the vote, whip up enthusiasm among campaign workers, and associate the prestige of the presidency with Republicans.

"It serves to mobilize the campaign workers, who were most of the audience out there. That, and getting people to the polls, is as important as persuading people or winning them over," said Dallas County Republican precinct Chairman Robert M. Clark. "And it's going to mean a lot with the president embracing the state and local candidates."

"I think the visit shows we have one fine relationship with the president of the United States, and that's healthy for us as Republicans," said Ronald McDearman, Republican nominee for district judge in Dallas. "I think most voters will have to conclude that a man with the president of the United States behind him can't be all that bad."

"I think it's going to be a great benefit to Republicans all through the ballot," said Republican Robert Topper, a Dallas probate judge.

DA not rushing to issue warrants

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Hidalgo County District Attorney Rene Guerra says he has no plans yet to issue arrest warrants in connection with the deaths of five Salvadorans who died during an unsuccessful smuggling operation.

"I would not benefit by rushing to charge someone and then find out we don't have enough evidence to support our charges," Guerra said Monday.

Two men have been charged in federal court with transportation of illegal aliens.

But the discovery of another body five days after the first four bodies were found in an abandoned tractor-trailer rig has raised new questions for investigators trying to piece together the mechanics of the alien smuggling operation, Guerra said.

A decomposed body believed to be that of Oscar Armando Espinal, 42, was found Saturday in a drainage ditch 1½ miles north of an orange grove where he and nine other Salvadorans had been left.

A positive identification will be made through a fingerprint check, said Erasmo Bravo, Hidalgo County Sheriff's Department chief investigator.

Autopsies performed on the three men and one woman found in the rig showed they died of suffocation compounded by heat stroke. The Salvadorans were locked in the stifling sealed confines of the truck when the air conditioner failed.

An autopsy on the latest victim revealed he died of a combination of dehydration, exposure and heat stroke, according to Dr. Ruben Santos, Hidalgo County medical examiner.

But Santos said he could not exclude the possibility the man drowned.

"The body was found underwater," Santos said. "That's why there's a good possibility that he was trying to drink water and he couldn't get up anymore."

The man was one of 10 Salvadorans taken by smugglers from the abandoned truck about 9 p.m. Oct. 5 and left in an orange grove near Edinburg, said U.S. Border Patrol investigator Ray Diaz. Patrol officers found seven Salvadorans in the grove Wednesday and suspected the three others had fled.

The search continues for the other two missing Salvadorans, Diaz said.

He said the Salvadorans reported the latest victim "lost his mind" and ran away shortly after being left in the grove.

DA blocks woman inmate's death request

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A district attorney has blocked a death row inmate's request to die even though the official says he wants the woman's death sentence to be carried out.

Linda May Burnett, one of Texas' two female death row inmates, sent a handwritten letter from her cell to a state judge asking that she be put to death by lethal injection now, rather than after her appeals are exhausted.

Criminal District Judge Larry Gist scheduled a hearing on Mrs. Burnett's request for Friday, but added that the district attorney's office in Beaumont would have to agree.

Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath said Monday that the woman convicted of the July 1978 slaying of a 3-year-old boy "has no right to a hearing."

"There's not a damn thing to be heard," McGrath said. "We're not participating in any hearings."

But McGrath added that he still believes Mrs. Burnett should be put to death.

"I want the judgment and sentence of the court to be carried out as soon as possible," he said.

Mrs. Burnett, 34, said in her one-page letter to Gist that she wanted the court to appoint an attorney for her who would file a "right to die" case on her behalf.

"I don't think it is fair for a court to hand out death and then make the inmate wait out an appeal," she said.

State law required that Mrs. Burnett's case be referred to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals for review.

"It is time for new laws," Mrs. Burnett wrote in the letter, dated Oct. 2. "It shouldn't be a law a person has to appeal. It would save tax dollars plus give the person their rights to choose to appeal or not."

Candidate says Reagan is socialist

DALLAS (AP) — Gary Richard Arnold, the Republican congressional candidate from California told "shut up" by President Reagan, says the chief executive "is really a liberal and a socialist."

During a news conference Monday, Arnold repeated earlier criticism that Reagan has abandoned the conservatives who elected him.

"Reagan is really a liberal and a socialist," said Arnold. "He is a chameleon conservative who has changed his colors from right to red."

Arnold held the news conference about three hours before Reagan arrived for a Republican rally in nearby Irving. But Arnold insisted he was not following Reagan around the country.

"Reagan is following me," Arnold said. "I got here before he did."

Although Arnold said he had been planning the news conference for several days, a check of hotel records showed he rented the briefing room only 90 minutes before the meeting. The Dallas Morning News reported today.

Arnold refused to say where he would be going after leaving Dallas.

"That would be damaging to strategy," he said.

Reagan told Arnold to "shut up" last Wednesday after Arnold repeatedly interrupted the president's speech to a group of 65 Republican congressional candidates at the White House.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Plot trail leads to Moscow

"Murder," as the adage goes, "will out." So, also, we are learning, will attempted murder and especially when it involves a beloved world figure.

Some startling revelations recently have implicated the Soviet Union as the primary suspect for the almost successful attempt on the life of Pope John Paul II on May 13, 1981. The would-be assassin, a Turkish terrorist named Mehmet Ali Agca, was an agent of the Soviet KGB according to Claire Sterling, perhaps the leading authority on international terrorism and author of the widely acclaimed book on the subject, "The Terror Network."

She traces Agca's life back to his impoverished childhood in provincial Turkey and through his student days at Ankara and Istanbul universities. There his mother said "those villains got him," and he fell under the spell of terrorists engaged in the Soviet Union's successful campaign to destabilize its NATO neighbor. Agca is thought to have been sent to Beirut for terrorist training by the Palestinian Liberation Organization in 1977.

By the end of that year, substantial deposits "a fortune to a hard-up student" — were being made to Agca's account in one of Turkey's major banks. Following the murder in February, 1979, of Abdi Ipeker, Turkey's most influential editor and commentator, Agca readily confessed to the crime, posing as a right-wing terrorist, although there was no proof against him and no witnesses.

A few months later, Agca walked out of prison in disguise in a way that would hardly have been possible without high-level connivance. It is suggestive at least that the interior minister, a radical leftist who was personally involved in the Agca affair, comes from a family with direct links to the underground communist Party in Turkey.

