Workers were pumping an estimated 750,000 gallons of water today from a 250-foot-deep test cell for the MX missile located beneath this building at Arnold Engineering Development Center at Tullahoma, Tenn. They expected to find the bodies of three workers killed in a Saturday fire. (AP Laserphoto)

Search for three fire victims slowed by flooded test shaft

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP) — Recovery crews were pumping thousands of gallons of water out of an MX rocket test shaft today to uncover the bodies of three of the four men who died in an "instantaneous" flash fire, an Air Force spokesman said.

The remains of the fourth victim were removed Sunday from the 250-foot concrete shaft by crews wearing oxygen packs, said Sgt. John Blackburn.

The four men were killed and 16 others were injured Saturday evening as civilian contractors tried to remove debris and solid fuel left in the shaft by a second-stage MX missile engine that exploded during testing Nov. 17.

The sudden fire at the Arnold Engineering Development Center facility may have been ignited by the volatile fuel, Blackburn said.

Nine feet, or about 750,000 gallons, of water that helped put out Saturday's fire covered the floor of the shaft when the pumping began shortly after midnight, Blackburn said. The water concealed the bodies of three employees of Aerojet Strategic Propulsion Co., a defense contractor based in Sacramento, Calif.

The body of John P. Sipe was found higher up the shaft, which is a steel-reinforced, underground concrete test facility, Blackburn said.

Sipe had been working about 70 feet above the floor when the fire broke out about 6 p.m. Saturday, said Brig. Gen. Kenneth R. Johnson, commander of Arnold.

"It was an instantaneous flash with tremendous heat ...," Johnson said. "There wouldn't be any way they could have survived that flash. It went off like a sparkler with tremendous heat and energy."

Aerojet identified its dead employees as Dona J. Roy Jr., 57, a rocket test technician from Fair Oaks, Calif.; Murray L. Tauscher, 49, a senior test engineer of Roseville, Calif.; and Arthur Totten, 48, a rocket test technician of Citrus Heights, Calif., all Sacramento suburbs.

Sipe, about 50, of Manchester, Tenn., was an employee of Sverdrup Technology Inc. of Tullahoma.

Fourteen of the civilian employees injured Saturday were released after treatment at a center infirmary.

Two others, fireman David Harmon and security officer Luther Cross, both employed by Pan Am World Services, which provides security and food at the center, were overcome by fumes from the blaze.

Harmon was released following treatment at Harton Memorial Hospital in Tullahoma. Cross was in stable condition early today.

The Nov. 17 accident which destroyed the MX missile engine caused no injuries. It was made public Wednesday.

Officials did not know for sure whether Saturday's fire consumed all of the solid fuel left from the accident, but the test shaft was considered at "a very low danger level" when pumping began, Blackburn said.

Police say 'opportunists' caused rampage

WASHINGTON (AP) — District of Columbia Police Chief Maurice Turner blames "misfits" and "opportunists hell-bent on crime" for a violent rampage that erupted in the heart of the nation's capital after an abortive demonstration by the Ku Klux Klan.

"It was blind, senseless rage which cannot be excused nor justified," he said of the rock-throwing, tear-gas tossing melee Saturday as several thousand anti-Klan demonstrators clashed with police.

He said police and city officials would try to discover "what went wrong and why it went wrong" in the capital's worst outburst of unrest since the anti-war protests of more than a decade ago.

When the disturbances broke out, police were already escorting out of town the 40 Klansmen who had held a brief rally in Lafayette Park, across from the White House.

The Klan — protesting legislation that would grant amnesty to millions of illegal aliens in the United States — had planned to march in Washington for the first time since 1925, when 40,000 paraded without incident.

But at the urging of police,

Saturday's scheduled march down Pennsylvania Avenue was canceled. Police said one KKK member dressed in street clothes walked several blocks before getting in a car.

While angered at the audacity of the Klan to demonstrate in a city that is 70 percent black, several community leaders had urged that Washington residents avoid potentially violent confrontation. Instead, they endorsed activities such as a "jobs fair" and church efforts to provide meals for homeless and unemployed people.

On Saturday, however, this peaceful tone did not extend to anti-Klan protests which had been organized largely by radical left-wing groups such as the Spartacist League, a Trotskyite organization, and the pro-Palestinian November 29th Coalition.

After the KKK members had held their 35-minute rally and departed, a crowd of anti-Klan demonstrators — estimated by police at about 3,000 — rushed into Lafayette Park. Members of the crowd hurled hundreds of missiles toward police and bombarded nearby houses and offices. Windows in a bank and several other buildings were smashed.

More than three hours after the Klan march was scrubbed, police battled demonstrators at another park in the city's business district about two blocks away. Windows were smashed at a cafeteria where people were inside eating, and a nearby bicycle shop was looted.

Patrolman injured as prisoner flees

An officer of the Tampa Police Department was injured Saturday when he chased a prisoner who broke away from him while in Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge's office in the Gray County Courthouse.

Patrolman Richard Pack was in the judge's office with Ricky Earl Mullins, 18, of 1221 E. Francis, when the prisoner broke away from him and ran from the courthouse. While Pack was chasing the man, he tripped and fell inside the courthouse. Pack reported his boots were wet from Saturday's snow and ice. He required medical treatment for a seriously sprained left ankle.

The prisoner was apprehended about six minutes later hiding in a second-floor dressing room at Hub Clothiers, 201 N. Cyler. Mullins was being held for the Amarillo police on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Support urged for tax breaks and incentives

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan, trying to make peace with city officials, urged the lame-duck session of Congress today to put on its agenda a package of tax breaks and investment incentives to lure new business to depressed urban areas.

Reagan said approval of his so-called enterprise zone initiative would "let our cities get on with the business of recovery."

In remarks prepared for delivery before the National League of Cities, Reagan also made a pitch for a massive highway repair and jobs program that Congress is to consider in upcoming days.

Portions of Reagan's speech to be presented in Los Angeles were released in advance here where he has been vacationing since last week.

The highway repair plan, which already carried bipartisan congressional support, calls for a 5-cent per gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax to finance the work.

"It will allow us to complete the interstate system, make almost all our interstate repairs, strengthen all our dangerously weak bridges, improve thousands of others, enhance all of our safety and address the critical public transit needs of our cities," Reagan said.

Reagan's enterprise zone program contains a variety of incentives to attract new business to inner city areas.

It includes a provision to allow employers to pay a lower minimum wage to teen-age workers. Reagan said the Senate has approved the package but the House has not acted.

Reagan's audience included some of the strongest critics of the administration's "new federalism" plan to replace many local grant programs with block grants to the states. City officials fear they will be left short.

Beyond that, the administration is sharply cutting back funds for the League of Cities. The group received $4 million from the federal government last year but is expected to get only $1.6 million this year. Next year, none of its grant is expected to be renewed.

Mayor Charles Royer of Seattle, who becomes president of the League during its four-day meeting, said Reagan was coming before the urban leaders "at a critical time in the country's history as Congress comes back in the midst of catastrophic unemployment in cities across the country."

"The No. 1 issue is the president's willingness to come a ways towards us in helping us to meet our problems and folding that willingness into a terrible budget session in Congress, where he has to deal with Social Security, this massive arms increase and a growing and terribly awesome deficit," Royer said.

Opponents of military rule win commanding Uruguay victory

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Opponents of military rule were headed for a decisive victory today in Uruguay's first elections since the army seized power in 1973.

With results from more than 80 percent of the precincts counted, the government said today that foes of the nine-year-old military regime gained firm control of the two major political parties in the running.

The winners of Sunday's election will become delegates to conventions of the nation's three officially recognized parties. They will elect each party's board of directors, who in turn will name candidates for president and Parliament in elections set for November 1984.

According to the incomplete returns, 70-75 percent of the votes for National Party went to opponents of the military regime while 60-65 percent of those elected from the Colorado Party opposed the armed forces.

The National and Colorado parties are the country's traditional political rivals. Also up for election were officials of the tiny conservative Civic Union Party.

The National Party received 46.6 percent of the overall vote, according to the incomplete returns. Colorado got 40 percent and the Civic Union one percent.

If no MX, Soviets may negotiate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says if Congress rejects the MX missile plan the Soviets will have "no incentive" to negotiate seriously with the United States over weapon reductions.

"There's no incentive for them to be in Geneva if they don't have something to gain from it ... if we don't have a credible ... plan of maintaining an effective deterrent," Weinberger said Sunday in an interview on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley."

However, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., a member of the Appropriations subcommittee on defense, predicted on the same program that the new Congress taking office in January will not approve the MX.

Hollings said the Air Force has been using "a full point press" to get the MX approved during lame-duck session before the newly elected, and less sympathetic, Congress convenes.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., appearing on NBC's "Meet The Press," said the "dense pack" basing plan for the missile, announced last Monday by President Reagan, faces "deep trouble" in Congress.

Jackson, a member of the Armed Services Committee, said he would vote to produce the weapon, despite his misgivings about the deployment system. He said he would "reserve judgment" on whether the deployment system should be pursued.

Hollings criticized the administration's $26 billion "dense pack" proposal for basing 100 MX missiles in super-hardened, closely based silos in Wyoming.

He said he agreed with former President Carter's Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, who said that if anyone had recommended "putting all their eggs in one basket ... ten years ago you would've put them in a straight jacket."

Calm after the storm

Nuclear sub not needed for power

HONOLULU (AP) — Electricity has been partially restored on the hurricane-ravaged island of Kauai, freeing for sea duty a nuclear submarine that had been requested as an auxiliary power source. Navy officials say.

The attack submarine USS Indianapolis was ordered into Nawiliwili Harbor during the weekend to mate its nuclear-powered plant with the island's electrical system.

But three huge portable generators provided by the Navy have been installed at the Kauai Electric Co.'s major generating plant to provide backup power, so the submarine won't be needed, Lt. Cmdr. Terrence Forrester, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Fleet, said Sunday.

The company's main generating plant was restarted Saturday night and most of Lihue, the island's largest town, had lights and power by Sunday, officials said.

Water and telephone service was restored Sunday to much of Kauai, which was hardest hit of the major islands when Hurricane Iwa swept through the area last Tuesday night with winds of up to 110 mph.

Iwa, the worst hurricane to hit Hawaii since the National Weather Service started keeping records, caused almost $200 million in damage.

