It wasn't six weeks ago that aged Steve Martin prematurely, he is wearing his stage makeup for the musical "Oliver." Martin plays 'Fagin,' who runs a school for young pickpockets in the musical which starts its three-night run tonight. "Oliver" is presented by the Pampa High School Departments of Music and Theatre. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. Tickets are $3.50 and can be purchased at the door. For more information call 669-2681.

Grass fire season could be Panhandle's worst

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

This is the "season" for grass fires across the wide expanse of the Texas Panhandle, fire officials say, and the grass fires this year are expected to be larger and more numerous due to a good crop of dry grass and weeds.

Pampa firefighters Wednesday worked another of a rash of range blazes, but the season is "just beginning," Pampa fireman Tom Leggett said.

And the expectation of heavy grass fires this year prompted Lake Meredith Park Superintendent John Higgins to issue a fire warning to visitors to the lake.

"Dry vegetation and high winds at this time of year combine to give the land around Lake Meredith a very high potential for grass fires.

"Visitors and hunters to the area should very careful with fire during this dry season. A tossed cigarette, an unattended campfire, or a spark from a vehicle can ignite a grass fire," Higgins said.

The superintendent added that heavy rains in the Panhandle last spring and summer caused a heavy growth of vegetation, now dry from killing frost and ripe for a fire.

"Dry fuel is more abundant than usual," he said. Leggett agrees: "With a wet spring and summer, we have tall grass."

A record of recent grass fires fought by the Pampa Fire Department is evidence that things are beginning to heat up.

October 25 — Firemen worked a grass fire one half mile west of Pampa.

October 28 — Firemen worked a grass fire one mile west of Pampa. The fire spread to a haystack and consumed it. The hay was valued at $1,000.

October 29 — Firemen from six towns were called to work a huge grass fire just south of Lake McClellan. The fire burned 300 acres of grass. Firemen from Pampa, McLean, Lefors, Mobeetie, Groom, and Shamrock battled for nearly a day to halt the spread of destruction.

October 30 — Firemen worked a grass fire near the water treatment plant just west of Pampa.

November 7 — Firemen worked a grass fire 15 miles south of Pampa. The fire consumed one acre of grass and burned up numerous fence posts.

Wednesday — Firemen received a call at 9:55 a.m. reporting the grass fire west of Pampa near highway 152 and Western Street. Firefighters worked nearly one and a half hours to halt the spread of flames. The fire was fueled by a trash dump which ignited. Six firemen and three units battled Wednesday's blaze.

The potential loss of other property which is ignited by a grass fire is a major problem, according to Leggett, and taxpayers pay for the expense of sending a crew to fight an otherwise "inexpensive" grass inferno.

But the major concern for firefighters: "If the wind switches, you can be caught in the middle of a fire," Leggett said.

"With the winds we have here, and rough terrain, you can get in trouble. Of course, finding water to fight a grass fire can be a problem. Our units can draft water from stock tanks. We shuttle them back and forth from the nearest water supply. But sometimes there aren't any stock tanks nearby," Leggett said.

According to Higgins, people who are careless with fire are usually to blame for grass fires. He said many times rangers find abandoned campfires which are left burning and unattended.

"Lake regulations require that campfires are kindled only in safe areas, and they are to be extinguished when no longer needed," Higgins said.

Pair escape with minor injuries after crash

The crumpled metal of what were once cars resulted from a grinding crash about 2 p.m. Wednesday in the 600 block of South Cuyler.

Despite the looks of the cars, the drivers involved in the wreck suffered only minor injuries and were treated at Coronado Community Hospital. The 1971 Buick, driven by Roy Lee Steele, 1169 Varnon Dr., smashed up the 1979 Pontiac, driven by Michael Edward Cook, 317 N. Wells, according to police officers who investigated the accident Wednesday.

Steele was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

'Great Smokeout' just smolders here in Pampa

By JEANTIERNEY
and wire services

The match almost sputtered out under the Great American Smokeout in Pampa today.

Coronado Community Hospital's public relations office was to hand out "I Quit" buttons today and accept pledge cards from puffery willing to take the plunge and quit smoking for 24 hours.

The American Cancer Society's 30 members here planned to give high school and junior students information pamphlets on smoking and health.

But chapter president Ed Sweet said nothing else was planned. "This just didn't have any preparation," he said.

In Amarillo, the Rat is touring town today in an ambulance stocked with first-aid kits to help smokers fight the urge, candies, gum, toothpicks and literature. GASO's name stands for Great American Smokeout, and GASO is a human in rat's clothing. The mascot visited a day care center Wednesday and talked to the children.

Amarillo Cancer Society field representative Sandy St. John said today. The Amarillo society will also release balloons downtown at noon today, and the ambulance will stop at banks, supermarkets and schools.

Across the country, 16 to 18 million smokers are expected to kick the habit today in the Cancer Society's 6th annual day campaign to clear the lungs. Last year, three-quarters of the 16 million who took the pledge on the third Thursday in November were smoking again before the 24 hours were up.

From New York to San Francisco, millions of smokers are being coaxed by Pac-Man, "E.T." or a promise of free lunch and cheered on by runners, bosses and non-smokers to join the national smokeout. They will be spurred on by symbolic cigarette-burnings, "Adopt-A-Smoker" programs, "cold turkey" lunches and $10 rewards for a tobacco-free day.

"It's trying to get people to quit at least for one day, but hopefully they'll quit for good," said Rita Bailey, an administrator for the Maine chapter of the American Cancer Society.

In Farmington, Maine, the Bass Shoe

Co. scheduled a "Run Your Butts Off" road race, while in Oxford, Maine, elementary school students were dressing up as the movie character "E.T." to perform in anti-smoking skits.

Red Adair, who has battled oil well fires all over the world, planned to put out a giant cigarette at a rally today at Sharpstown Center in Houston.

Also at the rally, quitters will be cheered on by Pac-Man and Ms. Pac-Man, played by performers from Astroworld amusement park, who will gobble cigarettes instead of the usual video game monsters.

At the Empire State Plaza in Albany, N.Y., a cafeteria serving thousands of state government workers planned to serve "cold turkey" lunches, with a side order of information on quitting available at booths on the plaza concourse.

Support for the Smokeout isn't universal, however, as millions of smokers keep right on puffing.

"I quit before, gave up cigarettes for about half a year," said Mary Arthur of Schenectady, N.Y. "But I put on weight and I didn't like that."

About one out of three American adults, or 53 million people, smokes cigarettes. An additional 1.5 million smokers are under age 18.

But the U.S. Office on Smoking and Health estimates almost 34 million Americans have quit, and notes that if the trend continues, ex-smokers will outnumber smokers.

Beneath all the fanfare, the Cancer Society means business — and wants to get people to quit for good. Of those who hung on for the full 24 hours in the 1980 Smokeout, more than a million still weren't smoking 11 months later, the Cancer Society said. Those people, presumably, "had given up smoking for good," the society says.

The smokeout is a 24-hour test of a smoker's addiction, says Dr. C. Everett Koop, the nation's surgeon general.

"Many smokers will find that they cannot go that long without a cigarette," Koop said in a statement. "If so, they will know that they have lost control over a habit that could shorten their lives."

Pampa Sept. sales figures drop

By JEANTIERNEY

Sales in Pampa and many neighboring cities continued to drop in September compared to last year.

But the total taxable sales here for the first nine months of 1982 were still higher than for the same period of 1981, the state comptroller's office in Austin reported this week in its monthly report on sales tax money returned to cities by the state.

Although many cities in the state reported lower sales in September, 1982, sales for the year to date were up an average of 9.3 percent across the state.

Pampa received $191,146.57 from the state as its one-cent share of the five-cent sales tax collected during September, the comptroller's report said. For September, 1981, the state returned $226,745.25 to Pampa in sales tax rebates.

That $191,146.57 rebate reflects total taxable retail sales for the month of $19,114,657. That is 84.3 percent of sales for September, 1981.

The city's total sales tax rebate for 1982 so far ($1,582,559.45) is still 9.51 percent above the 1981 rebate for the comparable period, reflecting higher sales in the early months of 1982.

Lefors' taxable sales in September were $52,834, only 56.5 percent of last September's, although its year-to-date sales are up 23.7 percent over 1981's.

McLean's sales this September were almost as high as last year's: $351,608 compared to $354,311. For the year so far, sales in McLean are up less than 3 percent over last year, the comptroller's office reported.

For Gray County overall, total sales are up 9.4 percent for the year but down 15.6 percent for the individual month of September.

Carson County's overall taxable sales rose by 6 percent for September, 1982, to a total of $1,900,595. Year-to-date sales through September were up 22.1 percent over 1981's.

But most of that increase showed up in Groom, which reported a 180-percent increase in September sales, and in Panhandle, which reported a 138-percent increase.

For White Deer, September's sales were only 62.4 percent of last September's ($389.62 compared to $624.28). And for Skellytown, September's total of $300,542 in taxable sales was only 84.8 percent of last September's. All four cities, however, reported higher sales for the year to date than last year, the increase ranging from 7.85 percent in Skellytown to 30.1 percent in Groom.

Canadian's sales also rose for September over last year: by 27.3 percent, for a total of $3,042,003. That brings the city's year-to-date sales to $24,764,27, up 22.5 percent over the same period in 1981.

Perryton's sales dropped only slightly in September, to $8,605,647 or 94.5 percent of last September's; year-to-date, sales in Perryton are still up 15.3 percent over 1981.

Miami's sales rose for the month by 6.9 percent: from $390,303 for September, 1981, to $417,364 for this September.

Mobeetie's September sales fell by 20.5 percent, to $92,422. Year-to-date, however, the city's 1982 sales are still double those for 1981.

Wheeler County overall reported the heaviest year-to-date increase in the northeastern Panhandle: 32.9 percent over last year. September sales in the city of Wheeler rose by 4.6 percent over last year ($926.6 compared to $886.214); and Shamrock reported a 23-percent increase for September, for a total sales for the month of $2,060,898.

Pampa choir places 20 students in All-Region choir this fall

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

The Pampa High School Choir placed 20 students in the All-Region Choir, besting 15 area choirs competing for the honors.

The most any other area school placed in the elite group of singers were 13 students chosen from the Amarillo High School Choir.

PHS Choir Director Billy Talley attributes the sweet voices in his group to private singing lessons many of his students take outside school programs.

Speaking of Saturday's All-Region competition in Spearman, Talley said, "The students all worked hard on this music. It wasn't easy music, yet they handled it very well."

"A lot of credit goes to Susie Wilson and Wanetta Hill. Most of the All-Region students take private voice lessons from these ladies. Without them, we wouldn't have dominated the audition the way we did," Talley said.

Besides the All-Region honors, six Pampa choir students were selected as area candidates to the All-State Choir, and three more were named alternates.

Selection as area candidates allows the students to audition in January for the All-State group, according to the choir director.

Area candidates and All-Region members are Lisa Malone, first soprano; Doretta Bruce, second soprano; Kelly Copeland, first alto; Stacey Bennett, first alto; Melanie Good, second alto; and Jeff Hinkle, second tenor. Alternates for the All-State auditions are Lana Hiltbrunner, Denise Chapman and Eric Hallerberg.

Other All-Region members selected Saturday include Lori Crawford, Kerri Richardson, Michelle Eakin, Amy Raymond, Missy Crossman, Trent Sellers, Todd Hardin, Brent Chapman, Darla Denham, James Stevens and Cap Pittman. Stacey Hendrick was named first alternate to the All-Region group.

Final auditions for the All-State Choir will take the area candidates to Odessa January 7 and 8.

All-Region members will present a concert at West Texas State University December 11.

Will they ever finish at Zimmer?

