Lone Star State 4-H Winners

OUTSTANDING 4-H records in 1947 Dairy Foods Demonstrations and Home Grounds Beautification activities have won state awards for three Texas club members. The winners and brief outlines of their records follow:

Dorothy Fryzinger

Bena Jo Collins

Bruce Gibson

Texas' team winners in the 1947 Dairy Foods Demonstrations are Dorothy Fryzinger and Bena Jo Collins, both 15, of Weatherford. Each receives a $50.00 U. S. Savings Bond provided by the Kraft Foods Co. The team's demonstration, titled "Home Pasteurization," was given nine times before audiences totaling 535 people. The purpose of the demonstrations was to gain experience in public speaking, and develop teamwork and sportsmanship in showing others what has been learned regarding good methods of preparing dairy food products at all occasions.

Bruce Gibson, 17, of Turkey, was state honors in the 1947 National 4-H Home Grounds activity. His award is a 17-jewel gold watch provided by Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Chicago. Among his home-landscaping achievements during seven years of club work are setting trees around the house; landscaping yard with bushes and shrubs; and painting the house and all farm buildings. Each year he trims the trees and plants over the scars to keep out insects and worms. Bruce has shown many exhibits, 20 of which were at inter-state meetings. He has won $150.00 in cash awards bringing the total estimated value of all his projects to $18,284.00.

All of these activities are conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperating.

WE, THE WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

It's never too late for women to make New Year's resolutions. Here is a list of a few tested resolutions, that will be useful any time, if you stick to them:

1. Find time for at least one thing you really enjoy doing every day.
2. Think more and talk less.
3. Make an effort not to criticize other women.
4. Give anyone who talks to you your undivided attention.
5. Be as courteous to members of the family—including the children—as you are to outsiders.
6. Think more about what you have, than what you want.
7. See more of the people you honestly like and enjoy, and less of the other kind.
8. Laugh more easily and more often.
9. Be more generous with praise of others.
10. Keep your troubles to yourself.
11. Don't strive to impress other people. And don't let the pretenses of others impress you.
12. Don't be caty.
13. Stand by your friends.
14. Keep on learning.
15. Be as happy as you can. For a happy woman makes others happy.

DRY PLANTS
If a dry room makes it difficult to raise plants at home, try setting the pots under the shower two or three times a week. Pull the shower curtain and turn on the lukewarm water for five minutes. This has the same effect on the plants as a warm spring rain.

FIXING UP the HOME

How to Select a Refrigerator

IF YOU ARE BUYING a new refrigerator, be sure to get one that is right when you buy it and one that will last a long time. Figure out exactly where you will use it, so that the door hinges will be on the proper side to cut down your kitchen steps.

Then, be sure to consider your needs before you decide what size to buy. Too small a refrigerator, while it may seem to offer initial economy, may actually be wasteful of food, since proper cooling is impossible unless there is adequate space for free circulation of air.

In this connection it may be worthwhile to remember that manufacturers of gas refrigerators are unique in that the capacities quoted include only usable space and do not include the area occupied by the freezing unit. Thus, an eight cubic foot gas refrigerator has as much room as any other type of refrigerator. Gas refrigerators operate equally well with utility gas and liquefied petroleum gas—"tank" and "bottled" gas—which is supplied by local dealers to homes beyond the gas mains.

Another thing to be said in their favor is that they operate by means of a small flame instead of an elaborate arrangement of moving parts. Hence, they function with little or no friction; therefore, never need repairs. It is said that every gas refrigerator ever made is still giving good service.

MURDER AT MY HOUSE

By Rene Ryerson Mart

THE STORY: It all started after I had been in Hollywood three months, with the movie script for one of my mystery books—and letting Jeff Haverson help me get over Oscar Craig. Jeff was directing on my picture and a very attractive man. When Liz Leyden, my suspenseful collaborator, informed me via telegraph that Jeff had been married for some time to Avis Vaughn, our former star, I was stunned. Jeff had been searching for an actress who would look like me in my picture. But the star didn't like the idea and threatened trouble. Jeff walked me back to my office afterwards, admitted his marriage, said Avis refused to divorce him.

