DUESSELDORF BLASTED BY 1,000 BRITISH BOMBERS

British Forces Hit Madagascar

By ROGER D. GREENE Associated Press War Editor

Britain sent a mighty armada of perhaps 750 to 1,000 bombers against Adolf Hitler's reich before dawn today, blasting the war foundries city of Duesseldorf, while on the Soviet front the Red armies yielded four more villages in the grim battle for Stalingrad.

The British said merely that "hundreds" of RAF planes dropped a terrific weight of bombs on Duesseldorf and acknowledged the loss of 31 planes.

On the basis of average RAF losses of three to five per cent, this would indicate that the attacking force reached high into three figures. It was the 50th raid on the Rhineland city, 24 miles from Cologne and a vital center of metallurgical, machinery and chemical industries to feed the Nazi war machine.

The German high command admitted that the raiders inflicted widespread destruction. "Numerous conflagrations as well as damage to material and buildings were caused, particularly in residential quarters of Duesseldorf," a Nazi communique said. "The civilian population suffered losses."

On the Russian front, dispatches to Red Star said captured documents disclosed that Hitler had demanded the immediate capture of Stalingrad at any cost, and declared that the number of troops, machines and planes locked in the bitter struggle was greater than in any previous battle of the war.

With a full week now passed since the German high command boasted that Nazi troops had entered the outskirts of the Volga stronghold, Red Star announced: "The city continues to be inaccessible to the enemy."

Red Star said the original German battle plan called for the swift capture of Stalingrad by a decisive breakthrough through Red army lines but that Soviet counterattacks at the point of danger had frustrated the Nazi scheme.

"The Hitlerite troops crawled to Stalingrad, breathing heavily and bleeding," said Red Star, "and now are forced to resort to a siege of the city, which is even more exhausting for them."

The present danger situation remained extremely critical as Red army headquarters acknowledged that Fedor Von Bock's power drives had overrun three more villages west of Stalingrad and driven the Russians from another settlement on the western Volga steel center.

German military quarters said tank-led Nazi troops had reached the Volga both north and south of Stalingrad and further squeezed the defense area in the face of heavy Soviet counterattacks.

Soviet battlefront dispatches said blasted Nazi armor and hundreds of enemy dead littered the rain-soaked steppes, and the Russian command announced tersely: "Stubborn fighting continues."

In the Western Caucasus, 400 miles southwest of Stalingrad, savage street fighting raged in the Black sea naval base at Novorossiisk, while in the Central Caucasus the Russians reported they were mopping up Nazi forces which crossed the Terek river in a drive toward the Grozny oil fields.

On the central (Moscow) front, the Red armies continued on the offensive, reporting that they destroyed 25 Nazi blockhouses and "broke into the outskirts of a large populated place." This may have been Rzhnev, 135 miles northwest of Moscow.

Many green-clad Japanese snipers were said to have been shot out of trees by low-flying Allied planes which literally chopped off the tree-tops with the murderous fire of their machine-guns and cannons.

—BUY VICTORY BONDS— Army To Hear Case Of Texas Teacher KANSAS CITY, Kas., Sept. 11 (AP)—Arthur Goodwyn Billings, 31, University of Kansas graduate and a teacher at Texas University, must answer to the army rather than to civil authorities for his refusal to take the oath of induction, a refusal he claimed was based on conscientious objection.

Federal District Judge Richard J. Hopkins made the ruling today in a habeas corpus action brought by Billings who claimed he was not in the army and hence not subject to military law. The penalty for military disobedience could be much more severe than the penalty for violating the civil law.

New Rubber Administrator To Be Named

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he hoped by Monday to put into effect practically all the recommendations of a special committee which studied the vital rubber problems and recommended nationwide gasoline rationing.

The chief executive indicated at a press conference that it might take some time, however, to put into effect this rationing recommendation. He said it would take time to set up the machinery, which should be handled by local boards.

A fellow's neighbor, the president said, is the best judge of whether he is using his car properly. The rubber committee submitted a report to Mr. Roosevelt yesterday, recommending not only gasoline rationing but also other restrictions on private driving, such as a universal 35-mile speed limit and the limiting of average car mileage to 5,000 a year, and that for essential purposes only.

The committee also proposed complete reorganization of the government's administration of the rubber program and a large expansion in production of synthetic rubber.

Mr. Roosevelt told the press conference that he expected by Monday to have the name of a new rubber administrator who would serve within the framework of the program of the special committee, which was headed by Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board in the last world conflict.

Mr. Roosevelt preferred, however, not to use the term gas rationing. Since he said what actually was contemplated was rationing of tires and mileage by some method, such as permitting only enough gasoline for drivers to operate for a specific number of miles. There had been some talk, he said, of reading automobile meters but he said too many people would not do that.

He thought no legislation was needed, he added, to put the rubber program into operation, as proposed by the Baruch committee.

—BUY VICTORY BONDS— Fire Destroys Champlin Oil Refinery Today ENID, Okla., Sept. 11 (AP)—A fire which raged through a Champlin oil refinery today destroyed a large building and killed a man.

A company spokesman said hot water somehow got into an oil line at a loading dock at the south end of the big refinery. The oil ran over and there was an explosion. Just off the dock on a sliding stood six tank cars of gasoline. As the flames reached them they went up one after another with thundering explosions.

The explosions showered flames on the refinery proper, he explained, and a giant oil storage tank holding 200,000 barrels of oil, just to the west of the refinery.

The latter still burned on today, throwing a black pall over a scene of destruction in an area equal to about one city block.

But the heart of the big refinery had been eaten out by the flames. In ruins were a big high-pressure still, two low pressure units and one cracking unit. The company made no estimate of the total damage immediately.

All the 25 men on duty at the time of the explosion had been accounted for and there were no reports of injuries.

—BUY VICTORY BONDS— Fighting Chinese Repulse Japs CHUNGKING, Sept. 11 (AP)—Fighting continued today in the outskirts of Kinshwa and Lanchi in Chekiang province, the Chinese high command said.

The communique said the Japanese attacked Chinese positions west of Yangyang five days ago but were pushed back.

Gunn-Hinerman Tire Shop Swept By Fire

One man was burned, not seriously, when fire gutted the front end of the Gunn-Hinerman Tire company, 501 West Foster avenue, yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock.

Extent of loss has not been determined but it will probably be several thousand dollars.

Burned about the hands, legs and face was John L. Sullivan, driver for M. A. Graham, Texaco Wholesale agent, who was unloading gasoline from a truck when the explosion and fire occurred. Sullivan, who was standing beside the truck, started to run, his clothing on fire, but Charlie Gunn manager of the station, tackled him from behind, rolled him in the dirt and extinguished the flames. Gunn suffered minor burns about his hands and arms. Sullivan was able to be taken to his home following emergency treatment. The truck was badly damaged and tires scorched.

Firemen did good work in holding the fire to the front of the building, saving a large stock of new tires and electrical appliances and other stock in the main portion of the building.