By TERRY KINNEY

MOSCOW, Ohio (AP) — More than 10 years after construction began, the William H. Zimmer Power Station sits silent on the banks of the Ohio River, a $1.7 billion nuclear power plant that still isn't finished.
 Building the facility has been a decade-long headache for Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., the plant's manager, and for co-owners Dayton Power & Light Co. and Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co.
 CG&E has sunk $680 million into Zimmer. Dayton Power & Light $535.5 million and Columbus & Southern Ohio $484.5 million.
 And the costs could go even higher, especially after the Nuclear Regulatory Commission last week ordered the utilities to halt all key plant construction because of design flaws.
 The NRC said construction can resume only after the commission's regional administrator, James Keppler, is satisfied that design and construction defects have been corrected and that there is little likelihood new ones will be found.
 The order is only the latest in a series of problems that have plagued the plant since it was first proposed by Cincinnati Gas & Electric in 1969, with a cost projected at $240 million.
 Utility officials say that since then, the company has been picked to death because the NRC keeps changing its rules. They complain of a change in national attitudes about nuclear power — from an era of naivete during the first generation of nuclear plants to what they call the paranoia that surfaced in the late 1970s.
 In May 1971, when site preparation for Zimmer began some 30 miles up the Ohio River from Cincinnati, there were 21 nuclear generating plants operating in the United States, 56 under construction and 37 more planned, according to the Atomic Energy Commission.
 Today, there are 76 plants licensed, 74 being constructed and fewer than a half dozen on the drawing boards, the NRC says. Of the 11 plants granted construction permits in 1971-72, all except Zimmer and two other complexes are licensed.
 "We were caught, I think, in a transition time," said Cincinnati Gas & Electric senior vice president Earl

Engineers duplicate space suit failure in tough ground tests

By PAUL RECER

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Engineers here were able to duplicate on the ground one of two malfunctions that forced cancellation of a crucial space walk on the fifth flight of space shuttle Columbia.

Richard A. Colonna, head of a team of engineering detectives investigating the problem, said a pressure regulator that malfunctioned in space failed again when tested on the ground at the Dryden Flight Research Center in California.

He said the regulator, designed for 4.2 pounds per square inch of oxygen pressure in the suit, would provide only 3.7 pounds — the same reading it gave in space.
 Sources at the Johnson Space Center said this was good news because if the failure can be duplicated on the ground, it's believed it can be corrected more easily. An unexplained, random failure could lead to a long engineering study and a delay in NASA's future spacewalk plans.

The regulator was part of the suit that was to be worn by astronaut Bill Lenoir on a planned 3 1/2-hour space walk during Columbia's fifth flight. A different component, a high-speed fan, failed on the suit of Lenoir's spacewalk partner, astronaut Joe Allen.

Colonna said the fan would be tested today in California. Lenoir's suit will be flown here today and Allen's on Friday.

Lenoir, Allen and their crewmates, Vance Brand and Bob Overmyer, returned to earth Tuesday, landing Columbia at Edwards Air Force Base in California after five days in orbit and a highly successful chrestening of the shuttle as a space delivery truck. The astronauts flawlessly deployed into orbit two communications satellites carried aloft for paying customers.

The mission was completed with virtually no problems — except the failure of the suits.

A team of seven engineers headed by Colonna were prepared to work through the weekend at the Johnson Space Center analyzing the space suit problem. Parts of the suits will be disassembled for study.

NASA officials are anxious to correct the cause of the malfunctions quickly so that preparations can be made for a spacewalk on the sixth shuttle flight, now set for no earlier than Jan. 24. The next spacewalk chance would not until flight seven, in April.

Mission plans on all of the shuttle flights call for at least two astronauts to be prepared for an emergency spacewalk in case there is a problem with doors that enclose the payload bay of the craft.

The space suits also would be worn by astronauts repairing satellites or assembling large structures in orbit, activities that are planned by NASA for future missions.

James A. Abrahamson, associate administrator of NASA, said a decision for a spacewalk on flight six must be made quickly to give astronauts time to train.

NASA workers at Edwards continued today to prepare Columbia for a cross-country ferry flight atop a jumbo jet. The spacecraft will be flown on Sunday from California to Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio for an overnight refueling stop. The craft will be flown on Monday on to the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Columbia will be placed into a hanger at Kennedy for the start of a months-long refurbishment. The craft's next flight is set for the fall of 1983.

The next shuttle flight will be with Challenger, a new craft that is now completing tests for the sixth mission early next year.

Okie airliner beats a 747 down to Florida

DADE CITY, Fla. (AP) — An 8-inch, helium-filled balloon hitched a ride with some high-altitude winds and floated 1,300 miles from Oklahoma in 21 hours — faster than a trip by car.

Sent aloft from Moore, Okla., as a windup to the state diamond jubilee celebration, the balloon was recovered Wednesday in a pasture near this agricultural community 15 miles north of Pampa.

"Balloons don't have to stop for traffic lights and restrooms," said Larry Pfeiffer of the U.S. Weather Service. He figures the balloon traveled above 35,000 feet at speeds averaging 60 mph.

"It must have caught a northwest to southeast wind flow and followed it all the way to Pasco County," he said. It was released Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. by Barbara Mitchell, an Apple Creek Elementary School teacher in Moore.

Gifted kids will show their stuff

CANYON — Gifted students from Pampa and other Panhandle communities will show Saturday what they have learned in a special extra-curricular class at West Texas State University.

The 1 p.m. demonstration at the WTSU Activities Center ballroom here will show what the 100 youngsters learned of art, puppets and military skills, the university announced today.

Two Pampa students participated in the six-week program: Christopher Wolski of Pampa High School, the son of Gertrude and Charles Wolski, and Bill Fetter, son of George William Fetter, Jr. The other 98 students came from elementary and high school classes, recommended by their teachers and principals, from White Deer, Perryton, Claude, Wellington, Amarillo, Canyon, Hereford, Plainview, Sunray, Wayside, Bovina, Bushland, Dalhart, Friona and Hart.

The classes were conducted on six Saturday mornings, directed by Mary Jane Reeves of the WTSU College of Education for the university's Gifted and Talented Institute; the institute has been funded with a $12,500 grant from the Rockwell Fund, Inc., of Houston, the university said.

During the classes, the students' parents joined the sessions and museum tours. The curriculum included special training for gifted children in reading, art, Spanish, perceptual motor skills, sport and military skills, creative writing and music, plus tours of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum on campus.

The institute will begin two more six-week sessions on Jan. 22 and March 26.

Jurors convict Sharp of girl's murder

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A teenage girl's vivid account of how her 8-year-old sister was sexually abused and fatally stabbed, along with her mother, led jurors to convict Michael Eugene Sharp of murder, the jury foreman said.

Sharp was sentenced to life in prison Wednesday after only 10 minutes of punishment deliberations by the jury.

Jury foreman Dick Platt said jurors considered only a life sentence for the 28-year-old Odessa oilfield toolpusher, who was convicted Wednesday after a capital murder charge was reduced to murder.

The jurors took only two hours before deciding Sharp was guilty of murder.

Platt said 15-year-old Selena Kay Elms' testimony "without a doubt" proved to jurors that Sharp killed 3-year-old Christi Michelle Elms of Kermit.

Miss Elms, the lone survivor of a rampage of kidnapping, sexual abuse and murder, on Tuesday identified Sharp as the man who fatally stabbed her mother.

"He grabbed my mother and pulled her down, and he stabbed her, from what I saw, two or three times," Miss Elms said.

Miss Elms said Sharp forced the three to accompany him in his pickup and sexually abused them before slaying her mother and sister.

Miss Elms testified that Sharp became angry when her mother, 31-year-old Brenda Kay Broadway, prayed.

"She said the Lord's Prayer and he told her to shut up, that there wasn't a God, because if there was, he wouldn't let people suffer like this, but these things happen to people," Miss Elms said.

Miss Elms said she escaped the death scene by untying her ankles and fleeing nude across an oil field, where she was found hours later by a drilling crew.

State District Judge Robert C. Wright reduced the charge from capital murder to murder Wednesday morning because of a single word missing from the indictment.

Wright's ruling meant Sharp faced a maximum sentence of life in prison rather than a possible death sentence.

However, District Attorney Mike Postel said he would push for Sharp to be tried later for capital murder in the slaying of Mrs. Broadway.

Teachers start fad

HIGHLAND PARK, Texas (AP) — First, students started wearing curlers to school. Then came red ribbons, complete with names embossed in white. Recently, wearing a safety pin made a student hip.

Now clothespins are "in" at Highland Park's McCullough Middle School.

But it's the teachers who are going after the latest fad.

Principal Cecil Floyd wears the wooden clothespins on his suit lapels.

"It's good for school spirit," he explains.

Teachers parade through the halls, wearing the clothespins dangling from their suits like jewelry. One instructor uses his for a tie clip.

The reason for the madness is simple, explains Janet Mullenix, a 26-year-old math teacher who came to school Wednesday with a strip of wooden clothespins clasped to her blazer lapel.

"If the kids can be silly, we can be sillier," she said.

The creator of the clothespin craze is Jane Dalton, a 29-year-old social studies teacher who said she wants to prove fads are silly.

Some teachers said fads are especially silly in this affluent island suburb of Dallas, where students try very hard to keep up with the latest fashions.

Board approves $5.2 million to handle welfare request flood

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The Texas Department of Human Resources will hire hundreds of workers to accommodate a surge in the number of recession-hit Texans seeking either food stamps or help for children.

The state agency's board voted Wednesday to provide an additional $5.2 million in its fiscal 1983 budget to administer welfare-related programs for unemployed Texans.

"There's been a significant increase in caseloads because of the recession. And parents who can't cope with the bad economy take the problem out on their children," said Martin Dukler, deputy commissioner for programs.

Reports of child abuse and neglect investigated by the department during fiscal year 1982 rose by 11.8 percent, according to department statistics.

Dukler said that across the state applications for Aid to Families With Dependent Children increased 40.8 percent since April, and food stamp applications jumped 56 percent.

The state agency, meeting here as part of a program to scatter sessions outside Austin, also adopted a mandatory job-search program for recipients of AFDC in an effort to stop the flood of unemployment-spawned welfare applications.

The state currently requires welfare applicants in 13 Texas counties to take part in a job search conducted by the Texas Employment Commission. The requirement applies to mothers whose youngest child is age 6 or older.

Under the program, that job-search requirement will become mandatory across the state in April. The DHR will contract with the TEC for specified employment services.

To handle the increased number of applicants, the DHR is temporarily shifting workers to offices with peak loads and is accepting applications in groups rather than on an individual basis.

The state agency is seeking waivers from the federal government that would allow flexibility in processing new applications.

Manuel A. Arredondo, South Texas administrator for the DHR, said AFDC applications in his region have increased 55 percent and employees are working 10-hour days to keep up with the flood of applicants.

Arredondo said unemployment currently ranges from 20 to 27 percent in most areas of the Rio Grande Valley.

Officials deny aiding bounty hunters collar Mexican drug defendant

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Federal officials have denied allegations that the U.S. government helped four Texas bounty hunters kidnap a drug defendant in Mexico and hustle him across the border into El Paso.

A public defender Wednesday contended his client, who jumped $40,000 bail and fled across the Texas-Mexico border, was handcuffed and blindfolded at gunpoint before he was carried to U.S. authorities in Texas.

"It makes us sound like a bunch of Gestapo people," U.S. marshal's office supervisor Arnold Stolz said.

"We had nothing to do with anything that happened in Mexico, nor did we suggest or entice (the alleged kidnapping)," he said.

Stolz said federal immigration agents never were involved in any phase of the alleged kidnapping.

"We know better than that," he said.

Federal public defender Robert Ramos said that if kidnapping allegations prove true, the rights of his client, 33-year-old Ramon Antonio Quintana-Samaniego, were violated.

Ramos said he believed immigration officials "helped" set up the entire affair. If "extreme misconduct ... in which the U.S. government played a role" is proven, pending charges against Quintana-Samaniego should be dropped, he said.

"That guy was kidnapped in Mexico. He was beaten and handcuffed. Now it's up to the court (to act)," Ramos added.

The motion to drop the charges before U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth will be ruled on within a week, said Stolz.

Ramos said Quintana-Samaniego was approached Sept. 23 by four men who talked of buying some property in the village.

Ramos said the men left once, apparently uncertain whether Quintana-Samaniego was who they wanted, but came back a second time, chased him into a ditch and handcuffed him.

They blindfolded him after brandishing guns and drove him to Ciudad Juarez, the Mexican border town across the Rio Grande from El Paso. There they established radio contact with federal authorities who met them at the bridge, Ramos said.

At one point before heading to Juarez, the bounty hunters tried to intimidate Quintana-Samaniego into positively identifying himself by pulling down his pants and threatening to sexually assault him, said Ramos. It was then, Ramos said, that the men found the Mexican's identification card.

Ramos contends the Mexican citizen had his rights violated, and added that extradition treaties between the U.S. and Mexico may have been broken.

The bounty hunters hired by Texas Fugitive Apprehension to track down Quintana-Samaniego "could face up to 40 years in jail for the kidnapping," Ramos said.

The four Mexicans employed by the bounty-hunting firm never harmed or sexually abused Quintana-Samaniego, countered Al Lopez, head of the Texas Fugitive company.

"I would send my own sister with these people," he said.

