of the Child calls you to become an active participant in behalf of the children of the world.

During 1979 --- designated the International Year of the Child by the United Nations --- much information was gathered on

"children," and out of this information recommendations made to improve the lot of the children.

What has learned? Over one-third of the world's total population is made up of children under the age of 15--this is a world of relatively young people. Eighty percent of the children who are 15 and younger live in the developing countries of Africa, Asia and Latin American.

It is estimated that by the year 2,000, just 20 years from now, 96 percent of the world's children will developing live in countries.

The first of three major problem areas for children is education. World-wide, three-fourths of all boys and roughly two-thirds of all girls are enrolled in primary school: The developing countries have about 70 percent of the boys and 53 percent of girls enrolled in primary school.

Even in developed countries such as the United States, enrollment in school, however, does not insure that the student will develop into a literate, skilled citizen able to effectively contribute to society. The second and third major problems for children in the world today are nutrition and health. For children, as well as entire families, the biggest roadblock to sound nutrition is lack of money to buy the more expensive protein foods. Other problems of poor distribution, marketing and transportation inhibit proper nutrition.

Con't. from page 1 "By beign Speaker of the Houe, he is able to speak just that much louder for us and for having the most capable and effective legislator in Austin we can be justly proud," Armistead added. His ever-growing duties in guiding the House has made it impossible for him to spend considerable time in the district. To remedy the situation when he must be away from the district and whenever the Legislature is in session, Clayton devised a unique "mobile office" that each month for almost three years has visited each city, town and community in the seven counties at least once every other week. The concept of bringing government to the people has worked remarkably well.

"When I first came to office I said I was running to represent all of the people. I haven't changed my opinion in the least and that's what I have done.

"Representing doesn't mean just showing up in Austin and taking part in the debates. Representing means when people come to you with problems that you work to the best of your ability to resolve those problems.

"In seeking reelection, Clayton expressed concern over major issues that will confront the 67th Legislature, particularly that of redistricting to comply with the decennial census count. I intend to make every effort in the very crucial redistricting session ahead to maintain the voice this area has in the U.S. Congress, the State Senate and the House of Representatives," Clayton said.

Clayton, who is regarded in the Legislature as an expert on water and conservation legislation, as he passed most of what is now Texas water law, has served on every major committee in the House.

As Speaker he has been involved in statewide legislation which has had a direct effect on the district. The tax relief amendment of 1978 was sent to the state's voters through the guidance of Clayton. He has also been active in seeing that the implementation of tax relief benefits homeowners and farmers and ranchers alike.

His innovative ideas in education and financing of the state's educational system have been credited with increasing educational excellence throughout the state. He has long been advocate of cutting red tape in government and reducing its size, primarily though the Sunset law which he helped pass.

Agriculture, roads and highways, the against crime, strengthening private enterprise, energy ideas, protection for natural resources and care of the state's needy are all areas in which Bill Clayton has been an effective voice.

Bil Clayton's principal source of income is from his farming operation in Springlake where he and his wife Delma reside. Paid Political advertising by Rep. Bill Clayton

Does it amaze you that there are so many colors and color combinations of new cars? Many people consider the color of their automobile one of the most important parts of buying a new car. I will have to agree with them, if not all, at least in part. We consider our new colors "happy" colors and this they should be. Your car is part of your happiness as it takes you where you want to go. In the early days of the automobile there were but few colors offered. In those days usually mother and daddy were the car buyers--now, of course, mother, daddy and the children have a part in Can you see a teenager in a black, drab automobile without any chrome?
