

Oilers Hammer Four Blue Sox Pitchers for 24 to 6 Victory

Twenty-Two TL Hurlers See Action in Yesterday's Games

Texas League teams will be equal in numbers if nothing else by game time tonight. This trimming to 19 players may mean nothing in the standings but is bound to help Charley customer. He may get to know the names of those guys parading to and from the pitcher's mound.

Twenty-two men got a chance to try for strikes last night, with only one staying around the full nine innings. This was Tommy Warren, who twirled Tulsa to a 4-2 win over Beaumont.

In other games, Chris Van Cuyk received credit for his third straight shutout by blanking San Antonio, 2-0. George Brown strolled in to finish, though, after the Cat southpaw had walked the first two batsmen in the ninth. Dallas used four pitchers, as did Houston, in beating the Buffs, 8-7, in 12 innings. In another over-time game, Oklahoma City squeezed by Shreveport, 9-8, in 10 innings.

Vn Cuyk gave up four hits as the Cats stretched their lead to four and one-half games. San Antonio has yet to win from Fort Worth.

Warren chalked up his first victory of the year in the shortest game played at Tulsa this year—one hour and 31 minutes. Elby Flint's homer with Warren on base proved the winning margin. Oklahoma City was on the long man up—and came back as relief man against the same team the next afternoon. His coach, Danny Doyle, is the former Red Sox catcher, so the other clubs probably haven't a look-in.

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR. NEW YORK—An experienced baseball observer who has seen games in five minor leagues so far this spring reports that he has yet to see anything that remotely resembles a promising young pitcher.

"The majors had better start something that will develop a few or there'll be an acute shortage in a few years," says this gent who hasn't seen the right clubs, but you'll notice that most of the flingers who were considered promising and not always so young when they came to the majors this spring already are back in the minors.

As the World Series season approaches, how about Collegiate Willard Nixon of Auburn? He jossed a no-hitter and a one-hitter against Tennessee this spring, gave Georgia one hit last Friday, an unaided dribbler by the first man up—and came back as relief man against the same team the next afternoon. His coach, Danny Doyle, is the former Red Sox catcher, so the other clubs probably haven't a look-in.

INSTABLE TEMPERAMENT
Dave Woods, the Phillet racetrack tub thumper, sends word about the predicament of George Kennedy, Rigam McKinney's stable foreman.

Seems one of the McKinney horses, Blue Falcon, was unduly nervous and had a bad disposition. He was calmed by the acquisition of a goat named George (not after Kennedy) as a stall companion.

Now Blue Falcon is calm and happy. But every time the horse goes out on the track George the goat is in the yard and kicks until it returns to the stall.

CLEANING THE UP
A thoroughbred racing association handout shows that when Lucretia Borgia set the American four-mile record in 1897 it was in a race against time. A not uncommon practice in those days when a horse ran out of competition. Maybe that's what they'll do with Citation.

Pampa's Oilers made it seven straight—smacking four Abilene pitchers for 24 hits to give the Oilers a 24 to 6 decision over the Abilene Blue Sox last night at Oiler Park and to remain in a first-place tie with the Borger Gassers.

Oiler batters had a field day with all nine men appearing in the game collecting at least one hit, scoring at least one run, and batting in at least one run.

While the local club was showing its prowess at bat Lefty Roy Parker was holding the Sox to six runs on 10 hits. Parker hit three for five, which included a double; scored two runs, and batted in a run. The five foot-six inch lefthander, who was gaining his second win of the season, struck out nine Sox batters, while walking seven.

The Blue Sox jumped to a two-run lead in their half of the first inning on a double by Shortstop Len Glica and a single by Manager Art Bowland, coupled with errors by Shortstop Earl Harriman and Centerfielder Francis Rice.

However, the Oilers came right back in their half of the initial inning, scoring two runs on consecutive doubles by Harriman, Riley, and Range.

Bill Meier blanked the Oilers in the second but from the third inning on, the Oilers found Meier, O'Toole, and McCoy easy marks, scoring 22 runs in five innings.

Twelve men batted in the Oiler fourth collecting seven runs on six hits.

The Oilers then simmered to a mere one run in the fifth.