The front of the building, in which was located the tire recapping equipment, was completely destroyed as was the roof over the driveways. Many re-capped tires were also burned.

Chief Ben White said today that the fire probably started when gasoline being run into underground storage tanks "congealed" because of a vent choking. The gasoline then flowed over the station floor while fumes entered the re-capping room where they ignited, causing the explosion and fire.

The fire raged through the re-capping room and over the wide driveways where the gasoline pumps were located. Clouds of smoke hung over the building and the street, stopping all traffic. Rafter beams in the tin ceiling over the driveways and the tar roof ignited and firemen had to tear large blocks of tin loose and also chop holes in the roof before the blaze could be brought under control.

The firemen were aided by a strong south wind which kept the smoke rolling to the north while they poured water behind the flames, keeping them from reaching the main portion of the building.

The fire was the worst of the year to date.

—BUY VICTORY BONDS— Anti-Inflation Action Expected In Record Time WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Administration leaders set the stage today for prompt congressional action of President Roosevelt's demands for legislation curbing rising wages, farm prices and profits.

Amendments to the existing price control act still were in the drafting stage but leaders expressed hope of meeting the Oct. 1 deadline—the date when the president said he would take the necessary action himself if congress fails to do so.

Senator Brown (D-Mich) already has set his goal three days of hearings which would enable the senate banking committee to submit legislation for action late next week.

Republican clamor for quick adoption of the president's anti-inflation proposals continued in the house with some representatives opposing any hearings at all.

Before the senate recessed for the week-end, Brown obtained unanimous consent yesterday to introduce the bill in time to begin hearings Monday. Chairman Steagall (D-Ala.) of the house banking committee, will offer the legislation in that branch.

Vital Information

Revision of federal price controls over service industries and trades—ranging from domestic laundering to stevedoring—has been announced by OPA. In revising the recently issued consumer service regulation (No. 155), OPA has set up 61 major groups of services, embracing most of those important to the cost of living, to which the regulation is specifically applicable.

Effective August 19, the new regulation drops the word "consumer" from its title and becomes simply "services." Coverage is extended to include wholesale services and commercial and industrial consumers as well as ultimate consumers. Most of the services specifically exempted from the revised schedule will come under GMPR.

Restrictions are removed from the sale or delivery of tea by wholesalers, jobbers, or any other wholesale receivers, who, on March 27, had large inventories. Removal is made by amendment No. 2 to Conservation Order M-III, issued by the director of general operations.

America desperately needs a large number of vital materials essential to victory. Our war production factories can't do the job unaided. They must have unlimited quantities.

Strike Halts War Project At Dallas

DALLAS, Sept. 11 (AP)—The first major strike on a Dallas war project since last Dec. 7, was underway today, with 350 carpenters declining to work pending settlement of a jurisdictional dispute with roofers over which group should lay asbestos shingles.

Approximately 1,150 other workers were still on the job yesterday. H. S. Koepeke, comptroller of the Rife Construction company, general contractor, said, but the walk-out had slowed up construction.

The strike, Koepeke added, followed a contention by local 198, Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, that its members and not roofing union members should lay the asphalt strip shingles on the roofs of the transport command post's buildings.

No comment was forthcoming from American Federation of Labor representatives pending a report of the union's side from B. M. Cooper, secretary of the carpenters' union.

Coke Opposed To Rationing Of Gasoline

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 11 (AP)—Faced with what they characterize as disruption of the state's finances and economy because of the impending threat of gasoline rationing, Texas officials led by Governor Coke Stevenson today renewed their fight against the proposal.

Governor Coke Stevenson grimly jumped into the fray yesterday with the flat statement: "I am still against it. It is not necessary in Texas, because of a lack of transportation facilities, and it won't save rubber. Gasoline bootleggers will supply the trade and the result will be that the state and federal government will lose the revenue."

Standing solidly back of the governor was an unbroken front of oil industry leaders and state and county officials who could not see where the money would come from to replace tax revenues lost as a result of rationing.

It has been estimated that $95,000,000 in local, state and federal taxes are derived from the oil industry in Texas, and that the combined industry pays annual wages and salaries of approximately $272,000,000, plus $128,000,000 in lease and royalty money to land owners, $160,000,000 in purchase of equipment and supplies, and $95,000,000.

First Baptist Church Opens New Year With Large Attendance

With interest and attendance reaching a new high at all services, the First Baptist church is entering its new church year with the greatest spirit of optimism. Church leaders report. Every phase of the church life is experiencing a definite upswing under the leadership of Pastor E. Douglas Carver, H. Paul Briggs, associate pastor and director of music and education, said today.

It was stated that in the days of stress and strain of war, people have a right to expect the church to minister to them as never before, and to meet the needs of the people the First Baptist church would endeavor to offer the best in sermon and song.

"We shall have no stone unturned in an effort to offer to our congregations the best possible musical program as well as the best in everything," Mr. Briggs said, and promised that next Sunday would be no exception. The choir will offer at the morning service an original arrangement of "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah," featuring a girls' trio as well as solo parts by Don Edgerton and Mrs. R. E. Gatlin. The offertory will be a violin solo, "The Lost Chord" by Emory 2115 accompanied by Mrs. Joe O'Grady. "Giving God the Left-Overs" will be the sermon subject of the Rev. Carver when he speaks at the 10:50 a. m. service, which will be broadcast over KPDN.

The theme of the evening message will be "God Is Able." The evening service is scheduled to begin at 8:15 with a community hymn-singing and special music by the choir. The evening services are proving very popular with unusually large crowds attending. It was reported.

"Substance" To Be Subject Of Sermon

"Substance" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 13.

The Golden Text is: "Thy name, O Lord, endureth forever; and Thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations." (Psalms 135:13.)

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: Thou maintainest my lot."

The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a good heritage." (Psalms 16:5, 6.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "As God is substance and man is the divine image and likeness, man should wish for, and in reality has, only the substance of good, the substance of Spirit, not matter." Sunday School Lesson
LATENT CAPACITY FOR GREAT DEEDS IS HOPEFUL FACT CONCERNING MAN
Text: Genesis 44:18-34
By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

In this lesson we reach one of the highlights in the story of Joseph. Joseph, unknown to his brethren, inquired of them whether there were others in the family, and found that there was a younger brother, Benjamin, who had not come down to Egypt with them in their quest of food. He told them that if they wished further food they must bring Benjamin with them the next time. They sought in every way to avoid this, referring to the loss of Joseph himself and saying that the further loss of Benjamin would break their father's heart. Joseph, however, was insistent, and the famine was so keen that in spite of Jacob's unwillingness to let Benjamin go there was no other way. Then came the incident which has to do with the climax of the story. When the brothers had secured their grain and were starting for home Joseph had a silver cup hidden in Benjamin's sack. When the brothers had gone a little way on their journey they were overtaken and the cup was found there where Joseph had planted it. It was, of course, a very serious situation. And now we come to our lesson. Joseph, who originally had suggested selling his grain to the Egyptians, now came to the front. Assuring Joseph that the loss of Benjamin would kill his father, he assured that he should be taken as a substitute and punished for the alleged theft, and that Benjamin should be allowed to go home.