I began to understand a lot of things. Jeff was a good director. His pictures made money. He didn't have to worry about whether or not his contract was going to be renewed by the studio. While Avis would have hit the skids long ago if her career hadn't been tied in with his. Easy to see why she wouldn't divorce him. As long as she was married to him, the studio had to give her the leading part in his pictures. But... "But you could divorce her, Jeff." I couldn't keep all the eagerness out of my voice. "You'd have plenty of grounds..."

JEFF shook his head. "I can't divorce her, if she wants to contest it. You see—I left her, first. And I haven't been an angel either."

I never answered that. The door of the office opened without warning and Liz Leyden oozed into the room. He ignored me and gave Jeff a disapproving look.

"Well, you've fouled things up, haven't you?"

Jeff looked at him but didn't answer. He continued to look at him. It was as if he didn't see him or hear him, either. "Have I?" he said finally. "Have I?" His face changed. He got to his feet.

"It might be," he said slowly, "that I'm just getting things straightened out for you."

"Look here, Haverson," Liz decided to be conciliatory. "You know Avis was only bluffing."

For a moment Jeff hung on his heel. "Was she?" he said. "Well, maybe she bluffed once too often. I'm tired of her pushing me around, and I'm going to do something about it." His face was ugly and stubborn and deadly.

He walked past me without a word and went out and slammed the door. Hard. I guess it was the way he looked that affected me. A little chill played hide-and-seek up my spine.

Moscow Fetes India's Diplomats

Liz, of course, was undisturbed by any such hypersensitivity. He said bluntly and matter-of-factly, "Well, it's up to us."

I asked him shortly what was up to us.

He said to put on the peace-making act.

I still didn't see why it was our affair. This was strictly between Jeff and Avis. And I was beginning to get an idea if Avis stood pat on her refusal to play the part of the wife unless she played the sister also, it would mean the breaking of the contract between her and Jeff; and if she lost the hold on him which made him her meal ticket, she'd divorce him fast enough. And Jeff would be free to marry again.

LIZ read my mind as if it was an open book.

"And don't get any screwy ideas, sister," he said. "Avis will never let this part in technicolor get away from her. Or Jeff either. She'll stall and scrap and make difficulties until everybody is in an uproar, and then she'll turn up at the studio sweet and meek and ready to go on with her part. And the contract will still hold, see. She's done it before. And she can sic her attorneys onto Jeff and cost him a lot of dough if he doesn't let her play the part of the sister, too. You see, it's already been assigned to her."

"I still don't see what we can do about it."

"I think we can fix it so that Avis will let Jeff cast Narney in the sister part—which is what he really wants. And then everybody will be happy again." He paused, thinking it out as he went along. "What about you inviting Avis and Art out to your place for a few drinks this evening? I'll come along and we'll hash over the script and make Avis think we've re-written the part of the wife for her and built it way up to here—Liz gestured at his chin. "That way she won't feel she's losing face when she agrees to let Jeff cast Narney as the sister."

I was beginning to see why the studio heads valued Liz Leyden. He was little Mr. Fix-it.

Texas Construction Continues on Boom

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Texas construction hit a new peak in 1947 — up 46 percent over 1946, a boom year itself — an authoritative trade publication reports.

And you haven't seen anything yet — as the year closed, thing — other sources predict.

Texas ranked second only to California in construction, Ray L. Miller, U. S. Department of Commerce regional director, said on the basis of figures for the first nine months.

Only a few Texas cities showed declines in issuance of building permits in 1947 as compared to 1946.

Building climbed to a $646,850,733 total in 1947, the authoritative publication, Texas Contractor reported, compared with a $435,746,429 total in 1946.

Construction in 1947 was $245,438,277 in 1945 and $152,795,810 in 1944, when Texas building hit its lowest point of the war years.

