

PARDON MY TOWEL —

'Crowd Fights Slippery Gumbo Mud White Cowboys Waliz With Rain-Soaked Bulls

Though not the longest performance in the history of the show, Pampa's first night performance of the Top of Texas swimming meet and rodeo was certainly one of the wettest.

Cowboys and girls, entertainers and spectators were all wet—and the rain kept coming down. KPDD weather station reported a total precipitation of .45 of an inch but most people attending the evening's entertainment would have sworn it rained a foot.

The sellout crowd found it difficult to get out to the arena and almost impossible to get away. All traffic officers did an efficient job throughout the evening's congestion of traffic. They were still on the job, continually moving the traffic, after the parking grounds had become a mud pond, and the roads were slick.

The rain, which started shortly after the grand entry, kept up a steady drizzle and soon turned into a heavy rain. The mud was everywhere. Wreckers and heavy trucks, called out by radio to the rodeo grounds, were pulling past 11 p.m. and one wrecking driver said he couldn't leave until after 11:30. The show got started shortly after 8 p.m. but by 8:30 the stands were almost filled under the stands that is. One woman said her place under the seats was good and dry until so many people joined her there was nothing to stop the showers coming through from above.

One rodeo performer found he would have been safer had he stayed in the arena. Jim Mitchell, an Amarillo Range Rider, was taken to Pampa Hospital with a dislocated elbow. Mitchell, trying to push his car out of the mud after the show, slipped and fell on his arm, throwing the elbow out of joint. It had slipped back in place, however, by the time the ambulance arrived at the hospital and Mitchell was released with no medical attention necessary.

While cowboys were waiting with rain-soaked bulls, the band played on. Hardin-Simmons University's world famous Cowboy Band, and like the hands on board sinking ships, played to the last. It was just a matter of staying from under holes in the top and keeping the instruments dry enough to play. Sheriff Will Watson, self-appointed mascot of the band, was well prepared for the downpour with his huge version of a ten-gallon hat. Drenched band members accused the law enforcing sponsor of carrying an umbrella.

But umbrellas would have sold like the proverbial hotcake last night. They would have far outdistanced sales of peanuts and seat cushions. Newspapers graced many a lady's coiffure and some enterprising person could have made enough money to see a dozen rodeos had he brought an ample supply of papers—even old ones. There were numerous instances of persons seeking cover, deciding to go back and swim it out, then scurrying back to cover after a few soaked minutes.

There was one example of enterprise following the show. Around ten teenagers took off their shoes, rolled up their pants legs and began pushing cars out of the mud. Then they gathered around appreciative, unshook drivers and collected.

One little, unidentified but thoroughly soaked spectator found she had more trouble than being wet. She and her parents trying to get through the crowd to the car were separated. The little "DIP" kept her head, though, and (See CROWD, Page 4)

Parade, First Performance Get Rodeo Well Underway

The fifth annual Top of Texas Rodeo and Horse Show celebrations got well underway yesterday—before the rains came. Paul Crouch, parade marshal and vice president of the association, said:

Hundreds of people thronged in the streets of Pampa yesterday afternoon to see the mile-long colorful Top of Texas parade.

White Paper On China Is In Planning

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman said today that the United States will publish a white paper on its relations with China to clear up "misrepresentation, distortion, and misunderstanding."

In a formal statement, the President said that the friendship between the United States and the Chinese people of China "is as strong today as it has ever been."

He said the problem is to find ways "to give practical expression to that friendship" and that this is receiving the closest attention of this government.

The statement was given out at his weekly news conference. A reporter recalled that there has been criticism that the United States government has been "too slow" in its aid to the Chinese Nationalist government because of reported Communist influences within the State Department.

Mr. Truman said that this entirely erroneous criticism would be covered in the volume the State Department is publishing tomorrow.

He said in his statement that some of the "misrepresentation, distortion and misunderstanding" arose because this government "was reluctant to reveal certain facts, the publication of which might have served to hasten the events in China which have now occurred."

The President said, under questioning, that the white paper on China would include the Wedemeyer report as well as reports made by former Secretary of State Marshall when he went to China as a special ambassador for the President.

The Wedemeyer report, prepared by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, has been under administration study for some time but has not been made public.

In his statement, the President said that the mutual interests of the United States and China "require full and frank discussion of the facts."

"It is only in this way that the people of our country and their representatives in Congress can have the understanding necessary to the sound evolution of our foreign policy in the Far East," he said.

He added that the report covers our relations with China dating back to the 1840's. It not only includes the Wedemeyer and Marshall reports, but also the reports of Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, former ambassador to China.

Man Injured Unloading Pipe

Delmar Wooten, of the 500 block of N. West, was injured about noon today while unloading pipe at 120 S. Gray.

Wooten was taken to Worley Hospital, a Blackburn-Shaw-Sims ambulance, but he was being X-rayed at press time today and the extent of his injuries were not known.

It was reported that Wooten, a helper for the E. M. Keller Trucking Co., was struck by a falling gin pole.

Rain Checks!

Directors of the rodeo association decided this afternoon just before the parade that general admission rodeo tickets may be used at any night's performance — not necessarily the night marked on the ticket. This makes last night's rain checks good. However, reserve seat tickets must be used at the designated time of the ticket or in the specially added unscheduled performance.

Park beginning at 2 p.m. today. Events completed last night were the grand entry and bull fight. Calftopping and bareback bronc riding contests were taking place when the show was called off.

The second performance of the rodeo will be held tonight at 8:00 p.m. and the third performance will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Since no cowboy was able to get the $40 which was tied around the neck of one of the half-Brahma, half-Mexican bulls last night, there will be $50 at stake tonight in the bull fight.

There will be four go-rounds in the bull riding and bareback bronc contests and two go-rounds in each of the other scheduled rodeo events.

The Palomino Show went off as scheduled yesterday at Recreation Park. Glen Casey walked off with grand and reserve championships in the minor division of the Palomino Show. Grand champion stallion was entered by L. A. Rice, Amarillo, with Mrs. E. M. Lorett, Borger, exhibiting the reserve champion.

Mrs. E. L. Walcott, Amarillo, won the performance class. The American quarter horse judging and reining contest began at 9 a.m. today.

Results of the Palomino Show were as follows: 1949 mares: Fred P. Hayes, Pampa, only entry.

1948 mares: Casey, Amarillo, first; Oscar N. Frasher, Pampa, second.

1947 mares: Casey, Amarillo, first; M. O. Kerr, Abilene, second.

1946 mares: Casey, Amarillo, first. (See PARADE, Page 4)

Bond Set for Man Held Under DWI

County Judge Bruce Parker yesterday set bond at $1,000 for Earl A. Dunn who pleaded not guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated.

Dunn was picked up on U. S. Highway 60, five miles east of town, Tuesday night by State Highway Patrolmen. Patrolmen said they first noticed Dunn when he failed to blink his lights. The patrolmen stopped, turned and followed him, picking him up a short distance farther on.

Magazine, writing in the American Cancer Society, said he had gone to a hospital to die when the iodine drink, which he calls "an atomic cocktail," was tried. He reported that it cured his back pain quickly and that the thyroid cancer disappeared in a few months. The iodine drink is ordinary water containing a very small amount of radioactive iodine produced at atomic energy plants. (AP Wirephoto)

Mrs. FDR's Resignation Rejected

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman said today that he had rejected an offer by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to resign from her United Nations post. He said she will return to the next General Assembly as a delegate.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that her resignation was not a resignation from the United Nations, but a resignation from her post as a member of the Human Rights Commission because of her controversy with the Catholic prelate in New York.

Mr. Truman replied promptly that Mrs. Roosevelt offers her resignation every year. In the last case he said she expressed no reason. Asked if he will accept the resignation, Mr. Truman replied she's going back to the United Nations.

Behold—a Woman's Purse!

BY GORDON MARTIN

When you're plenty late in starting to your daily office grind, and you're looking for the car keys which are always hard to find, then you hear the little woman say the keys are in her purse, which just makes your transportation situation that much then you start to ease, and you wish you'd got up early so you could have grabbed a big bag.

There's a cloud of perfume powder and a bunch of food-store checks, and a dun for fender fixing in her latest little wreck. There's a sheaf of sewing patterns and some lacy hankies too, and a place-card which she treasures from some bridge club rendezvous. Plus a dog-eared traffic ticket and a couple sticks of gum, and a long unanswered letter from some old-time college chum.

There's a busted pair of ear-rings and assorted dimestore change, and an ad which ballyhooes the merits of a kitchen range. So you paw the junk heap over and at last you find the keys, which were hiding in a bundle of her fancy recipes. Sure, there's nothing more hazardous in this world-wide universe, than the disarray of stuff you find inside a woman's purse.

House Passes Canadian Dam Development Bill

Senate Gets West Texas River Plan

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The House today passed and sent to the Senate a bill by Rep. Worley (D-Texas) to authorize an $85 million dollar development on the Canadian River in West Texas.

The measure provides for construction of a 27 million dollar reservoir near Sanford and a 54 million dollar aqueduct to carry water to eleven cities and towns throughout the Panhandle and High Plains areas.

The House passed the measure by unanimous consent of all members.

Chairman Peterson (D-Fla.) of the House Public Lands Committee explained briefly that 93 percent of the government funds would be repaid within 50 years by water users.

This was about next to the last step that will give the green light to development of the dam that will someday pour thousands of gallons of filtered water into the city of Pampa—and 10 other Panhandle cities at approximately 7.5 cents per thousand gallons.

The project has been underway since last year, when the talk stage took on more form than just dreaming in Amarillo at a meeting of the Panhandle Water Conservation Authority. This was followed then by a conference at Plainview on June 18 when representatives of Borger and Amarillo were elected to sponsor the proposed dam in Washington.

Still later a group, including Mayor C. A. Huff, went before a public lands subcommittee for a hearing in Washington where the project was passed and then passed through the full committee.

Bureau of Reclamation officials said the water could be secured under two different types of payments among the 11 cities—a flat rate regardless of the distance and the other a graduated rate that would have given Borger the cheapest rate and Lamona the highest—18.1 cents per thousand gallons. All 11 cities elected to go on the flat rate.

The long-range prospects are darker, because it seems that on the whole, fundamental re-adjustment has not been completed and employment, production and income are in many cases continuing to drift downwards from October through mid-1950.

The men who drew up this appraisal would not be quoted by name.

The long-range downdrift, it was noted, probably will be obscured from recent on by a preeminent character, a moderate tempo, and erratic upturns now and then in particular lines.

One sign of an economic breather or reversal was said to be "a significant change in the attitude of businessmen toward the country within the last two weeks," thus involving a swing toward optimism.

The "significant change" was reported by a strategically-placed Washington official with an excellent opportunity to keep in touch with business thought and get a hearing on its general direction.

Business psychology has been given a leading role in administrative analyses of the causes of the economic downturn that has been in progress since last fall.

One immediate indication that business might have bounced up from a temporary bottom came from a Federal Reserve Board report that a record-smashing 27-week-long, $2,757,000,000 drop in the volume of business loans had been halted in the week ended July 27 and replaced by a $16,000,000 upturn.