From Turkey, Agca was spirited to Sofia, Bulgaria, to the Soviet Union's most supine ally, where he received the assassination weapon and expertly forged papers. He lingered for 50 days in the best hotels as a protegee of the Bulgarian secret police, whom Sterling describes as having closer links with the KGB than any other group outside the Soviet Union.

Sterling's investigation ascertained that "From the time of his (Agca's) escape to his capture in Rome, he spent some $50,000 on plane fares and first-class hotels."

As his sponsors must surely have wished, Agca was identified around the world after shooting the pope as a "right-wing terrorist." Moreover, Sterling emphasizes that his Turkish identity served an additional Soviet purpose of engendering hatred between Western Christendom and Moslem Turkey.

The Soviets were the first to be suspected. It has been reliably reported by a close associate of the pope, who rode with him to the hospital after the shooting, that John Paul gasped out only two statements at the time: "The Soviets did it," and "I will survive."

Much of Sterling's evidence was presented dramatically on Sept. 21 in an NBC documentary, "The Man Who Shot the Pope, a Study in Terrorism." Its conclusion: "The evidence suggests the possibility that the Russians hatched the plot against the pope or, at a minimum, knew about the plot and did nothing to stop it."

According to NBC, the Polish-born pope sent a secret letter to the Kremlin during the mounting Solidarity Labor crisis in Poland in which, according to NBC, he said "if the russians moved against Poland, he would lay down the crown of St. Peter and return to his homeland to stand shoulder to shoulder with his people."

Filling the tubes

to the high expectations we all had for it at the beginning of the year.

"Nikki Harris, probably one of the most astute and skilled field hockey coaches since Carry 'The Stick' Renfrew, who led Katherine Gibbs to a 10 and 0 record in 1924, told me that the locker room problems earlier this year between Roz Rogers and Hilda Marton had been sorted out, and she believed the team was up for an Our Lady of Victory defeat."

"Which brings me to a story about Fancie Barnard. Francie, as you know, had been offered a scholarship to Georgetown Visitation, and Dumbarton Oaks. Her mother had played for Visitation in 1956 and made All-American, but Carry had developed a knee injury on a skateboard and doctors had told her she would never play field hockey again. She went to an orthopedic specialist named Alice McKelvie who put in an artificial knee. Alice McKelvie is a friend of Nikki Harris and told her Francie could play. Nikki arranged for a full scholarship for Francie and that is why Francie is now playing for Girls Latin instead of Georgetown Visitation."

"Thanks Howard, you seem to know your field hockey."

"Our Lady of Victory had it as soon as we make our decision." "I'm sorry, gentlemen, but I have to tell it the way it is."

A local success story

BRI Vice President Sharon Dyer. "It's extremely difficult to duplicate this model," adds Don Schierling, one of four men who founded BRI in 1973 and now an officer of a local bank.

In an organizational effort matched in few other cities, BRI has inspired many of the Denver area's banks, businesses, foundations, churches and thousands of local citizens to participate in a long-term campaign to improve housing for the city's low- and moderate-income residents.

The fact that BRI is still thriving and remains committed to its original goals more than a decade after it was founded is a notable accomplishment because community organizations in this country are notorious for their short life spans.

BRI not only has survived; it has successfully undertaken more than 1,500 home repair and renovation projects on Denver's Westside and in other deteriorating urban neighborhoods. Savings average $2,000 per household or more than $3 million citywide.

One of the organization's most visible efforts is its annual "Paint-a-Thon," which this year attracted 1,200 volunteers who painted 100 homes in the city and four surrounding counties.

Acid in eye drops felt 'like a hot poker'

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — County officials ordered storekeepers here to remove liquid eye care products from shelves after two drops from a Visine A.C. bottle containing hydrochloric acid burned a man's eyes and sent him reeling to the floor in pain.

"It was like getting hit with a hot poker, I hollered pretty loud," said Larry Martin Tingley, a patient being treated for depression at the Veterans Administration Hospital, after using the eye drops Monday.

After Tingley was injured, police found a second acid-laced bottle of Visine A.C. at a store in Grand Junction, the biggest city on Colorado's Western Slope of the Rocky Mountains. The seals on the bottles had been broken and they contained a yellow, smelly liquid.

"Somebody obviously tampered with it," said Dr. Barry Rumack, director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Control Center in Denver. "What we don't know is whether it was done in the store, the distribution chain or exactly where." Rumack cautioned consumers nationwide to make sure eye product seals are unbroken and to check for a pale yellow color and a sharp smell indicating acid contamination. Uncontaminated Visine is clear and odorless.

Officials in Mesa County, population 81,000, ordered shopkeepers to take eye care products off the shelves as hundreds of calls from concerned consumers flooded the poison control center.

Investigators feared the eye drops were contaminated by someone influenced by the seven Chicago-area poisoning deaths between Sept. 29 and Oct. 1 from cyanide in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

"A madman can make his way around any kind of precautions that industry can install," said Dr. Richard Hopkins, a state epidemiologist.

About 25 of the calls to the poison center in Denver were from people reporting a stinging sensation after using Visine, said Rumack. Local authorities, working with the federal Food and Drug Administration and the Colorado Department of Health, planned to inspect all eye washes before putting them back on the shelves, said Dr. Kenneth Lampert, director of the Mesa County Health Department.

The acid in the Visine A.C. bottle that burned Tingley was "stronger than battery acid," Lambert said. The contaminated Visine had a "pale yellow color and very, very pungent odor," he added.

"I only used two drops and it dropped me to the floor it hurt so damn bad," said Tingley, 39.

Doctors said Tingley suffered only minor eye damage because a nurse immediately began flooding his eyes with water. He was "doing fine," VA spokeswoman Sheri Yelovich said today.

Rumack said the bottles came from stock at a Target store at Mesa Mall in Grand Junction. The code number on both bottles was 122.

Court considers tax breaks for schools that discriminate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is considering whether the Internal Revenue Service can continue, without congressional approval, a 12-year-old ban on federal tax exemptions for schools that practice racial discrimination.

The nine justices, after listening to the case today, will decide if the IRS ban on tax breaks for such schools has congressional backing.

The administration sparked an outcry among blacks, civil rights groups and others when it announced last January that it intended to scrap the prohibition and give tax breaks to such schools.

Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds will tell the court that the IRS policy lacks legal basis and that Congress itself must specifically approve such a ban.