There was no immediate estimate on when electrical service might completely be restored to the island's population of 39,000, officials said.

Electrical service has been restored on most of Oahu, Hawaii's most populous island, but service to the small coastal community of Nanakuli probably won't be available for at least two weeks.

High winds and huge waves whipped up by the storm damaged the community's electrical transmission and distribution system so badly that it will be faster and cheaper to replace it, said Kevin Doyle, a spokesman for Hawaiian Electric Co.

President Reagan issued a disaster declaration Saturday.

Weather

Sunny and warmer today and Tuesday. High today and Tuesday near 80. Low tonight lower 30s. Winds this afternoon and Tuesday southwest 15 to 25 mph and gusty.

Lame duck topics

Nuclear waste and gasoline tax

WASHINGTON (AP) - High among Congress' priorities as it enters its lame-duck session today are consideration of an increase in the federal gasoline tax to create jobs and a proposal for a permanent disposal site for thousands of tons of nuclear waste.
Congress faces a number of issues after its two-month election recess, but the House has put the controversial nuclear reactor waste disposal bill at the top of its calendar for the lame-duck session. Debate on the measure began just before the recess.
And before adjourning Dec. 17, Congress is also expected to wrestle with the gasoline tax proposal, which calls for a 5-cent-a-gallon increase to finance a $5.5 billion highway jobs program.
Other items on the legislative agenda include:
- Ten appropriations bills needed to run the federal government for the balance of the fiscal year. Only three have been signed into law.

- Legislation to free automakers to have a fixed percentage of their cars produced in the United States.
- A Senate vote to televise their sessions.
- Action on the administration's tax and trade assistance package for Caribbean Basin nations.
- Votes to deny members of Congress a pay raise of between $2,426 and $16,648 set to take effect Dec. 17.
Approval is predicted for the highway jobs proposal which has the support of President Reagan, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.
However, sharp disagreement is expected on defense and other economic issues likely to be raised. For example, Baker said Sunday he doubts that Reagan's plan for deploying the MX missile will get much action.

And, though both Democrats and Republicans want to assist the economy, they have widely different views on how to do it.
The nuclear waste bill has completed a tortuous, two-year route through four House committees in making its way to the floor. The Senate already has approved a bill on the issue.
Sponsors say that unless the lame-duck session of Congress acts on the measure, it will go back to the starting blocks next year - and the nation may spend another two years without a permanent plan for disposing of its growing stockpile of highly radioactive nuclear waste.
Rep. Dan Marriott, R-Utah, in opening debate on the bill, noted that spent fuel rods from commercial nuclear reactors alone account for 8,000 metric tons of waste now in temporary storage at plant sites.

GATT adopts new trade rules

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - An 88-nation world trade conference today adopted an emergency compromise worked out by the United States and other countries on a new set of rules to combat protectionist trade barriers.
But a major agricultural policy dispute between America and the 10-nation European Common Market remained unresolved despite marathon negotiations.
The conference, chaired by Canadian Foreign Minister William MacEachen, avoided taking a side in the feud by calling instead for a study of the issue.
"Overall, the results might get a grade of C," U.S. Special Trade

Representative Bill Brock said of the negotiations. "It could stretch to a C plus, but only time and future actions could tell."
After five days of often acrimonious deliberations, the conference reaffirmed the 35-year-old General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade with a set of compromise guidelines hammered out by an emergency contact group.
GATT is the umbrella organization that sets the rules for non-Communist world trade. It has no enforcement powers.
Concerns over unemployment and declining industrial productivity often watered down the conference's avowed aim of taking a tough new stand against protectionism.

The final document called only for members to "resist" new protectionist measures. GATT is generally opposed to trade restrictions.
The United States, Canada, the Common Market, Japan and key developing countries worked around-the-clock to reach a compromise among the divided nations, which represent 80 percent of world trade.
The issue which most often threatened to undermine the conference was that of Common Market farm export subsidies

British diplomat admits passing secrets

LONDON (AP) - A former official of Britain's embassy in Israel pleaded guilty today to charges she passed secrets to an Egyptian Embassy official with whom she was having an affair.
Rhona Janet Ritchie, 30, admitted to one count of wrongfully communicating information to an unauthorized person.

It was the second prosecution under Britain's Official Secrets Act in three weeks. On Nov. 10, Geoffrey Prime, a former translator at the top-secret Government Communications Headquarters in Cheltenham, pleaded guilty to charges of passing secrets to the Soviet Union and was sentenced to 35 years in prison.
At a hearing in London's Old Bailey

Central Criminal Court, Britain's attorney general Sir Michael Havers said that between November of last year and February of this year, Miss Ritchie - then second secretary at the British Embassy in Tel Aviv - had disclosed the contents of five secret diplomatic telegrams to her lover, Refaat el-Ansary, her counterpart at the Egyptian Embassy.

No upswing in economy expected this week

WASHINGTON (AP) - Depending on how you choose to look at it, the coming week will bring a dose of either good or bad news about the national economy.
On Tuesday, the Commerce Department is scheduled to release its new Index of Leading Economic Indicators - a compilation of 10 separate statistics designed to forecast trends in the overall economy.
Economists expect most signs to point toward a slight index increase - perhaps only 0.2 or 0.3 percent.

That's good, because it would be the sixth gain in seven months, a solid argument that recovery is coming soon. But it's also bad - or at least less good - because such a small gain could hardly be read as an indication of much economic strength looming just ahead.
The index rose two full points or more for three straight months at the start of recovery from the 1980 recession.
The week will end with the Labor Department's estimate Friday of the national unemployment rate for November.

Most economists say unemployment is probably close to the peak it will hit in the long 1981-82 recession. A few even say the current level - 10.4 percent, the highest rate in 42 years - may be the peak.
But others say it is going to rise slightly higher, perhaps to 10.5 percent this month or next.
A new increase would be a jolt not only to Americans who just losing their jobs, but also to the millions waiting for business to improve so they might be hired back.

Semi tractor and car stolen, one arrested

Thefts of a 1981 Freightliner tractor and a 1977 Ford were reported to police Saturday evening.
At 8:15 p.m. Saturday police were informed the semi tractor had been stolen from the offices of the Heaton Cattle Co., 1235 S. Sumner, and that two Heaton Cattle Co. employees were in pursuit of it in a car.
The truck was driven to an empty field on McCullough Street and came to a stop after it struck a fence, police reported. The two employees captured the driver after he attempted to run.

On the way back to firm's offices, the employees were observed by Partolman Rod Bishop who took the suspect into custody.
Tommy Lee Arp, of Hobbs, N.M. was booked into city jail on a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.
Fifty minutes earlier Barbara

Minyard of 1005 S. Faulkner told officers her car was taken from in front of her home earlier.
About 20 minutes after she noticed the car was missing, she observed it parked across the street from her residence and saw a man getting out of it.
When officers arrived, the man had fled the area and no arrests were made, police said.

Disappointed Schmidt is preparing to depart from Washington

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - As jeans-clad secretaries sorted files and packed boxes, the only incumbent Republican senator to lose in the Nov. 2 election sat behind his desk fielding telephone calls and pondering his future.
"I'm disappointed as I think anybody would be," said the 47-year-old Harrison Schmitt, the victim of a bitter political fight and an ailing economy. "I tried very hard to match my activities to the issues New Mexicans felt were important. I guess I didn't do that."
While professing no bitterness, Schmitt feels he didn't get a fair shake in his race with state Attorney General Jeff Bingaman. 39, a soft-spoken Democrat who will take office in January.
Schmitt, a former astronaut who flew to the moon aboard Apollo 17, said bias on the part of the news media turned the tide in the campaign, especially where the candidates' hard-hitting advertisements were concerned.

"I think we underestimated the degree that the media wouldn't look at it objectively," he said.
Statewide polls done by private researchers indicate Schmitt lost ground rapidly in the two weeks before the election when a dispute developed over the accuracy of the ads.
Bingaman ran a series of television and radio commercials critical of Schmitt's positions on minimum Social Security benefits, a law that allows corporations to pay foreign entities for favorable consideration and mining on federal wilderness land.
Schmitt said the commercials distorted his positions and countered with ads criticizing Bingaman's actions as attorney general. In one, he said Bingaman shirked his duty by not prosecuting inmates involved in a 1980 state prison riot that left 33 prisoners dead. Another claimed Bingaman had urged Gov. Bruce King to pardon an inmate who had been on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted List.

Bingaman called the ads "lies" and many state officials jumped to his defense. The dispute received daily news coverage and was seen as the turning point in what had been a formal, issue-oriented campaign.
Schmitt, however, refused to back off the advertisements.
"I still believe that," Schmitt said recently of his ads' contentions. "It is the attorney general's job to be the chief law enforcement official in the state, not to hide behind technicalities ... to neglect doing his duty."

But, he said, the news media believed Bingaman's contention that he was ordered to investigate the prison riot, not prosecute it.
"The media all had been deeply involved with the prison riot and felt they knew all about it," he said. "It was more difficult than usual for me to get an objective reading."
Schmitt said that, looking back, the controversy over the ads hurt his campaign, but didn't cost him the election.
"These things built on a situation that was already very difficult for Republicans," he said. "The voter turnout and the general economic situation were the big things."

New Mexico has an unemployment rate of about 10 percent, but in some counties, particularly in copper mining areas, the jobless rate is nearly 40 percent.
Schmitt said the record turnout, which also produced a new Democratic governor, Toney Anaya, caught the state's Republicans by surprise.
"The main thing of the election was the effectiveness of the Democratic state party and organized labor to get the vote out," he said. "The turnout is what beat the whole ticket."
"We don't have at this time a really strong base of support on the grassroots level," he said. "We've been hit in the head with a two-by-four and we've got to go back and look at that."
Schmitt hasn't decided what role he will play in building that support. He is looking to the future, but says he won't make any decisions about where his life will lead until sometime next month.

Schmitt, who was a respected scientist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration before his moon trip, said he has discussed a possible job with the Reagan administration and is looking at positions outside of government.
"All I have told the Reagan people is that if there is a way I can serve the country, I will consider it," he said. "All that's passed between us is three or four openings that actually are in the technical or scientific areas."
For now, his future consists of the lame duck session of Congress, and the job of winding up six years of work and smoothing the transition for Bingaman.

