Bentsen mixes politickin' and recipes during Gray Co. visit

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen, denying allegations of liberalism and calling his Republican opponent Jim Collins an "extremist," came to Pampa Saturday to dedicate the new Huey Home for the retarded and do a little campaigning.

Speaking at the Flame Room of the Energas Building, Bentsen said he wants to emphasize "positive answers and solutions to problems in his campaign."

"I have a fellow running against me who's been there (in Congress) 14 years," he said. "Fourteen years. And in that 14 years he hasn't won one major battle for Texas."

"I'm not an extremist, like he is," Bentsen said after he spoke to the crowd.

The senator said U.S. Representative Collins, who has attacked Bentsen in campaign ads as a follower of liberal leaders and a "big spender," is taking such campaign tactics because he wants Bentsen on the defensive.

"He's a negative man," Bentsen said. "We ought to be talking about more positive things."

The positive things Bentsen referred to Saturday involved his work with economic problems.

Bentsen said his political stance is "to the right of center," and that his voting record on spending bills is not as liberal as Collins characterizes it.

In his speech, the senator, who is chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee and the Joint Economic Committee, said the country needs cuts in government spending, "but at the same time let's not dismantle the government."

He said he supports a bigger defense budget, "but let's not waste the taxpayers' money."

In answer to an allegation by Collins that from 1970 to 1980 he voted against spending bills only twice in 145 votes, Bentsen said those votes don't reflect his true record.

He said he has spent most of his time in Congress recently on the economic ills of the country.

Right now, he said, he is attempting to call a halt to embargoes of United States exports to other countries, and said the government should "never put an embargo against another country where it's going to hurt us more than it hurts them."

In the recent embargo of shipments to Japan, he said, that nation simply went to Brazil for its raw materials.

And the Russian wheat embargo simply sent the Soviet Union to Argentina and other nations for their supply, forcing Russia to drop its reliance on American wheat after the embargo.

The United States once supplied 75 percent of the wheat used in Russia, and now supplies 25 percent, he said.

Bentsen said he was one of only four senators who voted against that bill, and now "we're trying to do some things to break down those barriers to other countries."

He said he is also a supporter of vocational education provided by the private sector. "If we can cut unemployment by 3 percent," he said, "it will cut the federal deficit by 90 billion dollars," by moving people from "welfare rolls and onto payrolls."

"We ought to provide new skills," he said, particularly when an increase in jobs in the computer and service industries is predicted.

When asked if efforts in the private sector can solve the nation's economic problem, as supply-side economists believe, he said "most of it."

"I think there are areas when the government has to provide assistance, such as Social Security," he said.

His experience at Lockheed Aircraft during the Vietnam War, he said, taught him that defense money can often be wasted.

Because of that, he has succeeded the creation of an outside inspector general's office to monitor defense spending.

Because of that new office, he said, "no general can call off an audit just because it could prove to be embarrassing."

Senator Bentsen spends weekends in Texas campaigning for the November general election, he said, and once the present session of Congress is over, he'll be in the state full-time.

"I know what the polls show. The polls show me way out front," he said. "But I also know the polls don't elect people; people elect people."

Bolemans sue Energas for fire

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

The James Boleman family filed suit this week against Energas and its parent company Pioneer Corporation in 223rd District Court, claiming negligence for an alleged gas leak that led to an explosion in their mobile home August 27.

Boleman's wife Anna and infant child Ana are still confined to burn centers in Galveston nearly a month after an explosion in which both suffered second and third degree burns over at least 50 percent of their bodies.

A representative of Pioneer Corp. said company officials would not comment on matters in litigation as a matter of company policy.

No dollar amount has been named in the suit, but their lawyer, Dale Friend of Irving, Texas, said future damages to be named might be the "highest ever presented to a jury" in this county.

He said an estimate of the damages is delayed in this case because victims are still under costly treatment.

Westar Transmission, another company owned by Pioneer, was also named in the suit as the firm supplying gas to homes in Gray County.

The Bolemans claim in the suit that they had purchased the mobile home at 634 N. Roberta and requested gas service from the company.

On August 27, the suit claims, "a representative employee or other agent" of Energas came to the home "and turned the gas on, assuring Plaintiffs that all installations and appliances were in proper order."

"Very shortly after such assurances had been made, and the gas representative had left the scene," the suit goes on to say, "an explosion and fire occurred, horribly burning the residents in the home."

Floyd Steele, investigator for the Pampa Fire Marshall's office, said after his investigation that an gas line leading into the house had been left open, and that gas from this line was most probably the source for the explosion.

In addition to claims on the basis of injuries and disfigurement, the suit says "in the fire and explosion, their mobile home and all contents were destroyed."

The suit claims that Energas failed "to exercise ordinary care by the defendants" and accuses the company under "theories of negligence, breach of warranty, strict liability and general tort law."

More specific pleadings will be filed later, according to the suit.

Honduran hostage crisis is over

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras (AP) — Leftist guerrillas who held two Cabinet ministers and dozens of businessmen hostage for eight days in the Chamber of Commerce building were flown out of the country Saturday after releasing their last 32 hostages, the government said.

The guerrillas, believed to number 10, left aboard a twin-engine Panamanian air force plane. Their destination was not disclosed but they were apparently bound for Panama en route to Cuba. The government said 32 hostages, the last of the captives held in the siege, were released at the airport.

Local radio stations reported earlier that some of the hostages were aboard the plane when it took off at 2:41 p.m. EDT.

Just like old times

It was a night of old times remembered and chuckled over as more than 500 employees and former employees of the Cabot Corporation gathered in the M.K. Brown Auditorium to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the company. Among those enjoying the reunion were Louis Cabot, left, grandson of the company's founder and currently its chairman, and R.C. Grider, of Pampa, a Cabot employee until he retired. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

Is the open container law legal?

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Would a proposed city ordinance banning open containers of alcohol on the streets of Pampa be an illegal law?

"I don't know the answer to that," said Allen Johnson, attorney for the state's Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

Johnson's reply echoes the opinions of several state and area officials, but the question apparently will not stop Pampa officials from supporting such an ordinance.

City Attorney Don Lane said he thought the ordinance would hold up in court despite some indications in state law that drinking is regulated solely by the state.

"If we didn't believe it today, I don't think the commission would pass it," he said.

On Tuesday, Pampa will find out if city officials believe it. The ordinance is scheduled for consideration at the regular 9:30 a.m. commission meeting.

If passed, it would go into effect the first week of October, after the required legal notice is published.

Open container ordinances are becoming increasingly popular in the state.

Several cities in East Texas have them, Johnson said, and the state legislature itself attempted one in the last session without success.

So far, the ordinances have not led to a public jurisdictional battle between the state and cities, simply because no case involving an ordinance has reached a higher court, Johnson said.

The attorney, however, referring to section 11.01 of the Alcoholic Beverage Code, said "anything not authorized by the code is illegal," meaning that the power to make an open container law does not belong to the city, in his opinion.

That clause is seemingly buried in the state code — in the last sentence of clause three of Subchapter A (General Provisions) of the section regulating permits for sales and manufacture of liquor.

It states: "An act done by a person which is not permitted by this code is illegal."

The code outlines powers of a local government to define and regulate "wet" and "dry" areas, issue licenses and enforce sales regulations.

There is apparently no mention in the code of regulation of consumption of alcohol or possession of it for personal use.

According to Johnson's interpretation, if the power to pass an ordinance is not specifically outlined by the code, it will not hold up under scrutiny by a judge.

Once such an ordinance is passed, however, a case must be appealed to state courts before the question of the law's validity could be considered.

"We're not going to challenge or contest the ordinance... we have no legal standing to do that," Johnson said.

And as proposed by Pampa city management, the ordinance would be a misdemeanor punishable by a municipal court fine of over $1 and under $200.

Even on an appeal, he said, the principle of "home rule" might be enough to make the ordinance legitimate.

Home rule applies to most cities with charters, including Pampa, and in the enactment and enforcement of ordinances, "a home rule city can do pretty much what they want to," according to Johnson.

A.C. Spears, city manager of Borger, is in charge of one such city.

Borger's city commission passed an open container law Jan. 19, the law on which Pampa's attorney Don Lane said he based his writing of Pampa's proposal.

Unlike Pampa's proposal, Borger's isolates for enforcement a particular section of the city's downtown "where there had been some problems with private property" and all of the city's parks except

El Paso's court, where the poor ride free after new district judge ruling

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Some of this border city's poorest people soon will get the legal services of the highest-paid lawyers around at rates even they can afford.

All 10 state district judges in El Paso approved a program Friday designed by the local Bar Association that will require the city's 700 lawyers to donate family court services to the poor twice a year or risk being cited for contempt.

"Our silk stocking law firms will be representing some people who may have never thought they'd ever step into one of those building spires," said Royal Ferguson, president-elect of the El Paso Bar Association.

He said the program is necessary because of drastic cuts in legal services funding by the Reagan Administration.

The cuts had a disproportionate effect in this city of 400,000 because of its large numbers of poor people and relatively small number of lawyers, he said.

"We were faced with a dwindling legal service program serving a large number of poor people," he said.

The legal service staff in El Paso had dropped from a high of 14 lawyers in 1978 to six this summer, he said.

"We don't have the bodies to handle run-of-the-mill divorce cases," said Ferguson, who estimated legal services turned away 1,200 to 1,400 such cases last year.

State Bar Association spokesman Larry Fitzgerald in Austin said the program is the first of its kind in Texas and perhaps the first in the nation. He said a spokesman for the American Bar Association knew of no other such program.

"It's kind of risky because it may not work. ... We are taking a risk, but in this border town if we don't do something as a group, our people are just not going to get legal services," said Ferguson.

A Bar Association committee appointed last July determined a voluntary program would not work in El Paso because it would place too heavy a burden on the lawyers who volunteered. But it decided a mandatory program of two cases a year would be fair to every lawyer.

"It didn't meet with universal acceptance ... the fact it was mandatory did cause some concern to a number of lawyers," he said.

But he said the program was approved by the association Sept. 14 and approved by the judges Friday.

Under the program, a judge will appoint an attorney to represent, free of charge, a person determined to be eligible for the program by a legal services screening.

If the lawyer is in trial or has other conflicts, a Bar Association committee will examine each request for exemption on a per case basis.

He said the association estimated the program represents at least $400,000 to $600,000 a year in free legal service for the indigent.

Jim Wright is stumping for Cooper of Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright says he believes voters will see that "you just can't buy an election in Tennessee," an apparent reference to the congressional campaign spending of Sen. Howard Baker's daughter.

Wright, a Democrat from Fort Worth, Texas, came to Tennessee Friday to campaign for Jim Cooper, 28, Democratic candidate in the state's new 4th congressional district. Cooper's GOP opponent is Cissy Baker, the 26-year-old daughter of Baker, Tennessee's senior senator.

Through July 16, Cooper had spent $258,000 on the campaign compared with about $480,000 for Miss Baker, Cooper and Baker aides said.

Wright said he thinks voters will see that "public office in Tennessee is not up for sale ... to the highest bidder ... like a seat on the New York Stock Exchange and that you just can't buy an election in Tennessee."

Wright said he thinks Cooper will win because he knows the people of the district and their needs.

"I think they see in Jim Cooper a man who is one of them ... a man who has spent his whole year among them ... who hasn't done another single thing except cultivate a close acquaintanceship with wishes, the needs and the hopes and aspirations of the people of Tennessee," Wright said.

"I think he possesses all the attributes of intellect and integrity and of character and of background and of clout, I might say," Wright said of Cooper, the son of the late Gov. Prentice Cooper.

Wright also promised that Cooper would get a good House committee assignment if he wins in November, something he indicated Baker wouldn't have as much influence on.

"I assure you as majority leader of the House who may have some little bit to say, perhaps even more than a senator may have to say, about what committees a House member might receive and what influence and effectiveness he might be expected to wield," Wright said. "I will assure you and all of Tennessee that Jim Cooper is going to be assigned to a major committee ... and one from which he can render the maximum service to the people of the state of Tennessee."

Five hurt when plane hits apartments

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Five people remained hospitalized Saturday with serious burns suffered when a plane ferrying two prisoners to Louisiana clipped an apartment building and crashed into parking lot, authorities said.

Twelve apartments were destroyed and seven vehicles were burned after the plane exploded Friday, sending burning aviation fuel in all directions, witnesses said.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived in Midland Saturday to look into the cause of the crash.

The airplane was attempting to return to Midland Air Park, where it had taken off moments before, when it hit the second-floor roof of the Warwick Apartments, which are several hundred yards from the airport, said eyewitness Andy Connell, a reporter for radio station KYXX.

