the drying grass and leaves can wipe out a farm or an oil worker's lease home.

That's the warning given by the Martin and Turner Insurance Agency. 107 North Frost. The season is beginning for grass and field fires.

To those living out of town, a fire is usually more than just a burned roof and a scorched wall, it usually means a complete loss of property. By time the fire department can cover two or three miles to out-of-town fire, all property is usually completely burned.

For those who do have fire insurance, whether in town or in the country, Martin and Turner have another word of advices—see that property insurance is adequet to handle the rise in value of the property.

A Business Without Advertising Is A

Perfect SET-UP...For Trouble

In times of easy-spending perhaps a business is able to get by without advertising . . . although it is not a sound policy. As the public becomes more price-conscious the intelligent merchant steers clear of the rocks of bankruptcy by systematic advertising. It is not necessary for the small merchant to run large ads, in fact that extreme may end as disastrously as a nonadvertising policy; but, bear this in mind if you wish the customers to keep returning to your store, it is a good policy to keep your store name consistently before them — in the form of daily paper advertising.

BUILDING NEWS

These two attractive small homes, finished on the outside with large asbestos cement boards, are examples of a new siding technique. Full or half sheets of asbestos board, a fire-safe and weatherproof building material often used for interior walls or utility purposes, were applied as siding for reasons of economy and design. The house at the top, privately built in Urbana, Ill., is sided with full 4x8-fost asbestos boards applied vertically. Wood battens, placed on 16-inch centers, conceal the vertical joints and provide a decorative effect. Asbestos cement boards, cut in half lengthwise to make 2x8-foot panels, were applied to the house at the bottom. This is one of the research houses built in Urbana by the Small Homes Council of the University of Illinois. Panels were applied in clapboard style with a strip of lath placed under each course to

Lots of Americans would like to eat more potatoes and more eggs, if they could afford them. But they can't, because their Government uses their money to keep prices beyond their reach.

In effect, the Government is hiring potato growers and chicken raisers to do work which is completely useless and wasted. In the process it is keeping the cost of iving higher than it should beat a cost of perhaps a quarter of a billion dollars a year to the taxpayers.

You've Got to Face It

By GORDON MARTIN
These are trying days for oldsters who can't understand their young, and the jargon they converse in with a glib and facile tongue. As we see it, modern slang is full of strange and puzzling quips, since we don't need leaky faucets to be labeled first class drips. But the trouble with us elders is it's band. drips. But the trouble with us elders is it's hard to get us sold on the idea that we're graying and, by No; it's not much fun to say it, but regardless

that's a fact, and you've got to look at aging with a modicum of tact; got to realize that youngsters of this modern day and age wouldn't know about Chautauquas or of girls on Ziegfeld's stage, never heard of Texas Guinan or saw Jack Dempsey knock 'em cold, there's not much point in trying to deny we're growing old.

So we look around and marvel at the gay young blades today, and their big parade of parties and the pace at which they play, how much energy they burn in rushing here and rushing there, losing sleep or to drive convertibles through early morning air—well, it's then our bedroom slippers look to us like so much gold, and we never mind admitting it's a fact we're growing old.

The 1949 BASEBALL SEASON FOR PAMPA fans came to a conclusion just a week ago, but before we tuck it away in the mothballs until the hot stove league starts are this winter, let's take one last fleeting and soleful glance back at the season's flop of the Oilers. And a complete flop it was, after the pre-season heights we had been driven to after listening to the tales about the team's power.

Before we talk about the failures, let's look at the lone shining spot of the season. That of course was the play of Roy Parker. He was the lone man on the squad that short. He had the fielding ability. Before was the play of Roy Parker. He was the lone man on the squad that shone brilliantly all season. POLIO EMERGENCY FINANCIAL DRIVE

The National Association for Infantile Paralysis is faced with a financial emergency. The epidemic this year is the worst in history. There are almost 36,000 cases on the books of the National Foundation at this time—85 per cent more than last year. Fourteen millions of dollars are needed immediately if all are to receive proper care.

In 1948 Gray County had its worst year. The National Foundation came to our help. We cannot fail the National Foundation at this time. If we do, we fail every sufferer from this dread disease.

There are happy children in Gray County today because the National Foundation met our needs in 1948.

Please send in your donation, today! Make checks payable to to "Polio" and address your letter to "Polio," c-o of the Pampa Post Office or in care of your local post office if you live outside of Pampa. Every penny will go directly to the National Foundation and directly to the relief of sufferers.

We Must Act Now—and We Must Be Generous!