The firm was hired for $8,000 to track down Quintana-Samaniego to prevent loss of $40,000 put up by the Afuera-Out bail bond company when the Mexican left jail, Lopez said.

Lopez denied Ramos' allegation that the firm worked in cahoots with immigration authorities who arrested the Mexican at the border.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Spain moves to the left

Spain's still fragile democracy, restored just six years ago after nearly three decades of Francoist rule, has now moved sharply leftward.

Spanish Socialists emerged from recent nationwide elections with majorities in both houses of Parliament. That guarantees Felipe Gonzalez, the charismatic leader of the victorious Socialist Worker's Party, will be selected as Spain's next prime minister.

The prospect of a Socialist government in Spain can hardly be comforting to policymakers in places such as Washington, London, and Bonn. All must have been hoping against hope for a continuation of Spain's current centrist government with its strongly pro-Western policy.

Still, Gonzalez may do less damage to the Western alliance than some row fear. He has pledged not to cancel Spain's entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Instead, he will apparently let Spanish voters decide via a referendum. And although the Socialists have talked about closing down U.S. military bases in Spain, Gonzalez appears decidedly less militant on this issue than some of his followers.

What is unsettling about the Spanish election is the political polarization it disclosed within the electorate. The Socialists won 45.7 percent of the popular vote. The right wing Popular Alliance, which includes many unconstructed Francoists, came in second with 24.9 percent of the vote.

Moderates, represented by the Union of the Democratic Center, were utterly crushed. They polled only a pitiful 7.2 percent of the popular vote. Spain's Communist Party did poorer still, but that is small comfort given the drubbing suffered by the centrists.

Polarization of the Spanish polity along socialist left-authoritarian right lines led to civil war in 1936. Few in Spain openly results of the recent voting are eerily reminiscent of the ideological conflicts of the 1930s.

At the very least, the combination of a Socialist government and a neo-Francoist opposition bodes ill for any hope of consensus-style politics in Spain. And if the Socialists do the unexpected and begin nationalizing industries or sabotaging the NATO referendum, the deeply conservative Spanish army may not be able to resist the temptation to interfere.

Fake political moderates

In politics, those of the socialist-liberal persuasion have a terrible time with identification. To call themselves accurately would be to alienate the vast majority of voters, so they latch on to code words to obscure their real political philosophy.

In Europe, there is none of this problem. Those advocating essentially a socialist position call themselves "socialist," while the opposition is known as "conservative." Would that it were so in the good old U.S.A.

Current American political rhetoric, however, finds it necessary to make a conscious attempt to muddle positions. Those of the leftist persuasion find that they have to identify themselves as "moderate" or "middle of the road," while branding their opponents as "right wing." Hence, all over the nation, "moderates" are really disguised people of the left.

Political advertising is full of this "moderate" image business. Note, however, that the self-proclaimed "moderate" candidates advocate higher taxes, greater welfare, Soviet appeasement with a nuclear freeze, while at the same time coveting endorsements from the likes of the radical feminist National Organization for Women. All this, of course, in the name of "moderation."

The truth of the situation is that this "moderation" is the "moderation" of Ted Kennedy, the "moderation" of Eleanor Smeal and Gloria Steinem, the "moderation" of Ralph Nader. In short, the word loses its meaning and becomes a smoke screen for big government, big spending and Soviet appeasement.

When you hear or read candidates running for national political office proclaim their dedication to "moderation" or "the middle of the road," run for the hills since they really mean to tax you more, damage your liberties and appease the Soviets.

A ticket to overreach

The First Lady's declaration of way on drugs has drawn some interesting recruits. Dan McKinnon, the Reagan-appointed chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, put various airlines on notice that he's prepared to start excluding airlines whose employees are determined to be involved, whether willingly or through negligence or carelessness, in smuggling drugs into this country.

According to McKinnon, a recent veteran of San Diego political wars, drugs can destroy the moral fiber of the country, and complicity in the drug trade should be a factor when the CAB determines whether airlines are fit to fly.

Regulatory reform passed in 1978 calls for the CAB to be dissolved on Jan. 1, 1985. Apparently McKinnon has in mind for the board to go out of business with a bang, by threatening to lift licenses for activities that ought to be the concern of other law enforcement agencies, if anyone. He is stretching the CAB's mandate out of any recognizable shape.

The rationale for CAB licensing of airlines (or granting permits to land in the U.S. for foreign-based carriers) is to protect passengers from unreliable carriers. It is stretching that rationale to ask them to be responsible for passengers or employees who thwart the law and sue their carriers for drug smuggling. Should passengers, or even employees, be involved in illicit trade - assuming we wish to outlaw any form of commerce - appropriate remedies exist in criminal law for such activity. To use the CAB's economic power to prevent them from lying at all is punishment that does not fit the crime.

The Reagan administration has claimed that it is committed to deregulation. Apparently, however, that commitment depends on whether some activity pushes an emotional button. If an airline is being used to smuggle drugs, the CAB, even as it is going out of business, is willing to intervene without evidence of a threat to passenger safety or convenience.

It is not surprising to find people, who are very human after all, willing to use regulatory power to wage unrelated crusades. That is one reason such power is so dangerous and so subject to abuse.

Q: What group will benefit most from public-works programs by securing high paying, cushy jobs?

A: Dogs, etc.

By OSCAR COOLEY

Everyone is allergic to something, and in my case it is dogs. Nor am I very fond of cats. Or of any other of the lower animals, except horses - which the tractor and automobile have made well-nigh extinct.

My father, who was a farmer, said the only dog that was of any value was one that would herd sheep, which are difficult to pilot the way you want them to go unless you have a sheppdog. However, if a dog gets a taste of a sheep's blood, he goes berserk and becomes a killer. Your most benign pooch will do that if he gets in bad company.

They say there are 30 million dogs in the U.S., and I can well believe it, for half that number are on my street. When they all bark at once, they make pandemonium.

A dog's bark is staccato and offensive. It sounds threatening, and in some cases it is. How is one to know what the dog's intentions are? If a person were guilty of making such a raucous noise, he would be declared a public nuisance.

A dog is a nuisance in more ways than one. A cat knows enough to cover her excrement, but a dog does not. He deposits his wherever he happens to be, which often is on the sidewalk. Pedestrian, beware.

Dogs are carnivorous. Think of the meat those 30 million dogs consume. If the pet owners gave as much money to the United Way as they spend to feed their pets, consider how much hunger among humans could be alleviated.

Human beings take a peculiar attitude toward the lower animals. They make pets of a few species - dogs, cats, canaries - hunt many more with guns just for the sport, and imprison typical specimens of every species in zoos and aviaries. They shed salty tears over "cruelty to animals," but is anything more cruel than to shut a bear in an iron cage and watch him walk up and down, nosing the wire for an escape opening that is not there?

I would leave wild animals in the wild and kill them only when they prey on me and mine, as that zoo tiger did the other day when he mauled a 2-year-old child to death.

Over the centuries, many species have been overcome by their environment and become extinct. Man goes to great lengths to keep every species alive, as he is now doing with the brown pelican. To what purpose? Would the world be a better place if we still had the dinosaur? The big reptiles must have been a strong and admirable species - they are known to have inhabited (and dominated) the Earth for 50 million years. Will Homo sapiens do as well?

One reason we seek to preserve a species of animal or bird is to have that creature as a potential target for hunters. We want to shoot at them but we don't want to kill them off. Confusing.

As the human population of the world increases, the wild creatures will be forced into smaller and smaller areas until they become so confined they die out. Then man will be master of the planet, but that won't happen soon, for man has ways of checking population growth such as birth control and war. These techniques are quite beyond the lower animals.

I still don't like dogs. They are neither wild nor tame, just dirty, noisy, and wasteful. They have to have masters to feed them; turned loose in the wild most pet dogs would soon succumb.

Why do so many people have dogs? A few keep them for protection. Most keep them to play with during leisure time. As people have increasing leisure, machines doing the work, the country will have more and more dogs.

Car pool reunion

T BUCHWALD

Our Washington Redskin car pool had a sentimental reunion the other night and it was amazing how many guys showed up. We hadn't seen each other since the last Philadelphia Eagles game in 1981. Some of us brought our wives, a few their kids, and one or two new girlfriends.

Most of us had lost some hair, except for Stevens who showed everyone his new transplant. Valenti had a bit of paunch on him, but still looked fit. Geyelin said in spite of arthritis he could sail his boat, and Bradlee complained of back trouble.

But none of us were as young as we were in the glory days of '81, when Califano, our all-pro station wagon driver, led us to victory Sunday after Sunday by ignoring every red light from Chevy Chase to the RFK Stadium.

It was really good to see the old bunch. Most of us had done very well, especially Rene Carpenter who had married a handsome, wealthy contractor from Georgetown.

Holbrook was still collecting compensation from Califano's insurance company after Califano tried to sideswipe an ambulance taking an injured Dallas lineman to the hospital for X-Rays.

Harwood's leg had completely healed from the Redskin - Cardinal game, when Califano backed into him while he was trying to get into the car in the RFK parking lot, and Dalinsky said he no longer suffered the whiplash injuries he sustained when Califano ran off the embankment of the Rock Creek parkway.

As with all reunions of this type, everyone tried to catch up on the other person's life.

"What are you doing on Sundays since you left the car pool?" I asked Bradlee.

"Chopping fire wood, raking leaves, painting the kitchen. I make a living."

Valenti said he had gone back to playing with his kids.

"Don't you miss the games?" I asked him.

"I did at first. Every time I saw a station wagon heading for the stadium I wanted to get in it. But now I don't think about it much unless it's a nice fall day and the leaves are turning red. Then I think of the Redskins waving their pompoms and kicking their legs in the air and I want to cry."

Stevens said that after he left the car pool he took up tennis. "It's no substitute for sitting in the stands watching a football game, but it's still better than helping Liz around the house on Sunday afternoon."

Geyelin said he bought a computer and is now doing an inventory of everything he owns in his house. And Holbrook spends all his time reading the classified ads in the Sunday newspaper.

The saddest story was Califano's. Every Sunday at 12 o'clock sharp he gets into his car and drives to RFK Stadium alone. He said he just sits in the parking lot for three hours and then drives back home.

We asked him why he did it.

"I want to be ready in case the NFL strike is ever settled."

No one had the heart to tell him the football as we knew it was finished, and our lives would never be the same. And then, as usually happens at reunions after you ask each person how he is and retell the same old war stories, the party got maudlin.

We toasted the quarterback of the Redskins, though nobody could remember his name.

Then Dalinsky and Valenti got into a fist fight over whether Mark Mosley was a running back or the place kicker of the Washington team.

Califano turned bitter and complained that in 14 years of driving us to the games no one had ever offered to pay for a gallon of gas.

As the evening got late and the wine bottles got empty, we all vowed that we'd meet in 10 years or when the strike was settled, whichever was over. As Marcel Proust once said, "Once you break up a football car pool, you can't go home again."

Defense witness blisters case

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A bank auditor who was qualified as an expert witness by the defense ended up helping the government's case in the trial of three people charged in the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

The defense meticulously qualified Dallas banker Jerry Allen as an expert to bolster convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson's alibi that he was in Dallas — not San Antonio — the day Wood was shot.

But prosecutor Ray Jahn used his cross-examination of Allen to show jurors that someone other than Harrelson, charged with shooting Wood in the back for a $250,000 fee, could have purchased a $600 cashier's check and listed Harrelson as the purchaser.

"There is nothing to keep a woman from buying a cashier's check and showing the remitter as a man?" Jahn asked, implying that Harrelson's wife and co-defendant, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, could have bought the cashier's check in her husband's name.

Allen, vice president of the Greenville Avenue Bank in Dallas, testified that a person purchasing a cashier's check with cash would not have to sign anything or present any identification, and could have another person listed as remitter.

Prosecutors contend Harrelson, 44, killed the judge for a $250,000 fee from convicted drug trafficker Jimmy Chagra, who will be tried for murder later.

Mrs. Harrelson, 41, is on trial for conspiracy to obstruct justice and Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, 28, is being tried for conspiracy to murder and to obstruct justice.

Defense attorney Tom Sharpe earlier appeared to have won his point when Allen gave his expert opinion that the cashier's check in Harrelson's name was bought, and Mrs. Harrelson made a $500 deposit, at separate windows within a 15-minute period between 9:45 a.m. and 11 a.m. on May 29, 1979.

Wood, 63, was shot to death about 8:30 a.m. that same day in San Antonio, 272 miles away from Dallas.

