

He wasn't lost, he was just playing soccer...

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

"I was playing soccer with my friend. We usually play football, but today we played soccer," said six-year-old Nathan Jacobs, after he arrived home in a police car two and a half hours late Wednesday.

Nathan Jacobs of north Grapevine Pampa is a first grader at Stephen F. Austin School, and was the object of a door-to-door search by the Pampa police, concerned neighbors and his parents Wednesday.

Nathan usually walks straight home from school said his mother, Mrs. Joseph Jacobs.

But, on Wednesday, Nathan, a child described as "not too sociable; is kind of a loner; doesn't have many friends," went to play with a friend instead of coming directly home from school.

The search began.

Chief of Police J. J. Ryzman was notified of the lost child right away and joined the search. By 4:30 p.m. four officers in patrol cars, three detectives and an off-duty officer were involved in the search for Nathan.

Chief Ryzman said, "Children are our most valuable resource. We do everything we can to find them as soon as possible."

His description was broadcast by the police dispatcher every fifteen minutes.

After nearly an hour, Nathan Jacobs was found playing with a friend.

An officer brought him home in a patrol car about 4:50 p.m.

"It was kind of funny," said Nathan about the ride with the policeman.

Nathan Jacobs was home, safe and sound with his three brothers and baby sister.

Nathan Jacobs...home with Mom

'Tis the season...

NEW YORK (AP) — A clerk accused of gunning down her boss at a Fifth Avenue law firm thought her Christmas bonus was too small, and her boyfriend says she had complained the executive was "getting on her nerves."

But grieving colleagues of Jay Jacobs, a managing partner in the prestigious law firm of Burke and Burke, said they found it hard to understand the shooting, especially since the bonus was larger than last year.

Barbara Austin, 38, met Wednesday with the 51-year-old Jacobs in a fifth-floor conference room in the sedate offices decorated with Oriental carpeting and dark wood wainscoting. She chased Jacobs into a hallway and fired all five bullets in her unregistered .32-caliber revolver, police said.

Jacobs staggered into his office before collapsing, said police inspector Stephen Kelly.

Miss Austin then returned to her desk and sat quietly, waiting for police to arrive, said Michael A. McElroy, a partner in the firm. Jacobs, from Greenwich, Conn., died less than an hour later.

The Daily News today quoted unidentified sources close to the investigation as saying that Miss Austin had been spurned by Jacobs after having an affair with him. The newspaper also said Miss Austin became upset because the firm had recently hired another person to do a job similar to hers, but at a higher salary.

Miss Austin, wearing a full-length fur coat, was taken to Bellevue Hospital for treatment of an apparent drug overdose, reportedly of Valium, and was listed in good condition.

The clerk, who had been with the firm for about 18 months, "was heard to complain about the size of her Christmas bonus after the shooting," said McElroy.

Senate ponders

What do you do with an MX missile with no place to go?

By TIM AHERN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a Senate committee has approved money for the first MX missiles, the White House is unhappy with the panel's restrictions on basing the new nuclear weapon.

The Republican-controlled Senate Appropriations Committee, working on a stopgap funding bill as Congress tries to conclude a lame-duck session, voted 16-12 Wednesday to approve Reagan's request for $988 million to buy the first five of the planned 100 MX weapons.

But the panel added a restriction that none of the procurement money can be spent until both houses of Congress approve a basing plan.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., an MX opponent who sponsored the basing amendment, said it "locks in" the Senate against the "dense pack" plan proposed last month by Reagan.

The dense pack basing mode calls for putting all 100 missiles in a 20-mile-square area near Cheyenne, Wyo.

Last week, the House defeated production money for the MX missile. But the House's anti-MX vote was on a separate Pentagon spending bill, which the Senate won't consider as it rushes toward adjournment. Instead, Defense Department money will be part of the stopgap spending bill.

After the House vote, Reagan proposed a compromise plan that would buy the first five missiles and give Congress until next spring to vote on a basing mode. Hollings' proposal sets no time limit for a decision on basing.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes shrugged off the committee action and said the White House would fight for floor approval of the Reagan proposal when the stopgap bill comes before the full Senate.

"Congress could postpone indefinitely a vote on a new missile," Speakes said after the panel's action. "If it becomes law, it would leave uncertain the question of America's resolve to rebuild its national defense."

Speakes said chances are good that the full Senate will pass the Reagan proposal when the measure reaches the floor. Hollings also acknowledged that Reagan might win.

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said Wednesday that when the matter does come back to his arena, "I believe there are the votes in the House not to compromise," and approve the Reagan plan.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., says that when the stopgap bill hits the Senate floor he will sponsor an effort to eliminate all production money. His move is backed by 14 other senators, he says.

Gray County to hire a janitor

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

The Gray County Commissioners Court voted Wednesday to hire a janitor to clean and maintain the county courthouse, replacing the janitorial service that holds the present contract on the building. The present contract terminates on December 31.

The job will be a full-time position, probably 40 hours a week, according to County Judge Carl Kennedy, who presides over the commissioners court. The job will pay $1,000 a month, and interested parties with experience should get in touch with Kennedy at the county courthouse.

The commissioners also voted to buy two pieces of heavy equipment from West Texas Equipment Co. The county will purchase a new front-end loader for $48,955 and a used motor grader for $18,750 with trade-in. Both machines will be used in precinct 4, the southeastern corner of the county.

In addition, the commissioners decided to advertise for bids on a front-end loader for use in precinct 2, and for a bank to serve as the county depository. The county depository advertisement is routine, Kennedy said, which must be rebid every two years.

The commissioners also approved plans for a residential subdivision to be built north of the present Kentucky Acres, pending the approval of the City of Pampa Planning Board. The subdivision, to be developed by E. D. Herdlacker of Pampa, will be called Kentucky Acres II and will feature lots as large as 162 feet by 225 feet for one-family houses.

In other business, the county also voted to allow Cabot Pipeline Corporation to bore under a county road, paid scheduled salaries and bills, and approved the transfer of $47,717 from the county's general fund to the revenue sharing fund.

According to Kennedy, $29,791 was to pay firefighting bills from the cities of McLean and Lefors, and $19,926 was to cover a payment to the Gray County Appraisal District that should have come out of the general fund but came out of revenue sharing instead.

The county had budgeted $3,000 for McLean, which billed the county for $14,242; the county had budgeted $4,000 for Lefors and was billed $13,549. Kennedy said the budgeted amounts did not affect the payment of the bills.

"When you make a budget, you try to estimate what it will cost. But you have to pay your bills, no matter how much you budget," Kennedy said after the meeting.

The county has contracts with McLean and Lefors for firefighting outside their city limits but within the county limits. The fire departments are paid on a per-call basis. The 1982 rate was $425 per run (fire) and the 1983 rate will be $720 per run.

In a related matter, the county paid the city of Shamrock, with which it does not have a contract, $710.50 for 203 hours of firefighting at $3.50 per hour. Commissioners expressed the sentiment that it is better to pay Shamrock on a bill basis than to sign a contract for a per-fire rate. The Shamrock bill included protection at more than one fire.

Commissioners also voted to accept amendments to the Panhandle Regional Housing Finance Corporation articles of incorporation. The PHRFC sells bonds for housing and finances community and residential housing, according to Kennedy. The amendments covered widening the area covered by the PHRFC to include Booker, Perryton, Darrouzett and Oldham County.

The next commissioners court is scheduled for December 30 at 9:30 a.m. in the county courtroom.

Bell rate hike recommended, but bills to drop

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell would be allowed to raise its rates, but bills to consumers would drop from what they are right now if a recommendation by Public Utility Commission hearing examiners is approved.

Examiner Rhonda Ryan said Wednesday that Bell is entitled to $244.1 million in rate hikes — far below the $471.5 million increase Bell says it needs to serve Texans.

But since the telephone company already has put into effect a rate hike — which it was allowed to do by state law while its request was pending — the bottom line for residential customers would be a decrease of up to 90 cents per month from the bonded rates they have paid since Nov. 9.

The report criticized Ma Bell for its "trust me" attitude, and said, "Mom herself may bear watching."

Southwestern Bell officials said the examiners' recommendation left them "shocked and appalled."

Paul Roth, vice president for revenue, said the report, if approved, could be a "crippling blow to our ability to serve adequately and earn adequately."

The three-member commission called a meeting for Dec. 30 to make a final ruling in the case. In the past, the commissioners have approved Southwestern Bell increases close to that recommended by the examiners. The amount has usually been something close to half of what the telephone company said it needed.

The major recommendations in Wednesday's report included:

— Residential rates should go down from the current bonded rates. Some customers would receive as much as a $5 refund, plus 13.7 percent interest, for the two months the bonded rates have been in effect.

— Long distance rates should go up by 10 percent, the amount of a temporary, court-ordered surcharge now in effect. The report said the surcharge should be made permanent, meaning no actual increase from current tolls. Southwestern Bell says it does not want an increase in long distance rates.

return, below the 13.09 percent the company requested.

On basic residential service, for example, Houston customers are paying $13.15 per month as a result of the bonded rates. Ms. Ryan recommended monthly bills of $10.80 for basic residential service in Houston.

The increased local rates would bring in $63.5 million more for Bell. The company wanted a $304.6 million increase in local rates.

Ma Bell criticized for 'trust me' stance adding 'Mom herself may bear watching' — The number of free directory assistance calls per month should be dropped from 10 to five, with a 25-cent charge for additional calls. Southwestern Bell wants to limit the free calls to three per month.

— Service connections for residential customers should increase from the current $68.45 to $95.65 for installations made by the company. The fee for customer installations should go to $64 from the current $43.70.

— Southwestern Bell is entitled to a 12.29 percent rate of

The largest difference between Bell's request and the amount recommended by the examiners came in the "license contract" area. License contracts involve the transactions and flow of money between AT&T and its subsidiaries, such as Southwestern Bell.

