Official Seeks Congress' Aid

WASHINGTON -(A) - A Texas VEA Staff ousing official said he hopes Congress will authorize cities to build low-cost homes, then pro-vide federal funds for their maintenance costs.

Walter Henslee, president of Texas Association of Housing Officials, said he hopes Congress will pass such a law to help Texas cities in low-cost housing and slum clearance projects.

Men are funny. They are always yapping in print about how women have life too soft. If women didn't have all these modern labor-saving gadgets, they whine, but instead had to work as hard as their grandmas did, there would be more peace in the home to the control of the and slum clearance projects.

living-room, dining-room, kitchen and breakfast area has evolved nto a single generous-sized room Architects logically asked "why devote space to a room used informally only a few hours a day?" then logically eliminated it. The public accepted this reasoning because double-duty space became decreased in order to compensate for soaring construction costs. By combining functional space into one large room, spacious-ness is provided within restricted floor area and there is an important saving in costs of partiions and doors.

now producing low-cost dwellings which embody good planning and top-quality construction. It was erected on a large plot with plenty of room for additions. Price was $5,350. Basement was eliminated and kitchen and bath placed back-to-back to save costs. The dining nook off the kitchen is at the front of the house beneath a window to afford a pleasant view. The oversized living-room is separated from the front door by a vestibule and large closet space is provided for the two bedrooms. The house, containing 624 square feet, is heated by an air-circulating fireplace. An oil or gas heater could be used at only slight additional cost. The house is insulated with mineral wool to save fuel expense and to make the home cooler in summer. The attic, not high enough for converting into a room, has ample space for general storage. The house is of standard frame construction, its wood studs and wood sheathing covered with asbestos-cement board. The siding is applied vertically and the joints covered with wood battens for distinctive exterior appearance. Lattice-work at the doorways provides additional charm. Interior walls and ceilings are gypsum lath and plaster and the house has a hardwood floor over a good subfloor. A 30-gallon electric tank supplies hot water. Refrigerator and range were not included in the $4,900 mortgage remaining after a $450 down payment. Carrying charges, including payments on principal, interest, hazard insurance and taxes, total only $33.84 per month.

New Life Restored to Garden Furnishings by Repainting

By HESTER O'NEILL
GEORGETOWN, D. C. — These days the garden is again coming into its own. Undoubtedly some have already been seen dressing up garden chairs in clean new coats of enamel. It reminds one of their own garden furniture and spurs them to take action before their pep lowers as the thermometer rises. With summer just around the corner and the garden promising a cooler household room during the humid months ahead, it's high time to re-condition the chairs and tables.

No matter how scratched and faded the present garden furniture is — as long as it's basically sound — it can be used again this year. It may take a few hours, and a little clare and colorful enamel will make a great difference in summer comfort and enjoyment. The new and improved finishes now on the market are so easy to apply, dry so quickly, and offer such a variety of colors that there's little reason to hesitate even though the furniture may be marred with rust, if it's metal — or cracked and scaled, if it's wood. A wire brush or sandpaper will remove the rust, and a quick touch-up of the bare metal with metal primer will have furniture ready for its bright, protective new enamel coat. Sandpaper will remove the rust, and a quick touch-up of the bare wood and a layer of enamel undercoater on the bare wood will ready it for the final finish.

WASHINGTON — (P)— Funds for waterways projects on the Guadalupe, Little Colorado and Trinity rivers in Texas were urged by a group of Texans appearing before a Senate subcommittee handling waterways funds.

Money to proceed with a barge canal stretching northward along the Guadalupe from the present intracoastal waterway to a point three miles south of Victoria was requested by a group from Victoria, Tex.

Other spokesmen urged that one million dollars asked in the budget for development of the Trinity River be voted in full.

Texans also urged construction of the Little Colorado River extension of the intracoastal waterway for a distance of 17.8 miles upstream. The project, not in the budget, is estimated by Army engineers to cost $64,000.