The incident quickens many reflections, the most important of which is upon the latent capacity for goodness and nobility that is in human nature, exemplified quite often in men whose lives have been by no means free from serious fault but who rise to heights of courage and sacrifice in a crisis. Judah's life was far from blameless, as one may see by reading Genesis 38, almost all of which gives details that are not much to his credit.

This latent capacity for good and greatness is a hopeful fact concerning humanity. If it were not true, we might well be discouraged. We are finding it exemplified today in the crisis of American life when men, whose lives, like that of Judah, have not always been altogether commendable, are showing themselves capable of great decisions and of corresponding courage and nobility of character. It is regrettable that so often it requires some great crisis, like famine or earthquake or a nation's peril, to bring out this latent and triumphant goodness. Perhaps the greatest task for the Christian Church is so to influence men in times of prosperity and peace that all that best in them may find expression without the need of some extreme situation to reveal it.

If we could see in times of peace the readiness of most men to serve and sacrifice for their country we should see America a power in action free from the evils and injustices that have so greatly marred all that is so fine even in our own good land.

In the next lesson we shall come to the climax of the story as the innocence of Benjamin is established and Joseph reveals himself to his brethren, at the same time giving them full forgiveness for the wrong that they had done him.

KATE SMITH says: "IT'S THE BEST CALUMET BUY EVER! SO... GET A CAN TODAY AND MIX UP A BATCH OF PIPING-HOT CALUMET CORN BREAD FOR DINNER TONIGHT"

CALUMET CORN BREAD

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
2/3 teaspoon Calumet Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar

1 cup corn meal
2 eggs, well beaten
1 1/4 cups milk
4 tablespoons melted butter
or other shortening

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. (Notice what a small amount of baking powder you need with Calumet.) Add corn meal and mix well. Combine eggs, milk, and shortening; add to dry ingredients, mixing well. Turn into greased 9-inch layer pan or 8x8x2-inch pan; bake in hot oven (425° F.) 40 minutes, or until done. It will come out light, high, and handsome—protected all through the baking by Calumet's famous "double action."

Cut in wedge-shaped or square pieces. Or bake in greased bread-pan. Or corn-ear pans in hot oven (425° F.) 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Makes 3 dozen short corn sticks. (All measurements are level.)

Gray County Schools Begin Fall Semester

Effects of the war have been mirrored in the list of teachers of Gray county schools, which have opened their 1942-43 session.

No complete list of the teachers in all the county schools is available due to some changes pending in some of the schools, where faculties are not complete.

Total enrollment is also not known. Last year enrollment in all county schools, including the independent districts of Alameda, McLean, and LeFors, was 2,495. This of course, does not include the Pampa district.

An incomplete list of teachers in the county schools:

Back, W. E. Ballard, principal; Mrs. W. E. Ballard, Farrington, Mrs. Francis B. Walls; Grandview, Mrs. Grace Meador, principal, Mrs. Susie Mae Meador Grayson, Miss Mary Osborn; Hopkins, Huelyn Laycock, principal, Made Sirman, Mrs. B. R. Nuckols, Margaret Evans, Ruby Johnson; Webb, Floyd N. Smith, principal, Mrs. Evelyn Martin Varley, Mrs. Edward Gething.

The county board of trustees is scheduled to hold a meeting the latter part of this month. H. H. Keahey of White Deer is chairman of the board. Members are Edward Gething, Laketon, J. B. Hembree, McLean; C. O. Gilbert, Pampa; Jack Stephens, Groom.

Rev. Sumrall Announces Topics Of Sunday Sermons

"Going to the Multitudes" will be the sermon subject of the Rev. T. D. Sumrall at the Central Baptist church next Sunday at 11 o'clock.

"The next word for the Christian in the Bible is the word 'Go'. They are messengers of God, entrusted with His message to a lost world," Rev. Sumrall stated. "The church is admonished to get to these multitudes with the message of salvation. Jesus taught that it is an awful thing to be lost. 'What is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?'"

Next week, beginning Monday night, will be a special week of services each night at 7:30. Special emphasis for each night of the week will be given for revising the church roll and enlisting inactive members. Rev. Sumrall will bring brief messages to the members of the church. Carl E. Nance will direct the music with Mrs. Nance at the piano. The public is invited to attend these services each evening next week.

Reserves In Air Corps To Organize Here

All members of the army air force enlisted reserve in Pampa and Gray county who have passed the aviation cadet examination and are awaiting appointment, are asked to attend a special meeting Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the chamber of commerce rooms at the city hall.

Purpose of the meeting, according to Sgt. R. D. Short, local army recruiting officer, is to form an organization of local men who are waiting a call to active duty in the flying forces.

The club, if organized, will be the first of its kind in the nation, Short said. Monday night's meeting has been called at the suggestion of several men in Pampa, who passed the aviation cadet examination several months ago but who have not been called yet due to lack of training facilities in the army air corp.

Several approached Short with reference to organizing a "We're Ready To Go Club."

"These men are all ready and anxious to do something and their idea has been approved by the West Texas district recruiting office at Lubbock," Short said. "Some local men were sworn into the air corps over four months ago."

Short predicted that there are a large number of air force reserve members in Gray county. The exact number can't be determined without a complete check of records at the Lubbock office, and officials there are so busy signing up new volunteers for the air corps that they can't find time to check the records.

Each man eligible to attend the meeting is asked to bring a suggestion for a typical Panhandle name for the organization.

The navy air corps used a Panhandle-wide club in the form of the Flying Plainsmen a short time ago, but Short believes that Pampa and Gray county can have an army air corps unit of its own.

Hemphill Family Moves To Houston

CANADIAN, Sept. 11—Mrs. Orrin J. Cross and Orrin Lee left Thursday morning to motor to Houston, Texas, where they will reside for the duration of the war.

First Sergeant Orrin J. Gross is an instructor in the coast artillery at Camp Wallace, about half way between Galveston and Houston, and expects to be retained there for the duration.

Orrin Lee will be there to enter school in Houston next Monday. Mrs. Cross has been employed for several years in the office of the Hemphill county clerk, Hiram Park.

First Sergeant Cross enlisted in U. S. service in February, 1942. He had previously served three years in the U. S. navy, years 1924-1927, and was stationed at Fort Kamehameha, Honolulu, Hawaii.

News Advertisement Praised By Salvage Committee Chairman

An advertisement which appeared in The Pampa News on August 26 and again on August 31 in the interest of the scrap metal campaign is the subject of a bulletin issued to the 190 salvage committees in Texas by Lewis C. Huff, assistant executive secretary, Texas Salvage committee, War Production board, from the regional office at Dallas.