Contributing to the boom was lifting of some government restrictions, continuing pleas for housing, new space required for transacting the state's high level of business during a year when other businesses were booming also, replacement and repair of facilities worn out during the construction-starved war years.

Increased costs helped boost the dollar total.

The labor peace generally prevailing in the construction industry permitted the high level of uninterrupted construction, a contrast with 1946 when strikes harassed the industry and even stopped construction in some cities.

Housing construction outstripped all other categories, the Texas Contractor reported. Engineering accounted for $129,940,336 of the $646,850,733 total, non-residential $226,277,776, and residential $290,632,620.

During the year, 39,060 dwelling units were built in the state, of which 32,636 were residences costing less than $7,000.

From many points came predictions that 1948 would be even busier for the building industry.

At Houston, the $25,000,000 Shell Chemical Center will near completion next year, the Ionom and Haas $5,000,000 chemical plant will be finished within a few months. Sinclair Refining Company will expend around $5,000,000 in industrial expansion, the $18,000,000 McCarthy Center will be completed and new industrial plants of medium and smaller size, running into many millions — are expected to be up on all sides.

Houston home builders estimate they will construct 15,000 new homes totaling $105,000,000.

Public Works Director J. M. Nagle estimates $15,000,000 for construction in 1948 as compared to $10,000,000 for 1947.

The Pampa News said that 1948 projects in Pampa should swell the 1948 building figure to unprecedented levels.

San Antonio real estate dealers said that the thousands of homes being built there will meet only a part of the existing demand.

Harve G. Mokler, El Paso city building inspector, said he expected building to reach $10,000,000 there in 1948, a boost of $2,000,000 over this year.

There has been planned for 1948 a $700,000 hospital, sewer and water construction to cost $200,000, and a Masonic building to cost $100,000.

A Kilgore contractor predicted an additional $1,000,000 in other building.

BORED WITH LIFE—Evangelina de Castro, 17, above, Miss Philippines of 1947, announced in Manila that she will enter a convent with social life.

SNOW STORM

uprooted trees in many communities.

The winds stirred up Lakes Erie and Lake Erie and the Coast Guard at Milwaukee said waves were 20 feet high. High water at Lake Erie forced 50 families to evacuate from the resort area along the north shore of the Detroit area. In Chicago the south section of Lake Shore Drive along Lake Michigan closed after waves flooded the heavily traveled highway.

New York City, slowly recovering from a record snowfall of 23.8 inches last week, was pelted by freezing rain. Traffic slowed and reports of power failure were numerous.

Maryland was drenched with the heaviest rains ever recorded on New Year's Day. Baltimore reported more than two inches, while the fall in north central West Virginia amounted to an inch and a half. Some streets were flooded in Philadelphia.

"I do not think one American dollar should ever be used to aid any European country whose policies are laid down in Russia," Stevenson said. He said that he was not an isolationist, but that he believed the best way to help people of Europe was to give them tools to restore their agricultural economy, but not to give them our crops.

"Let us strive to see that they have the means to produce if they will work," Stevenson said.

Stevenson became the second announced candidate for the office. O'Daniel has not said whether or not he would run, and the names of a dozen men have been mentioned as possible candidates.

43 New Industries Begun in November

AUSTIN — Forty-three new industries began operations in Texas in November, hiring 368 employees, the Texas Employment Commission reported.

Manufacturing concerns of types new to the communities began operations in eight cities, TEC said.

In Corsicana, a new firm began manufacturing incinerators. In Gladewater, one plant started fabricating children's clothes and another began making household furniture. A chair manufacturing firm started in San Antonio. In Harlingen, a hand truck and trailer factory started operation. A weaving gun factory began production in Laredo. In Longview, a women's and misses' dress factory opened. Tyler had two new industries, an oil field machinery factory and an airplane factory. A metal concern opened in Abilene.

November was a lag month, TEC said, in the highly industrialized Houston district. No new industries were reported as started there.

