Cultivating a lovely speaking voice isn't difficult. To find out your sound to others, try this simple trick that singers use: cup one hand behind your ear and talk in your normal tone of voice. You'll hear for yourself whether your voice is too high, too nasal, too shrill or whatever. Another revealing experiment is to listen to a wire recording of

I am going to be 14 this summer and I want to have a birthday party for both boys and girls. Our neighbors have a swimming pool and have told me that I can have a swimming party if I like. I certainly would like to but I don't know how to work out the refreshment problem and so mother told me to write you and see if you have any suggestions.

Dear Teener:

A swimming party sounds like fun. If I were you I wouldn't have too large a party, perhaps eight or ten boys and girls altogether. Afterwards why don't you take everyone back to your home and have an outdoor supper. You can have a nice salad and maybe hot dogs or hamburgers and then the usual birthday dessert of cake and ice cream. You can serve pop or milk to drink as you wish.

Have your party start about 3:30 so that everyone will be ready to eat by six and you can finish your supper before dark.

If you have an outdoor grill, you can fix the hamburgers there or otherwise your mother can prepare them in the kitchen and bring them out on trays. You can have card tables set up or one large table. It shouldn't to too much work and it should be lots

As for the swimming party, it wouldn't be a bad idea to have an adult about-just in case. WANTED: ONE JOB Dear Mrs. Friend:

I am 14 and I would like to have a job this summer. To tell the truth I have never done anything so far but a few chores around the house for my mother and dad. I'd be willing to learn almost anything. Do you think you could help to fall out of use and the figure parliamentarian, me find something a 14 year old to become obsolete. Last ships of Officers who could do?

I'll keep you in mind and if I hear of anything in the next few week's I'll let you know, You are to be commended for wanting a job and I hope that something suitable will turn up.

INVITATIONS Dear Mrs. Friend:

I have been in the habit of only answering invitations when I am planning not to attend. If I don't regret I feel that the hostess should know that I am planning to come

A friend tells me that I should answer an invitation regardless. Is that right.?

I know an awfully nice gir and I am very fond of her and would like to take her out. However there is a problem can convince the mother that am a nice enough boy to be trusted with her daughter? After all I don't even smoke or drink and don't know what more a mother can want, do you?

About all you can do is be just as nice as possible to your girl's mother so that she will learn to trust you. Talk to her for a while when you arrive to visit your friend and let her find out that you are a nice, intelligent young

Perhaps you could bring her a little gift of some flowers or candy either of which might soften her attitude.

Personally, I feel that young people your age should be allowed to go to dances and movies with a half hour added for stopping to have a soda or a sand-

Is her attitude the result of something your girl has done in the past such as staying out much too late? In that case she will have to show her mother that she is to be trusted to be out until midnight or thereabouts.

One last thought-when you and your girl's mother have become good friends why not point out that if you had any wicked intentions regarding the girl that you could carry them out before 9:30 as well as after.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR. NEW YORK - (P) - Mr. Inside (the midwestern member of that know-it-all family) sends word that Notre Dame is in wrong with the other footballplaying colleges for "jumping the gun" in signing a television contract. . At a recent Chicago meeting, he says, some of the other schools read the riot act and insisted the contract should be cancelled, . How that came about isn't explained. Only official NCAA action on the subject last winter was to recommend no contracts be signed beyond the 1950-51 season. . . Of course, if Mr. Inside's figure, $200,000, is correct, the Irish could afford to build a modern air-conditioned doghouse and stay in it quite comfortably. They're not having any schedule troubles .Incidentally, Mr. I. reports, the chief spokesman against TV was Fritz Crisler, who can pack 97,000 into Michigan Stadium, anyway. Leveraction rifles must be cleaned from the muzzle. In cleaning the cylinder of a revolver hold the cylinder, not the frame. 1. Then saturate a patch with powder solvent or gun oil and swab the bore. 2. Swab the bore with four or five dry flannel patches to remove dirt loosened by operation 1. Then look through the bore against a strong light to see that it is perfectly clean. If not, or if smudges of dirt or lead are seen, or if the patches 499 seem to stick slightly when running through the bore, the cure simple. Merely screw a brass wire bristle brush on the rod, dip it in powder solvent or oil nd swab through the bore half a dozen times. Push the brush the way through the bore and out the muzzle before pulling it back. Never use a steel bristle brush in any bore.