Mr. Huff wrote the 190 committees: "To all salvage committee chairmen; subject, national scrap program.—The Pampa News of Pampa, Texas, has been kind enough to supply us with a sufficient quantity of the enclosed leaf sheet to provide one for each committee chairman. This page was run in connection with the scrap program in Pampa. I recommend it heartily for your study and negotiation. If it impresses you as it did me, you may even want to post it in your office."

In a letter to E. B. Tracey, advertising manager of The Pampa News, Secretary Huff wrote: "I am deeply grateful to you for the reprints of your yesterday, today, and tomorrow feature that you sent me. You will find enclosed a copy of the bulletin that I am sending to some 190 salvage committee chairmen today. I still feel that if The Pampa News could reach every home in the United States with the handling you fellows are giving our salvage program there wouldn't be so many of our steel making furnaces wondering today whether they would have enough scrap to operate on tomorrow."

The advertisement, of which 250 copies were sent to Secretary Huff, was written and designed by Brownwood Emerson, Pampa News reporter.

Must We Have Inflation? Is inflation inevitable? Undoubtedly. Since we have it already, it would seem much too late to avoid having it.

The cost of living for July, as computed by the National Industrial Conference board, was up almost 10 per cent above July of 1941.

The price of manufactured goods, reported by the Alexander Hamilton Institute, last March already was up 24 per cent above August of 1939.

All of that, and much more of similar purport, denotes inflation just like the rising mercury in a thermometer indicates warmth.

But as yet inflation has not become distressing. There are those who make a convincing argument that much of the inflation thus far is not damaging, provided the brakes are put on promptly.

As a result of the depression, prices had fallen so low that the administration deliberately devalued money, in an effort to force inflation.

Morever, realistic economists argue that in time of war some measure of inflation is inevitable, and that we should worry only if inflation gets out from under control and begins to feed upon itself.

It is not the fact that some inflation could not be avoided or even the fact that considerable inflation has taken place, that should trouble us now.

The danger, if effective permanent measures are not taken soon enough, is that inflation will go on in a spiral until our economy is upset.

Not only the industrial and commercial economy. The menace is equally to the household and personal economies of every family.

If such a thing happens, the poor will suffer more than the wealthy. In inflation, wages always lag behind prices and the closer a family comes to a hand-to-mouth existence, the less it can afford to have prices always going up faster than income.

Also, the poorer a family, the closer it must figure its savings against emergencies, and the harder it is hit when the emergencies arrive and disclose that, because of inflation, the savings have become inadequate to buy what they were intended to buy.

WAR AND THE LAW

The American Bar Association's 65th annual meeting was held in Detroit under conditions at home and abroad, that profoundly affected its deliberations.

War always strains the law. A maxim of the ancient Romans held that "amidst arms, the laws are silent." That is not to be taken too literally.

Certain laws have to be suspended in the interest of victory. The "silence" of all laws would produce despotism. That is not necessary in this country and we know of no one who desires it.

Yet there are dangers to American law, against which not only the American Bar association but also the American people must be on guard.

One of these is the rapid growth of "administrative law" thru the creation of federal agencies empowered to make and enforce rules and regulations having the force of law.

Another danger is that under war pressure an attempt may be made further to limit the powers of the states in the Detroit and regulations concerning matters which the Constitution is supposed to have reserved to the states and their political subdivisions.

The third great threat is that, if the war is prolonged, attempts will be made at legislation affecting civil rights, which will exceed the country's needs and will live on to plague it in years to come.

"Where law ends," said William Pitt, "tyranny begins."

We are engaged in a life and death struggle with leaders in Europe and Asia, who are the sole embodiment of law for their peoples. There are governments of men. Our own has been described as a government of laws. That is the difference between tyranny and free government, which guarantees equality to all before the law.

Wars are fought not only to win but also to survive. We are fighting to preserve the American way of life, which rests squarely on the Constitution and the laws enacted thereunder. The protection of those laws is as vital as the protection of our shores.

RUBBER NOW!

Any and All Methods for Synthetics Needed (Los Angeles Examiner)

The assertion has been made, in discussions of the rubber crisis, that Americans know how to make synthetic rubber by six different methods, and are not making it by any of them.

"While we spend our time arguing which method is best," remarks Professor Frederic G. Genzmer of Lafayette College, "our rubber shortage becomes more and more acute."

"Most of this delay is as needless as it is fruitless."

This commentator further declares, in a letter to the press, that no one "no chemist, chemical engineer, industrialist, priorities expert or Senator"—can at this time "select the one best process" for the production of synthetic rubber.

"All of the known processes are too new," he continues.

"But any of them will produce a usable and an urgently needed product."

Common Ground

"I speak the plain-word primer. I give the sign of democracy. By God! I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms."

A LABOR UNIONIST JUSTIFIES FORCE FOR LABOR UNIONS

A defender of the New Deal and labor unions quotes General Douglas MacArthur and Dianysius, a philosopher before Christ's time, in an attempt to justify labor unions in using force.

He quotes Dianysius as saying, "It is a law of nature, common to all mankind, which time shall neither annul nor destroy, that those that have the greater strength and power shall bear rule over those who have less."

So modern labor unions are going back 2000 years when slavery was common practice to justify the use of force in exploiting their fellowman.

If this quotation means anything, it means that this labor unionist is entirely repudiating the Constitution of the United States, the Sermon on the Mount and such humanists as Lincoln who said: "No man is good enough to govern another man without that other's consent."

But modern labor unionists disregard the rule that all men should be equally free. They have no law but force.

This same defender of labor unions attempts to justify labor unions using force because he says this country was born by force. Certainly it was, but the force was not to exploit anybody, not to make one man master over another, as labor unions do when they use the force of threats and boycotts to limit apprentices and prevent men from having the right to work.

But force in bringing this government into being was used to bring about equality of rights, to produce wealth on the same terms as anyone else had a right to produce wealth. This right, the labor unions absolutely deny to those they keep from joining or tell how they should work when they are permitted to join. They are willing to use force to prevent other people from having the equal right to pursue happiness on the same terms.

This kind of force is entirely different from the force used to free oneself from a tyrannical government or to defend oneself from being exploited, or to prevent another from violating a contract he had voluntarily agreed to. Force in these cases is justified, but never force as used by labor unions to prevent others from becoming equally free.

Employer Not Exploiting When Outbidding Other Employers

Oh, yes, I hear the defender of labor unions contend that the employer is exploiting the worker, and, therefore, force is necessary. The employer cannot for long exploit any worker when this worker is free, if he has the ability, to take the place of the employer by borrowing the capital, hiring men, renting the land and producing the same thing that the employer is producing.

Nor does the fact that the employer has tools harm the worker. The worker is better off because the employer has denied himself in order to have tools and, thus, is in a position to reward the worker more for his labor than he could get if the employer did not have these tools.