"While we think Congress should by law authorize the IRS to deny tax exemptions to racially segregated schools, nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code — or elsewhere — has it done so," the government said in a brief filed with the Supreme Court last week.

Alabama wins three awards

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The young band Alabama, known for its progressive style, capped a rags-to-riches saga by dethroning Barbara Mandrell as entertainer of the year at the Country Music Association's annual awards show.

"There's a lot of great entertainers," lead singer Randy Owen said after the nationally televised awards program Monday night. "To be the first group to win it, it feels good."

The four-piece band from Fort Payne, Ala., was playing for tips just two years ago and was rejected several times by recording companies until RCA signed it to a contract.

Alabama, which has reeled off a string of hits including "Feels So Right," "Old Flame," "Take Me Down" and "Mountain Music," also won for top instrumental group and top vocal group.

They are more progressive than traditional in style, although some of their instrumentals have a bluegrass flavor.

After receiving the bullet-shaped trophies at the Grand Ole Opry House, Alabama led its road crew in a backstage cheer, "Ain't We Having Fun Now!"

Miss Mandrell, who was co-host with Mac Davis of the 16th annual program, won no awards.

The petite singer, who has dominated country music awards shows in recent years, was among five finalists for entertainer of the year and top female vocalist.

Willie Nelson, who was writing songs before members of Alabama were born, won two awards — single of the year for the tender "Always on My Mind" and album of the year for the LP of the same name. He did not attend the ceremony.

"Always on My Mind" also won song of the year for writers Johnny Christopher, Wayne Thompson and Mark James.

Young Ricky Skaggs, acclaimed for his piercing tenor, won top male vocalist over Nelson, Merle Haggard, George Jones and Ronnie Milsap.

"Well, hrm. Didn't plan no speech," said the 28-year-old Skaggs, who has had a recording contract less than a year. Skaggs, who also won the Horizon Award as most promising newcomer, hit the top of the charts in April with "Crying My Heart Out Over You."

Janie Fricke, who toiled in obscurity for years as a backup singer at Nashville recording sessions before making such hits as "Baby, It's You" and "Playin' Hard to Get," was named female vocalist of the year. She beat out Miss Mandrell, Rosanne Cash, Emmylou Harris and Juice Newton.

Singer Marty Robbins, whose gunfighter songs like "El Paso" accented the western style of country music, was chosen for the Country Music Hall of Fame along with the late singer Lefty Frizzell and Roy Horton, a former music publishing executive.

Other winners included Chet "Mr. Guitar" Atkins, instrumentalist of the year, and David Frizzell and Shelly West, vocal duo of the year for the second straight year. David Frizzell and Lefty Frizzell, who died in 1975, are brothers.

Davis drew a gasp from the audience of 4,400 when he sang his latest release, "The Beer Drinkin' Song." The song mentions "Reaganomics" as one of the things that would drive a man to drink.

Mother accidentally shoots daughter

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — A woman accidentally shot her 31-year-old daughter who was struggling with a pet African lioness that had escaped from its cage, authorities said.

Connie Shams, the cat's owner, was treated Monday for bites on her legs and a minor gunshot wound on the hand, said police spokesman Mac Craft. The lioness was killed by police officers.

The lioness, which weighed about 150 pounds, escaped Monday afternoon from its backyard pen, Craft said.

"Connie looked out her window and saw that the pet lion was out of her cage. She went out and tried to put him back in, but apparently the lion didn't like the idea and mauled her," Craft said.

Ms. Shams' mother, Christine Lamb, heard her daughter screaming for help, grabbed a .357 Magnum and fired several times, hitting the lion and striking Ms. Shams on the hand.

"Thank God I got the gun out," she said. "There wasn't enough time to call the police."

The wounded animal ran into a field and police were summoned, Craft said. Officers surrounded the 2-year-old lion and killed it, he said.

The animal's head was removed and sent to Austin, where it will be examined today by experts to determine whether it was rabid.

Schools help with birthday

Everyone in Pampa is helping celebrate Gray County's 80th birthday. Pampa school children are no exception.

Elementary students have been studying Pampa's and Gray County's history through classroom lectures, outside speakers, field trips to local historical sites and interviews with early Gray County settlers.

Third grade classes at Austin Elementary visited the Little Red School house, north of Pampa, for an afternoon of classes. Kindergarten through fifth grade toured the White Deer Land Museum.

Saturday, Oct. 16, Priscilla Alexander's third grade class will present a skit in the Pampa Mall at 1:30 p.m. Saturday called "History of Pampa and Gray County."

Austin, along with all Pampa schools, will be represented in a display at the mall Thursday through Saturday. And the Austin Elementary Booster Club is sponsoring a float called "Education, Then and Now," for the Birthday Parade, at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 16.

Wilson Elementary students are planning to bake the biggest birthday cake — the size of a cafeteria table — for Pampa's celebration. The students plan a birthday party for Thursday, Oct. 14, beginning with an assembly honoring grandparents of students who were early residents of Pampa, followed by a slide presentation, "Pampa's History," narrated by Chamber of Commerce Assistant Manager Brad Mink.

Gene Sidwell spoke to third, fourth and fifth grade classes on the development of the oil industry in the county and Ron Chambers from Getty Oil Co. spoke on the oil industry in Gray County.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — About 10 years ago I made a kitchen table and covered the top with laminated plastic, the kind used on countertops around the sink. Recently the strips of laminated plastic I used as edging for the top have started to come loose. I recall using contact cement to hold them in place. Can I apply contact cement again or should I replace the strips with new ones?

A — If the laminated plastic edging strips are still in good condition, there is no reason why they can't be used again. Be sure to scrape off the old cement before applying the new. If the strips are in bad shape and you do not want to replace them with the same kind, you can substitute hardwood edging that comes in rolls or half-round moulding, both of which can be glued in place, although tiny nails also can be used in the moulding if desired.

Q — There is a cedar closet in the house we inherited a couple of years ago. My son recently called my attention to the fact the closet has no smell of cedar, which he says is necessary if the closet is to keep away moth larvae. I never noticed, but he said the closet had a slight cedar odor when we moved in. What kind of finish should I put on the closet to restore the odor? As far as I can see, the closet is airtight, which I have been told is important in a closet of this type.

A — Your son is correct about the scent of cedar. You are correct about keeping the cedar odor inside the closet by making certain it is reasonably airtight. If the wood is real cedar, its odor can be restored simply by sanding well. This will open the pores and start the scent moving again. Do not apply any finish.