3. The bore being clean, saturate a patch with gun oil and it as a swab. This protects the bore from rust for about a month. If the gun is to be set aside for a longer period, wipe the oil out the next day and swab with a patch heavily saturated with good gun grease.

4. Before firing the weapon again swab all oil or grease out the bore with several dry patches. Firing any gun with grease in the bore or chamber may cause the barrel to burst.

This is all the care that the ore requires. Simple, isn't it?

COLONIAL FEATURES HOGAN VS. SNEAD - From Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, shown above, will come the nation's biggest news in golf this week. The Fifth Annual $15,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament with its exclusive field of 36 champions opens Thursday and runs through Sugday. Potential headlines from the event can be found in the fact that Ben Hogan, right, and Sam Snead, who have won the lion's share of all golfing laurels since the war, will be matching strokes again at Colonial. Hogan was on top until his near-fatal car accident a year ago, after which Snead succeeded him to the throne room. In Hogan's first tournament after a 10-month recovery, and the first tournament of 1950, the Los Angeles Open in January, the two tied for first place honors, and Snead won the title in a playoff. But during the first week of this month, Hogan topped Snead by 10 strokes on the latter's home course to win the Greenbrier championship and tie the world's low-scoring record for 72 holes-259. This week, as they meet again, this time on Hogan's home course, Hogan being a dues-paying member of Colonial, they will be competing with 34 of the other biggest names in golf, but their personal "feud" is certain to be one of the Colonial features even if by the remotest of chances neither should get into the running for the $3,000 winner's purse, the biggest in the nation to date in 1950.

BROWDER'S NEST MATES

(Chicago Daily Tribune) Sen. Tydings has rendered the proceedings of his committee charged with investigating communist infiltration of the state Earl Browder and other notorious Communists on the stand as character witnesses for the accused played it straight and said there had never been a Communist or fellow traveler in the department or anywhere in the government. Browder was removed as leader finitely comic Useless as Browder's appearance was on the point at issue, it produced collateral matter of great interest. Browder, who was pardoned by Mr. Roosevelt in 1942 after serving only 14 months of a four year sentence for perjuring himself in obtaining a passport to Russia, disclosed that he had reported to Roosevelt during the war on the military situation in China and had played an important role in reshaping American policy in China, now gone over to the Communists.

He was personally invited to the state department in 1942 and 1943 and there discussed what America's China policy ought to be with Sumner Welles, then undersecretary, and Lauchlin Currie, Roosevelt's administrative assistant, Currie was identified by Whittaker Chambers, former party member who exposed Alger Hiss, as "a fellow traveler who helped various Communists but never went the whole way." according to the notes of A. A. Berle, former assistant secretary of state.

Former Rep. John J. O'Connor the house rules committee, who was purged by Roosevelt, asserted less than two months ago that Browder was working closely with Roosevelt as early as 1938 was a frequent White House visitor, and helped direct purge operations from the White House in that year. Miss Grace Tully, Roosevelt's former secretary, took it on herself to deny these charges but we now have it from Browder himself that he was reporting to Roosevelt thru two of the President's top men and was reshaping American policy, with the result that China fell to communism

The overwhelming mass of patriotic Americans will be startled | time. and shocked by these revelations A DANGEROUS TRILLION but Mr. Browder's organ, the Washington Post, has leaped into print with an editorial-strange even for that newspaper-heralding Browder as a hero, "as responsive as anyone could wish" to the questions of the committee, but a man who "did not propose to participate in any further extension of guilt by association."