Why Labor Unionists Refuse to Discuss Issues

Few labor unionists will publicly discuss the practices of labor unions. The reason most of them will not publicly discuss the practices of labor unions is that they do exactly as this proponent of labor unions has done—convict themselves of their belief that they have a right to use force to control weaker workers, or contradict themselves and thus prove their errors.

The thing that made labor unions grow originally was a combination of the most efficient and skilled workers preventing the unskilled workers from having the right to learn the trades. The very foundation of labor unions is using force in exploiting their fellowman.

And yet this same defender of labor unions has the unadulterated nerve to prattle about labor unions working for the brotherhood of man.

Yes, that is the reason smart labor unionists will never discuss, either in newspaper columns or in public debate, where their absurdities or wickedness can be pointed out, the method by which labor unions can benefit all the workers. They dare not for the simple reason that they convict themselves of stupidity or a desire to exploit the weak.

"Why must we do without rubber when we know several ways to make it?"

Professor Genzmer suggests that we proceed at once to "utilize all reasonably good methods" and have sufficient synthetic rubber for essential requirements now.

Finding an analogy in the widespread development of our chemical industries out of the emergency problems of the previous World War, Professor Genzmer argues that immediate emergency war production of synthetic rubber by "diverse processes" will probably result in several compounds, each having "its particular virtue, especially desirable for certain needs."

Thus "the world's largest user of rubber will be dependent upon no one for a source of supply" and after the war "will be the proper time to argue about the one best process for producing the synthetic rubber which we shall have in abundance."

This same student of the problem also warns that we are "placing too much emphasis upon the use of essential materials to build rubber-producing factories."

"Certainly," he says with evident truth, "Germany is making its tremendous war effort with less steel, less aluminum, and with far less copper than are available to us."

"Perhaps we must accustom ourselves to utilizing critical materials for the production of the even more critical rubber."

"Even after making all due allowance for shortages of raw materials, can anybody name one material more critical than rubber?"

In the common language of the day, it may be said that Professor Genzmer "has got something there."

It may be, as Professor Genzmer has said, that "no one"—Not even the President's commission—can infallibly select the "one best process."

In that event, Professor Genzmer's idea may prove to be the quickest and surest solution of known methods to work—quickly—and make the entire rubber-famine situation—put all the rubber we so vitally need.

TEST OF STRENGTH

HAMBURGER: The hint from Washington that we may soon have meatless days is a portent of far sadder things than for Americans before the war is won.

Obviously an overseas army of three to five million plus the loss through enemy submarine and land action would deplete our bulging granaries. But in a German retreat every crumb of victuals in occupied France would be stopped. We should be obliged to feed the A. E. F. and scarce in population in the liberated areas. Already Belgian children are fainting from hunger in classrooms; French youngsters cannot work more than three hours because of malnutrition; Dutch and Norwegians are equally famished.

Should they want refugees again their plight would be worse. Yet confidential reports received by agricultural experts show that the U. S. army draft is emptying our fields and barns. In the remote areas the farmers' wives and daughters now are milking the herds for the first time in years. The British demand for the little folks' drink in sprayed powder form is taxing dairy facilities. But the steak and roast shortage in the cities is complicating the problem. It is not generally known that steer beef is so small.

NIEMOELLER: Don't expect the Germans to revolt tomorrow—especially as their armies are being successful in the Caucasus. But at last those within the Reich who hate the Nazi regime are finding a group around which they can rally, according to trustworthy reports that reach New York by "the underground." This nucleus of later insurrection is the clergy, both Protestant and Catholic, and the reason is extremely significant.

The Gestapo and the Schutz Staffeln have ruthlessly stamped out the old liberal Socialists, trade unions, intellectual societies, Communist cells, and similar potential centers of uprisings. Those members not already slain or herded in concentration camps are so closely watched that they cannot act. But the terrible new casualty lists from the Russian front have sent be-traved relatives to seek consolation from their spiritual advisers. Even Himmler's police cannot interfere with this office of the church nor do they dare to imprison the ministers.

Tiny groups, brought together by a common sorrow, are kinder for a future flame. They are even encouraged by conservative army elements to look to their padres for political leadership. When Muenster was bombed the Nazis requisitioned all convents and monasteries in the area. Instead of moving the homeless townsfolk into the buildings, several filled them with U. S. troops dispatched to the ruined city to maintain order. The bishop was so outraged that he sent a written protest directly to Hitler. Later his message was distributed by the chain letter method, each person writing several copies and circulating them among friends.

The old professional military set and the religious people look on Pastor Niemoeller, the first World War naval hero, as the man who can save them from a vindictive peace treaty after the Allies have

War's First Year Shows Increase In Violent Crime

(Peter Edson is on vacation, during which time his column is being written by Robert Ruark.)

By ROBERT RUARK Pampa News Washington Correspondent

The Federal Bureau of Investigation's semi-annual crime report, just out, confirms what was generally suspected—that America's war year would show a decided lift in crime, particularly of a violent nature.

Rapes, nearly always associated with shifting populations, overcrowding and acute national excitement, have jumped 9.9 per cent over the same period for 1941. Negligent manslaughters are up 9.4 per cent; robbery, aggravated assaults and larcenies have swelled correspondingly.

Only three decreases were noted in the FBI survey—burglary, murder and auto theft—and those slumps were minute. The national tendency to murder is down only 0.2 per cent, for instance, and car theft has dropped 1.6 per cent.

War, while often removing the economic stimulus, substitutes a mass recklessness that is a vicious compensation. The lid is off, the sky's the limit, the world is going to hell in a bucket—a normal fear of consequences is erased.

Of special significance is the fact that America's youth continues to predominate in frequency of arrests. For the first half of 1942, the ages, 19, 18 and 21, in that order, appeared most frequently in 305,570 arrest cards examined by FBI. More than 50 per cent of all crimes against property were committed by offenders less than 25 years old. The increase over 1941 for arrested minors is 1.3 per cent.

Youths under 25 represented 57 per cent of robbery charges; 65 per cent of burglary charges, and 76.6 per cent of auto theft charges. Arrests of women also had increased over last year—from 9.1 to 10.2 per cent.

IMMATURE BRAIN INFLAMED

Sociologists can dip down into their whiskers and offer up any amount of explanations for the leap in juvenile crime participation during wartime, but the main facts seem to be these:

1. The immature brain is inflamed by ceaseless stories of violence. Peacetime disapproval of killing is removed and replaced by a national attitude of glorification. Press, radio and moving pictures pander endlessly to brutality in the name of war. The Commandos, lionized for their no-holds-barred attacks on the enemy, helplessly and unwittingly could be responsible for sending the not-too-bright youngster down a criminal path.

2. War, which takes the father from the home and often sends the mother to a factory or office, de-stroys to a large extent, very vital parental control. With father in the army and mother working overtime at Lockheed, Junior is infinitely more susceptible to evil ways.