Jacqueline Holmes, the examiner in charge of determining how much more money Southwestern Bell needs, chided the company's attitude.

"Trust me! All too frequently that was the response given in this docket to those attempting to probe into the details of AT&T's relationship and transactions with Southwestern Bell," she said in the report.

She said it is common to "use the metaphor of a family when referring to the Bell system: AT&T is the parent company and 'Ma Bell' is a widely used nickname."

"There is little doubt that this mother rules her family with an iron hand. Most mothers warn their offspring to be wary of the phrase, 'Trust me,' when it comes from the mouths of strangers. Few children, however, realize that mom herself may bear watching. This seems to be the case with Southwestern Bell and its license contract agreement with AT&T," she wrote.

"We find consistently from the evidence that they are asking for more than they actually need," said Ms. Holmes. "It's a safe bet the case will probably be appealed by Southwestern Bell."

Roth's statement said the recommendation "isn't enough" and increased the wrong rates.

"Our testimony emphasized the fact that local service was in the greatest need for repricing," he said, supporting the company's call for increased local rates but no jump in long distance tolls.

"If this report is adopted by the commission, we will face an immediate need to further cut our expenses. And this can only handicap our ability to maintain service levels and attract investor capital to meet future growth," said Roth.

Heart-lung transplant patient dies of infection after 23 days

HOUSTON (AP) - Infection is blamed for the death of a 41-year-old man who lived for 23 days following a transplant of a heart and two lungs and the use of a new drug designed to fight the body's natural rejection of transplanted organs.

The man, who was not identified, died of "intractable lung infections" at 8:35 p.m. Wednesday, according to Elaine Moore, a spokeswoman at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

The man, who never left the hospital, was suffering from a severe lung ailment and secondary heart disease at the time of the Nov. 23 transplant, the second such operation performed by noted heart surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley.

The donor organs came from a 19-year-old Pasadena, Texas, man who died in a traffic accident, officials said.

In 1968, Cooley transplanted two lungs and a heart into a 2-month-old girl from Hufsmith, Texas. She died within hours of surgery.

Two other heart-lung transplants were performed between 1968 and 1971 in Minnesota and South Africa, but neither patient survived more than 23 days.

Nun convicted of abusing child

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) - A jury's decision that a nun was guilty of child abuse for allegedly striking a youngster and that another nun failed to report the incident is "an absolute travesty," the nuns' lawyer says.

Attorney Joseph Brandlin said he would move to have the Wednesday verdicts set aside "on the grounds that it's not supported by the evidence."

Sister Louridine Sok, a former third-grade teacher at St. Hilary's Elementary School, a Roman Catholic school in Pico Rivera, was found guilty of misdemeanor child abuse for allegedly hitting 8-year-old Michael Garza in the stomach, pulling his hair, pinching him, stomping on his foot and lifting him off the ground by grabbing his cheeks.

Sister Urban Maureen Molitor, who was the school's principal, was found guilty of failing to report child abuse.

minor accidents

The Pampa Police Department reported the following minor traffic accidents to The Pampa News:

WEDNESDAY, December 15
1:30 p.m. - A car driven by Margaret Scisson of 1201 Terry struck a car driven by Ruth Johnson of 1900 Dogwood at the intersection of Williston and Worrell. Scisson was cited for failure to yield the right of way at an uncontrolled intersection and failure to show proof of liability insurance. No injuries.

3:58 p.m. - A car driven by Margaret Roy of 640 Roberta struck a pickup driven by Fred O'Hara of 624 N. Sumner at 500 N. Sumner. Some minor injuries resulted from the accident; according to a hospital spokesman, all were treated and released. Roy was cited for failure to show proof of liability insurance and failure to yield the right of way at a dirt to pavement intersection.

4:15 - A car driven by Melba Marcum of Pampa struck a Peterbilt truck driven by Johnny Bridges of Borger at 600 E. Frederic. Marcum cited for improper passing on the right and failure to show proof of liability insurance.

One hurt

A car driven by Joseph Keeney, 19, of 813 B. Nelson, and a pickup driven by Clinton Dehls, of 1320 Duncan, collided at the intersection of Hobart and Decatur, in Pampa Wednesday about 11:30 a.m. No citations were issued by Pampa Police Officer Rod Bishop, pending further investigation. Keeney was treated and released from the hospital. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith.)

Harrelson still claims they convicted the wrong hitman

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson says he felt compassion for the jurors who found him guilty of assassinating U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., but still contends the government charged the wrong man.

In a 45-minute news conference Wednesday at the Bexar County Jail, Harrelson reiterated his allegations that "rogue elements of an agency of the U.S. government" - not Harrelson - killed Wood.

But jurors did not believe Harrelson's seven days of testimony after prosecutors presented a strong circumstantial case, calling 105 witnesses and introducing more about 300 exhibits during 40 days of trial.

Ten of the jurors wept openly while the verdicts were read Tuesday against Harrelson, his wife, and another woman.

"Obviously, they had some doubt," Harrelson said.

Choirs set for free concerts this evening

Christmas music will fill the air this evening when Pampa High School's choirs join in concert at 7 p.m. in the First Christian Church Church, 1633 N. Nelson. Everyone is invited to attend the free concert.

The four high school choirs (concert, mixed, girls and show), under the direction of Billy Talley, will sing several numbers each.

Next, all the young women will combine and sing "O Come, Little Children." Steve Martin will sing solo in an arrangement of "We Three Kings" which features all the young men. Many of the traditional carols will be sing-alongs.

Other soloists featured in the presentation include Kerri Richardson, Tronnie Goble, Julie Hamilton and Carol Newkirk.

On Dec. 20, the Concert Choir will sing Christmas carols in the lobby of First National Bank and in the lobby of Citizens' Bank and Trust Tuesday, Dec. 21. The public is invited to come to the banks and enjoy the music.

44, at the motel nearest Wood's San Antonio townhome the evening before the killing, his wife's car at the airport during a time Harrelson allegedly was "stalking" Wood, and showed that Jo Ann Harrelson purchased the alleged murder weapon 12 days before the killing.

Prosecutors portrayed Harrelson as "highly intelligent and cunning" and "an amoral cold-blooded killer" who devised a phony explanation for all his movements before the May 29, 1979, assassination.

Appraisal board to host open house Friday

The new Gray County Appraisal District will have an open house Friday, December 17, from 1 to 4 p.m. in their offices, suite 196-A, the Hughes Building at Kingsmill and Somerville.

It will be a kind of "getting-to-know-people" event, according to Charles A. Buzzard, the district's new chief appraiser. "We want people to come out and meet us and see who we are and what we do," he said.

Buzzard and his staff, which includes assistant chief appraiser Russell Garrison, have been in Pampa since September, coordinating the efforts of the new district. The appraisal district was formed by a bill in the Texas Legislature requiring districts for appraisal and taxing purposes.

County makes appointments

Four people were appointed to two county boards for the first time and one man was reappointed to the county airport board by the Gray County Commissioners Court at their regular meeting Wednesday.

Paul Jones was reappointed to the airport board for three more years. He has been serving out the term of J.B. Fowler until recently. Also appointed to the board were Henry Beech and Lawrence Paronto, who were recommended by the present board members. Beech and Paronto will replace George Eck and Virgil Ackfeld, who will step down from the board.

Anne Campbell and Jerry Carlson protest he also was "set up" in both a February 1980 weapons arrest and the July 1968 hired killing of a Texas grain dealer, for which he was convicted and served a 15-year sentence.

"I never killed anybody, period," he told reporters in the jail chapel. "I don't think anybody was deserving of being murdered."

Mrs. Harrelson, 41, and Elizabeth Chagra, 28, were convicted by the same jury on lesser offenses and will be sentenced by U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions along with Harrelson on March 8, 1973.

The district recently signed a contract to buy a computer that will make appraisal and taxing easier. It will provide as central location for the records of the district as well. Bills may even be printed by the new computer, Buzzard says.

The district includes the cities of Lefors, McLean, and Pampa, as well as the school districts of Pampa, McLean, Lefors, Alanreed and Grandview-Hopkins. Also included are the local water district and Gray County itself.

Because both the organization of the district and the offices are new, the staff wants to get to know the people it serves and let people get to know them and understand the function of the district and its office.

They will replace Ted Gikas and Geneva Tidwell, who currently serve on the board and will step down on December 31. Campbell and Carlson were recommended by current board members, Tidwell said Wednesday.

Campbell said she was very pleased to be recommended to the child welfare board. "It's such a worthy cause, and we all need to be very aware of (the problems children can have)."

Jones said his reappointment was no real surprise, he said he serves as sort of a secretary to the board. Paronto said he was pleased to be recommended, and "I'd like to serve on (the board)."

Canadian kids struck by pickup reported improving in hospital

CANADIAN - Stacy and Ivan Tiedman, who were struck by a pickup truck on their way to school here Monday, are reported to be in good condition in Children's Hospital in Oklahoma City.

Stacy, 10, is still in the Intensive Care Unit (ICU), but she is reported to be alert, awake, watching television and "complaining about the food." Ivan, her nine-year-old brother, was moved from ICU Wednesday, and is reported to be doing fine also, according to a nursing supervisor at the hospital. Stacy and Ivan are the children of Charlie and Jesse Hussong of Canadian.

The hospital spokesman described the injuries sustained by Stacy and Ivan as serious, and said that Stacy is still in ICU so she can be watched closely for a few more days. She suffered a cervical contusion, similar to a concussion, in the accident. Ivan has a broken arm, and both children have multiple abrasions (cuts and scrapes), according to the supervisor.

The supervisor also said the children will probably not be transferred out of the Oklahoma City hospital to one closer to home until they can both be released together.

The two children were struck by a pickup truck that skidded out of control on Marshall Drive, near the Stephenson Trailer Park, where they live, according to Department of Public Safety (DPS) reports. DPS trooper Larry Dunham identified the driver of the pickup as Mark Wilson, 17, of Canadian.

