How cold was it?

It was cold enough to play a clarinet inside a sleeping bag. As the Pride o' Pampa high school band serenaded the Harvesters football players in their last game of the season Friday night, one of the clarinetists. James Morgan, 16. kept covered as he kept tune, bundling up in winter jacket and ripped sleeping bag in the Pampa High School field's open bleachers against a chill November wind. After the game, the mercury dropped to 29 degrees. The Harvesters played the Borger Bulldogs in the season final here: Borger won, 27 to 7.

Convicted murderers questione

By JEAN TIERNEY

AMARILLO - The man and woman convicted of murdering the business partner of Pampa native Kevin Francis were in Amarillo again last week for questioning, leading to speculation that they might have more information on the controversial case.

George and Bedale Hicks, the husband and wife now serving 99 - year terms each for the October, 1977, killing of clothier Frank Potts, have been here since Monday "for questioning by the investigating authorities," Potter County Attorney John Tull said

But Tull would not elaborate, adding "it's too early to make any comments.

Francis, 32, who was born and raised in Pampa, is currently in a Texas Department of Corrections prison. He was convicted here in 1980 of soliciting the murder of his business partner and sentenced to 40 years. But that conviction, by the Amarillo 251st District Court, was overturned Sept. 1 by the 7th Court of Criminal Appeals for a verbal discrepancy in the judge's instructions to the jury

Tull, who was special prosecutor during Francis' trial, has until Nov. 29 to ask a higher court to review that September ruling.

Tull said Friday that he has made no decision yet on whether to ask for a further court review of the case and probably will not until the end of the month

If the appeals court orders a second trial, it would not likely occur before late winter, perhaps February, Tull said.

Meanwhile, Francis remains in prison; state law forbids bail during appeal in cases where the sentence is longer than 15 years. If the case does go to another trial, Tull said, "if he wins he goes free; if we win, he stays where he

Francis was charged in the 1980 trial with asking three men. John Payne, Scott Taylor and Charles Pierce, to find a hit man to murder Potts. Tull said Friday he did not know where Payne, Taylor and Pierce were now but added "I'm sure we can find them Potts was found dead Oct 8, 1977, inside a downtown clothing store, Barney's Factory Outlet. which he and Francis owned as partners. He had been stabbed 28 times, according to investigators. Francis was convicted of solicitation for murder. allegedly to collect more than $200,000 in insurance benefits, part of a policy which trial testimony described as taken out a few months before Potts' death to qualify the partners for a business loan. After Francis' 1980 trial, George and Bedale Hicks were convicted in a separate trial of the actual murder. Since then, Tull said, they have been serving their sentences in Texas Department of Corrections prisons

After the September review of Francis' trial, in which the appeals court overturned the conviction. Tull said the state would seek the same maximum penalty against Francis if the case went to a new Friday he added that the prosecution's presentation in any new trial would be essentially the same as during the first. Francis was defended in court by attorney Travis Shelton, a former president of the state bar association.

Before his conviction, Francis operated Kevin Francis Clothiers on North Cuyler Street in Pampa in addition to his Amarillo business.

The case became controversial when Tom Curtis, then district attorney, was disqualified from the case at his own request and also at the request of the grand jury which indicted Francis on its own initiative. Curtis said evidence was insuffienct to pursue the case

The grand jury began its investigation on its own. more than two years after the murder, on a request from Potts' widow. Polly

Canadian couple give $1.5 million in trust

CANADIAN (Spc) — Iris and Malouf Abraham, who have already made large gifts to local institutions, have set aside a special $1.5 million for charity.

The trust fund is expected to provide more than $2.5 million for good causes over the next 20 years.

Recognized charities in Canadian and the neighboring area will be at the top of list when the funds are given out, the fund's trustees announced Thursday

The Abrahams recently gave the Canadian YMCA a $100,000 challenge gift, with a pledge of a similar grant when matching funds are raised.

Malouf Abraham, an independent oil operator and a real estate broker, is the son of Canadian pioneer merchant Nahim Abraham; he is a former mayor of Canadian and has served as state representative. He and his wife have been active in numerous civic

The new trust fund, effective Nov. 5. is named the Malouf and Iris Abraham 1982 Charitable Lead Trust. It will be administered by Jay Godwin, president of the First State Bank of Canadian, or his successor as bank president, as independent trustee. The fund names the children of the Abrahams, Dr. Malouf Abraham Jr. and Betty Cooper of Canadian and William Edward Abraham of Dallas, as family trustees.

The trust fund's first gifts, to be made from interest accrued between Nov. 5 and Dec. 31, are expected to total a little less than $20,000. But when the gifts are made in following years, at year's end, the sum is expected to be more than $120,000 each time

The administrator is to choose the charities which the fund will help each year, reviewing Canadian applications first but with the ability to donate to any recognized charity over the life of the trust. The basis of the trust fund is invested securities which are expected to earn at least 8 percent interest each year; that interest, $120,000 or more each year, is to be distributed entirely to charitable causes

At the end of 20 years, the life of the trust fund, the principal is to be distributed to Iris and Malouf Abraham's grandchildren.

Applications for grants from the trust fund may be sent to executor Godwin. The Abrahams have made large donations, ranging up to $100,000 and more, in recent years to many area organizations.

One of their principal beneficiaries has been the Edward Abraham Memorial Home in Canadian, a nursing home established in 1964 by the Abraham families and the Canadian Area Foundation, whose funds include matching donations from area residents. They have also made substantial gifts to West Texas State University, Texas Tech University and

Gray gets a bingo check By JULIA CLARK

Gray County received a check for $12.25 from state Comptroller Bob Bullock last week.

That doesn't sound like much, but it represents the first payment the county receives for its new tax on charitable bingo.

Gray County is one of the 40 counties and 28 cities in Texas which have legalized charity bingo and levied the optional two percent local tax. Organizations which operate charity bingo games pay to Gray County two percent on the gross amount over $2500 earned per month.

Gray County received the next-to-smallest amount sent to a county. The least amount paid to a county, $3.02 went to Val Verde County in southern Texas

The biggest check went to Nueces County, where 40 Corpus Christi-area organizations licensed to conduct bingo games by the state comptroller's Bingo Regulation Division brought in taxes of $19,890.

The quarterly allocation of bingo tax collected by the comptroller and returned to the local governments. $184,796.00, was more than $68,000 higher than the first quarterly allocation made in August.

"This money is going to work in the local communities who have levied the tax," Bullock said.

Election judge Ott Shewmaker, a Democrat, told the Gray County commissioners Friday his side of a noisy flap that occurred between him and Republican poll watcher Betty Pilcher on election day. The pair were working at the polls at the Horace Mann School when the day-long outbursts would occasionally break into shouting. Pilcher accused Shewmaker of lunging at her, which he denied, but he admitted threatening to throw her out bodily during the course of the day Shewmaker claimed Pilcher harassed the officials from the time the polls opened until they closed. Shewmaker ended by lecturing the county commissioners on election law. (Staff photos by Bruce

Publishers ready to change school texts to suit Texans

By KATHRYN BAKER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The State Board of Education voted Saturday to adopt new textbooks for purchase by Texas public schools in 1983-1984, at a cost of $60.5 million. But a vote on health and civics books, which drew the largest numbers of protests at the textbook hearings this summer, was delayed until January so publishers can change the books to suit the board. The altered texts must be submitted by Dec. 1.

The hearings are an annual battle between publishers who want to make a sale in one of the nation's largest markets, and protesters who use the hearings to air grievances about everything from so-called communism to sexism in the schoolbooks.

Texas is the nation's second biggest schoolbook buyer — California is first - and the Lone Star State's purchases can affect schoolbook marketing nationwide

If a publisher must change a book to sell it to Texas, the changes usually will be included in the book wherever it is sold. And if a book doesn't sell here, often the publisher will decide not to publish it at all.

Even so, the herings might not have risen to such national prominence had it not been for the appearance each year of Norma Gabler, a Longview housewife who, with her husband Mel, has made a career of protesting textbooks that do not uphold what she calls "traditional family values

This year marked Mrs. Gabler's 21st annual appearance before the Texas Textbook Committee, which makes recommendations to the full board.

Mrs. Gabler said after Saturday's vote that she would have to wait and see how publishers rewrite the health and civics books before she could say how successful her efforts have been this The board said it would not endorse the health and civics books until publishers change them. Health book publishers were asked to revise chapters on drug abuse, and civics book publishers were told to include more information about historic documents, such as the Bill of Rights.

Mrs. Gabler, 58, testified that the health books put too much emphasis on legal drugs like liquor, coffee and nicotine and not enough emphasis on the illegality and harmful physical effects of marijuana

Many of her objections to civics books criticized attention to social protest instead of support for the government. She also criticized deletion of states rights advocacy.

The Gablers found themselves at odds this year with a national anti-censorship group which boasts television sit-com producer and "All in the Family" creator Norman Lear as one of its founders. People for the American Way plans to fight the current Texas schoolbook adoption system, because it only allows protests of books under consideration, not demonstrations of support.