"Three guys were fighting trying to get out of the plane. You could see flames on their clothes," said Bob Aldrich, 37, of Midland, a former Army medic who witnessed the crash.

Connell said one unidentified passenger, badly burned and dressed only in tattered and blackened underclothing, walked to the apartment manager's office seeking help for his friend.

"Can somebody please help my friend? He is burning and could die. He is in there and he is burning. Is he still alive?"

Is my friend still alive?" Connell quoted the unidentified passenger as saying.

Apartment resident Dino Zandy said after the crash, he saw his neighbor, Randy Sellers, 20, running at him out of a cloud of thick black smoke.

"He came out of the black smoke yelling 'Help me! Oh God, help me,'" said Zandy.

Sellers remained in critical condition today at Lubbock General Hospital with burns over about 70 percent of his body, said a hospital spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified.

The pilot, Alex Sheets, 56, and Ken Hornsby, 42, a law enforcement officer also from Baton Rouge, La., were transferred to the hospital in Lubbock, 160 miles away.

A spokeswoman said both men were in critical condition. She said Sheets had burns over about 50 percent of his body and Hornsby had burns over about 70 percent of his body.

The two prisoners, George Gibbs, 30, of Alexandria, La., and Bernell Bell, 30, of Baton Rouge, were listed in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital, said spokeswoman Kay Watkins. Both men were burned over about 20 percent of their bodies.

Gibbs and Bell were being transferred to the Louisiana State Prison System, according to Department of Public Safety spokesman Jimmy Rhoads.

Louisiana Department of Corrections spokeswoman Ede Day said Gibbs and Bell were being returned to Louisiana for violating the terms of their release.

Gibbs had been picked up in Martinez, Calif., and was being returned to the Rapides Parish Jail because of probation violation, said Ms. Day.

Bell was picked up in Las Vegas, she said, and was being returned to the Hunt Correctional Facility for a parole violation. He had been paroled in February of 1981.

Apartment fire kills five

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Fire roared through an old apartment building near the downtown area of this border city Friday night, killing at least five people, authorities said.

One person was hospitalized in critical condition and an injured firefighter was kept overnight for observation, a fire department dispatcher said.

Three people were found dead at the scene and two others died after arriving at the hospital, authorities said. Deputy Fire Chief Glen Watson said investigators did not expect to find any more bodies.

"It's the worst fire we've ever had in El Paso in terms of the loss of life," Watson said.

Fire Chief M.L. Coleman said the victims were all adults found in various parts of the Alexandria Apartments, a multi-storied brick structure built around the turn of the century.

Most were on the third floor, where the fire apparently started, Coleman said.

"It appears the fire started in a hallway," the chief said. "It went up the walls and through the ceilings and in some places through the doors, asphyxiating those in rooms and in some case, those in halls."

Watson said the cause of the fire had not been determined and investigators were running tests on material recovered from the blaze.

The fire was reported shortly after 11 p.m. and quickly went to multi alarms as 10 pieces of firefighting equipment and four ambulances responded, the dispatcher said.

Firemen had the blaze under control in 30 minutes.

White-Clements clash in Amarillo debate

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The first televised political debate between state gubernatorial candidates ended on a sour note as Texas Attorney General Mark White lambasted Gov. Bill Clements for publicizing an old traffic arrest.

White called the inclusion of his 19-year-old arrest for driving while intoxicated in a Clements political tabloid "the dirtiest tactic I've seen in Texas politics." The two squared off in a debate sponsored by KVII-TV, in which four panelists quizzed them on a wide range of topics.

White countered Clements' criticism of his record as attorney general with charges of the Republican's "bungling" as governor.

The fireworks came at the end of the hour-long debate when the subject of Clements' political tabloid, the "Texas Spectator", arose.

Details of White's 19-year-old arrest for driving while intoxicated in Athens, while he was then a 23-year-old law student, were printed in the tabloid. The publication was authorized by and financed by the Clements finance committee.

"With this fake newspaper, you have gone too far," White said. "In here, you've accused me of everything from being responsible for murder to advocating the right of teachers to strike."

"You know that's not true. This thing is garbage, and that's where the people of Texas are going to throw it," White said.

Earlier during the debate, White had called the tabloid that was mailed to about one million Texans "a scurrilous rag."

Clements has defended the publication of the arrest, in which White pleaded guilty to a lesser offense and paid a fine. The incumbent in the heated race said the facts were correct and that the media in Athens — not the governor's campaign — publicized the incident.

But White continued to criticize his campaign tactics.

"Bill, if you continue this irresponsible campaigning, not only will you cheapen the Office of Governor of the State of Texas, you'll prove what too many people already believe," White said, "that you'll say anything and do anything to get re-elected."

Clements, during panelists' questioning, had bitterly assailed White's record as attorney general, saying he has won no major cases for the state.

But White disagreed he had lost the "big cases" as attorney general.

At age 86, Pop is running for governor

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — Gordon F. "Pop" Wills knows that at age 86, his second-time write-in candidacy for governor probably is doomed.

Incumbent Bill Clements and challenger Mark White, both a score or more years Wills' junior, have millions of dollars to spend on their races, while Wills must finance his with the $1,000 or so he can squeeze from a military pension.

But the physically-fit, mentally-keen former cotton picker, truck farmer, streetcar operator and soldier in two world wars doesn't appear a bit despondent.

"Why should I be discouraged?" said Wills, sitting in the lobby of the old Athens Hotel, his home, as vintage ceiling fans whirl overhead.

"I'm a free-born American citizen. If I want to run for something and spend my money on it, that's my business."

Wills has spent more than $1,000 on dozens of advertisements in six East Texas newspapers.

The messages on the ads vary, but they all end the same and sum up Wills' reason for running: "Please cancel the names of my opponents and write my name in. I am opposed to alcohol and dope."

Today's generation of politicians, including his two opponents, are too weak-willed to speak out on the most important issues of the day — homosexuality, for instance, Wills said.

"It's just as much a sin today as it was when God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah," he said.

As for White and Clements, Wills' ads conclude, "If half of what each has said about the other is true, I hardly see why anyone would vote for either of them."

Wills is no newcomer to politicking. He ran for governor in 1972 and twice without success for Henderson County sheriff.

"The life of all of us is bound up in politics," he said. "If we don't pay attention to it, we're going to lose this country quicker than we think."

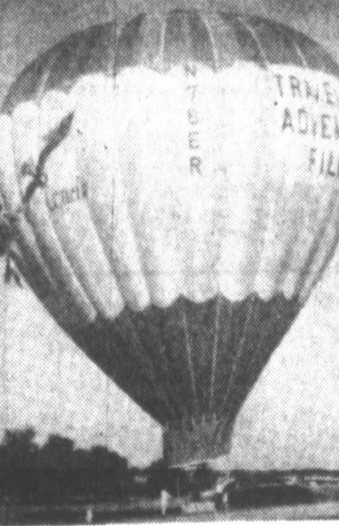

It was during the 1972 gubernatorial race that Wills said he picked up his nickname.

Deficit? Well then let's build up guns

Even as the president was claiming that he was simply at the end of his rope when it came to reducing government spending and that he would just have to raise taxes, the Navy let out contracts worth $802.8 million for one of the more questionable projects of our time.

The contract was for conversion of up to 13 cargo ships to be loaded with weapons and supplies for Marine brigades. It's designed to enhance the ability of the United States to send major military forces into the Persian Gulf. It's one of the first concrete steps toward building the vaulted Rapid Deployment Force.

This is just the nose of the camel under the tent, of course. After the ships are put into service, they'll have to be filled with material for 45,000 Marines, and they'll need plenty of fuel to operate for years to come, whether they are needed or not. The entire Rapid Deployment Force is expected to cost at least $20 billion in start-up costs and another $20 billion in additional weapons and equipment.

The idea of a Rapid Deployment Force to protect alleged U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf is a shaky notion at best. The United States gets less than 8 percent of its oil from the region, and the likelihood that the oil could be kept flowing through military action is remote. Western Europe and Japan are much more dependent on Persian Gulf oil than we are, yet the RDF is to be financed entirely by U.S. taxpayers.

Besides, we thought the U.S. already had a rapid deployment force, called the U.S. Marines. The creation of this new force is more likely to lead to more interservice rivalry than to increased interservice cooperation.

The contracts the Navy has just let for 13 cargo ships are subject to congressional approval. Congress should use this opportunity not only to disallow these contracts, but to raise fundamental questions about the entire Rapid Deployment Force idea.

The real battle we've got on our hands is one of numbers. Government chronically spends 24 percent of the gross national product while it knows the people won't tolerate taking that much in taxes — hence a huge deficit. The times are so confused that we have a tax increase in the middle of a recession, a step disapproved by almost every school of economic thought from Keynesians to Misesians.

The U.S. spends 6 percent of GNP on the military, while West Germany spends about 3.5 percent and Japan less than 1 percent. This is hardly the time for the U.S. to be spending more money to defend the vital interests of our putative allies.

Polish people stand undefeated

The demonstrations that swept Polish cities to mark the second anniversary of Solidarity proved two things, neither confronting to the martial law government of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

First, popular support for the suppressed trade union movement remains strong despite the police state tactics used against opponents of the government.

Second, Solidarity and its supporters can still organize coordinated and widely scattered activities in defiance of the Polish government's Soviet-backed repression.