Q — In building the framework for the roof on a small building, what kind of wood should be used? I plan to use asphalt shingles. The framework will support a deck which, in turn, will support the shingles.

A — Any kind of strong lumber can be used for the framework. For the deck, using large sheets of plywood or hardboard or any one of several other materials will ease the task of installing the shingles.

Students from Sandra Prater's fifth grade class at Austin Elementary work intently on their depictions of old fashioned clothing to be on display at the Pampa

Mall Thursday through Saturday. Students from all local schools are participating in Pampa and Gray County's 80th birthday celebration this week. (Staff photo by Dee Dee Laramore)

Elementary have been studying early antiques from the Panhandle collected by teachers and teachers' aides. A county birthday party is also planned.

Travis Elementary's third, fourth and fifth grade students will be square dancing in the Pampa Mall from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 16. Like students from the other elementary schools here, Travis students have been studying the county's history through field trips, special programs and speakers.

A lecture by Eletta Nolte, author of the souvenir anniversary book, "History of Pampa," inspired students to write stories, poems and songs and draw posters using the same theme. These will also be on display in the Pampa Mall.

Travis Booster Club is preparing a parade entry, also.

Classes at Horace Mann Elementary are learning about the city's past through programs presented by Bobby Weaver of the Panhandle Plains Museum and Mink, in addition to visits to the White Deer Land Museum. Students are preparing their exhibits for display at the mall, too.

Baker Elementary classes are participating in study of Pampa and Gray County's history, also.

Pampa Middle School students are working on individual entries to be seen in Saturday's parade.

Pampa High School's art department will display art and craft projects in the Pampa Mall store windows this weekend.

The PHS student council will sponsor a Homecoming Coffee in the high school main hall Saturday, Oct. 16, from 9 to 10:30 a.m.

Pampa's Pride of Pampa band, directed by Charles Johnson, will be marching in the parade.

Country acquires sophistication

The evolution of the country look is an interior decorating trend to watch.

For the past several years, "country" has been growing in favor until today it is one of the most popular decors in American homes. At the same time, however, the style has begun to grow stale.

Now, as a reaction to the standard country look of wood, brick and floral prints — and still more wood, brick and floral prints — decorators are rethinking country along less traditional lines. The result is a new hybrid style that might be called "sophisticated country." This style is marked by the use of new materials and smart color schemes but keeping the same hominess and livability.

Consider the kitchen and adjoining family room done by designers at one large home furnishings company. Country, all right, but with a hint of city.

Color scheme consists of neutrals and earthtones, as you might expect, but what neutrals and earthtones? Black, white, grey, smoky blue and midnight blue, pumpkin, and almond.

Sophistication starts with no-wax flooring in an altogether un-country black and white Maltese Cross pattern. Hard to imagine in a country setting, it nevertheless fits right in because of the skill with which the designers handled the other room elements.

For example, the flooring cues the walls which are painted a natural linen hue. The curtains are real linen, a small-check pattern (the checks are black). The linen fabric shows up again, surprisingly, on the drawer faces of the kitchen cabinets, on the backs of the kitchen chairs and on the underside of the kitchen table.

A little bit of city in the country — or vice versa — describes the versatile decor of this kitchen-family room. It's basically country but spiced up with such sophisticated touches as a no-wax floor in stylish black and white.

More gray is seen on the kitchen cabinet doors that are painted a warm pewter color (pewter tinged with the faintest trace of red). Cabinets are framed with wood strips stained a soft cherry.

Country fair planned with a little for all

Pampa's charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA) is hosting a "Good Ole Days Country Fair," Oct. 16 in and around the Clyde Carruth Pavilion (Bull Barn) beginning at 1 p.m.

Proceeds from the fair will be used to increase the club's educational scholarship fund and to mark the day as an annual event beginning in the midst of Pampa's 80th birthday celebration, said Phyllis Laramore, chapter president.

Peggy Boyd, fair chairman, and committee members have arranged "Country Fair" to suit all ages. Live entertainment will be featured. C. T. Rasco's mule and buggy will be available for rides, daylight to dark. Inside, a bingo game is scheduled with assorted prizes donated by local merchants. L. D. Boyd will be calling out the bingo numbers.

Unique crafts in an array of colors will be displayed including needlepoint, crocheted pieces, and seasonal ceramics, said Peggy Cloyd.

Try the picture booth with your choice of attire for a new look. Or be led by the aroma of cakes and cupcakes to Dorothy Herd's cakewalk.

One of several games — ring toss, dart throwing, or the fish pond — will surely tickle each individual's fancy. Candy and balloons will also abound.

"Granny sees all in the crystal ball," at Madame Bess's booth, Christy Webb predicted.

Stop by McGahen's Country Store for all kinds of fixin's, piece goods, homemade jellies, jams, pies and pickles. "Most anything you might see in a country store," said Karen McGahen.

A snack bar will be open all day for hungry fairgoers. Louise Hill and Mary Dell McNeil will have the grill hot, ready to slap on juicy hamburgers or cheeseburgers cooked to order. Other menu items include hotdogs, frito pie, soft drinks, tea and coffee.

Karen McGahen, left, of Shed Realty takes a bite of a hamburger bun donated by a local merchant to the American Business Women's Association "Good Ole Days Country Fair" scheduled Saturday, Oct. 16, at the Clyde Carruth Pavilion. McGahen and Fair Chairman Peggy Boyd, right, of Johnson Home Furnishings are surrounded by items to be displayed in booths at the fair. Proceeds from the event will go to an educational scholarship program funded by the business women's club. (Staff photo by Dee Dee Laramore)

Dear Abby

Band members offend host

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I hired a six-piece band for our daughter's wedding reception. Naturally we expected to offer refreshments to the band, but we didn't plan on feeding their wives, girlfriends and teen-aged children. (I counted 15 extra!)

We had a very expensive catered affair for which we were charged by the head. When we saw all these extra people heading for the buffet table, we asked them to please leave as we had ordered only enough food and liquor for the invited guests. One of the band members got upset and left!

A spokesman for the band informed me later that the musicians always take their wives, girlfriends and kids along, and we should have ordered extra refreshments for them! Was he kidding? Or is an apology in order on our part?