It might confirm that business men, backed up in confidence, have dropped reluctance to borrow to build up inventories.

Yesterday, the city drew up a contract with Roy Taylor, the company's representative and sent it on to Dallas for signing. The contract was agreed to before being drawn up, but Taylor left for Dallas while it was in the typing process.

According to stipulations, the city accepts the two wells at $1,000 less than the base bids on them, will use the subsurface pumps at a cost of $8,200 each, a total of $17,500 less than the two shaft-type pumps originally scheduled to well them. The pumps are guaranteed for one year.

In addition to all this, Lane Texas sold several thousand dollars worth of tools in one well and has to plug it, drilling an other hole.

By using the subsurface pumps, the city will save approximately $1,000. (See WELL DRILLERS, Page 4)

Truman Rejects Idea of Compromise on Arms Plan

Downturn in Business Gets Slight Break

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Signs built up today of a breathing spell but probably not a permanent halt in business downturn that has run through 1949 so far.

A consensus produced by a top-flight official group of economists boiled down with some "ifs" attached to this:

1. The immediate outlook is that economic activity likely will hold at the mid-year level for the July-August-September quarter, and perhaps may rise a bit in September.

2. Longer-range prospects are darker, because it seems that on the whole, fundamental re-adjustment has not been completed and employment, production and income are in many cases continuing to drift downwards from October through mid-1950.

The men who drew up this appraisal would not be quoted by name.

The long-range downdrift, it was noted, probably will be obscured from recent on by a preeminent character, a moderate tempo, and erratic upturns now and then in particular lines.

Spanish Loan Ruled Out

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Vice President Barkley today ruled out million dollars in loans to Spain out of the European Recovery Program.

Barkley held that an amendment sponsored by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) violates Senate rules against writing new legislation into an appropriation bill.

Barkley told the Senate that Spain is not entitled under the Economic Cooperation Administration Act to participate in the recovery program.

Spain has not adhered to the basic requirements of the act, the vice president said, and to admit it would be a violation of the terms of the act.

The ruling came as Senate leaders strove to free the big foreign aid money bill from the threat of another blockade.

Democratic Leader Lines of Illinois said he hoped to get final approval late in the day for the bill, which carries funds for Europe's recovery, Army occupation costs and aid to Greece and Turkey.

McCarran also took a beating late yesterday when he failed to get approval of an amendment which would have earmarked $1,350,000,000 of European recovery funds for buying surplus American farm commodities.

Smithwick Is Denied Bond After Hearing

ALICE — (AP) — Sam Smithwick, accused of murdering Bill Mason, radioman, was denied bond and jailed today at the conclusion of his examining trial.

Justice of the Peace Brown, Fuller ordered Smithwick held in jail pending action of the grand jury now scheduled to meet Oct. 31.

Although H. M. Wilder, the defendant's attorney, had pleaded that Smithwick was being held in custody today's hearing, he insisted that in his opinion this was a capital case and that a jury would assess Smithwick the death penalty if he is found guilty.

The largest crowd ever to witness any case in Jim Wells County attended today's hearing. More than 400 persons jammed the district courtroom and scores were outside.

The trial was resumed last Wednesday. On Wednesday Avelino Saenz, the state's star eye witness, testified he saw the 60-year-old man shoot the victim.

Joint Chiefs Announce Agreement

LONDON — (AP) — American joint chiefs of staff have reached a complete understanding with British, Norwegian and Danish command organizations for mutual defense under the Atlantic Pact.

Adm. Louis E. Denfeld announced today.

"We are going home, I am sure, with a very much better understanding of the situation than we had when we came over," the U.S. Chief of Naval operations told a news conference following meetings with Norwegian and Danish military commanders.

Adm. Denfeld spoke for the joint chiefs.

The subject of sharing the atom bomb with other Atlantic treaty signatories was not mentioned in the staff talks, Denfeld told a questioner.

"There was no general discussion of arms aid," he added. "Our purpose in coming here was to exchange ideas on proper organization."

Denfeld said a defense organization might be functioning by the end of this year. He added this was just a guess, based on a feeling that "we were getting along so well it would not be too tough to work out."

"We have had a complete understanding and a fine exchange of views on the organization of the Atlantic Pact," he said. "Nothing final has been determined. Final organization will be the task of a future high level meeting."

"We are looking forward to meeting the French, Belgians, Dutch and Portuguese in France tomorrow and the next day."

The naval chief said the U.S. commanders did not come here with any ready-made plan. Rather, he said, the mission was to exchange views and report back to the U.S. government.

The U.S. Army Gen. Omar Bradley, arriving with Denfeld from the heavily guarded conference room, declined to discuss what form the Atlantic Pact defense plan would take, who might be its commander or where its headquarters might be.

The air chief of staff, Gen. H. H. Arnold, also declined to discuss the plan.

Wetbacks Flocking Back to Mexico; No Money in U.S.

By BRICE ARMSTRONG
McAllen Monitor Staff

REYNOSA, Mexico —(AP)—Mexican farm laborers (wetbacks) started flocking to Border Patrol offices a week ago, asking to be returned to their homes in Mexico.

Immigration men said that while many wetbacks asked to be returned at the close of the cotton-picking season, recent numbers have been far greater than in past years.

If you happen to be sitting on one of the long, hard benches in front of the U.S. Customs and Immigration offices at the Hidalgo-Reynosa bridge some afternoon, you will notice the many times a bus chugs across the bridge into Mexico, nearly always filled with blue-overalled, grimy men lugging tow-sacks or cheap cardboard suitcases.

It isn't a regular passenger bus. When it comes back across the bridge, the driver is riding alone.

His passengers are the "espaldas mojadas"—wetbacks. These workers are men who either were caught by the U.S. Border Patrol or turned themselves in voluntarily to patrolmen. The bus trip is the last act of deportation by the United States.

If there are not too many "mojados" on the bus, the driver will let them out at a small white immigration station across the road from where you are sitting. They'll squat there in the hot sun and wait until the driver gets enough men to fill the bus.

If you're interested in why wetbacks give themselves up voluntarily for deportation, walk across the road and ask a man like Dimas Ortega, late of a cotton field near Mission.

"It's simple," he'll tell you. "I worked in a camp near Mission. I thought I was able to make some money and go back home in Guanajuato with some savings."

Dimas' story is simple, about the same of any other wetback. He heard stories of riches that can be made working in cotton fields across the Rio Grande. He had never picked cotton but was told it was easy to learn.

He swam and waded the Rio Grande one night with five companions. He worked a while in a cotton field southeast of Rio Grande City. He received $1.25 for each 100 pounds.

But Dimas had a hard time picking enough cotton to make a hundred pounds. He bought all his food from the foreman.

"Somehow the food always cost more than I thought," he says. "Never did seem to have much money coming to me when the 'patron' came to the fields with money and received our pay."

Ask Dimas why he preferred to leave the United States.

"Hombre, I cannot get enough money together to buy decent clothes," he says passionately, waving his hands. "It is better I go home to Guanajuato where at least I'll be with my family and friends, even if life is hard there also."

Grand Q's

Q. What can I do about a damp basement?

A. Condensation is responsible for most damp basements. The trouble is that warm air can hold more moisture than cold air. There are three ways to prevent condensation in the basement: First, provide cross ventilation and good circulation. Install a fan and cold windows, if necessary. Second, cover cold water pipes with wool, hair-felt or asbestos insulation. Third, fasten nailing strips to cement or brick walls and then nail insulating building boards to the strips. This will prevent warm air from striking a cold surface and serve as a decoration as well as insulation.

Q. What is the "industry engineered home"?

A. The building materials industry has been working on the problem of lower housing construction costs for a long time. Among the results of their studies is the "industry engineered house." Primarily, it utilizes basic dimensions (the four-inch multiple) which will result in labor and materials economies. Materials such as insulating board, which come four feet wide and in lengths of from six to twelve feet, fit this "engineered plan." This means less cutting, less fitting and less waste.

Q—Is it true that a dog has more permanent teeth in his lower jaw than in his upper jaw? A—It is. In the upper jaw there should be six incisors, two canines and 12 molars. In the lower jaw a dog has the same arrangement, plus two more molars.

Q—Why do the British call their monetary unit the pound sterling?

A—Under the Saxon Kings coins called sterling were minted, from silver — 240 to the pound. Large quantities of the coins were reckoned as pounds of sterling; later, pounds sterling.

Q—What is the status of Wisconsin as a milk-producing state?

A—The state is first in the production of dairy cattle, milk and manufactured milk products. Q—How long has the poppy been known?

A—Some 5000 or 6000 years before the birth of Christ the poppy was known and by 100 B. C. man had knowledge of the narcotic qualities of drugs made from the plant.

Q—Has the hedge apple ever been tested as a basic source of rubber?

A—The hedge apple has frequently been suggested as a possible source of rubber. Tests, however, have failed to show even one percent rubber available from either the fruit or the plant.

Q—Why doesn't asbestos burn?

A—When a thing burns some of the elements in it unite with oxygen. Wood, for example, consumes largely of carbon and hydrogen and when wood burns these combine with oxygen from the air to form carbon dioxide and water. In asbestos, the elements of which it is made such as magnesium, silicon and calcium, are already united with all the oxygen they can easily hold, so it does not burn.

Q—What is the flower of the District of Columbia?

A—The American Beauty rose. Q—How is the proper way to lift a rabbit?

A—The best way is by the loose skin at the back of the neck, at the same time supporting the hind part of the animal by placing one hand under the hind feet. Rabbits should not be lifted by the ears.

Q—Where do we keep the Declaration of Independence?

A—In the Congressional Library at Washington, D. C. The declaration is protected from light by amber-colored plates of glass to prevent further fading. Q—How many national parks do we now have in this country?

A—The U. S. maintains 27 national parks. Yellowstone was established in 1872 as our first national park.

Q—What percentage of the American people live in the West?

A—Forty percent of the nation's land and 35 percent of its natural resources are in the West, yet only 14 percent of the American people live in this region.

Q—How many records did Ty

Cobb hold when he retired? A—Ty Cobb held 90 records when he retired. In 1936, when sports writers of the entire nation were asked to pick the names of the ten leading figures in the game for Cooperstown's Hall of Fame, Cobb led his closest rival, Babe Ruth, by seven.

Q—Where is the highest light maintained by the U. S. Coast Guard?

A—It is the light on top of the island of Lohua, Hawaiian Islands. This light is 707 feet above the level of the sea.

Q—How many calories are figured in field rations for U. S. soldiers?

A—Field rations are figured to supply 5000 calories a day to each man.

Q—In what country are the Andes Mountains the highest?

A—The Andes reach their greatest general height — more than 19,000 feet — in Peru. The highest peak, Mt. Aconcagua, is in Argentina.

year-old deputy sheriff shot at Mason last Friday while the veteran newspaperman sat in his automobile. As the trial opened today, District Attorney Reams said the state had no further witnesses to present. The defendant, a tall, 265-pounder, dressed in khaki shirt and trousers, and wearing shiny tan cowboy boots, calmly sat chewing gum.

Wilder told the court, "At this time the defense is not going to introduce any testimony. However, we would like to ask the court in setting bond in this case to make a reasonable bond."