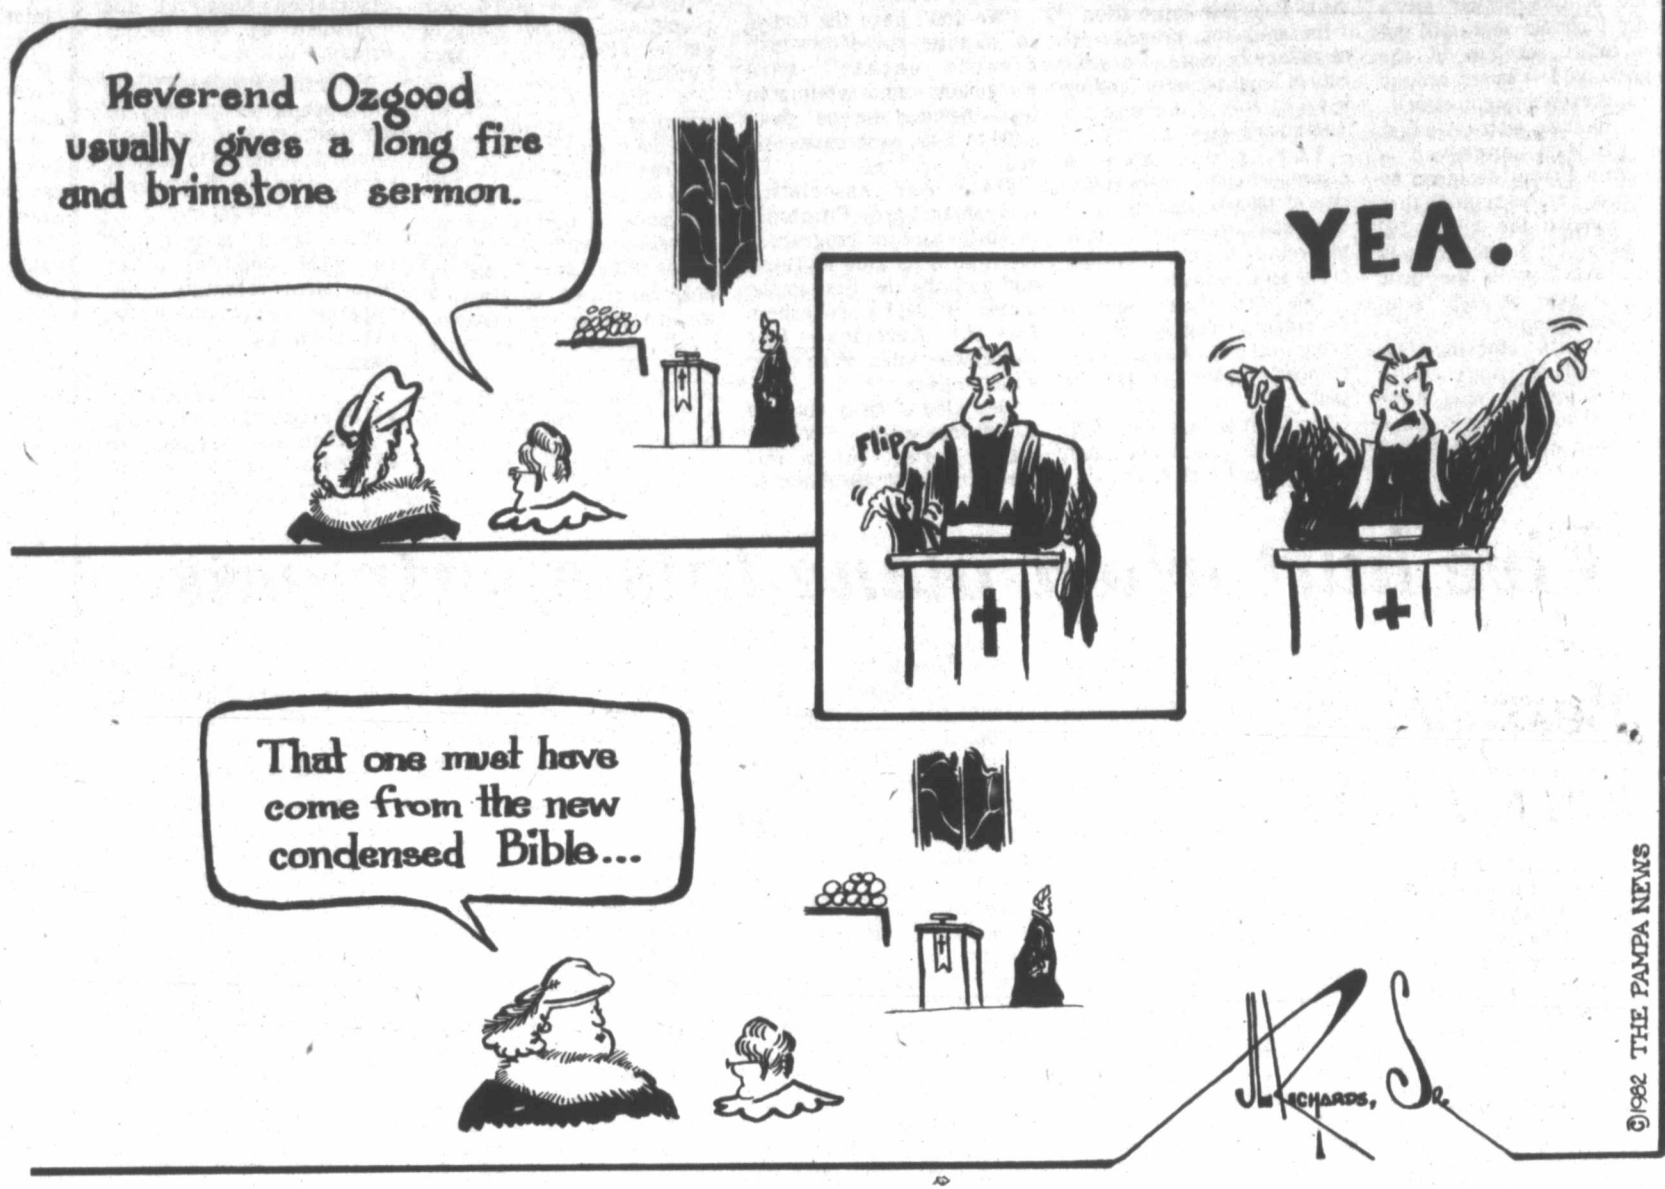

That some demonstrators deteriorated into rioting against troops and police suggested the frustration, and indeed desperation, welling up within Poland's embittered population.

This, too, is grim news to a Polish government that would much prefer a passive population resigned to its fate.

Poles, normally an orderly people, have given history some of its most stirring examples of valiant resistance in the face of impossible odds. Gen. Jaruzelski and the Soviets peering over his shoulder are desperate to avoid provoking the Poles into suicidal resistance.

But if the repression continues, as almost everyone expects it to do, and Poland's economic crisis worsens, an uprising is certainly not out of the question.

What is in doubt is the reaction of the West if Gen. Jaruzelski finds it necessary to tighten the screws. To date, only Washington has made a serious effort to stand by the Polish people.

By ART BUCHWALD

Anyone seen Bush?

By ART BUCHWALD
The season for guessing who the Democratic candidate for President in 1984 will be has started. But there has been little speculation as to the Republican candidate.

The reason is that until he says otherwise, Ronald Reagan has the spot. This is very tough on George Bush, who wants to be Reagan's successor.

But Bush has a problem. He has been vice president of the United States for two years, so nobody knows who he is. In fact people haven't heard from him in so long that many who supported him think he's dropped out of public life.

One of George's loyal supporters admits Bush has a recognition problem, and that it is impossible to keep his name in the public eye. "But," he told me, "he won't be the first vice president of the United States we will have to bring back from obscurity."

"Does George think Reagan will run again?" I asked.

"George doesn't know, and he would be the last person to ask the President."

"Has the President indicated if he didn't run, George could go for his job?"

"To my knowledge George and Ronnie have never discussed politics. After all, they're not that close."

"I would think it's only fair to George that Ronnie give some kind of hint whether he wanted another term, so George could get some exposure," I said.

"If Ronnie tells anyone he isn't going to run again, he'll be considered a lame duck President and no one will pay any attention to him. He has to have everyone believing he's going for a second term, whether he is or not."

"And George has to have everyone believe he isn't."

"George is a team player. I've never known him since he's been Vice President to hint he'd ever do anything different if he was in the Oval Office."

"Maybe that's why no one ever hears from him," I said. "But that must put you in a spot. You can't very well get an organization together by 1984 without tipping George's hand that he has presidential ambitions."

The Bush man said, "It is a Catch-22 situation. If I try to raise money for Bush now, people will get the impression George has gotten the word that Reagan won't run again. But if I say George hasn't got the word, no one will give me any money."

"Why do you need money now?"

"To start getting Bush some name recognition. If he is going to run against a Teddy Kennedy or a John Glenn, people are going to have to know who he is. I'll tell you one thing. Being vice president of the United States doesn't do anything for a person's political image."

"Why doesn't Bush announce that he hopes Ronald Reagan runs for another term, because he feels he's the best President we've ever had. That way Bush won't look ambitious but he'll get his name in the papers."

"That's all well and good if we were sure Reagan would run again. But if he doesn't, the reason will be that things in the country are in terrible shape, and if they are, Bush doesn't want to be associated that closely with the President."

"So if Bush just remains vice president and doesn't say anything right now he's covered in case the country goes belly-up?"

"Every vice president who has run for President has been in trouble because he was too closely associated with his boss. We'd like to avoid that with Bush if we could."

"I can see what you're up against. But surely George knew by becoming the vice president of the United States he was in a no-win situation."

"Yes, but at the time, if you remember, he called Reagan's plans for the country 'voodoo economics,' and the Reagan people don't forget easily."

"So they made him vice president?"

"Well they certainly weren't going to make him an ambassador after that."

A thank you
Chautauqua 82 was a marvelous happening for the community of Pampa for which a lot of thanks have been expressed. However, I think that two additional groups of people need to be thanked for the actual happening of Chautauqua 82.

The Pampa Fine Arts Association for sponsoring, believing and supporting Chautauqua 82 and the citizens of Pampa who came to enjoy the day in the park with their families and friends.

If it were not for these two groups of people, all the wonderful news media coverage, the generous merchants, the service organizations, and all the people who worked so hard to make it come off, would all have been in vain.

The Pampa Fine Arts Association is to be commended for bringing to the citizens of Pampa the experiences of different kinds of arts instead of only "fine arts".

I look forward to enjoying Chautauqua 83 next year and am thankful for everyone who made it happen this year.

In pain

A few days ago, I called and talked to a writer from this paper, concerning Social Security. I haven't heard from him, or seen him. Evidently he went to the Social Security office because a few days later, there was an article on Social Security and how they were being used by people and perhaps they were Mental Health Problems.

Pain can do things to the mind. You don't have to be a M.D. to know this, just be in pain and have the experts sneer and roll their eyes at you, not really calling you a liar. It's much worse, because what can you say about a look?

The doctors said they couldn't find anything wrong. Finally after a year (before this I'd been in pain) I had an operation (Gall Stone). Was that all that was wrong? No! Back problems. Well! Again couldn't find anything wrong. My legs, my back. I couldn't walk or sit. One doctor said arthritis, one said vertebra out of place, and a pinched nerve.

People tell me, grit my teeth (which are falling out) and go on living. They don't know I was doing that before. I've no more money for medication or doctors. I'm not a basket case yet! How many go through probably more than I, and get put down as I've been? There are people in Pampa who tried to help. I believe they are still trying. People my age have some pain and (so say the doctor) couldn't be that disabled too? I'll have to fight back, or maybe they really don't care? Or am I the only one?

Two women captives freed after 9 months Dog demoted after he blows up the sergeant's laundry

DALLAS (AP) — Police questioned a 39-year-old man Saturday after rescuing a terrified and badly beaten woman who had been held in bondage for almost nine months in a dingy South Dallas apartment described by one officer as a "semi-torture chamber."

The ordeal ended Friday when another woman, who had been held captive for a week, escaped by tying together bedspreads and breaking through a bathroom window in the second-floor apartment.

Leonard Williams, a laborer, was arrested a short time later about two blocks from the apartment. He was held for investigation of aggravated kidnapping under a $200,000 bond set by Municipal Court Judge Michael O'Neal.

Police rescued a 20-year-old Michigan woman, who said she had been held inside the apartment since December.

The apartment was decorated with pornographic photographs, Dallas Cowboys memorabilia and littered with trash and homemade sex devices, police said.

Boards had been nailed across the three windows in the apartment and the hallway was decorated with women's underwear.

Investigators also discovered logging chains, an 18-inch piece of pipe and bloody sticks.

Mingled in with the pornography were pictures of Elvis Presley and Jesus Christ, police said.

"It's amazing. It's pitiful," police Sgt. E.L. Whitfield said. "In my nine years of experience, when I walked in, all I could say was, 'Oh, my God.' It was such a shock."

Whitfield called the filthy apartment a "semi-torture chamber" from which it "was almost impossible to escape."

The Michigan woman was "almost to the point of being crazy, he had her so intimidated," said Whitfield.

The women, covered with cuts and bruises, told police they had been chained by their necks, beaten with sticks and pipes, and raped and sexually abused.

Police said the man had cropped the women's hair almost to the scalp.

"He cut their hair so they would be less attractive and would not try to escape," said investigator Steve Hatchell.

The women told police that the man padlocked the only door to the apartment when he left.

A resident of the small, dilapidated apartment complex said she knew the women were being held captive, but she and others failed to heed their screams.

"You could hear her hollering and him beating them," said Zona Minnieweather, whose apartment faces Williams' across a vacant lot. "You could hear them women all through the day."

Ms. Minnieweather said she talked to one of the women through a window on Thursday evening.

"She said they hadn't ate nothing in a week and that she was chained down. She said she'd give us $50 to call the police, but I thought she was drunk," Ms. Minnieweather said.

Lonnie Sadler, who lives directly across the hall from Williams, said he didn't even know that the apartment was occupied.

"I never did see anybody go in or out," he said. "Everytime I saw it, it had this chain running through the door, I just figured that the manager had chained it up."

Bob Shaw, a police spokesman, said that "residents of this part of town just don't get involved in other peoples' business — they are just afraid or something."

The apartment had no running water and Williams provided electrical power at night by tapping into the complex's outdoor lighting system, officers said.

The older woman, 37, was dressed only in dirty rags when she escaped. The younger woman had no clothes and neither had eaten in about a week, police said.

Whitfield said the younger woman was not chained when officers entered the apartment, "but she was extremely weak from all the torture. She was brainwashed. She was scared to death."

Both women were taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital, treated for their injuries and released, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The younger woman told police that she met Williams on Dec. 18, 1981 as she ran some errands downtown. She said she agreed to have coffee with Williams at his residence, but that he choked her with his hands when she tried to leave.

The older woman said she was invited to have lunch at the apartment last week. Williams introduced the other woman to her as his wife, she said.

Both women told police they have no local family members who would have reported them missing.

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Air Force security police determined not to blow up another harmless suitcase have demoted the explosive-sniffing dog whose faulty nose triggered the response that scattered laundry on a street corner.

Napoleon recently flunked recertifications as an explosives detector and has been banished to routine guard duty, a Dyess Air Force Base spokesman said.

The 5½-year-old shepherd mix breed's claim to fame came in early December 1981 when he was summoned to check out a suitcase chained to a fire hydrant on the base.

He assumed the "alert" position, prompting security police to blow up the potential bomb with a special projectile.

The suitcase, as it turned out, had been chained to the fire plug by a sergeant who grew tired lugging it home from the flight line. When the dust cleared, the sergeant's underwear, shaving kit and clock radio had been strewn across the street corner.

something, and this allows cholesterol levels to increase."