Oklahoma I interlaced my scholastic education with seasonal jobs on my father's place and on neighboring farms. The neighboring farmers paid well. My earnings weren't large but in those days a dollar, to an Oklahoma schoolboy, was a tidy sum. And the actual earning of dollars helped me in my arithmetic studies. Both at school and at work as a farm hand, I learned to have great respect for any such sum as $100. That amount of cash savings started me through my first year at college. I did odd jobs on the campus to earn the remaining cost.

A dollar was valued by an Oklahoma farm boy of 1920 as representing approximately the energy it took to plow an acre of land with a one-horse plow. That made it pretty valuable, 1 guess that's why my school teacher had some much difficulty getting me to comprehend the tuge figure $1,000,000. It took a Hvely imagination to visualize 1,000,000 robust young farmers strung out across the land, all plowing away at their acre. The line would in fact, he 41.667 miles long and would reach just about twice around the globe at the

A BILLION IS BIG I'd been out of college several years when we Americans first began to hear vague talk in terms of "billions." TRUMAN CLINCHES THE CASE AGAINST RENT CONTROL

On April 21st, President Truman sent a message to Congress urging the extension of rent control. Doubtless, he presented the atrongest arguments either he himself or his advisers could conjure up. What support for their position were they able to muster? Let us examine his contentions.

He says that housing is still in short supply, but he neglects to say anything about the fact that the fixing of rents at pre-War levels has made it unprofitable for the owners of rundown residential property to repair it and make it habitable. He also conveniently forgets the Census figures showing that the abnormally low rentals brought about by rent control have induced millions of tenants to occupy more space than they formerly did, and have thus given They now balk at being molded cow is the indignation engulfing into the Russian matrices. In advance rents to cover greatly increased expenses of operation and rising living costs? Here are a few figures giving an inkling as to what has happened since 1942 to some of the landlord's expenses:

some places rents have been decontrolled. When this is taken into account, how much has been the increase since 1942 in the Av. tor 4an. %, 1942 1950 Iner. 1965 12.6 13

Thus, the average landlord gets a 13 per cent increase in receipts to meet percentage expense increases ranging from 43% to 96%. Can President Truman seriously contend that, in view the figures just cited, the average landlord is at present getting a fair deal?

The President goes on to point out that, in eight cities where rents have been decontrolled. "the average increase was over 25 percent." Suppose that this happened all along the line, 1.13x1.25 equals 1.41. It appears, therefore, that a 25% increase in prethan in 1942. This would be less

Perhaps, however, the President believes that, while the tenants will spend their dollars, the landlords will hoard theirs. To assume that members of the latter class, after being robbed of a large part of their just dues for eight years are in any position to hoard, certainly requires a most elastic imagination. As to the effect upon the volume of unemployment, the probabilities are that rent increases might force a very considerable number of the people who are now loafing at the taxpayers' expense -in other words taking vacations on unemployment insurance to go to work. In so far as they stopped sponging their livings off the public and began producing, they would add to the nation's total volume of spending power, and hence of demand for goods. The President seems suddenly to begin to feel concern over the growing inadequacy of the pensions received by some of our aged citizens. It would have been helpful if he had thought of this when addressing Congress concerning the national budget. At that time, he apparently was not much worried about a five billion dollar deficit which probably will be covered by inflation and a further shrinkage in the purchasing power of pensions.

All in all, it seems that the President has had to go into the highways and byways to drag in arguments supposed to justify the continuance of rent controls, The weakness of the case which he finally presents seems to prove appears, therefore, that any valid reason for continuing rent controls has proved very difficult to unearth.

aster was that the 600-ton munitions shipment was the last to be permitted here before enforcement of new Coast Guard safety regulations.

The Coast Gaurd office for the Port of New York ordered on May 9 that munitions shipments from South Amboy be limited to 800 pounds, because of the nearness of the docks to a congested area.

Vice Admiral Merlin O'Neill said the Coast Guard decided to permit one last shipment of more than 500 pounds, because it was informed that arrangements for it were made before the May 9 order, and because it was considered safer to ship it than to leave it in crowded box cars. Stevedore spokesmen had pro-tested the May 9 order on grounds that it would throw men out of work.