3. It's a dumb kid in his teens now who can't go out and knock off a fat-paying job for himself. The government is choked with teen-age employes who are making more money than their employed father could command in less busy days. Washington is full of girl clerks and stenographers who are barely out of the pig-tail stage...

TOO MUCH MONEY

The nation's demand for manpower, no matter how young or crude, adds up to the fact that too many youngsters are quitting school to go to work; too many are making more money than is good for them; too many farm kids are leaving the hayrick and swarming to briches-busting cities where social maladjustment is certain—and they are all subject to hysteria and temptation they normally wouldn't encounter in peacetime.

The answer is simple: more crime now, and probably successive increases as the nation becomes more deeply mired in war. Crime goes hand in hand with overcrowding, abnormal excitement, a superfluity of cash, national unrest, disrupted homes and huge transient populations.

It is almost a sure-fire bet that FBI's next report, for the last half of 1942, will show a corresponding increase in practically all phases of lawbreaking with the possible exception of tire-stealing.

Not even a young Capone would be chump enough to take a chance with somebody else's hot tires.

Today's War Analysis

By DeWITT MACKENZIE Wide World War Analyst

The French island of Madagascar lies in such an out-of-the-way spot off the southeast coast of Africa that the gunfire from the big British attack there strikes faintly on the ears of the western world, but actually this operation for the purpose of gaining full control is a vital contribution towards meeting Hitler's drive against the Caucasus and Middle East.

Madagascar is the guardian of one of the world's greatest ocean turnpikes—a broad highway which swings around the southern tip of Africa and not only feeds the strategic territory stretching from Egypt clear across to India but connects with Russia's lifeline to the Persian Gulf. With the Mediterranean closed to normal traffic, convoys or troops and supplies from Britain, the United States and other western hemisphere countries depend largely on this long haul.

Madagascar in the hands of the enemy might mean total severance of this route. Thus the giant island, fourth largest in the world, carries on its lumpy shoulders a very precious part of the Allied fortunes.

Because of the danger that Madagascar might fall into the hands of the Japanese, Britain last May occupied some strategic positions, but left most of the island in the hands of the French. This was an unsatisfactory situation, however, and one which the Japs have plotted constantly to circumvent.

For this reason it became necessary for the Allies to assume full control of the island, and this accounts for the present British assault, which is reported to be proceeding satisfactorily. As in the case of the expedition in May, Britain has proceeded with the full momentum of the United States government.

The Vichy government of course is protesting vigorously at what it calls a wholly unwarranted assault. However, there probably are few Frenchmen who won't understand the full significance of the Allied move and heartily approve. They will recognize that the Allies are fighting for France as well as themselves. Moreover, America and Britain have made it wholly clear that Madagascar is to be handed back to France after the war.

The time may come when this long route around the Cape will cease to be essential, for we are in the process of establishing an air route across Africa to the Middle East. One of the great pioneering feats of history is being carried out by American engineers who are heaving airports out of the jungles thru the heart of the Dark Continent.

Already air transport is operating over this new territory. One of these days great numbers of men and vast quantities of material will be moved by plane, but that something of the future. Meantime the stern reality is that ocean transport is the backbone of Allied operations. That's why we must control the seas.

It would have been an act of criminal folly to have disregarded Madagascar. In view of the present critical situation, there is India in a state of rebellion, with the danger that the Japanese may take advantage of the position and invade the country, Hitler is throwing everything he has into his effort to break through into the Middle East and join forces with the Japs, Rommel seeks an opportunity to strike again to conquer Egypt and deprive Britain of control of the whole Eastern Mediterranean.

All these areas are being supplied in large part by ships which in a manner of speaking have to dip their ensigns to Madagascar as they pass by.

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11—Jane Withers' fan mail has tripled since she completed her recent personal appearance tour. Seems that many people still have been thinking of her as a Wonder Tot, or maybe as a gangling, adolescent sprout. Having discovered with their own eyes that Jane is a big girl now, they have been writing in to express their surprise and approbation along with a wish that she'd play some romantic roles.

In a bathing suit, Miss Withers stands 5 feet, 6 inches, and reveals the figure of a youngster who has had lots of swimming and vitamins. The movie star and her thought of molding her into a slinky glamorist, and she never has been allowed to diet. As a partial consequence, in some nine years of movie work, she never has caused a moment's production delay through tardiness, temperament or illness. She was 16 years old last April 12.

YOUNG VETERAN

Now under contract to Republic, Miss Withers is starring in her 31st picture and her first real musical. She sings, dances, gets kissed, and appears in a bathing suit. Her boyfriend joins the army and she stages a show at the camp, but in spite of the latter details "Johnny Doughboy" is an inappropriate title.

She plays a contrasting dual role as a movie star and a farm girl. The latter wins a trip to Hollywood thru an "Ann Withers" fan club contest to find the girl who looks most like their idol. She arrives to discover that her celebrated double has gone on strike for grown-up, sophisticated roles. The studio is in an uproar, with an unfinished picture on its hands, and the visitor is persuaded to take the star's place in the remaining scenes. Being a modest and demure youngster, she puts more sincerity and appeal into the role than the spoiled actress had been doing.

Meanwhile the smooty ingenue, Ann Withers, has been nourishing a crush on a much older playright (Henry Wilcox), and to prove her new-found worldliness she follows him to a mountain cabin. The trust is a fizzle but the romantic upstart does get to warble a torch song. (I forgot to mention that Jane Withers' voice now is in the contralto register.)

TELLS HERSELF OFF

Eventually the two girls meet, and there's an amusing sequence in which Miss Withers, as the disillusioned fan, gives Miss Withers, the actress, a face-to-face bawling out for being conceited and stupid.

A flock of movie kids—many of them washups such as Baby Sandy, Bobby Breen and some of the ex-Ours Gangsters—appear in the picture and are identified by their own names.

Between stints of entertaining from theater stages during her tour, Jane sold more than a million dollars worth of war bonds and stamps. Appeared at some USO recreation centers, too. She may make another such trip this fall, and probably later will be headlined in a variety show. There has been some talk, too, of a part in a Shubert musical.

In other expenses. The staggering total in this state alone—which produces 23 per cent of the nation's oil—is $750,000,000. Just what percentage of this private and public income would be lost depends upon how drastic rationing would be in Texas.

The Texas Democratic party is speaking for the state administration this week when it adopted a tartly-worded platform plank saying that the "purported necessity" for gasoline rationing in this area "apparently exists in the minds of certain misguided bureau chiefs in Washington and in the minds of those who believe Texans should be rationed on gasoline simply because rationing has been imposed in the East due to lack of transportation facilities."

Whether there could be some sort of a compromise between this barbed assertion and the report of the Baruch committee, approved categorically by President Roosevelt, that nationwide rationing and other rigid civilian motoring restrictions were necessary to prevent a dangerous rubber shortage from producing "both a military and civilian collapse," was doubtful.