The editorial admitted that the editor much preferred sewers to be privately operated. It also admitted that if any man was obliged to pay who didn't receive any benefit from the sewers it was a form of robbery. It also claimed that it was impossible to claimed that it was impossible to be 100 per cent consistent in put-ting an ideal into state operation. That, however, wouldn't make a principle inconsistent with other principles which are guides of the newspaper. I received a very in-posing that a person knows true principle, if he acted always consistently with his knowledge, he would be perfect. Obviously, noso—as, for instance, in any one sector of his life, or field of action. The greatest obstacle to perfection, it seems to me, is the limitation of Space and Time. For example, everyone should always deample, everyone should always de-fend all human right: but there literally is not time in 70 or 80 years to protest even once against each of the crimes against the rights that come to his notice during those years. Consider that I spent at least half my waking time for 18 months, and about $1,000 to save the life of only one refugee from Communism who reached the Goddess of Liberty in New York Harbor; during that time, U. S. Immigration bureaucrats shipped back thousands to be killed and eleven (that I know of) killed themselves in New York harbor on ships taking them back. A second cause of inconsistency is a second cause of inconsistency is a sense of proportion (given the Time—Space limitation.) For example, I am opposed of course to State 'old age pensions.' I have paid the $3, annual tax in Con-necticut since 1937 because it register for a ration card was consistent and the cost to me of that refusal didn't seem so disproportionately excessive. Possibly I overestimate the value of what I overestimate the value of what I can do and am doing out of jail. But one's best judgment is the best judgment one can use.

"I think that, consistently, I should oppose with the loudest squawks I can utter all State bond issues. I don't, because I have only ence, is knocking at the doors of the United States. The imperialso much squawking capacity and I try to use it all economically; i.e. to get the most results for the least squawking. There are great numbers of issues that, inconsis-tently, I am silent about, for that reason. Silence about any—each and all—of them is inconsisten because silence gives consent. But it seems to me that there is a dif-

opposing, and an affirmative ad "If it came to a flat decision. do not believe that any persuasion or force could induce me to advocate any action to which I am opposed in principle. (Maybe this is simply sophistry; what do you think? Is there an actual difference between a not-opposing si-lence, and a vocal advocacy?)
"Second, as to State bonds: I think, as Frank Chodorov wrote, that taxation is robbery. Bond is-sues I think are the most despic-able, fraudulent, pernicious form of that robbery. Straight open direct taxation is plain open robbery, the hold-up. Indirect taxation is robbery-by-fraud, a confidence game. But bond issues are taking food from babies. They are robbery of the unborn. Victims of the other the unborn. Victims of the other forms of taxation at least, some of them, get back some of the loot. But the victims of bond-issue robbery are helpless and totally-robbed victims. By the time they pay the bonds, whatever wealth the bond-issue seized is no longer even existence. Also, this existence. in existence. Also, this system of spending future wealth before it is produced is a cumulative wrecking of the State itself; the bond-issue not only robs the unborn, but be queaths to them eventually the indescribable miseries and horrors of political, social, economic collapse and chaos. I believe Nebraska is the only State in history or in existence which is prevented, by its Constitution, from borrowing money. This Constitutional prohibition is certainly essential to the permanent existence of a State;

nature (of physical force used upon persons, by persons) is restrictive. It cannot be anything but restrictive; it can not be productive. If you will really investigate the subject of sewage disposal, you will find that the State monopoly of it has prevented, and is preventing, the use of better methods already invented, and that it is wasteful and inefficient in using the out-of-date methods that it does employ. I don't know anything whatever about the subject; but put a reporter on it, and you'll find that I am right. State control of an economic activity always invariable has that effect.

"I think there are two flaws in your editorial, 1. You struggle with problems of 'full cost' and 'payment in proportion to service received' from the standpoint of a dictator. Of course, those problems can't be solved by a dictator. Leave them to the free market, and it will solve them. The Register doesn't have any trouble in getting full cost from its customers, or payment in proportion to service at a junior college, and specially security pyramid club may become heavier than the base which supports it.

Security was inaugurated, for instance, there were about 8,000,-000 over 65. Now there are approximately 11,000,000. In 1970 there may be 20,000,000. Eventually full cost from its customers, or payment in proportion at junior college, and specially percentage will increase to 9 percent for each by 1990, or a yearly total of $864.

These payments, of course, will be in addition to all other income, corporation, inheritance and nuisance levies. The grand total bill for merely the social security benefits is estimated at approximately $12 billions for 1955.

Should the Rankin pension bill become law, an old soldier at 65 would receive an additional $72 would receive an additional $72 to month, provided his in come does not top $2,000 a year if carefree, and $3,000 if he has a wife or children dependent on him.

Upon death, funeral expenses not exceeding $289.80 would be imately $12 billions for 1955.

IFS — Here is how the federal government will serve as a day-to-day, year-by-year, guardian angel of a practical and dollars-and-cents nature to the individual, if the Truman program wins Congressional sanction and if future economic conditions enable it to function as advertised — two big "ifs":