Then Reams told the court, "The state is opposed to any bond at this time, under Criminal Code 22, which says bond should not be allowed in a capital case where proof is evident."

Foreign Golf and Net Teams Arrive

NEW YORK — (AP) — Great Britain's Walker Cup golf team and Italy's Davis Cup tennis team arrived yesterday for their invasions of the United States. The amateur golfers, greeted by Francis Ouimet of Boston, left almost immediately for White Plains, N. Y., where they will begin practice at the Winged Foot course for the Aug. 19-20 matches with the U. S. team. Later the invaders will complete in the U. S. Amateur at Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 29-Sept. 3. The Italians oppose Australia, American zone winner, in the quarter-final at Rye, N. Y., Aug. 12-14.

Pastor Quits In Dispute With Flock

DALLAS — (AP) — The Rev. Paul Meikle said he has resigned his pulpit because of his congregation's bitterness over a nearby Negro housing project. Meikle, a 43-year-old former Army chaplain, said his resignation as pastor of the Lagow Presbyterian Church will be effective Aug. 25.

"The church refuses to meet an opportunity in a Christian way," Meikle said. "There is a spirit of bitterness over this needed project." A Dallas County district court refused last week to issue a temporary injunction preventing W. H. Caruth from building the 408-unit apartment project adjacent to the church.

A member of the church's Session, governing body of the 284-member congregation, said Meikle had been unpopular with a majority because he had refused to oppose the project. She said the congregation voted last Sunday, about 50 to 19, to accept his resignation.

Meikle said he did not know what his future plans would be. He came to the church about three months ago from Panama City, Fla.

The pastor said the church should try to help the Negroes who would live in the project. One way to help, he said, would be to provide a clinic.

"The Presbyterian Church nationally," said Meikle "is interracial in its outlook. It will tolerate other races in its midst and should permit them to worship if they want to. At least, it should have speakers from other races."

Truman Doubts Tax Repeat Now

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman said today it will be impossible to repeal any excise taxes before the next session of Congress. The President told a news conference the subject will require a great deal of research by Senate and House taxation committees as well as by the Treasury Department.

Russian Horse Coming

MELBOURNE, Australia — (AP) — Russia, famed Australian race horse and sire, was sold yesterday and it is reported his new home will be in the United States. The Melbourne Herald said the nine-year-old thoroughbred had been purchased by David M. Davis for more than $30,000. Davis, the paper said, was the agent for a California syndicate. It was reported that Russia, probably will be sent to Oakdale Stud Farm in the Santa Clara Valley near San Francisco.

GOP Senators May Balk Clark

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said today that some Republican senators are considering opposing the nomination of Atty. Gen. Tom Clark to the Supreme Court.

Taft said Senators Ferguson (R-Mich) and Keam (R-Mo) raised this issue at a close-door session of the Senate GOP Policy Committee today.

In answer to a question, Taft told a reporter:

"Yes, there is opposition, but they are uncertain they will do anything about it."

President Truman announced a week ago he was nominating Clark. He also named Sen. J. Howard McGrath (D-Ind) to succeed Clark as attorney general.

She said that he is better, today and is able to have visitors.

Paronto Released From Jail on Bond

Freddy Paronto, charged with the July 28 burglary of the Southwestern Public Service Co. yard, was released late this morning after posting $2,500 bond.

Also charged in the burglary are Cecil Leroy Jones, Bob Lauster, ex-convict, and Gladys Ash, as an accomplice.

Lauster, Jones, and the Ash woman are still in jail in default of bond.

Attorney General Against Compromise in Ownership Deal

QUITMAN, Tex. — (AP) — Attorney General Price Daniel is still against any compromise in the tidelands ownership dispute.

Yesterday, he told a crowd at the 47th Wood County Old Settlers Reunion:

"Why should we take half a loaf now and leave nothing for your grandkids?"

He charged that the federal government "is trying to take property we won at San Jacinto after recognizing our ownership for more than a hundred years."

"I will not personally support any tidelands legislation that does not fully recognize ownership of Texas lands within the original boundaries of the Texas Republic," he said.

Gov. Allan Shivers is scheduled to speak to the reunion Friday.

Marshall Plan Kicked Around By Congress Ready to Adjourn

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — (AP) — De-layed doings during dreary days let legislators' lawmaking linger.

That sums up what's been happening to the Marshall Plan in this Congress.

More than a year ago President Truman laid the plan in Congress' lap to help Europe recover from the war.

And last year Congress approved it and voted money to keep it going one year. But it's a four-year plan.

In Congress there's a big difference between approving (authorizing) something and voting money (appropriations) for it.

Congress may authorize something but not get around to appropriating for it for weeks or months.

So this year the plan came up in Congress again. In April the House and Senate authorized it for one year more.

Mr. Truman had asked Congress to appropriate $4,200,000,000 for it for another year.

Congress didn't get around to appropriating money till this summer.

The House acted in June but decided Mr. Truman was asking too much and trimmed the total.

Then it was the Senate's turn. But before the Senate could vote, it had to have an appropriations bill outlining how the money was to be spent.

It also thought the President was asking too much. Like the House, it decided the total should be chopped.

But the Senate Appropriations Committee went a step further. It wrote these instructions into the bill before sending it to a vote:

One billion, 800 million dollars of the total money (including hat for occupied areas), should be used for buying surplus American crops to send to Europe.

This brought a steaming argument last week when the Senate got around to voting appropriations for the plan.

Some senators argued the surplus crop idea was meant to give "farm relief" to American farmers instead of really helping Europe.

They argued whether the surplus crop provision had any place in the bill at all.

Finally, Vice President Barkley ruled it shouldn't be there. So the appropriations bill had to

Dorsey Stays Five Years On Wagon

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Tommy Dorsey recently heard a report of a Hollywood know-it-all who remarked: "Too bad Tommy's hitting the bottle again."

The bandleader, who hears about such comments every so often, merely smiled and chalked it up to misinformation. He will soon mark his fifth year on the wagon.

Dorsey relaxed in the sun outside his hotel cabins and told me how it all happened.

"It was five years ago next month," he related. "I was sitting in Mocambo with a bunch of friends, getting loaded. I looked up at the birds flying back and forth and I realized how silly the whole thing was."

"I walked out of the place, went up to my apartment and slept for a day and a half. That was in 1944 and I haven't had a drink since."

A few days later he called his manager, Arthur M. Chaud.

go back to the Appropriations Committee to be fixed up all over again so it could be sent up to the Senate again to be chewed over and voted upon.

PAMPA NEWS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1949

"Where've you been?" Dorsey asked. "Frankly, Tommy, I've been ducking you," was the answer. "That booze is making you a hard man to get along with."

Tommy made a deal: $500 if he could stay on the wagon six months. The transaction has been extended several times and not long ago Dorsey tore up Mich-aud's check for $1,500, payment for 18 drinkless months.

"I figure me and liquor don't get along," he said. "Certainly I couldn't do the amount of work I do if I drank."

Dorsey said it was associations that put him on the drinking jag. "Back in the days when we were playing with Paul Whiteman," he recalled, "we worked hard. We didn't have enough time off to play golf or catch a ball game. We just had time enough to go across the street and grab a few drinks."

"Also it was due to the era we grew up in. It was during prohibition when the hip flask and bathtub gin were the rage."

He said the new crop of bandmen are different. "With that band that I've got, you could put a bottle of whisky on the stand with them and it wouldn't be emptied for two weeks."

Until 1879, all nails in the United States were made of iron.

he first steel nails were made in this country in 1879.

'Peeping Tom' Turned to Nudist

DENVER — (AP) — They call a "Peeping Tom" at the camp near Tiny Town.

The penalty? The peeper strip off his clothing and volley ball.

After his capture, he had to be "What's my wife got?" But five minutes later was just another nudist.

Officials of the American bathing Association holding national convention in a mountain setting, said nudist "Peeping Toms" have been ed spying in the trees, but was the first one ever caught.

He was armed with a three telescope.

BUBBLE TROUBLE COMING—Actress Marilyn Maxwell goes into her "atomic bubble dance" for a cheap night club scene in the forthcoming movie, "Key to the City." It took 1700 balloons decorated with black sequins in atomic symbols, two weeks of rehearsal and four days of shooting to make sure the scene got past Hollywood censors. Marilyn wore a skin-tight flesh-colored outfit under the balloons.

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— In life, the ladies fought over Rudolph Valentino amidst squeals and yells.

In death, three movie producers are fighting over him amidst charges of intimidation and harassment.

Each wants to be the first to put a Valentino biography on the screen.

The Great Lover has been dead 23 years but no one seems to care.

Like old John Brown's truth, everyone agrees, Rudy's spirit goes marching on and his one-time bobby sox fans, now in their forties and fifties, will flock to movie box-offices to see his screen "reincarnation."

Fighting over the dead star's story are: Producer Edward Small, who has been working on the Valentino film biography for the last 11 years. Small says he has spent $250,000 on the project, mostly for the salaries of 20 writers.

The 20th Century-Fox studio, which suddenly decided Rudy's life would make a great Ty Power vehicle.

Independent Producer Jan Grippo, who says he'll put "The Return of Valentino" before the cameras Aug. 15 and to heck with Eddie Small and 20th Century-Fox.

MAN OF ACTION It's Grippo who charges: "If I continue to be intimidated and harassed by friends of Fox and Small I'm going to take legal action. This is America, not Russia."

"They're putting the pressure on me from all sides to try and stop me from making the picture. But I've got the money and the story and I feel Small no longer has a moral priority to the idea because he's been fiddling around with it for 11 years and still hasn't made the picture."

Fox and Small, it appears, will fight it out via arbitration to decide which studio has the right to the Valentino story unless they both drop the idea if Grippo beats 'em to the screen. And it looks like he will.

As an independent, Grippo is not a member of the Motion Picture Producers Association and can produce the picture without arbitration.

"My lawyers have told me the Valentino story is in public domain. Anyone can start filming a man's life three minutes after his death. The trouble comes in getting legal clearances to impersonate people still living who played important roles in the man's life," he told me.

"I've figured out a way to avoid such evasion of privacy. If I can't get the few clearances I need, I can do without them."

"It won't hurt the story a bit not to include two wives of members of his family. I've got a trick opening. Then we go back to Italy, his birthplace, and pick him up as a kid of nine. We follow him to manhood, see his early struggles in New York and then his stardom in Hollywood."

The picture, Grippo said, will end at the peak of his film career and not follow him to the grave.

A 24-year-old New York dancer who is a "dead-ringer" for Valentino, according to Grippo, will play the part. But he's not announcing his name for fear Small or Fox would "intimidate" him.

"LADY IN BLACK"

Grippo said he got a lot of "personal" information about Rudy from Dita Flame, head of the Rudolph Valentino Hollywood Memorial Guild. Dita claims she's the original "lady in black" who makes an annual pilgrimage to Rudy's grave in a Hollywood cemetery. Eleven other dolls claim the same title.

Dita's home is practically a Valentino shrine. Her living room features a big portrait of Rudy beside which she keeps a lighted candle.