Allen also diluted previous testimony by former teller Sheryl Mendoza, who testified she remembered selling the cashier's check to a man fitting Harrelson's description. A month later, she said, she identified a picture of Harrelson as the purchaser.

The bank official said a thorough search of bank records showed the cashier's check must have been paid for in cash, not with several checks as Mrs. Mendoza recalled. He said there also was no record of Mrs. Mendoza asking for any identification and writing down a number from an Oregon driver's license as she testified.

Sharpe also presented testimony this week from a doorman and a hairstylist who said they saw Harrelson in Dallas between 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. the day of the killing.

Only San Antonio attorney Chrys Lambros identified Harrelson as being at the DiJon Townhomes shortly before Wood was murdered.

Child ordered held by Missouri authorities

POTOSI, Mo. (AP) — A 2-year-old girl allegedly sold by her mother to a Texas couple for $2,700 will remain in the custody of the Missouri Division of Family Services until January.

Special Judge Charles Weber issued that order Wednesday in the juvenile court case. Weber said Terri Lynne Harbison would be placed in a foster home until Jan. 3, the date of a "full-blown" custody hearing.

The child's father, Terry W. Fortner, 35, of Irondale, is seeking custody of Terri and her 3-year-old sister in a suit he filed in circuit court.

Sylvia Jean Harbison, 27, remained in the Washington County Jail in lieu of bond set at $7,500 on a charge of child abuse. She was arrested Nov. 8 at Bunker after allegedly selling the child to the Texas couple in an Irondale cafe.

Washington County Prosecutor Mark Akers said Mr. and Mrs. Winford Stone drove to Irondale after placed in touch with Mrs. Harbison through Adoption Hotline, Inc., a Miami-based referral service.

"Mr. and Mrs. Stone called the hot line because they wanted to adopt a newborn child," Akers said. "Someone at the hot line told them they didn't have a newborn but knew of a 2-year-old they could adopt."

In the presence of witnesses at the Irondale cafe, Mrs. Harbison signed papers awarding custody of Terri Lynne to the Stones, who were obtaining the child for another couple in Texas, the prosecutor said.

In Miami, surprise and dismay over the legal entanglement was expressed by Harriet Lauer, the operator of Adoption Hotline Inc. from her home along with her husband.

Mrs. Lauer said her service was designed solely to place prospective adoptive parents with pregnant women who wanted to give up their babies.

"Since we began in 1979, I have never placed a live child," she said.

Missouri is one of 46 states belonging to regulations known as the Interstate Compact for Placement of Children, requiring state permission before a child can be taken out of the state.

"I had no idea the Stones would do what they did," Mrs. Lauer told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in a copyright story. "They had friends who had been looking for 11 years and just wanted a child."

Mrs. Harbison is a divorcee who had lived with Fortner for several years.

Golden arches coming down on Kroc's first McDonald's outlet

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — The first hamburger stand to wear the golden arches of the McDonald's fast-food empire will cook its last Big Mac next year, unable to match the sit-down or drive-through services of newer competitors.

McDonald's Corp., based in Oak Brook, Ill., announced this week it will shut down the aging store sometime in 1983 in favor of a new, more modern McDonald's across the street.

The company wants to give its customers in this northwest Chicago suburb the features of the 1980s that the flagship restaurant, built in 1955, cannot offer.

Some local residents agreed with the decision.

"It's not the pyramids. It's probably the lowest-class McDonald's I've ever been in, in terms of amenities," said Bruce Kratky, of Mount Prospect. "I wouldn't support a movement to save it."

But others felt the restaurant is a landmark.

"It should stay here — it's the first one," Ed Denekas of Des Plaines said as he munched on a hamburger.

The franchise owners say they haven't decided if the building will be demolished.

Company founder Ray Kroc took the wraps off the red-and-white tile stand on April 15, 1955, after obtaining franchise rights from two brothers who had a successful hamburger stand in California called McDonald's.

Kroc's stand had golden arches on each side of its roof. The arches became the symbol of a fast-food empire that now has 7,000 restaurants around the globe, with 500 new outlets opening every year. McDonald's rang up sales of $7.1 billion in 1981.

Over the years, the restaurant here was renovated with the brown brick found on most McDonald's, and some of the original walls were shifted around to enlarge the kitchen.

The outlet is profitable, but "we don't have enough physical space to offer modern conveniences for customers," said Win Christiansen, McDonald's vice president for the Chicago area.

The original restaurant lacks the inside seating capacity and drive-up window that the company considers ideal, Christiansen said.

The larger restaurant to be built across the street will devote its decor to the history of McDonald's.

James R. Williams, president of the Des Plaines Historical Society, would like the company to preserve the restaurant as a museum.

But McDonald's officials say a museum isn't practical because of the way the building has been modified.

New country casual look from Thomasville

A more casual look, whether it's in the Great Room or a more formal setting, seems more popular today than ever. Why? Because it reflects today's more casual lifestyles and takes on just the look you want.

And Thomasville's "Forest Oaks" dining room may be the best of the bunch. Rich knotty oak solids and veneers provide to expressive graining, and the finish is a light, natural tone that blends beautifully with almost any decor.

The design, too, is distinctive — from the layered look to the all-wood molding drawers to the charm and character of the wooden door and drawer pulls. All in all "Forest Oaks" offers just the look and quality you want... at a price you can afford.

Group set, withdrew threat deadline, TV station says

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — A group threatening to destroy Amoco Oil Co. facilities says it will wait until security is decreased before executing its threats unless the firm rehires fired workers, a Houston television station reported.

KHOU-TV said Wednesday night that "The People's Worker Revolution" (sic) Committee for Worker Justice demanded in its first letter, delivered Nov. 4, that Amoco rehire the workers by Friday.

If the company, which runs the nation's third-largest refinery here, does not meet the demand, the group said it would seriously damage Amoco's property, the station said.

But the group withdrew the deadline in a message the company received Tuesday, the station said.

The second letter said that unless former employees are rehired, "we are prepared to move against any Amoco facility, office, well, refinery, unit or their property," the Houston Chronicle reported.

"It is up to you gentleman (sic) either pay out a few thousand dollars and bring these people back to work or risk losing millions or even billions in repair or replacement costs," it read.

Chronicle reporter Barbara Shook, who received a copy of the second letter, said the message did not contain a reference to a deadline. She declined to elaborate on its contents beyond the excerpts the newspaper has printed.

Union members met in morning and evening sessions Wednesday to discuss the threats.

"The membership is very concerned about the contents of the letters," said Billie Jones, secretary-treasurer of Local 4-449 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union.

Amoco spokesman John Vesey said he could not discuss the threats.

Cities Service Gas Co. has a new name

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Northwest Energy Co. announced Wednesday it has changed the name of its newly acquired Cities Service Gas Co. to Northwest Central Pipeline Corp.

John G. McMillian, Northwest Energy chairman and chief executive officer, said the change is to aid in the integration of Cities Service Gas into the Northwest Energy group of companies and to help avoid confusion with the Cities Service Co.

McMillian also said the use of the word "Central" in the title helps define the geographic area the company serves.

The company buys transports and sells natural gas to distributors and industrial customers in the mid-continent area of the United States, primarily in Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Texas.

Northwest Energy, a Salt Lake City, Utah-based company, acquired all 450,000 common shares of Cities Service Gas stock on Nov. 12.

Northwest Central will operate as an independent subsidiary with its headquarters remaining in Oklahoma City.

Collector of toy soldiers

Malcom Forbes, 63, publisher of the magazine which bears his name, shares a laugh in Explorer Hall at the National Geographic Society Wednesday where his collection of 80,000 toy soldiers went on display in Washington. The collection, largest in the world, normally is kept in a palace in Tangier, Morocco. (AP Laserphoto)

Capital is invaded, surrenders to nostalgia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington was invaded by foreign armies today. All who saw the columns of troops were immediately overcome by nostalgia and surrendered to childhood memories.

The invaders — 12,000 strong — are antique toy soldiers from the collection of millionaire magazine publisher Malcolm Forbes, 63, who said he bought a squadron or two at an auction 15 years ago and "I just kept adding more. I couldn't resist."

Forbes' battalions went on display in the National Geographic Society's Explorer Hall, where they will remain until Easter.

His collection of 80,000 toy soldiers, the world's largest, is usually kept — "permanently garrisoned," he said — in a palace in Tangier, Morocco, where the Arabic edition of Forbes is published.

Those troops bivouacking in Washington this winter are displayed in realistic panoramas and dioramas: Aztec warriors in feather regalia battle Cortez' invading troops. The armies of Alexander the Great are locked in combat against the Persians. Rommel's motorized Afrika Korps roars through the desert.

A Norwegian polar expedition, complete with huskies, battles the snow and the cold. Hitler and Mussolini take the salute as the Nazi Wehrmacht parades past the Führer's mountain retreat. William Tell takes arrow in hand to shoot the apple off his son's head.

The collection is under the care of Britons Peter and Anne Johnson. Mrs. Johnson was an antique dealer from whom Forbes bought soldiers. They now spend part of their lives as curators, assembling the collection in Morocco.

Forbes adds to it, "but by now it is a highly selective draft," says Johnson, who turned his acquired expertise into a book, "Toy Armies."

Hot sauce not being copied

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A state district court jury has ruled that two former employees of a hot sauce manufacturing company are not using their ex-boss' recipe for their own exotic concoction.

Pace Picante Inc. filed suit against Brian Loranger and Lawrence Amstutz.

After a week of testimony, the jury ruled Wednesday that Loranger and Amstutz were not copying the formula used by Pace in the blending of picante.

published last year by Doubleday. These toys, each individually painted, cost a penny apiece when Forbes was a boy. New ones of comparable individuality might sell now for $8 each.

but rare antique soldiers can command $200 apiece, Johnson said.

He estimated the value of Forbes' collection at $1 million, but Forbes declined to say what his initial investment had been.

Second firm indicted in alleged bribery

HOUSTON (AP) — International Harvester Co. has become the second corporation indicted on a federal charge of conspiracy to bribe officials of the Mexican national oil company.

Annette De Lorenzo, vice president-corporate communications for the heavy equipment maker, said from Chicago Wednesday that Harvester would enter a guilty plea to the charge today.

Ms. De Lorenzo said the company "could not afford to enter into an extended period of litigation and would like to put the matter to rest."

Harvester joined Crawford Enterprises Inc. of Houston and nine businessmen as defendants in the case.

Earlier Wednesday in federal court here, the Justice Department filed against Harvester a one-count charge of conspiracy to violate the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act.

Ms. De Lorenzo said a statement would be submitted by the Justice Department saying "there was no evidence officers, directors or management of IH were aware of or participated in the conspiracy."

She said the maximum sentence for the offense is a $10,000 fine.

Ex-spy is convicted, but won't change story

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Edwin Wilson's lawyers say they will not back away from their claim that the former spy was working with the CIA when he sold arms to Libya, even though he was convicted in the first of four trials.

"I was awfully disappointed," said Herald Price Fahringer, Wilson's chief attorney. "Obviously we're going to appeal and hopefully we'll prevail in a higher court."

A federal court jury deliberated slightly more than four hours before finding the ex-CIA agent guilty Wednesday of seven counts of conspiracy and weapons violations for smuggling four handguns and an M-16 to Libya in return for $8 million.

The 54-year-old Wilson was found innocent of one charge of interstate transportation of four pistols from North Carolina to his Virginia estate.

The maximum penalty now faced by Wilson, who is held on $60 million bail, is 39 years in prison and a $240,000 fine. U.S. District Court Judge Richard L. Williams set sentencing for Dec. 17.

Wilson still faces three more trials. On Nov. 29, he goes to federal court in Houston for trial on a charge of allegedly shipping 20 tons of plastic explosives to Libya.

He also has two trials in the District of Columbia. On Jan. 5, trial begins on federal charges that Wilson conspired unsuccessfully to assassinate a Libyan dissident living in Egypt, and there is also a Jan. 25 trial for failure to register as a Libyan agent and for shipping military equipment to Libya for a terrorist training school.

Wednesday's verdict "shouldn't have any effect on the future trials, Fahringer said.

"We will have different judges and we may get different rulings" on motions to subpoena persons who might back up the defense claim that Wilson was connected with the CIA, he said.

The defense tried to subpoena Vice President George Bush, a former CIA director, along with former CIA deputy director Adm. Bobby R. Inman and Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord. But Judge Oren R. Lewis refused to issue the subpoenas.

Theodore Greenberg, the chief prosecutor, said there was "absolutely no evidence he was working for the CIA. The CIA is not on trial."