The state's dominant party declared that if Texans' tires are needed, "then we say that it would be far better to take the rubber that is needed and provide for its use by the military."

The Baruch committee, on the other hand, declared that the question resolved itself into a choice between "discomfort or defeat."

A recent meeting of state and county officials here laid the ground-work for Texas' fight against rationing on the theory that it was necessary to conserve rubber by taking the stand that:

"To attempt to impose gasoline rationing on the state is unnecessary to conserve the supply of rubber now on vehicles operating over the highways is subject to critical analysis. It is believed that the indiscriminate curtailment of motor vehicle usage on this theory might waste more rubber than it would conserve, it being a recognized fact that tires used intelligently and prudently will give better service than tires which are improperly stored on being taken out of use."

"Texans are willing to make any necessary sacrifice, and their lives and fortunes are pledged to win the war. But there can, and should be, a calm and intelligent analysis of any proposal as far-reaching as gasoline rationing."

Embanja lies 120 miles southwest of the big Diego Suarez naval base on the northern end of the island, which the British captured last May. Majunga is 200 miles farther down the coast, and Morondava another 370 miles south.

Churchill said little opposition was encountered and that the operation aimed at eliminating possible bases for Axis submarines preying on Allied supply lines to India and the Middle East—"was carried out precisely according to plan."

By HENRY CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Sept. 11 (AP)—The army organ Red Star said today captured documents showed that Adolf Hitler demanded the immediate occupation of Stalingrad at any cost and the number of men, machines and planes engaged was greater than in any previous battle of the war, but the Volga stronghold "continues to be inaccessible to the enemy."

The mid-day communique announced that German automatic rifle men infiltrated western defenses of Stalingrad where Nazi shock troops won three more outlying villages yesterday, but more than 100 of the riflemen were slain.

The fall to the Axis of another settlement southwest of the Volga river industrial center was recorded today, for the first time in several days, fighting was reported south of Stalingrad.

Red Star exhorted the troops: "Fight to the last, but keep Stalingrad."

The demand that the Volga river bridge be held at all costs recalled two orders given by Premier Stalin during his civil war defense of the same city in 1918: "No retreat," "Death to traitors."

"The Russian feat in holding the Germans from Stalingrad for 11 days, for the first time in several days, closed upon its approaches is reminiscent of the 27-day defense of Sevastopol against a Nazi offensive which finally overwhelmed that Soviet Black sea naval base in the Crimea last July 4.)

While heavy defensive fighting and counter-attacks occupied the men of Stalingrad, street engagements raged on at the Black sea port of Novorossiisk, the Russians pursued mopping-up tactics in trans-river fighting in the Terrek valley, the central Caucasus and the Red army of the central front registered new gains, the Russians said.

Red Star declared the Germans' original battle plan called for the quick capture of Stalingrad by an abrupt and deep thrust of the Red army lines. They broke through to a point from which they directly threatened the city's defense zone, but then were hurled back by a counter-attack, it said.

"The Hitlerite troops crawled to Stalingrad, brought to a bloody and bleeding," the newspaper said, "and now are forced to resort to a siege of the city, which is even more exhausting for them."

The government said the Germans and Rumanians concentrated in the western Caucasus succeeded in the pressing back the defenders of Novorossiisk "and occupied several streets."

(A Berlin broadcast declared the Soviet base fell Sunday.)

With Red army artillery cutting paths for the infantry, Russia's central front troops destroyed 25 Nazi blockhouses and nine dugouts and "broke into the outskirts of a large populated place," it was announced.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda, insisted it still was possible to stop the Germans, but commented:

"It is necessary to take into consideration the fact that conditions of the war in the west—the lack of a second front in Europe—make it possible for the enemy to send almost all his forces against the Red army and we alone are bearing the blows of the Hitlerite army."

Guard Unit To Collect Scrap

Pampa's own unpaid army—Company D of the Texas Defense Guard—is one organization that doesn't ask odds of anyone, so they are not going to ask Pampans to give to the fund to be used to pay the cost of maneuvers scheduled to be held next month along the Canadian river near here.

Just the same, Pampans appreciate the patriotism of the men who give their time, study, and money from their own pockets to prepare themselves for the defense of Gray county and of Texas, to protect the civilian population in case of emergency.

Here's what local guard proposes to do to get the money to pay for their field exercises.

Every member of the company is asked to bring in scrap metal and put it in another salvage pile to be located in the same place as the first one, the block between the city hall and the court, and the street won't be roped off until there is a sufficient amount to make a showing.

Sergeant Preston Kromer is chairman of the guard committee arranging for this project. He said permission had been obtained from Mayor Fred Thompson for the use of the street as a scrap metal depot.

One Volunteer Donation
Proceeds from the sale of the scrap will be used to defray the cost of the maneuver.

It takes a lot of money to buy ammunition, pay for food supplies, and outfit 75 men for one day. On previous exercises a lot of the equipment has been furnished by the men themselves, and several have dug down in their own pockets to buy needed supplies.

That's why the company today was truly appreciative of an unsolicited donation of $3 received from County Attorney Joe Gordon. The county official wasn't asked to give anything—but he heard about the deal and "kicked in" voluntarily without a second's hesitation.

The main thing, of course, is scrap metal. That's where the money is expected to come from, along with the work done by the guard members in gathering up the stuff.

County Judge Sherman White, county defense coordinator, and a loyal supporter of the local company, thinks each member should bring in 200 pounds, even if Sergeant Kromer estimates half that amount as an individual quota.

Judge White said that despite the first collection, there was lots of scrap metal left.

Further plans for the scrap metal collection will be announced at Company D's regular drill Tuesday night.

SERIAL STORY OF BRIGHTNESS GONE BY HOLLY WATTERSON

THE STORY: Candace Beck, nurse, is leaving her apartment for a trip with an elderly, rich woman patient and probable marriage to the patient's grandson. As she packs an evening gown she thought she had the last time she had worn such a dress, and to her tragic love for Martin Corby.

AT FIRST SIGHT

MARTIN happened to her when she was 18. It was cataclysmic. Martin's coming made it seem as though nothing in her life up until that time had mattered at all, and he colored everything that went after.

She was in her last term at the Barrett School. In March, her Uncle Bruce came up to talk over with her what was to happen after graduation.

They sat over a table at Ye Campus Tea Shoppe and Uncle Bruce drank quantities of scalding coffee, black, while Candace made the hearty mid-afternoon tea of an adolescent.

"I'm not even taking them," he said. "That's rather too bad," he said lightly. "It would have pleased your aunt."

"Would it? I don't see why," Candace said. He had realized for some time why Belle had insisted on the expensive Barrett School for Candace; it was not because she wanted to do something nice for the child whom he acknowledged reluctantly, she disliked and resented, but because of the possible husband Candace might meet through it: the brother, or the cousin, or perhaps even the boy friend of one of the socially prominent...