Then came the sixth and the Oiler batters paraded through the batter's box, collecting 10 runs on eight hits, with every Oiler scoring during the inning.

Earl Harriman took advantage of the Sox hurler's meager effort, collecting six hits for an official time at bat. The veteran Oiler shortstop collected two doubles, four singles, scored three runs, and batted in two runs.

Adding to the collection of hits, runs, and errors, an Abilene bear in the eighth inning fouled. Base Coach Zmitrovich being referred from the playing field by Base Umpire Tiemann.

Avon Driggers, ace southpaw hurler, will take the mound tonight for the Oilers as they close their current home stand with the Abilene Blue Sox. Driggers has a record of five wins and no losses.

The Oilers will be in Borger for a two-game series Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, in Amarillo Monday and Tuesday nights, before they return home for a nine-day home stint.

Longhorns And Aggies Meet Today

By The Associated Press
Next-to-last shots of the Southwest Conference baseball campaign will be fired today and tomorrow as Texas and Texas A and M clash in Austin with the championship in the balance.

Southern Methodist and Baylor will also play at Waco, but these games mean nothing in the title race except to establish third place.

Next Tuesday, Texas Christian and Southern Methodist ring down the curtain at Dallas, but this game also will be meaningless.

Texas can win the title by sweeping the series with the Aggies. But should A and M split with Texas, the Longhorns would have to make up a postponed game with Texas Christian. A and M can take the championship by winning both games.

Texas will be playing to preserve two of the finest winning streaks in collegiate baseball history.

First, Bobby Layne will seek his west Conference pitching victory, in four years of diamond competition, the blond youngster has never lost a league pitching decision.

Second, the Longhorns haven't been beaten at home by a conference foe since early in the 1943 season, when they lost a decision to the Aggies. The string has now been stretched to 23 games. The Longhorns, in fact, have lost but two Southwest Conference games in three seasons, and both of those have been in Waco to Baylor.

Big City Schools Open Track and Field Meet Today

DALLAS—Big city high schools shoot for their own track and field championship here today as the annual City Conference meet swings into action.

Twenty-four schools from San Antonio, Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth start preliminaries this morning and try for titles tonight.

One and possibly two state records may fall in the inaugural meet of the City Conference, latest branch of the Texas Inter-scholastic League that Others are class AA, A and B.

Big Darrow Hooper of North Side (Fort Worth) is regarded as a cinch to better the new discus mark posted by Byron Townsend of Odessa in the three-divisional meet held at Austin last week.

Poal's 2-Hit Shutout Boosts Giants Into National Lead

By The Associated Press
Ray Poal's spring success takes the heat off New York Giant officials who booed Bill Voiselle to Boston for a sore-armed pitcher, now retired.

The two-hit shutout that Poal threw against the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday boosted the Giants into the National League lead. Despite Voiselle's four straight victories, the Braves still are in the second division.

Poal, purchased from Baltimore last summer after failing to make the grade with Cleveland, now has won three of four.

A single by Enos Slaughter in the second inning and a double by Red Schoendienst in the third were the only St. Louis hits off Poal in his 8-0 win. For five innings it was a scoreless duel between Poal and Red Munger but the Giants got two in the sixth and knocked out Munger in the eighth.

Voiselle, who underwent an operation for varicose veins during the winter, blanked Chicago with four hits, 3-0, to leave Boston at the .500 mark. Bob Elliott drove in both runs with a single and an infield out. It was a fourth loss for hard luck Johnny Schmitz who also gave up only four hits. Brooklyn broke even in the west by sinking Cincinnati, 9-3, for the Reds' seventh straight loss. Preacher Roe went the route for his first win at the expense of Ken Raffensberger.

Pittsburgh squeezed ahead of St. Louis into second place in the National by a night game win over the Phillies, 5-1. Rookie Bob Chesses, making his first start in the majors, received credit for the decision although he required relief help in the seventh. Chesses helped his own cause with a triple and Frank Gustine contributed a two-run homer.

These were the only games played.

Clemens and Abbott Win On Mat Card

Ray "Big Train" Clemens and Sandow won the first fall after Referree Homer Anderson's disqualification of Clemens for unnecessary roughness. But the burly elements came back to win the second and third falls with a full cradle.