Burger said the experiments produced no adverse effects on poultry, rats and swine. He said the team will know in two months whether garlic, ginseng and barley intake can be increased safely in human diets.

Garlic has been credited since the days of ancient Rome with special health benefits, and many cultures thrived on barley before switching to wheat and other grains. Ginseng is a wild plant found throughout the United States, especially in forests.

Tests showed that by increasing garlic in poultry rations from 0.5 percent to 1.5 percent, chicken cholesterol levels decreased by 15 percent and more, the researchers said.

Eat garlic and live longer

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Adding garlic, ginseng root or barley flour to diets may help increase life spans, according to a four-year study which has concluded that the spices and flour inhibit cholesterol accumulation in animals.

Three University of Wisconsin nutritionists who conducted the study say the foods may do the same for humans and may be a key to reducing atherosclerosis — fat deposits in the arteries.

Charles Elson, professor of nutritional sciences, and Asaf Qureshi and Warren Burger, university biochemists associated with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Barley and Malt Laboratory, observed that atherosclerosis is a leading cause of heart disease and that the typical American diet is rich in the fats believed to encourage it.

"The American diet is often accused of increasing cholesterol levels," Elson said in a recent interview. "We are approaching the problem from a different angle: Perhaps our diets lack ginseng had the same effect, they said.

They said cholesterol-inhibiting ingredients also can be found in high-protein barley flour that contains a crucial part of the kernel just below the hull. The kernel is often removed by modern milling techniques.

Elson said he hopes the research can benefit people whose bodies are unable to regulate cholesterol levels.

He said previous researchers have found garlic reduces cholesterol levels in those people. But effectiveness, he said, seems best when fresh garlic gloves are used as compared with processed dried and powdered garlic whose nutritional merits diminish during the processing.

Bess, 97, is back home again

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Former first lady Bess Truman was back home today after her release from Research Medical Center, where she had been hospitalized 22 days for treatment of an intestinal ulcer.

Dr. Wallace Graham, the longtime Truman family physician, said Mrs. Truman's vital signs were stable, and that continued hospital care was not necessary. Mrs. Truman was released Friday.

The 97-year-old widow of President Harry S. Truman is the nation's oldest first lady.

After being rushed to the Kansas City hospital Sept. 2 with a bleeding ulcer in her small intestine, she was listed in serious condition until Thursday, when her condition was upgraded to fair.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A former high school football star charged in the stabbing death of a former Castleberry High School cheerleader will not plead insanity when he stands trial next month on a murder charge, defense attorneys say.

Wesley Wayne Miller, 19, is accused of stabbing Retha Lee Stratton 37 times with a kitchen knife in her Fort Worth duplex last January.

Defense attorneys Jack Strickland and Bill Lane said Friday that Miller had been examined by psychiatrists and they had decided not to argue insanity.

State District Judge Grdon Gray granted defense attorneys permission to administer a lie detector test to Miller. Strickland only would say that prosecutors would not have access to the results.

Gray also granted a second motion Friday ordering the Tarrant County medical examiner to lower the price for photographs of evidence. Strickland complained that officials were charging $5 each for small photos.

"If the medical examiner's office needs to raise money, they can hold a garage sale," Strickland said.

'Citizen of Year' banquet is scheduled for Oct. 21

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Designation of the "Citizen of the Year," the swearing in of new officers and guest speaker Bill Gainer will headline the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet October 21 in the Heritage Room of M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Reed Echols was last year's "Citizen of the Year," and the chamber has mailed letters to civic groups and organizations, asking them for nominees for the award this year.

The chamber asks that nominees have membership in Pampa organizations, have honors or hold office, participate in the community, or make special contributions to the quality of life in Pampa.

The outstanding citizen will be selected by a committee of two chamber board members and three regular members of the chamber.

The committee's decision will be released at the annual banquet, and a plaque will be presented to the winning citizen.

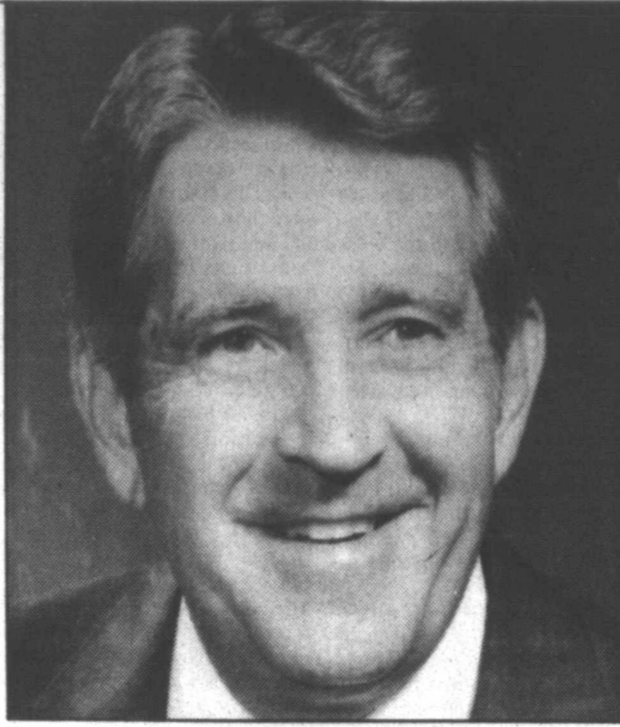

The chamber of commerce asks that any nominations for "Citizen of the Year" be mailed to the chamber office immediately.

Guest speaker for this year's affair is Bill Gainer, a popular humorist and after-dinner speaker, according to the chamber.

The banquet also will feature the Pampa High School Show Choir, under the direction of Billy Talley.

During the banquet, County Judge Carl Kennedy will hand over the gavel to the new Pampa Chamber of Commerce President, Ed Sweet.

Tickets for the banquet are $12 per person and can be purchased from any chamber board member or at the chamber office in downtown Pampa.

Woolworth to close 336 of its Woolco stores

By CHRISTOPHER LINDSAY
NEW YORK (AP) — F.W. Woolworth Co., in a big strategy switch, says it will shut down its 336-store, 25,000-worker Woolco discount chain early next year to plug a multimillion-dollar drain on profits.

The country's No. 4 retailer said Friday it is abandoning the discount business and its 20-year battle against industry giant K mart Corp.

Woolworth Chairman Edward F. Gibbons said the company would instead concentrate on its other moneymaking businesses. Woolworth owns 1,300 Woolworth variety stores, the nation's No. 1 shoestore chain — Kinney Shoes — and several specialty clothing chains.

"We believe that the figures indicate that Woolworth will be a more profitable company once freed from the burden of U.S. Woolco's disappointing performance," he said.

For Woolco workers, the possibility of new jobs within Woolworth.

Woolco stores are concentrated mostly in the Southeast and South-Central United States. Woolco stores in Canada — which are profitable — will stay open.

The parent company invested "a lot of time, effort, money and people in trying to turn the division around," said Edward Weller, a retail analyst with E.F. Hutton, a Wall Street firm. The shutdown is a "dramatic change in direction," he said.

Woolworth, which began with Frank Woolworth's 5-cent store in Lancaster, Pa., in 1879, has not kept pace with other retailers in recent years, in part because of Woolco's persistent losses.

Nevertheless, the decision to shut down Woolco caught many industry analysts by surprise.

Woolworth and S.S. Kresge Co., the discount store pioneer, both expanded into the suburbs in the early 1960s.

Putting courts under scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — A request for an explanation went to the Seattle judge who handed down a one-year prison term to a man who stabbed and nearly killed his ex-girlfriend.

Another went to the judge in Gainesville, Fla., who cited poor prison conditions, then declined to impose new sentences on 10 captured escapees.

The judges received letters from a conservative public interest group, the Washington Legal Foundation, seeking explanations of their decisions.

Since last year, the foundation has asked its 85,000 members to act as legal sleuths, and they've been combing newspapers for examples of what they say are outrageous judicial conduct and lenient sentencing.

Director Michael P. McDonald said the foundation has asked more than 500 judges and parole officials to explain their actions. Three of four letters are answered. To date, 21 responses have been so unsatisfactory to the foundation that it complained to state judicial disciplinary boards.

The foundation publicizes other cases through the media, and sometimes prepares postcards for members to send to the disciplinary boards.

"For too long, prosecutors, courts and parole boards have been able to make their decisions without public scrutiny," said Daniel J. Popeo, executive director of the foundation.

"Public pressure may not always correct the bad decisions already made. In some cases, such as the ... 565-pound convicted child molester who ... was reimprisoned after public reaction, it can.

"Even if the decision cannot be corrected, however, a dose of public scrutiny causes a judge or parole board to think more carefully about the next decision."

Judges who received queries from the foundation sometimes praised the Court Watch program.

But there have been words of caution from other judges and outrage from the American Civil Liberties Union.

"It's an attempt to harass and intimidate the judges," said Alvin J. Bronstein, director of the ACLU's National Prison Project. "They're being threatened with retaliation at the ballot box and in the media unless they agree to adopt the ideological point of view of the Washington legal foundation."

"To organize mass protests is very dangerous. That is the way almost every totalitarian society has proceeded to eliminate the independent judiciary."

Judge Thomas C. Wicker, of the 24th Judicial District Court in suburban New Orleans, said a court watch program can "do the judge a grave disservice" if it operates without all the facts of a case.

When Judge N. Mitchell Meade of Fayette County Circuit Court in Lexington, Ky., makes a speech, he begins by passing out news clippings about a case.

"I ask how many agree with the judge and most disagree," he said. "Then I go into the sentencing philosophy and give them information from the police report and the presentence report. I ask how many changed their mind. It's amazing to watch the change."