"I believe that either through state board action, the Legislature or the courts this process will be changed next year," said Way's Texas coordinator, lawyer Michael Hudson

Hudson said his group did not object to the changes the 24-member board requested in the health and civics books, but said homemaking books were changed to comply with a traditional definition of "family

Panel postpones decision on how to bail out Social Security hoped, but certainly far in excess of what I realistically

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The Social Security reform commission decided Saturday to postpone until next month a showdown on whether it can forge a compromise package of tax hikes and benefit cuts to bail the system out of its financial crisis

But for the first time, liberal Democrats on the panel indicated they are willing to delay next summer's cost-of-living increase for the 36 million Social Security beneficiaries as part of the solution.

rescue plan that would involve a payroll tax hike in 1984 to generate most of the cash to cover the deficit of $150 billion to $200 billion facing the system over the next seven years. All sides on the 15-member panel agreed as they concluded

That move was discussed in private as part of a proposed their 21/2-day meeting that they need to find out whether any single compromise package is palatable to both President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

Appraising the marathon meeting, Alan Greenspan, the chairman, said, "It's come out in total less than I would have The eight Republicans and seven Democrats — including of T. Boone Pickens Jr., and vice versa. It's difficult to "You have to find or acquire oil and gas reserves separate the two and at a reasonable price or you impossible to understand one can't stay in business."

Pickens never wavered from his stated goal to build the best possible company and run it solely in the best interests of the stockholders.

"The goal is to see that our stockholders get a better payoff than anybody else in the industry," he said. To that end, in 1979, he spun off much of Mesa's energy riches into Mesa Royalty Trust, a tax-avoidance vehicle for stockholders that since has been widely copied.

"That's what we're here for and that's who we're working for." said Pickens. "It's not complicated.

Pickens likes things simple and uncomplicated and tends at times to answer questions with a bit more style than substance

"We're very keen about what we're doing," he said in response to a question about his business philosophy.

"Everybody loves to win. At Mesa, it's more than loving to win or wanting to win. We expect to win. We're going to win. It's that simple. It's a tradition.' A $2 - billion company without thousands of employees is almost unheard of, but the Mesa work force totals only 900.

We're an unusual operation," Pickens said with Company officials maintain there is no room for deadwood or a stifling bureaucracy and that a tight chain of command speeds up the decision-making process. Pickens said he was dismayed at high - level delays he saw while working for a major oil company after his graduation from what is now Oklahoma State University. "I couldn't believe it took long as it did to get a decision," he recalled. "I don't like anything delaying my people as far as decisions are concerned

'There really are more than 24 hours in a day if you're well organized, and I do feel Bea and I are." said Pickens.

Unlike his first wife, says Pickens. Bea takes an active interest in her husband's business affairs and is usually at his side when he darts around the country in one of the company's two jets.

The statue, a gift from his employees, portrays Mesa's board chairman in a traditional and characteristic racquetball pose.

Pickens' compulsion for excercise has taken him onto jogging trails around the country and often through New York's Central Park.

He neither insists that workers share his enthusiasm for exercise nor that they use the fitness facilities. But most somehow find time to do so. "The fitness center is a communications tool and a recruiting device," Allan Cecil said. 'And it also brings people together and promotes the team concept.'

In furtherance of the "team concept," Pickens once toyed office and spends hours with the idea of dressing his Whyte, Pickens has provided employes in identical slacks. the newspaper with exclusive blazers skirts and so forth

'I've always been somewhat interested in everybody looking alike." he said, explaining that Hank Iba used the concept rather effectively to build basketball powerhouses at Oklahoma A&M, now Oklahoma State.

"We talked about it here as late as two years ago but turned it down when we looked at the cost," he said.

Although some of Pickens' paternalistic tendencies draw criticism it is probably true that one should not argue too vehemently against success.

"I tell our employees if they are not happy at Mesa they should go someplace else and be happy," he says with a trace of defiance.

'I can't imagine getting up in the morning and not looking forward to going to work. When it ceases to be fun, count me out.

"I tell our people to look act and work like pros, and they'll be paid like pros.'

He said he likes to think of himself as "firm but fair" and hopes others concur. Friends and foes

Not everybody does, but even the few who admit they don't like the man say they admire him for any number of reasons, the most frequently mentioned being his success.

"He's got a lot of enemies. and he's far better at making deals than finding oil," said an independent oilman who didn't want his name used. "But I admire the guy.

"A good geologist hits one or maybe two major fields in a lifetime...Look at what Boone's done. It's remarkable.

One of the few people to talk openly about Pickens, and permit his name to be used, was James Whyte, publisher of the Amarillo Globe-News. And even he found Pickens to be a paradox.

"He's been a real Jekyll-and-Hyde with me," said Whyte, who believes it was Pickens who blocked his appointment to the board of wealth and modest fame. Tie undone, collar open and shoes discarded, he seemed not at all ruthless or paranoid but did indeed, as Texas Monthly suggested, show a striking resemblance to Jimmy Carter, a comparison he found "odious."

After a stunningly healthy dinner featuring a cheese souffle and white wine, Pickens allowed as how he may have inherited moderation from his mother and grandmother and his gambling, competitive spirit from his father, a retired

The Great Pyramid

At this moment, a group of serious-minded people are trying desperately to see if there isn't some way most of us can receive some government money to help us in our old ages. And they're not doing very well so far

This government money has been called Social Security in the past, but today it is neither social, nor is it at all secure, and we had better not count on seeing any of it.

The government has, since 1937. been playing the big Pyramid Scheme with Social Security money. and it is now time to pay the piper and we can't. When you have 10.000 workers paying in. and only 100 retired people drawing it out, it works just fine. The many take care of the few. That was about the situation when Social Security began. But then, a number of factors combined to change things.

More and more, machinery is taking over jobs that human beings used to have. Add that to people living longer these days due to greater education and medical breakthroughs, and a picture begins

Now add a dash of decreasing birthrate, and dump in a glob of politicians messing with the original

The politicians' role in this is what brought the Pyramid Scheme to its ees this soon but it would have been doomed eventually. There simply will not be enough income to take care of the outgo. Period.

But what the politicians did was to see before them. in the early days. a huge mass of money coming in, and very little of it going out to the comparatively few pensioners. This was too much of a temptation, so they found other uses for the money. They began paying people who were disabled, imprisoned, and widowed. They began paying people from this fund who weren't even citizens and who hadn't paid into it themselves. People began thinking in terms of retirement income, even though it was never intended to be that way. The original intent was that this would be a small supplementary income to the working person's savings or company pension plan. A little something extra to make life a little easier. But many people did not plan for retirement, and found themselves with only Social Security to live on, and began complaining to Congress they simply couldn't live with the monthly pittance they received in the mail. So Congressmen upped the benefits. because who wouldn't want to help old people?

Berry's World

Every corner that was turned, they found another needy group to pay. therefore increasing their own stock with certain voting blocks at the same time.

And now it's gone.

The tough part of it comes in our own thinking. When we took out our Social Security cards when we got that first job washing dishes or boxing groceries. we began to believe in the Great Pyramid. We knew in the back of our minds that. no matter what happened to us, all we had to do was live long-enough to be 65. and They would send us a check each month and we'd just go fishing and swat flies for the rest of

have to come up with something creative to take care of our sunset years now, because it's gone, and it won't be back

Oh, they'll cut the benefits way down, and they'll raise the Social Security taxes way up. but there is no way we'll ever see even the pitiful payments our senior citizens are now

We'll have to look to ourselves for a future helping hand, and maybe that's what has been needed all along. Because the Great Pyramid Scheme has run it's course, and as usual, we're left to pay the tab.

Caring for customers

By ROBERT WALTERS

DENVER (NEA) - The centerpiece of the superbly prepared meal was a main course consisting of crisp broccoli covered with tasty slices of ham and turkey breast, then topped with a tangy cheddar cheese sauce

The other courses were equally delicious, the service was faultless and each place setting naturally included the requisite china, silverware and cloth napkin.

The meal merits recounting because it was served not in an expensive restaurant but in the coach section of a commercial airliner enroute here from Sioux Falls, S.D.

As most regular air travelers know. virtually all of the nation's airlines long ago abandoned china and silverware in favor of cheap plastic substitutes, while flimsy paper napkins have become the successor to classier cloth.

As for the food, the main course invariably deserves the "mystery meat" appellation coined by college But now we know better. We'll students to describe unidentifiable institutional food so thoroughly devoid of any appealing qualities that it has the texture, flavor and appearance of processed cardboard

Those rules don't apply, however on Frontier Airlines, the Denver - based carrier on whose flight the meal described above was served. Indeed, Frontier has a revolutionary approach to serving its passengers - it really tries to please them.

'Seat pitch,'' a technical term describing the space between seats, is so generous on Frontier that coach passengers can comfortably cross their legs - a maneuver that is a gymnastic feat on other carriers determined to cram the maximum number of seats into the passenger cabin

The Frontier experience is worth noting because it is unique in a travel industry where hotel and motel chains, airlines and rental car companies insistently proclaim their purported desire to pamper and coddle their customers when, in fact, they often are a source of frustration and aggravation for weary travelers.

Industry advertisements regularly portray airline flight attendants as letter - day genies just emerged from their bottles and anxious to grant their passengers' every wish.