Abbott came back after losing the first fall, to win the best two out of three fall event over Yaqui Joe on last night's curtain raiser.

Both bouts last night were the first in a series of elimination bouts being held at the local arena. The winner of the tournament is slated to meet Wayne Martin, Southwest junior heavyweight champion, for his title on June 3, at the Sportatorium.

Betting 'On The Nose' Only In Preakness

BALTIMORE—Betting in tomorrow's Preakness Stakes at Pimlico will be "on the nose" only.

The classic shapes up as a four-horse affair. Citation, the Kentucky Derby winner, will go to the post a prohibitive favorite.

If win, place and show betting were allowed, a minus pool would be sure to result if Citation won. The track would have to pay off at the rate of at least 10 cents on $1.

In the running this year, including defending champion Clyde Scott of Arkansas in both hurdles, 1948 titleholder Auggie Erfurth of Rice is also on hand in these events.

The great little man of Southwest Conference track, assistance runner Jerry Thompson, against Charley Parker and a red-hot sprint relay team pace the Longhorns, while A and M has giant George Kadera in the weights, a crack mile relay combine, and top quarter-milers Art Hamden and Ray Holbrook.

Parker is rated above two former champions in the 100-yard dash: Perry Samuels of Texas (1947) and Allen Lawler of Texas (1946).

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon...

The Golden Text is: "As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly" (I Corinthians 15:49).

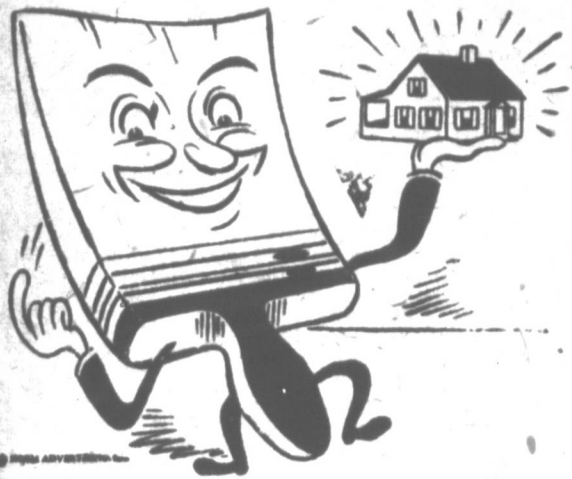

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (II Corinthians 5:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals can never know the infinite, until they throw off the old man and reach the spiritual image and likeness" (page 319).

World's Hope Lies in Its Patriots' Faith

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. One of the reasons why reforms do not stick and why periods of great moral awakening and religious revival are so often followed by periods of relapse is that reforming zeal is not shared by all and does not seriously affect every phase of life.

The influence of the reform wave, those who may not believe in the method or purpose of the reform become subdued and silent. But their attitudes or convictions are not changed. Their opposition is latent, awaiting an opportunity to find expression, and perhaps to effect a counter-reform, or revolt.

The influence of Judaism upon the moral, social and religious life of the world has been incalculably great, in itself and as the moral and spiritual background of Christianity.

The story is that of many of the people turning to idolatry and the anti-social ways and practices denounced by the prophet Amos and in that terrible indictment of "woes" pronounced by Jesus, as recorded in Matthew 23.

In the same way, one may speculate upon what might be the influence and power of such democratic countries as the United States, Canada, and Great Britain in the crisis that confront the world today, if every individual felt, lived and acted in full accordance with the professed spirit and the actual declarations of democracy, as these are expressed and acted upon by the finest and best citizens.

It would be a pretense to say that these democracies are strong and fully maintained in this sense. On the contrary, we know that they are weak, in spite of all the strength that they do possess.

There were good enough motives behind the proposal of Clare Hoffman, the congressman from Michigan, to forbid by law the publication of information which Congress should stamp "confidential."

But the remedy here offered for the flagrant violation of the right of freedom of information obtained by law under a promise of confidence was just a forlorn pass at a condition which is essential to the "liberal" form of government.

Hitler said the kraut existed for the state, and that was all. The American exists for the state to a degree fixed by a sliding scale in the current Internal Revenue Act.