Here, then, is the sum of it all. Beliefs matter, but the real belief is not what one professes, but that upon which one lives and acts. Our actual belief may be very different from what we say we believe. If the world of professing Christian people, all through the ages, had really believed and practiced what they professed, what a different world this would have been!

The question for each of us is, what do we really believe? And what do our lives express?

CHARITY — Give work rather than alms to the poor. The former drives out indolence, the latter industry. — Tryon Edwards

Many New Farm Implements Being Tried Out at Texas A&M Farm

By LOUIS PFANKE
Extension Editor

Saw a funny looking doodad in the back of a pickup truck the other day, and when the truck rolled into a filling station I went in too to have a look at it.

The doodad was a kind of sled, maybe four-feet wide and five-feet long. Made of steel, knives or cutters were mounted in pairs on the bottom.

Turned out the driver was H. P. Smith, agricultural engineer of the Texas A&M College Agricultural Experiment Station. He said the doodad is a kind of a harrow.

The knives pulverize the soil to a depth of about five inches. They're mounted on swivels so they turn on corners. The sides of the sled are built up to form a rough. That way you can pile dirt on top of the sled to make it heavier. It also has three runners, so that it can be flipped over and moved down a lane or road.

Mr. Smith said the new doodad probably had a section harrow beaten all hollow on breaking up clods. It would also, of course, be a lot harder to pull.

He said it would work on renovating pastures, the knives would probably foul up with grass. If you set the knives at a sharper angle, so that the grass would slide off, you'd have to load on more dirt to make the knives cut.

Anyhow he wanted to take it out to the A&M farm and try it out.

He said this new harrow was just one of many new implements that are being sent to A&M for test. Stalk cutters head the list.

I remember the old time two-horse one row stalk cutter mounted on wheels. It depended on the sharpness of the blades and tension springs for its efficiency, and even at that it wouldn't do much to cotton stalks until after a freeze.

Down in Wharton County, where I was raised, that sometimes meant around Christmas. And the old timers there had a saying you had to have your land bedded by Thanksgiving to make a good crop.

In years when the stalks grew rank the stalk cutter wouldn't handle them at all. Then we used a V drag with sharp blades which cut the stalks, they had to be piled and burned. So usually we either cut our stalks so late that the ball weed went into winter fat and sassy, or lost the humus the stalks would have furnished.

Then came along the rolling stalk cutters that depended on weight. They came in whatever sizes your tractor could pull. They even developed a rolling stalk cutter that would cut down fair sized brush.

Mr. Smith says a stalk cutter has been built in the Brazos River Bottom that really looks good to him. It's mounted on the front of the tractor and the power take-off drives a set of blades at high speed so that the stalks are chopped up into about two inch lengths.

The beauty of this deal is that, with the cutter mounted on the front of the tractor and a middle-buster on the draw bar, a farmer can cut his stalks and bed his land at one operation.

This new type of cutter, according to Mr. Smith, still has some bugs in it, but when these are ironed out it's going to be a good deal.

Economists and livestock experts of two minds about cattle marketings.

From the short time standpoint they want to see cattle continue to move to market in volume. Meat is getting a lot of attention these days as an "inflationary factor" and if more cattle are slaughtered, there'll be more meat on the market and less competition between consumers for it.

On the other hand, they think that from the ranchman's viewpoint it would pay to hold back cows from 1942 or 1943 and to start building up the herds.

The peak of the current cattle cycle was reached in 1944, when there were around 85 1/2 million head in the U. S. The present downswing in numbers is due to last year's 1942 or 1944, if the cycle follows that of the four previous ones.

Here's what it would take to stop the decrease in cattle numbers in 1948: the slaughter of only 30 million head. To start an increase in cattle numbers next year slaughtering would have to drop to 29 million.

And the number of cattle slaughtered in 1947 is estimated at 36 million.

I asked J. C. Miller, head of the Texas A&M department of animal husbandry, what he thought about it. He said he "agreed in principle" that ranchmen would make more money in the long run by starting to rebuild herds now, but he added, "Feed, range and prices of beef will determine the action they take."