Small businesses set record for lowering of their prices

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of small-business firms showed that one of every five lowered its prices in the third quarter of the year, even though costs for many of the companies continued to rise.

The 20 percent rate of price-cutting was the highest ever recorded in the nine-year-old quarterly survey, conducted among companies of the National Federation of Independent Business, which claims more than 500,000 members.

"The major impetus behind the price declines has been high interest rates and weak demand," said Professor William Dunkelberg of Purdue University who, with Professor Jonathan Scott of Southern Methodist University, analyzed the results.

The pressure of high interest and low demand, he said "forced cash-hungry firms to cut prices in order to reduce inventory and maintain cash flow." In doing so, he said, many companies failed to cover their costs. The consequences are mixed. "Firms are still being squeezed," said Dunkelberg.

With interest rates falling indications are strong that some will be able to solve the cash problem by lowering costs. This is especially true, the professor said, if the recovery is strong enough to raise output-per-manhour faster than increases in wage costs.

"But," he said, "if wage gains pick up, or the recovery is too weak to substantially improve productivity, firms will have to raise prices in order to survive."

Because of weak demand the latter option seems to be denied small businesses. Only 19 percent said they planned price increases, a record low level in contrast to percentages near 70 in the 1970s.

If demand does indeed pick up, and if companies manage to keep their costs down, the beginnings of a return to financial health could begin as early as the next quarter, Dunkelberg said. Many companies have sharply lowered their breakeven points, he said, and can respond quickly to renewed economic growth.

The companies that would seem best off under such circumstances would be those without pressing needs to raise cash to retire previous obligations and "reliquify" balance sheets. But if deflation sets in — that is, a long period of falling prices, rather than simply declining rates of price increases, as in disinflation — the consequences could be serious.

Filter cigarettes don't cut down carbon monoxide

DALLAS (AP) — Filter cigarettes do not cut down on carbon monoxide, a substance in tobacco smoke linked to heart disease, according to a Massachusetts study.

"It's better to quit smoking than to switch to filter cigarettes because a safe cigarette doesn't exist," said William P. Castelli, director of the Framingham, Mass., Heart Study, at the National Heart Lung and Blood Institute.

Findings from the study were released Wednesday to 15,000 scientists, doctors and nurses at the American Heart Association's 55th Scientific Session.

Carbon monoxide is believed to lead to heart disease by weakening blood vessels. Cholesterol, which narrows and hardens arteries, is deposited more easily on carbon monoxide-weakened vessels.

"This latest finding is just another link in the chain of evidence against cigarettes," Castelli said.

Scientists in the Framingham research studied 695 middle-aged men and women and found "no indication that men who smoked filter cigarettes had lower carbon monoxide levels than nonfilter users."

Filters do cut down on tar and nicotine, reducing the risks of lung cancer.

Money talks

Monument to free enterprise is set to open this weekend

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Spurred by a Gallup poll and nurtured by a conservative Christian college, the Disneyland of capitalism — Enterprise Square USA — opens Saturday as a $15 million monument to the free enterprise system.

Through high-tech exhibits ranging from animated puppets to computers and laser discs, visitors of all ages will be able to see what makes capitalism work — and how they're part of it.

"The project began with a Gallup poll in 1975 which showed that college students were very misinformed about our economic system," said J. Terry Johnson, president of Oklahoma Christian College, a Church of Christ institution in Oklahoma City.

"We said that is an educational problem," he recalled Monday, saying there was a need to explain economics "with a delivery that would really communicate with young people."

The result, developed by the college and funded by private sources, is a futuristic building housing 35 computers, 111 color television monitors, 73 video disc players, 130 projectors, 47 touch-screen computer monitors and 10 mechanical figures that explain the principles of capitalism from the law of supply and demand to the relationship of interest rates to profits.

"It is different from anything found anywhere else in the country," Johnson said of the three-story, 60,000-square-foot center. "It is not an amusement park and it is not a static museum. It's somewhere in between."

In the "Free to Try" section, the visitors are shown how free enterprise brought down the price of hand-held calculators, while a display leading out of the room compares world economic systems.

"This was one of the most difficult projects to complete," said Ritts as he stood before the "Great Talking Face of Government," a tall, head-shaped figure that contains nine video screens and speakers. Its message is that government is vital to protect the people and to referee among them, but causes problems when it oversteps its bounds.

Nearby is the Time Tunnel. "When Enterprise Square opens each morning, the time will be 1900 in the game center," Johnson said. "The time advances one year every six minutes, and at closing time it will be 1980. Overhead screens will show scenes from the appropriate time period, while music of that era will be played."

In the game center are 46 "touch screen" computer consoles. Visitors pick one of six possible occupations — farmer, oil producer, dress store manager, trucker, investor or automobile manufacturer — and touch the screen to get their decisions on running each business.

Each occupation has its own business consultant who offers advice.

Computer and laser-disc technology feed the appropriate data to the terminal for the year involved so a farmer in the 1930s could be facing a Dust Bowl or an investor in 1929 could suffer through the stock market collapse.

Almost half of Texas' most powerful men are Houstonians

By TERRY LEONARD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — The avenues to power here are as congested as the freeways and traveled by men as oily smooth as the product of this boom town's principal industry.

This city is high-rise, high-rent and high-powered. It is the can-do capital of Texas. And in a state where big money talks, Houston is a place where it shouts.

Houstonians comprise about half of the top vote-getters in an Associated Press survey of 168 influential Texans asked to identify the most powerful Texans.

They are rich, mostly self-made people who etched their names on this town and gave it more clout than the other tall Texas cities.

"It may be the traditions of Houston" that are responsible for its disproportionate influence, said former mayor and now Chamber of Commerce President Louie Welch.

"It was established in an unlikely swamp with mosquitoes, high humidity and shallow draft water. It became a deep sea port by going out and getting an ocean and pulling it in," said Welch.

But whatever the reason, this sprawling city that soars above the coastal plain is bulging with influence.

Vice President George Bush is a Houstonian, as is former Gov. John Connally, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and White House Chief of Staff James Baker.

Houston developer Walter Mischer got more votes than any other Texan who has not held public office. And the AP survey gave high marks to Welch, retired shipping and construction magnate George Brown, super banker Ben Love, Mayor Kathy Whitmire and Houston Post Chairman and Editor Oveta Culp Hobby.

Houstonians, contends Mischer, wield more influence because they participate more.

"Best I can tell, there seems to be more entrepreneurial people in Houston than in any other place in the state.

"You can do anything you're big enough to do down here," he said. "What makes Houston so great is there is no restrictions — everybody is accepted. If you have been here four generations or not doesn't make a damn."

Mischer is a short, graying, spectacled man with a far-sighted approach and a Midas touch in business. He runs his multimillion-dollar empire from a roll-top desk pushed against a wall in a modest office adorned with a Southwestern landscape and a portrait of toiling campesinos.

He is a bed-rock conservative entrenched in the belief that what is good for business generally is good for Texas, the nation and the Free World.

"If business does well," explains Mischer, "everybody will do well. If they don't do well, all the people working for them don't do well and taxes don't get paid."

But most of all, Mischer is a participator, a man who unabashedly uses his personal fortune and magnetism for what he deems the public good — a sunny business climate.

"Through his business acumen, Walter has assembled tremendous and far-reaching economic power and he is not hesitant to contribute — to those causes, political or philanthropic, which he thinks are just," said one West Texan who asked not to be identified.

If Houston, as one influential insider said, is the Super Bowl of political fundraising, then Mischer is a starting quarterback.

"He has succeeded George Brown and the late Judge (James A.) Elkins as the jefe of Houston conservative politics. He can raise vast amounts of political money because his support provides such credibility in the business community. I have never known him to ask for nobody can come up with a solution that would be somewhat fair. ... I don't know what the answer is," said Mischer.

And despite his phenomenal gift for raising money for conservative candidates, Mischer has emerged as one of the few influential Houstonians with no vocal political enemies.

"I don't try to punish anybody who disagrees with me politically," said Mischer. "That's everybody's business."

Mischer may have succeeded Brown as the boss of Houston conservative politics, but the enormously wealthy 83-year-old retired head of Brown & Root remains a force in Texas.

"George Brown is still the primary bellwether of the group of people in Houston who, in any informal association, can raise more money for a political or public cause than can any other group in Texas," said one survey respondent.

He was a member of the controversial 8-F crowd, a half-dozen powerful businessmen who met regularly in suite 8-F of Houston's Lamar Hotel.

The group — depending on who you listen to in Houston — was either puppetmasters pulling political strings for personal gain or master builders concerned only with the betterment of Houston.

"If you didn't have this group on your side, by George, you might win the election, but you'd have a hard time," former Mayor Lewis Cutler once told a Houston newspaper.

"The 8-F group was issue-oriented," contends Welch. "I am confident candidates for governor would seek the support of the members of that group. You had to look for support from that group, but they were not always together, they supported different people."

Brown's controversial ties to the powerful politicians went beyond his membership in the 8-F crowd.

He amassed a personal fortune, which Forbes Magazine estimated to exceed $100 million, from a global business empire that relied heavily on government contracts.

In 1942, the Internal Revenue Service began an investigation into what it called excessive contributions by Brown and his late brother, Herman, to the senate campaign of George's good friend, Lyndon Johnson. No action was taken after the inquiry ended suddenly in 1944.

Later, Johnson would boast about all the dams and defense work he secured for Texas, work often performed by Brown & Root.

"Texas," once remarked the late Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, "is a state with one senator from Standard Oil and another from Brown & Root."

Brown, in an interview with the Houston Chronicle, remained unapologetic about the brothers' political involvement.

"We always believed in good government and in keeping good people in office. Those things go hand-in-hand. There's a place for both," he said.

Love's influence is based on his position as chairman and chief executive officer of the state's largest bank holding company.

"Ben Love has very heavy financial clout with banks all over the state," said one San Antonio businessman in the survey who asked not to be identified.

"His interests in civic and charitable affairs have also been of great influence," said a Fort Worth attorney who asked not to be identified.

But some in Houston's inner circle say that while Love is a good man who has done a tremendous job at Texas Commerce Bancshares, he lacks the personal touch of the truly powerful.

"Well, Ben doesn't get as involved as other folks ... he doesn't give of his time as the others do," said a Houston businessman who declined to be identified.

Welch, on the other hand, is a man whose chief contribution is his time and his eloquence as a spokesman for Houston and its business interests.

"I don't shape things or make things move in the sense of power structure," said Welch. "My activities have been primarily in the field of local government. I fight to keep local government strong, not just in Houston, but nationally."

As the president of Houston's Chamber of Commerce, Welch rubs elbows daily with the men and women who have forged Houston into what Welch calls a "world city."

"The Houston Chamber of Commerce Board probably is as powerful an association of business people that meets anywhere in the United States on a frequent basis," said Welch.

The weight of Houston's influence is enhanced by the clout of the men it sent to high public office.

Visions of elegance dancing through the night

Photography by Bruce Lee Smith
Fantasy by Dee Dee Laramore

Imagine sweeping down a spiral staircase brightly illuminated by a sparkling, crystal chandelier. You are ready to meet a handsome cavalier, dressed in a shimmering pink taffeta party gown (left inset in bottom photo) accenting your white shoulders with a ruffled neckline. Flowers and jaunty tie are of the same fabric. Gown is by "Vicky Vaughn" Victoria.

Or can you see yourself as a sultry siren (photo at right) reclining before the fireplace drinking a hot toddy from a silver goblet. This sleek, sexy ensemble is a white wrap studded with flashing rhinestones by Halston.

Think of being a knockout at a high society bash back East in a black beaded silk blouse with dolman sleeves by Halston. Slip these designers top over a black, petal skirt by Judith Ann. Lovely dreams.

What girl hasn't dreamed of a gala evening filled with beautiful women dressed in satins and furs, dancing in an elegant setting such as a country house in England. What girl hasn't fantasized of such things, especially as the holiday season approaches?

Dream of a romantic, full-length evening gown in taffeta featuring an empire waist and ruffled scooped neckline.

Glamour and fantasy in romantic lingerie

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Despite all the "warm wear" brushed nylons, holidays still mean something glamorous in lingerie. Three themes stand out: the '30s movie-star looks, the Oriental fantasies and the youthful sport looks, now often in colorful geometric art deco

The art deco influence at Natori shows up in overlapping oval appliques of Chinese red on an oyster satin gown. At St. Lamont, it's gold trapunto art deco detailing on a satin gown and robe. The Victorian lace influence turns art deco at Vanity Fair when it's boldly saw-toothed at top and bottom of a teddy.