Grippo says he expects "no trouble" in shooting scenes at Rudy's one-time Hollywood home, Falcon's Lair, and that two of the star's former managers, George Ullman and Cliff Robertson, are willing to lend technical advice.

Grippo is a former agent, amateur magician and hustler who has produced 15 pictures for Monogram, including the popular Bowery Boy series. He says the Valentino picture will have a 28-day shooting schedule and will cost $600,000.

Small conceived the idea of making a story about Rudy in 1938 and announced it that year as a vehicle for Jack Dunn, whom he then had under contract. Dunn was the world's greatest male skater and came to Hollywood as Sonia Henie's partner. He was young and handsome and looked very much like Valentino. Before he could make the picture, however, Dunn died from a rare disease known as tularemia, a rabbit's fever.

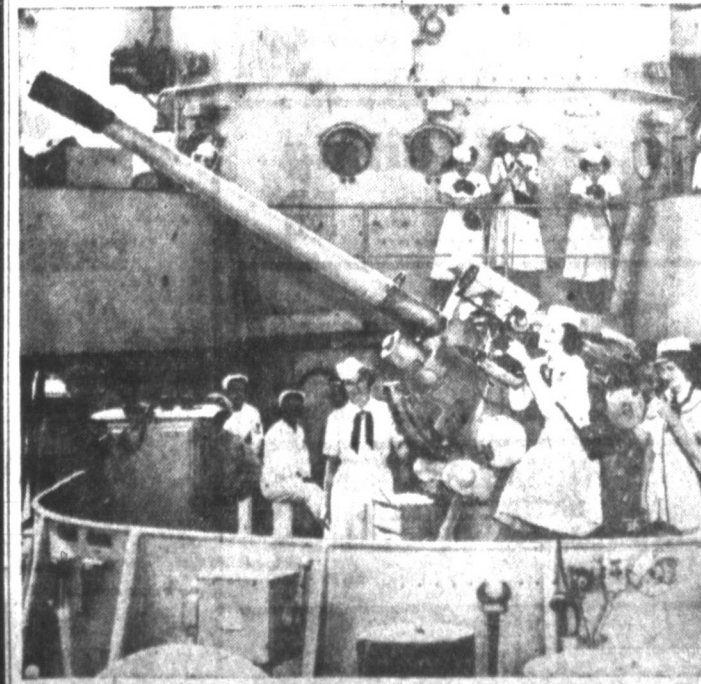

Since then Small has made repeated announcements that he was ready to make the picture and has had 75,000 applications for the job of playing Rudy.

No Clemency Advised For Slayer

AUSTIN — (AP) — No clemency will be recommended for W. Fred Jones of Floydada, scheduled to die in the electric chair Aug. 7 for the shotgun slaying of a young war veteran, the Board of Pardons and Paroles announced Monday.

E. A. (Smoot) Schmid, board chairman, made the announcement after conferring with John Stapleton, Floydada district attorney and Sheriff Leland Hart of Floyd County.

Last week a delegation of ministers asked the board to commute the death penalty to life imprisonment. Schmid quoted some of them as saying Jones had become a convert to religion and should not pay with his life for the killing of H. C. Love, Jr., outside of Jones' Floydada grocery store on Sept. 27, 1948.

Subsequently, the minister authorized a spokesman at Vernon to say they had not asked for the commutation solely on the grounds Jones had "got religion." They said they thought the penalty was too severe and that the change of venue in the trial was not far enough away from the scene of the crime.

Stapleton told the board last today he felt the sentence was justified because of Jones' past record of "scorning the law."

The district attorney told the board that if it commuted the death sentence for any reason, it would be a murderer who found religion tonight Aug. 7.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Visitors have been flocking to the John Tardiff home in Queens to see a monkey that washes dishes and has a way with the women.

Mrs. Tardiff says the monkey also is a good alarm clock. Tardiff says the monkey likes eggs and strawberries, though he doesn't know why.

"You could put a million dollars on the table for my monkey," Mrs. Tardiff said, "and I wouldn't take it."

She said she has owned the monkey, whose name is Mickey, for nine years, since he was three.

"Every time when young pretty girls come by, he knocks on the window," Mrs. Tardiff said. "When older women come by, he doesn't give them a second look."

In the morning when she wakes up late, she said, the monkey wakes her by knocking on his cage.

"I could be conducting the orchestra at 50 percent of that," Love said on evidence in Jones' case. Jones was tried in Hays County in 1948 and given the death penalty. This was reversed by the Court of Criminal Appeals and a second trial was held in Travis County. Jones again was found guilty and the sentence was upheld by the Court of Criminal Appeals.

The district attorney told the board that if it commuted the death sentence for any reason, it would be a murderer who found religion tonight Aug. 7.

Calm Churchill Quells Crowd

SOREWELL, Conn. — P. Sarah Churchill, actress daughter of British statesman Winston Churchill, told some funny stories to a summer theater audience during a fire.

Her action achieved its main purpose. It dissipated some of the alarm felt by the audience when smoke from a scolding brush escaped into the theater.

But the stories themselves apparently never got across to the audience. They were drowned in the hubbub.

Miss Churchill, co-starring with Jeffrey Lynn in "The Philadelphia Story," stepped quickly toward the footlights when someone cried "fire." She calmly assured the audience that there was no cause for alarm. Then she told the stories until persons backstage doused the fire in a rubbish barrel behind the building.

The actress herself said today she could recall only one of the stories she told.

U.S. Pays Subsidy on Export Wheat

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government is offering a subsidy ranging from 23 to 34 cents a bushel on wheat bought for export under the international wheat agreement which went into effect Monday.

Drafted early this year by 44 wheat-exporting and importing nations, the agreement is designed to stabilize world markets and supplies. It seeks to do this by dividing the export market along surplus-producing nations and by maintaining a schedule of maximum and minimum prices in the world markets.

The United States share of a 454 million-bushel annually allotted world market is 168 million bushels.

The subsidy is made necessary by the fact that the maximum price set by the pact is below current domestic prices of the grain.

The maximum price is $1.80 a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat at Fort Williams and Port Arthur, Canada. The equivalent maximum price at any other particular point reflects the difference in transportation rates between that point and Fort Williams, on the one hand, to major consuming areas on the other.

In other words, the maximum price for wheat which is closer to Europe — a major consuming area — than Fort Williams would be higher than the $1.80 Fort Williams price by the difference in transportation costs.

The wheat agreement maximum price for Eastern ports in the United States is $1.96 a bushel for No. 1 grain. They are higher because the Eastern ports are closer to major importing countries than is Fort Williams.

The agreement maximum price for this country's Gulf ports is $1.91. These ports are a little farther away from consuming areas than Eastern ports. Hence, their maximum price is a little lower.

The subsidy rates will be set daily so as to take into account changing market prices. The subsidy rate for Gulf ports will be based on Kansas City prices.

It is possible that subsidy rates may go as high as 50 cents a bushel. The possibility is

Question of China Aid Aroused

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The question of what, if any, further material aid America can usefully give to hard-pressed Nationalist China in her fight against the Chinese Communists has again become a burning subject.

Meanwhile the Washington State Department is engaged in creating a new pattern for Far Eastern diplomacy, including the policy for China. Philip C. Jessup, ambassador at large, is heading a group of experts preparing an exhaustive report on past policies toward China, supposedly to clear the way for a fresh policy. This report is expected to be published soon.

Thus far there has been no official indication of the trend of the projected diplomacy. Still, as a matter of speculation one would expect that the Chinese policy based on the fact that wheat currently is selling from 20 to 30 cents a bushel below the government's price — supporting loan rates.

would be made to fit into a general Far Eastern program for halting the spread of communism. So far as concerns China, the big question is whether the Nationalists under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek already have shot their bolt.

The Red avalanche has swept southward until the temporary Nationalist capital in Canton is threatened. Still, Chiang maintains his followers are far from beaten and still can win, with outside material assistance.

Is Chiang gambling on the old adage that where there's life there's hope, or do conditions in China justify his judgment?

The major question is how America and her democratic allies can build a dam to prevent the spread of communism in the Orient.

In considering this, one envisages creation of a series of positions which would form a huge arc about Western and Southern China, from Japan to India.

This arc includes Japan, the Philippines, French Indo-China, Siam, Malaya, the Dutch East Indies, Burma and India. One would expect that the new Asiatic program, unless it represents a great change, would include the consolidation of this vast arc against the Red advance. Thus we shall find, I believe, that China will be regarded as part of the general Far Eastern problem, and must be treated as such.

The term "polecat" is sometimes applied to skunks, but really belongs to a related animal in Europe and Asia.

Texas Cities Must Take Lead To Get Federal Housing Aid

By TEX EASLEY
AP Washington Service

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Texas cities and towns can gain a good share of help from the government's new housing program, but it's up to them to take the initiative.

On July 15 President Truman signed into law the Housing Act of 1949, which continues and broadens a government program begun in 1937. There were 191,709 dwellings built under the 1937 act; the new law authorizes grants and loans of 14 billion dollars over the next 40 years for slum clearance and 810,000 family units.

A family unit is the technical description for one to three bedroom dwellings, usually apartments or sections in "row" houses.

Inquiries are beginning to come to Texas members of Congress from municipal and civic leaders for advice as to how they should go about making use of the new law.

The act is divided into six titles. Those in which there is the most interest are title one, dealing with slum clearance, and title three, providing for low-rent public housing project.

The other titles deal with FHA loans for private home building, research into designing and financing of housing for different situations, farm housing and the taking of a housing census.

It should be clearly understood that the slum clearance and low-rent housing programs are authorized under separate titles and are independent of each other. A city may carry on the two phases hand-in-hand, but they are under separate administrative set-ups.

Communities interested in the slum clearance should consult Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

The low-rent housing program is operated on a regional basis. Inquiries from Texas should go to B. F. Vinson, Public Housing Administration Office, Texas and Pacific Bldg., Fort Worth.

In general, here are the terms and objectives of the 1949 Housing Act.

The city itself must determine whether it wants to participate. The federal government stands ready to lose up to $500,000.00 to get rid of slums, at the rate of $100,000.00 a year for the next five years. Besides these grants, Uncle Sam is prepared to make loans totaling one billion dollars over the same five years. The money is repayable over a 40-year period at 2 1/2 percent interest.

The federal grants are available to help local agencies finance the "net project cost," the difference between costs of acquiring and clearing slums and the capital proceeds from the sale or disposition otherwise of such lands. Cities must pay at least one-third of the total net project cost.

The government will not aid in such projects until there are other low-rent dwellings to which the slum-area residents may move. Therefore, the low-rent public housing program must precede the slum clearance work in many or most cities.

A city with sufficient need for low-rent homes can apply for a loan of up to 90 percent of the cost of a housing project. It does not have to undertake a slum clearance program.

Many small cities in Texas have no real slum areas, but do need more low-cost housing. These would be interested only in title three.

Only families whose incomes are too low to afford adequate new or old housing are eligible for the new public housing. Rents charged in public housing must be at least 20 percent less than the lowest private rents in decent dwellings in the area.

The average rent in such units is expected to be about $23 a month, plus $7 for utilities.

