Pope Accused of Seeking Alliance

ROME —(A') — Italian Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti accuses Pope Pius XII of seeking to organize a "holy alliance against Communist countries.

His views appeared in advance proofs of an article to appear in the coming issue of Vie Nuove, the Communist weekly. The story is titled "God and the Atlantic Pact.

Togliatti, target of an assassir last year, writes critically of the Pope's call for special masses

April 3 "to expiate the crime of the enemies of God" in sentencing Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary to life imprison Apparently Togliatti, who al ways has stood for avoiding direct conflict with the church in pre dominantly Catholic Italy, was marking out a new Communist line here. Should the party abandon its live-and-let-live attitude toward the church, some observers say, this would be tantamount to admitting that the party failed to win the Catholic masses with promises of improving their lot

Common Ground By R. C. HOILES

What Is the Highest Priced Thing in America?

We hear a lot about inflation—about things costing so much. Inflation or high prices are a result of our beliefs. Our beliefs lead to laws that interfere with production and greatly increase credit or what we commonly call money. That is inflation but it is, however, a little off the subject.

The highest priced thing in America is compulsory "education." It is the thing that we not only do not get our money's worth, but it does a great deal of harm. Give credit for the training the individu al gets, and subtract from that the moral influences — the way it cor-rupts the mind and paralyzes it and we have a negative result. The reason it corrupts the minds of the youth is because it is based on louble standard - because the eachers, or so-called that the youth comes in contact sonal definition of stealing. They double definition of stealing is that anything that the majority to take from the minority is no stealing. They set up a man-made interpretation of stealing and deny that there is a Higher Law that

Fifty years ago, when public education was relatively new, people at that time regarded it as a form of socialism. It has crept people gradually. Pope described compulsory supported education when he wrote:

As to be hated needs but to be seen; Yet seen too oft, familiar with

"Vice is a monster of so fright-

her face, We first endure, then pity, then Years ago people realized that public education was a vice. But now, few people, unless they have read some of the classics of the ages, recognize that public educa-tion is a crime and vice. Public education is the mainspring or the fountainhead of socialism and stateism or Communism. It is absurd and ridiculous to be fighting socialsm and communism throughout world when we are teaching it to the youth in every public school district. We are teaching in every public school district that might makes right, that the end justifies the means, that there is no Higher Law than the law of the majority There can be no greater crime than to confuse and confound the youth of the land and fill their minds

It is little wonder that no superintendent for $500 will attempt to harmonize tax supported schools with the Ten Commandments or the Declaration of Independence. It is little wonder that no individual holding any responsi-ble position will attempt to defend supported schools and agree evade questions by windy irrelevant answers. And there is a very definite reason why no believer in tax supported schools holding any position of re-sponsibility will attempt to defend tax supported schools and agree to answer each and every question in one minute's time without the longer period. The reason is, of course, if he couldn't evade he would contradict himself in 10 minutes' time. He would be giving proof that he was a man without any principle — that he was a law unto himself — that he couldn't tell the difference between his ideas on government and of Henry Wallace or Joseph Stalin your discussion of it."

On the other hand any man who believes that there is a Higher Law pulsory education, can answer each what he is advocating or opposing in less than 120 words. And he can do this without contradicting him-

So compulsory "education" is the highest priced thing in America. It is a thing that we not only do not get our money's worth, but it is worse than nothing. It would be much better to have an individual not be able to read and write and believe that other people have spect, than to have him read and write and be taught in compulsory 'education' that the majority need not respect the rights of the in-dividual. An illiterate man, as far as reading is concerned, is much better and a more useful citizen than the man who is illiterate in and does not believe that he and the majority need respect equal God given rights of every other individual. THE STORY: Sin Conover's trick memory, which retains facts till they're said aloud, wins a vacation for herself and her hasband, John Henry, at the awank Las Dunas resort in Asure, Calif. After assigning the Conovers a cottage, Gayner, the hotel cierk, immediately puts in a call to a Mr. Barselou.

CRICKETS chirruped like traitors every place but where he stepped. Anglin stopped for a minute to listen, hoping the bugs would shut up. They didn't, but silence hung behind him like a curtain across the grass and palm trees in the rear of the Las Dunas.

His boots were making too much noise on the flagstone path. Better take to the grass, though he was pretty sure he'd shaken them off for a little while, anyway. The wound in his shoulder had opened again. It burned with a steady flame and the blood trickled down over his hand. Odell had been smarter and faster than he looked

The seventh cottage. Anglin got dizzy suddenly. He'd probably lost too much blood and then he was tired to start with. Tired and nervous. But his shadow continued to march along the wet velvet grass.

Anglin was a squat man with skin as weather-beaten as his clothes. He braced himself momentarily against the white stucco of the porch and shook his foggy head. His calloused hand left a smear of blood when he withdrew it. The ornate door handle felt cold to his grip. He squeezed it and stepped into the small living room. Darkness here. Some light fell in a lopsided rectangle from the open door to the bedroom. Beyond that somewhere, a man was singing in an untrained voice, "Beau-

She was as jumpy as he was But whoever she was this trip she ought to be better trained than to yell like that. He told her voice, "Shut up, for the luvva Mike."

She let out a gasp as he moved into the patch of light on the carstanding still as a rock before the imitation ivory dressing table. Her face that watched him with wide green eyes in the mirror didn't swam around under his wide hat-brim. They say West Germany must strive to convince the United States of peaceful and profitable opportunities here, so that American investors in the future will put as much as $2 billion into modernizing German industries.

Difficulties imposed by Western Allied suspicion and distrust are conceded. But the industrialists regard the polarization of the world between the United States and Soviet Russia as West Germany's ultimate salvation. They point to the colossal resources of the Soviet Union and the tremendous industrial development of the United States. They ask how a shrunken, outclassed Germany in the center of Europe could ever be mad or strong enough to destroy the peace again.

In their talk, at least, Ruhr industrialists are today the most pacifist and internationally-minded of Germans. They foresee no hope of restoring Wes to economic health without Western European cooperation.

But they are tough, stubborn men on certain issues. They are fighting with a strategy verging on passive resistance against further dismantling of their plants for reparations.

They are bitter about British and French fears of cut-rate German competition in exports. They say West Germany must expor to live, and if markets are block ed off, then nothing can preven the impoverished German masses from turning to communism.

In long-range planning for West Germany's rehabilitation, they rely not only on possible foreign aid but these internal assets: The technical skill and physical endurance of the average German

German inventive genius, although it has been unprotected since the war by international patent rights.

Natural resources and increased utilization of existing industrial production capacities. They say no other Western Nation, however, has to cope with such formidable disadvantages as these: Exorbitant government payrolls and taxes resulting from a hodge-podge growth of post-war state and local administrations. Occupation costs which have exceeded 5,500,000,000 marks

($1,650,000,000) a year in West An influx of six million refugees and expellees after the war. A housing problem in bombedout cities that has kept millions living in what are worse than slums. A reparations bill that has not yet been fully added up by the victor powers. The only large sources of private capital in West Germany at present are the insurance companies. A German survey recent ly indicated they would barely have 150,000 marks (45 million) available in 1949 for investment This would not be enough keep even the coal miners' housing program going on schedule.

An early withdrawal of Allied occupation forces would contribute to relieving the financial dilemma. But in the long run, ndustrialists assert, the best solution for West Germany is to persuade Americans to buy into enterprises here.

They say such private investment should even begin before ERP aid stops in 1952 or West Germany's patched-up economy will fall apart. That's what they say. Believe