Next year, when we have turned the rascals out, the military expense will make necessary a big rise in the taxes. Then an American will be asked to pay out $30 a day for Great Britain, France, Italy and other peace-loving nations, may have to work 75 days for them.

But Uncle Joe can be quite disarming, even at a distance. He is a pipe-smoking, vodka-drinking old boy whose philosophy is reasonably sound and pleasant to the eye.

Stalin can speak disarmingly, too. On more than one occasion he has confounded Americans by the optimism, mildness and general agreeability of his talks with such men as Wendell Willkie, Elliott Roosevelt and Harold Stassen.

Every nation, great and small, has unique qualities which enrich the common treasure of world culture, he said. In that sense every nation was equal to every other nation.

There are few politicians to be found among the great nations who would view small nations equal to great nations," he boasted modestly. "They sometimes are not against entering into a one-sided guaranty for little nations, but they do not conclude treaties with small nations, since they do not consider small nations their partners."

There seem to be only two explanations of the contradiction between Stalin's Uncle Joe-type speeches and the aggression and suppression of Russian policy. The first is that Stalin no longer runs the show, but is merely a figure-head. The second is that he can somehow separate the two sides of his nature with the utmost ease.

There were good enough motives behind the proposal of Clare Hoffman, the congressman from Michigan, to forbid by law the publication of information which Congress should stamp "confidential."

But the remedy here offered for the flagrant violation of the right of freedom of information obtained by law under a promise of confidence was just a forlorn pass at a condition which is essential to the "liberal" form of government.

Hitler said the kraut existed for the state, and that was all. The American exists for the state to a degree fixed by a sliding scale in the current Internal Revenue Act.

Next year, when we have turned the rascals out, the military expense will make necessary a big rise in the taxes. Then an American will be asked to pay out $30 a day for Great Britain, France, Italy and other peace-loving nations, may have to work 75 days for them.

But Uncle Joe can be quite disarming, even at a distance. He is a pipe-smoking, vodka-drinking old boy whose philosophy is reasonably sound and pleasant to the eye.

Stalin can speak disarmingly, too. On more than one occasion he has confounded Americans by the optimism, mildness and general agreeability of his talks with such men as Wendell Willkie, Elliott Roosevelt and Harold Stassen.

Every nation, great and small, has unique qualities which enrich the common treasure of world culture, he said. In that sense every nation was equal to every other nation.

There are few politicians to be found among the great nations who would view small nations equal to great nations," he boasted modestly. "They sometimes are not against entering into a one-sided guaranty for little nations, but they do not conclude treaties with small nations, since they do not consider small nations their partners."

There seem to be only two explanations of the contradiction between Stalin's Uncle Joe-type speeches and the aggression and suppression of Russian policy. The first is that Stalin no longer runs the show, but is merely a figure-head. The second is that he can somehow separate the two sides of his nature with the utmost ease.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - A House Ways and Means subcommittee today held the following: 1. Matthew Wolf, president, Wage Earners Protective Association. This is a high tariff pressure group organized in 1928. It takes in about a dozen AFL unions that have been sold on the idea that low tariff protection is the only way to save their jobs.

2. Albert Goos, grand master of the National Grange. 3. H. Wickliffe Rose, president, National Tariff League. 4. Dr. John Lee Coulter, consulting economist for the Tariff League and Coulter are the top two tariff lobbyists.

5. Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, Washington representative for the Cotton Textile Institute. 6. Albert Goos, grand master of the National Grange. 7. Dr. Robert F. Martin of the Vitrified China Association, which wants to keep out foreign-made dishes, glass, crockery and pottery.

8. Prof. R. F. Adams, University of California economist. 9. Albert Goos, grand master of the National Grange. 10. Dr. Robert F. Martin of the Vitrified China Association, which wants to keep out foreign-made dishes, glass, crockery and pottery.

As readers of this column know, I have offered the superintendent of public education in each city where sister publications of this newspaper are published $500 if he would attempt to harmonize tax-supported education with either the Ten Commandments or the Declaration of Independence.