By MARY COUSINS
Skellytown Correspondent

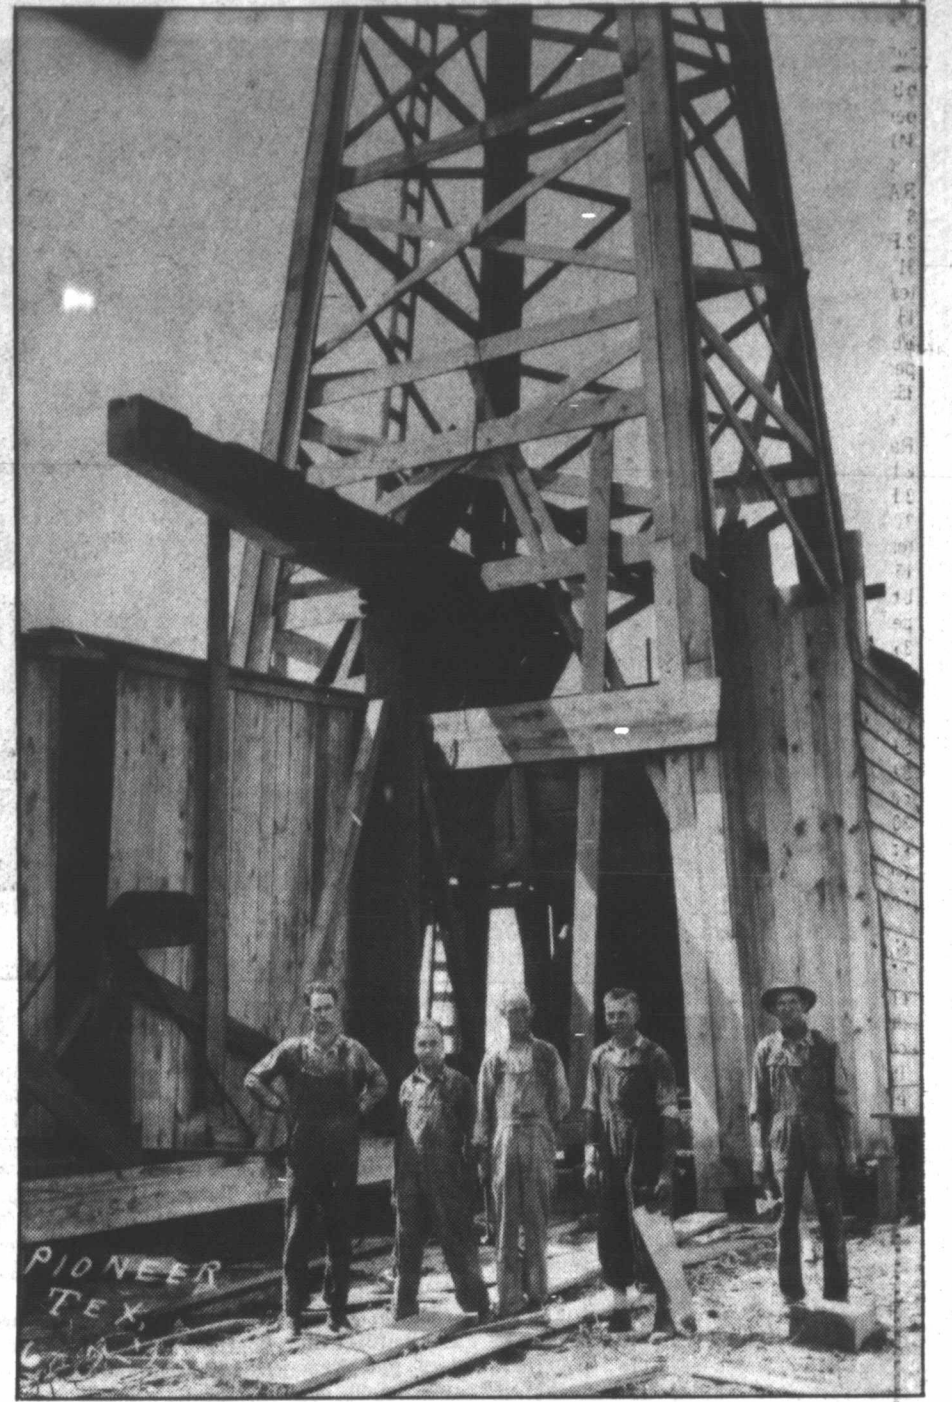

SKELLYTOWN — Rig building — of one size or another — has been a way of life for Franklin Lane Hewitt for 65 years. To Skellytown residents, "Uncle Frank" Hewitt is an ex-mayor, a retired welder who uses his skills to build precisely accurate models of oilfield derricks. As many also know, Hewitt has built the real thing since the early days of wooden derricks. Born in Cairo, W. Va. in 1903, Hewitt moved to Ponca City, Okla. at the age of 12 to live with an uncle. The uncle, Jack Jones, began teaching the youngster the craft of rig building. Two years later Jones was killed on an oil rig, and young Hewitt — then only 14 years old — took to rig building himself in the oilfields of Oklahoma. Rig building at that time was mostly carpentry: erecting the wooden derricks and other oilfield equipment. Five men worked six days to complete a wooden rig; to build a 122-foot rotary derrick was two days of arduous work for six men.

Erecting a rig was, at times, very dangerous. In 1918, the teenaged rig-builder came to Texas, to Burkburnett, where he stayed for a year. After that, his path across Texas is a roll call of early-day oilfield activity: Coleman to Breckenridge to Cross Plains to Pioneer, Rising Star, Mexia, Corsicana to Texarkana.

Uncle Frank

By 1936, the wooden rig was considered obsolete: steel derricks were springing up in their place. Hewitt returned to Borger. Now in his thirties, he learned a new trade: he became a welder for Phillips Petroleum Co. For three years, he welded for Phillips. Then for several years, Hewitt travelled the oilfields again, as a "barnstorming" welder, on different pipelines across the country. While working on a pipeline in Creede, Colorado, he learned that a welder was needed in Skellytown. In September, 1950, he came to the city and set up a welding shop. About a year later he was married to Ivanette Cheshire, whom he had met in Patton's Drug Store. In 1952, Hewitt began work with Skelly Oil Company (Getty), and continued as a welder for the company for 20 years until his retirement. In 1960, Skellytown elected its first mayor: Frank Hewitt. During Uncle Frank's two years in office, the city saw many changes in water storage, sewage, street lighting and paving. In 1972 he retired, and a new phase began. He returned to the oilfield derricks he knew so well, but on a different scale, meticulously welding models of the steel towers that had been a major part of his working life.

"In constructing these ornamental derricks, I begin the same way I did on building a regular size derrick," he explains. "I figure out how tall I want the derrick to be, then proceed to cut each piece to the desired size." He then welds the parts together into the completed miniature. The completed product is a sight to behold. Hewitt's derricks are exact to scale in every feature, precisely like the full-size derricks he once worked on. He may spend 40-50 hours constructing a small derrick, complete with ladder. The ladder alone may take a full day to build. Hewitt's handiwork is well-known in the area, and has been on display at area banks, and in the Carson County Historical Museum. His welding skill and sense of proportion he has used in making other ornaments as well: fireplace matchboxes, gratings, windmills, flowerpots and roadrunners. Hewitt's home on Skellytown's Main Street is easy to find: it's the one with the number 711 on a large model derrick. It marks the residence of a man who has spent a lifetime using his hands build things of great importance, or great beauty.

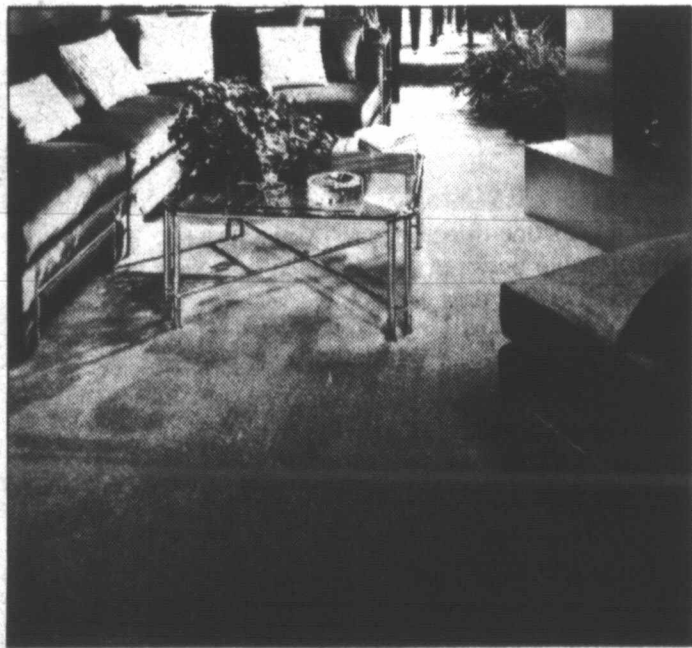

Frank Hewitt, second from left, poses with the rest of the crew that had just completed this rig at Pioneer, Texas in 1921. Then only 18, Hewitt already had several years' experience in rig building.

6-0 Perryton edges Pampa in defensive due

PERRYTON—It was one of those games where the offense must have been sequestered in a locked room for most of the night.

Perryton did manage to break out for the only score of the game in the third quarter when Jimmy Blundell climaxed a 40-yard drive with a 10-yard touchdown run to give the Rangers a 6-0 win over the Pampa Harvesters Friday night.

Pampa limited Perryton's offense to 40 total yards in the first half, but a costly fumble on the Harvesters' first possession of the third quarter proved to be the difference in the game.

Perryton took over on Pampa's 40 and scored six plays later with 7:13 left in the third period on Blundell's burst up the middle.

Perryton never got beyond Pampa's 40 until late in the game, when Pampa's defense had to rise to the occasion with a goaline stand on the Harvester one.

Facing a fourth and one situation on Pampa's one, running back Roger Bocox charged up the middle, but the Harvester defense, led by noseguard Bill Fritz, stopped him cold for no gain.

Pampa's offense, stymied by three fumbles and an interception, breeched Perryton's territory only once the second half. However, the Harvesters had their opportunities to get on the board in the first half.

Pampa reached Perryton's 25 on the final possession of the first quarter, but quarterback Randy Skaggs was sacked for a 10-yard loss by the Rangers' Danny Lewis to force the Harvesters to punt.

On Pampa's final possession of the second quarter, the Harvesters drove 69 yards to Perryton's five, but Ricky Smith's pass was picked off by Howie Slaughter in the end zone. Skaggs' 33-yard pass to Ricky Smith was the big play in the drive.

"It seemed like on every possession we'd have a breakdown," Pampa coach John Kendall said. "We gave them good field position twice on fumbles."

Pampa's top groundgainer was, fullback Dennis Kuempel, who had 52 yards on 14 carries. Harold Ellison added 23 yards on nine carries.

Bocox paced the winners with 67 yards on 18 tries.

Pampa had 135 yards in total offense while Perryton had 189, most of it coming in the second half.

Pampa's Devin Cross punted eight times for a hefty 41 yard average.

Defensively, Ricky Poole recovered a fumble for the Harvesters. Poole, Fritz, Ricky Baird, Brad Voyles, Darryl Caldwell and Maury Wills were among the Harvesters that did the most to slow down Perryton's offense.

"I was real pleased with our defense," Kendall said. "We played together as a unit and held Perryton's offense down real good the first half."

Pampa, now 0-3 for the season, travels to Levelland Friday night for the District 1-4A opener.

Perryton, 3-1, visits Guymon, Okla. Friday night.

Panhandle stays unbeaten

PANHANDLE—Panhandle's Todd Lamberson and Stacy Rusk teamed up for two touchdown passes Friday night and in the process, assured the hosts of a successful homecoming.

The Panthers, behind the two scoring flips of 47 and eight yards from quarterback Lamberson to junior halfback Rusk, made the difference in a 14-6 victory over Gruver.

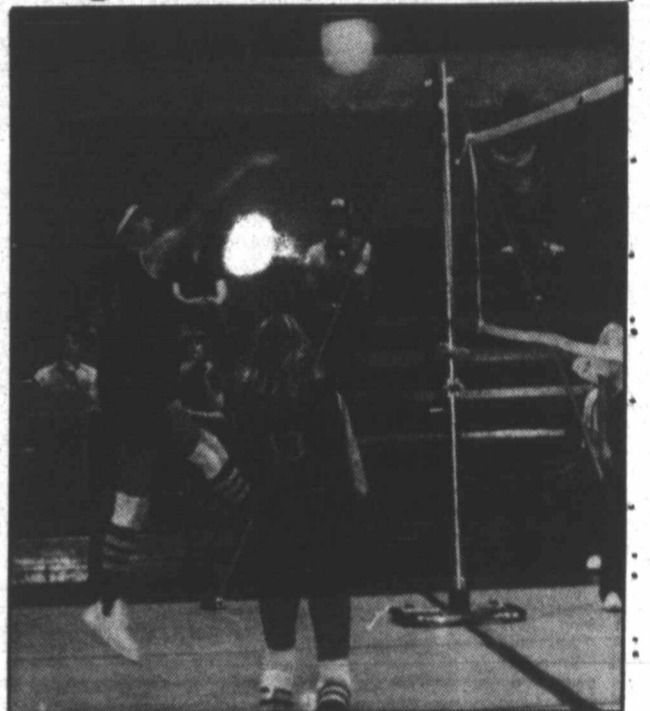

The win kept Panhandle's record perfect at 4-0 while Gruver dropped to 0-3.

Panhandle's TDs came in the second and third periods to make it 14-0.

Gruver's Rod Been ran three yards in the third period to cut the deficit to the final margin, and neither team could score thereafter.

Rusk led the hosts with 161 rushing yards on 20 carries and caught two passes for 55 more yards.

Cardinals blank Cubs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joaquin Andujar fired a two-hitter for his seventh straight win, leading streaking St. Louis to a 5-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs and reducing the Cardinals' magic number in the National League East to three games.

The victory, the Cardinals' 11th in the last 13 games, gave them a 5 1/2-game lead over Philadelphia, which lost 2-1 to New York. Any combination of St. Louis wins and Philly defeats total three will give the Cardinals the division title.

Andujar, 15-10, gave up only Mel Hall's clean single to center with one out in the first inning and Ron Sandberg's infield single with two out in the ninth. He retired 25 of the last 27 batters, struck out four and walked none and hit a batter enroute to his

N.L.-leading sixth shutout and his ninth complete game.

George Hendrick singled home the first Cardinal run following walks to Lonnie Smith and Keith Hernandez in the third.

In the fourth, the Cards added three more runs off starter Dickie Noles, 9-13, on four hits and a Chicago error. Tommy Herr and Smith each had RBI singles and Ken Oberkfell came home on shortstop Junior Kennedy's throwing error.

The Cards completed their scoring in the eighth when Oberkfell and Herr doubled off Dick Tidrow.

Dalton wins Panhandle title

LaVonna Dalton of Pampa won both medalist and low gross honors last weekend at the Panhandle Women's Golf Association Tournament at the Clarendon Country Club.

Mrs. Dalton shot a 78 for medalist honors in the championship flight and had a two-day total of 160.

Jackie Hassinger of Ross Rogers Country Club shot a 150 for low net honors.

Alma Lamberson and Ava Warren, both of Pampa shot

152 and 153 respectively for second and third place in low net.