TORQUED IN TORONTO

DEAR TORQUED: According to a spokesperson for Musicians Union Local 47 in Los Angeles, unless the contract specified that their families should be fed as part of the agreement, the band members had no right to bring their wives, girlfriends and children. In fact, the host and hostess were under no obligation to feed the band members unless it was agreed in the contract.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a very attractive fellow for a couple of months, but something is wrong. I feel a certain "distance" between us. When we kiss, nothing happens. (For him.) He seems to be going through the motions, but he doesn't react like he's feeling anything.

I have a genuine interest in him, but this lack of reaction on his part bothers me. When I asked him about it, he said he was getting over a broken heart and couldn't really get "close" now.

OK, I accepted that and didn't get my hopes up. But I have another theory. I think he is a "closet gay" who is trying to go straight but is having difficulty. I don't want to date him anymore but don't know how to break it off without lying to him.

Should I tell him about my suspicions and give him a chance to tell me the truth? Of course, I could be wrong, but I strongly suspect I'm right.

JANE (NOT MY REAL NAME)

DEAR JANE: If you don't want to see him anymore, tell him so, but don't tell him of your "theory." To suggest that he is gay — even if you are correct — would be presumptuous and prying.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know where to turn. My daughter just turned 11, and she tells the most outlandish lies for no reason at all. She told her teacher at school that I hit her on the head with a lead pipe, which is absolutely untrue! (I don't even have a lead pipe!) She tells the neighbors that she is hungry because there is never enough food in the house. Not true! There is always plenty of food here, and she eats well. These are only a few of the lies this child has told that I have heard about. Lord only knows what other lies she's told!

Please tell me what to do. Punishing her doesn't seem to help. She is not a stupid child, and she knows wrong from right.

END OF MY ROPE

DEAR END: Your child's lying is a bid for attention. It could also be symptomatic of a deeper emotional problem. She needs to see a specialist who counsels children. If there is such counseling at her school, please take advantage of it. If not, talk to your pediatrician. The child needs help.

Astro-Graph

Your leadership qualities will be considerably enhanced this coming year. Instead of following the banners of others, you will have them following yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends are willing to keep their promises, but you could act in a manner which will let them off the hook today. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This can be a day of substantial accomplishments, provided you devote your energies toward worthy goals. Don't delay your destiny.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your plans will go as you envision them, provided you allow adequate time for all to unfold. Don't get impatient. Premature moves would hurt you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take a hard, careful look at all proposals brought to you today which could increase your income or earnings. There are some good deals out there, but there are some bummers, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Companions or associates may lack your insights today. You'd be wise to trust your own judgment, even if the suggestions the others come up with look good on the surface.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something you've been wanting to change can be altered for the better today. Be both practical and hopeful about accomplishing things.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally, you're rather good at coping with uncertainties or unusual developments, but today out-of-the-ordinary happenings could rattle you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't let others pull you away from your tasks or projects today. If you are on a roll and you're interrupted, it'll be hard to get back in gear.

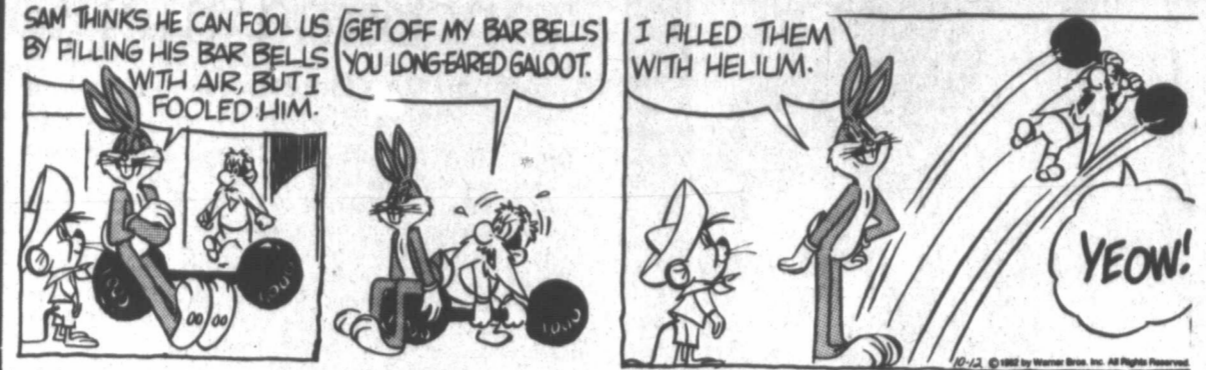

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unfortunately, not everyone today will have your cheerful outlook and disposition. Don't be dismayed if you can't please everybody.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If things are moving favorably for you today, don't make a sudden switch in course. Changes could undo the good you have going.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Situations or projects which require your full mental efforts should be attended to early in the day. Your brightness lessens when you tire.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) As long as you are unselfishly motivated today, you'll benefit as much as those you try to help. When you think only of yourself, all will be reversed.

Miscues hurt Harvesters again Hall of Famer opposes NFL strike

Pampa's 26-0 loss to Lubbock Estacado last week boiled down to a case of not protecting the football. Pampa lost six fumbles and Estacado turned four of those turnovers into scoring drives. "We were able to move the ball against them, but we stopped ourselves with fumbles," Pampa head coach John Kendall said. "I'm not blaming the backs for all those fumbles. We were missing their linebackers and they were hitting us just as a back was getting the handoff. It was just a combination of things, but overall I thought the kids played a good game." Kendall said he felt the turning point of the game came when Estacado quarterback Wayne Dotson faked a punt midway in the fourth quarter and ran 11 yards for a first down to Pampa's 40. Estacado made it 20-0 five plays later when Dotson hit Derrick White with a 31-yard scoring pass.

"I felt like we were still in the game until that happened," Kendall said. "We went on and fumbled three or four more times after that." Kendall was pleased with the play of fullback Danny Sebastian and quarterback Randy Skaggs. "It was Danny's best running game of the year," Kendall said. "He also did a good job of blocking." Sebastian, who has been hobbled with a leg injury since the second game of the season, rushed for 87 yards on 23 carries. Skaggs, who rushed for 60 yards on 18 carries, picked up four first downs on keepers and had runs of 37 and 21 yards. He threw only three passes, but completed all of those for 47 yards. "I liked the way Randy was passing and running," Kendall said. "We had them beat in rushing yardage (70-43) the first half, but we're making mistakes we shouldn't be making this late in the season." An injury-riddled roster also took its toll on the Harvesters, who had several players lined up in unfamiliar positions. Pampa's top rushers, Dennis Kuempel and Harold Ellison, both missed the game because of injuries. So did guard Bryan Bowen, noseguard Steve Seely and tackle Bill Carter. "Our injury situation is really starting to hurt us," Kendall said. "We've had to move people around to new positions, but the kids played well." Pampa's defense, which stopped Estacado on the goal line and forced the Matadors to punt six times, drew praise from Kendall. "The defense did a super job," Kendall said. "We stopped them on the one-foot line and guys like Dean Birkes, Wade Barker and Cliff Baker played outstanding."