Mustangs starved on overgrazed land

PITTSBURG, Texas (AP) — Wild horses captured and sold by the government to prevent their starvation had to fend for themselves on a small overgrazed East Texas ranch and about 30 of the mustangs slowly starved to death, a veterinarian said.

Sheriff's deputies and volunteers rounded up 96 of the surviving mustangs Sunday. But Dr. Charles Robertson said officials do not yet know how many horses still roam the 275-acre ranch and may never know the exact number that perished.

"From looking at the situation, they had not been fed all year," said Robertson, a veterinarian from nearby Mount Pleasant. "What little grass is on the place had been overgrazed, there was nothing left."

From looking at the carcasses, some may have been dead three or four months.

Joe Corbett of Pittsburg, who had acquired the horses through the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's "Adopt-A-Horse" program, paid a $200 bond on a misdemeanor charge of cruelty to animals. Camp County Sheriff Jesse Graves said.

Graves said a hearing has been scheduled this afternoon on the misdemeanor warrant and on a court order giving him authority to seize the surviving horses.

No one answered the telephone at Corbett's residence Saturday or Sunday.

Corbett's attorney, Michael Langford, said when he last saw the horses in the summer they "looked in good condition to me considering they are wild horses."

"They had more than adequate feed at the time," he said.

However, Robertson said there is no doubt the animals starved to death.

"It's an accurate diagnosis. I went to the ranch and looked at the horses, there is no doubt about the situation," he said.

A lost deer hunter stumbled across the horses and notified local authorities, who said the ranch was littered with carcasses in various stages of decay. The Titus County Humane Association began feeding the horses Wednesday and the BLM has sent a field investigator to the ranch.

Four horses too weak to stand had to be destroyed and five others died after they were found Wednesday.

"Because of their large body mass, it takes some time to build up enough strength to get up. The cold ground, the wet ground and all those exposure conditions prevented them from recovering once they got down," said Robertson.

Most of the surviving horses rounded up Sunday were transferred to a ranch operated by the Fund for Animals near Tyler. Robertson said he kept three colts in his clinic because they were too weak to travel.

He said most of the surviving horses "are in pretty bad condition" but should survive with proper care.

But because they are wild, he said they are very difficult to treat.

"Horses that were down and on their last legs would bare their teeth and try to bite, lying flat out on the ground, bare teeth and try to bite you like a dog," he said.

He said they also may have trouble getting the colts to eat feed because they have never been exposed to it.

"Unfortunately in routine practice you run across starvation from time to time in horses and cows, but not on this large of a basis," he said.

The BLM program was developed to thin out populations of wild horses and burros that might otherwise starve on public lands in the western United States.

Woman fights for health amid government tangle

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A woman who needs to survive, but would pay for a $60,000 treatment her doctor says could kill her.

Doctors, during eight operations, removed 24 feet of gangrenous intestines from the 64-year-old woman, who for the past 18 months has had to get her nourishment from 150 pills a day — $700 worth of vitamins and minerals a month.

Her physician, Dr. Jim Jackson, says the woman's 18 inches of remaining digestive tract is not enough to absorb nutrients from food and the pills are the only way she can keep from starving.

Medicare does not cover the cost of prescription or self-administered drugs and therefore cannot pay for the pills, said Marti Mahaffey, executive officer of the Dallas region's Health Care Financing Administration.

It can and would pay the entire bill — from $35,000 to $60,000 a year — if Mrs. Bruce submitted to a treatment called hyperalimentation, he said.

"It doesn't amke any sense," said Mrs. Bruce. "That's the law," said Ms. Mahaffey. "Congress makes the law, not us."

Jackson said hyperalimentation would be dangerous for Mrs. Bruce.

The treatment, which replaces normal eating, involves pumping glucose and vital nutrients into a vein leading to the heart. A catheter is surgically implanted in the chest. A small cut is made just below the breast, and the tubing is tunneled under the skin and into the vein.

"There's an increased risk of infection," said Jackson, adding that Mrs. Bruce is so weak she has little defense against disease.

She says she has severe arthritis, diarrhea, and high blood pressure. Her illnesses have caused her such severe hair loss that she must wear a wig.

"Medicare will pay for her to have feeding through the vein, but it's a lot more expensive for the government to do that than buy the poor thing drugs," said Jackson.

"She's fighting the government, and they're not going to pay for the drugs."

Mrs. Bruce told the Dallas Times Herald she has had to sell $3,600 worth of her possessions since her health insurance was cancelled last summer.

She said because she makes $468 a month in Social Security disability benefits, she exceeds Medicaid's $280 monthly income limit and is ineligible for the program.

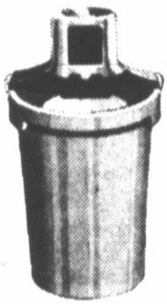

Mrs. Bruce says she has spent as much as four hours a day on the telephone and has typed about 300 letters to agencies that might offer financial assistance.

"I don't know what to do except make a nuisance of myself."

Harrelson back on witness stand

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Charles V. Harrelson, the alleged triggerman in the 1979 assassination of federal judge John H. Wood Jr., was back on the stand today as the trial entered its 33rd day.

Harrelson, 44, the 101st witness in the trial, faced the hostile grilling of prosecutor Ray Jahn, who drew angry responses last week near the end of 19 hours of testimony over a period of four days before the trial was recessed for Thanksgiving.

Harrelson is charged with shooting Wood in the back for $250,000 from imprisoned narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, who will be tried separately later. Conviction would carry a mandatory life sentence.

The trial of Harrelson; his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41; and Elizabeth Chagra, 28, the wife of the man accused of paying Harrelson to shoot Wood, may last two more weeks.

Mrs. Harrelson, 41, is charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and Mrs. Chagra, 28, is accused of conspiring to the kill the judge and to obstruct justice.

Jahn's cross-examination of Harrelson was expected to continue at least through Tuesday.

Jahn's intense questioning the last 2 1/2 hours of the trial last Wednesday provoked Harrelson to angrily deny government allegations that he accepted money to kill Wood on May 29, 1979.

Harrelson, once convicted of killing a man for $2,000, contends he never killed Wood, but attempted to capitalize on the situation to blink Chagra out of some money.

Harrelson's attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr., has indicated he may call several more defense witnesses after Harrelson finishes testifying.

Warren Burnett and Charles Campion, representing Mrs. Chagra and Mrs. Harrelson, respectively, said they expect to finish their defenses in two days each.

Hearing scheduled on Wilson motion

HOUSTON (AP) — Defense attorneys hope to convince a federal judge that former CIA agent Edwin Wilson, accused of smuggling explosives to Libya, was brought back to the United States illegally.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling agreed to hold a hearing today after defense attorney Herald Price Fahringer argued the government collaborated with a friend of Wilson's to trick him into thinking he would be allowed safe haven in the Dominican Republic.

Before the hearing was granted, Wilson was scheduled to go to trial here, beginning Monday, on charges of smuggling explosives. His trial has been re-set for Dec. 6.

Wilson, along with Donald Thresher, 42, of Houston, and Edward Bloom, 73, of Pomona, Calif., were indicted here in July for allegedly shipping 42,470 pounds of the plastic explosive C-4 in unmarked five-gallon cans from Houston to Libya in October 1977.

Wilson, 54, was convicted earlier this month in Alexandria, Va., on seven of eight counts of smuggling four pistols and an M-16 rifle to Libyan officials in 1979.

In June, Wilson flew to the Dominican Republic. U.S. marshals refused to let him get off the plane and flew him to New York where he was arrested.

Fahringer said the government has admitted working with Ernest Keiser, who persuaded Wilson to leave Libya.

Plastic cornea implants allowing patients to see

HOUSTON (AP) — Surgeons using a small piece of plastic have restored for Barbara Schindler the sight medication helped take away.

The risky and painful operation to attach a plastic cornea to the natural one damaged by an allergic reaction may give her the chance to drive again and to make a long-postponed trip to Yellowstone National Park.

"It was painful and frustrating. But then a lot of good things in life are worth the pain," said Miss Schindler, a 39-year-old telephone operator from Houston.

Miss Schindler recalled the first things she saw after the sutures were removed last week were her doctor's maroon tie, the pastels of his office and sunlight breaking through the sullen clouds.

Miss Schindler had perfect vision until 1968, when she developed Steven-Johnson syndrome because of an allergy to penicillin. She lost her vision because of damage to the cornea, the tissue in the front of the eye that collects and concentrates light on the retina.

Eight years ago, ophthalmologist Louis Girard placed a plastic cornea in Miss Schindler's right eye. Her vision was restored briefly until she developed an infection.

After attempts to transplant a human cornea failed, Girard decided on Oct. 28 to implant the plastic cornea in her left eye.

Girard said people with damaged corneas are helped more with a human cornea transplants, which have a success rate of about 95 percent.

Girard said implanting the plastic cornea works in one of every two cases. However, he cautioned many patients face possible sight-destroying complications such as infection and glaucoma.

"This surgery is one only for those patients who have nothing to lose," Girard said.

Girard estimated about 70 of the 140 patients who have received cornea implants since 1963 could see for a while after the surgery.

The operation offers no hope for patients who have damage to their retinas or optic nerve, he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

Dishing it out

A recent article on the increasingly common appearance of satellite receiving units — looking like huge, ungainly dishes — in suburban neighborhoods is interesting primarily for the pitiable pettiness of the municipal officials who play a minor role in the story.

A few television fanatics in Englewood Cliffs, N.J., now have dish antennas to pick up the variety of programming others might get from cable, and Mayor Joseph Parisi is in an absolute dither. He never expected such awful things to be built in his affluent suburb, and he's scurrying around looking for old laws, trying to draft new laws — anything — to ban them, or regulate them, or something. "It's huge," says Parisi, of a nine-foot-square antenna on top of a sports fanatic's roof. "It looks like, like I don't know what. Like space invasions or something."

So Parisi has his borough attorney drawing up an ordinance to ban dish antennas on aesthetic grounds. He proclaims: "They are unsightly and dangerous, a threat to property values." Ah, property values. Throw a little fear into a few homeowners and you can get away with almost anything. Maybe you can even deny property rights in the name of property values.