Joan Terrell had a 173 to win low gross in the first flight. Fran Wilson had a 146 for first low net.

Mrs. Lamberson was the closest to the pin on No. 5.

Pampa netters fall to AHS

The Pampa High tennis team fell to Amarillo High, 17-1, Thursday in a non-district contest at the PHS courts.

Pampa's only victories came in the girls' division.

Cheryl Starnes defeated Tresha Hall, 7-6, 4-6, 6-1, and Kellye Welbourne defeated Alisha Johnson, 7-6, 6-3.

Penn State wins

Wide receiver Kirk Bowman of Penn State clutches the ball as he rolls in the end zone for the winning touchdown Saturday against Nebraska. The winning TD came on a two-yard pass from quarterback Todd Blackledge with six seconds left in the game for a 27-24 victory. (AP Laserphoto)

Penn State slips past Cornhuskers, 24-21

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Quarterback Todd Blackledge tossed a 2-yard touchdown pass to backup tight end Kirk Bowman with four seconds left in the game to rally eighth-ranked Penn State to a 27-24 victory over second-ranked Nebraska on Saturday. The Nittany Lions marched 80 yards on 10 plays after falling behind 24-21 on a 1-yard touchdown plunge by Nebraska quarterback Turner Gill with 1:18 to play, capping a 13-play, 80-yard Cornhuskers' drive. Penn State took the kickoff and with a personal foul tacked on, started from its 35 with little more than a minute left. Blackledge hit Skeeter Nichols with a 15-yard screen pass to midfield. On second down, he connected with flanker Kenny Jackson for 17 and another first down at the Nebraska 33. Faced with a fourth-and-11 situation, Blackledge again hit Jackson for a first down at the Cornhusker 23. The quarterback ran for 5 yards, passed 16 to Mike McCloskey for a first down at the 2-yard line. He then connected with Bowman almost on the back line of the end zone for the winning score. The Cornhuskers were trailing 21-17 when Neil Harris intercepted a Blackledge pass in the end zone to give Nebraska possession at the Nittany Lion 20. The key plays in the go-ahead drive were passes of 13, 18, 11 and 13 yards from Gill. The last one gave Nebraska a first down at the Penn State 3-yard line. It took three 1-yard dives for the Cornhuskers to go ahead 24-21. Penn State had taken a 21-7 lead when Blackledge threw his second touchdown of the game and 14th in four games with 2:42 left in the third period.

Stanford upsets Ohio State, 23-20

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Quarterback John Elway's passing led Stanford 80 yards in the final moments Saturday, riving the Cardinals a 23-20 nationally-televised college football upset of 13th-ranked Ohio State. Elway, the total yardage leader in major college ranks this week, connected on four of six passes in the last 1:36 after the Cardinals had intercepted Ohio State's Mike Tomczak in their own end zone. Elway completed the whirlwind finish by throwing 18 yards to split end Emile Harry for the winning touchdown with 34 seconds left.

Ohio Stadium's largest crowd ever of 89,436 fans sat stunned as Ohio State appeared headed for a victory when the Buckeyes scored midway through the final quarter. A 63-yard pass play from split end Gary Williams to flanker Cedric Anderson set up Ohio State's touchdown on the Stanford 5-yard line. Two plays later, tailback Tim Spencer bolted 2 yards for a 20-13 lead with less than nine minutes left to play. Mark Harmon booted a 47-yard field goal, his third of the game, to slice the Buckeyes' margin to 20-16 with 4:54 remaining. On Stanford's next series, outside linebacker Rowland Tatum intercepted Elway's pass at the Ohio State 46 and returned it 21 yards with 2:23 to play. Two plays later, Stanford safety Charles Hutchings intercepted a pass by sophomore quarterback Tomczak in the Cardinals' end zone with 1:38 left. That was all Elway needed, hitting four of six passes for the entire 80 yards in 64 seconds to give Stanford its second victory in three games this season.

NCAA okays Sunday television broadcasts

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — An NCAA plan to allow colleges to negotiate their own deals for telecasting Sunday football games does not mean the association is softening its stand against a lawsuit attempting to give colleges such privileges for all games, an NCAA spokesman says. The NCAA Council decided Friday to allow live Sunday telecasts of college games during the professional football players' strike. Individual schools would negotiate rights fees with ABC and CBS. Disagreements over details brought discussions to a temporary halt. Although the NCAA has refused to say who or what was involved in the disagreements, the final plan must be approved by ABC, CBS and the Turner Broadcasting System — the parties involved in the TV contract with the NCAA — as well as the policy-making Council. "We just thought that because of the special circumstances it should be treated differently," Tom Hansen, assistant executive director of the NCAA, said about the change in NCAA policy to allow individual schools to negotiate with networks on Sunday games. "I don't see it as a precedent, not for the Saturday series," Hansen said. "It would only be a precedent if there were repeated strikes." Hansen said the plan in no way means the NCAA is backing down from its insistence that there be a controlled college package. "If we tried to blend the two telecasting experiences together, that would cause confusion," he said. "That's why we set the Sunday telecast apart from the Saturday program." The NCAA temporarily regained control of football television this week when a three-judge federal panel granted a temporary stay of a lower court ruling invalidating the ABC, CBS and TBS contracts. U.S. Judge Juan Burciaga, in an antitrust case brought by Oklahoma and Georgia, had ruled against the NCAA and declared each school could make its own television deals. The NCAA asked for and received the stay pending an appeal of the ruling. When asked if the suit had any effect on the plan for televising Sunday games, Hansen said, "It probably was in the minds of the legal counsel as a factor." "It's kind of doubtful the issue will be settled before sometime next week," Hansen said. Earlier Friday, Hansen said the Council had agreed to allow one exposure each week, with ABC and CBS telecasting on alternate Sundays. The Turner Broadcasting System has a contract with the NCAA for a supplementary cable package on Saturday nights and would not telecast on Sunday. In addition, the Council said a special Sunday appearance would not count against a school's limit of television appearances, which is six every two years. An exposure is defined as having a game available to the entire nation, whether one game is nationally telecast or several are aired regionally. Hansen said the networks would flip a coin to see who got the first Sunday telecast, probably beginning Oct. 3. Burns leads Southern Open COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Confident George Burns ripped out three consecutive birdies early in his round Saturday en route to a 4-under-par 66 to take a one-shot lead after the third round of the $250,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament. The 33-year-old Burns, looking for his third victory in seven years on the PGA tour, was at 201, 9-under par over the 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course. Bobby Clampett, the 22-year-old former Brigham Young star who has 17 top 10 finishes but no victories in two years on the tour, birdied two of his last three holes to finish with a 68 and 202 total, one shot behind the leader. Another shot back was John Fought, who led after the second round. Fought, another former BYU player, shot an even-par 70 and a 203 total. At 204 were Hal Sutton and Lon Nielsen. Sutton had a 68 and Nielsen a 67 Saturday on a day that began cloudy but finished in bright sunshine and 75-degree weather. Andy Bean led a group of six golfers at 205, that included Wally Armstrong, Gary Hallberg, Larry Rinker, John Adams and Vance Heafner.

Northwestern snaps losing streak

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Ricky Edwards raced for 177 yards in 29 carries and scored four touchdowns and quarterback Sandy Schwab completed 16 of 28 passes for 212 yards and two touchdowns as Northwestern snapped its major college record losing streak at 34 games Saturday with a 31-6 non-conference victory over Northern Illinois.

Edwards, a senior, tied a school mark with the four scores, which also were the first touchdowns of his career. He caught a 20-yard pass from Schwab in the opening quarter and then scored on runs of 2, 1 and 80 yards, in tying the school record held by Otto Graham and Mike Adame.

The scoreboard flashed "Sweet!!!" "Euphoria!!!" and "Goodbye Streak!!!" in the closing moments as a large number of the 22,078 fans stormed on the field with 30 seconds left to play and tore down the north goal post. When the final gun sounded, the goal post collapsed and they carried it to the Northwestern bench.

Northwestern scored on its first three possessions in winning its first game since it defeated Wyoming 27-22 in September 1979. The Wildcats surpassed the record losing skein of 28 games held jointly by Virginia and Kansas State.

Northwestern raised its record to 1-3. The Wildcats are 0-2 in the Big Ten and the Wildcats have not beaten a league opponent since they stopped Illinois 21-7 in November 1977.

Northern, a member of the Mid American Conference, fell to 0-2.

Giants edge Dodgers, 5-4

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Morgan's RBI single, his third hit of the game, capped a two-run, eighth-inning rally that gave the San Francisco Giants a 5-4 victory Saturday over the Los Angeles Dodgers and tightened the National League West race.

The loss cut the front-running Dodgers' lead to one game over the Atlanta Braves, who beat San Diego 12-6 while the third-place Giants moved up to two games off the pace. The Dodgers have lost four straight games while San Francisco has won nine of its last 11.

San Francisco capitalized on two Los Angeles errors to overturn a 4-3 deficit in the eighth against Dodger starter Fernando Valenzuela, 19-13, in a game watched by a crowd of 49,634 that let the Dodgers set an all-time major league season attendance record of 3,378,718.

Andy McGaffigan, 1-0, the third Giants pitcher, went only one third of an inning but earned his first major league victory with relief help from Greg Minton, who earned his 30th save.

Bob Brenly opened the inning with a soft liner that shortstop Bill Russell knocked down but then threw low to first. Brenly was sacrificed to second and pinch-hitter Jim Wohlford reached on third baseman Ron Cey's fielding error.

Chili Davis followed with a single, driving in Brenly with Wohlford going to third on the hit. Morgan's single to right off reliever Terry Forster scored Wohlford.

Houston whips Cincy, 3-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Not often does a pitcher get away with walking six out of the first nine batters he faces, but Mike LaCoss did it Saturday for the Houston Astros.

He posted his first victory over his former teammates as the Astros hung a 3-1 defeat on the Cincinnati Reds.

"I'd rather go about it in an easier way," LaCoss said.

Hole-in-one

L.B. Penick, Pampa, shot his second hole-in-one at the Pampa Country Club when he aced the 150-yard No. 5 green Friday using a three-iron.

Penick had his first ace on the same hole.

Witnesses were Chuck Wagner, Ralph Gardner and George Scott. All four golfers are over 70 years of age.

Harvesters to host fall golf invite

Pampa High's golf team will host an invitational Oct. 1 to kick off the fall season.

Teams tentatively scheduled to compete in the invitational are Amarillo High, Caprock, Palo Duro, Tascosa, Borger, Hereford, Plainview and Pampa. Tee time is 9 a.m. at the Pampa Country Club course.

Three duals will round out the fall season.

David Fatheree has qualified as the No. 1 man going into the invitational while Paul McIntire is No. 2. Reid Sidwell No. 3 and Clay Jett No. 4. The No. 5 position is still undecided.

"We've got a pretty good crop of golfers," Pampa coach Mike Brent said. "They're a year older and a little bit stronger."

Looking ahead to the spring season when District 3-4A action begins, Brent feels the Harvesters have a good shot at a regional playoff spot.

"Borger is going to be good, but the top two advance, so we stand a chance of making it," Brent said. "We're going to do more traveling, but we'll stand a better chance of winning district."

Bucks edge Claude

CLAUDE—White Deer highlighted a stiff defensive struggle with two TDs, and they made the difference in a 12-8 decision over Claude Friday night in high school football.

White Deer, now 4-0 for the first time since the 1971 season in which the Bucks ended up in the Class 1A semifinals, took the lead in the second period on Austin Lafferty's 5-yard run.

The PAT kick failed.

The winning TD came in the third quarter on Darrin Bennett's nine yard pass to Darren Ruthardt.

White Deer held a 197-174 lead in total yards and a 14-11 edge in first downs. WD recovered two fumbles and Claude three.

Steve May led White Deer in rushing with 75 yards on 17 carries.

White Deer hosts Panhandle, also unbeaten, at 7:30 p.m. next Friday night.

Miami bows to Vernon

VERNON—Vernon Northside scored a 28-6 District 2-1A six-man football victory Friday night over Miami, behind the 104-yard, two touchdown running of Clint White.

White put the Indians on the scoreboard first, connecting with Junior McGee on a 30-yard touchdown pass. White tacked on the extra point, giving Vernon Northside a 7-0 lead.

The Warriors' lone tally of the game came in the first quarter when Kirk Gray, the game's leading rusher with 115 yards, bolted 70 yards for a TD. The extra point kick was blocked.

Vernon had 247 yards total offense while Miami had 165.

Miami, 1-3 for the season, hosts Patton Springs at 7:30 p.m. Friday night.