ORIENTAL INFLUENCE in holiday lingerie is interpreted by Kayser in satiny Lurelon nylon by American Enka, printed in a Japanese wave pattern of rose on pale gray. Bare-top, side-slit glamour can be topped with a cozy quilted butterfly jacket.

Fashion

designs. The movie star look gets a big boost from the return of Qiana in woven satin, seen in pajamas, slinky sleep gowns and the kind of tap pant-camisole underthings associated with chorus girl characters in all those old-time musicals.

Kayser offers the sexy gown, with gathered bra top, and high side slit, plus a comfy quilted jacket whose butterfly cut bows to the Oriental theme, as does the fabric, soft Lurelon nylon printed in a Japanese wave pattern of rose on pale gray.

At Royal Robes, the Japanese kimono becomes an obi-wrapped cream-color robe piped in black, made of practical Silky Touch polyester.

The '20s look at Barad is interpreted by Tom Bezuda in a lace-topped, peplumed camisole and soft knicker underpant, both in satiny Enkalure nylon. The glamour of the '30s at Eve Stillman shows in a bias-cut slinky gown of pink satin, banded diagonally at the hip in cream lace. Fernando Sanchez pleats fans of satin to edge his black satin glamour gown.

Running all through the lingerie themes is that perennial holiday favorite, black. Romantic at Henson-Kickernick with white eyelet lace, it's sophisticated at Givenchy with lace sleeves on black velvet, and it's a bias-cut slinky gown at Vanity Fair.

Dear Abby

Campaign offers chance for fresh start

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow will mark the Sixth Annual Great American Smokeout, an upbeat, good-humored, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to quit smoking for 24 hours — just to prove to themselves that they can do it.

The idea was conceived by the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever. So, if you're hooked on cigarettes (or cigars) and really want to quit, why not start tomorrow — for just 24 hours?

Quitting "cold turkey," I am told, is the hardest way to quit, but those who know say it's the most effective and, in the long run, the easiest way. Cutting down is less traumatic, but the temptation to smoke is often too powerful to resist while smoking one, two or three cigarettes a day.

Coincidentally, tomorrow marks the first anniversary of the opening of the Non-Smokers Inn, a motel in Dallas. The man who built and owns it is Lyndon Sanders, a native Texan, who hopes to build other Non-Smokers Inns.

When I phoned Mr. Sanders to learn more about the Non-Smokers Inn, he said: "Smoking killed my father and my uncle, and I don't know how many of my friends. I'm sure that a motel for non-smokers can succeed because in 1974 I tried it out in Albuquerque, N.M., offering a non-smoking wing. I started with 15 rooms, and now there are 108!"

"In the Non-Smokers Inn in Dallas I offer luxurious rooms at bargain prices for non-smokers only. When a person registers, he is asked to sign a note stating that he will not smoke on the premises, and neither will he permit anyone visiting him to smoke. Anyone caught violating that oath will be evicted and fined $100 to pay for cleaning the room."

"Smoke stinks up everything. We have to take down the draperies, shampoo the carpets, strip the beds — even clean the shower curtains. You should see the yellow nicotine stains on the cleaning rags. I tell you, it would make a bizzard gag!"

I asked Mr. Sanders if he was prepared to handle any legal problems should a smoker be refused admittance to this motel or, heaven forbid, light up on the premises and face eviction. His reply, "I just want to know which courthouse to go to. I'll be there with my lawyers, and I'll fight it all the way to the Supreme Court if I have to."

"How about the rights of smokers?" you ask. Of course they are entitled to smoke if they wish. But they will have to find a place where they can smoke to their hearts' content without offending those who can't tolerate it.

So, Readers, if you're hooked on cigarettes and have been telling yourself, "One of these days I've got to quit," why not start tomorrow just for 24 hours?

It won't be easy, but I promise you, it will be the best holiday present you can give yourself — and those who love you.

ABBY

P.S. To repeat one of the most poignant letters I've ever received:

"DEAR ABBY: I just have to share this with somebody! My 5-year-old son said, 'Mommy, do you know what I want for Christmas most of all?'"

"I thought to myself, 'That little con artist — I wonder what he wants now?' His answer knocked me right off my feet. He said, 'All I want is a mommy who doesn't smoke anymore. I love you very much and want you to live for a loooooong time.' Then he put his chubby arms around my neck and kissed me."

"I had to wipe away a tear. It's been two weeks, and I haven't had a cigarette since. I don't think I will ever smoke again. Wish me luck."

NANCY IN KANSAS CITY

"DEAR NANCY: I wish you luck. And kiss your beautiful son for me."

Local 4-H'ers win at food show

Eight youngsters took top honors in the Gray County 4-H Food Show Saturday, Nov. 13, at the Gray County Courthouse Annex.

Winners earned first place awards in two divisions — senior and junior. Each division had four classes.

First place winners in the senior division are Sena Brainard of Pampa, main dish; Renee Alexander of Pampa, fruit and vegetable and Donna Eakin of Pampa, bread and cereal.

First place winners in the junior division are Kelly Harris of Pampa, main dish; Beck Reed of Pampa, fruit and vegetable; Stacy McDonald of Pampa, bread and cereal and Sherri McDonald of Pampa, nutritious snacks and desserts.

These 4-H'ers will represent Gray County at the District Food Show Saturday, Dec. 4.

Other awards presented were Outstanding Pee Wee, Amy Eakin of Pampa; Outstanding Rookie, Kevin Collingsworth of Pampa and Best Chef, Scot Hahn of Pampa.

The 4-H Food Show is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Morrison Milling Company of Denton.

Pampa Masonic Lodge celebrates 75th anniversary Saturday

J. M. (Jimmy) Willson of Floydada, the state's highest official in the Masonic Lodge, will be here Nov. 20 to help Pampa's Masonic Lodge No. 966 celebrate its 75th anniversary. Lodge No. 966 received its charter on Dec. 6, 1907. In order to celebrate the occasion, all Masons and their families are invited to a barbeque from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday at the Shriner's Sportsman Club on South Barnes street, one mile south of the city.

Following the barbeque at 6:30 p.m., an open lodge will be conducted at the lodge hall at 420 W. Kingsmill. Most Worshipful Grand Master for Texas, Jimmy Willson, will be received at this time.

The anniversary program begins at 7 p.m. for Masons, their families and guests. A short reception for Willson will end the celebration activities.

Job-hunting advice booklet is popular

By JOHN STRACHAN, Associated Press Writer ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — With the market for self-improvement and "how-to" books growing as fast as the labor market is shrinking, the message is clear — someone should write a book to tell people how to get a job.

The New York state Labor Department did just that a decade ago with the initial publication of "Guide To Preparing a Resume." If it's not a best seller, it's only because the 22-page booklet has not been sold — it has been offered free to anyone who wanted a copy.

Much has changed for job-seekers since the first edition came out 10 years ago.

Unemployment is up. It costs more to look for work. First-class postage for mailing resumes has jumped from 8 cents in 1972 to 20 cents.

And, inflation and divorce rates have climbed as fast as the unemployment rate.

That means more women thrust into the job market to augment a husband's paycheck or to make up for the paycheck that departed along with the divorced husband.

One of the nine sample resumes detailed in the booklet is specifically designed for women re-entering the job market. There are others for job-seekers with only a high school education, recent college graduates and workers with considerable experience.

In addition to tips on how to prepare an effective resume and cover letter, the booklet dispenses advice on what to do before, during and after an interview.

The advice is often common sense in nature and aimed at the young, first-time job-seeker who learns, for instance, that you don't take anyone with you to an interview, do dress conservatively and be on time.

But those who've been down the interview road before, particularly those who haven't traveled it lately, can still pick up some tips on the do's and don'ts of job-seeking.

Harvesters eye another state trip

Don't bet against the Pampa Harvesters making a second consecutive trip the state basketball tournament in 1983. You might have better odds betting against the sun coming up in the east tomorrow morning.

The Harvesters have experience, height, speed and depth and are ranked No. 2 in pre-season Class 4A polls by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches.

Last season, the Harvesters reached the state tournament for the first time since 1959.

"We're going to be pressing and fast breaking a lot this year," said Garland Nichols, who begins his fourth year at the Harvester helm. "We're working hard on cutting down on little mistakes and shaping up our defense."

Leading Pampa's 1982-83 is all-everything senior Mike Nelson and 6-6 junior Coyle Winborn, who turned into a clutch performer down the stretch last year.

Nelson, a 6-3 forward, led Pampa in three categories—scoring (19.2), assists (7.1) and steals (2.7)—as the Harvesters compiled a 29-5 record enroute to the Class 5A state tournament. Nelson, already the Harvesters' all-time assist leader, is closing in on two other school records. He needs 210 points to be the all-time scoring leader and approximately 80 rebounds to be the top rebounder in school history. Nelson just missed breaking the single-game scoring mark (42) when he hit for 40 points last season against Clovis, N.M.

"Hardly a day goes by that I haven't received a call from a college coach wanting to know about Mike," Nichols said.

Winborn, who was District 3-5A's Sophomore of the Year, turned in his best efforts during the second half of the season. Winborn hit for a dozen points in Pampa's district playoff win over Tascosa and the bi-district victory over Plainview. He finished with 15 points in Pampa's loss to San Antonio Churchill in the state semifinals.

Phil Jeffrey, a 6-6 senior who averaged 6.1 ppg in a reserve role last season, is expected to play a key role in Pampa's playoff drive. Jeffrey missed five games last season with a sprained ankle.

"Phil has really improved," Nichols said. "He can really get up in the air."

Senior guard Terry Ferguson, a parttime starter a year ago, is expected to team with junior transfer Alfred Buchanan in the backcourt. Buchanan averaged 13 points a game while playing for Kansas City Schlagle last season and Ferguson was an honorable mention all-district pick.

Others bidding for a starting job are 5-11 senior guard Clayton Johnson, 5-11 senior guard Tony Morgan, 5-10 junior guard Randy Harris, 5-9 junior guard Craig Chapin, 6-2 senior forward Randy Skaggs and 6-4 junior forward-center Marty Cross.

Pampa opens the 1982-83 season Monday night against Amarillo High on the Sandies' home court. The Harvesters return home the next night to host Palo Duro.

Mike Nelson... The perfect player returns for his last season.

Panhandle clashes with Hale Center

Panhandle Head Coach Stocky Lamberson hopes to shore up the Warriors' defensive ramparts against Hale Center's offense in Friday night's Class 2A Area football game at Hereford.

"Hale Center has a real explosive offense," Lamberson said. "They're not the type of team that drives the ball very much. They're a big-play team."

Hale Center is averaging 40.1 points per game and has registered three shutouts this season.

Both teams have the same quickness, but Hale Center has the size advantage on the offensive and defensive lines.

Running back Joe Davis is Hale Center's game-breaker while 225-pound tackle David Pardoe leads the defense.

Hale Center enters the game with a 9-0-2 record while Panhandle is 8-2-1. Hale Center tied Hamlin in its bi-district play, but advanced on first downs. The Warriors, who were runrushed in District 2-2A, downed Stratford, 35-6, to win the bi-district title.

Panhandle's offense is led by Stacy Rusk, who has rushed for 1,568 yards this season.

This is Panhandle third consecutive trip into the playoffs, but the Warriors failed to advance past bi-district last season after losing to Clarendon.

Panhandle's offense and defense was the best in 2-2A this season. The Warriors' offense scored 299 points while their defense limited the opposition to 83 points while recording two shutouts.

NFL camps open for practice

By MIKE EMBRY
AP Sports Writer

Although the Detroit Lions, Chicago Bears and New York Jets are getting a late start in returning to training camps, it's better late than never with the NFL season resuming Sunday.

Twenty-five of the 28 clubs were either taking physicals or resuming practices by midday Wednesday.

But the Lions refused to return to practice, saying they didn't agree with the tentative agreement that ended the 57-day players' strike.

Co-captain Keith Dorney read a prepared statement to reporters of the players' position on the season, but refused to cite specifics.

"As a statement of our disapproval, we are not reporting to practice until tomorrow," he said. "We're returning at the insistence of the players association. We'll begin preparing for the Bears game tomorrow."

The Bears scheduled a morning workout, but refused to take the field until meeting with player representative Brian Baschnagel. The players did take physicals and said they would practice today.

And Jets management closed camp because union chief Ed Garvey hadn't signed the agreement.

Har-rumph!