Humanity will probably never be rid of the eternal busybody, the person who is unhappy when not sticking his or her nose in other people's business, telling other people what to do, pronouncing half-witted judgment on other people's taste. It is probably not surprising that such people gravitate to municipal government as a moth to a flame, for government gives them a chance to try to impose their half-vast opinions on others and be described (in some circles) as civic-minded and community-spirited to boot. Healthy attitudes of respect for privacy and property have been eroded of late. In part by the assaults of meddlers in affluent tracts with Mercedes, Porsches and Saabs in the driveways. We want to believe, however, that they're only dormant and not deceased.

We wish all the ill luck in the world to the earnest Mayor Parisi and his kind. A pox and a plague on him and all his spiritual brothers, sisters, cousins and aunts! May their efforts be greeted with the derision they so richly deserve.

Moderation prolongs life

You don't have to know the cause of cancer to prevent it, according to a nationally-known researcher.

Dr. Ernst Wynder, president of the American Health Foundation and the man credited with producing the first studies linking cigarette smoking to lung cancer, took the 13th International Cancer Congress in Seattle recently. Americans can do a lot about cancer by simply changing their lifestyle.

What's a safer lifestyle? According to Wynder, it is one where the person does not smoke, uses alcohol moderately, lowers fat intake and increases fiber intake.

Most family doctors are more concerned about healing diseases than preventing them. Wynder said, and "I think American medicine would see a better day if in addition to going healers we also were preventors of disease."

Wynder's call is for moderation. He says he believes it will help reduce the risk of cancer. As it turns out, the lifestyle urged by Wynder is also (with regular exercise) the basic lifestyle promoted by many heart specialists.

So by working to reduce one's cancer risk it's also possible to reduce the risk of heart disease. That's something worth considering.

Chain letter

By PAUL HARVEY

Do you remember the "chain letter"? You would receive in the mail a letter listing ten names and addresses.

You were asked to mail one dollar to the name at the top, add your name at the bottom, and send copies of the letter to ten other people, similarly instructing them.

"When your name comes to the top you will receive thousands of dollars," the letter promised.

"To break the chain is bad luck," the letter threatened.

The chain letter, considered a con game, has since been outlawed.

But Social Security operates the same way.

Social Security, like the chain letter, takes money from the wage earner with the promise that "When his name comes to the top" he will receive a lifelong pension.

In its beginning, Social Security income was not intended to provide an adequate pension, merely a minimal sustenance income.

It has since been expanded to a kind of pension which actually discourages citizens from providing for their own retirement and discourages them from keeping working after age 62.

Thirty-six million Americans, one in six of us, have paid into Social Security and are now receiving benefit checks every month.

Most depend on Social Security as their only source of income.

Another 115 million Americans — about half our population — are paying into Social Security expecting benefits when they retire.

But the kitty is empty! And income is not keeping pace with outgo.

Senator Steve Symms of the Senate Finance Committee says our best hope for rescuing Social Security is the fact that we are between elections and Congress is under enormous pressure to act.

Alternatives under consideration include:

• Cancelling further cost-of-living increases until the program is solvent.

• Over the last decade, Social Security benefits have been increased twice as fast as wages.

• Another option would separate future government employees from their separate pensions. As is some seven million workers — mostly government employees — are not required to pay Social Security taxes.

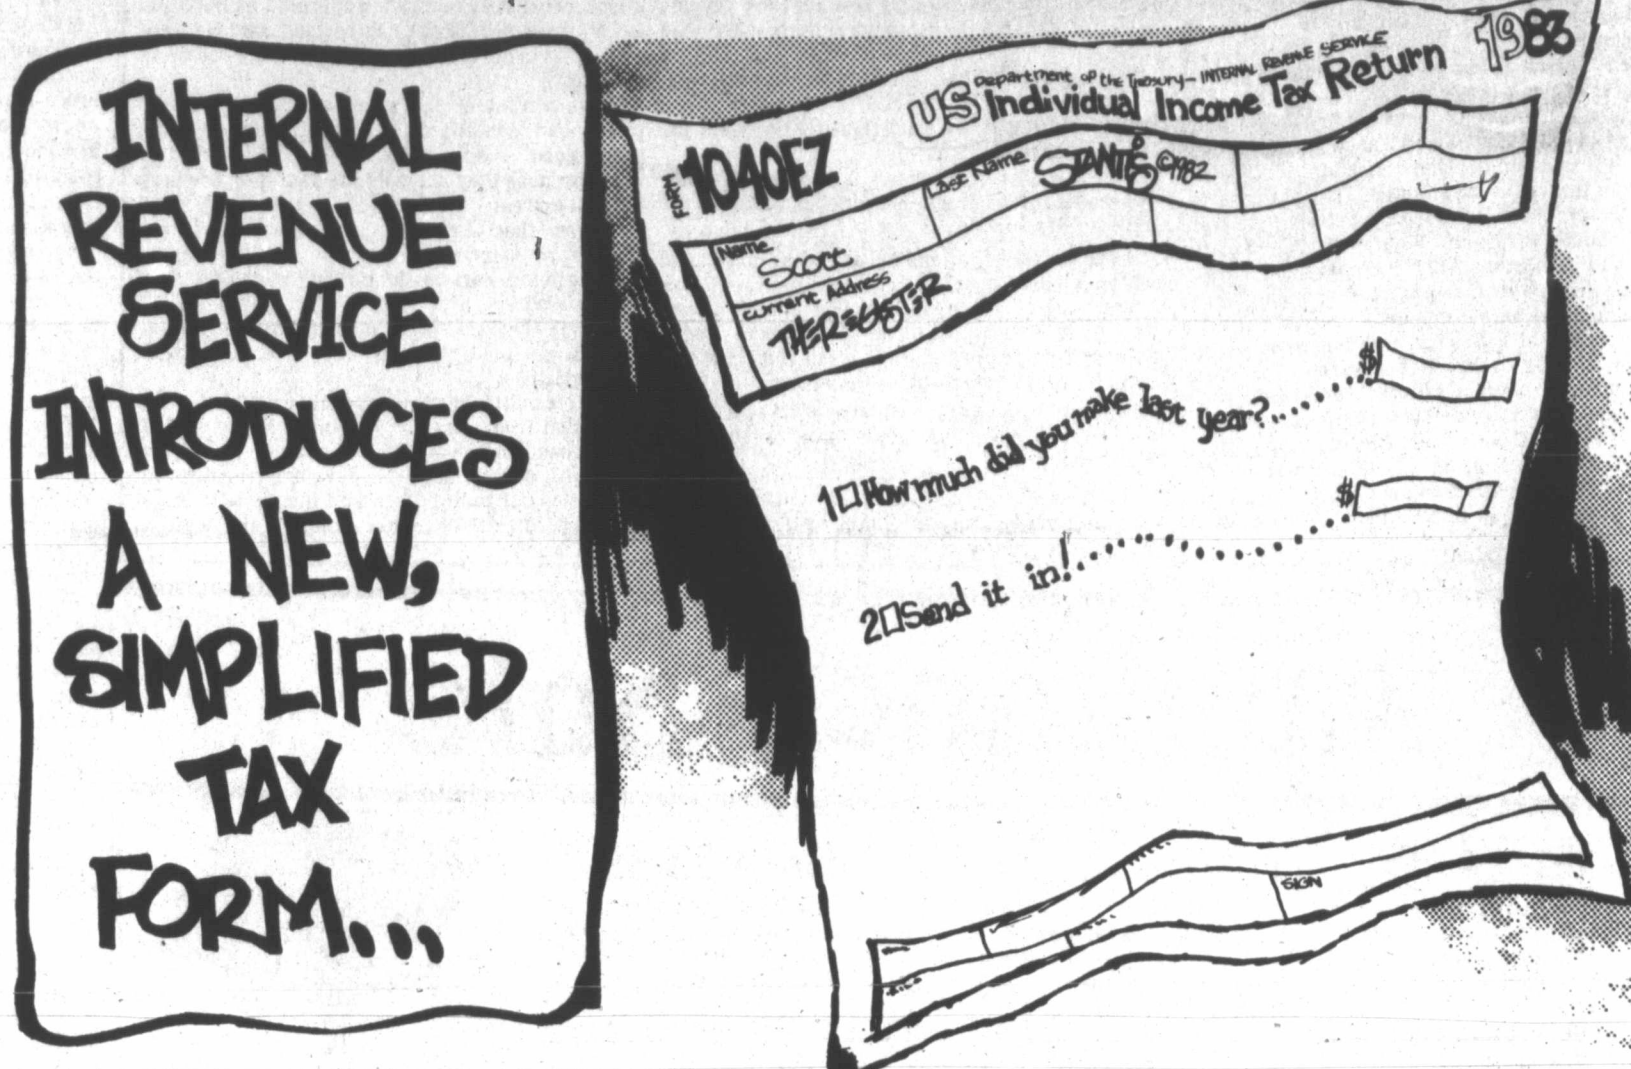

• Yet, after retiring from government many of these workers work a few more years, pay only very little into Social Security, and then retire with Social Security benefits plus their government pensions.

• The politicians' usual panacea for any imbalance is to raise taxes, but in this instance further increases in taxes would discourage workers from working, encourage earlier retirement, compounding the problem.

• Whichever belts get tightened, somebody's hurt.

• But as is, every 15 minutes the Social Security system moves $183,000 closer to bankruptcy.

Each creates his own security

By OSCAR COOLEY

When I received my first Social Security check, I hardly knew what to do with it. I was not used to receiving a gift of money from the government — which first had to take it from the taxpayers.

I had paid Social Security tax, but to me it was just another tax, a forced contribution to help support the government. And it was small. It could not for long provide the dollars to pay this substantial monthly benefit.

So I put the check in an envelope and mailed it back to the U.S. Treasury from which it came. In a few days it returned to me, again in that brown Treasury envelope. No explanation. I was foiled.

Well, my wife and I have two sons, each of whom has a family. I want those grandchildren to have an education, and so I set up a college education fund for each of those families. Each month, when the SS check arrives I divide it, depositing half in one fund, half in the other. Each of the funds is invested in what I consider one of the strongest mutual funds in the nation, in the hope that it will grow and will be available to help those grandkids go to college.

I also hope each will pay back the loans they get from the fund and keep it growing to help finance the education of the next generation and the next. In short, I hope my initial deposit, setting up the family fund, will act as a nest egg.

A nest egg is an egg left in a nest to induce a hen to continue laying eggs there. It induces her because she senses instinctively that she needs a nest — full of eggs to sit on, and here is a beginning.