THE old battle-ax, Candace thought again as she closed the door firmly on her outraged but cowed landlady. But the brief exchange of hostilities had done her good. Anger was like a dose of starch in one's spinal column, stiffening it. And she needed to be stiff and hard. Any melting, any softness, was not for her. The truculent Mrs. Flint would be good for her, and the cheerlessness of the place would help her. She would do nothing to relieve its harshness. She wanted to be aware every instant that this was only a stopgap between that first frantic flight from the hospital and the time when she would go away forever from the place where she had been so unhappy.

Now she thought, funny that it should be another old battle-ax who is making that getting away possible. . . . Old Mrs. Harper, crabbed, wizened, sharp of tongue, might be questioned as a delectable, but she had her compensations. In particular her grandson, Dufresne.

"Duffy" was the reason for the new clothes. When the business of hiring Candace as her nurse on this trip had been completed, Mrs. Harper had commanded briskly, "Get yourself some gay, pretty clothes. I shan't be wanting to look at you forever in those uniforms; they depress me. Besides, I won't be expecting you to spend every waking minute with an unpleasant old woman."

Candace knew what that meant: Duffy. He was to come along, ostensibly as male protector, really so that he would be under the watchful eye of his grandmother.

It was only Martin she saw as Peter said with a hint of pride, "My cousin Candace, Martin."

And subject to her stage-managing. Duffy was susceptible to the female. He was weak. Before he had been drawn into Candace's orbit through his grandmother's illness he had been under the influence of Fif Forny, late of the Hot Spot, out of Broadway. He was, his grandmother admitted frankly, likely to be so again if Candace were to turn him down. And she had finally decided, she added candidly, that between the two a nurse, strong-minded, sensible, was to be preferred over an "at-liberty" subterfuge.

"A step above my landlady's opinion, anyway," Candace murmured, thinking about it now. She tossed her head impatiently. I don't know why she thought, with the contempt some people seem to have for nurses, any girl ever wants to be one. . . . But her mind contradicted her on that. Because she knew at least why she placed would help for nursing: Martin. And the thought of Martin was like a blow, her body tensed and her muscles tightened as at the memory of pain. She mustn't think of Martin, she mustn't remember. She tried to tuck all memory of him away in his accustomed place, below the surface of conscious thought; she tried to replace Martin's moody image with Duffy's merry one.

But it was no go. This breaking of ties, this going away from the place where so much had happened was like reopening an old wound. Memories flooded in, scalding her. Even the evening dress she was trying on, though it had just come new out of its box and Martin could never have seen it, had the power to bring him to mind. Because bitterest of all was the memory of that occasion when she had dressed up to lay her present at Martin's feet; when afterward, dazed, she had stepped out of the lovely shimmering gown and had seen it lying crumpled at her feet she had had a sick feeling that it was herself lying there, crushed and bruised; she had not worn evening clothes since.

guard. For the past three months he has been giving instruction in wig-wag. Now the time has come for some advanced training. This is not a "begging" proposition, as the Texas Defense Guard is composed of volunteers, is the official state militia. Little support financially however comes from the state, or the federal government and there are dozens of items of equipment that the guardsmen need. Some supplies have been purchased by the guardsmen individually, right out of their own pockets, for the good of the company and of Pampa, and the lieutenant hopes some Panman will recognize the patriotism of these deserving men and provide his signal squad with the receiver and sending key.

The Nova Scotians think it would be a good idea to elect Roosevelt to a fourth term. -J. W. RAPER, columnist.

Farmers Can't Get Workers Because Of Government Relief

NACOGDOCHES, Sept. 11 (AP)—Farmers are unable to obtain manpower to harvest crops because of WPA aid, surplus commodities and other forms of government relief, the Texas Government Institute and East Texas County Judges and Commissioners association were told yesterday.

Judge E. D. McCormick of Corsicana declared that state and federal aid to dependent children is encouraging laziness, illegitimacy and immorality.

In agreeing with McCormick, Judge A. W. Coker of Huntsville and Judge H. Buescher of Columbus said that certain aspects of the social security program are jeopardizing the war effort in that they prevent farmers from getting the help they need.

Judge O. Rolston of Lufkin disagreed, saying that public morale was aided by governmental distribution of food, clothing and medical aid.

Every effort should be made to reform government offices and services, stripping them of unessentials, said John H. Winters, Amarillo county commissioner.

The meeting was presided over by Curtis Morris of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Fire followed the explosion, but was brought under control by the combined fire departments of Hackettstown and Washington in about a half hour. The plant formerly made fireworks and flares.

Senate Nears Vote On New Tax Bill
 WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Senate finance committee today to clean up odds and ends of the new tax bill after approving income surtax revisions which omitted specific mention of the $25,000 maximum income-after-taxes recommended by President Roosevelt.

Chairman George told reporters: "Take a look at those rates we voted today. You'll see a man can't keep much more than $25,000 unless he's a millionaire."
 Treasury tables compiled to show the total impact of the new income tax rates and the 5 per cent "Victory" gross income levy showed that if a married man with two dependent children earned $50,000 a year, he would have to pay the government $26,636 in taxes. A man with a million dollar income would retain only $92,029, and one who had an income of $5,000,000 could keep only $349,906.

The committee also voted a sharp jump in travel taxes, increasing the rates on train, bus and plane tickets to 15 per cent on ordinary accommodations and 20 per cent on reserved seats and sleepers. The present tax is 5 per cent on all categories.

The committee reduced the surtax for the lower income groups while raising it for persons with bigger incomes.

The normal individual tax rate of 6 per cent, voted by the house, was approved, as were personal exemptions of $1,200 for married couples and $500 for single persons. However, the senate committee lowered the credit for dependents from $400 to $300.

George said he was hopeful of polishing off the bill before the weekend.

Man Behind Plow Producing More Than Ever Before

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—The man behind the plow is producing more food and feed than ever before in the country's history but Americans will have to tighten their belts because of the great demands by the armed forces and the United Nations.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard sounded the warning despite the crop reporting board's estimate yesterday that American farm production in the aggregate would be the greatest on record this year.

The board estimated 1942 production would be 13 per cent higher than the former peak of 1937 and 27 per cent above the ten year average from 1923-32, with new records set in grains and an oilseed crop 44 per cent better than in any past year.

"Even so," said Wickard, "the demands upon American food and fiber are so great that we will not have enough to give everyone all the food he or she wants."

"It now behooves us to conserve this amount carefully in view of the great needs and demands upon us by our soldiers and Allies all over the world."

"These demands are tremendous—so tremendous that even the productivity of the American farmers cannot meet all of them."

He also said agriculture would face production difficulties with labor getting scarcer and curtailed production of farm machinery, insecticides and fertilizers which require materials needed for the war machine—metals, mineral oils and nitrate.

Wickard added, however, that American farmers were winning the battle of production over the Axis.

Many specifications which for years have been a part of the Government's purchasing media are revised in keeping with scarcity of certain critical materials, the Department of Commerce reports.