Bucks eye classic Wolverine skin

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Pigskin Prophet

Egad, friends, college football indeed reaches its zenith this week with traditional battles dominating the schedule. Um-kumph!

Imagine, if — kaff-kaff — you can the tension for the players on the field and the emotion in the stands as students and old grads gather to cheer their favorites.

Top contests include: Ohio State vs. Michigan, their 79th meeting; UCLA against Southern California, for the 52nd time; SMU vs. Arkansas, their 58th renewal; North Carolina and next-door neighbor Duke, for the 69th time, and THE GAME, Harvard vs. Yale, their 99th performance Har-rumph!

The Hoople Scouts have — hak-kaff — carefully evaluated the strength and weaknesses of these clubs. Here is how we are calling 'em:

A mid-season slump kept Ohio State from living up to our — ahem — lofty pre-season predictions. But the Buckeyes are now back on track and playing top-notch football. We look for the Bucks to stun the Michigan Wolverines, 24-21, much to the delight of the partisan Columbus, Ohio, crowd!

The Southern California Trojans are prohibited from representing the Pac-10 in the Rose Bowl this year. So, their appearance against UCLA on the Rose Bowl turf this Saturday will have to be their "bowl" game for the season. The Trojans lead 30-15-6 in their series with the UCLA Bruins. We see Southern Cal recording another victory, 24-21, despite a sterling performance by Tom Ramsey, UCLA's all-time leading passer and No. 1 in the nation this year!

The Southern Methodist-Arkansas fray has all the makings of an upset. But we look for coach Bobby Collins and his Mustangs to be on their guard — and on their game. The SMU Pony Express (Eric Dickerson and Craig James) will lead them to a close, 31-28, triumph against Arkansas! The fans will come early and stay late for this crowd-pleaser Har-rumph!

The North Carolina and Duke campuses are so close together you can walk back and forth, if you are in a walking mood. This week's contest will be just as close. The Carolina Tar Heels rate the Hoople nod to down the Duke Blue Devils, 22-21!

Now for THE GAME. 'Tis sad to report to my fellow Yale followers, the Old Blue is in for a difficult afternoon against the sons of John Harvard. The word from the banks of the Charles River is that Harvard has too many guns this year. Harvard will prevail, 24-19, but not without knowing it has been in a battle. Boola-Boola!

In another big contest worthy of your attention, the Florida State Seminoles will stun the football world and the whole state of Louisiana as they knock off the host LSU Tigers, 31-28, in an old-fashioned barn-burner.

Notre Dame, meanwhile, will run its all-time record to 12-0 against the Air Force with a 27-21 victory. But the Irish had best keep their wits about them or the Falcons could shoot 'em down.

And Pittsburgh will warm-up for its big one with Penn State next week by turning back a fine Rutgers crew, 33-17. Har-rumph!

Getting back to some more long-time foes who will square off on Saturday, the list includes: Missouri vs. Kansas, for the 91st time; Clemson and South Carolina, their 80th pigskin war; Purdue and Indiana, for the 85th time; Mississippi vs. Mississippi State, the 78th renewal — and ditto for Tennessee and Kentucky, and Boston College and Holy Cross. For VMI and Virginia Tech it will be their 77th meeting, the 75th for Washington and Washington State, the 68th for Texas and Baylor, and the 57th renewal for Maryland and Virginia.

Here is how your Hoople System sees these games:

The Missouri Tigers will down Kansas, 23-13. Clemson will take the measure of intra-state foe South Carolina, 35-11, and the Mississippi Rebels will squeak out a three-point win over the Mississippi State Bulldogs, 27-24.

Purdue's Boilermaker's, led by passer deluxe Scott Campbell, will shade Indiana, 28-24, the Tennessee Vols will subdue Kentucky's Wildcats, 26-15, and the Boston College Eagles will soar past the Holy Cross Crusaders, 22-20. Um-kumph!

Virginia Tech is too powerful for the Keydets of Virginia Military and will win, 30-14; Washington's Huskies will down Washington State, 33-14; Texas will — heh-heh — twist the tails of the Baylor Bears, 33-14; and the Maryland Terps will outscore the Cavaliers of Virginia, 26-6.

Strateline: Sports

By L.D. STRATE

Pampa's opposition didn't exactly inflict heavy damage on the Harvesters in a one-victory football season.

Going into the locker room at halftime there were six of those seven losses that were a tossup.

"The only game I felt bad about was Hereford (Pampa lost, 34-6)," Pampa Head Coach John Kendall said. "They just went wild on us."

Pampa's 1-7-2 record doesn't look so bad if you take a look at the halftime scores in the losing games. Pampa trailed Berger and Estacado by a touchdown, Dunbar by three points, and was locked in a scoreless tie with Perryton and Canyon at intermission. Pampa trailed Clovis, 10-0, at halftime. Only Hereford had a commanding 26-0 lead.

In the ties with Dumas (3-3) and Levelland (8-8), the Harvesters were trailing at the half.

A half does not a game make, but it sometimes indicates how close a loser came to being a winner, or vice-versa.

Here's an interesting tidbit from Delores Gardner, a member of the Harvester Booster Club.

There were 19 players on this year's Pampa High football team who played in the Tiger Little League six years ago, according to a roster Mrs. Gardner found.

Robert Hornback, Randy Skaggs, Wade Gardner, Ricky Baird and Darrin Rice played for the Browns.

Ricky Stout, Todd Richardson, Glen Eggleston, Greg Brown and Devin Cross played for the Cardinals.

Devin Mason, Randy Parsley, Kip Hutto, David Sokolosky, Steve Seely and Brad Voyles played for the Colts.

Swasey Brainard, Jeff Steward and Aaron Anderwald played for the Packers.

The Panhandle-Hale Center Class 3A Area football game Friday night in Hereford will be aired on KOMX-FM radio.

Brad Mink will be doing the play-by-play, starting at 7:15 p.m.

Pampa's 1982-83 basketball schedule includes two prestigious tournaments at Fort Worth.

The Lions Club Tournament is set for Dec. 2-4 with Pampa meeting Grand Prairie in first-round action.

The Birdville Tournament will be held Dec. 28-30, featuring powerful DeMatha High School of Washington, D.C. which has spawned several NBA stars.

Several of the tournament teams will be taller and physically stronger than the No. 2-ranked Harvesters, but that's what Coach Garland Nichols is hoping for.

"The main reason for scheduling these tournaments is to play some big, aggressive teams before we go into district play," Nichols said. "We got pushed around by San Antonio in the state tournament last year and I want to try to keep that from happening again."

Flashback: Nov. 1973. White Deer defeated Gruver, 7-0, on Buddy Cummins three-yard TD run in the first quarter. Danny Joe Stephenson was the Bucks' leading rusher with 103 yards on 17 carries.

NFL strike causes huge loss in revenues

DALLAS (AP) — When National Football League players go back to work Sunday, stadium employees, government officials and the owners of hotels, restaurants and charter bus lines will join fans in cheering the end of the 57-day strike.

Millions of dollars in revenues were lost when the players' strike forced Texas' two professional football teams to cancel eight games each this season.

Also counted among the losers are part-time stadium employees and non-profit associations that operate concession stands.

In addition, the state of Texas lost thousands of dollars in sales taxes from ticket sales and concessions.

And more than $1 million may have been lost by non-profit organizations who run almost all the concession booths in Texas Stadium in Irving and several in the Astrodome in Houston.

Mike Benton, executive director of the Irving Convention and Tourist Bureau, said the booth run by his church — the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer in Irving — makes about $17,000 a season from Cowboys games.

"And when you're talking about 28 cities leaguewide, you are talking about megabucks," Benton said.

Benton and other spokesmen said there is no way to recoup the heavy financial losses from the strike.

About 11,000 people are employed for each Cowboys' game to operate profit-making concessions, provide maintenance and security and park cars, Benton said.

"All those people are termed casual employees. They're not on our payroll per se ... They just weren't working when the Cowboys would have been playing," Bert Rose, vice president of marketing at the stadium, said.

"It's just another gauge of how the strike impacted a lot of people other than the players and the owners," he said.

At the Astrodome, about 400 people are paid to work Oilers' games on "an event basis," said Robert G. Harter, president of the Houston Sports Association that operates the Astrodome.

Irving hotels and retail operations such as stores and restaurants lost at least $800,000 in business from out-of-towners, Benton said.

Leonard Rolston, president of the Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council, said the strike may not have hurt the Houston economy directly, but its effects were evident.

"The most important effect of the strike to us is that the Oilers are a highly visible entertainment industry that focuses a lot of attention on our city, especially when they are winning," Rolston said.

"The 'Luv Ya Blue' enthusiasm and the Oilers' successful seasons have been good for Houston. And when they were on strike, the advertising value of having the Oilers in the community was lost," he said.

Texas Stadium still is repaying construction bonds to the City of Irving, a Dallas suburb, and "we just can't recover the ones that are gone," said Rose.

"So we're just absent that many thousands of dollars for this year. They're gone; they're irretrievable," Rose said.

Rose said he couldn't "deal in dollars." But at $15 a ticket and 65,000 stadium seats, $975,000 was lost in ticket revenues for each game — for an eight-game total of $7.8 million.

Rose said Southern Methodist football games and high school football playoff games have helped keep Texas Stadium in business during the strike.

The Astrodome's Harter said "every game not played meant a six-figure dollar loss to us. This includes not only rent from the Oilers but also parking revenue and our share of concessions." He declined to discuss specific figures.

HSA officials had hoped to sponsor several events to compensate for some lost

Court rules against UIL

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In a decision that might have great impact on public school athletics, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the University Interscholastic League is not a state agency.

UIL athletic director Bill Farney said the league's opponents often have argued that if the UIL is not a state agency, its rules governing athletics and other public school competition cannot be enforced.

Farney read a statement saying the UIL would ask the Supreme Court to reconsider its decision.

The Supreme Court ruling applied to four cases on appeal, including a class action challenge to the UIL rule prohibiting high school athletes from attending summer camps in football, basketball and volleyball.

Cowboys want Garvey axed

DALLAS (AP) — Two Dallas Cowboy defensive veterans, who usually sack quarterbacks, say union chief Ed Garvey should be sacked because National Football League players "could have settled six weeks ago for what we got Tuesday night."

Defensive tackles Randy White and John Dutton called Wednesday for Garvey's firing because of his handling of the 57-day strike.

"I hope there is a movement to replace Garvey. We'd be ignorant not to. It's been a mess. We could have settled six weeks ago for what we got Tuesday night," said Dutton.

"If we don't get rid of Garvey now, everybody is crazy," White said. "He tried to change a system that had worked for years and didn't do a good job at it."

"Garvey fooled a lot of the younger players," White said of the executive director of the National Football League Player's Association. "He buffaloes them into thinking they were going to get a gold mine. All he did was just hurt their careers and their pocketbooks."

Dutton said, "It (the strike) was a waste, a big waste. It was a big mistake. Garvey misled the players. He doesn't know what he is doing."

White agreed, saying, "He led them (the players) down a blind path. If they're not mad, they should be. The older players were against Garvey."

Linebacker Bob Breunig walked over to Dutton, shook hands, and said, "We took a whipping didn't we?"

Dutton replied, "Yeah."

The Cowboy players held a short meeting before Coach Tom Landry's 10 a.m. practice call to prepare for Sunday's game against Tampa Bay in Texas Stadium.

An afternoon workout later in the day was in pads.

Dallas must play two games in five days because of their annual Thanksgiving Day appearance, this year against Cleveland.

"I'd have played five games in five days if we could have come back to work," said White, who lost about $140,000 because of the seven missed games. He makes about $20,000 per game.

"We lost more than we gained for this year," White said.

Meanwhile the coaches worried about injuries during the short week.

"Fatigue is what you have to worry about," said Landry. "I know their muscles aren't ready right now. We could have problems with muscle pulls."

Linebacker Coach Jerry Tubbs agreed, saying, "We won't be able to work them too hard, that's for sure."

Dallas is 3-0 against Tampa Bay, having whipped the Bucs 38-0 in a playoff game at Texas Stadium last year.

Oilers' owner blames Garvey for prolonged football strike

HOUSTON (AP) — After all the confusion and unclear rhetoric through 57 days of the National Football League players' strike, Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams made it crystal clear how he felt about union negotiator Ed Garvey.

"I don't know if you'd call him socialistic or communistic but he is anti-management and anti-establishment and he's very devious," Adams said Wednesday, after the tentative settlement of the National Football League players strike.

Adams said Garvey was to blame for prolonging the strike.

"I'd say he was a smart negotiator. He kept the rank and file out much longer than I thought he'd be able to and he did it in his own special way."