As I recall I never counted on Social Security to take care of me in my old age. That just did not seem realistic, for the tax was inconsequential. What I paid in would soon be exhausted — and indeed it is. That is the problem that now has the government folks all in a tizzy.

I was used to saving some of my earnings, no matter how small they were. My father had taught me that. In his day, if there was any "security" it was individual, not social.

In the long run, social security will not come to pass. The present problem — how to finance Social Security — will not be solved. It will, in fact, get worse, because it tells the people "the government" will take care of them, implying they don't have to take care of themselves.

But the government has no money except what it takes from the taxpayers or manufactures, which amounts to the same thing since it causes inflation. And to pay Social Security it will have to take more and more.

The Polish courier

By DON GRAFF

If the oppressors of Poland want to know why they will never succeed in bringing the country to heel, they need only ask Jan Nowak.

Or Jan Kwiatkowski, Adalbert Kozłowski, Zdzisław Jeziorski or, for very short, Zych. They will answer as one man because they are, an economics graduate of Poznan University.

Jan Nowak — as he will be known from here on because it is the name that, through the misfortunes of war, has stuck — never had the opportunity to put his academic skills to professional use. His studies ended as World War II began.

What followed is the subject of "Courier from Warsaw", his gripping memoirs of the Polish underground.

The first phase of Nowak's war ended quickly. Called up as a second lieutenant in August of 1939, he was captured in the German onslaught but shortly escaped from a prison train.

It was then that active duty really began. Using the code name "Zych" and various cover identities, Nowak entered the resistance through Action N, a black propaganda campaign sowing dissent among the enemy.

Eventually he was tapped for more dangerous work — as messenger from the underground command in Warsaw to the government in exile in London. The route was via neutral Sweden and the first leg was negotiated in a bunker of coal on a slow boat across the Baltic, frigid water mixed with coal dust dripping steadily on the stowaway through black nights and equally black days.

He returned to Poland by plane, on a British night flight allotted six minutes to unload cargo in a clover field, take on again bound passengers and take off against its Italian base.

Nowak left Poland for the last time by train, across a disintegrating Reich, and on foot, through the snow of Christmas Day 1944 into neutral Switzerland.

In between he had seen it all — the refusals of conquered Poles to accept conquest, the crumbling of German might, the Warsaw uprising in which Polish irregulars took and held the capital for two months while the Red Army sat across the Vistula and did nothing.

He had also witnessed the destructive feuding among London Poles and, as victory neared, the desertion by the Anglo-American leaders of their Polish allies. There came the growing realization that both government in London and underground in Poland were fighting a losing battle.

But Jan Nowak fought on, and went on fighting after the war, first with BBC's Polish broadcasting and then for a quarter of a century as director of Radio Free Europe's Polish service.

In the continuing flood of war memoirs, "Courier from Warsaw" is a standout. In part because it is a thunderingly good true adventure, in part because of its insights into a strategy of the recent past, and above all because of its relevance to the present. The significance to Poland today is apparent on page after page, such as this observation on the early stages of the occupation:

"The Germans tried to force the hostile population to submit through the use of total terror, disregarding all political methods. Terror exercised on the principle of the collective community increased social cohesion and the feeling of mutual solidarity by its very nature. Thus the Germans themselves created ideal conditions for underground organization on a scale unparalleled in any other occupied country. They caught individuals, including some leaders, but until the end of the war, the Gestapo, the German army and the police were in fact largely helpless in the face of the underground movement.

"The invaders proved to be rotten psychologists. Because of the constant escalation of repression, terror lost its power to terrorize. People simply stopped being afraid because they had nothing much to lose..."

Published first in a British edition in 1979, "Courier from Warsaw" has been reprinted illegally in Poland and distributed as a manual for young members of Solidarity. That operation and other clandestine efforts reminiscent of Action N have proudly taken the author's real name — Jeziorski.

If those in power in Warsaw and Moscow want to know why, Jan Nowak has laid it all out for them.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

More success is likely this coming year in ventures or enterprises you conduct independently, rather than from those where you bring partners into the act.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In important one-to-one relationships today, maintaining harmony is more important than trying to get in the last word. Bite your tongue. Order now: the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic combinations, compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have a tedious task today, try to do it where you are free from outside influences. You won't work well with others looking over your shoulder.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The lure of frivolous pursuits could be very tempting today. You could waste a lot of precious time without producing anything of value.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't bring problems unrelated to the family into the house today. You could get everyone stirred up over something about which they can do nothing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Weigh your words carefully today, or you could unintentionally blurt out something which could offend another. Making amends won't come easy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not lend something you prize to another today; one whom you know from experience may not take as good care of it as you do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though you are noted for being a quick thinker, making hasty decisions today on important issues could be a mistake. Take time to weigh all the facts.

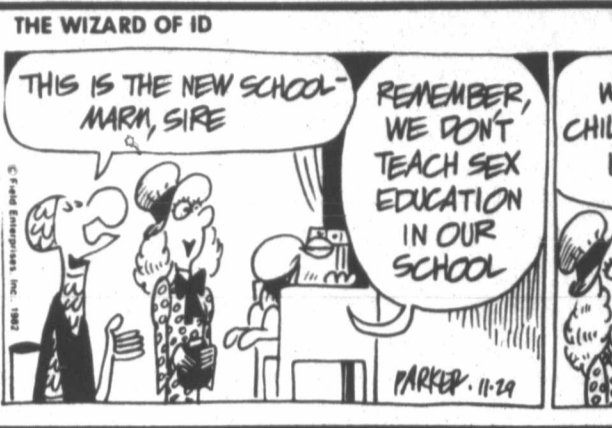

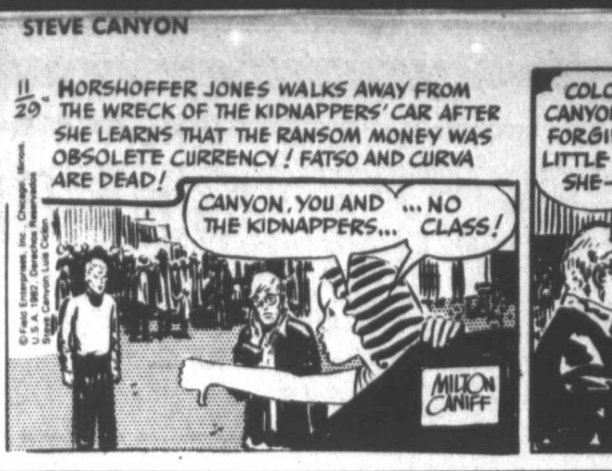

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make a list of things you have to do today, or there's a possibility you could be forgetful and mess up something you attempt to do at the last minute.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very selective regarding the companions you pal around with today. Avoid persons or cliques with whom you've had trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be ambitious and purposeful today, but don't set objectives for yourself which are beyond your capabilities. Recognize your limitations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your attention span may not be up to par today. If you let your thoughts drift, you may fail to grasp the essence of important information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In joint ventures today, be certain everyone involved makes an equal contribution. Be doubly on guard and keep things balanced when money is required.

Dear Abby Lusty lifeguard is in over his head

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm so confused I can't think straight. Last summer I started going with a lifeguard. "L" treated me really nice and I thought we had something special. I'm only 15 and a virgin, so I told "L" I wouldn't sleep with him. He said he loved me too much to pressure me, although he wanted me very much.

The real problem is that while "L" was going with me, he was having sex with a 20-year-old girl who would give it to him. Well, he got her pregnant, and she and her mom are giving him a hard time. (They want marriage.)

He told me himself that he was just using this girl, and she practically asked to be used. Being only human, he couldn't turn her down. "L" is only 18 and has his whole life ahead of him, but he may have to marry this girl to give the baby a name.

Should I stick with him through all this mess? He says he loves me and I believe him. My parents thought he was a real nice kid and they keep asking why he hasn't been around to see me. What should I say? They would never understand.

Please help me decide what to do about him.

THE GIRL IN THE BLUE BIKINI

DEAR GIRL: Do yourself a favor and say goodbye to "L." He has a lot of growing up to do. I hope he becomes a man before he becomes a father, because he's facing a heavy responsibility. Tell your parents the truth, and consider yourself lucky to be rid of him.

DEAR ABBY: Your column asking people to write to a lonely serviceman (or woman) prompts this letter.

Back in 1965, the Rockford Morning Star in Rockford, Ill., published the names and addresses of local servicemen who were serving overseas. Patriotic citizens were urged to "drop these lonely boys a Christmas card to let them know you care."

I was a senior in high school at the time and always enjoyed writing letters, so I wrote to several young men. (I had as many as 30 pen pals all over the world at one time.)

In August of 1966, one of the fellows I had corresponded with while he was in Vietnam came home, and we met. His name was Ray Cantwell, and he is a very special man. He is also the father of our two wonderful children, and my husband of 15 years as of Nov. 25.