According to Al Burleson, chief deputy at the Hemphill County Sheriff's Office in Canadian, no charges have been filed against Wilson. "It was strictly a freakish accident," he said, "(Wilson) skidded and had no control of the vehicle whatsoever. He panicked and locked the brakes, and slid right into those little kids."

The people of Canadian have responded to the needs of the Hussongs and their children by setting up a bank account in the children's names to help pay medical expenses. According to Helen George, a teller at the First National Bank, two different groups of people came in to start bank accounts Tuesday, and they decided to collaborate on one account.

White Deer- Skellytown school board considering superintendent's pact

WHITE DEER - The White Deer - Skellytown school board began its evaluation of Superintendent Tom Harkey during its regular meeting Monday.

The board tabled action on extending Harkey's contract for another year, and the panel is expected to again consider the issue at its next meeting.

The superintendent is currently running the combined school district on a two-year contract, which expires in July, 1984. The board is considering extending the contract for another year, through July, 1985.

The board members also met in closed session to consider personnel, according to Harkey. After the executive session, the panel approved the resignation of Skellytown school aide Phyllis Clark, and it hired Barbara Fritzmeier to replace Clark. The board also hired Paul Slough as custodian for the White Deer School.

As a break for all property owners within the school district, the board granted a 30 - percent homestead exemption all resident homeowners.

Harkey said the 30 - percent exemption is deducted from the total assessed value of the district's homes. He said no application needs to be made from property owners for the exemption.

Hemphill jury

CANADIAN - A new 31st District Court grand jury for Hemphill County began its term here last week.

The new members were sworn in to service for six-month terms by District Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

The members met in session December 7, but the new panel returned no indictments.

Dance Fri. benefits Vaughn Roby

A benefit dance to help pay the medical expenses of a Skellytown man injured in a car wreck last month will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the National Guard Armory in Pampa.

Vaughn Roby, 22, was seriously injured in a car accident November 24 on Texas 152 near Skellytown. Roby suffered head injuries in the one-car accident.

The Skellytown man is the breadwinner for two small children and a pregnant wife, but his accident injuries have forced him out of work, according to relatives. Roby is a welder for Crall Products of Pampa, but his local relatives say it will take the victim at least another two or three months to recover and go back to work.

The public is welcome to Friday's benefit dance for Roby. The Wild Country Band will play. Organizers say beer will be served while it lasts, and set ups will be provided at the B - Y - O - B affair.

Admission to the dance is $3 per person or $5 per couple.

Autry's execution delayed

He blasted her for a six-pack

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) - The state attorney general's office has not decided whether to oppose a federal judge's decision staying the execution of a man convicted of killing a store clerk over a six-pack of beer, a spokeswoman says.

U.S. District Judge Robert Parker granted Wednesday an attorney's request to postpone the execution of James David Autry of Port Arthur, who had been ordered to die Friday.

"Currently, we are considering what course of action to take, if any," said Mary Hardesty of the attorney general's office in Austin.

Staff lawyers were waiting to read Parker's ruling before deciding whether to ask the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to allow the execution to proceed, she said.

Parker, who chided defense attorney Charles Carver for waiting "until the 11th hour" before filing his brief seeking the stay, said he granted the request "to allow sufficient time" for consideration of Autry's appeal.

The judge, who has been holding court in Marshall, set a hearing on Autry's case for Jan. 5 in Beaumont.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals had quickly turned down a separate appeal for a stay late Tuesday afternoon.

Autry, 28, was convicted of shooting Shirley Drouet, 43, a clerk at a Port Arthur convenience store, after stealing the beer on April 20, 1980.

"I'll pay for it with this," witnesses quoted Autry as saying as he drew a .38-caliber pistol and shot her between the eyes. One customer also was killed, and another crippled for life.

Autry was scheduled to become the second Texas convict executed by lethal injection in less than two weeks.

On Dec. 7, Charlie Brooks Jr. became the first U.S. inmate to be executed by injection and the first Texas prisoner put to death in 18 years.

In his petition on behalf of Autry, Carver contended an oral statement overheard by a police officer and admitted as evidence in the trial was tainted and should not have been heard by the jury. He also contended police beat Autry to get a written statement.

Carver said the state was permitted to use its power to grant immunity to persuade witnesses to testify, and that the defense was denied this advantage.

Former bank official charged in Amarillo

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - An 11-count indictment accuses a former bank official of misapplying $36,115 in bank funds, but he contends his former employer is trying to "railroad" him.

Bo McCurdy Bryant, former senior vice president at Bank of the Southwest, also was charged with embezzlement by a federal grand jury that met here Tuesday and released its indictments Wednesday.

"It's all false. The bank is trying to railroad me," Bryant told the Amarillo Globe-News.

The indictment said Bryant, while handling agriculture accounts from 1978 to 1980, altered ledgers for his personal benefit.

Bryant, 44, resigned his position with the bank 2½ years ago, and the bank since has been renamed Texas Commerce Bank of Amarillo.

Bryant faces a maximum penalty of 55 years in federal prison and a $55,000 fine.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A matter of facts

We're a bit confused about the recent case of the police chief hired by the City of Canadian who turned out to be not exactly as represented.

We're not confused by the facts in the case, but by the reaction of members of the city administration and other members of the news media.

We're not confused by the facts because evidently we're the only newsgathering medium in the Panhandle who bothered to check into the past, present, or future of Robyn Masingill.

Of course, it costs some money to make several long-distance calls to Morrilton, Arkansas, where Masingill is currently chief of police...at least until the new mayor and city council take office. The mayor elect told us he plans to can Masingill the minute he's sworn in. No one else seems to have asked him.

Maybe other newspapers and television stations can't afford those phone calls, and must resort to making local calls to people who are understandably embarrassed about hiring a man who was convicted of a crime and faces two more serious ones there in the near future.

Jeff Langley spent two days on the telephone talking to everyone concerned before writing his first story, and every single fact in those stories of his stands, threats and denials notwithstanding.

By watching the evening news one night, I was informed The Pampa News was in some kind of big trouble because Masingill was planning to sue us.

This is especially surprising since he has never refuted one statement we've made on the case, nor has he requested a retraction.

We are confused by Mayor Therese Abraham of Canadian, who told us the city owed us "a vote of thanks" for pointing out a few facts before this new police chief took office, and who then told Channel 7 in Amarillo our story was "completely misleading." When we called her and asked what was misleading about the story, she said, "The headline."

For those who don't recall readily, the headline in question said, "Canadian's top cop faces two felonies." The headline just below it said "New chief convicted in Arkansas, two felony trials still pending."

Robyn Masingill was convicted on Dec. 15, 1981...one day more than a year ago...by a jury in Morrilton, Arkansas, of tampering with evidence, a Class A misdemeanor. He is still facing two felony charges...another charge of tampering with evidence, and perjury. Both are felonies, and District Attorney Tom Tatum told us Masingill would be prosecuted on both counts.

No other newspaper or radio or television station bothered to call him, or he'd have told them the same thing.

Masingill has never been convicted of a felony, and we have never said he was, although at least one newspaper would have you believe that we "rushed to judgment" and convicted an innocent man.

Since biblical days, it has been the practice to kill the bearer of bad tidings, I suppose, and it probably will continue to be that way.

Strangely, we thought we were doing the citizens of Canadian a favor by letting them know that perhaps a little more checking was in order on their newly appointed police chief.

And we still feel that way.

If I were about to hire someone who could prove to be a disappointment and problem for me, I know I would appreciate someone coming forward with facts I would need to "now before hiring them."

'AND NOW... A SLAP IN THE FACE !!..

The conservative advocate

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
NEW YORK (NEA) - Disarmament enthusiasts have been busy ever since Election Day, depicting the approval of nuclear freeze referenda in eight states as evidence that the voters want all sorts of dubious things, from an immediate cessation or production and deployment of all nuclear weapons to the abandonment of the MX missile program.

This is natural enough, however mistaken it may be. After all, the main emphasis in the various referenda was on the desirability of a nuclear freeze, and the qualifications, implicit and explicit, tended to get lost in the shuffle.

But the qualifications were there nonetheless, and served handsomely to assure cautious voters that nothing ill-advised was being called for.

In the first place, most Americans assume that this country and the Soviet Union are currently more or less equal in the number of nuclear weapons possessed and deployed. In the second, the referenda were always careful to call for "appropriate verification," nobody being disposed to trust the word of the Soviet Union in such important matters.

Unfortunately, both of these reassuring reflections are mistaken. Comparisons of the number of nuclear weapons possessed by the two sides are difficult to make, because of differences in size, yield and similar factors; but there is far less mystery about the number each side has deployed. Here the Soviet Union has an important edge: It has already deployed hundreds of intermediate-range ballistic missiles, armed with nuclear warheads and aimed at Western Europe, on the soil of its East European satellites and the border areas of the Soviet Union itself. Comparable missiles (the Pershings IIs) are not scheduled to be deployed in Western Europe by the NATO powers until autumn of 1983.

It follows that an immediate freeze on all further deployment of nuclear weapons would give the Soviet Union a permanent edge over NATO. Does anyone seriously believe that most people who voted for the nuclear freeze referenda know this and just don't care?

As for the issue of verification, this has been around for a long time, so far as concerns deployment of nuclear weapons, and the experts differ among themselves. Some say current technical means of verifying Soviet deployment (i.e. by means of space satellites) are adequate; some say they aren't. But nobody pretends for a moment that the Soviet Union has ever agreed to any effective way of verifying a freeze on Soviet production of nuclear weapons, which could be continued underground in total secrecy. Does anyone really believe that the millions who voted on Nov. 2 for a freeze on "production...with appropriate verification" were aware of this?

Accordingly, I suggest that the Reagan administration put its formidable weight behind a new referendum proposition, to be submitted to town meetings and state legislatures, and placed on the ballot in state-wide elections, as soon as possible. It would call upon the president and the Congress to insist (1) that any freeze on nuclear weapons be undertaken only when American and Soviet stockpiles of such weapons are approximately equal; and (2) that a freeze on production be subject to verification by on-site inspection.