NOT ONE CASE OF POLIO IN GRAY COUNTY HAS EVER BEEN REFUSED ALL NECESSARY RELIEF WHEN APPLICATION HAS BEEN MADE TO THE LOCAL CHAPTER. Gray County chapter is still spending hundreds of dollars for continued treatment of polio victims in 1948 as well as taking care of cases which have come to it this year.

Whether you can give a few cents or a thousand dollars, send it in today!

THE STORY: Gaynel Teare has | ] accepted Fritz Freyman's proposal of marriage. She is wildly n love even though she knows there are many problems to be settled. Gaynel's family, which she has supported since her faon a moderate income and not rely on Gaynel's salary. Gaynel's hardest task is to tell Barry Bainbridge, a wealthy young man, who bridge, a wealthy young man, who is in iove with her. Barry had naked her to marry him and Gaynel promised to give him an anawer later. In the meantime she had fallen in love with Fritz. Now.
as Gaynel and Barry return home from a football game, Gaynel decides to tell Barry her plans. She starts to break the news, and Barry naka her. "What are you trying to say?"

XXVII BARRY looked at her now for a to give me that answer I asked for, repay in any way." you needn't hurry. I don't want to rush you. Perhaps that was taking you too much for granted. But I see it differently now. I want you to take all the time you want to decide. I want you to be sure, as However, when it next comes you said." "That's dear of you, Barry." She wished he weren't such a dear. He did not make it easier by being general and development of far Bastern anti-Communist policies in particular.

Gold not make it easier by being your partner, "May I go out, partlike that. "I told you I'd tell you ner?" You are again bound by his reply.

Gold not make it easier by being judge that. "I told you I'd tell you as soon as I was sure. I am sure now, Barry. And I'm so terribly sorry I can't give you the answer I'd like to give—" He had not looked at her, or said a word; but she had seen his hands tighten on the wheel, the knuckles white. "You'll wonder why I'm so sure-now," she said. "I promised I'd tell if ever there was someone else. . . Oh, I hate myself for having to tell you this, truly I do. I wouldn't tell you, Barry, if I weren't so sure."

it. As I told you, I don't believe you love me-not in the way I love Fritz. Why, Barry, it simply turns your whole world upside down! It makes you giddy—silly —and so ridiculously happy you scarcely can bear it. You don't really feel that way about me."
"Never mind that," Barry said. Please." He looked at her now. He did not try to hide the hurt in his eyes. "It's a bit too soon for condolences. Right on top of a death sentence." "You mustn't take it like that, Barry," He did care. In the way she felt about Fritz. But he would get over it. "I'm so fond of you, Barry; you're so much a part of my life; I want you always to be that part. I owe so terribly much long moment. "If you're trying to you, more than I ever can > "NEVER mind that, either," Barry said; but net so shortly. This had been a blow; but he would not give up yet. He still had too much to offer her. It still seemed too right-and sure-that he and Gaynel belonged together; always had and always would. He could afford patience. "You don't owe me an thing, Gaynel . . . " doubt caught hold of her again; those cold sober facts.

"That's good." He did not sound as though he thought it would be simple, either. Barry knew Gaynel's family.

GAYNEL said proudly, as though meeting a challenge, "Fritz has grand new job. With a newsaper syndicate. He can take care of both of us nicely. Of course I wouldn't want him to take on my whole family-even if he could afford it."

"Of course not," Barry said. "I don't believe he'd do it, either," Gaynel mused. "He'd think it wasn't his job. Fritz has all sorts of ideals; he's a serious person-and stubborn. Though you'd never guess it, because he's always clowning so. I wish," she turned appealing toward Barry's set profile, "you knew him better, Barry. I hope you will."

"I hope so, too." Barry was polite, nothing more. Barry swerved the car, with a twist of lean wrists, out of the way of another that almost sideswiped them in trying to pass. "That was a narrow one," he said. "You handled it beautifully."

She had had a bad moment. "But you will be friends?" "Of course." Barry could han-dle other things as well as he could a car. His tone begged apology, as well as his eyes, "you must remember this isn't exactly—simole-for me. But I don't count. All I want is for you to have what you want-your happiness. I know that sounds like the set speech for the losing rival, but it comes from the heart, Gaynel. You know

"I know," Gaynel said. She put her hand over his on the wheel; a "Not in any big hurry," Gaynel brief gesture of thanks, of sympathy and affection, that came

Barry said, "There's one thing very well. As she might have more. If you ever should change known he would. "Fritz wants me your mind—I'll always geel the same; you'll always was someone else, I'd take that