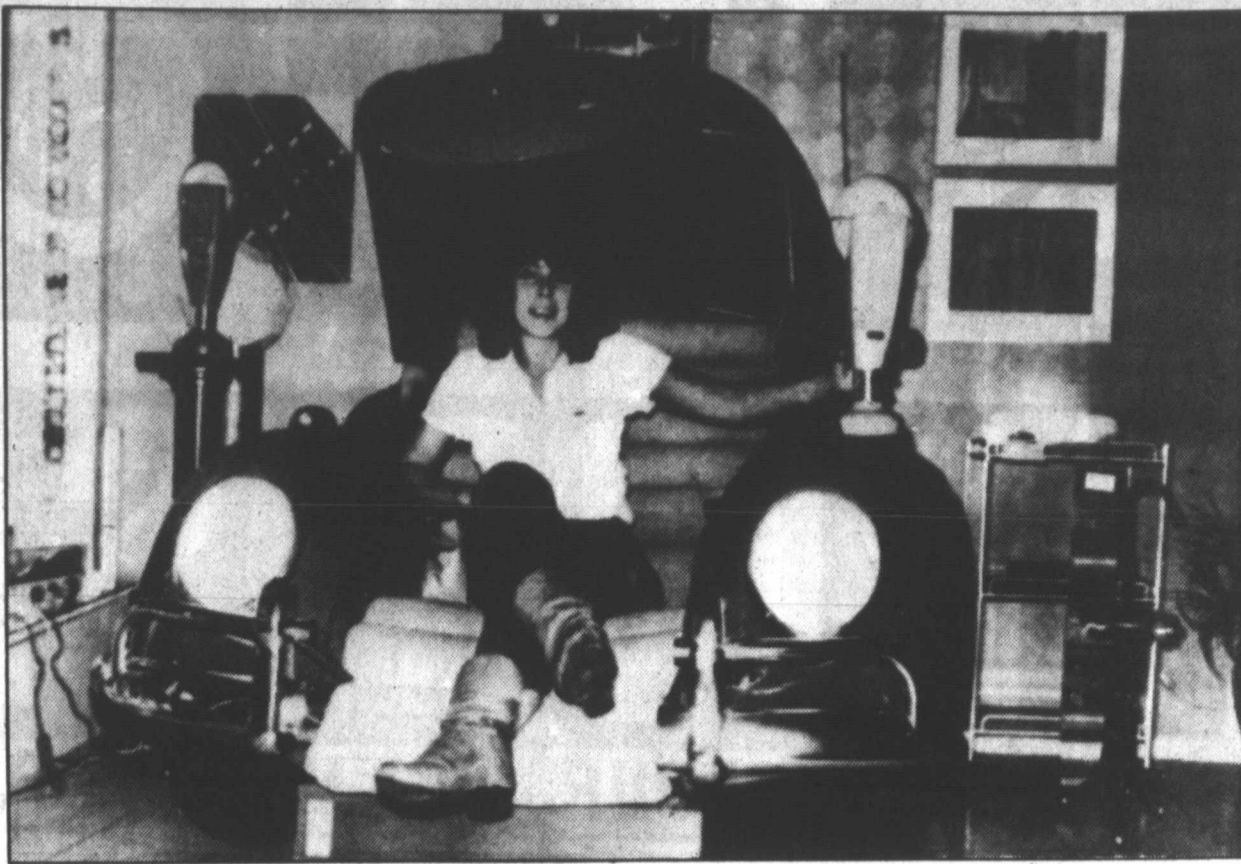

How's that for a storybook romance?
SALLY CANTWELL IN LINCOLN, NEB.

DEAR SALLY: Beautiful! Happy anniversary to you and Ray. Moral: "Cast thy bread upon the waters" — and you may get wedding cake in return.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to add my two cents' worth to the tipping flap. I'm for doing away with the tipping system entirely. Why should waitresses have to depend on the generosity of the customers in order to make a living wage? Their employers should pay them — not the public.

THE LAST WORD

DEAR LAST: If a restaurateur were to eliminate the tipping system and pay the waiters and waitresses a living wage, he would have to charge far more than what he now charges. And that's more than most people are willing to swallow.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 26-year-old female with skipped beats. I have had all sorts of tests, including a stress test, echocardiogram, Holter monitoring and the works. My doctor says they are benign PVCs. I don't take a lot of caffeine but I do smoke and am slightly overweight. I take no medications except Valium when I get a lot of skips. I get from 200 skips an hour to 10 a day.

I've had skips for three years. It annoys me to feel them in my throat. My husband tells me not to worry about them, but it is hard not to. I'm pretty young to be having these. I've heard of older people getting skipped beats but not so young. Can they damage my heart any? I guess that is what I fear the most. My father died young of a heart attack but I don't know if he had this problem.

DEAR READER — I'm glad you had a complete examination as it is important to be sure you do not have some underlying heart defect, or some medical condition not related to the heart that is causing skipped beats.

But you need to know that these can occur at any age in healthy people. Probably most people have a few if you recorded all their heartbeats on a 24-hour basis. We found that most of the astronaut candidates had a few. They had so much monitoring done that we found them even though they were unaware of an occasional skipped beat.

Just because you don't or cigarettes. And if a person is not in good physical condition improved fitness may help.

You'll understand your problem better after you read The Health Letter 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardia, which I am sending you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspa-

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a breast-feeding mother of a young infant. I have about 25 pounds to lose and it's essential that I drop some weight soon due to pressure in my legs caused by varicose veins. Is there a diet I can safely follow during this time, yet still not deprive my son of nutrients?

DEAR READER — To start with, you need to do more than lose weight to help your varicose veins. I'd suggest some form of support stockings and avoiding standing.

HUNTERS BEWARE

As each new hunting season approaches, safety authorities start preparing for the bad news: the new toll of victims who will fall prey to their own sport. While hunters prepare with enthusiasm for a sport that challenges their skills and invigorates their senses, families of hunters, farmers, safety authorities and health specialists wait with fear and anxiety.

In their brief encounter with nature, untrained hunters do more damage to property and health than they do to prey. As they stalk the elusive reward, little is safe. Everything and anything that walks, makes a noise, or merely exists is subject to being shot. That includes other hunters, domestic animals, the sides of barns, billboards... and even the hunter himself—self-inflicted.

There's nothing profound about these risks in that safety authorities have been bringing hunters' attention to them for years—without too much success.

But there are other risks not quite so obvious that should be noted strongly. And they have nothing to do with a gun. The weapon is the hunter himself. Many hunters wait all year for the opportunity to get out in the woods. Then in one weekend, they will walk, run, and strain themselves physically more than they have done all year. They will climb fences, camp out on the hard, cold ground, walk through cold water and the hot sun. They will lie in awkward positions for hours, stretch and strain as they load, reload and take the brunt of recoil from their guns. They'll return home dragging more than their rifles behind them and be "shot" physically for at least the rest of the season.

with bad backs... or even worse!

The doctor of chiropractic, who is a health specialist in the treatment of back problems and related disorders of the spine and nervous system, offers some good advice. His experience can help you protect yourself from injuries and illness that account for more "lay-ups" of hunters than do shooting accidents.

1. Don't let yourself get out of shape physically. If you do, you are not only subject to sprains, strains and injury, but also prone to making a shooting mistake as a result of fatigue.

2. Hunt within your limitations. Don't try to shoot at anything you don't see clearly; don't try to maintain the vigorous pace you did at age twenty.

3. Remember that most accidents are the result of personal carelessness, and lack of physical stamina influences this. Likewise, there are probably more heart attacks suffered on hunting trips than at any other single sport activity.

4. The best safeguard is your own physical and visual ability. Have frequent health check-ups. A chiropractic spinal examination should be included periodically to make certain there are no musculo-skeletal or neurological problems.

Health and safety authorities want you to enjoy hunting and to come home safe and healthy.

Counselor's Corner

By DAVE BRUMMETT, MDiv

Christmas means different things to each of us, yet the similarities are consumed equally. To some people it is profitable, others view the holiday as a way to share generously. Some anticipate Christmas as busyness and crowded lines in department stores with irritable employees; and still others see the day as another reason to have good parties with our favorite people.

This holiday festival has many reasons to remain a part of the American tradition. People consume Christmas eagerly. I view Christmas from a somewhat changed position, changed from the traditional in specific ways.

I am comforted because Christ was born to a person by a God who cares personally. Had it not been for this human, Christmas would not be quite as important.

My Christmas is happy. The family gathers because we enjoy ourselves. We each help. One of the family not present makes Christmas seem less complete. We are a family who are happy together. Christmas gives us this good choice. We are resourceful. We give resourceful gifts on Christmas. Each of us gather about the decorated tree and gives and receives.

There is intimacy, a feeling of love, togetherness, belonging to each other. The presence of "family" is realized.

Christmas gives us permission to be satisfied and touched by persons of worth. Nothing covers human life better than the Spirit of Christmas.

Christmas is magnificent. When man landed and walked on the moon's surface, it was a victory. "...one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind." When the war ended in Vietnam, I was relieved. Death in war was to end, a moment of peace realized. When Katrina had her bone marrow transplant and it is working, thousands of Pampans felt excited because this beautiful child still lives.

Christmas gives meaning and purpose to these three events. We are able to believe in good over evil, life over death, medical advancement over painful incapacitation.

Christmas is a sensitive day. For those who maintain its significance, it will be a good day. Different emotions may surface.

With peace of mind, we are able to comprehend the comforting aspect of Christmas, the happiness which eases the pain of depressions and traumatic experiences. Our minds become aware that we can count on their resources to speak the truth, forgive the mistakes made around and within and trust our neighbors as we trust ourselves.

Good will toward men helps us believe in the intimacy of relationships and feel the satisfying touch of a family member.

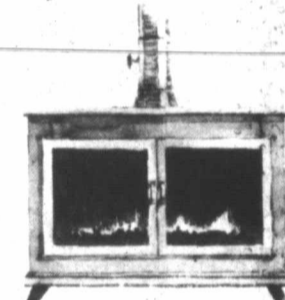

Add more heat for less cost

If your home is well-insulated, your doors and windows weatherstripped and storm windows and doors have been installed, you've made some wise moves toward energy conservation.

A growing number of people have discovered the added warmth and savings of investing in wood-burning stoves. Although both fireplaces and stoves can be used for the same purpose, many experts prefer stoves. Fireplaces use a lot of air to keep the fire going. That means fresh cold air will seep in around doors and windows to replace what goes up the flue. So a fireplace can even cool your house down.

A new advance in wood stove technology means stoves can burn with greater efficiency and safety. They create as much as 20 percent more heat, reduce air pollution by as much as 70 percent and nearly eliminate creosote-based chimney fires.

The development is the catalytic combustor from Corning Glass Works. The combustors will be available in stoves from more than 100 manufacturers in the U.S. and Canada.

Another energy-efficient idea from the same company are the Hearth-window™, glass doors for solid-fuel stoves that transmit up to 25 percent more radiant heat than conventional steel or cast iron.

For free brochures about wood stoves, write Catalytic Combustors, Corning Glass Works, Corning, N.Y. 14831.

Grogan shines
Veteran brings Houston defeat

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Grogan and wide receiver Stanley Morgan wasted little time in celebrating their reunion on the field for the New England Patriots.

Virtual strangers for more than a year, while Grogan sat on the bench, the veterans combined on two quick scoring strikes Sunday, triggering the Patriots' 29-21 National Football League win over the Houston Oilers.

Grogan, an eight-year pro injured on Nov. 15, 1981, and then beaten out for the starting job last summer by Matt Cavanaugh, also chipped in with a third touchdown pass to Tony Collins. He hit on 10 of 16 passes for 195 yards.