In Agriculture

By JOE VANZANDT

The rains were certainly nice and gave our wheat farmers the moisture needed to plant wheat on. Most wheat farmers have been busy turning the wheels and getting the wheat seed in the ground.

MARKETING KEY TO CROP PROFITS

Financial rewards that farmers may reap this year will depend heavily on their ability as astute farm marketers.

Developing pricing strategies and evaluating marketing options are activities that distinguish "farm marketers" and "farm producers."

Traditionally, many farm producers have sought to sell at the highest price during the marketing year, to sell everything at one time, and to market at about the same time each year. Selling based upon habit is unlikely to consistently result in maximum returns.

Instead, farmers should take a look at these marketing options:

- Selling at harvest.
- Storing and selling at a later date.
- Forward contracting for delivery at harvest or at a later date.
- Hedging in the futures market.
- Using the Commodity Credit Corp. loan program or the extended grain reserve program.

To shift to the farm marketing orientation, current production cost estimates are needed for individual enterprises. Cost estimates should include variable expenses incurred to date plus projections of any remaining costs necessary to move the crop from the field.

By combining actual preharvest variable costs with projected harvest costs and share rent, a farmer can estimate the breakeven price necessary to cover variable cost and land rent. Although this estimated breakeven value may not be adequate for developing all pricing strategies and evaluating all marketing options, it is an essential step.

When combined with the per unit fixed costs, the marketer has the production cost estimate which is required in making valid marketing decisions.

Complete and accurate production cost estimates are essential for the consistent success of the farm marketer. Although the estimates may be less difficult to establish than achieving accurate price expectations, they alone cannot ensure successful marketing decisions. However, a sound approach for developing expectations of future commodity prices, when combined with accurate production cost estimates, will have a positive impact upon this year's financial return to farm resources.

Agriculture Department to eliminate meat rules

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department, as part of the Reagan administration's efforts to reduce needless industry regulation, is proposing to eliminate or consolidate a number of livestock and meat packing rules.

B. H. Jones, head of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, said the changes will make rules clearer "without decreasing the protection provided under the Packers and Stockyards Act for producers and consumers."

The proposal calls for:

- Elimination of rules on employment restrictions, soliciting consignments and giving or accepting gratuities, while retaining a rule on price guarantees and a policy statement on paying buyers' expenses.

- Removing three recordkeeping and accounting regulations but retaining two on the responsibilities of agents in accounting to their principals, and consolidating into two rules four others on accounting procedures.

Company pleads guilty

HOUSTON (AP) - An oil field equipment firm which admitted trying to bribe two Mexican oil officials must pay a $750,000 fine, a federal judge has ruled.

Ruston Gas Turbine Inc. pleaded guilty to violating the federal Corrupt Practices Act, which prohibits bribery of foreign officials by American companies.

U.S. District Judge George Cize accepted the guilty plea Thursday and gave the company five days to pay the penalty.

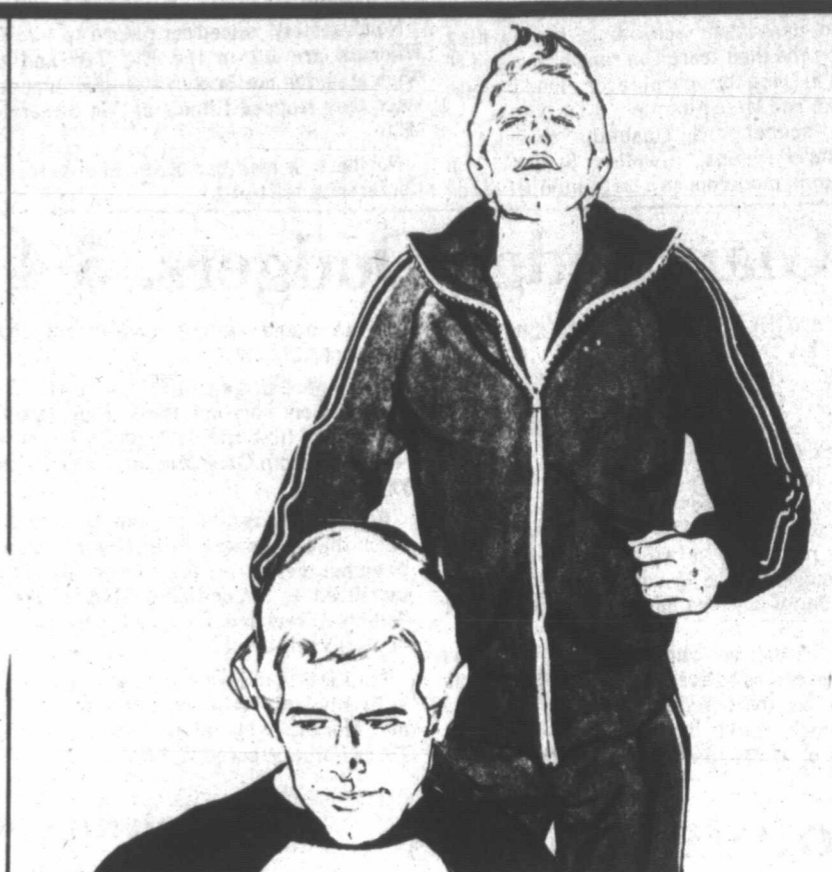

Cize had declined earlier in the day to accept the guilty plea because the company's president, John Paul, refused to answer one question routinely asked during such proceedings.

Pampans ride the Enchanted Circle

Ten bicycle enthusiasts from Pampa ventured to the mountains of New Mexico to brave the wet and cold in an attempt to ride 100 miles of mountainous terrain.

Persistent rain plagued the 5th Annual Enchanted Circle - Wheeler Peak Century held recently in Red River, New Mexico. The yearly exercise extravaganza attracted 620 registered bicycle riders this year from nine states. Ages of the riders ranged from 11 years to 68.

The tour is sponsored by the Red River Chamber of Commerce and Lowenbrau and features two days of festivities.

Saturday, the Bobcat Pass Time Trials were held despite the constant drizzle which kept times down. Twenty-six men participated in the trial which entails racing at top speed from a point in the town of Red River (Elev. 8750 ft.) to the summit of Bobcat Pass (Elev. 9820 ft.), a distance of five miles. It took the winner, Mike Goodwin, only 19 minutes 38 seconds to reach the peak and about five minutes to coast back to the bottom.

Ten persons from Pampa rode in the annual tour this year. The one hundred mile ride begins in Red River, then passes thru Questa, Arroyo Hondo, makes a side trip of 16 miles to the beautiful Rio Grande Gorge with a rest stop at the bridge. The tour then turns back for Taos, Palo Flechado Pass, down to Eagle's Nest then begins the slow climb to the top of Bobcat Pass. After that, it's all downhill again in Red River.

Larry and Kelly Hendrick, their first year to participate in the Enchanted Circle - Wheeler Peak Century, stopped after seven hours at Palo Flechado Pass (Elev. 9191 ft.), 70.4 miles out.

Kirk Duncan and Joe Rogers, veteran riders who have completed the tour many times before, stopped at the Moreno Ranch Headquarters, 90.8 miles out.

Deborah Hendrick, her first time to enter the tour, finished her day at Questa (Elev. 7392 ft.), 13.7 miles out.

Riding for the first time this year, Tom Byrd completed the 100 mile course in 8 hours 21 minutes.

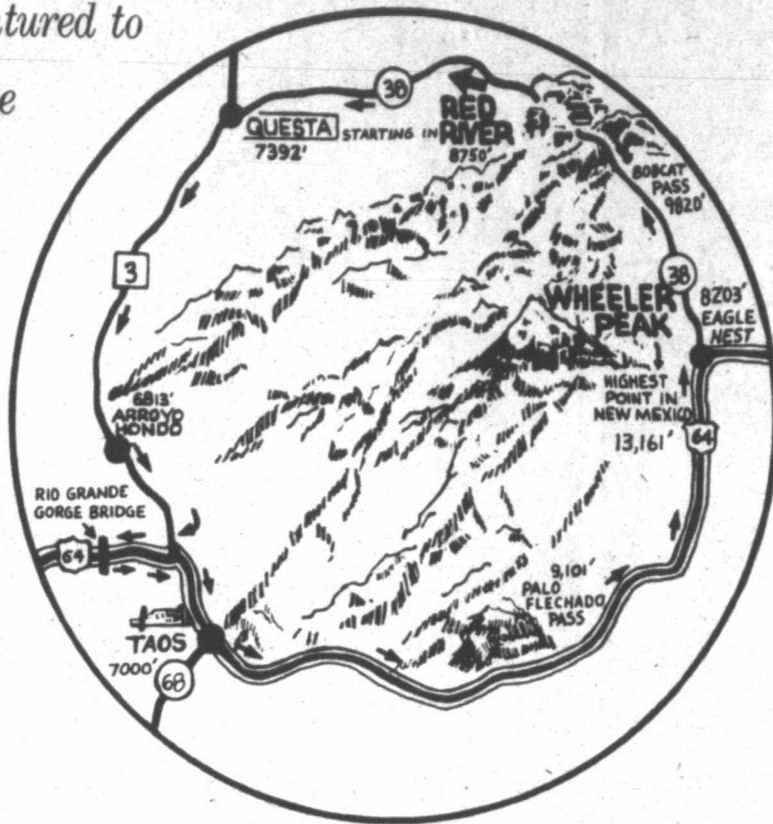

Calvin Lacy, a veteran of the tour finished his ride of 100 miles in 8 hours 50 minutes.

Randy Linville, his first time to ride at Red River, rode the course in 8 hours 14 minutes.

Cranz Nichols, riding his first century, finished in 9 hours 5 minutes.

Bruce Belcher, riding for his fourth time in the annual Enchanted Circle - Wheeler Peak Century finished 18th out of 620 registered entrants with a time of 5 hours 40 minutes.

The heavy rains, coupled with temperatures in the low 40s prevented many riders from finishing the race. Less than 250 bicyclists completed the tour and the tiny town of Red River was lined with wet and miserable riders. This was the first time rain had visited the yearly bicycle ride.

A Festival of Christmas Trees

It's time to start thinking about the Christmas season again. A Festival of Christmas Trees will be held in the Heritage Room of the M. K. Brown Auditorium on December 3, 4, and 5.

The Festival of Christmas Trees will be an exhibit and sale of decorated Christmas Trees. This special community project is being sponsored by the Civic Improvements Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

The Christmas Trees competition is open to all organizations, families, individuals from the Pampa area.

There will be no charge for entering or exhibiting. Entrants will have the opportunity to raise funds through the sale of their decorated trees or from the sale of decorations only.

The size and type of tree is optional. Fresh, artificial or flocked will all be accepted. Exhibitors may indicate the price of their decorated tree or accept bids.

Other exhibits and sales may include miniature trees, wreaths, nativity scenes, jeweled framed trees and decorated gift boxes.

The committee will provide a separate area for items which are for exhibit only.

The big plus in the Festival of Christmas Trees will be the awarding of cash prizes for the best decorated Christmas Trees.

The categories available for entries in sale and exhibit will include: Decorated Christmas Trees; Tree Decorations only; Wreaths; Nativity Scenes; Decorated Gift Boxes; Miniature Trees; and Framed Jeweled Trees.

Entries may be made by contacting Thelma Bray, chairman of the Civic Improvements Committee, Pampa Chamber of Commerce at 665-1180.

Included in the planned activities to take place in the M. K. Auditorium during the Festival of Christmas Trees will be performances of The Nutcracker Suite, sponsored by the Fine Arts Association; a gourmet booth of Christmas foods; Santa Claus Lane; and a Christmas Jigsaw Puzzle Contest.

What would you do if ...

A gun can be a dangerous possession if the user is unfamiliar with the proper method of handling. Area Pampa women will have the opportunity to learn the proper use of handguns at a one day workshop to be held on Saturday, Oct. 2.

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Pampa Police Department will be conducting an Advanced Women's Defensive Handgun Course. The course will be held at the Police Department's Pistol Range and taught by Detective Ken Neal.

This course is designed to further the skills of women who have completed the Basic Women's Defensive Firearms Course, but will not be restricted to those women who have not completed the basic course. The course will be held entirely on the police range and will require 150 rounds of ammunition. The intent of this advanced course is to teach the women to shoot under stress and in close quarters.

Statistics show that most shootings occur within seven to ten feet and these distances will be used on the range Saturday.

An optional part of this course will be a shotgun exercise. If a woman is signing up for this course would like to take part in the shotgun exercises, 10 rounds of shotgun ammunition and shotgun are required. The shotgun exercises are designed for the combat shooting and fast handling of a shotgun that will be fired from the shoulder, hip and from under the arm.