Such a referendum proposition, which simply restates the current policy of the American government, would be extraordinarily difficult for disarmament enthusiasts to oppose openly, and would almost certainly be approved wherever it appeared on the ballot. It would go far toward righting the balance, which presently puts Western governments under severe unilateral pressure to accept a nuclear freeze at a moment highly advantageous to the Soviet Union, and to agree to a mutual cessation of production under circumstances which amount to simply trusting the Communists' word on this subject.

Better yet, it would give the Reagan administration and its supporters the moral initiative in this whole matter - an initiative they have lost, as matters stand, to the liberals and the Left.

Touched by crime

By DON GRAFF

Here come the crime statistics again. And, as usual, they are grim. Last year, almost 25 million American households were criminally victimized - properly stolen, members assaulted.

Simple assault (defined as an attack without a weapon that results in a minor injury) was by far the most common reported crime, affecting about half the households. But "high-concern crime" - burglary, robbery, aggravated assault (attack with a weapon or assault that results in serious injury), rape - also hit an alarming percentage.

It's all in a report from the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics, "Households Touched by Crime - 1981," the latest in a crime-measurement series based on interviews with thousands of individual Americans.

And it's mostly bad news. Statistically, the reporters observe, U.S. families are more likely to have a member attacked in a serious violent crime than to experience an auto accident or a residential fire. They are more likely to be robbed than to have a member stricken by cancer or heart disease.

Crime, the findings also show, is discriminatory. "High-concern" crimes are more common among black than white households and in urban rather than suburban or rural environments. But economically, there is a high degree of equality - crime hits all households of similar income levels at about the same percentages.

Sobering, even frightening. But there's more to the crime story. And that is, as the bureau's statisticians note, that the 25 million criminally affected households in 1981 represent 30 percent of the U.S. total, about the same as 1980 and a slight decline from previous years. In 1975, crime touched 32 percent of all households.

In short, crime is indeed a serious national problem. The incidence is high in all categories, disturbingly higher than in Western Europe and Japan.

But their crime rate is not zooming dizzying upward year by year, as another study of the subject, the highly publicized and equally questionable Uniform Crime Index issued annually by the FBI, would suggest. Crime in the United States in reality is relatively static, a continuing rather than a growing problem.

"Touched by Crime" is based on findings of the National Crime Survey which, since 1973, has conducted two-yearly interviews in 60,000 households numbering some 132,000 persons.

A previous report drawn from the same surveys, "Criminal Victimization in the U.S., 1979-80 Changes, 1973-80 Trends," came to a similar conclusion - that the crime rate is constant, not climbing. Increases in simple assaults (11.1 percent) and household larceny (18.3 percent) during the surveyed period were balanced by declines in aggravated assault (8.5 percent) and auto theft (12.3 percent).

Crime more than touches Americans. It victimizes us with a heavy hand.

But is it not an inexorably tightening grip.

Berry's World

"Ya know, I guess THIS is what I really LOVE about being an auditor!"

Who's afraid of the big bang?

By PAUL HARVEY

I remember in the '50s, when critics sought to involve Billy Graham in civil rights marches, he always responded: "My mission is to preach the gospel of Christ."

In the '60s when his support was sought by both sides in the Vietnam tug-of-war he always responded: "My mission is to preach the gospel of Christ."

Now he is overtly involved in the worldwide debate over a nuclear weapons freeze. What's the difference?

This recent election, a nuclear weapons freeze was on the ballot in nine states and the District of Columbia. Wisconsin had already approved a freeze, three-to-one.

These state votes were binding on nobody, will change nothing, but they do tell us that a lot of Americans are scared.

It is easy to identify the degree to which today's picketing peaceniks are "sponsored" by the World Peace Council, which is committed to militarily gelding the West.

But certainly none would imply that communists can influence the utterances of Billy Graham or of any several responsible churchmen and statesmen who are just plain "scared."

The vast majority of freezezeniks in the United States are entirely loyal citizens - just scared.

I have always felt, and still do, that in August of 1945, an all-wise Almighty entrusted that awesome atomic bomb first to our God-fearing fraction of the world's population - not for our destruction, but for our deliverance, because any other kind of war we can't win.

With six percent of the earth's population, there is no way that American mothers could bear enough boy babies to police the planet with bayonets.

Certainly we would be no match for the horrendous hordes of Asia.

The only equalizer which has cut them down to our size.

The only weapon which has kept the Red Bear treed up to now.

Is this nuclear club in our closet.

I hope we can keep it forever in the closet - but if we throw it in the ash can we are at the mercy of men who are without mercy.

President Reagan has expressed willingness to consider a mutual freeze of nuclear weapons only after we have parity with the Soviets and only after they agree to allow on-site inspection so we can know they are keeping their promises.

An ironclad verification agreement is unlikely. The Soviet Union will not open her borders for inspection. To do so would eventuate the destruction of that dictatorship.

To a trusted friend I recently suggested that the big-bang nuclear deterrent is presently our only hope for peace.

He said, "That's logical." But then, significantly, he added, "I can't think about it logically; it scares me too much!"

59 needy children get free shopping spree

JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — For once in their young lives, 59 needy children got enough of everything: toys, time with Santa and a two-hour dash through a shopping center to pick out gifts of their own.

For 8-year-old Lucy, unaccustomed to such riches, "This is better than Christmas. I never got this many things before."

The youngsters, ranging in age from three to 14, were chosen from the files of San Diego's neediest welfare families.

The shopping spree Wednesday began with a chauffeured ride to a shopping center in a bus driven by Santa Claus, and it ended with a Christmas party of cookies, punch and brightly-wrapped presents.

In between, the youngsters went on the binge of their young lives.

There were squeals of delight as the children dashed through the showroom, trying on winter jackets, dainty party dresses and squeaky new shoes.

"Do we really get to keep everything?" young Lucy asked in disbelief, her shopping bag bulging with merchandise.

An 8-year-old boy named Brian broke into a run at the bottom of the escalators at the Sears store at University Towne Center. His mind was made up. Within minutes, his Christmas wishes had all come true: In his bag were five clothing items emblazoned with the club insignia of the San Diego Chargers football team.

The gifts could not have a total value over $65, and the rules called for parents to remain behind lest they influence the children's decisions.

Big mice

Researchers say they transferred genes from rats into mice that resulted in animals up to twice their normal size, according to a report published today in Nature, a British science journal. The smaller mouse is a normal-sized adult and the bigger one is a littermate who got that way after a gene implant. (AP Laserphoto)

Big mice may lead to big cattle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of hefty mice may be forerunners to giant cattle that produce greater food supplies, say scientists who have used genetic manipulation to produce the big rodents.

Researchers said in a report published today that the transfer of genes from rats into mice resulted in animals up to twice their normal size. The genetic engineering development could be applied to farm animals, they said.

The research done by scientists from four institutions shows that cross-species genetic manipulation can have a major effect on subsequent generations, they say.

In a report published in Nature, a British science journal, researchers say the resulting big mice are visual examples of the impact of planning genetic change.

Similar genetic alterations have been accomplished in past research with bacteria, flies and mammals, but the results have been subtle. This work mostly involved passing on the ability to make enzymes or other chemicals that are noticeable only through laboratory measurements.

"We wanted to make changes that you could see, changes that were obvious," said Dr. Ralph L. Brinster of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, where the work was done.

Dr. Richard D. Palmiter of the University of Washington in Seattle, another collaborator, said the researchers "essentially created a genetic disease comparable to gigantism in humans."

Palmiter said the new mice model may be useful in studying gigantism, the rare human disease that results in abnormal growth. "Another important goal is to see if you can make it work in species other than mice," he continued.

Although it would be more difficult, said the researchers, it may be possible to apply this technique to increase the size of food animals as a supplement to traditional breeding methods.

The researchers took the gene that produces growth hormone in the pituitary gland of rats and combined it with part of a mouse gene. Growth hormone is a major factor controlling the growth and size of mammals.

This gene combination made of deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA), the basic substance of heredity, then was injected into fertilized mouse eggs and the eggs were put into female mice to continue their development.

From the 170 eggs inserted into foster mothers, 21 mice developed and seven of these produced abnormal amounts of growth hormone in their livers. These mice showed different levels of the hormone, indicating varying amounts of the transferred genes had been incorporated into the animals' normal DNA.

"Growth hormone levels in some of the transgenic mice were up to 800-fold higher than in normal mice."

State office building going up

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ground has been broken for the construction of a $42 million human services center, which will include three state office buildings and bear the name of a former state commission of public welfare.

The John H. Winters Human Services Center, expected to be completed by August 1984, will be located in North Austin at Old Guadalupe and 51st streets.

Winters was public welfare commissioner from 1943 to 1967.

The initial construction of the center, which was authorized by the 1981 Legislature, will include a computer center to be shared by 477 employees of the Texas Department of Human Resources, Texas Department of Health and Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

A twin tower office building will house 1,285 employees of the Department of Human Resources.

First step to moon farm

By ROBERT LEE ZIMMER
Associated Press Writer

LATHAM, Ill. (AP) — A red trolley car rolls down the track plucking trays of vegetables from the low-slung greenhouse below the rails. The plants grow in black crystals instead of soil.

It is the future of world food production, says Dale Edgecombe, whose company designed and built the $1 million demonstration facility in the middle of a central Illinois field.

"My dream has been a system that would allow us to farm on the moon," Edgecombe says. "This is the first step."

Although the system is not ready for the moon, he says it will allow food to be grown near consumers from the inner city of Chicago to desert towns in the Middle East. Production can be year-round in any climate and transportation costs will be low, so produce should be relatively cheap, Edgecombe says.

"We can grow 17 lettuce crops a year, where a farmer might get three outside," he says.