HOWARD COUNTY 4-H SAFETY PLAN WINS STATE AWARD FOR '47

Howard County has been selected by the State Extension office as reporting the most outstanding 4-H safety program of 1947 in Texas. As a reward, the County Extension office at Big Spring will receive a General Motors plaque of merit, appropriately engraved to designate the honor.

Edward Lawler, Extension Agent in Howard County reported that safety activities emphasized on a county-wide basis included handling of tractor fuel, how to cover open gears on machinery and safety guarding, physical health examinations, and proper handling of livestock. County organizations such as the safety committee of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, Farm Bureau, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and insurance agencies cooperated with 4-Hers in the program.

According to the safety survey made by 51 4-H Club boys on farms, the fueling of a running tractor was the cause of more accidents than any one other factor in the county. This condition was the finding of the boys actually making a survey in their communities. More than 80 percent of the farm families were contacted by the members making the survey. This survey, which was started during the Farm Safety Week in 1947, has resulted in an appreciable decrease in accidents.

Delbert Davidson, Reppy Guitard, Travis Fryar, Ronnie Davidson and David Newton, all of Big Spring each won a county medal in the 1947 National 4-H Farm Safety awards program.

Here's Where College Girl Money Is Going, According to Survey

LUBBOCK — Parents have wondered for many years, but it took a Senior economics class at Texas Technological College to answer the question of what happens to a college girl's money.

According to a survey conducted among Texas Tech coeds, the average girl spends $5.32 per week over and above room and board and clothing. Largest single item, $1.89 to be exact, is spent on cosmetics.

The girls are well groomed, spending an average of 96 cents weekly for cleaning and pressing bills, 61 cents for cosmetics and 43 cents for laundry and soap. The typical girl spends about 40 cents a week on books, 30 cents for bus fare, Cigarettes take another 22 cents, while magazines sell at the rate of about eight cents worth per coed per week.

And here's why parents seldom hear from their college daughters: average coed spends only nine cents weekly on stamps, which allows for only three letters if none of them are air mail. Six cents weekly is the stationery allowance.

And the girls keep pretty accurate records as shown by the fact that only 28 cents a week is spent for "miscellaneous."

Texas Girl Wins Gardening Title

Doris Marie Prater, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Prater of Lubbock, was named Texas champion in the production marketing contest of the National Junior Vegetable Growers Association as the organization gathered in Jackson, Miss., for its 13th annual three-day convention.

As 1947 winner, young Miss Prater received an incentive award from the 1,000 fine provided each year by the Stores to encourage better production and marketing of vegetables by farm youth.

Other grants announced by Prof. Grant B. Snyder of the University of Massachusetts, advisor to the association, included the awarding of the national championship, and the top $500 scholarship to Lewis G. Schaeneman, Jr., 16-year-old grower of East Longmeadow, Mass. The southern regional title and a $200 scholarship went to Elizabeth Joyce Young, 16, of Marks, Miss.

The Lubbock County girl's winning project covered only one-eighth of an acre on her parent's 320-acre farm, but produced a net profit of $108.49 from a variety of 20 vegetable crops, chiefly okra, tomatoes and cucumbers.

Doris is an active 4-H worker. She is president of her local group, a member of the county's yearbook and garden committees. At the 1947 Panhandle South Plains fair she took numerous prizes with her more than 15 exhibits.

Last year Miss Prater was valedictorian of her graduating class at Frenship Grade School where she was society editor of her class paper and participated in dramatic club productions. Her scholastic excellence is reflected in a 95.8 average in all studies.

'Virus X' Found to Be 'Type A' Influenza

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The so-called "virus X," which has made 200,000 ill in Los Angeles in the past few days, and spread to other states, has been identified as "type A" influenza, one of the most common and mildest forms, Dr. Wilton L. Halverson, state director of public health, has said.