Hall of Famer opposes NFL strike

SEATTLE (AP) — Calling some of today's professional athletes "prostitutes," football hall of famer Hugh McElhenny says he strongly opposes the National Football League's first midseason players' strike. In McElhenny's opinion, the attitude of today's athlete has had a lot to do with causing the labor crisis. Too many pro football players are in the sport for the wrong reason — money, he says. "I think the proper word is that more of the players playing professional sports today are prostitutes," he said. "They'll do anything to make a buck and make it fast." "I can truthfully say guys like Y.A. Tittle, Joe Perry, Leo Nomellini... We played football for the fun of it. We knew we couldn't have made that kind of salary going out and getting a regular job but we were still doing it for the fun of it." McElhenny, 53, a superstar running back of yesteryear, became a member of the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame at King's Island, Ohio, in July. He was inducted into pro football's Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, in 1970.

Frosh VBers win twinbill

Pampa ninth-graders defeated Ellison in a girls' volleyball doubleheader last week, making their record 9-3 overall and 1-1 in district play. Pampa won the opener, 15-8, 15-11, behind the perfect serving of Courtney Brown, Rotunda Powell, Shannon Churchman, Irene Perez, Stacey Bennett and Leslie Stevens. Pampa won the second match, 15-2, 15-7 and 15-10. Dusty Fritz never missed a serve while Irene Perez scored 14 of her 15 points on serves the second match. Mia Nash and Amy Green had several spikes while Rotunda Powell did a good job of covering the court.

Alabama climbs to No. 2 spot

By The Associated Press

The state of Pennsylvania has had enough of Alabama for one weekend. The Crimson Tide not only beat Penn State Saturday, but also bumped Pitt out of second place in the Associated Press college football poll. Penn State plunged from No. 3 to No. 8 as the result of its 42-21 defeat by Bear Bryant's team Saturday. In the process, Alabama moved from No. 4 to No. 2, knocking idle Pitt down to third. The Crimson Tide received 13 first-place votes Monday from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters and collected a total of 1,016 points as the result of its impressive victory. Pitt received nine first-place votes and a total of 996 points. The Crimson Tide's total left them behind the No. 1 Washington Huskies, who received 31 of the 54 first-place ballots and 1,046 of a possible 1,080 points as the result of their 50-7 triumph over California. It's the fifth week in a row Washington has been on top of the rankings. Florida State showed up in this year's polls for the first time, moving into the No. 19 spot after trouncing Southern Illinois 59-8. Meanwhile, Clemson, the defending national champion, climbed back into the Top Twenty.

Akers: Not critical of Texas defense

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas coach Fred Akers refuses to criticize the Longhorn defense even though Oklahoma rushed for nearly 400 yards and four touchdowns on Saturday in a 28-22 Sooner victory. On Monday, Akers described the Texas defense as "highly competitive with a chance to improve.... We expect to develop into a top one. But you don't do it overnight, or automatic, and you're always uncovering some things that you need to be sounder in." "I don't think we've got a great anything at this point," he said. Oklahoma produced three big fullback runs, including touchdown sprints of 59 and 15 yards by Weldon Ledbetter. But he said his team's defensive tackles were not "consistently soft." "We won a lot of those battles inside. We didn't win them all, and they didn't win them all," he said. "For the most part, we played a very good defensive game. When we didn't, it was obvious." Starting defensive tackle Raymond Woodward hurt his knee and will miss Texas' next game, against Southern Methodist on Oct. 23, Akers said. Akers said there were two turning points in the Oklahoma game — when Texas quarterback Robert Brewer was sacked and fumbled in the fourth quarter and when Oklahoma quarterback Kelly Phelps ran a bootleg on third-and-12 for a first down with about 1 1/2 minutes left in the game. "It was a gamble they took, and it worked," Akers said. "That's the biggest play he (Phelps) has made. They did it very well and we didn't react in time." Akers said the game film showed Texas safety Craig Curry was in position to tackle Marcus Dupree for no gain on a play that resulted in a 63-yard touchdown run but slipped on the wet artificial turf. On Ledbetter's 59-yard scoring run, Akers said, the Texas defense had "guessed wrong" and "loaded up" on the outside. Akers said he thought the Longhorns still are a top 20 team. "I think we are," he said. "I think Oklahoma is."

It's slugging versus speed in October Classic

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — This riverfront city on the banks of the Mississippi where the Gateway Arch signals the way West, welcomes the World Series for the first time in 14 years tonight as the St. Louis Cardinals face the Milwaukee Brewers.

Baseball could not have come up with a more intriguing matchup to battle for its world championship.

Whitey Herzog's Cardinals are a modern Gashouse Gang, who won the National League championship with speed and defense. They stole 200 bases and Herzog thinks they're capable of 75 more than that. And they hit 67 home runs, fewest in the majors, proving that you don't have to hit the ball over the wall to win ball games.

"Don't try to tell that to the Manager Harvey Kuenn and his American League champion Brewers, a team of sluggers that hit 216 homers, tops in the majors. The Brewers live by the long ball and, in tribute to their manager, they are called Harvey's Wallbangers.

So it will be a clash of opposing philosophies.

Right-hander Bob Forsch, who pitched a three-hit shutout in the opening game of the National League playoffs against Atlanta, starts for the Cardinals tonight, while the Brewers counter with lefty Mike Caldwell, who was battered by California in the opener of the American League series.

Two of the Wallbangers are ailing and Kuenn said he would not know until gametime whether outfielders Gorman Thomas and Ben Oglivie could play. Thomas, who shared the major league home run championship with 39, has a sore knee, and Oglivie, who hit 34 homers, has a bruised rib.

"I won't know if they can play until I get to the park," said Kuenn. "If they don't, I've got all kinds of other guys who can."

Marshall Edwards and Mark Brouhard, who both made important contributions to the playoff victory over California, are Kuenn's outfield reserves.