The colorful trolley unit is not the only thing in Edgecombe's experimental unit. The greenhouse where the fruits and vegetables are grown without soil is 9 feet wide and 200 feet long — but only 18 inches high.

"The ideal environment for plants is not always the ideal environment for people," Edgecombe says.

For example, he says his greenhouse uses just 15 percent of the energy needed to heat a greenhouse tall enough for people. It can be done with waste heat from a power plant or industry, he says.

Also, since no person is inside the structure, Edgecombe can increase the carbon dioxide level in the greenhouse to improve plant growth and kill insects and fungus.

A computer monitors and regulates light, heat, humidity and nutrition. Water pumped onto the floor of the greenhouse heats or cools the structure. Shutters in the glass top are programmed to move with the sun to allow the necessary amount of light to reach the plants.

The plants are grown in black crystals — Edgecombe will say only that it is a coal-like substance — and liquid nutrients are pumped into the bottom of the growing trays and rise through the inert crystals to feed the plants.

The unit also could work with a hydroponics system, in which the roots dangle in liquid instead of the crystals. But Edgecombe says the crystals provide the resistance needed to raise tuber crops such as carrots and radishes that cannot be grown in liquid.

Edgecombe Enterprises International was incorporated in 1981 and ground was broken for the demonstration site in April 1982.

Government and business leaders from the United States, Africa, Norway, Venezuela and Canada attended an open house in August to see the system in action.

Shultz European trip appears successful

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today begins the last leg of a seven-nation European tour that by many accounts has smoothed strained trans-Atlantic relations.

Shultz was scheduled to leave Madrid for London on the last stop of his tour which began Dec. 6 and also included stopovers in Bonn, Brussels, The Hague, Rome and Paris. He is scheduled to return to Washington on Saturday.

Many European officials and commentators have suggested that Shultz has begun a new era of calmer rapport between Washington and its main Western European allies because of what they call his smooth style of diplomacy.

La Stampa newspaper in Turin, Italy, said Shultz "appears to signal less difficult times for European-American relations" and the French newspaper Le Monde spoke of his "moderating influence."

Danish Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann-Jensen

said Shultz "is a man who listens to other people...the best thing that could ever happen."

In London, where officials say his visit is considered of "major importance," there should be little to upset the new atmosphere.

Shultz was scheduled to meet with Sir Geoffrey Howe, chancellor of the exchequer, and Foreign Secretary Francis Pym. On Friday meets Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

He also was scheduled to meet Lebanese Foreign Minister Elie Salem in London. U.S. officials said Lebanon and the United States have been encouraging Britain to take part in the peacekeeping force in Lebanon, but the British have not decided.

A multinational force of about 4,000 peacekeepers are stationed in Lebanon, including U.S. Marines, French troops and Italian soldiers.

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel has tried to get other nations to contribute troops to that force in his attempts to reassert Lebanese government control over the country.

One item of possible contention is U.S. attempts to encourage Britain to discuss Falkland Islands sovereignty with Argentina. Britain firmly rejects this because of Argentina's invasion of the islands April 2 and Britain's recovery of the colony in a costly 74-day war.

Britain is prepared to discuss in detail with Shultz the study of East-West relations agreed to in response to President Reagan's lifting of sanctions last month against European firms which supply equipment with U.S. technology for the Soviet natural gas pipeline.

The sanctions angered Europeans with lucrative pipeline equipment contracts, as well as those who view the pipeline from Siberia to Europe as a way of insuring adequate fuel supplies in coming years.

The allies have agreed to consider tighter restrictions on Western technology

Arms control offer disagreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's top arms control negotiator says the Soviet Union is only hinting at a slight reduction in its nuclear weapons in Europe to preserve a missile advantage there.

Eugene V. Rostow said Wednesday that Soviet negotiators have yet to make a concrete proposal and may not even be reflecting their country's official policy.

"There is no indication they are willing to achieve an agreement based on equality in deterrence," Rostow said in a telephone interview from a hospital bed in New Haven, Conn., where he is recovering from hip surgery.

But Paul Warnke, who held Rostow's post in the Carter administration, contradicted that stance in a separate interview. He said the Soviet move "could be quite significant."

"What it does indicate a willingness on their part to move, to make actual reductions," Warnke said.

At issue are exploratory probes by Soviet negotiators during arms control talks last month in Geneva.

Winter poses no problem for dedicated joggers

NEW YORK (AP) — While jogging and running have become a popular means of physical fitness for millions of Americans, winter's plummeting temperatures, gusty winds, snow and ice often cause these exercise buffs to stow away their sneakers and sweatsuits until spring.

But things don't have to be that way if a few precautions are taken, says Kathrine Switzer, the first woman to officially run in the Boston Marathon and now the director of Sports Programs for Avon Products Inc.

"Joggers should realize that the hardest part of running in the winter is opening the door and stepping outside," says Ms. Switzer, who is also considered the person most responsible for getting the women's marathon included in the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

According to Ms. Switzer, the key to running in the winter — and enjoying it — is proper preparation. First, she recommends that joggers dress lightly.

"Many people have the misconception that they need a lot of heavy clothing when they run in the winter, but that's not true. What they really need is layers of clothes. The layering traps warmth."

Her own winter running gear generally consists of ballet tights (men can substitute knee socks or long underwear), sweatpants, a long-sleeved cotton turtleneck, a sweatshirt jacket, a light nylon windbreaker, gloves, a hat and rubber-treaded running shoes.

"The hat and gloves are the most important elements of the outfit," Ms. Switzer says. "The hat is essential because more than 30 percent of your body heat is lost through your head, while the gloves are critical since your fingers are particularly susceptible to frostbite."

Ms. Switzer advises all runners to "winterize" their skin with moisturizers that protect the eyes, lips and face. She also suggests that women use a lipstick and foundation with built-in moisturizers and sunscreens which provide additional protection against harsh winter sun, wind and chapping. Hair, she says, must be conditioned regularly because, like skin, it tends to dry and break in freezing temperatures.

Ms. Switzer advises all runners to prepare their bodies for the cold by performing indoor warm-up calisthenics for about 15 minutes before a workout. These exercises should include stretching to loosen muscles and tendons, sit-ups with knees bent and jumping jacks.

"It's important to get the blood flowing to all your extremities," she explains.

Dear Abby

Classic: Yes, there's a Santa

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago when your column appeared in the now defunct New York Mirror, a 6-year-old girl named Virginia wrote to you, saying that her friends told her there was no Santa Claus.

Your oft-quoted response was beautiful. Will you please run it again?

E.G.J., DOVER, DEL.

DEAR E.G.J.: To set the record straight, the child was 8, not 6, and the column did not appear in the now defunct New York Mirror — it appeared in the now defunct New York Sun. The letter was not addressed to me, it was addressed to the editor. And the beautiful response was written by Francis P. Church in 1897!

It is a famous, well-loved classic, but has never appeared in my column. And here it is:

"Dear Editor:
"I am 8 years old.
"Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus.
"Papa says, 'If you see it in The Sun, it's so.'
"Please tell me the truth. Is there a Santa Claus?" — Virginia O'Hanlon, 115 West 95th Street"

"Dear Virginia: Your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little.

"In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias.

"There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus.

"The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart.

"Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, 10 times 10,000 years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sailors cheered by volunteers

NEW YORK (AP) — As the Christmas season approaches, several thousand knitters in almost every state step up their production pace.

The volunteers make woolen socks, sweaters, scarves, watch caps and even slippers for the Christmas-at-Sea project sponsored by the Seamen's Church Institute of New York and New Jersey.

Founded by the Episcopal Church as a social agency to aid seafarers back in 1834, the institute has been distributing Christmas gifts to men at sea for nearly seven decades.

This year, according to Robin Pearce who directs the annual effort from the institute's headquarters building at the foot of Manhattan, gifts will go to more than 10,000 American and foreign merchant mariners and naval personnel. Each will receive a colorful Christmas gift box with a hand-knitted garment, plus toiletries, sewing kits, stationery and Christmas cards, some of which are donated by corporate groups.

During the past few months, institute ship-visitors have been compiling a registry of vessels that will be at sea on December 25. As they dock in Port of New York-New Jersey anytime before Christmas Day, the ships will be loaded with cartons of gift boxes for distribution by the captain on Christmas morning.

Last year, the top 25 knitters alone produced nearly 2,000 of the more than 16,000 garments made. For some, it's been non-stop knitting since early January, using yarn supplied by the institute.

Ella Johnson of Pomona, Calif., a spry 100, who's been a Christmas-at-Sea volunteer for over 30 years, explains the dedication of the volunteers this way: "It's so good to know that even at my age you can make a contribution. They are lonely men out there at sea and their wonderful letters of appreciation make it all so worthwhile."

Mrs. Johnson meant letters like the one from an Egyptian seaman aboard the M-T Corinthian who wrote: "You cannot imagine my happiness when I received your very kind gift on the occasion of Christmas."

Casual turns fancy

ON THE TOWN — Holidays are the time to dress up and step out, and the fun is in dressing up basics — putting informal looks together in unexpected combinations, such as these separates that offer a casual play on top hats and tails. For him, it's stone-washed jeans paired with traditional, wing-collar tuxedo shirt. For her, a stone-washed denim mini with an updated shirt that's strictly female.

Full Cleveland look unknown in city

By ALAN L. ADLER
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — The latest thing in Cleveland jokes is a real put-on, although nobody in the city seems to wear it.
It's called the "Full Cleveland" — a brown short-sleeve shirt with a white polyester tie and white patent leather belt and shoes.
It's the way NOT to dress for business, says "The Official MBA Handbook or How To Succeed In Business Without a Harvard MBA," a satire loosely based on the "Preppie Handbook."
Cleveland residents, often the butt of jokes, seem to be taking the latest jab in stride. Most never heard of the Full Cleveland and have never seen the look on their city's streets.
"I've seen some weird-looking characters, but no one like that, to be honest," said Ray Hannola, who works at a City Loan & Savings branch in suburban Cleveland.
"A few of 'em walk by, but they look like bums," said Mark Vollmer, a salesman at Richman Brothers, a clothing store. "I don't know of anybody who dresses that way seriously."
Tom Rakic, a local tailor, said he's never had a customer ask for the style and even if one did, "I don't think I could help with anything like that."
In their best-seller's chapter on "strategic dressing," authors Robert Barron and Jim Fisk say that anyone who wears the style to a corporate job may be condemned to living in Cleveland.