Women signing up for the course must bring: 150 rounds of ammunition (do not bring magnum or high velocity ammunition); holster and belt, no cross draw or shoulder holsters please; hearing and eye protection, normal eyeglasses or sunglasses will be sufficient; mat or other ground covering for prone shooting; and coffee can or bucket for spent brass.

For those interested in signing up for the handgun course, the cost is $35 and you may sign up by stopping by the Chamber of Commerce office or by calling 669-3241. Deadline for entering the course will be Friday, Oct. 1.

Peeking at Pampa

So many kind, polite people, in places you don't expect to find them. The other day I was standing in line at one of our grocery stores with one item in my hand, something I'd forgotten to get the last time I was there. A young couple was behind me with a packed cart. The girl said to me, "You go first," and her husband nodded his consent. I stepped in front of them. And I was grateful. How many other people would never offer such a favor? I didn't ask their names and they didn't ask mine. But I hope they will read this column and know how much I appreciated their kindness.

Just heard about something I'd like to have seen. Friend of Betty Arrington said she went to the wedding of her son, Mark Allen, I think in Dallas. After the ceremony the newlyweds came out to their car and found it smeared with syrup which had then been covered with feathers. Betty said it looked for all the world like an oversized chicken as the bride and groom drove away.

Another sidelight was that, during the reception or soon thereafter, the family learned that Larry Hagman (J.R. on "Dallas", you know) was in the building. They asked him to sign the wedding book. He did so with a flourish, taking a whole page to write his name. The wedding couple was delighted with the autograph.

Isn't it wonderful that more and more of our people are celebrating older-age anniversaries these years? Used to be a 50th was rare. Now couples frequently honor weddings more than ten years older than 50. Just heard that Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Winegeart celebrated their 68th! They were married on Sept. 6 in Forrest Hill, Louisiana. They have a beautiful family that includes 31 grandchildren, 56 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

The occasion was held in the Highland Baptist Church Fellowship Hall with their children as hosts. Pampa hoswore the Gene Winegearts and the LESTER Cochrans with Mason Winegeart of Amarillo.

Another happy anniversary party was held, not long ago, for Helen and Gene Hall, honoring their 33 years together. With them for dinner at a night spot were Bill and Polly Chafin, Ed and Margaret Sweet and Leo and Mary Lee Garrett. Helen looked so pretty. And aren't we all envious of her slim figure? Guess I'll start dieting to take off a few pounds.

Heard that eliba Bruce was taking care of her two young great-grandsons, Ryan and Christian, one afternoon. She tried to enter all the games the kids played. She said, "I did pretty well until they wanted me to play football with them. I had to tell them football was something I don't do so good!"

Heard some ladies talking about the lovely evening they enjoyed in the newly-remodeled home of Gene and Shirley Lunsford, a week or so ago. Gene did the work himself, Shirley said, and guests said it was beautiful. Among the additions is a spacious family room that includes an impressive fireplace.

Guests for the occasion were Mike and Helen Wilson, Rue and Hesta Hestand, Fred and Gay Ammeter, Al and Pauline Wagner, W. A. and Eunice Bohot, John and Jean Tatum, Otis and Evelyn Nace, Betty Marx, Joe Gordon and perhaps others whose names I didn't get.

Enthusiasm was the word when dancers mentioned the opening of the Coronado Dance Club for fall and winter. The first get-together was held on Sept. 11 in the M. K. Brown Heritage Room. Room Whispering Bill Chavey and wife, Dorothy, of Amarillo, plus their orchestra, furnished music. Dorothy is a fine pianist and is always appreciated by audiences.

Vicki Williams, secretary of the Coronado Dance Club celebrated her birthday that evening. She looked lovely in her silk suit, blue-green with lace trim, and she enjoyed her song and congratulations. Her happy disposition is a joy.

Loved the News photo of Jack Selby and his 10-year-old son, Thurston, practicing for the Fiddlin' Contest in the M. K. Brown Auditorium on Oct. 16. They were dressed in matching plaid shirts and dark trousers. Jack looked happy and eager. Thurston was a little more serious. The Fiddlin' Contest sounds like great fun and prizes will be awarded.

So good to see Louise Dunn here in Pampa again, visiting her many friends. She now lives in Shawnee, Okla. Everybody was so glad to see her and bask in her spirited conversation. She is so outgoing that you feel good after talking to her.

Heard that attractive Cheryl Every was recently appointed Finance director of our Chamber of Commerce. Think this is the first time a lady ever held that position.

Somebody said Fletcher Kennedy is now a great-grandfather. But he's still as young in spirit as any of us. He's always smiling, always good to see. And, incidentally, he's a marvelous dancer. See you later. PAM.

Dr. Lamb

Many heart attacks have no visible symptoms

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please send me some information about silent heart attacks. I was in the hospital last month for an operation. The evening before the operation the doctor came to my room and told me they would have to cancel the operation because I had had a heart attack.

I don't remember having any trouble or being sick but now I have to wait six months before they can operate on my fractured right shoulder. I was to have a prosthesis.

A friend of mine told me you had a column on silent heart attacks but at that time she didn't know about my having one.

DEAR READER — There isn't much to tell you except that as many as a third, maybe more, heart attacks either cause no symptoms at all or the symptoms are so mild that the true nature of the problem is not suspected.

I was very impressed by finding such silent heart attacks in members of the U.S. Air Force flying personnel. We found them by annual electrocardiograms. One year the tracing would be normal and the next year there would be changes that were left from a heart attack that had occurred between examinations.

Silent heart attacks have been documented to occur even in heavy laborers who have continued to work. These were found by examination of hearts after death. Such examinations have shown that lots of people have previously had heart attacks and never knew it.

These are usually found by electrocardiograms or incidentally at post mortem examinations. And the electrocardiogram may also return to normal in some cases. When I recorded Lyndon Johnson's ECG a few years after his well-publicized attack his record was within normal limits. You had to compare it with previous records to tell that there had been a significant change.

So no wonder it is sometimes hard to diagnose heart disease by symptoms. And of course for some people the first symptom is a heart attack. That is why prevention is so important.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 17-10, What You Need to Know About Heart Attacks. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The latest craze around here is sunflower nuts. We use them in cakes, pies, puddings, salad and eat them by the handful. They are like potato chips, the more you eat the more you crave. Can you please tell us if they have any food value, also protein, fat and cholesterol content?

DEAR READER — Yes, they certainly have food value, because they contain a lot of fat. Dry sunflower seed kernels contain 560 calories per 100 grams, that is 160 calories per ounce.

They contain very little water (4.8 percent) and 47.3 percent of their weight is fat. Sunflower oil is a good cooking oil and is comparable to safflower oil. It contains very little saturated fat and nearly three-fourths of its fat is polyunsaturated. To the extent that you should limit saturated fats and increase polyunsaturated fats, that is good.

Sunflower seeds are about 24 percent protein by weight. So they are a good protein source. And they are about 20 percent carbohydrate. They contain NO cholesterol. Cholesterol is an animal product and is not found in plants or plant products.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I just read your column on male impotence. Why are doctors so ready to help a man with this problem, yet turn a deaf ear to a woman with frigidity? Why are doctors reluctant to administer the hormone that would help? One doctor told me, "No, it might cause you to start fooling around and that can get you in trouble." Why, at age 51, would I be in danger of fooling around?

DEAR READER — Lack of sexual response is not always just a matter of hormones. Each case is different. Some women still have abundant amounts of female hormones after the menopause and the doctor can tell by testing.

Nevertheless, I think you are absolutely right and a lot of women could be helped who are not. True, you must consider if there is an increased risk of cancer of the breasts or uterus, and often complications of hormones. I believe doctors are reluctant to give hormones because they are conservative and don't want to run the risk of causing a woman any harm. Incidentally, doctors are also reluctant to give male hormones to some men for comparable reasons — stimulation of prostate enlargement.

Orthopedic surgeon added to CCH staff

A new bone doctor has set up practice here in Pampa and at Coronado Community Hospital.

Dr. Harvey O. Edwards has been added to the hospital's medical staff as an orthopedic surgeon, and he has opened his practice at the Coronado Medical Building next to the hospital.

Edwards is a native of Pipecreek (near San Antonio) and a graduate of the University of Arkansas School of Medicine in Little Rock.

The new Pampa doctor completed his internship and general - surgery residency programs at the university, and he completed his orthopedic surgery residency program at the Little Rock Medical Center.

Edwards was certified by the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery in 1972, and became a Fellow in the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons in 1976.

He served as a professor of Orthopedic Surgery at the University of Texas Medical School in San Antonio, and he worked in private practice on the staffs of several Texas hospitals before coming to Pampa.

In addition, the doctor was a faculty member of the University of Arkansas Medical School, and has worked on an Army medical staff.

The doctor previously had a private practice in Jonesboro, Ark.

Edwards and his wife Ouida have one child.

Educated cyclists are safer

LINTHICUM, Md. (AP) — The more educated a motorcyclist is the more likely he is to seek formal cycle training, according to survey of motorcycle riders.

The Motorcycle Safety Foundation survey of more than 16,000 motorcyclists found that the percentage of riders who have taken a rider course increases slightly at higher levels of education.

Participation is not related to age.

The survey also found education relates to helmet use, with riders who have graduated from college being twice as likely to wear helmets as riders who did not go on to college.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

The coming year may find you taking on additional duties and responsibilities, but you won't mind. You'll know many benefits can be derived from them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll have compassionate feelings today, but there is a chance you might not express them properly and your actions could lead to disapproval. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Beware of tendencies today to prejudice situations or people. There's a possibility you might assess things too negatively and block the good from coming through.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be helpful and sharing to the deserving today, but be careful you're not jockeyed into an awkward position by users who'll make demands on your resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Putting forth your best effort is admirable, but today you could be so determined to achieve your objectives that you'll do everything the hard way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chances for accomplishing that which you set out to do today are good, but be sure you don't use any unsavory tactics in order to make your gains.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Problems cannot be resolved today if you pretend they do not exist. Instead of burying them, bring them to the surface for solutions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons who cannot help you with your present objectives should not be involved in your projects or ventures today. Their input will slow you down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others will be more prone to accept your philosophical ideas today if they are not presented in a heavy manner. Use cheery phrases instead of serious statements.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Because you won't be intimidated by difficult developments you'll handle them competently today. However, something which should be fun might get you up light.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to upgrade your mate's point of view today if he or she sees an issue in a more somber light than you do. Point out the brighter aspects.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be grateful for the good which comes your way today, even if you innately feel you are deserving of more. Keep your expectations within bounds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Inexpensive activities are likely to prove to be the ones which are the most fun today. Try to purchase your pleasures and the results may not be gratifying.

STEVE CANYON

'Charlie Vanilla' dead at age 71

LONGTIME READERS OF STEVE CANYON DID NOT NEED TO BE TOLD THAT THE "CHARLIE VANILLA" MENTIONED IN THE N.Y. DAILY NEWS OBITUARY WAS IN REALITY CHARLES JOSEPH RUSSHON, THE ULTIMATE FIXER, CATALYST TO KINGS, FRIEND OF THE BEDEVILED, DON QUIXOTE OF THE JET-STREAM WORLD.

"RUSSHON" HAD BEEN EVERYWHERE AND DONE (ALMOST) EVERYTHING. A COMBAT PHOTOGRAPHER IN WW. TWO, HE CLAIMED TO BE THE FIRST AMERICAN TO SET FOOT ON THE JAPANESE MAINLAND AFTER THE FALL OF THE EMPIRE. THE CAMERAMAN HAD TO LEAVE THE AIRCRAFT FIRST—TO RECORD THE SCENE OF THE DIGNITARIES STEPPING OFF THE GOONEY BIRD AND INTO HISTORY. I KNEW RUSSHON FOR A LONG TIME BEFORE I REALIZED THAT I WAS SITTING ON A GREAT CARTOON PERSONALITY! I DREW HIM ALWAYS EATING AN ICE-CREAM CONE, HIS FAVORITE FOOD. IT IS A GREAT WRENCH TO ME WHEN VIVID REAL-LIFE COUNTERPARTS OF MY CARTOON CHARACTERS LEAVE THE STAGE. I'LL BET THAT RIGHT NOW DUDE HENNECK, VINCE CASEY, MAC DAVEY, FLIP CORKIN, GENERAL PHILERIE AND CHARLIE VANILLA ARE SOMEWHERE 'HANGAR FLYING' ABOUT WHEN THEY WERE ALL IN THE FUNNY PAPERS!