In fact, the country's major airlines -United, American and TWA - and most of the regional carriers run glorified cattle car operations in which flight attendants perform required services in a ritualistic fashion and make little effort to hide their displeasure when called upon to provide additional assistance.

promote themselves as fervently dedicated to their customers' comfort and convenience. Howard Johnson's actually claims to be a surrogate for every traveler's mother.

But the rental car companies specialize in selling unnecessary insurance and concocting rate schedules so cluttered with variations, discounts and extra charges that the advertised price is almost never what the customer pays.

The biggest hotel chains - notably Hilton and Sheraton - too often resemble warehouses in which inefficient, impersonal service is a hallmark, while the major motel chains the hotels, Marriott comes closest to caring about its customers while the La Quinta Inn motel chain has become what one trade magazine describes as "the talk of the industry" because it provides business travelers with superior accommodations and gracious service at reasonable rates. La Quinta's secret is "concentrating on keeping... our guests happy."

Similarly, Frontier spokesman Bob Schulman says his airline strives to "give passengers better service than they expect, tell people the truth and run on time.

It's probably no coincidence that La Quinta's occupancy rate and Frontier's 'load factor' (the percentage of passenger seats filled) are substantially above industry averages.

Moreover, both have been very profitable in recent years while many other firms serving travelers have experienced financial difficulties. Perhaps they have a message for the companies which have forgotten about their customers

Our election endorsements

By ART BUCHWALD

It is now time for this column to endorse certain political candidates for public office. We have studied all the issues and arrived at our conclusions by not only comparing who our choices are running against, buy how they stack up to what we've got already.

For U.S. Senator — Plato Syracuse We support Plato because he was the only political candidate this year who did not have his picture taken with an unemployed automoblie worker. When this was pointed out by his opponent in their final debate, Syracuse defended himself by saying, "I couldn't do anything to get the man his job back, and he knew it and I knew it, so why use up a lot of my time for a lousy two minutes on the evening news?'

For Congress - Walter Rosebud. Our reason for choosing Rosebud over his opponent is that Rosebud, although a multimillionaire, refused to use a cent of his own money to finance his election. He was quoted on "Meet the Press" as saying, "I worked hard for my fortune, and I hve no intention of blowing it on an election when I can get 13 percent on tax - exempt municipal bonds. If the special interest political action committees don't want to buy my vote, then I don't think I want the

For Governor - Hayden Dunkerman. This was a tough choice because Dunkerman's opponent has a much prettier wife. But Dunkerman has two more children than his rival.

Dunkerman also was an all - state running back in college, while his opponent, because of a bad knee, wouldn't go out for the team. Dunkerman's other qualification for making a better governor is that, in his state, which has a 20 percent Hispanic population, his whole family professes to be crazy about Mexican food

For Lt. Governor - Ramsay Wilder gets our nod. Wilder disagrees with almost every stand Hayden Dunkerman, the man we support for governor, has taken. Therefore, since neither one of them could work together, it's doubtful that Dunkerman would dare leave the state during his four years in office. Although Wilder has no executive experience, we still endorse him because a lieutenant governor doesn't need any for this nothing job.

For State Attorney General — Dallas Reisling would probably make a better attorney general than Arnie Burchett. He has been more forthright in answering the tough questions posed to him by the media. Last week in a televised debate with WTWIT's hard hitting Reg Smiley as moderator, Dallas was asked where he stood on the death penalty and he replied, "It's none of your damn business." Smiley's follow - up question on how Dallas would deal with white - collar crime brought this response: "I didn't come here to discuss my personal life.' Smiley then tired to pin Dallas down on what stand he would take on prayer in public schools. Dallas replied, "I have made it a rule never to talk about the Constitution when appearing on For making Smiley look like a fool, we have to endorse Reisling over Arnie Burchett, whose make - up on the show made him look terrible.

For Mayor - the incumbent, Charles Bledsoe, has done a good job and deserves another term. The fact that he gave the garbage contract for the city to his brother - in - law, and received a free trip to Tokyo from the company who sold the city 200 buses that have been recalled for faulty brakes, does not detract from our opinion that Bledsoe is probably one of the most popular machine mayors the city has ever had. We endorse Bledsoe because he is beholden to no one, thanks to a blind trust fund in the Bahamas set up by his close friends in the school contracting business.

For City Council President - Sarah Evans gets our overwhelming endorsement, because she's a woman. As for the various propositions on the ballot: We favor all the off - numbered ones and are against the even ones, with the exception of Proposition 82, which reads, "The people of this state believe that in the event of a nuclear attack no alternate parking will be permitted at ground zero."

GOP loss worse than it looks

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) -For many political profesthe high-level planners and image makers Election Day is, paradoxically, a day of rest: They've done their job, and now it's time to wait for the voters' verdict. Election Day is a time to rest up - often over very-liquid lunches - for the long night ahead, and, above all, a time for predictions. This year, their pre dictions often clashed with what the polls indicated, contributing to a state of confusion.

Political professionals have come to rely strongly on polling; some would say they rely on it too heavily But polling is a fact of life and most campaigns are now run and modified, or perhaps not run at all, depending upon what the polls say.

However, these planners rely even more heavily on gut instinct, and most say that a reliable gut instinct is what separates the successful professional from the unsuccessful. This time around, the professionals' instincts were at variance with the polling data, resulting in some widely differing Election Day forecasts.

Most of the polling data said that the Democratic gain would be slightly greater than average for a midterm election, but nothing really extraordinary: a gain of a Senate seat or two and a House gain of somewhere between 18 and 25 seats. In other words, it would be a respectable Democratic showing, but far from a landslide.

But at the same time, most of the professionals in both parties strongly believed that the GOP would suffer a resounding loss. Their instincts said that the House losses could range up to 40 seats and that the Democrats might be able to recapture the Senate. That is why the day's pre dictions varied so greatly. On the GOP side, consultant Roger Ailes went with his instincts and predicted a 32seat Democratic House gain. Charles Manatt, the Democratic national chairman, went with the polling data and predicted only a same gain predicted by his GOP counterpart, Richard

The actual outcome was about in the middle. At least in the House, the Democrats gained more seats than the polling data implied However, this did not amount to the 30-plus-seat blowout that many had believed possible

But the professionals do not analyze the results simply by counting wins and losses, and most have concluded that the GOP did far worse than the win-loss tally indicates. In fact, with only a modest shift in voter support, Campaign '82 could well have turned into the disaster for the GOP that many believed possible. For example, the margin of victory by which incum-bent Republicans were returned to the Senate was extremely low - an average of less than 3 percent. Only two GOP incumbents. Dick Lugar of Indiana and John Heinz of Pennsylvania, were able to amass more than 60 percent of the vote. On the House side, the professionals look not just at the totals, but at contested races and those in which no incumbent is running. Of the 435 House contests, the preelection consensus was that 199 were safe Democratic seats, while 126 were safe GOP seats. Therefore, as far as the professionals were concerned, there were 110 contested House races. (There were some upsets in safe districts on both sides. but these are regarded almost as anomalies that tend to even out.)

Of the 110 contested races - with one still to be determined in a postponed Georg-Republicans won 36 while Democrats captured 73. At the same time, there were 57 House races in which no incumbent was running. Of these 57 districts, 22 are currently Democratic, 17 are Republican and 18 are newly creat-

Democrats took 35 of non-incumbent these districts, while Republicans took 22. But more important than the overall totals is the fact that the Republicans captured only six of the 18 new districts, although all of these districts were in traditional GOP strongholds, the Sun Belt and the West. Moreover, in one contested House race after another, as in the Senate races, GOP margins of victory were very small - a few percentage points at most.

Navy officer just getting his land legs

DALLAS (AP) - After 30 years at sea, Rear Adm. Jackson Parker say he's just now beginning to like a desk job. He's in charge of keeping the Navy's Atlantic Fleet battle ready

"That sort of makes me 'the old man and the sea', Parker said Thursday of his long naval tenure.

He was in Dallas for a Veterans Day speech to the Salesmanship Club.

Parker joined the U.S. Navy as a seaman recruit in 1942 a month after the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. He intended to stay at least 20 years in the service, but his goals were

"I intended to stay for a full career," he said. "I hoped I'd be a second class petty officer.

That would have made him the equivalent of a sergeant in the Army. But instead, he is probably the only admiral to have held every rank in the Navy, except of the two ranks above him, vice admiral and admiral, he said.

Navy publicists call him the 'best known 'tin can sailor' because in his 40-year career. all but 10 years have been spent at sea. All but 15 were spent on destroyers, "tin cans," as sailors call them.

He has seen action in nearly every major operation or landing the Atlantic Fleet has made since he joined the Navy. He handled river operations in Vietnam for a year, and commanded two destroyers and later two 16-ship destroyer squardrons. until the Navy ordered him ashore two years ago.

"I'm beginning to like the land," he said. "Just now.

Parker is now in Norfolk. Va., in charge of readiness and resources for the 250-ship Atlantic Fleet and speaks to civic groups about what he sees as a increasing Soviet military threat.

The military "is the underpinning of political negotiating in a dangerous world," he told the Veterans' Day gathering.

We must have superiority. Not equality. Not parity. Superiority," he said

AP Drama Writer NEW YORK (AP) - Most Broadway musicals used to have books containing such things as plot and characters. Musicals like "The Pajama Game," "Damn Yankees" and "Coco" - all produced by Frederick Brisson.