Two families living side by side in exactly the same kind of unit may pay different rent. That will depend on their income, which of course affects their ability to pay.

While no definite figure can be stated, for it will vary from community to community as well as among occupants of an individual project, the law provides that each family shall pay not less than 20 percent of its income for rent. A deduction from the net family income of $100 is allowed for each minor dependent.

A man with an income of $1,800 annually with three children would therefore have a net income of $1,500. Twenty percent of this figure would be $300, which, divided by 12, would mean a monthly rental fee of $25.

The maximum wage an occupant will be allowed to earn has not been determined, but the figure set on such projects during 1948 was $1,481.

If the family's income goes above the maximum figure, they have to move out of the development.

The total estimated cost of the housing program is expected to be between seven and 12 billion dollars spread over the next 40 years.

The capital costs of low-rent housing projects during the first development will be covered by temporary loans.

These loans generally are obtained through the sale of local housing authority temporary loan notes to private investors. The PHA obligates itself to lend enough to cover the principal and interest on these notes when they mature, so the local housing authorities are expected to encounter little difficulty in selling them at interest rates averaging less than 1 percent per year. All temporary loan notes are retired as soon as the project is permanently financed. When the project is far enough along so its costs can be figured accurately, the local authority proceeds with the sale of long-term serial bonds, secured by the government. Under present market conditions, PHA officials say, these should be sold with little trouble at rates of 1 1/2 to 2 and 3-4 percent.

Model Farm Proposed for Each County

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A model demonstration farm in every agricultural county, and a county agricultural building on each of the farms, is the objective of a surprise move started in Congress.

The idea is to provide federal grants to help counties establish a center which would bring under one roof all federal, state and local agricultural agencies.

The buildings would be set on model farms, also established by the counties with federal aid, to demonstrate advances in farming developed at the various agricultural experiment stations.

Rep. Price (D-Cal.) father of the model farm part of the plan, estimated it would cost $250,000,000. He based the figure on an estimate that 2,500 counties would participate. He wants the federal government to put up a third of the total cost.

A House Agriculture Subcommittee to which he described the plan liked it so well that Chairman Grant (D-Ala.) said he would seek full-scale committee hearings on it, with the idea that it might result in pressing for its adoption by the next session of Congress.

New Cotton Fiber Has Many Uses

DALLAS — (AP) — A new cotton material, developed by Dr. Herschel Cudd, industrial research chemist, received the attention of the Cotton Congress.

Dr. Cudd is director of the Lantuck Division of the West Point Manufacturing Company, West Point, Ga.

Cudd said the new material has a cotton fiber base, bonded with plastic. It is a "random strength" material, it has the same strength in all directions.

Named Lantuck, it can be used as a simulated leather, as a replacement for wool felt and in the making of shoe tops, Cudd said.

Prince Albert Really in Can

FORT WORTH — (AP) — For years pranksters have played the police desk sergeant here with the telephoned query "Is Prince Albert in the can?"

The sergeant would painstakingly check his jail sheet, falling for the gag, which jokesters built around the tobacco brand name.

But Desk Sgt. E. L. Guss was ready for the call Friday.

A 58-year-old Negro was jailed. His first and middle names are Prince Albert — and he's in the can.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—The week I am most in favor of having is a by-yourself week. During this period everybody would take a holiday from self-improvement in any form. He would just relax and let himself alone. He would be what he is and nothing more and I think he'd enjoy it. It would be restful. For one of the curses of our time is that practically nobody is satisfied with himself as he is. He wants to change himself in some way he hopes is for the better. But is it for the better? Most of the self-improvement programs I've seen haven't made much difference. You can't change a cabbage into a cauliflower by just putting it in a cellophane wrapper. But that doesn't keep people from fattening their content away in endless and needless efforts to be something besides what they are. Self-improvement today is one of the biggest American industries. Billions are spent on it. Are you overweight? Try our 99-day diet. Are you too thin? Try our 101-day diet. It's the same thing but you just eat more of it. Are you lonely and misunderstood? Take our 35-year course in how to be charming. Then you'll be popular and misunderstood. Do you want to get ahead in business? Here's a book that tells you how. The more you buy the more the author who wrote it gets ahead in his business.

I became disillusioned with self-improvement early in life when I took a correspondence course in muscle building. "Don't look like a heanpole," said the ad. "Be a panther man. Have muscles that ripple."

Well, it sounded fascinating. I took the course, bought a gadget with coils that you stretched and stratched until you were muscles all over.

It worked all right. Soon I had muscles that rippled like mad. Then I found I really didn't like my muscles to ripple. It was rather unbecoming. But I was stuck. There is no course sold on how to de-ripple your muscles.

Gov. Alexander Spotswood was partially responsible for the construction of the first ironworks in Virginia in 1716.

Star Said Expecting

DEAUVILLE, France—(AP)—One of Rita Hayworth's household servants said here today the actress is pregnant. Observers at this resort city have noticed for some time that Rita, who married Moslem Prince Aly Khan on the Riviera May 27, has made few public appearances and then wearing loose fitting maternity-type clothes. She has not swum here.

Housewife Gives Wrens Old Pants

VINCENNES, Ind.—(AP)—Mrs. Sibyl Hunley sure fooled those wrens. Everytime she hung her clothes on the line to dry the wrens started to build a nest and filled pockets with sticks, feathers and bits of mud. She hung a pair of old, worn

War Crimes Put Under Agreement

GENEVA, Switzerland—(AP)—In any future war, reprisal killings, mass deportations or the taking of hostages among the civilian population of an occupied country will be outlawed by international agreement.

A 60-nation conference drawing up a new convention for the protection of civilians in war approved a series of articles for the convention under which many World War II occupation methods of the Nazis will in future constitute violations of international law.

The parts of the convention approved laid down that "no civilian inhabitant of an occupied area" may be punished for an offense he or she has not personally committed.

Effort to Save Kittens Fails

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—An elderly woman's butcher-knife effort to save her dead cat's kittens was in vain.

The last of the litter of six, which Mrs. Nettie Smith, 73, removed from the body of her pet Siamese a week ago, died Tuesday night.

Mrs. Smith was successful in delivering all six alive through an incision she made in the mother cat's abdomen.

Her efforts to feed them with tiny nipples or substitute mothers failed.

Banco De Ahorros—It Yields The Stuff to Meet da Crisis!

CORPUS CHRISTI — (AP) — Marin Fuentes makes a habit of putting small change into a metal pipe, attached to the wall of his Corpus Christi welding shop.
Fuentes, who has a wife and seven children, calls it his "banco
de ahorros"—his savings bank.
It is the second such bank.
The first was another pipe.

bolted to the floor with a slit
in the side.

Fuentes started putting money into the first bank back in 1945.
For two years he dropped in nickles, pennies, 25-cent and 50-cent coins.

In 1947, the family was confronted by a financial crisis.
Felix, the 8-year-old son, was hit by a car and badly injured.
He was taken to a hospital.

The next morning, twins were born to the Fuentes family.
"Ah," I had fear then," said Fuentes. "The hospital said maybe to fix Felix up it would take $100. For twins it costs most $100. I came back to my shop and thought what to do. Maybe I could sell my equipment, but how then make a living? Where to get some money."

At last he decided to cut open the banco de la pipa to which the whole family had been contributing. He thought perhaps there would be at least money enough for a down payment at the hospital.

But to his amazement, there was $900.

The final toll at the hospital was $500—$400 less than the banco had yielded.

The first bank is now rusting on a pile of junk at the back of Fuentes' shop, but he often gives it a fond look.

And the Fuentes family contributes enthusiastically to the new banco de ahorros.

Radar Sees Approaching Hurricanes

BROWNSVILLE — (AP) — The Brownsville Weather Bureau will start using radar to check on approaching hurricanes.

Equipment valued at $75,000
was being installed this week. It will enable the bureau to keep constant check on hurricanes and other storms within a 200-mile radius.

John C. Hagan, chief of the bureau, said it will be about two weeks before the equipment is operating. The hurricane season
often starts in August.

The transmitter unit will be put on top of the administration building at the Rio Grande Valley International Airport. The receiver will be in the observatory room of the bureau.

The dish-like silvered reflector
of the transmitting unit sends out high frequency radio waves, which are reflected back by the storm formation.

The waves that bounce back from the storm make a pattern
on the screen in the receiver unit, and a qualified observer is able to tell the location and extent of the storm by reading the screen.

Malcolm Harrison, from the regional Weather Bureau at Fort Worth, said the equipment was similar to that installed at Wichita Falls, Wichita, Kans., and Norfolk, Neb.

Texas Labor Disputes Show Drop

AUSTIN — (AP) — Texas labor disputes declined in June, the Texas Employment Commission reported.

Seven disputes involving 279 employees were reported to the commission, while 10 involving 553 workers were settled.

Thirty-four disagreements involving 831 employees remained on TEC records on June 30.

The TEC monthly labor market report said nonagricultural employment was slightly lower in mid-June than in mid-May.

The number of job holders was 2,309,300, off 4,700 or two-tenths of one percent from the previous month. However this was 31,400 more, or 1.38 percent higher, than in June of 1948.

Business conditions will require expansion of payrolls in 17 of the state's 19 major labor markets, employers have indicated to TEC.

Addition of 2,200 workers in Houston, 2,000 in Dallas, and 850 each in Fort Worth and Wichita Falls was anticipated.
Other increases were predicted in Corpus Christi, San Antonio,
Lubbock, Abilene, Austin and Amarillo.

The TEC said partially offsetting declines are looked for in Waco, San Angelo, Beaumont-Port
Arthur, Texarkana, El Paso, and Longview - Kilgore - Gladewater.
Galveston-Texas City expects to remain steady.

Glandular Fever May Be Prevalent

AUSTIN — (AP) — Glandular
fever may be occurring in sporadic or epidemic form throughout Texas, the State Health Department said.

The health department's announcement was based on what it called "unofficial reports" since the disease is not one of the reportable communicable diseases, such as polio or influenza.

The fever (infectious mononu-cleosis) has symptoms resembling tonsillitis and influenza, the health department said, and its accurate diagnosis is therefore often overlooked. Children and young adults especially are liable to it.

State Doctors Asked To Examine Guard

AUSTIN — (AP) — Texas physi-

ate with the Texas National Guard by giving physical examinations and inoculating guardsmen.

The House of Delegates of the State Medical Association recently adopted a resolution to that effect and the June issue of the Texas State Journal of Medicine editorially requested individual physicians to assist their local units

457 Coyotes Killed Near Canadian

CANADIAN — (Special) — The predator control program of the Game, Fish, and Oyster Commission that is being waged in Hemphill and adjoining counties had accounted for the destruction of 457 coyotes and 10 bobcats by July 31.

One hundred seventy-six other predators, including many skunks and some species of owls known to be detrimental to nesting game have also been destroyed, according to P. D. Moseley, resident game supervisor.

Alton Hendershot, Clarence Large, and W. W. Barnes have done most of the trapping. Barnes, however, left the employ on the game commission Aug. 1.

The program started Jan. 1, this year, and is continuing with results being watched closely by the game wardens, ranchers, and sportsmen.