The Game Two pitching matchups will be veteran Don Sutton for the Brewers against rookie John Stuper for the Cardinals.

When the Series shifts to Milwaukee for Game Three Friday night, Pete Vuckovich, traded away in one of Herzog's early remodeling moves, starts for the Brewers against Joaquin Anduar for St. Louis.

"The trade was part of the business," deadpanned Vuckovich, an 18-game winner this season. "Whitey wanted to build a team on speed and I never really ran that well."

The Cards do, though. They are a first-to-third oriented team, seldom satisfied to advance around the bases 90 feet at a time. And their defense is just about flawless with only 124 errors.

"From what I've seen, they're personalized with Whitey Herzog's stamp on them," said Caldwell, the Brewers' first game starter.

"They have a lot of similarities to the teams he had in Kansas City. They don't strike out a lot and they hit the ball up the middle and in the alleys."

Herzog's Royal teams reached the playoffs three times but never could get past the New York Yankees. So this will be his first World Series. He's looking forward to it.

"I don't know what it's like," he said. "I've never done it before, but everybody wants to. Now I've got the chance."

The Brewers' big bats don't frighten the Cardinals, who think their spacious ball park will equalize Milwaukee's power and that its artificial surface will benefit St. Louis.

Vuckovich remembered Busch Stadium's roomy dimensions but didn't think that would trouble the Brewers.

"These guys can hit them out anywhere," he said. "The ball doesn't carry well here but if they can hit them in Milwaukee with the wind blowing in, they can hit them anywhere."

As for the Cardinals, Kuenn said he really didn't know much about the NL champs.

"I expect them to run," he said. "They've got great speed. But we have fellows with great speed, too. We might surprise some people."

The Brewers are coming off a remarkable week. After losing three straight games in Baltimore to fall back into a tie for first place in the AL East, they captured the division on the final day of the season by beating the Orioles. Then Milwaukee lost the first two games of the American League straight victories to capture the pennant exactly one week after they had beaten back the Orioles.

Robin Yount, Milwaukee's shortstop, was asked if the strain of the hectic week might leave his team drained with nothing left to give.

"When you look at what you're playing for ... that you're in the World Series, something very few players on our team has experienced, well, if you can't get up for these games, you can't get up for anything," he said.

Cecil Cooper, hero of the Brewers' pennant clinching victory over California, sees this all-Midwest World Series as a good thing for baseball.

"It's great to have new blood in the Series," he said. "It's good for fans to see players they don't get to see that much."

The Brewers and Cardinals will be seeing plenty of each other for the next week or so.

Landry feels strike will end

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry said on his radio show Monday night that he believes there will be a 1982 National Football League season.

"I don't think we will lose the season," Landry said. "There are too many people who want to see the season played."

Landry also said on his KRLD radio show that all conference games would have to be made up to keep the divisional champions from being watered down ones.

"My thought is that you have to make up all the conference games so there is creditability in the conference winners," he said. "It would be foolish for us not to play those games."

Dallas already has missed National Conference Eastern Division games against the New York Giants and Washington Redskins.

The Cowboys are scheduled to play the Philadelphia Eagles on the road this Sunday.

Cowboys' player representative Robert Newhouse told The Associated Press Monday night he thought most players would abandon their demand for a wage scale before they give up the entire season.

"A lot of players are not too gung-ho on sitting out all year for the wage scale," Newhouse said. "But we still are not ready to go back until something better is offered."

Texas army greets Norwegian king

HOUSTON (AP) — Other visiting dignitaries might have been nonplussed by the authentically dressed Texas Army lining the shoreline, complete with coonskin caps and muskets — but not Norway's King Olav V.

About 80 members of the Texas Army, a ceremonial group that promotes the dress and weaponry used during Texas' fight for independence in the 1830s, fired a salute into the air as the visiting monarch arrived by boat Monday at the San Jacinto Monument. He had just toured the Houston Ship Channel.

"He said he had studied Texas history and was familiar with the time period," said Texas Army Col. Mike Powasnick, dressed in full frontier gear. "He said he was very impressed."

After the greeting from the Texas Army, General Carroll Lewis presented the king with an authentic replica of a frontier rifle.

"We wanted to present a historian with something that would be appropriate for that period," Powasnick said.

Olav visited the San Jacinto battleground, site of a major Texas victory in becoming an independent nation in 1836, as part of his tour of the area.

Powasnick said the rifle bore an engraving that showed the Alamo, site of a defeat by the Texans, the year 1836, and the surrender at San Jacinto by Mexican General Santa Anna.

"It's just symbolic of Texas of that period," he said.

The king also placed a cornerstone at the site of the Norwegian Seaman's Church and attended a $250-a-plate benefit Monday night to assist in construction of the facility.

The king's visit was to continue today with a seismic shot demonstration and a luncheon hosted by Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire.

Olav's arrival at the battleground was accompanied by rains — and only a few curious tourists.

"We're just vacationing, seeing Texas. We didn't plan on seeing a king," said a tourist from New York. "We couldn't figure out who those people were in costumes."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A movie about the late Princess Grace of Monaco, starring Cheryl Ladd, will go ahead despite the death of the princess but with a new title, the producers say.

The film will be based on the life of Grace Kelly, the Academy Award-winning actress who married Prince Rainier III of Monaco in 1956.

After Princess Grace died of a stroke on Sept. 14, following an automobile accident, it was uncertain if Embassy Television and ABC would proceed with the project.

"The two-hour drama, as originally planned, will begin during Princess Grace's teen-age years and culminate with the royal wedding," Embassy vice president Barbara S. Brogliatti said on Monday.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Academy Award-winning actor Richard Dreyfuss was saved by his seat belt when his sports car flipped over, but faces a drug-related investigation stemming from the accident.

Dreyfuss, 34, who played a sculptor paralyzed by an auto crash in his last movie, "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" was listed in good condition Monday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center after his car overturned Sunday and slammed into a palm tree in a Beverly Hills canyon.

"It was his seat belt that saved his life," said Police Lt. Russ Olson.

Olson said a small amount of white powder believed to be cocaine was found in Dreyfuss' car and that the actor was "booked in absentia" for investigation of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs and possession of a controlled substance.

NEW YORK (AP) — Master pianist and author Arthur Rubinstein will be forced to miss a dinner in his honor Oct. 18 because he is "not strong enough to travel" from his home in Switzerland.