Adams estimated the strike cost the Oilers $4.5 million in lost revenue, and said he thought the package would cost the owners for years to come.

"Frankly, I think we gave too much," Adams said. "I think it's going to be difficult for many teams to pick up their losses. Hopefully, in the next four years we can divide the losses out and hope to get it back."

But Adams said the costly strike had not made him think of selling the Oilers.

"It's just a part of the business, but I'd hate to meet up with Garvey every day of the week," Adams said. "But I think the players have seen through this guy and hopefully down the road they will get some better leadership."

"If the players are upset about not getting their full 16-game salaries, they can look to Mr. Garvey for an explanation," Adams said.

While Adams was blasting Garvey, the Oilers were trying to whip themselves into playing form for Sunday's game against Pittsburgh in the Astrodome.

Although the team appeared ragged in passing drills, offensive coordinator Jim Shofner said he was pleased with the first day's work.

"I was surprised with the crispness and timing and I thought we were throwing the ball pretty good," Shofner said. "We practiced pretty good and I think we'll play pretty good too."

Cornerback Carter Hartwig said the offense would have an advantage over the defense for a couple of weeks.

"It will be just like playing on a muddy field. They know where they're going and we don't," Hartwig said. "They will have the upper hand for awhile."

Head Coach Ed Biles was pleased with the first drill, but was more anxious to see how the players felt today.

"I want to see how they respond tomorrow — if there is stiffness and soreness," Biles said.

"We'd better get something done today if we're going to play on Sunday," Oiler quarterback Gifford Nielsen said. "I think most of the players are in pretty good shape, but it's going to take awhile to get our timing back."

The players agreed they wouldn't be in top condition, but guard Ed Fisher said the Oilers had an ace to play — Earl Campbell.

"You can bet Earl will be in shape," Fisher said. "If we can run the ball, we'll be all right. Our timing won't be what it should be but Earl can make up the difference."

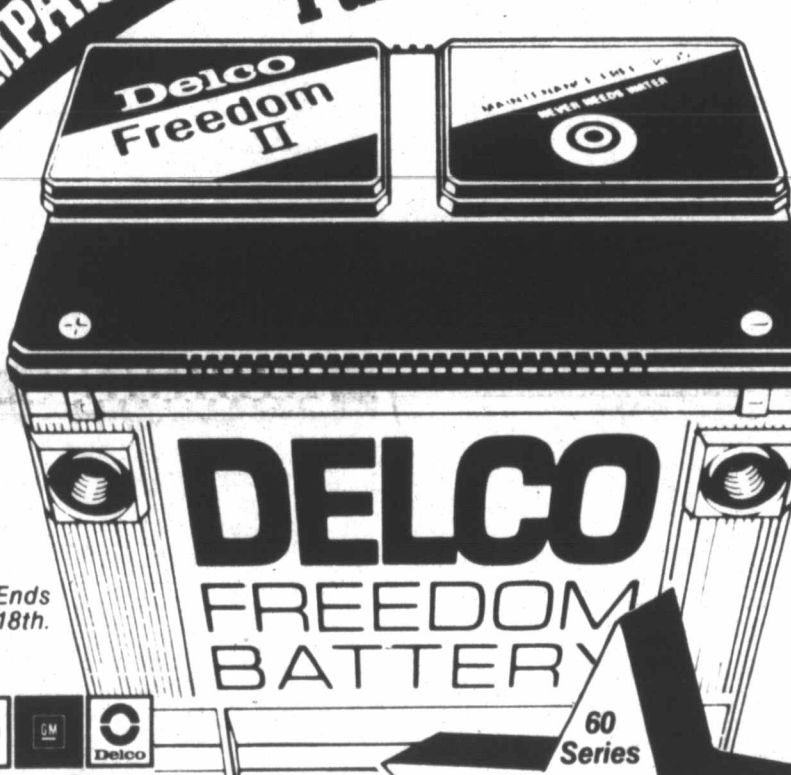

Tom Williams, former Oiler assistant general manager, trains many of the Oilers in the off-season and said Campbell had been working out daily.

"I think he'll be even more effective than if there hadn't been a strike," Williams said. "Earl wears you down in the third and fourth quarters. Now he's going to be doing it in the first and second quarters."

After Sunday's game, the Oilers go on the road for games with New England and the New York Giants.

Mavericks edge Lakers

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

George Gervin and Mark Aguirre were the deadeyes of Texas.

Aguirre hit two three-point goals in the final 10 seconds Wednesday night to give the Dallas Mavericks a 118-117 National Basketball Association victory over the Los Angeles Lakers. Gervin scored 40 points, including the game-winning basket on a running hook, as the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Washington Bullets 114-112.

The Mavericks' triumph was the first in their three-season history over Los Angeles in Dallas and snapped a four-game losing streak. They overcame a 16-point deficit in the third quarter, but consecutive dunks by rookie James Worthy put the Lakers ahead 116-112 in the final minute.

Aguirre, who scored 19 points, pulled his team within one with his first three-pointer at the 10-second mark. After Michael Cooper hit one of two free throws to put Los Angeles ahead 117-115, Aguirre connected with another three-point rainbow from the corner that banked into the net with only one second left.

In other NBA action, Philadelphia bombed Detroit 120-103, Boston clubbed Houston 112-94, Indiana beat Golden State 124-122, Seattle ripped Atlanta 119-97 and Utah trimmed New Jersey 101-97.

Rolando Blackman led Dallas with 24 points, 12 of them in the third quarter when the Mavericks rallied from the 16-point deficit. Pat Cummings had 20 points and 17 rebounds for Dallas, while Kareem Abdul-Jabbar paced the Lakers with 22 points.

Spurs 114, Bullets 112

San Antonio also came from 16 points behind and then relied on Gervin's heroics at the end to beat Washington.

Gervin, who was two of nine from the field in the first quarter, scored 15 points in the second period and 15 more in the fourth, while Artis Gilmore had 12 of his 16 in the final period.

Sonics 119, Hawks 97

David Thompson scored 15 of his 24 points in the third quarter as Seattle ran its record to 11-0 by whipping Atlanta.

The Sonics, who tied the 1964-65 Boston Celtics for the third-longest season-opening winning streak in NBA history, never trailed in the game and opened a 17-point lead in the third quarter.

The Hawks, who were led by Rudy Macklin with 19 points, cut the deficit to 91-83 in the fourth quarter, but a 16-2 streak by Seattle clinched the victory, 76ers 120, Pistons 103

Andrew Toney scored 10 of his 22 points during an 18-2 streak by Philadelphia that carried the 76ers to victory over Detroit.

The 76ers were leading 66-64 early in the third period before pulling away to an 84-66 advantage. The Pistons rallied in the fourth quarter, but never got closer than nine points.

Kelly Tripucka led all scorers with 34 points for Detroit, while Moses Malone and Maurice Cheeks led the 76ers with 24 apiece. Celtics 112, Rockets 94

Larry Bird and Danny Ainge scored 12 points apiece and Robert Parish added 10 in the decisive first quarter as Boston handed winless Houston its 10th straight defeat.

The Celtics jumped to a 37-19 lead in the first period and had a 69-48 edge at halftime. Bird finished with 21 points and Ainge 20, both in limited action, while Elvin Hayes scored 12 for Houston to become the fifth NBA player to surpass the 26,000-point mark. Pacers 124, Warriors 122

Herb Williams scored a career-high 31 points and hit a game-winning layup with two seconds left to lead Indiana over Golden State.

Purvis Short, who led the Warriors with 29 points, tied the game at 122-122 on a basket with 14 seconds to go. A foul by Golden State gave the Pacers the ball out of bounds at the three-second mark and Indiana's Clark Kellogg tossed a pass to Williams three feet from the basket. Jazz 101, Nets 97

Adrian Dantley scored 31 points and guards Rickey Green and Darrell Griffith each scored 18 to carry Utah past New Jersey.

Green, leading the Jazz fast break, also had nine assists and five steals, while Otis Birdsong led the Nets with 22.

Japanese farmer boosts technique of hydroponics

JUSHIYAMA VILLAGE, Japan (AP) — Kunihiko Murai, the self-styled king of hydroponic farming in Japan, grows vegetables in water and dreams of the day when he can do the same with wheat, rice and corn.

For 20 of his 40 years, the burly Murai has experimented with water-farming techniques in an expanse of greenhouses and plastic airdomes in this valley farm community nine miles south of Nagoya, central Japan.

His business, called M Hydroponic Research Co. Ltd. — the "M" is for Murai — covers 3.75 acres, with vegetables growing out of water-filled troughs. It has earned him a fortune.

As Japan's premier booster of the hydroponic way, Murai says he expects about 30,000 people — farmers, agronomists, school children, budding biologists and housewives — to tour his water-borne garden by the end of the year.

He calls himself a farmer-teacher, and says he divides his time between teaching the gospel of soilless gardening to interested farmers — about 100 a year — and raising and marketing parsley, spring onions, watercress, radishes, bitter lettuce (saradana), tomatoes, and other vegetables.

Hydroponics, the art of growing plants in water instead of earth, represents a "natural leap in the inevitable growth of plant power" said Murai.

He says the art is particularly suitable for Japan, with its abundant rainfall and limited land area making highly intensive farming necessary. Murai said Japan now had about 800 farmers who grew vegetables using hydroponic techniques.

Just call it S.N.P.J.

It isn't easy to pronounce tiny town's name

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer
SLOVENSKA NARODNA PODPORNA JEDNOTA, Pa. (AP) — Don't ask Mayor Pat Chiaro how to say the name of his tiny town. He can't easily pronounce it either.

"We never pronounce it. Everybody and their brother just goes by 'S.N.P.J.' They all know where we are," Chiaro says.

Slovenska Narodna Podgora Jednota — which means Slovene National Benefit Society — is tucked away about 50 miles northwest of Pittsburgh amid wooded hills and lush green pastures near the Ohio border. It used to be Herman Serjak's vegetable farm.

One of the nation's smallest municipalities with one of its longest names, S.N.P.J. counts just 11 residents, no children, one pay telephone, one mail box and 500 acres — including the lake and the abandoned strip mine.

The Slovene National Benefit Society, a 78-year-old insurance company and fraternal group, owns the town and runs it as a summer camp and recreation center. Slovenians come from what is now Yugoslavia.

S.N.P.J. offers visitors 60 housing units, mostly redwood shacks scattered in a former pasture, a 17-acre lake for boating and fishing, tennis courts, a swimming pool, a nine-hole golf course, a recreation building, a small restaurant, picnic grounds and a 160-foot water tower.

S.N.P.J. is a town born in part out of the need for a liquor license.

The Chicago-based society bought Serjak's property in 1963 for a recreation center, but found it couldn't legally sell drinks as part of North Beaver Township, a dry Lawrence County community.

In July 1977, S.N.P.J. petitioned a county court to secede and formed its own municipality, thus free to sell alcohol to its guests at Slovenian festivals, picnics and parties.

"This way," Chiaro says, "it makes everything legal."

S.N.P.J. doesn't have the problems of most towns. Its annual municipal budget is about $350, mostly for telephone calls and postage. Surrounding North Beaver collects S.N.P.J.'s taxes in return for regular municipal police, fire and road services.

Housewife Claire Jergel is S.N.P.J.'s council president. Her council is made up of her two sons, Timothy, 26, an office equipment salesman, and Alvin, 33, a musician. Municipal officials are not paid.

Chiaro, 42, a retired potato chip distributor, was elected mayor last November by a 10-0 vote. Chiaro graciously abstained. An Italo-American in a Slovenian town, Chiaro nevertheless had no political opposition.

"Noboy wanted the job," Chiaro says.

"It's like any other government. We have a lot of reports to make out to the state and federal governments. We can have a

Smuggled car seized

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — U.S. Customs agents say they've seized five Mexican-made Volkswagen "Beetles" smuggled into the area by profiteers who charged a 100-percent markup on the popular economy car.

State police said this week that arrest warrants had been obtained, but refused to identify the suspects or say how many people were being sought.

Customs spokeswoman Marcella Badie said the cars were manufactured by a plant in Mexico for sale there, and don't meet American safety regulations.

She said as many as seven cars had been sold to individuals and dealers in the Shreveport area for $7,000 — twice the price in Mexico.

Volkswagen no longer manufactures the "Beetle" in America.

Authorities said they believe smugglers are bringing the cars across the Mexican border at Brownsville, Texas, and are selling them to auctioneers from whom they are bought by individuals and small retailers.