He agrees there's been a spate of book-less musicals, revues like "Sophisticated Ladies," "Pump Boys and Dinettes" and, earlier, "Ain't Misbehavin.' "He also thinks good librettists are scarce nowadays.

"They're so few and far between," says the Broadway veteran, a tall, elegant man btn 65 years ago in Denmark, the son of a famous actor who raised him in theater in continental Europe and England.

'Who would you get today to write a libretto?" he asks, regret in his voice9 "The people who used to write the book, there used to be dozens of them. But

Be that as it may, Brisson, producer of 21 Broadway musicals and plays to date, has a new musical — with book — coming to town in May. It's "Dance a Little Closer," based on Robert Sherwood's antiwar play, "Idiot's Delight."

And despite his worries about the librettist shortage, he's managed to find a pretty fair one to write the book and lyrics - Alan J. Lerner of "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot" fame. Lerner also is making his directing debut with "Dance," the music by "Annie" tunesmith Charles Strouse.

He isn't overly alarmed that revue musicals now seem in vogue. After all, he notes, trends come and go, and "I don't think book musicals are becoming extinct. That's why Alan and I wanted to do this Brisson, who last worked with Lerner in 1969 on "Coco," smiles. "We belong to an older generation, don't we? The Old Guard.

Tube talk: accents and actors

By JERRY BUCK

AP Television Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) - When it came time for actor Charles Haid's final paper for a speech class in college, he submitted an audio tape instead of a written paper.

"I made a tape of regional accents because I couldn't write it phonetically," he said. "I went on a tour of the country and did as many regional accents as I could.

That experience at Carnegie-Mellon University — Carnegie Tech when he was there - has been put to use by Haid in such roles as Andy "Cowboy" Renko in NBC's "Hill Street Blues" and in such movies as "Altered States."

"Renko is a rural transplant from Appalachia," he said. "You see a lot of people in Detroit and Chicago with that accent. In 'Altered States' I spoke with a much broader, educated accent.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) -Poor Gordon John Sinclair. He came over to America from Scotland to promote his delightful movie, "Gregory's Girl," and he didn't even see one gunfight on the street. That, you see, is the biggest surprise young Sinclair has found in America. No gunfights. "All we read about in Scotland are your gunfights," he says. "I've been surprised to find you have very normal people here. I expected to see Starsky and Hutch and such. I've not seen one gunfight." The tall, gangling actor did expect to find marvelous stores carrying marvelous, unexpected treats. And he found that the treats were even more unexpected than he had expected. When he talked about his shopping he had to go to his closet to drag out the coat he had bought, which he modeled proudly It was a huge thing double- or maybe even triple-breasted, very long, very lush. Nobody in America would wear such a coat. A tourist coat. He bought it and was proud of it, and says it will really stop traffic in Glasgow.

"Gregory's Girl," the product of Scottish director Bill Forsyth, is the first Scottish-made film to make an international impact. Sinclair says they were surprised it was well received in England, let alone the United States. He says they expected nothing at all from the United States, and it is doing respectably well here.

It's his first, as an actor. He may do more. "I'd like to try to make acting my life's work," he Does he worry about his Scottish accent hampering

"I'm going to start voice training soon," he says, "but I would be happy playing Scotsmen all my life. It's only the English who don't like to hear the Scottish accent.

GARY KINDER'S book, 'Victim," may turn out to be one of 1983's big movies - if they get the cast they are angling for.

"Victim" is a grim book about a grim crime. There was a mass murder in Ogden, Utah, in 1974, and Kinder has chosen to write about that event, with the emphasis on one of the survivors. A boy named Cortney Naisbitt, then 16, survived, although badly injured, and is still recovering eight years later.
Naisbitt is the "victim" of the title. And producer the rights to the book, wants Timothy Hutton to play that part. "It's funny," says Kinder.

"I've always thought of Timothy Hutton as Cortney, since I saw him in 'Ordinary People.' There is a distinct physical resemblance

Newman to play the part of Cortney's father, a doctor, who figures prominently in the story. And both Hutton and Newman are currently supposed to be awaiting a finished script before mak-

Mennonites overcome obstacles in West Texas

By RANDALL HACKLEY Associated Press Writer SEMINOLE, Texas (AP) -Some 1,300 Mennonite emigrants now claim this dusty West Texas town as home, double what it was three years ago when a special Congressional act allowed 653 members of the religious sect to be admitted

The black-garbed group has doubled in size since the August peso devaluation halved their Mexican farming colony's income in Chihuahua, forcing about 100 families to trek to this cotton-rich county in hopes of finding work and solace with fellow emigres, says former Seminole mayor Bob Clark.

from Mexico and Canada as American citizens.

But while most Seminole citizens welcome the Mennonites, saying they work hard and that "America needs more like them," the greeting has been tempered by acts such as the painting of a garbage can outside one of the sect's schools. It reads: "Go home, Mennonites!"

The graffiti-emblazoned trash bin near one of three Mennonite schools in this community of 6,000 is a crude reminder that sect members are considered foreigners, says teacher John Friesen. 'Some don't like us," Friesen said. Others who have seen the devout Mennonites work and pray beg to differ.

They're an impressive lot industrious and good-hearted. America would benefit by having more like them," says motel manager Shari McDade.

As industrious as the sect seems, they started out in Texas three years ago under a cloud of misfortune and financial duress.

The reclusive religious sect, 600,000-strong worldwide, took a colony of members from Chihuahua 300 miles south of El Paso, Texas - and Winnepeg. Canada, and decided to settle in a newer, more benevolent climate. Some members claimed the Mexican government harassed their dairy and honey bee business ventures. Others professed of a weariness of Canadian rights, the group's financial winters.

Under Bishop Henry Reimer, they settled in the spring of 1979 in the windswept West Texas plains near Seminole. The group pooled their resources and deposited $455,000 as downpayment on a $1.7 million, 6,400-acre ranch outside Seminole

The reason? The Rev. Reimer was told by real estate agents if the Mennonites bought land in Texas, they would be guaranteed permanent American citizenship. The U.S. government told them after the sale, however, that buying land was no guarantee of citizenry.

Further, the group was ordered to leave the country within 60 days because their visas had expired. To deepen the Mennonite's misery, water rights to irrigate their land for a cotton crop belonged to an oil company.

Today, Seminole bustles with busy Mennonites. Some are visible in their traditional black garb. Others are blending in slowly, wearing blue jeans and driving American pickup trucks. In the past. Mennonites avoided all modern amenities.

DEER MEAT QUALITY Deer hunters will soon be bringing home a lot of venison, and its quality depends a lot on how the deer carcass is handled The entire process of handling the carcass from field to table can add or detract from the desirability of the final product. The hunter plays an important role in determining whether a deer steak is tender and tasty or tough and bad - flavored.

The recommendations are offered for hunters to help improve the quality of venison they bring home.

1. Whenever a choice is available, select a female animal for less flavor intensity (gaminess). This does not mean that male animals provide undesirable meat, but less intense flavor of the female 2. Whenever possible place the shot in the neck or head to insure a clean, rapid kill. This prevents post - shot stress and also reduces tissue damage considerably.

3. Field dress the animal as soon as possible. If contents of the intestine or paunch have been spilled, rinse the carcass with water. A publication, L - 634, entitled "Field Dressing Big Game" is available from the county Extension office and provides more

4. When weather permits, leave the skin on the carcass to help conserve moisture. However, a little common sense dictates that carcasses should be skinned and covered with a fly proof bag in hot weather if a cooler is not accessible. Also, a male in the rut may have a strong urine odor on the hind legs and probably should be skinned prior to storage.

5. If the family prefers a somewhat more intense flavor which is similar to aged beef. hang the carcass in a locker for about a week before final processing. Again, common sense dictates storage in a clean locker which Accidents with firearms don't just happen. They are caused by ignorance, carelessness or disregard for safety rules.

Oklahoma farm income lowest in nation

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new Agriculture Department report says net farm income in Oklahoma last year sank to an average of $14 per farm, the lowest of any state in the nation. In 1980, the average Oklahoma farm netted $5,460. And in 1979 - one of the peak years — the average climbed to $8,709 per farm.

The figures by the department's Economic Research Service shows a scattered pattern. Some states gained while others declined sharply.

Oklahoma was exceeded at the bottom of the heap by: Montana, $32 last year, $1,687 in 1980 and $4,133 in 1979; West Virginia, $43 last year, $38 in 1980 and $965 in 1979; and New Mexico, $71 last year, $19,560 in 1980 and $10,993 in 1979.

All other states showed 1981 net income per farm at levels over $100, with most in the thousands of dollars.

And the most colorful touch will be the re-enactment of the mock wedding of Mr. Oklahoma Territory and Miss Indian Territory, which 75 years ago symbolized their union into one state.

In between will be a repeat of the swearing in of the new state governor on that November day so many years ago; an inaugural parade featuring turn-of-the-century carriages, school bands and mounted units from the U.S. Army, and a football game.