The announcement that the 95-year-old maestro could not attend was made Monday by the Weizmann Institute of Israel, which is giving the dinner here in Rubinstein's honor.

The announcement said Rubinstein's son, actor John Rubinstein, would stand in.

News briefs

BOSTON (AP) — A spate of suspicious fires in Boston's older sections is "a classic example of what's been going on in this city," according to Deputy Fire Chief Leo Stapleton.

Three fires, two of them suspicious, broke out in vacant buildings Monday morning, one spreading to six other structures, including an 18th century landmark home. Damage estimates reached $140,000.

A series of early-morning fires in the same areas during the summer severely taxed the fire department. Since 1979 arson fires have jumped 50 percent from 437 to an expected 633 this year, while the number of fires overall declined about 30 percent from 4,478 to 3,062.

CHARGED IN FOUR ARSON FIRES AT THE SCHOOL TWO MONTHS AGO, officials say.

Dr. Elliott C. Willard, principal at Booker T. Washington High School, and teacher Joseph H. Jacques were booked Monday on charges of falsifying a police report. The student, whose name was withheld, was arrested Saturday and booked on four counts of aggravated arson.

Police said the school officials lied about the fires in statements to investigators and had three students to do the same. Only one of the students was charged, and no motive was established.

Report says

Reagan policies destroying environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's policies are damaging the environment in hundreds of ways across the nation, according to a report released today by 10 environmental groups.

Among the problems the report described were high pesticide exposure among South Texas farm workers, dangerous levels of chemicals in Great Lakes fish and a variety of mining and development threats to well-known national parks.

"The stories we report are not all big stories. Some are just sad ones that need never have happened," the report says.

"Taken together, they paint a picture of an administration committed to a systematic weakening of pollution controls to suit the polluters and to handing over publicly owned resources to private interests."

The study, titled "Hitting Home: The Effects of the Reagan Environmental Policies on Communities Across America," is a compilation of reports from local environmental leaders in more than 40 American communities.

"In Washington, we have a tendency to get very abstract about what is happening in the country. We wanted concrete examples," said Larry Williams, the Sierra Club's Washington director.

The study's subjects range from acid rain damage in Maine, Massachusetts and Wisconsin to the effects of over-grazing on government land in Oregon, and it names the Interior Department and the Environmental Protection Agency as the chief culprits.

Doug Baldwin, chief spokesman for Interior Secretary James Watt, dismissed the report as election-year politics.

"We expect a barrage of last-minute slings and arrows as these groups attempt to influence the outcome of some races," he said. "If this report mirrors what they have done in the past, there is going to be little truth to it."

One of the main criticisms of the EPA concerned the cutback in federal funds to support state air, water, hazardous waste and pesticide programs. Grants for state environmental programs have been reduced from 16 percent to 50 percent, the study found.

New York officials said they may have to close as many as half of the state's 250 air-monitoring sites because of the cuts.

"Our correspondents in state after state — California, the Carolinas, Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Washington — all tell the same stories: less sampling of air and water quality, cursory reviews of permits for new sources of pollution and fewer inspections of existing sources," the study said of the cuts.

The report also said the Reagan administration had slashed the budget for pollution research in the Great Lakes, from $30 million in 1979-80 to $3 million in 1982.

The cuts virtually shut down EPA's Lakes Research Laboratory at Grosse Ile, Mich., even as the lab was turning up dangerous levels of toxaphene in fish. Fish with toxaphene levels of 10 parts per million, twice the limit for food, have been found in the lakes, the study said, but EPA has refused to place restrictions on the widely used pesticide.

Pesticide exposure also was listed as a serious problem in Texas' Rio Grande Valley, where the report said farmworkers were often drenched by chemicals sprayed in fields. The study said in one worker survey, 80 percent said they had experienced skin rashes, 51 percent complained of dizziness and 40 percent cited chronic headaches — all symptoms of pesticide poisoning.

The study said the EPA has refused to demand reforms in Texas' pesticide enforcement efforts.

In Utah, Bryce Canyon National Park, Capitol Reef National Park, Glen Canyon National Recreation Area and Dinosaur National Monument face threats from coal mining either inside the park or just outside park boundaries, the study said, and the Canyonlands National Park is threatened by possible construction of a high-level nuclear waste dump.

National parks in Georgia, California, Indiana and dozens of other states have been unable to finish buying land to complete they said.

All states have lost federal grants to buy their own parkland, it said, leaving many states stranded with half-completed projects. In Massachusetts, old industrial cities like Lynn, Lawrence, Gardner, North Adams, Holyoke, Springfield and Fall River have been affected, the study said.

Bull, bear or unidentified critter

NEW YORK (AP) — As puzzled as anyone else, some of Wall Street's seers are suspending judgment about the stock market and assuring their customers that if it looks like a bull and acts like a bull then it probably is a bull.

But others remind us that these are days of deep deceit, and that now is the very time that judgments should be based on more than appearances lest, for example, a bear stalks the market dressed as a bull.

That is the dilemma in which investors — amateur and professional alike — now find themselves. Which is worse, to believe it's a bear when it's really a bull, or a bull when it's really a bear? Ne-enopg'tle help from the professional forecasters, because they have demonstrated themselves as being unable to determine the nature of the beast. The sunoo n'impressive.

Looking back two months and better than 200 points in the Dow Jones industrial average, few of the pros foresaw the turn that shot the Dow to its present eminence — 1,012.79 at the close of business Monday.

Buried in a mudslide of gloom, their forecasts were awful, in just about any way you want to apply the description.

Joe Granville, who once convinced some people that he was the thing, whatever it is, that propels or buries the market, said at the time that the market was entering its "free-fall zone," the third phase of a bear market.

Richard Russell of Dow Theory Letters agreed with Granville. "I would say that we are now in the early stages of the third phase of the bear market," he told readers. Lawrence Heim of the Heim Investment Letter announced a "modern-day Depression" had arrived and that "it is definitely time to sell short." Harry Schultz, who charges more for a brief consultation that most people earn in a week, said that "no light-brigade charge to 900 is anywhere in sight."

Hulbert, whose newsletter is based on the dastardly practice of checking up on the forecasters, found very few who alerted their readers to the rally that began about then.

James Dines of The Dines Letter, and Market Logic, a publication of the Institute for Econometric Research, probably came closest, the latter with a forecast that "the risk of a buying panic continues to far outweigh the risk of renewed heavy selling," and that 100 million-share days were ahead.