The superintendent was to attempt to defend public education against any one of six prominent educators and American citizens - Rose Wilder Lane, Dr. V. O. Key, Isabel Paterson, Dr. Henry C. Link, Walter Linn or Attorney William C. Ring.

The condition was that the superintendent and his opponent was to answer questions in a 15-minute or 120 words so that time could be many questions back and forth from each side.

I also offered Robert G. Sproul $1000 if he would attempt to do the same thing. I offered any preacher who would undertake defending a pulpit $100 if he would attempt to harmonize tax-supported education with quotations from Jesus Christ. Not one of these educators would undertake defending tax supported education.

One preacher said he would like to have someone try to defend tax-supported education and harmonize it with the Ten Commandments or the Declaration of Independence. I wish he would get in touch with me by way of this newspaper. I am, of course, willing to bring these renowned educators across the country to discuss with an unknown party this moral question nor am I willing to pay $100 or $500 or $1000 to get some confused person to stand up and defend tax-supported education who would be believed to do it for the notoriety, or the money. I would be willing to pay the expenses of a hall and advertising and secure a person to take the moral question to the public. Education who is capable of showing the incompatibility of tax-supported education with these great moral guides. If perchance there were one who believed in the moral community who thought tax-supported education could be harmonized with these moral laws, I would ask the superintendent of education in the city to select the moral guide, and the person capable of presenting the tax-supported education side.

There is no question I can think of that needs more light thrown on than that of tax supported education. Here we have six great American citizens willing to inquire into the compatibility of tax-supported education with these moral guides. If perchance there were one who believed in the moral community who thought tax-supported education could be harmonized with these moral laws, I would ask the superintendent of education in the city to select the moral guide, and the person capable of presenting the tax-supported education side.

WASHINGTON - Millions of housewives will be disappointed if they anticipate an immediate decline in the price of colored or uncolored margarine in the event that the Senate approves the House action in repealing burdensome federal taxes on the substitute. Indeed, for a while there may be a slight increase in the cost of the controversial product.

Margarine manufacturers and retailers may cut the current cost of the precolored variety by a few cents when, as expected, the ten cents a pound duty on it is lifted. Their advisers have warned that they may give the article a "bad name" if they do not pass along the saving to the trade. But a substantial drop will depend upon many long-time and basic factors, including removal of twenty-state laws that had the manufacture and sale of colored margarine altogether.

The dairy lobbies will naturally shift their operations from Capitol Hill to those and additional state legislatures when and if they are defeated at Washington through Senate repeal and President Truman's signature.

PRICE - Basic economics of the dairy industry offer scant hope that the retail charge for butter will show any sharp decline. Contrary to general opinion, it is not so much an increased demand for a high national income which creates a shortage of the ancient table spread. Folks are consuming so much cream, whole milk, cheese and ice cream that not enough milk is shipped to the creameries.

Only $20,112 handle the uncolored stuff, and the majority of these are located in the same areas with the addition of California, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia.

They were as of January, 1945, only twenty-four qualified manufacturers of margarine, and they operated only forty-four factories. Only nine of these are large firms, the balance falling in the small business category. Until the repeal measure becomes law, these corporations will have no incentive to expand, especially as retention of so many state barriers will make it difficult for them to obtain new capital.

MARGIN - Elimination of the federal levies will not exert so great effect on the price of Gracie Reports - By GRACIE ALLEN. I see that the mayor of St. Louis is worried because of a huge, mysterious bird about the size of an airplane that has been flying over the city.

Margarine has sold historically at about twenty cents less than butter. In the pre-war days this was normally two-to-one ratio. When butter brought forty cents, its competitor sold for around twenty cents. But when controls disappeared the price of butter rose to 60 cents, and margarine followed.

So THEY SAY - If you don't start building this year, you will never have the modern Air Force by the time the Russians get "the bomb."

"Doc sure has something there!"

It's no trick at all, Doc tells me, to take out an appendix. The tough job, he says, and the important one is knowing whether it is the appendix that's causing the trouble.

Same way with cars. Anybody who calls himself a mechanic can fix cars when somebody tells him and shows him exactly what's causing poor performance.

But the fellow who can spot the complaint right off—with-out costly, time-wasting guesswork and experimenting—there's a real serviceman.