Norman Magill, who shot an unusually large bobcat on his place five miles from Canadian along the Canadian River early this year, reports a notable increase in the number of cottontail rabbits since the beginning of the predator control program.

Most of the bobcats destroyed were caught in the brushy river-bottom area within a few miles of the Magill place.

Some observers feel that the spray killing of weeds and brush being carried on on some ranches may destroy too much of the natural cover of the quail, and some predict that the lowly cottontail may become the principal small game here as he already has in the Eastern states.

Texas Wallowing In Watermelons

AUSTIN — (AP) — Texas is wallowing in watermelons, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said. Harvest has stopped in some East Texas areas because heavy production has swamped the market, the USDA's weekly crop survey found. Supplies have been good and quality tops in both watermelons and cantaloupes.

For crops and ranges generally, soil moisture conditions over the state were good. Exceptions were parts of the low rolling plains and Edwards Plateau areas. These sections had widely scattered showers, but they brought "only partial relief."

About 84 percent of all nickel produced is used for alloying purposes.

Georgia Bootleg Ring Uncovered

ATLANTA — (AP) — Georgia's revenue commissioner said he has uncovered a million dollar bootleg liquor ring "which apparently flourished under state protection."

Revenue Commissioner Charles Redwine said an Atlanta wholesale firm in only six months supplied the million dollars worth of liquor to dry counties "all over North Georgia."

His agents raided the firm Friday, Redwine said, and seized more than 1,000 sales slips giving names, dates and amounts of illegal sales to bootleggers, social clubs and others.

Redwine made the evidence public Wednesday as he turned it over to Fulton County (Atlanta) Solicitor Paul Webb for any legal action.

Admiral's Wife Tells of Prison

BERLIN — (AP) — Mrs. Erika Raeder, wife of the grand admiral who headed Hitler's fleet, told of four years of captivity in Russian hands.

In that time, Mrs. Raeder said, the Russians fed her caviar in Moscow, let her go hungry in Minsk, set her to peeling potatoes in Sachsenhausen concentration camp, and questioned her frequently. Finally they released her—without explanation.

British Say Reds Fired on Sloop

NANKING — (AP) — Official British sources said the sloop Amethyst was hit at least once by artillery fire last Saturday night as she ran a gauntlet of Chinese Communist shore guns along the Yangtze.

These sources said a Communist shell hit and set afire what appeared to be a Chinese gunboat on the river in an effort to cripple or sink the Amethyst. The sloop had been held hostage in the river since last April 20.

(The Communist radio in Peking yesterday said the Amethyst sank a Chinese ship on the river causing "several hundred" persons to drown.)

A 75-millimeter shell hit the Amethyst forward as she raced down the river, these sources said. No casualties resulted but parts of the ship were flooded, they said.

Building Activity Shows Increase

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Construction activity spurred by a pickup in private homebuilding, scored a more than seasonal climb in July and set a new dollar volume record both for that month and for the first seven months of 1949.

A value of over $1,900,000,000 was assigned new construction put into place during July, reflecting a 10 percent gain over the estimate for June and a two percent increase over July, 1948. Allowing for seasonal differences, the value of new construction in July was four percent over the revised June total, the Commerce Department reported.

Britain's present industrial production is 26 percent above pre-war

Six Pampa Girls Return from Camp In New Mexico with Special Awards

Six Pampa girls returned from Western Life Camp, near Las Vegas, N. M., this week after spending four weeks.

They were: Jan Dickey, Janell Ewing, Barbara Hoover, Jo Ann Jones, Brenda Parker, and Thera Lee Warner.

The field day was held last Friday. Janell Ewing was named an outstanding horseback rider in the senior division, and Barbara Hoover, Brenda Parker, and Thera Lee Warner were chosen as outstanding riders in the junior division.

All of the girls participated in the water pageant. One of the featured events of this was the Virginia Reel. Another was the water wheel routine.

The Round-Up dinner and presentation of awards was held Friday night. Western Life pins were awarded to Jan Dickey, for the highest score in riflery; to Barbara Hoover, for being one of the best hikers; to Jo Ann Jones, for her progress in swimming; to Thera Lee Warner and Brenda Parker, for outstanding work and collections in Nature Lore; and Janell Ewing receiving recognition for her work in Leather Craft and riflery.

Mrs. W. Calvin Jones and son, Johnny, Mrs. Eben D. Warner, Jr., and David, and Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Hoover and Buzzie were among the guests to attend the dinner and presentation of awards.

A Comb Dunking Will Guard Hair

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Half of the job of keeping a thatch of clean hair clean must be taken over by a clean brush and comb.

Run a soiled brush and comb through a fresh mop and your hair, particularly during hot weather, is almost ready for another dunking in the basin.

If you simply abhor poking at dirt that lodges between the teeth of combs and which remains as firmly stashed between the bristles of a brush, try an easier way of cleaning. Dunk these guardians of your clean hair into a soda bath.

A couple of teaspoonfuls of cooking-soda dissolved in enough water to cover comb and brush will help to loosen dirt and cut grease with the minimum of manual prodding.

If you'll soak comb and brush in the soda bath while you continue to dress and after that will take them out to dry—bristles of brush down—you can make this clean-up one step easier for yourself.

After comb and brush are cleaned up, put away to keep safe from dust. Having doubles of both comb and brush is one of the best ways to make sure that there's always a clean set ready to preserve the freshness of your hair.

Tweezing Will Discipline "Strays"

Actress Eleanor Parker tweezes out strays for eyebrow grooming.

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Hairline eyebrows are definitely out of beauty favor but that doesn't mean that you have bee-way to let yours grow bushy or look fierce.

Pick up that tweezer, ma'am, and with your naturally shaped eyebrows as guide, set to work. Pluck stray hairs first. That done and with a clearly defined arc to follow, set to work reshaping—nothing drastic, however.

The perfectly shaped brow arches from a point directly above the inner corner of the eye. So clean out the tiny hairs at the thickest part of the brow and continue to a tapering curve to the temple. If your eyes are set extremely far apart, brows shouldn't be tweezed to widen the span over the bridge of the nose.

An eyebrow arch raised slightly by tweezing under it at the highest point of the curve will make small eyes look larger if the rest of the eyebrow is allowed to keep its natural thickness. If you tamper with the shape, however, pluck both eyebrows evenly.

Eye-brow-plucking is a grooming routine that shouldn't be rushed into right before bedtime. A hasty clean-up with the tweezers can leave tiny red irritations and skin that looks as though you'd just had a good backdoorstep cry.

For the protection of open skin pores, left gaping by uprooted hairs, put an astringent lotion over the plucked brows even before you put your tweezers away and give irritations a chance to subside before putting on pigmented make-up.

Upswept Hairdos Need Restyling

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

The hot weather neck-clearing habit of scrapping hair up on the head, scrub-lady style, can do wicked things to the older woman's looks.

Any woman can have both her hot-weather comfort and a becoming topknot. Proof is the woman who cares too much about her looks to be seen at the corner drug store, butcher shop or grocery store on a summer morning wearing a practical but grim hairdo.

She's the lady who clears her neck of hair but takes the time and trouble to dress it.

If her hair is hoisted for coolness, she wears it in a topknot of short curls. The time that she has taken out to make pin-ups to tie curls up with a rubber band or ribbon; to brush up temple sprouts and other wilful wisps with a touch of lacquer is more than justified by the way she looks: better-groomed, prettier and younger than her friends who twist hair into a securely knotted bun and let it go at that.

Curls, of course, aren't the only trick of making a neck-clearing hair-do look more attractive. Long hair can be hoisted to make two or three soft puffs at the top of a head, and if enough tuck combs are used at sides and back, there need be no droopy wisps to spoil a tidy look. Hair that's long enough to plait can be braided and pinned across the head coronet-fashion to clear a neck of smothering locks. The chic effects that can be braided into hair with colored yarn, ribbon or strips of cotton fabric are almost endless.

It's the look of care, of some effort to style hair which makes the impression of good grooming.

★ WE, THE WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

The first question a young woman who wants to get married ought to ask herself is: "Why am I single?"

If she needs help in figuring out the answer to that one, she may possibly find it in a new book compiled by Hilda Holland, "Why Are You Single?" In this book medical and other authorities on marriage discuss the various reasons why 29,000,000 people of marriageable age in the United States are single.

Once she has figured out why she's single, then she's ready for the last chapter of the book, "Why be single?" and its suggestions for improving her personality and her attitude toward others so that she will be attractive to the right man if he comes along.

CHECK THESE TIPS

Here are some of the suggestions included in the helpful last chapter:

Become a good conversationalist. Recognize and compliment others' good qualities.

Go out of your way to do little favors.

Hold on to old friends and make new ones of both sexes.

Dress neatly and appropriately. Pay close attention to personal hygiene.

Get rid of any peculiar mannerisms.

Rid yourself of habits that annoy others.

Learn to dance, to play games, to enjoy sports.

Know what etiquette requires and observe it.

Develop a hobby that interests others.

Join several organizations and take part in their activities.

Inventory yourself every three months to see how you can be more attractive.

When you know something is wrong, do something about it now.

That may strike you as a formidable list at first glance. But when you start checking yourself by it, it may not be so tough since you've probably already mastered a good many of the suggestions.

Then all you've got to do is concentrate on the points where you are weak. Good luck and good hunting to the new YOU.

A group was entertained with a fish fry in Skellytown in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Young recently.

Those attending were: Mr. John Beigle, Mrs. Sam Green and two sons, and the Youngs and their two sons.

They had fished on Mrs. Green's property, eleven miles northeast of Wheeler.

SAUERKRAUT DISH MENU

Cook sauerkraut with a diced apple and a little onion; flavor with salt, pepper and sugar and add a little butter or margarine. This is a good vegetable dish to serve with meat loaf and oven-browned potatoes.

CHILL CANNED FRUIT

If canned fruit is to be used for dessert be sure to chill the can well in the refrigerator before opening and serving.

Beer barrels made of stainless chromium-nickel steel last about 20 years, compared with about six years for wooden barrels.

Whole Cheese or None at All

NO COMPETENT observer in Washington looks for a new big push against the Taft-Hartley labor law until 1951.

From the viewpoint of all concerned, labor's decision to wait until after the 1950 elections seems unfortunate.

It reflects a basic lack of maturity in the outlook of labor leaders toward the society they live in. And it casts more than a little doubt on their sincerity. Admittedly the Taft bill passed by the Senate as a substitute for the Taft-Hartley bill, but the legislation labor wanted. Yet it did represent an honest effort by Senator Taft to meet many of labor's objections to the original law.

Gains are gains. If you earnestly want them, you take them when they come, however small they may be.

UNDER OUR democratic system, if you think a law is bad, you can fight for its repeal or its amendment. It is logical to suppose that if you cannot get repeal, you'll take amendment.

But our labor leaders do not accept this. In the case of Taft-Hartley, they want repeal or nothing.

They would rather have nothing than something because they believe repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act is a better 1950 political issue than a second version like the present Taft bill.

It is in their refusal to endorse anything less than their full objectives that union leaders show the immaturity that has marked their whole approach to labor problems.