Morgan, who had only three receptions for 48 yards in three games with Cavanaugh this season, hauled in 5 passes for 122 yards, including scoring plays covering 63 and 24 yards in the first period.

"It came to me sort of deja vu — we'd done that before," Grogan said of the long bomb on New England's third play from scrimmage.

Indeed, the pair had done it before. Before his 1982 debut, Grogan hadn't thrown a touchdown pass since Nov. 8 1981, when he connected with Morgan on a 76-yard play.

"It sure felt good to connect with Stanley the way we did in a lot of games in the past," Grogan said. "But I just wanted to be respectable today. I feel good, but there's no sense in going overboard. I worked a lot on things I knew I was doing wrong, and now I'm throwing better than I have since the new coaching staff arrived here."

"It felt good," Morgan said. "Steve was on it, for sure. He threw the ball the way he's capable of doing it, with confidence."

Collins, a second-year pro, kept Houston defenses honest, running for a career-high 161 yards in 32 carries, setting up a pair of field goals by rookie Dan Miller, signed as a free agent last week.

On defense, the Patriots sacked Houston quarterback Archie Manning six times for a total loss of 62 yards. One sack resulted in a fourth-period safety when Manning was called for intentionally grounding the ball on a toss from the end zone.

"We just didn't do what we knew we had to do to win," Houston Coach Ed Biles said. "We knew we would have to prevent Grogan from completing the long bomb, and we knew we would have to stop Tony Collins on the ground. We did neither. And we couldn't provide adequate protection for Archie Manning. Our line was overpowered by the Patriots' defense."

Earl Campbell, held to 37 yards in 16 carries, gave Houston an early lead with a short scoring plunge. Then Grogan took command. The Patriots built a 29-7 lead before Manning passed for two touchdowns, to Dave Casper and Mike Renfro, late in the game.

"It's nice to look at a .500 (2-2) record," New England Coach Ron Meyer said. "I don't know why Steve passed better here than in preseason, but he did the job. Tony Collins played an outstanding game and it was good to get Stanley back into our offensive picture, and our young defensive line continues to improve."

The Patriots kept alive playoff hopes while handing Houston its third defeat in four starts. Only 33,602 fans, the smallest crowd in Schaefer Stadium history, turned out in sunny, 39-degree weather. The Patriots counted 451 no-shows in the stadium which seats 60,358.

INDIVIDUAL LEADERS

RUSHING — Oilers, Campbell 16-37, Manning 4-35. Patriots, Collins 32-161. Cunningham 5-15.

NFL roundup
Saints whip defending champion

By JOHN NELSON

One game could not have been more indicative of the turnaround of two teams.

The San Francisco 49ers, defending Super Bowl champions, were on the skids, and the New Orleans Saints, 4-12 last year, were on the move.

"The Saints are a hungry club, much like we were last year," 49ers linebacker Keena Turner said.

On Sunday, the Saints won their third in a row, riding the aging arm of quarterback Ken Stabler to a 23-20 upset of the 49ers.

Stabler, cut last season by the Houston Oilers, threw for 154 yards, completing five passes in a 99-yard drive in the first quarter that he capped with a 10-yard scoring pass to fullback Wayne Wilson.

New Orleans led 23-6 after three quarters, then withstood two fourth-quarter touchdown passes by Joe Montana to up its record to 3-1. San Francisco now is 1-3.

"A lot of people had written me off," Stabler said afterward. "I don't ever remember leaving."

The 49ers' offense sputtered as rain fell throughout the game at Candlestick Park. San Francisco fumbled twice, once at the New Orleans 24-yard line, and Montana was intercepted once, setting up a 1-yard touchdown run by George Rogers in the third quarter. New Orleans scored its other touchdown on a 2-yard run by Jimmy Rogers in the second quarter.

After four games — two since football's 57-day strike ended — only two teams remained undefeated. The Washington Redskins defeated Philadelphia 13-9 Sunday to up their record to 4-0, and tonight the Miami Dolphins put their 3-0 record on the line at Tampa Bay. Three other teams — Pittsburgh, the Los Angeles Raiders and Green Bay — lost for the first time Sunday.

The Steelers were defeated 16-0 at Seattle, Cincinnati clobbered the Raiders 31-17 and the New York Jets edged Green Bay 15-13.

The Los Angeles Rams finally got in the win column, beating Kansas City 20-14, leaving only Tampa Bay and Baltimore without a victory. Baltimore was shut out 20-0 at Buffalo.

In the rest of the NFL, Minnesota blasted Chicago 35-7, New England edged Houston 29-21, St. Louis edged Atlanta 23-20 and San Diego defeated Denver 30-20. On Thanksgiving Day, the New York Giants defeated Detroit 13-6, and Dallas whipped Cleveland 31-14.

Sunday's action featured a pair of record-setting passing performances and the apparent reluctance on the part of fans to forgive the strike.

Sunday's action featured a pair of record-setting passing performances and the apparent reluctance on the part of fans to forgive the strike.

Minnesota quarterback Tommy Kramer passed for 342 yards and a career-high five touchdowns, and Dan Fouts of San Diego threw for 337 yards to surpass the 300-yard plateau for an NFL-record 27th time.

Despite a full holiday weekend of play, that included two games on Thanksgiving Day, fans continued to stay away from ballparks. For 13 games this weekend, there were 117,417 no-shows and 91,660 unsold seats.

Redskins 13, Eagles 9

Mark Moseley hit a pair of long-range field goals, and Joe Theismann continued his hot hand with a 65-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Brown that boosted Washington over the 1-3 Eagles.

The Redskins intercepted Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski four times, twice in the final six minutes to turn back two Eagle scoring threats. Jaworski blamed a wet field.

Seahawks 16, Steelers 0

The shutout was the first against the Steelers since Dec. 4, 1980, when the Oilers beat them 6-0.

Seattle rookie Norm Johnson kicked three field goals, and Jim Zorn threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Paul Johns to even the Seahawks' record at 2-2.

The Seahawks' defense, meanwhile, held Pittsburgh to only 83 yards rushing and 135 through the air as the Steelers played much of the game without quarterback Terry Bradshaw. Bradshaw sustained a sprained shoulder after he was sacked in the first quarter.

Bengals 31, Raiders 17

Ken Anderson threw for one touchdown and ran for another, and cornerback Ken Riley returned an interception 56 yards for another score to propel Cincinnati past Los Angeles.

Bengals 3-1, defending American Conference champions, led 14-0 after one quarter on Anderson's 3-yard scoring pass to Rodney Holman and Riley's interception of a pass by Jim Plunkett, who was intercepted four times.

Jets 15, Packers 13

Pat Leahy's 25-yard field goal as time ran out in the third quarter lifted New York over previously unbeaten Green Bay.

Richard Todd threw a touchdown pass of 23 yards to Johnny "Lam" Jones, and the Jets, 3-1, scored their other touchdown on a 4-yard run by Mike Augustyniak. Both Green Bay scores came on touchdown passes from Lynn Dickey to rookie Phillip Epps.

Rams 20, Chiefs 14

Wendell Tyler scored two touchdowns and rushed for 138 yards as the Rams won their first game at the expense of the 1-3 Kansas City Chiefs.

Tyler's touchdowns came on runs of 1 and 23 yards in the second quarter, offsetting three fumbles. Two of Tyler's fumbles were recovered by Kansas City, the second with four minutes to play at the Los Angeles 26. The Chiefs, however, were unable to move the ball.

Bills 20, Colts 0

Roosevelt Leaks, rushing for a career-high 22 times, scored on a pair of short runs, and Buffalo, 3-1, handed Baltimore its second straight shutout loss.

Buffalo's other points came on Efen Herrera field goals of 47 and 41 yards. The Colts, meanwhile, were totally ineffective on offense, unable to move the ball into Buffalo territory even once during the game.

Vikings 35, Bears 7

Kramer passed for 342 yards and his five touchdown strikes helped the Vikings even their record at 2-2 as Chicago slipped to 1-3.

Kramer completed 26 of 35 passes, hitting wide receiver Sammy White for three touchdowns. White caught 10 passes for 177 yards, and both his three TDs and total yardage were career highs.

Cardinals 23, Falcons 20

Ottis Anderson ran for 122 yards and one touchdown, and quarterback Neil Lomax scored the clinching touchdown in the fourth quarter on a 1-yard run.

Atlanta's Mick Luckhurst missed a 42-yard field goal attempt with one second left that could have sent the game into overtime.

Both teams have 2-2 records.

Chargers 30, Broncos 20

Fouts threw three touchdown passes to Kellen Winslow in addition to cracking the 300-yard mark. Winslow's final scoring catch, covering 2 yards, snapped a 20-20 tie with 6:16 left in the game, and Rolf Benirschke added a 42-yard field goal with 52 seconds left.

Fouts finished with 27 completions in 40 attempts.

McEnroe leads U.S. to Davis Cup win

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — It wasn't such a bad year for John McEnroe after all. He lost his Wimbledon and U.S. Open crowns but was the hero of the United States' fourth Davis Cup triumph in six years.

McEnroe tamed 19-year-old Henri Leconte 6-2, 6-3 Sunday to give the Americans a final 4-1 winning margin over France in the final series.

"It wasn't easy," McEnroe said. "It was difficult to come over here and play the French on their own ground, in front of a French crowd and on a surface I play worst on."

"It is a nice way to end the year. I didn't do so well at Wimbledon and Flushing Meadow, but I didn't go into the Davis Cup with thoughts of that in mind."