Representing the Confederate veterans who marched in that first parade will be members of the Sons of the Confederacy. One unit missing, however, will be the approximately 125 members of the Anti-Horse Thief Organization who, as one contemporary newspaper reported,

Growth was rapid, from tents to wooden buildings and then to the lavish brick and native sandstone that predominate today. It was so fast, in fact, that Guthrie was essentially complete 15 years after the land run and virtually stopped in 1910 when the capital was moved to Oklahoma City, leading one writer to term it "a city with a great future behind it."

But the glory was there for Old records show that, in 1907, the carriages in the inaugural parade were followed by Tonkawa cadets, Union and Confederate soldiers, bands from El Reno, Stroud and Oklahoma City, Spanish-American War veterans, the chiefs of the Five Civilized Tribes and those stout members of the Anti-Horse Thief

Organization. A newspaper of that period reported that the "rear guard" of the parade included a Red Cross organization and "two rapid-firing machine guns."

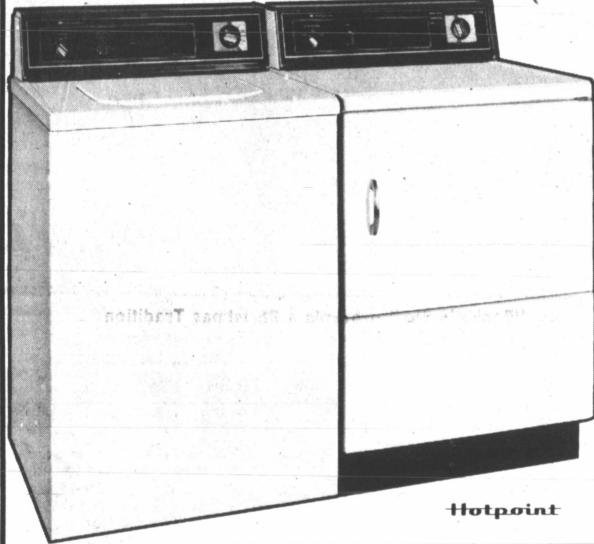

Bands invited to participate in the 1982 parade are from Stroud El Reno and Nowata. The Army's horse-drawn Half-Section from Fort Sill and the Mounted Cavalry Unit from Fort Hood, Texas, also are to take part.

The menu then for the 14,000 celebrants, in addition to barbecued beef, was pickles, bread, coffee - and, if one reads carefully between the lines - a little harder liquid refreshment.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A teacher shortage is so great in Louisiana that many schools have been forced to send recruiters on raiding parties deep into other states sometimes as far away as as Michigan and Ohio.

"We experienced more shortages for this school year than any in memory," said Jacqueline C. Lewis, director of the state's Bureau of Higher Education and Teacher Certification. A report last month showed things are so bad that most systems had to use some non-certified teachers to keep their classrooms going.

Of the state's 45,000 public school teachers, 834 are not certified this year - up from 619 a year ago. This year's total is a 41 percent increase from 1980 when the state first started monitoring the shortage.

Without certification, a teacher cannot be hired permanently, and, with too many uncertified teachers, a school could lose its accreditation.

Since there is no statewide recruitment program, each of the state's 66 systems must handle its own hiring. The major needs this year were special education and lower elementary

The major problem is that statewide in our teacher colleges, enrollment is down 50 percent from what it was five years ago," said Harold Smith, who handles teacher hiring for Iberia Parish.

Like several other parishes, Iberia has started a special out-of-state recruiting program.

Smith traveled to Texas in 1981 and to Mississippi the last two years to try to fill vacancies in his parish-wide system. From the trips, he eventually hired two teachers from Texas and about two dozen from Mississippi.

Nonetheless, the system is using 37 non-certified teachers this year, according to a state report.

In the past two years, St. Mary Parish along the Gulf coast has brought in about 100 teachers from out of state. That recruitment program includes contacting teacher colleges in

In New Orleans, Olympia Boucree said she made recruiting forays into 20 out-of-state universities and colleges to fill over 100 teaching vacancies this year.

She went to Florida, Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Eleven of the district's new teachers are from

"We had real good success in both Mississippi and Michigan," said Simeon Marcott, personnel administrator for the Acadia Parish School Board.

Marcott made three trips to Michigan and Mississippi. He got about 35 new teachers there

"Our selling program was to list our benefits package, the salary schedule - which was comparable to what is being paid in Michigan and a lot higher than what they could get in Mississippi," said Marcott. He said the Louisiana climate and life style also attracted

"The ones who decided to come have been pretty happy with that decision," said Marcott. "At least that is what they've been telling me. Educators say a number of factors have led to the shortage of teachers and the need to hunt out of state, but the one most often cited is the 1979 state law requiring passage of the National Teachers Exam to gain certification.

Prior to the NTE requirement, any graduate of a teacher education program in the state could gain certification by requesting it.

In the last couple of years, fewer potential teachers from state schools are even taking the test.

For example the figures for the last regular semester show that of 58 graduates of Southern University-Baton Rouge, only five took the test. Three passed.

"We turned to out-of-state recruiting because - pure and simple — there is a teacher shortage in Louisiana," said Ms. Boucree of New Orleans. "And there is a certain reluctance for teachers to come to certain part of the state."

Rural parishes - such as Vernon, Red River and Plaquemines - are among the systems that have had problems attracting and keeping young teachers.

Even if a teacher is certified in another state, he or she must pass the NTE to get Louisiana certification, and some experienced teachers don't want to gamble and give up their jobs. The system's recruitment programs have concentrated on those just coming out of college.

St. Mary Parish, which historically has had a tough time attracting teachers because of its location, has concentrated its efforts on new graduates and has been pleased with the

'Going out of state definitely has been good for our system," said Cyrus Provost, assistant superintendent for personnel in St. Mary. "It gives us a chance to be much more selective."

He said 82 percent of the out-of-state teachers joining the system a year ago stayed on this year. In most cases, the teachers took the NTE during the school year and passed, gaining certification.

In most systems, the out-of-state teachers are hired at the same salary level as certified teachers and have one year to attain certification fabled muggy summers and snarled mass transit probably will combine to disqualify the Texas city from consideration as the site for the 1984 Democratic National Convention, a Texas member of the site selection committee says.

"I really hate going to Calcutta in July," quipped Miller Bruner of Grand Prairie.

'The logistics are just impossible," she said. "The hotels are spread out all over town. The mass transit is bad. I think the whole thing would be a disaster. Dallas will host the Republican presidential nominating session.

San Francisco has been reported as having the best shot at landing the Democrats' convention because it is the choice of Los Angeles lawyer Charles Manatt, chairman of the Democratic National Party.

Los Angeles had been mentioned as a possible site but was eliminated because it is also hosting the 1984 Summer Olympics, said Robert Neuman, communications director for the Democratic National Committee

Texas officials connected with the selection of the July convention say Manatt's influence will outweigh any of the Lone Star State's

"San Francisco is most likely if Los Angeles is not, because Manatt wants to have it in California." Texas Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Slagle agreed with Ms. Bruner, the only Texan named to the 26-member selection committee, that Houston "would be a tough place to have a national convention.'

Other cities sent lengthy questionnaires were Miami, Detroit, Chicago, New York and New Orleans, he said.

"The hotels, because of Houston's lack of planning and zoning, are scattered all over the world," Slagle said. "And they really don't have a good transportation system that's inexpensive for delegates."

Texas party leaders said they feared the national convention, if held in Houston, would detract energies from the 1984 state campaigns, and might not be worth the risk to the state's reputation if something should

"Who do they blame?" one party official asked. "They don't blame the national committee. They blame the host state. You can come out of it really bad and get burned. Why take a chance on that?'

Players asking strike talks resume soon

NEW YORK (AP) - Declaring that management is feeling the pressure of eight weeks without games, Ed Garvey, executive director of the striking National Football League Players Association, has called again for a return to the bargaining table in the 54-day-old walkout.

"Their media blitz shows they're really feeling the pressure," said Garvey. "The time is right financially and from the standpoint of weather ... from every consideration to get back to the table. It's time to resolve this now.

Garvey, whose bid for a resumption of talks was rejected Thursday by Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the NFL owners, said: "If the networks had not underwritten the strike, it would have been over by now. The Board of Representatives is ready to compromise. It's time to get back to the table for that Garvey returned to Washington following a Friday press conference in which he said management's attempt to sell its last proposal for a settlement to the players directly by going over the head of the union had failed.

To prove that, the union paraded in 20 players who testified that their clubs had either rejected or refused to even consider the proposal. San Francisco and Philadelphia sent word of their support to be delivered by other players. Missing were representatives of Houston, Dallas, New Orleans and Denver — all of whom have accepted the offer in principle with various changes — and Atlanta and St. Louis.

Tom Condon of the Kansas City Chiefs, a member of the union's executive board, said his team was not interested in the settlement offer.

Borger threatened to score again in the waning minutes of the second quarter. After taking posession on his own 20

Borger scored its third touchdown of the game with 3:32 left in the third quarter on a nine yard run by Junior Bowie. Bowie's attempted conversion kick was blocked and Borger settled back with a comfortable 20 - 7 lead.