IN THE WHOLE long record of testimony leading up to an approval of the Taft-Hartley law, there is no real evidence that labor officials recognize they have duties and responsibilities toward the public. They have consistently declined to admit anything serious could possibly be wrong in labor's household. They have insisted on freedom from restraints of law and order that are imposed on all other segments of society.

This juvenile demand for special treatment, for exemption from responsibility toward the public, is at the root of labor's decision to put off further legislative effort until 1951.

But if union expect to fare better than they did this year they are going to have to grow up fast. And that means devising a positive program that faces the realities they have so persistently shrugged off.

Gracie Says

By GRACIE ALLEN

Well, George and I are going to London to play at the Palladium. We were over there 15 years ago when both George and I were in better shape.

George and I had an awful time getting permission from the State Department for me to go abroad, because it was afraid that, considering the condition Europe is in, I might upset the balance of power. But then I got the most interesting message from President Truman and Secretary Acheson, and if they hadn't come collect I would never have suspected Jack Benny.

The papers in Los Angeles were very nice to me about my trip. It's too bad the headline in one got mixed up so that it read "Gracie Allen Going to Europe; 25 traffic cops get leave of absence."

WASHINGTON —(NEA) Commerce Department is putting on a road show to see if anything can be done about unemployment.

Just after his recent fiasco chat on the economic state of the nation, President Truman assigned Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer to study unemployment.

The play is that Sawyer will report his findings to Dr. John H. Steelman, the assistant to the president.

President, Doc Steelman will then see if the armed services, the Marshall plan boys, and other government purchasing agencies can shift some of their orders to the so-called distressed areas.

Six top commerce officials are taking to the road to learn the facts on unemployment first hand. Secretary Sawyer is visiting Boston for sessions with the New England governors and the New England council of manufacturers and businessmen. Sawyer is being accompanied by Ralph Hetzel, former War Production Board and CIO research economist.

Undersecretary C. V. Whitney and M. J. Meghan, director of the Office of Business Economics, will be in Louisville and Frankfort, Ky., at the same time to investigate unemployment in that area. Assistant Secretary Thomas C. Blaisdell will visit the Atlanta area for a look at Southern textile mill employment.

Fair Enough - Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1949

NEW YORK I submit that Eleanor Roosevelt is unworthy of belief even on oath. On January 2, 1947, she signed a sworn statement with the New York State Bureau of Motor Vehicles concerning her automobile wreck on the Saw Mill River Parkway on Aug. 14, 1946. She and three others were injured and three cars were damaged. To establish the fact that she was under oath I quote briefly from the opening of her affidavit:

"I, Eleanor Roosevelt, being duly sworn, say:

"The conclusion reads: 'Sworn to before me, this 2nd day of January, 1947, (signed) Nancy H. Lee,' followed by Miss Lee's notarial stamp.

The signature 'Anna Eleanor Roosevelt' stands at the end of the document.

The vital part is contained in the second paragraph. There she says:

"I first drove a motor car in the year 1921. During the entire period from 1921 to date, I have never had an accident of any kind, other than the one in question."

There is conflict concerning both the time that she first "drove a motor car" and her claim to a clean record since 1921. The statement disagrees with statements which she made in her first autobiography, "This Is My Story," published in 1937.

On Page 158 of that book she says: "I was trying my skill with this strange new contraption, a Ford car, when, on turning into the driveway, I ran into the gate post. It took some time before the car was repaired and ready again for my husband and the others to use. I suppose the average person would have taken this calmly and tried again, but I felt so terrible at having injured something which was not my own property (it was her husband's property) and at having spoiled everybody else's pleasure that I never again touched a car for many years."

Merely noting the sanctimonious intimation of an uncommonly touchy regard for the property right of others, in contrast to her imperious attitude in usurping an Army plane with me and press agents for a personal visit to Joe Lash in the South Pacific during the war, I mail down the fact that this accident occurred in 1908. She says so specifically. On her statement on oath that "I first drove a motor car in 1921" is false. And I submit that she had not forgotten that first smash because she says it made a great impression on her. So great that "I never touched a car again for many years."

I trust that the hauteur of the observation that she was not as common or "average" persons will not escape the common man. The interior classes would have had no such high moralistic regard for others' property as a fun.

Now we come to the second and third automobile accidents in which Anna Eleanor Roosevelt participated as a driver.

On Page 342 she writes that when her husband came down to polo she decided that she would have to take his place as best she could with her "two youngest boys."

Begin by learning to drive a car, she says on Pages 342 and 343. "I might as well own up at once that I had two accidents. I drove into the stone gate post of the Hyde Park avenue because I tried to turn back the car. I did not overturn the car, and seriously injured someone. But in both cases, no one was hurt."

She does not give the year in which these two accidents occurred. But by back-tracking from the next page we come to the conclusion that they happened in the summer of 1922. That would have been within the period in which she swore she had had no accidents. On Page 344 she writes: "This autumn of 1922 I took Elliott to Groton School. I drove him up myself."

On Pages 342 and 343 she refers to "that summer," and the reference to "this autumn of 1922" seems definitely to put these two smashes in 1922.

The material fact is, however, that this woman with three accidents behind her, by this statement, under oath, tried to give the licensing authorities a false impression that she was a driver of some 25 years' experience who had never had an accident. She had never had thousands of miles. But "I have never had an accident of any kind." She did not appear for personal examination. She was speaking at a luncheon.

It seems barely possible that the indefiniteness of the date of the two accidents which are lumped together would still permit them to be placed at a time before 1921. But even so, the statement that "I first drove a motor car in 1921." In fact, that one is knocked out by her story of the 1908 smash.

Now this is not a petty matter. The woman is a menace. I believe she is a menace. The more so because I derive from her book the impression that she is unscrupulous as to truth, vain and cynical, all with a pretense of exaggerated kindness and humane feeling, which deceives millions of gullible persons.

No truthful, honest, sane person who has had three previous automobile accidents would be able to forget them utterly. Nor would a truthful, honest person resort to any form of language to conceal these pertinent and material facts even though it could be done with technical correctness. That sworn affidavit was intended to convey to the licensing authority the belief that she should not be deprived of her license or otherwise faulted because she had driven a quarter of a century without a mishap.

The very nature of the mishaps and their number, three, suggest that she is temperamentally unfit to drive. Many drivers have had one accident such as her various mishaps. Many drivers have had more than one. But in all these hidden cases there was no other driver to share the blame. She was just a bad driver, that was all. This false and misleading statement was intended to conceal evidence to that effect from the consideration of the licensing authority.

principal employment areas. BES has reported 10 of these 98 areas as having had increases of from 12 to 23 percent in unemployment from March to May 1949. These are the real employment distress areas of the country.

Five of the 10 are in New England. They center around New Bedford and Worcester, Mass.; Bridgeport and Waterbury, Conn.; and Providence, R. I. Industries principally affected include textile mills, brass, rubber, chemical, electrical and non-electrical manufacturing.

The Utica-Rome, N. Y., area reported a general rise in unemployment. The Scranton-Wilkes Barre, Pa., areas reported decline in coal production, short weeks and layoffs in manufacturing.

Muskegon, Mich., showed the highest unemployment increase in emergency aid to its chapters in 40 states in the first seven months of this year.

During the first seven months of last year only $1,723,558 was advanced to the state chapters in emergency aid.

Foundation President Basil O'Connor, reporting the figures, said the increased cost was caused by "the rising incidence of infantile paralysis for the second consecutive year."

LIBERTY

By F. A. HARPER

A Member of the Staff of Foundation for Economic Education

INSTALLMENT IV

Economic liberty prevails only if the individual person is permitted to save in the form of private property, and to use it as he sees fit. The famous philosopher Hume believed the right of private ownership of property to be the basis of the modern concept of justice in morals. His belief deserves careful consideration.

Satisfying one's wants with the least possible efforts is the basic economic urge; it is the economic equivalent of the geometric concept that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

If this basic urge is unrestrained by morals, and by the foresight of consequences flowing from various methods of satisfying one's immediate wants, the course of least effort is likely to seem to be that of stealing the food and things from one's neighbor. Animals, lacking these moral and intellectual restraints, act in that manner and live by marauding. Man's higher order of intelligence and foresight has codified into written and unwritten law a restraint from short-sighted fulfillment of his wants by marauding. He has established private ownership of property, and stabilization of the rights of its possession. Under the intellectual and moral code of advanced forms of human society, man acts differently from these "lower animals," and he can continue to live in an advancing society only so long as that code of conduct is not undermined and allowed to fall.

Of all the essentials for the establishment of an advancing human society, the right to private property, as a moral concept, seems fundamental. Socialism means "A state in which there is no private property." Yet advocates of socialism claim for it the virtue of its being a system of society advanced beyond that of liberalism and rights to private property. However, socialism is an advanced form, when it embraces a concept that would have precluded the advancement of civilization?

The only advancement to be claimed for socialism in its advancement in the sense of time, because, due to inability to generate any accumulation of the tools required for an advanced society, it must subsist on the primitive level of the hunter-gatherer produced under some other plan; it has to parasitize society. The confiscation of private property is civilization in retreat.

Is there a right to private property?

Justice that does not rest in one way or another, as Hume said, on the right of private property is a "power trust." If they cannot defeat the move when the Interior Appropriations Bill reaches the Senate chamber, they hope to kill it in the House side.

What the opponents do not seem to know is that the "Texas contract," which has been named specifically by the committee as the pattern for the future allocation of authority, has been praised and approved by three leading exponents of "public power." Besides Speaker Rayburn, they are Interior Secretary Krug and the Federal Power Commission as reorganized by Franklin D. Roosevelt in which CHANGED — Although Mr. Rayburn has indicated he is not satisfied with the proposed extension of the Texas compact, he has not yet given any reason for his changed stand. He may feel that circumstances elsewhere do not demand the same arrangement, but as yet he has not explained the whys and wherefores in detail.

That is what gives special significance to his letter, dated January 22, 1948, or almost a year ago, in which he, as Southern Power Administration, a federal agency, had tested the Texas contract in his own district and state.

HARSH — Ironically, Speaker Rayburn's letter was written to Clyde T. Ellis, executive manager at Washington of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. He is a former Arkansas representative who helped to form this private organization of rural cooperatives, which pays him a salary of $12,000 annually, together with other prerequisites.

As soon as he learned of the Senate Appropriations Committee's action, he wrote a letter to local managers and directors of his outfit, in which he used some harsh language toward the legislators.

"The rural electrification program," he said, "faces perhaps its darkest hour since it got underway. It is the consensus here that, if the Senate Appropriations Committee gets away with its attempt to force what is known as the Texas contract upon us, the next step will be to effectively deny us the right to generate our own power."

"There is no question but what the Senate committee has capitulated to a well-laid scheme of the power companies to destroy us."

It should be noted here that only three committee members voted against the new arrangement.

INFORMED — Speaker Rayburn's letter follows in closing copy of letter you wrote to Douglas Wright (manager of the Southern Power Administration at Tulsa) with reference to the contract between the Southwestern Power Administration and the Texas Power & Light Co. I simply have this to say, and that is that I was kept informed at all times of the progress of those negotiations.