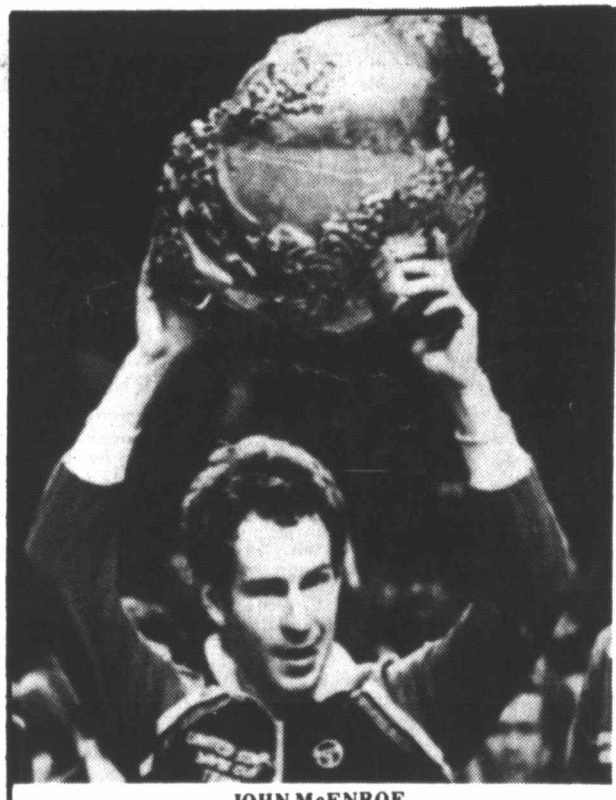

"It's your country that matters in the Davis Cup, not personal success."

The United States went into the last day of the final leading 3-0, with the cup already safely in its possession.

Sunday's two singles, which could not affect the overall result, were made best-of-3 sets instead of five and the day fell a little flat.

Yannick Noah, the French No. 1, hammered listless Gene Mayer 6-1, 6-0 and restored a little of his country's broken pride.

In the Mayer-Noah match, Mayer missed the lines repeatedly and made a mess of his volleying. He said later he could not get motivated with the U.S. already the victor.

Kings whipped by lowly Cleveland

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD

Robinson — got it done.

Huston scored 21 points and had seven assists, Robinson had 17 points and 13 rebounds and Wedman 17 points to spark the Cavaliers, who ended a home-court losing streak of 15 games.

Only 1,989 fans attended the game at Richfield Coliseum, the smallest in the nine years the Cavaliers have played in the 20,000-seat arena.

Robinson hit two three-point plays in less than a minute of the fourth quarter to turn a 101-100 Kansas City lead into a 106-103 edge for Cleveland with 2:28 left.

Wedman scored four points, while Robinson and Steve Hayes each scored three in the final two minutes to put away the victory.

Ray Williams sparked the Kansas City attack with 26 points, and Mike Woodson added 18. The Kings' 8-4 record still is good enough to lead the Midwest Division based on percentage, but they are one-half game behind the

San Antonio Spurs, 11-6, Celtics 124, Bucks 109

Larry Bird scored 25 of his 37 points in the first half and hit 15 of his 18 shots in the game as Boston beat Milwaukee for its eighth victory in a row.

The Celtics, 13-2, who lost to the Bucks in Boston Nov. 10, raced to a 21-point edge in the third quarter after leading 67-58 at halftime. Robert Parish had 13 of his 19 points in the period.

Junior Bridgeman led Milwaukee with 27 points. Lakers 142, Warriors 127. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points as Los Angeles shot 58.9 percent from the field to run away from Golden State.

Jamaal Wilkes added 21 points for the Lakers, while Sam Williams had 26 for Golden State, which never led in the game.

Los Angeles hit 65.7 percent of its shots in the first three quarters to go ahead 112-88 and the Warriors never threatened in the final period.

"Losing Hair?" Try This At No Risk

HOUSTON, Texas — For years they said it couldn't be done. But, now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for "sebum" hair loss, that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss. Many conditions can cause hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family and if you wait until you are sick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help.

So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc. will supply you with treatment of 32 days at their risk - if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail.

Outgoing president of the National Organization for Women Eleanor Smeal poses for pictures in her Washington office recently. Smeal will be succeeded by Judy Goldsmith Wednesday. (AP Laserphoto)

Retiring president even more determined on ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five tumultuous years as a dynamo behind the losing campaign for the Equal Rights Amendment have only deepened Eleanor Smeal's determination to see women win equal rights.

The two-term president of the National Organization for Women steps down Wednesday with every indication that she will remain a highly visible feminist force.

"I'm going to stay very active in politics and women's rights," says Mrs. Smeal. "I would like to see us improve the world — make it safer for progress."

The former Pittsburgh housewife, whose husband left his job to join her in Washington, plans to lecture and write until her son graduates from high school in June.

"I never thought they (politicians) could go backwards this fast. Sometimes I think I'll wake up and whether the world is flat or round will still be an issue," Mrs. Smeal says with good-natured disbelief.

"Whether they like it or not, they'll catch up with reality. There's a lot of us who are going to hang in there."

Mrs. Smeal's ascent from local activist to national spokeswoman was aided by a master's degree in political science and a lifelong sensitivity to discrimination.

The daughter of an Italian immigrant, she vividly recalls growing up with "tremendous discrimination on the basis of ethnicity" in Erie, Pa.

She also remembers Duke University's racial struggles in the late 1950s, and how as a student leader she tried unsuccessfully to encourage integration of the campus.

Her feminist awakening occurred in 1969, through books she read as she convalesced from back problems and complications after the birth of her daughter. A year later, she and her husband joined NOW.

By 1975, Eleanor Smeal had become chairman of NOW's national board and a national traveler working full-time on an unpaid for the ERA. In 1977, she won the first of two terms as national NOW president.

Barred by NOW bylaws from running a third term, Ms. Smeal will be succeeded this week by NOW vice president Judy Goldsmith.

She is leaving as the same, her sense of outrage intact. Her final newsletter dwells not on her departure but on charges that the Social Security system treats women unfairly.

Mrs. Smeal presided over NOW, the nation's largest feminist organization, as its membership swelled from 40,000 to nearly 250,000; its budget soared from $500,000 to $13 million; and its grass-roots political network grew from no political action committees to 81 in 40 states.

Attention Management Personnel... If you can answer YES to these questions, you and McDonald's may be a perfect match!

Yes No
 Do you have two years management experience or two years of college?
 Have you worked in restaurant management and enjoyed the position but not the job?
 Are you at least 21 years of age?
 Do you present yourself as a professional to customers and subordinates?
 Do you possess high standards and a proven record of accomplishment?
 Do you feel that your past position did not allow you to utilize your management skills and talents?
 Are you interested in a management position at McDonald's?

If you have answered "Yes" to all the questions, McDonald's would like to visit with you. We feel that we have the best restaurant management package to offer.

Our Management Package includes:
• Two Weeks Paid Vacation (3 weeks after 5 years)
• Group Life-Medical Insurance
• 6 Paid Holidays per Year
• 5-day Work Week
• Supervised Training Format
• Management Uniforms
• Continuous Advancement Opportunities

TV industry group says the tube not to blame for reading problems

NEW YORK (AP) — A growing body of research contends television has been unfairly blamed for declining reading scores among American children. Armed with those studies, the television industry is now going on the offensive.

The Television Information Office, an industry-financed publicity arm, this month issued a six-page research paper that argues that only "seekers of a quick remedy for scholastic shortcomings ... claim television is the cause of the problem."

Even some educators who counsel against too much television-watching say hard evidence failed to show what impact TV has on classroom performance, or whether the impact was necessarily bad.

Herbert J. Walberg, a research professor of education at the University of Illinois, likened TV to alcohol. Excessive TV viewing, such as 20 or 30 hours per week, "has a very deleterious effect" on a youngster, he said.

But an hour or so a night of good television, sipped and savored, is actually better than no TV at all, according to Walberg's "Impact of Leisure Time Television on School Learning: A Research Synthesis."

TV viewed in such moderation, Walberg said, most often occurs when parents are living up to their responsibility of monitoring programs.

Reading expert Rudolf Flesch's recent book, "Why Johnny Still Can't Read," stated even more bluntly that "too much TV" is "such a handy scapegoat the educators never fail to mention it." The real problem, insisted Flesch, was that most schools were inept at teaching reading.

The Television Information Office's paper, "Television and Education: Assessing Academic Achievement," argues that:

—A child's reading scores have more to do with "socioeconomic factors." Children of professional parents, for instance, tend to read better than those of unskilled workers.

—Heavy television viewing doesn't cause reading problems but rather is the product of those problems.

... Children having difficulty with classroom study and with homework will turn to television ... precisely because of their reading difficulties.

The report concludes that "intuitive but pervasive negative attitudes" among educators about what television is doing to schoolchildren are starting to die out. "The war between educators and television is becoming a cautious but optimistic alliance," it says.

Not everyone has signed the truce. Bert Briller, who produced the Television Industry Office study, said one reason it was written is that books and articles continue to appear that are highly critical of TV's influence on classroom performance.

AAM divided on its methods

WASHINGTON (AP) — In early 1978, members of the fledgling American Agriculture Movement turned 82 goats loose on the Capitol grounds to draw attention to the financial plight of agriculture.

In the winter of 1979, the group got thousands of farmers to drive their tractors to Washington to protest low prices and demand "parity," a complicated formula designed to stabilize the buying power of farmers.

Now, supporters say the nation's youngest farm movement has matured. The AAM has incorporated, established a Washington office and even has a political action committee that gave $90,000 to candidates for Congress.

"We have succeeded in accomplishing in five years what some of the old-line farm organizations have spent 50 years in doing — getting name recognition, credibility and access to the policy makers in Washington," said David Senter, AAM's lobbyist.

But that very boast is at the heart of the organization's problems. It has become divided, with some members devoted to working the political system and others to grass-roots activism. The tug-of-war is likely to spring into public view when the movement holds its national convention in January in Nashville, Tenn.

"Farmers are worse off now than we were then," said Derel Fillingim of Hico, Texas, chairman of the organization's Parity Trust Fund, who said many of the movement's initial backers are disillusioned. "Some of us are re-looking at this thing."

One member of the House Agriculture Committee was more harsh. "It's played out," said the congressman, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified. "Most of the good people they had have gone to other farm organizations."

"I look forward to a pretty heated discussion (at the convention)," said Wayne Cryts, the Puxico, Mo., farmer who has become AAM's most visible spokesman because of his court battle to reclaim soybeans from the estate of a bankrupt grain elevator.

Cryts, a candidate for AAM national chairman, favors focusing the movement's efforts on Washington, as does its present chairman, Marvin Meek of Plainview, Texas.

"Chances are I will be the national chairman," claims Alvin Jenkins of Campo, Colo., credited with being among the half-dozen farmers who first formed AAM in late 1977. He says the group's current direction is "a pitiful deal" and vows to fight to focus efforts back on rural activism. "There's nothing healthier for the movement than a good brawl," he said.

Jenkins and his supporters are talking about channeling farm frustration into a new uprising.