Only one paragraph in the book's 237 pages is devoted to the Full Cleveland, but on promotional tours, Barron and Fisk often mention the outfit to the howls of spectators.
The look is the latest in a series of jokes endured by the 574,000 residents of Cleveland. At President Reagan's inaugural ball, for instance, comedian Rich Little joked that the way to keep the Soviets out of Poland was to "tell them it's Cleveland."
Little's quip drew the wrath of Congresswoman Mary Rose Oakar, a Democrat, who demanded Rich apologize — which he did on bended knee on the "Tonight Show" three weeks later.
While most who live in the city seem unconcerned about the latest barb, a former resident, Marilyn Lurie, was incensed. After seeing the look discussed on the "Today" show, she wrote an angry letter to the co-authors.
"The way they were talking about it, they were being pretty obnoxious," Ms. Lurie said in a telephone interview from Chicago.
"Ever since I moved away, I've experienced a number of Cleveland jokes. I've retorted to several people. I still get a lot of grief at work. I find that most people who poke fun at it have never been there," she said.
"You'd probably see the most Full Cleveleans in Atlantic City."

CLEVELAND — Barry Bennett models the so-called "Full Cleveland" look as detailed in the book "The Official MBA Handbook..." by Robert Barron and Jim Fisk. The style, consisting of a dark short-sleeved shirt, white tie and white patent leather belt and shoes, is probably more easily found in Atlantic City said Barron who admits he has never seen such an outfit in his travels through Ohio. Bright knits for indoors

By Florence De Santis
NEW YORK (NEA) — What with lowered thermostats and more time spent at home instead of in expensive outdoor recreation, the fashion focus is on winter knits. These "indoor" knits range from layered sportswear to hostess dresses and soft tops.
Maria Jerez knits layered outfits in creamy wool, with pants, tunic top, shirt-styled coat and scarved hood, wearable at home and at the ski lodge. Norma Fink for Theodore Design creates a three-piece ensemble in Creslan acrylic/cotton sweatshirt fleece. It's all in bold, two-color geometrics of diamonds and stripes, with a loose reversible vest, in such contrasts as green with teal or black and cream. Both designers express their California feeling for casual fireside knits.

Californians in general like pants for indoor knits, usually slim, and often topped by the batwing width of dolman sweaters. Harlequin's is in bright red cashmere, PSE textures its red acrylic dolman with a zigzag stitch, and Amy Wong stripes her cashmere in subtle tones of gray, black and white. Another big California at-home sweater look derives from ethnic themes, such as Tyrolean hearts and flowers, Indian geometrics on fringed yokes and the Fair Isle look in delicate pastels.

Abandoned children eke living in Brazil

By BRYNA BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer
BELEM, Brazil (AP) — Scores of youngsters attempting to eke out an existence on the streets hawk plastic bags along the docks of this northern port city, surrounding shoppers and pleading for spare change for their wares.
They make up a small part of what UNICEF says is one of Brazil's "most urgent problems." They are abandoned children, making their living on the streets.
UNICEF puts the number of abandoned children in Brazil at up to 25 million — more than the population of all of Central America or more than the combined population of the states of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.
Children in Rio de Janeiro's posh Copacabana and Ipanema beaches roam by the outdoor cafes, selling peanuts and flowers. Street urchins in the modern inland capital of Brasilia walk along the commercial streets, offering shoe shines or lottery tickets.
The problem has been found in most of Latin America, said Bill Myers, a UNICEF counselor who is working in Brasilia with the government to combat the situation. "But the sheer numbers here are enormous," he said.
"We think, by observation, that the problem is getting worse as the economy gets worse," Myers said. "We know that it is tied with uncontrolled, rapid urbanization."
Many of the children have been completely abandoned by their parents and dumped onto the streets, but large numbers leave home "and work on the streets because their parents are just too poor to take care of them."
UNICEF, the Brazilian Secretariat of Social Assistance and the National Child Welfare Foundation are in the infant stages of preparing a program to deal with what they call the "street children."
Myers says UNICEF is looking on a "micro" basis at existing programs for children around the country and attempting to find a plan that can be adopted on a national level. One of the goals, he explained, is to offer "some protection from malnutrition, disease and exploitation."
Brazil traditionally has adopted the European-American attitude of putting these kids into institutions," he said. About 6,000 children are institutionalized in the country, Myers added.
"And like every institution they're as cold as they can be, he said.

Tight police guard around Walesa

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Plainclothes police ringed the apartment of Lech Walesa, leader of the outlawed Solidarity union, after he challenged martial-law enforcers by refusing to obey a prosecutor summons.

Sources close to the Communist government said it might bar him from delivering a speech at an outdoor memorial service later today. They said the decision to allow such a speech was considered "delicate."

Walesa, who was seeking permission to speak at a gathering outside the giant V.I. Lenin shipyard, refused to appear before a Gdansk prosecutor Wednesday. Some sources said he might be detained for 24 hours.

The Lenin shipyard is where scores of workers died in a clash with authorities 12 years ago today. The anniversary falls on the date one year ago when nine miners were killed in fighting with martial-law forces in Silesia, southern Poland.

"We just don't know what will happen... We just don't know," said the Rev. Henryk Jankowski, the Roman Catholic priest who acts as Walesa's confidante and adviser.

Three plainclothesmen stood in the staircase of the drab 10-story apartment building where Walesa lives Wednesday night, blocking Western journalists from approaching his second-story residence. Dozens of other plainclothesmen could be seen around the building in Walesa's neighborhood, a Gdansk suburb.

The local prosecutor reportedly summoned Walesa to question him about suspected financial irregularities in the Gdansk chapter of Solidarity, of which, Walesa was chairman. The Solidarity leader complained in a letter to the prosecutor that the summons was improperly drafted and vaguely worded.

Police patrols could be seen Wednesday night around the monument to slain shipyard workers where Walesa planned to speak. The monument was erected in the fall of 1980 under terms of an agreement that ended the August 1980 strikes that gave birth to Solidarity.

Earlier Wednesday, the martial-law government reinforced Gdansk's police and riot police garrisons anticipating violence.

Twice Tuesday convoys of between 12 and 15 trucks and armored personnel carriers drove around the city of half a million in a show of force reminiscent of the first days of martial law, declared on Dec. 13, 1981, after 16 months of Solidarity-inspired strikes.

More children expected here by Christmas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has confirmed that 26 Amerasian children and nine adult relatives will leave Vietnam today in time to arrive in the United States before Christmas.

It will be the third and the largest group of Amerasian children — the mixed-race offspring of American fathers — to come to the United States since the Vietnamese government began allowing them to leave.

Last week, the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok, Thailand, said only 21 Amerasian children were expected to be on the weekly Thursday flight from Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, to Bangkok.

"The number of children leaving depends on the ability of Vietnam to locate the U.S. citizenship children" for the flight, John Shade, executive director of the Pearl S. Buck Foundation, said Wednesday.

Norman Barnes of the State Department's Bureau of East Asian Affairs said the State Department is informing the Amerasians' American relatives of their expected arrival before Christmas.

He said the Privacy Act made it impossible for him to release the names of the children or their American relatives.

Amerasian children are the offspring of American men who were stationed with the armed services in southeast Asia.

At a news conference Wednesday, Rep. Stewart B.

McKinney, R-Conn., said the cooperation has been extraordinary among Justice and State Department officials in moving to implement the Amerasian Immigration Act.

"This bill has done more to renew my faith in the 'Christian' of Christmas and the happiness of Hanukkah than almost anything else I can think of," McKinney said.

The first group of Amerasians that left Sept. 30 included 11 children. The second group that left Vietnam on Oct. 7 included 17 children and accompanying relatives.

Those children, along with the Amerasians leaving Thursday and a fourth group scheduled to leave in February, are U.S. citizens because their birth fathers have acknowledged their existence.

Firms charged in price fixing

HOUSTON (AP) — Mexico's national oil monopoly has filed a federal court suit claiming two Houston engineering companies conspired to fix prices on marine construction and service projects for 20 years.

The suit filed Wednesday by Petroleos Mexicanos, more commonly known as Pemex, said the company's damages amounted to "many millions of dollars" because of the alleged violation of antitrust laws by Brown & Root Inc. and McDermott Inc.

Pemex said it had spent more than $50 million for marine projects between 1960 and 1980.

The two companies "held conspiratorial meetings and prepared many fraudulent estimates, quotations and bids," Pemex claimed.

A few weeks ago, the two companies, which were sued by 65 businesses in 1979, reached a settlement with 14 of the firms.

Meeting to consider campus-corporate ties

By LEE MITGANG
 AP Education Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — You won't find them in the gossip columns, but here are some of America's hottest new couples:

Washington University and Monsanto Corp. Harvard Medical School and DuPont. Carnegie Mellon University and Westinghouse. Cornell University and Exxon.

In the past year, business and higher education have wooed and won each other as never before — as partners in research probing into lucrative, occasionally controversial new fields such as industrial robots and genetic engineering.

Scores of universities have entered into research contracts with big business, in partnerships that both sides believe will help America regain pre-eminence in world markets such as automobiles and electronics.

Industry support of campus research, less than $100 million in 1975, is over $200 million this year, and is predicted to climb to $600 million a year during the 1980s, says Edward E. David, Jr., president of the Exxon Research and Engineering Co.

But the growing ties between campus and corporation have also raised ethical and legal questions — serious enough to have caught the attention of Congress.