Once again, Junior Bowie's point - after kick was good to allow the Bulldogs a 27 - 7 lead, which was to become the final score. Pampa's only real threat of the second half followed on their possession immediately following Borger's touchdown. After a 42-yard kick-off return by Gregg Mitchell, Randy Skaggs put his squad to work, moving the ball 33 yards up to the Borger 20 yard line, unfortunately, the Pampa drive bogged down and the Harvesters gave the ball up on downs three plays later.

SMU still unbeaten after Tech battle LUBBOCK, Texas (AP)- Southern

Methodist's Jones Stadium jinx died here Saturday on a trick play by the Mustangs with four seconds left.

Bobby Leach's 91-yard kickoff return for a touchdown after an across the field lateral from Blane Smith kept the No. 2-ranked Mustangs unbeaten and untied with a madcap 34-27 Southwest Conference victory over the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

"It's a miracle ... it's a miracle," Leach said. "I can't believe it

Smith bobbled the kickoff after Tech had tied the score on a field goal with 17 seconds to play. He then picked it up with a horde of Red Raiders bearing down on him and whipped the ball near the sidelines for the waiting Leach, a 9.5 sprinter. Leach, who caught the ball on a bounce, followed a wall of blockers and scored without being touched.

Sayers has a cure for those NFL blues...

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Gale Sayers, one of football's most exciting ball carriers whose shifty legs carried him into the Hall of Fame, thinks an uprising from the grass root ranks is the only solution for the stalemated strike in the National Football League.

"I don't think most of the players know what's going on," the former University of Kansas and Chicago Bears running back says. "The union is giving them information piecemeal. "I think it's a shame. The players are getting hurt worst of all. They have families, babies to feed, mortgage payments to be paid. There's a lot of money on the table. It seems to me the owners have made a decent offer.

"I think players should demand that they be heard instead of leaving it up to Ed Garvey and the union reps. I'm not sure all of them are getting the right picture."

Even as Sayers spoke, player solidarity behind Garvey, the executive director of the NFL Players Association, was beginning to develop cracks. With the New Orleans Saints leading the way, many players back home were showing increased impatience.

'Hey, let's take another look at the owners' offer," they seemed to be saying. "With a little revision here and there, we think we could live with it.

Garvey, meanwhile. maintained that his lines were holding firm in their opposition to the management figures on the Sayers, who recently ended a five-year tenure as athletic director at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, was in New York pursuing his new career as a marketing director for Skil Power Tools, a Chicago-based company.

"I enjoy the academic atmosphere," said Sayers, who formerly served as assistant athletic director at Kansas. "But I felt I had to

"I miss trying to steer kids in the right direction. Most of them think all they have to do is concentrate on sports and they'll have their lives cut out for them for 10 or 15 years.

Up Close

By MARY COUSINS Skellytown Reporter

November 11, 1918. The armistice was signed. World War I, the "war to end all wars", was over.

John Joseph Kramer could again start on the trail that led him to Skellytown.

-Kramer was a sergeant in the German Army of Kaiser Wilhelm, Emperor William II of Germany, a recipient of the Iron Cross for gallantry in action, and a prisoner of the United States Expeditionary Forces, in Tours, France. With the end of the fighting, he was free to could get on with his life's plans.

Kramer was born November 27, 1895, in Pallein, Germany, to Corporal and Mrs. John Kramer. He left school after the eighth grade because high school was too expensive. In his studies he had learned about the United States. He dreamed about the day when he could "go across the ocean" to join his Uncle Joe, who had gone to Nebraska before John was born.

But Kramer's dream was laid aside when Germany declared war on the allies in August, 1914. Eighteen-year-old Kramer was drafted into the army on October 27, 1914. He fought against the allied forces in Alsace Lorraine, the Vogesen Forest, and the oil fields of umania, through early 1917.

Then he was sent to Flandon, Belgium, where he encountered the British forces. Kramer, who had been promoted to corporal, said the fighting was very hard.
"This was a tough area of fighting. We were dug into our trenches when the English attacked. They really let us have it by throwing hand grenades at us.'

It was "Sergeant" John Kramer who was transferred to the Eastern front to fight the Russians. From there he went to Brancourt, France, to fight the Americans. The United States had declared war against Germany on April 6, 1917. Kramer remembers saying at the time, "We're going to win so many battles that we'll lose the war.

Under the leadership of General Paul von Hindenburg, Chief of the Army General Staff, the Germans established the famous "Hindenburg Line", a system of trenches across

On October 8, 1918, the Allied armies broke through the Hindenburg Line, and Sergeant Kramer was captured by the

He was interned in an English prisoner of war camp first,

A long road

"Except for the first seven weeks, the prison conditions were livable," he said. Neither the American guards nor the German prisoners had anything to eat. Everyone slept in tents on the ground.

"Christmas Day was extremely bleak without any food," he recalled. He was released from the prison camp and returned to Koblenz, Germany, on November 30, 1919.

Four years later, on April 27, 1923, Kramer took the first step towards realizing his dream. He set sail on the Royal Mail Line for the United States, where he landed at Ellis Island on May 9, 1923.

Kramer first applied for his American citizenship on December 7, 1923, in Nelson, Nebraska. He said the happiest day of his life was September 15, 1936, when, in Potter County, Texas, Kramer officially became a citizen of the United States of America.

Kramer moved to Skellytown in 1927. He married Stella Owens on August 9, 1930. They had two boys, O.M. Kramer and Johnny Kramer, and two girls, Mary Jo Kramer Terry and Annie Marie Kramer. They have 11 grandchildren and 6 great - grandchildren, including Amanda Gail Strickland, born October 27, 1982.

Kramer worked for Northern Natural Gas Company until

This gentle, five-foot-five-inch man, who accomplished his childhood dream, coming to the United States, could be the most patriotic citizen in Skellytown. He flies the Stars and Stripes, which he loves dearly, on every holiday. In fact it can be seen flying from his flagpole high in the wind almost every day. A civic minded individual, Kramer served as an alderman on the Skellytown city council for more than 13

John Kramer has never returned to his native Germany. This past May, his grandson, Rick Terry, and wife, Patty, toured Europe. They visited Kramer's relatives, who still live in the same house where John Joseph Kramer was born. But Kramer enjoys showing the pictures taken by his grandson and sharing some memories of his homeland.

Dear Abby

Stepkids need love, too!

DEAR ABBY Last year my husband, our child and I received Christmas gifts from my husband's sister who lives in another state. She sent nothing for our two other children who are mine from a previous marriage. These children (I'll call them Sally and Bob) are teen-agers who are very fond of this step-aunt and would be hurt if they had known about this. I hid the gifts until Sally and Bob left to visit their father for the Christmas holidays.

Abby, most stepchildren have a hard enough "row to hoe" without being slighted by the step-family. Their need for tangible proof of affection and acceptance by the stepfamily may be even greater than that of the natural children due to their awkward status.

My purpose in writing this is not to chastise, but to plead with step-families to remember these children along with the natural children of the family when it comes to gift giving and other acts of kindness. I'm sure it will make them happier, and I know of at least one parent who would very much appreciate it. I'm certain that there are countless other parents who would feel the same way. HURTING FOR THE CHILDREN

DEAR HURTING: Your letter is both timely and worthwhile. Thank you for a suggestion that will surely make Christmas a lot merrier for many step-

DEAR ABBY: I chuckled at the letter from "Upset," the 25-year-old woman whose mother ("divorced and living alone") asked Daughter to phone before dropping in on Daughter would be truly upset were she to drop in unannounced to find Mother in the arms of her lover. Most kids (even at 25) assume that their parents have no interest in sex, much less a sex life. This is simply untrue.

Lamb

"Upset's" mother is most likely trying to ensure her deserved privacy in order to delicately balance her need for intimacy with her desire to protect her daughter's illusion of Mom's "purity." It's a sticky situation, in which we often find ourselves in this 1982 morality.

Most 25-year-old daughters living alone would not appreciate an unannounced visit from Mom for the same

DIVORCED MOTHER, LIVING ALONE

DEAR MOTHER: Right on. Unannounced visits are rarely appreciated - even in families with open minds and closed eyes.

DEAR ABBY: "Katie in Anchorage" submitted that immigrants who arrived at Ellis Island "without papers" were tagged "WOP." If that were so, we would have to assume that our immigration inspectors discriminated against Italians. No, I am told that the guardians of our gates at Ellis Island disliked all foreigners equally. So, why weren't other immigrants called "wop"?

Simply, the expression predates the immigration to America, and is Italian-Spanish in its derivation. In the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies, the expression "guappo" had reference to handsome young men who affected a sense of bravado. In Naples, "guappo" sounded like "wop."

From its true meaning — ruggedly handsome — the term began to decline in its meaning as it was applied to tough gang members, hence the pejorative "wop."
LEONARD MOSS, WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY

DEAR ABBY: Yes, red hair is beautiful. Ask any baldheaded man. Sign me . . . "BALDY"

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Our son who just became 40 years old has just had a complete physical. He is 6 feet 4 and weighs 218 pounds. His blood pressure was 126 over 90. The doctor told him he was quite concerned about the 90. If it had been 89 he would not have mentioned it. I always thought it was the top reading that counted.

Could you explain to me what the doctor meant concerning 90? He also said he had a medium frame and should weigh about 195.