"I think I know that the contract was a good thing for SPA and rural electrification in the area covered by the contract. Every rural electric cooperative in that area that has been offered

How blind is color blind?

Actually, the greater percentage of those dubbed "color blind" aren't blind at all, for the most common manifestation of defective color perception is the inability to differentiate between red and green. The next most common defect is the difference between blue and yellow and way down at the bottom of the list are the very real achromatic individuals.

The persons with defective color vision seem to see much like normal persons wearing tinted lenses which screen out or alter certain shades. There are many degrees of variation in this field of vision, some individuals being able to discern all except differences in pastel colorings and some verging on those who can tell the difference between black and white with all colors in between seen as shades of gray.

Defective color perception and color blindnesses are inherited and very few women manifest this affliction in comparison with the number of males affected.

Contrary to the popular conception that total color blindness is a colorless world of black and white like a photograph, it is actually more like twilight vision. The vision that a normal person will find after his eyes adjust from daylight to the dimness of a room is comparable to the constant vision of the totally color blind. They see like persons in the dark.

Many color defective persons can see better in the dark than those with normal color vision and also have a high degree of ability in the discrimination of fine brightness values. For instance, a color defective engraver was superior to other workers with normal color sense in transcribing accurately light and shade effects. This defect would be a liability in certain fields of medical practice, but would prove advantageous in fluoroscopic work and the reading of X-ray films.

The one great problem of the color blind, as the term is commonly used, is that of red and green, danger and safety, stop and go signals. However, there is a valuable aid for that.

Glasses with upper lenses of dark red glass have been devised which filter out the green light but show up the red and caution lights of traffic signals. If the driver sees any light at the intersection, he knows to stop, but when he sees no light or only a faint shadow he knows it is safe to go ahead.

These glasses are just ordinary glass for the bottom part of the lens but if the individual requires corrective spectacles in addition to the color filter, both segments may be ground.

In persons who have always had normal color vision, sudden impairment of red or blue may indicate severe optic nerve trouble.

THE primary function of the Supreme Court is to furnish yardstick by which citizens may govern their actions. The yardstick no longer exists. The majority opinion may be that of the minority tomorrow. Justice Frankfurter has boasted that precedents no longer govern. No one knows with the law is least of all the court itself.

James F. Lincoln, President of the Lincoln Electric Company, Cleveland, Ohio, has just completed a trial arrangement for immediate construction of a new $350,000 plant to be erected in Euclid, Ohio.

Behind that statement is a story — a success secret — and a tip to any "expert" who is seriously interested in ways to promote prosperity.

James F. Lincoln's brother started the company with $100 borrowed capital, during the "depression" around the turn of this century. James F. Lincoln went to work for the company as a salesman. Through the years the company grew under the motto: "He prospers most who serves best."

In 1933, in the middle of another depression, James F. Lincoln, now president, took a bold step forward. He inaugurated his "incentive system." Right in the middle of the depression he worked out a plan to raise wages. He was not trying to increase "buying power," by an arbitrary "something for nothing raise." He gave his men a chance to earn more by producing more. Lincoln workers are given an incentive to produce more. And they do — more than 8 times the average production in comparable industries. With increased production the worker's pay increases — from an average of $300 per year in 1933 to more than $6,000 today. The price on the product comes down — more than cut in half since 1933. The company's earnings go up — and the company is able to hire more workers, and even build new plants with hundreds of more jobs. The Lincoln works worked themselves into prosperity because they were given adequate incentive to do so.

Mr. Lincoln says the incentive system works anywhere, anytime. It works in the home, in the neighborhood, in the office, in the store. He also believes it will work on a national scale. "When the government gives business an incentive to produce, it will come through," he says.

Nickel silver is used for architectural hardware and decorative fixtures because of its resistance to atmospheric corrosion and its ease of cleaning.

THE SUPREME COURT

(The Chicago Tribune)

President Truman has an opportunity, in filling the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Murphy, to retrieve some of the reputation of the Supreme court, which at the moment is probably lower than at any other time in its history. It may be questioned whether he will avail himself of this opportunity, but it exists.

It must be conceded to Mr. Truman that his two previous appointments did not harm the court greatly, even if they did little to arrest its decline. Chief Justice Vinson, no great lawyer himself, has made amiable but largely ineffective efforts to still the scandalous bickering among his colleagues. Justice Burton might furnish balance to the body if he had like-minded associates.

The real damage to the court's prestige was done before Mr. Truman took office. Mr. Roosevelt, defeated by Congress when he sought to pack the court in the sweep, achieving same end with the passage of time. Whereas his predecessors in the White House had sifted the nation's bar and bench for the best available appointments, frequently choosing men of the opposite political party, Mr. Roosevelt had but one criterion — that his appointees should read the Constitution as to sanction any social or economic adventure to which the New Deal might commit the nation.

In this process of selection, an unusually large share of the appointments fell to men who had been the sponsors or supporters of New Deal legislation, either in Congress or in the executive department. At times it was difficult for the court to muster a quorum for consideration of some of these measures, because previous activity had disqualified so many of its members.

A more serious result was that in his insistence on ideological conformity, Mr. Roosevelt, frequently overlooked the primary qualification of a justice, which is that he should be a good lawyer. The average legal experience of the present court, either at the bar or on the bench, is probably lower than ever before.

The results of this inexperience have been bizarre and tragic. Personal bitterness and party egotism have been reflected in opinions. An abnormally large number of cases have been decided by a bare majority. Dissents are to be expected, but it is novel and unpleasant to find that in some recent cases the majority has reached its decision for conflicting reasons, reflected in disputatious opinions.

Frequently it has seemed that the majority of court has made up its mind long before the case is argued and only then has sought some law to justify its ruling. In the Christoff case the apparent desire to free a Communist from a sentence for contempt of Congress was held by the majority to rest doubt on every act of Congress in which there was no definite proof that a quorum had been present. Justice Black wrote into an antitrust opinion some of his theories on basing point prices, wholly nonessential to the determination of the question before the court, and Congress is still trying to straighten out the mess he created.

The primary function of the Supreme Court is to furnish yardstick by which citizens may govern their actions. The yardstick no longer exists. The majority opinion may be that of the minority tomorrow. Justice Frankfurter has boasted that precedents no longer govern. No one knows with the law is least of all the court itself.

Decrease in Crippling Is Main Gain Against Old Mystery Malady of Polio

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles by AP Science Editor Howard W. Blakeslee, explaining what is known about infantile paralysis, how you can take precautions against catching the disease, and what to do if it strikes your family.)

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor
NEW YORK — (AP) — Children have had polio — infantile paralysis — since ancient times. Today a higher proportion recover without crippling.

This is the only gain, and all in the present century. The gain comes from better nursing, and not from anything else. Almost everyone has had polio, but only a few ever become sick. How the disease works in most of us who don't get it is entirely unknown.

But what happens in the sick is well known. It is in your spinal cord. This cord is the cable carrying nerves from the brain to branch out, like switchboard wires, to all parts of your body.

One set of nerves in this cord governs muscles. Polio chooses, for some mysterious reason, to attack these particular nerves and no others. These nerves are made of horn-shaped cells.

Polio damages or destroys horn cells. Among all nerves, these horn cells alone are unable to regenerate themselves. Once gone, they break the muscle-nerve cable for life.

Without these nerves in the spine, muscles shrink. No other part of your body is damaged. Polio can strike at any point along the spinal cable. If it hits high up, it paralyzes arms and hands. If in the mid-spine, polio hits the muscles of breathing. If low down, it paralyzes leg muscles.

There is an additional point of attack, in the "bulb," a rounded thing, half the size of a thumb, at the top of your spine. This location of polio brings most of the deaths.

The cause of polio is a virus, a very tiny particle made of protein. How this particle does its destruction is unknown.

Two kinds of polio virus are known. More are suspected. You can have polio more than once, one attack for each kind of virus. In epidemics, those who recover without any bad effects range from 40 to 70 percent. Sometimes there will be 70 percent complete recoveries without any medical care whatever. Sometimes the death rates and crippling are high, despite care.

This contradiction is due to the virus being different from year to year, sometimes virulent and sometimes mild.

In epidemics, hardly more than one child in 300 gets visible polio. The highest susceptibility is from ages four to nine. But polio can hit adults, and recently in the United States the adult victims have been increasing.

Nursing care, to help the body fight its own battle, is all that can be done in polio. There are two special aids. One is heat. The other, movement of stricken muscles. Both are Sister Elizabeth Kenny's contributions and have done more than anything else to reduce crippling.

Others than Sister Kenny knew the merits of these two treatments, but she was the person who did most to convince doctors. Both treat the paralyzed muscles and not the horn cells. Nothing now known does any good for the stricken cells in the spinal cord.

Early diagnosis — detecting the disease — is the most important single thing to be done. And the most difficult. The only scientific proof is to use spinal cord fluid to make a monkey sick. This test takes weeks and hundreds of dollars. A recent French test promises to do something similar with mice in two weeks. Both are too slow to help your child.

Keen doctors and nurses have to make the decision with the eyes of experience.

FRANKFURT, Germany — (AP) — The Berlin airlift force started flying home to the United States last night.

The first plane to be redeployed left here carrying 18 airlift veterans.

The flight started a homeward exodus which will end Oct. 31, when the gradually reducing airlift will come to a complete halt. "I'm glad I was in this airlift, but I'm glad it's over and mighty glad to be getting back home," said Lt. John L. Dunn of El Paso, Texas, co-pilot of the big C-54 which started the homeward movement.

Airlift Crew Starts Home

More planes will follow at the rate of four to eight every day until the bulk of the big transport fleet numbering nearly 300 planes is gone.

The initial group came from the 317th Transport Command Group at Celle, which dropped out of the airlift operation last Sunday. Today the only two Navy squadrons in the airlift will start home. For many of the group, it was their second redeployment home from a big overseas job.

DALLAS — (AP) — The Republic National Life Insurance Company of Dallas has bought the Alliance Life Insurance Co. of Chicago.

The transaction involved the $3,600,000 purchase of all Alliance Life capital stock and reinsurance of Alliance Life by Republic National Life, a company statement said.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Fumes from fire-fighting gases led to the spectacular airliner crash in which Earl Carroll and other celebrities lost their lives June 17, 1948, the Civil Aeronautics Board has decided.

The board said in a report issued after lengthy investigation that the erratic actions of the plane before it crashed into a hillside near Mt. Carmel, Pa., indicated that members of the plane crew were overcome by the gas and "were physically unable to perform their flight duties."

Forty-three persons were aboard the United Air Lines DC-6 when it plowed into the hillside and smashed into a high-voltage power line, causing an explosion and flash fire which destroyed the plane. There were no survivors.

More than 33 million short tons of cane and beet sugar were produced by the world in 1947.

82 Cities Lose Rent Control

CHICAGO — (AP) — Lids have been popped off rent controls in at least 82 cities since local option authority, granted by Congress, became effective on April 1. During the same time, Tighe E. Woods, federal housing expediter, lifted restrictions in 188 other communities but recently slapped them back on there after rents rose sharply.

Five states also have taken action under the local option provision of the 1949 Rent Control Act toward abolishing ceilings or setting up their own systems.