Hoping to stave off federal regulation, several hundred industry and campus officials will confer Wednesday and Thursday in Philadelphia under the banner, "Partners in the Research Enterprise."

"We want to establish broad guidelines for campus research before Congress gets in and sets ground rules arbitrarily," says Dr. William H. Danforth, chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis, and one of 16 university and industry leaders hosting the gathering.

Industry-funded research centers are springing up at Princeton University, Carnegie-Mellon, Stanford University and elsewhere. For business, it means a valuable source of brainpower. For cash-strapped universities, it means millions of dollars, new facilities, and a way to keep top faculty in the thick of developments in their fields.

One typical deal: Washington University signed a $23.5 million contract with Monsanto in June for medical research. The university would hold any patents and receive royalties from its discoveries, but Monsanto would have exclusive license to market and produce any products. A panel of Monsanto and university scientists would decide what research projects to fund. Researchers could publish their findings, but only after Monsanto reviewed them.

The economic stakes are high for both business and campus. The more successful campus research complexes have supercharged the economies of whole regions: the microelectronics center at Stanford, for example, was the wellspring for "Silicon Valley," the area south of San Francisco which has become the computer capital of America.

Man intent on adding to perplexity

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Adam Alexander would like the world to come to his tub, not his door. There, like the Greek philosopher Diogenes did centuries earlier, he would deliver criticism of his fellow man.
Instead, Adam Alexander is hop-skipping across the country on the talk show circuit huckstering his invention — Alexander's Star — in places like Indianapolis, Detroit and Grand Rapids.
The Star is a 12-starred solid puzzle — a dodecahedron, if you will — that is being brought to you this year by those same people who brought you Rubik's Cube. It is, says Alexander, an extension of the Cube and like the best-selling Cube, a book will be along shortly explaining how to solve it.

Alexander is a 36-year-old mathematician whose first gray hair appeared at age 9 and whose shoulder-length hair is now completely white. A few dark hairs speckle his beard and he accentuates the whole effect by dressing only in gray. Always.

A native New Yorker, Alexander grew up in the world of private schools, skipping the sixth grade, hanging out at the Stage Deli where "I learned not to get excited by famous people," and since 1952 watching every famous skyscraper in this city of skyscrapers go up.

Like Diogenes, he would like to set up his tub — say at a busy Manhattan intersection — and have people stop by for criticism.

Peace Corps adopts a different style

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Let no one accuse the Peace Corps of lagging behind the times.
Once a hotbed of idealistic liberal arts graduates out to save the world, the 1960s agency has adopted a different style for a different decade.

Today's Peace Corps pitches career opportunities, personal growth and U.S. trade interests in addition to altruism.

It teaches anti-communism along with languages. And it recruits retirees as well as fresh-faced college grads; accountants and marketing consultants as well as nurses.

Budding business wizards helping African beekeepers market their honey? Keeping books for mom-and-pop wood-carving operations?

It's all part of a revised approach that, according to officials, better meets the needs of today's volunteers and the developing world.

The shift was formalized this fall with the addition of "competitive enterprise development" to agriculture, health, fisheries and other program areas on the Peace Corps roster.

"We're catapulting it to a top priority," says Richard Abell, director of program development. "The philosophy is that the goose that laid the golden egg for the American Dream has been the economic system."

The new business orientation is largely a survival response to changing Third World development philosophies and conservative domestic tides.

It corresponds to President Reagan's emphasis on voluntarism, self-help and private enterprise; renewed interest by international agencies in the "trickle-up" effects of small business development; and a growing wave of requests for this type of help.

"Income generation is the No. 1 priority in the developing world," says Peace Corps Director Loret Ruppe. "Many host countries say they need better business skills."

Hidden and some say harassed under the ACTION umbrella since President Nixon put it there, the Peace Corps seceded last year in hopes of reviving its identity and its mission.

At its zenith in 1966, the agency boasted 15,556 volunteers and a $114 million budget. The current budget is $105 million and this year's volunteer total is less than 5,000.

But the Peace Corps doesn't give the impression of an agency in decline. It is adding programs, entering new countries such as Haiti and planning re-entries into Peru and Panama, which it had left earlier.

With fewer than one-third of the volunteers it once had, the Peace Corps remains active in 64 countries — only five below the record high of 69 in 1974.

"We teach teachers instead of kids," says recruitment director Thomas G. Moore. "The emphasis is on training host country nationals. Instead of just digging a well, we are leaving a skill behind, building an infrastructure."

The Peace Corps odyssey is reflected in the evolution of many of its volunteers from redeemers to realists.

Rosemarie Palmer was working as a medical technologist in Hawaii when she heard that President John F. Kennedy had created the Peace Corps. Within months, she had begun a two-year stint in Malaysia.

"I was free. I was capable. I was service-oriented. I believed in the cause. I was ready to be of service to my fellow man," explains Ms. Palmer, now a microbiology professor at Penn State University.

Almost a decade later, Ruth Bednarz, another microbiologist, started a four-year assignment in the same country.

"I went there bound and determined to learn another language. I didn't start out trying to save the world," says the 31-year-old New York Law School student.

How did she end up? "Fluent."

Fred Thompson, a St. Paul, Minn., media consultant and one of the first volunteers to teach business skills overseas, was hooked by a 1961 television advertisement.

"It was President Kennedy asking, 'How would you like to serve overseas and give a few years of your life to someone else?'" says Thompson, who also is president of the 1,000-member National Council of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers.

Today's recruitment advertisements feature volunteers saying things like, "I took my agriculture degree and put it to work in the Peace Corps."

Comments Moore, "We've decided that self-delusion is no longer a virtue. There's more of a balance between the humanitarian, altruistic appeal and what's in it for you."

Mrs. Ruppe calls the current Peace Corps "a real career path" — an idea that wins approval even from former volunteers who didn't see it quite that way.

As a stepping stone, "it's not a bad idea," says Mary Keith, an ex-volunteer in Paraguay who attracted more applicants in six years at Penn State than any other campus recruiter. "It will get you language training and two years of solid hard work."

Mrs. Ruppe is also stressing another benefit ignored in the past: potential U.S. markets overseas.

"These developing nations are the fastest-growing market for our U.S. products and services," she told graduating seniors last spring at Illinois College in Jacksonville, Ill. "Third World development means more trade and more jobs for more Americans" as well as better conditions in those countries, she said.

Painting portrays Peking 50 years ago

By LIU HEUNG SHING
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — The U.S. Marines drill in the old legation quarter. Beggars seek alms in broken rice bowls. Chinese aristocrats strut in Western clothes with blonde wives on their arms. Rickshaw boys argue with traffic cops and portraits of Chairman Mao Tse-tung are nowhere in sight. This was Peking of 50 years ago, its riches, poverty and bygone diversity captured in minute detail by painter Wang Dagan in a 164-foot scroll. "I wanted to give people today a glimpse of life in the 1930s in what was China's most fascinating city, Peking," the 57-year-old

Wang told the Associated Press in an interview. In the scroll of history he depicts the majestic city walls razed by the Communists, the graceful arches replaced by massive socialist architecture, the religious processions that no longer take place, and the frenetic capitalism that has been banned.

The artist peeps into the streets and courtyards of Peking's "Hutong," where ordinary families squabble and laugh, where old men lovingly tend their birds, where matriarchs rule and daughters-in-law cringe.

He peeps into the bedchamber of a concubine with bound feet as she primps and awaits her patron.

"I was so poor in those days," said Wang, the son of a coolie. "I used to wander around the streets of Peking. I saw rickshaw men drop dead in their tracks and I saw the extravagance and squanderings of high society. I wanted to capture it all, but I am not really talented."

Wang, who usually earns a living as a railroad trade union employee, is a collector not only of images but of sounds of the pre-Communist past. He has acted as a consultant to moviemakers who want to capture the sounds and costumes of the ancient city of swallows.

Aided by a remarkable memory and powers of mimicry, Wang has tape recorded the jingles, slogans and calls of more than 100 hawkers, acrobats, knife sharpeners, diamond merchants of the old days.

His most ambitious achievement, however, is the monumental scroll in 12 sections 16 inches wide. It is being financed by the state while Wang, a self-taught artist, is on extended leave from his job.

Wang was inspired to paint his scroll at the start of the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

Pop music chronicles today's hard times

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They still sing of love and sex, but some pop lyricists are now setting the grimmer facts of contemporary life — unemployment, poverty and loss of hope in the American dream — to music. Rock has caught up with the recession.

"Well, we're living here in Allentown, and they're closing all the factories down" go the opening lines to a song from Billy Joel's new album, "The Nylon Curtain," and he isn't the only one singing the hard times blues these days.

Recession rock runs the gamut from New Wave to rhythm and blues. Most of the songs differ from protest songs of the 1960s. They don't blame government or demand action to cure the problems, but rather are statements of disillusionment, of something gone awry.

Joel's song, "Allentown," is one of the more striking, with a factory-whistle prelude and a jaunty, uptempo arrangement that contrast with lyrics which talk of unemployment lines and frustrated expectations.

Joel said he'd been toying with the melody and the idea of a song about Allentown for 10 years. "I didn't know what the subject matter was going to be about until the last year or so, reading about the problems of the steel industry," he said. "The great American blue-collar promise that the postwar kids were raised on isn't there... really don't know anyone who is untouched by what's happening economically."

Joel said that despite the troubled tone of most of the songs he doesn't take an entirely pessimistic view of the country's future. The last line of the song repeats "We're living here in Allentown" — in other words, Joel says, "we're going to stick it out. This is our heritage, this is our tradition, we're going to make it."

Richard "Dimples" Fields, who last year caused a ruckus in rhythm and blues circles with "She's Got Papers on Me," a song about an errant husband and his scolding wife, is back with "People Treat You Funky When You Ain't Got No Money," a litany of complaints about being poor.