Buddies, Inc. Pups Learn to Be 'Eyes' For Sightless Tots

By ARTHUR RICKERBY
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—The children's laughter rang out in the afternoon sunlight. Peter Barnett, five, laughed merrily as he raced across the lawn with a five-month-old cobbie puppy nipping playfully at his heels. Twin sisters Barbara and Mary Joe Crane, also five, echoed his merriment as they stroked the silky ears of two black cocker spaniels.

But only the dogs could see the playful picture. Their playmates were the children of darkness whose romp with the puppies was part of the new educational plan of "Buddies Incorporated" to get blind children off to a self-reliant start.

"Buddies" was formed by the New York Institute of the Blind with the eventual hope of providing every sightless boy and girl in the U.S. with a canine companion with which to grow up. It does not parallel the "Seeing-Eyes" plan, says the institute principal, Dr. Merle E. Frampton, because the puppies are more than guide dogs. The kennels at the institute were built by the blind boys and girls themselves, with the aid of some seeing friends. The children feed their pets, groom them, and are being taught how to train them. When the children graduate from school, their dogs go home with them. "Seeing the children playing with the dogs is in itself enough to justify the experiment—but there are many other factors," says Dr. Frampton. "Blind people cannot have companions as other people do, and dogs can fulfill this need. Putting a puppy in the hands of a blind child shows every sign of being a great success. Child and dog can grow up together, and share happiness together. "Romping together with the animals tends to increase the mobility of the blind. It teaches them how to get around naturally, and keeping up with the dogs gives them confidence in themselves."

Outside in the winter sun, Peter Barnett and his collie were still running races with each other. The shouts of boys and girls mingled with the barks of the cocker spaniels and dachshunds. Both sides seemed to be going strong on Dr. Frampton's idea of confidence.

King George VI still sits securely upon the throne of Britain. King Haakon VII rules in Norway. Queen Wilhelmina in the Netherlands. King Frederik IX in Denmark. King Gustav V in Sweden and King Paul I in Greece.

Seven Kingdoms Remain in World

By The Associated Press

The abdication of King Mihai I of Romania left only 10 monarchies in Europe, where the business of kingship has been on the decline since World War I. There are seven kingdoms, two small principalities and one grand duchy in Europe.

Belgium still has a monarchy, although King Leopold III is in exile in Switzerland. His brother, Prince Charles, is regent.

The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg reigns over little Luxembourg, Prince Louis II over Monaco and Prince Francis Joseph II over Liechtenstein.

Five monarchs lost their crowns in the upheavals of World War I. King Umberto II of Italy, who had succeeded to the throne upon the abdication of his father, Vittorio Emanuele III, in May, 1946, was ousted in a plebiscite a month later and went into exile in Portugal.

King Peter II of Yugoslavia stepped down when his country was proclaimed a republic under Premier Marshal Tito in November, 1945.

Simeon II of Bulgaria was ousted in a referendum in September, 1946. He was only nine years old at the time.

King Zog of Albania has not occupied his throne since 1939, when Mussolini's legions overran his country. The country was proclaimed a republic in January, 1946.

Hungary, which had been a monarchy without a king before World War II, was proclaimed a republic in February, 1946.

headache from where one of the children hit him over the head with a nuclear-fusion pistol; the cook is in the kitchen sulking because we thought of the wrong present to give her; a stranger who dropped in from a party next door is still unconscious in the next room; my brother Willie is out in the yard arguing with two policemen about something, and my feet hurt from standing on tip-toe to be kissed under the mistletoe.

The only comforting thought is that any nation which could survive this particular visit from Santa has nothing to fear from any mere mortal by the name of Uncle Joe Stalin.

35 Pheasants Bagged And Without a Gun

BUTTE, Mont. —(AP)—A Montana Standard reporter tells of a

Montana hunter who bagged 35 pheasants without firing a shot. The hunter, who preferred to remain unidentified, said he stopped his automobile and searched roadside bushes near a game and fish department checking station where hunters must prove they have stayed within their bag limits. "My reward was 35 fat pheasants thrown away by other hunters, which I put in my car and took home," reported the gunless nimrod. "Better than letting the birds rot."
