ALTOONA, Pa. —(P) — A re-opened grave — a burned Army uniform—a pinch of salt cast on a corpse. Those were some of the details of a story unfolded here yesterday - a story centering around a "hexed" widow who is reported "recovering from a "spell" cast by her dead soldier husband. The story came to light with the disclosure by Bedford County authorities that they had granted permission for the re-opening of the grave of Pvt. Reuben Rock, who died last Jan. 13 of tuberculosis.

Arthur Dively, father of Rock's widow, attractive Mrs. Rosella Rock, 22, said that a ceremony performed at the grave Feb. 22 freed his daughter of the "spell" that had brought her close to a nervous breakdown. The U.S. Army uniform in which Rock had been buried was stripped from his body and burned, Dively said. Salt was sprinkled on the body to ward off evil spirits. The corpse was then wrapped in a clean white sheet and returned to its resting place. After Rock was buried Jan. 16 in the Bulls Creek district near the Blair-Bedford Counline, Dively said, daughter was tormented by her husband's restless spirit, Rosella, who had been devoted to Rock, was unable to cat or sleep, Dively said. Her parents became convinced Rock had practiced Rosella's picture, Dively said.

THE BURLEY has a combination living-dining room which divides the service part of the house. This includes the sleeping rooms and attached garage.

To increase wall space, there are two high deuble-hung windows on one wall of each bedroom, in addition to a standard window. Eeach of the rooms, also has twin wardrobes. The bedroom half has a linen and a general storage closet.

The kitchen has corner windows which give a two-way view over the bink and L-shaped cabinets. There is a large general closet and a storage cabinet on the inside wall and space for a breakfast set under the wide window.

space for a breakfast set under the wide window. The Burley's side vestibule serves as a buffer between the garage and house proper, it leads directly into the basement. A coat closet in the front vestibule and garage complete the storage space on the first floor. The exterior walls of The Burley are finished with siding or shingles. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Overall dimensions are 4 feet by 26 feet. There is a full basement. Exclusive of the garage, the plan contains 882 square feet and 19,149 cubic feet.

Selling prices, carrying charges and other details vary. The houses look a bit different on the outside and, at first glance, the arrangement of rooms seems different But through them all, from $3,995 in Ypsilanti, Mich., to $6,000 in Baltimore or $6,500 in Evansville, Ind., there is an astonishing sameness to what you can get in this minimum-price good house It will have four rooms. Piping may be copper, steel or galvanized, and fixtures will be of enameled iron. There will be no refrigerator or range in the purchase price.

This is not a theoretical picture of a $4,000 to $6,500 house. It is a composite picture of what pri-vate builders actually provided during the late months of 1948 in the cities mentioned, plus Tucson, Ariz.; Columbia, S. C.; Jackson, Tenn.: South Whittier, Calif.

A remarkable feature of the study is the genuine similarity of the floor plans used independently by the eight contractors-none of whom had been briefed, so far as can be learned, by anybody or had talked it over with any of the others. By coincidence, this basic floor plan is almost identical with one that Smith had worked out as a theoretical ideal, to give the most house for the least money The economy house is 24 feet wide and 24 to 28 feet long, a simple box divided into living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bath. In climates where heating is necessary there is a utility om, stolen from the kitchen, for heating and hot water plants.

Asbestos Cement For Safer Home

Everyone is well aware of the tically standard equipment in flooring in which expansion tremendous developments during well-built dwellings and other contraction are reduced to a number of the last few decades in automostructures. One of the notable advances has been the introduction of ec-onomical, fireproof building maerials made of asbestos and portland cement, two of nature's most durable substances. Development of asbestos cemen building products, which last indefinitely, stemmed from the search for a new type of roofing material which would be strong, permanent and fireproof, yet light n ceight. The method for comining asbestos fibers with portland cement, discovered around the turn of the century, solved the problem.

Today's home builder can obtain this lifetime material not only in the form of roofing shingles but also as siding, general purpose building board and cor-rugated sheets. Besides being fireproof, the materials are im-mune to many common causes of deterioration. They are widely used in industrial installations because of their resistance to decay and corrosion. They also are rat-proof, a quality which makes them particularly suitable for farm buildings.

Another major development has the field of insulation Thirty-five years ago the insulated home was a rarity. Today insulation is accepted as prac finds a couple of enterprising fellows down in Valparaiso who have developed a process for sealing fresh milk in the cans and keeping it fresh more or less indefinitely without refrigeration. They say they can ship their product into Chicago by parcel post at a delivery charge of 3 cents a quart, against about 5 cents a quart in home delivery charges.

There are still technical difficulties to be solved, but probably they are not insurmountable. As a matter of fact, a chocolate drink made near Chicago of fresh milk and chocolate sirup is sold in cans not only in Chicago but thruout the Caribbean region and Central America, where it is a great favorite with a population which rarely sees fresh milk.

Assuming eventual perfection of the process, dairy farming which now is concentrated, for the most part, close to population centers could be concentrated.

What is more likely to happen however, is that the present vested interests in the fluid milk business, farmers, distributors, and labor unions, would immediately to the work or total laboratives. go to work on state legislatures, city councils and health depart-ments either to outlaw the new product, or to put such artificial restrictions on production and sale that it would cost as much, at the very least, as milk now does.

Even today, there is no free market in fresh milk. The price is fixed by the government. If farmers distant from a metropolitan center can produce milk more cheaply than those near it, they have to be paid the standard price in that market under the federal marketing order. There are all sorts of inspection rules some of which could be twisted for use which could be twisted for use against canned milk just as Chi-cago building trades unions have managed to twist building inspec-tions to bar prefabricated houses. 1040 long-form. On that form, then, if your income was less than $5,000 but your deductions were more than percent, you'll have to itemize them but you can claim them. If your income was $5,000 or more, the size of your deductions have nothing to do with the kind of form you use. You must use the 1040 long-form.

But Congress laid down dif-ferent rules on deductions for axpayers with $5,000 or more income who are single and for those who are married. A single taxpayer in this group is allowed a standard, automatic deduction of 10 percent of his income up to a limit of $1,000 in deductions. He just takes that 10 percent. He doesn't have to itemize anything unless his deductions exceed 10 percent.

It's different with a married couple whose income is $5,000 or If they file a joint return, even though the wife had no income, they get a standard deduction just like the unmarried man-of 10 percent up to a limit of $1,000.

without itemizing.

But — if one of them files separately, or both file separately, there's a flat limit of only $500 in deductions on the return

This may seem unfair to married couples, giving single people break over them. Congress did it that way to even things up a Under the new law married couples, filing jointly, get a break unmarried taxpayers don't get.

For, by filing jointly, married couples can "split" their income to get a lower tax, as if each were claiming half the total in When Napolean made his home