In contrast to some other songwriters, Fields doesn't hesitate to blame government for his problems. "Reaganomics, Reaganomics, mean ghetto-nomics," he sings. "...What happened to the chicken in every pot?"

There's also no optimism in "Bread and Butter" by the Waitresses, a popular New Wave band. The voice speaking in "Bread and Butter" is clearly that of young, hip suburbanite: "How do you like your new house? How do you like your new job? You say you never got them. No kidding, me neither."

The Waitresses' guitarist-songwriter Chris Butler says he was inspired by the band's frequent trips to Detroit, where on each successive visit more and more auto plants were closed. The song took on its middle-class tone because he was writing for lead singer Patty Donahue, whose character in the group other songs is highly articulate — and usually able to cope with her problems.

"There's no resolution on this one," Butler said. "The character is upset. The character feels cheated. The character feels that things that have been promised have not been delivered. And lots of people feel that way."

The latest Bruce Springsteen LP, "Nebraska," delivers a disturbing portrait of America through sparsely arranged vignettes about people from the 'Economic woes are touched on, but the hard times in "Nebraska" are spiritual as well as material.

"Johnny 99," for example, begins like "Allentown" — "We they closed down the auto plant in Mahwah late that month" — but then focuses on an unemployed man who gets drunk and commits an armed robbery.

Johnny 99 tells a judge of "debts no honest man could pay, but refuses to pin his actions to money alone: "If you can talk a man's life for the thoughts that's in his head... let 'em shave off my hair and put me on that execution line."

Blue-collar malaise is also the theme of "Factory," a song about a worker who has a job, "a barbecue, pink Mustang fenders chrome," but senses something is missing: "At nine o'clock I sit there in my chair and I don't know why I lose my hair."

Stan Ridgway, songwriter of "Voodoo," the Los Angeles-based band which recorded "Factory," denies his songs are pessimistic.

President of oil companies is indicted on fraud charges

DALLAS (AP) — The president of two Dallas-based companies faces four felony charges accusing him of defrauding investors in drilling projects and misapplying investor funds.

Merle Lee Matlock, 44, was indicted Tuesday by a Dallas County grand jury on two counts of violating the securities act and two counts of misappropriation of fiduciary property during transactions in 1981 and 1982.

The indictments allege Matlock, president of Petrowest and Explorer Energy Inc., bilked investors of $193,650 that he intended to finance the drilling of oil and gas wells in West Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Assistant District Attorney Steve Webster said none of the investors named in the indictments received any money from their joint ventures with Matlock's companies.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

This coming year should prove to be an exciting one. For the first time in a long time you'll be able to bring your ideas to market. The more you become involved in, the more opportunities come your way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not wait on others to make things happen for you today where your financial interests are concerned. You're the one who's needed to get the ball rolling. New predictions for the year following your birthday are now ready. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your keen insights and speedy deductions make you the leader of the pack today. This becomes even more evident when dealing in financial realms.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The reason you're so effective today is because you influence others subtly. Before people realize where the ideas are coming from, they're already carrying them out.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When mingling with friendly groups today you may pick up bits and pieces of information which could put you on to something good.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep on the best of terms with persons who can help you advance your present ambi-

...your affairs now. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An opportunity potentially helpful to you careerwise might develop in a sudden and unexpected way today. A male friend may trigger the happening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're noted for being a fast thinker. Today, this ability is likely to be put to good use in business matters, where you may have to make some quick decisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Circumstances may place you in an opportune position today where you can function as the middle person in bringing two parties together for a profitable purpose.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you want co-workers to be more industrious and productive today, first set the example. When they see you in action, they'll pick up your pace.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Much can be accomplished today if you take time to organize your methods. First determine how you want to do things — then proceed in an orderly fashion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to leave things until the last minute today, but should tasks pile up, you'll be very resourceful in coping.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't treat lightly any bright ideas you get today for ways to turn a quick profit. Chances are, your thoughts for making the cash register ring are on the mark.

Retiring

Alabama football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant sorts papers in his office Wednesday at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa after announcing his retirement after the Liberty Bowl game is played. Grimsley's Sports World

Can Perkins fill Bryant's shoes?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Will Ray Perkins find the shoes too big and the pressure too great when he leaves the New York Giants and takes the reins of the Alabama football team next year from the matchless master, Paul "Bear" Bryant?

How do you compete with a legend? "There are intangibles but I don't think it will be a handicap in Perkins' case," said Dan Devine, who took a similar dare in a unique coaching career that saw him go from the campus to the pros and back to college again while dodging the omnipresent shadows of Curly Lambeau, Vince Lombardi, Knute Rockne, Frank Leahy and Ara Parseghian.

"I spoke in Tuscaloosa not so long ago and the next morning the newspaper headline read: 'Devine Says Bear Will Be Easy to Replace. The headline was accurate but gave the wrong impression. What I said was that when Bryant retires he will not leave a run-down organization to his successor. "Winning takes care of everything. Knowing the Bear as I do, I have to believe he made sure the house was in order before he retired. If Ray can get off to a 9-2 or a 10-1 record, he'll be okay."

Devine was a successful coach at Arizona State and later Missouri before he took the giant step as head coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers in 1971 — the same year that Tommy Prothro, a Coach of the Year at UCLA, leaped to the Los Angeles Rams. They were two college coaches testing uncharted waters.

Devine took the Packers to the Central Division crown his second year but suffered from the after effects of the bitter 1974 pre-season strike. He resigned to succeed Parseghian at Notre Dame.

From Lambeau and Lombardi, he plunged headlong into an idolatrous aura left by the great Rockne and Leahy.

"There are pressures," Devine conceded. "All you have to do is win."

He resigned at Notre Dame after the 1980 season, having won the national championship in 1977 and scored consecutive Cotton Bowl victories in 1978 and 1979.

Meanwhile, Prothro subsequently was fired by the Rams, got into a nasty suit over breach of contract, became coach of the San Diego Chargers for four years, then resigned in 1978. He was never lured back to campus life.

Perkins, 41, a former Alabama receiver who caught passes from Namath, Steve Sloan and Kenny Stabler, refuses to be cowed by the challenge of replacing the man who broke Amos Alonzo Stagg's revered record to become the winningest coach in college history (322 victories).

"If I were scared or intimidated I'd be totally crazy," he said.

Sampsonless Virginia whips Houston

TOKYO (AP) — The University of Virginia, playing without two-time Player of the Year Ralph Sampson, who was ailing, defeated the University of Houston 72-63 today in the Suntory Ball tournament.

With Jim Miller scoring 14 points in place of Sampson, Othell Wilson scoring 18 and his backcourt mate Ricky Stokes contributing 12, the top-ranked, unbeaten Cavaliers improved their record to 7-0 against the 14th-ranked Cougars before a capacity crowd of 5,000 at the Aoyama University gym. Houston Cougars, after opening the season with five victories, now has lost two in a row.

The 7-foot-4 Sampson, who was averaging 19.2 points and 11 rebounds in six games, was sidelined by an intestinal virus.

Bears win Optimist crown, league tourney set next

By Bob Dixon

Regular season action ended earlier this week in the Optimist Girls' basketball program with the Bears winning the league championship. They clinched the title with a 30-14 win over the Red Raiders. Tracy Cash had 14 points to pace the winners while Tara Hamby had 10 for the Raiders.

In a game played earlier that evening, the Mustangs overcame an early lead by the Cougars to take a 24-22 victory. Debbie Farrah hit for 20 points for the Mustangs while Yolanda Brown hit 11 field goals to account for all the Cougar scoring. The Cougars had an 18-10 halftime lead. The Mustangs cut the lead to 22-18 at the end of three periods and then held the Cougars scoreless in the final quarter to take the two-point win.

A league tournament will be held, starting Friday night at the Optimist Gym. The Red Raiders will take on the Cougars in the early contest, while the Mustangs will take on the Longhorns in the nitecap. The champion Bears have drawn a first-round bye in this double-elimination tourney. The action will continue all day Saturday until a winner is crowned Saturday night.

Final standings are as follows: Bears 7-1; Mustangs 6-2; Red Raiders 4-4; Cougars 3-5 and Longhorns 0-8.

Panhandle girls edge past Phillips

PHILLIPS—Panhandle girls squeezed out a one-point win, 48-47, over Phillips in a non-district game Tuesday night.

Panhandle had to rally in the second half after trailing by six, 28-22, at intermission. The Pantherettes cut the lead to two, 38-36, going into the final quarter.

Karen Strawn paced Panhandle with 15 points while Leslie McCaskey added 12.

Laura Williams was Phillips' high scorer with 19 points. Marlene Workman chipped in 12.

Phillips came from behind the second half to down Panhandle, 42-38, in the boys' contest. Panhandle led by five, 19-14, at halftime, but fell behind by three, 30-27, heading into the last period.

Phillips was topped by Kyle Lynch's 20 points.

Wes Wood led Panhandle with 10 points while Jody Wood, Danny Deten and Jay Cassidy had six points apiece.

Panhandle hosts White Deer Friday night. Panhandle team won't play again until Jan. 4 when they visit Sanford-Fritch.

News briefs

ROSEBURG, Ore. (AP) — Julie Ann Evans, who gave birth to a child while in a coma, died of natural causes while still on the respirator her family had gotten permission to remove.

Mrs. Evans, 23, who suffered from an inherited deformity in her brain stem and fell into a coma Oct. 26, 1981, gave birth to a girl Feb. 25.

The comatose mother died Wednesday, two days after her family received permission to remove the respirator but before she could be taken off the life-support system.

Her daughter, Jennifer, not only survived the birth by Caesarean section, but also surprised doctors because she suffered no birth defects despite her mother's medication.

The Gray County and Revenue Sharing Budget for 1983 was approved by the Commissioners' Court December 1, 1982. The Budget will be examined by the general public in the office of the County Clerk or County Auditor, Gray County Courthouse, Pampa, Texas at any time during regular business hours.