DEAR READER - The importance of high blood pressure is what it does to your arteries. That in turn may cause heart attacks and strokes. A recent review based on worldwide studies of when physicians should treat blood pressure notes that the blood pressure should be considered along with the blood cholesterol and whether a patient smokes or not. In other words, if your son doesn't smoke and his cholesterol is an optimal low normal, his borderline pressure may not be so important.

But we do know that the higher a person's blood pressure is the greater his risk of artery damage that leads to heart attacks and strokes. The individuals with the lowest rate of such problems tend to have pressure readings nearer 115 over 75 or

The old idea was that the lower blood pressure reading (diastolic) should be below 90. That is why your son's doctor was concerned. It should be lower and I'd like to see it below 80 for most people. However, I must add that the difference between 89 and 90 is unimnot discriminate the changes in sound sharply enough to measure blood pressure that accurately. Your son's actual diastolic pressure may have been anywhere from 85 to 95 and the doctor might hear 90. The top reading (systolic) is also as important as the diastolic pressure. We learned that from the Framingham studies that showed an increase, particularly in strokes, with persistently elevated top (systolic) read-

Your son's best course would be to get thin. That may lower his pressure to more optimal levels. I'm sending you The Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure, which explains the importance and management of blood pressure. DEAR DR. LAMB - My favorite alcoholic drink is gin and tonic with a generous amount of fresh lime juice and a dash of salt. I know the alcohol and salt are not good for me but am wondering about the tonic water. I'm enclosing a label with the ingredients of the tonic water on it. I am concerned about the quinine being harmful to the body.

DEAR READER - Quinine could be a problem if you are one of those few people who are sensitive to it. Otherwise if you drank enough for the quinine to be a problem the main concern would be your alcoholism and its toxic actions.

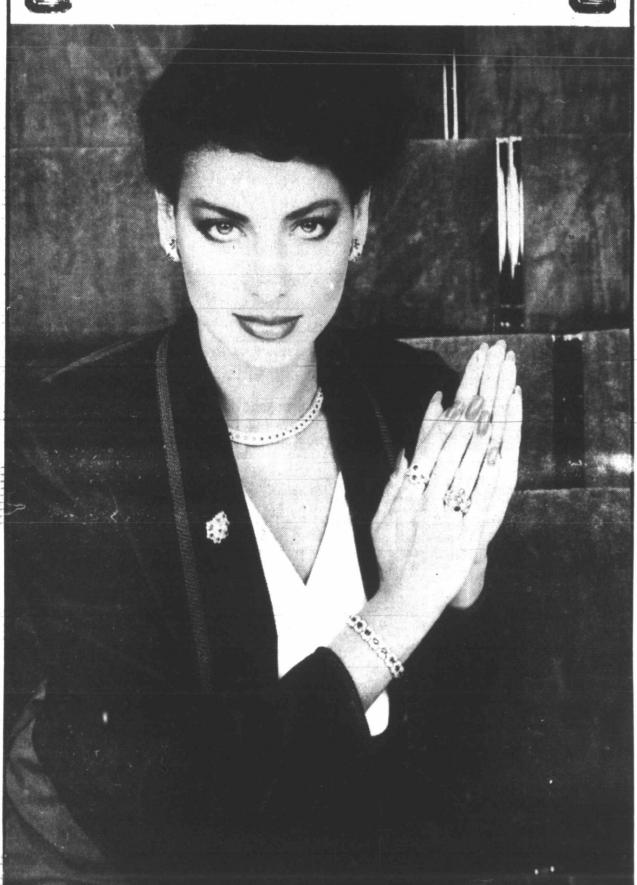

Quinine can cause bruising, somewhat like aspirin. It can cause nausea, vomiting, disturbance in hearing and vision, headache and fever, but these are all toxic reactions from fairsized amounts, unless you are unusually sensitive.

There are no other ingredients in the quinine water that would pose any threat to your health.

Good to know that so many Pampans turned out to vote this year. And heard several people say they appreciated the hard work of all the people who manned the polling places. At Sam Houston School some of the helpers were Hazel Poole, Polly Chafin and Bernice Hodges, all greeting voters with smiles. The man in charge of explaining the new voting procedure was Chester Darnell who took great pains to give specific advice.

He started out by saying, 'We're saving paper this year so we're using both sides of the ballot. Be sure you turn it over to complete your voting. And don't fold it."

The next minute somebody asked, "Do I fold it?" And Chester said patiently, "No. don't fold it - or you'll hear old Chester scream a mile!' Aubrey Sprawls manned the ballot box and repeated the non - folding order. Feel sure nobody folded ballots at that location that day.

Romanian wine wins friends in America

By TOM HOGE AP Wine and Food Writer

For the past six years, the vineyards of Romania have been exporting wine to the United States to the tune of about 200,000 cases a year. It's a wonder they didn't start

The fruity wines of this East European state have not only proved pleasant to drink, they have also managed to buck competition from the wines of France, which they in the kitchen as in this resemble, by keeping their adaptation of the classic prices down

The Romanians should produce good wines. Their vineyards have been at it long enough. Archeological research shows that on the soil that is now Romania, the grapevine was first cultivated some 6,000 years

Fossils of the wild vines dating back to that ancient era have been found in northeastern and western parts of the country. Vines still grow wild and produce edible grapes in the Danube Valley and along the ba ks of some tributaries of the great Romania has turned over about 850,000 acres of its land to vineyards and produces some 1.6 million tons of grapes a year.

The country's most important wine regions extend through the sub-Carpathian hills, along the plateau of Transylvania and in the region of the Black bsea in Dobrudga

The Romanian wines that have proved most popular in America are the Pinot Noir. and the Cabernet Sauvignon, with Tarnave Castle a close rival

The Dealu Mare region whose vineyards have been producing for nearly 2,000 year , produces the red wines of the Monks' Valley, which have long been renowned in Europe

That region's soil, rich in iron oxides, is well suited to

I don't know what's happened to antiques during the last few years, but I don't get the honk out of buying them that I used

My husband and I had a rule of thumb. Anything 10 years older than we were, we'd buy it. We can't do that anymore. Anything 10 years older than we are is falling apart and not worth carrying home

Besides, antiques aren't as old as they used to be when we first started to collect them Why, I remember when I could rummage through a show at the armory for half a day and not even know what the stuff was . let alone what it was used for . The other night I picked up a blue bowl with Shirley

I saw a tray with the original Lawrence Welk band on it. They were wearing suits that my husband still has in his closet. They called it Early Americana and were charging $40 for it. What a ripoff! I liked antiques in the days when furniture didn't have nails in it, dolls were cuddly and didn't have two - inch busts and ponytails, and quilts didn't have labels in them, "DRY CLEAN It's funny. I can remember when my Mom used to go with me to shows and there was an anger about her. She'd pick up a tin lunch pail and snort, "That's not an antique. I can remember your Grandma putting a bread and butter sandwich and a pear in that and carrying it to school for

And I'd smile condescendingly (like I was trying to talk someone off a ledge) and say, "Mother, Mother, you are getting older. They haven't used tin lunch pails in 40 years."

She seemed very bored through the whole exercise of curtain stretchers where you hooked your lace curtains onto small nails, slop jars that I bought to hold geraniums in the hallway, four - inch hatpins and high - button shoes.

At the show the other night I was ready to go when I saw a small thermos with Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs on the side of it. I was furious. "That's not an antique," I said to my daughter. "I can remember your Grandma putting chili in that and sending it to school with me for lunch.

She started to speak, then decided against it. It was one of her more humane acts

SHION! Try variety for holidays

NEW YORK (NEA) Whatever your taste in party fashions, you're likely to satisfy it this season. Designer variety ranges far and wide, from William Travilla's gold satin jogging suit idea at Rod Owens to super-glamour of the ball gown at Oscar de la Renta in gold and black Renaissance-style brocade.

Major fashion attention centers on the return of the straight and narrow silhouette, but it, too, comes in many versions. For those with figures near to perfect, Tracy Mills carves a strapless sheath in beige chiffon embroidered in flowers of smoky gray sequins. Many of these narrow tubes are strapless and black, such as Albert Capraro's velvet with tucked satin top border. Adele Simpson combines velvet and wool in her fitted sheath, and Albert Nipon uses black velvet for a brashaped strapless with slit

However, many slimlooking gowns are actually cut with an easier touch. Jon Haggins does it as a bias-cut '30s slip dress in pink satin with asymmetric skirt flounce and a big, beautiful cape coverup. Geoffrey Beene cuts slim gray flannel in a strapless that flares out to the black lace bordered

This slim silhouette with low flare is favored in Giorgio Sant'Angelo's iridescent aubergine silk taffeta with a big bow below the bared back and a fish-tail hemline created with triangular insets. Halston's sleek slipcut dress comes short or long in black silk crepe thickly dusted on the bodice with silver studs that thin out on the whirling skirt.

Even softer are the many slim blouson evening dress-es. Bill Blass likes it twopiece, in hip-banded colorful lame, to wear over an easy straight satin skirt. His teal crepe blouses in front, drapes around a low back. Oscar de la Renta's slim but easy black velvet has a blouson bodice on a jeweled collar for a halter. With all this emphasis on slim gowns, there are still plenty of classic ball gowns, the kind that combine a fit-

Besides de la Renta's gold and black brocade gown with its richly Renaissance look, there is Adolfo's featherweight green crushed lame with bell-flounced sleeves and full skirt. Many designers offer the ball gown as separates, such as Diane Dickinson's floral print chiffon blouse accented in sequins and sashed in the satin of the full skirt, in the Gentilesse collection.

The ballgown can be vouthful even while looking gorgeous. Victor Costa uses the new iridescent Dacron polyester taffeta for a gown with shirred strapless bodice edged in a double row of petals. The one-shoulder look is interpreted by Eugene Alexander for Rod Owens in a full black taffeta skirt and fitted black velvet bodice with gold-piped peplum. ## Embroidery, satin create wedding memories

By Joanne Schreiber

Recession or no, people are still getting married. Traditional weddings, com-plete with flowers, bridesmaids and beautiful gowns, are back in style. The difference this year is that many brides are shying away from the $500 to $2,000 or more price tags for ready-to-wear bridal gowns and sewing up their own wedding ensem-The Educational Department of the New Home Sewing Machine Company recently served as consult-members who was getting married. The bride did all the sewing herself, using the new Memory 7 computerized sewing machine, which sewed even the delicate embroidered net with ease.

The consultants offer the following suggestions for brides who would like to sew their own gowns: Shop the ready-to-wear market to learn basic styles and fabrics. Try on the gowns and select a style that is most becoming to you. Pay special attention to the points which add so much to the style - and the cost - of a gown: the trims, laces, tucks, covered buttons, button loops and so

Then check the pattern books for your dream style. Remember that you can switch pattern parts around, choosing the bodice of one pattern, the skirt and train of another, the sleeves of yet another, to create your own wedding original.

Shop fabric stores which specialize in bridal fabrics. Remember that when you economize by doing your own sewing, you can splurge on glorious fabrics. This bride chose elegant embroidered net at $45 a yard, which gave the romantic elegance she wanted.

Adjust the pattern to fit and make a muslin model of the dress to check fit, design and general effect. This gown was worked in stages. First, the crepe-backed satin underskirt and camisole were cut, fitted and basted. Then the bride appliqued sections of the embroidered border to the bodice front, using a fine satin stitch and silk thread. Finally, the embroidered net overskirt with the chapel train was completed. More of the border was used to trim the widebrimmed hat. Ready-towear hats cost more than $150; this bride made hers for $12.

Following is the exact breakdown of costs for a

'DEAR LOUISE: Why does it always happen that a young wife gets tired of an older husband and, if she doesn't leave him, she makes his life miserable? Didn't she know, when they started out together that he might not be able to keep up her pace when he got to be 60 and she was 40? 'I married a girl just out of high school and said I'd put her through college if she'd be my wife. I lived up to that promise and more. I paid for her Master's Degree.

We had twin boys and I loved them as much as she did. When she insisted on taking a good job with a firm in the field she'd studied, I agreed because I knew she wanted to make use of her education. She said she'd just work a few years and then come home and live on my income, which is real good and enough to keep us and the boys living well.

'Well, that didn't happen. Out of a clear blue sky she left me and took the boys with her. I came home one night and found a note saying she'd found a new love where she worked and he was a lot nearer her age and a lot more compatible than she and I had ever been. She wanted a divorce and I gave it to her. She married the other man.

"Will you tell men not to marry women who are 20 or 30 years younger than they are? L. R. DEAR L.R.: Sorry, I can't grant your request. I know too many completely happy couples who have age differences. It does not always happen that a young wife gets tired of an older husband and leaves him. You were just among the few unfortunate older husbands who got a raw deal. I know that's no real consolation, but I hope you will find an interest so absorbing that you can, in time, forget the loss of your fickle wife. I'm sure you will want to see your boys sometimes - and surely the divorce granted that privilege to you.

If and when you retire from your work, don't sit down and bemoan the injustice done to vou. Find new interests, new friends. Often lonely people find fulfillment in civic projects, in reading, is staying physcially and mentally alert. You might even find a new, true love.

"DEAR LOUISE: I read a lot about how older people are more important now than they ever were before. You keep saying it too. But I don't see any different treatment of older folks than it was when I was a child. My husband agrees with me

'I'll have to admit we don't get out too much and don't talk to a lot of people about this. We're retired and stay home a lot. It looks to us like the kids are running the country, the way they always "Look at the pictures of young men in Congress and in the state and county offices. Look at the young businessmen in ads on TV Look at the whole world that doesn't appreciate us old

"What have you got to say to that? E. B. DEAR E.B.: I say you are seeing less than half of the true picture of how oldsters are treated these days. You can find young government officials, of course. But you can also find plenty of older ones too. You seem to have forgotten that President Reagan is past retirement age and still doing his job. So are senators and congressmen like Claude Pepper of Florida, now over 80 years old. He's a feisty old gentleman and right on his

As for the TV ads, you aren't seeing enought of them apparently. Authorities tell us that present - day commercials are being geared, more all the time, toward older viewers because advertisers understand the importance of the growing number of older people and their potential buying power. Next time you turn on the TV, see how many white haired people are in the ads. There are a lot of them.

You need to get out of your rocking chairs and find out more about present - day activities. If you resent the young people, seek people your own age who are happy and optimistic. Their pleasure in living might rub off on you.

I never knew my dad well because my mother died when I was very young and I was raised by an aunt and uncle. But my Methodist preacher father visited us often. In his older years he always wanted me to attend his beloved Sunset Club, an organization of retired ministers. I went often.

I have never seen a happier, more enthusiastic group than those old boys. They took half an hour to make a motion if they wanted to, and they discussed projects for hours before they voted. They loved their friends, their group and each

Cancer - just the word itself puts fear in many of us. Cancer is a disease that most every family must face at one time or

Beyond accurate diagnosis and effective treatment, many patients with cancer need psychological, social and economic help to cope with their disease. Special and unusual stress may occur at all points in the cancer care continuum: after diagnosis, during treatment, during remission, during recurrence and during advanced or terminal illness. It is important to anticipate problems and to take the initiative for getting appropriate help before the problem becomes a crisis. SERVICES PROVIDED

Many organizations and programs offer services to the cancer patient and the family. The services they offer are categorized into the following three groups: (1) psychological. emotional support, education; (2) medical, physical, logistical support; and (3) financial, employment assistance. For a list of the programs and organizations and the services they provide, contact the County Extension office.

Peer support groups can be especially helpful to cancer patients and their families. Group members often have similar problems and can benefit from the encouragement and empathy of one another. This sharing helps cancer patients and families recognize that others have similar problems, which often makes it easier to adjust to having cancer and to coping with its associated stresses.

Several programs sponsored by national organizations include patient visitor services. With physical approval, trained cancer "veterans" visit the newly diagnosed or treated patient. Volunteer visitors serve as role models and as proof that a person can adapt to the disease.

They can also inform and educate patients and provide emotional support. Examples of peer support groups include Reach to Recovery for breast cancer patients, Ostomy Rehabilitation Program and Laryngectomy Club. CANCER INFORMATION TELEPHONE NUMBER

Cancer Information Service administered by the National Cancer Institute is a toll - free telephone system that supplies information about cancer and cancer - related resources to the general public, cancer patients and their families. The toll free number in Texas is 1 - 800 - 392 - 2040 CANCER QUAKERY

Cancer quackery is a big business with an estimated yearly income in the billions. The tragedy of cancer quackery is that many cancers, if detected and treated early, are curable. By delaying or stopping legitimate treatments these fake cures are killing cancer patients.

The best protection you can have against cancer is to see your doctor immediately when you suspect something is wrong and to stick to approved medical treatments. Never seek alternate therapies from self - styled "experts"

Even in cases where there is no known cure, patients are better off in a medical center specializing in the treatment of cancer. There a cancer patient can request experimentation with new drugs that have not been disproved and might have some positive effect CANCER INSURANCE

Several insurance companies in the United States have capitalized on the financial concern of the cancer patient and offer cancer insurance rates averaging $15 per month. It is generally felt by insurance associates and state agencies that cancer insurance is an opportunistic strategy to turn fear into financial gain at the expense of the frightened public

According to the Health Insurance Institute, the best way to cover yourself against the costs of cancer is to buy good comprehensive major medical coverage which protects the policyholder from numerous health problems. If you are still concerned about the high costs of cancer, supplemental policies can be added to the basic policy, often for less money than the cost of cancer insurance

Families advised on saving energy

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) - To help families find relief from rising energy costs, resource management specialists with the Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension Service, Dr. Bonnie Braun and Sue Williams, are directing an energy conservation information project in Oklahoma.

"Since many rural homes are poorly weatherized and insulated, utility bills are larger than necessary," says Braun. She notes that the problem is nationwide, since nearly half of America's 4 million substandard housing units are in rural

The project is helping to increase home comfort while decreasing energy use. Computerized energy audits are-used to help determine the most cost-effective ways for residents to "Project aides teach families ways to save energy. They also encourage families to install inexpensive conservation devices and to change energy usage habits," says Williams. With the improved energy efficiency of houses, homeowners use 30 to 50 percent less energy, she says.

Braun explains that the project is helping people become more self-reliant. More than 2,000 families have been served during the five years the project has been conducted.
