Under the last heading Mr. Truman declared the bill would (A) abridge the right of free speech by union newspapers on political issues; (B) would invite the states to put harsher curbs on union security; by abdicating the federal authority wherever "more restrictive policies" exist; (C) the denial of Wagner Act rights to unions with Communist officers would force such unions to strike for their demands; "which is exactly the result the Communists desire."

Lefors Methodists Build New Church as Hammers Beat Time to Rhythm of Saws

By ROBIN TIBBETS
LEFORS, (Special)—Carpenter's saws sang, and hammers beat time to their music Monday, as work began on the new building which will soon become the Lefors Methodist Church. Members and friends of the church busily engaged themselves in giving able assistance to the hired carpenters as they began the third step toward the completion of a church building begun fifteen years ago.

Up until 1932, the church at Lefors and the one at Albrecht were a circuit presided over by the Rev. Reginald Hardy. In that year, the two were divided and Lefors became a separate station with Rev. Hardy as pastor. On a memorable day in 1932, H. M. Guthrie laid the cornerstone which marked the beginning of a building destined to remain unfinished until this fall. Before Rev. Hardy left, he also built the four front rooms of the parsonage.

Following Rev. Hardy, five ministers, Charlie Williams, Lloyd Jones, Russell Pike, O. E. Tyson, and N. S. Daniel, spoke to their congregations in the little basement church.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLE
SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—(AP)—Condors—the B-29's of the bird world—have their own private estate near here, and it's more exclusive than Park Avenue.

They are doing right well for a species that has been on the verge of extinction for centuries. For centuries they have existed on left-over abandoned by predatory ground animals, and since 1937 the whole tribe has been on government relief.

Condors are a kind of historical freak—nature's pessimists. They are the largest birds of flight in the world, with a wing span of nine to eleven feet, but their toes are so weak they can hardly stand on their own two feet.

This keeps them from swooping down and grabbing their prey, so they are carrion eaters, feeding on carcasses left in the fields or hills. They have a bald neck and a big beak that makes them look in profile like a well-pickled Egyptian mummy.

Miners shot the birds in pioneer days to get their wing-feather quills, useful for storing gold dust. Condors dwindled so alarmingly that ten years ago a 1200-acre mountain sanctuary was set aside for them in the Los Padres National Forest to keep them from becoming extinct.

Only six condors were known to exist in 1937. Now the tribe is believed to number about 50. They are the only ones left in North America, and their only relatives are some hill billy cousins who haunt the inaccessible peaks of the Andes—the South American condors.

The condor flies at great heights, soaring for hours on his tremendous wings, and his extraordinary eyes can see a sheep carcass on the ground farther than a Hollywood lish can spot a free Martini.

Knowing what a rough life is ahead of him, the baby condor starts in his nest longer than any other bird—six months. Bird psychologists say this isn't exactly like a human oedipus complex—inordinate love for his feathered mama—but just a reluctance to learn to fly. He's in no hurry to grow up and collect garbage.

Condors are in the prime of life at 20 and live to be 30. One problem in building up their tribe is that condors aren't much interested in sex. They only produce one egg and don't bother to nest every year. They just like to fly around and brood over what is going to die next to make them a meal.

They are much more trouble to the government out here than rabbits, who don't require a private estate and just refuse to become extinct.

In 1935 a Los Angeles museum expedition for the first time took two bunnies out to Anacapa, an island 32 miles southeast of here. It was virgin territory for rabbits. In 1940 the expedition returned and found 1,000 rabbits on the 700-acre island.

There's a lesson for the pessimistic condor. He'll have to learn to have faith in the future like the rabbit—or else he'll join the vanished dodo, if the government ever drops him from the relief rolls. The rabbit is winning out on private enterprise.

Investigation of British Press Creates Talk

By DEWITT MCKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
Investigation of ownership and control of the British Press by England's Socialist regime is giving rise to uneasy speculation abroad as to whether this indicates the development of a further leftist tendency by the government.

Of course there's nothing in an ordinary inquiry into the operation and financial structure of the press which should cause disquietude. An honest press has nothing to conceal.

However, the launching of the present high-powered survey was preceded by much pressure from Communists and fellow travelers who maintained—DEWITT MCKENZIE to quote the view of the London Communist Daily Worker—that "the press today is a menace to democratic methods of government." The paper advocated "adequate reforms" which, though not specified, obviously would mean following the Communist method of placing the press under strict government regulation.

Ben Parks, though the familiar "railroad" method, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the group, and Thurman Adkins was chosen to take over the important duties of tailoring, handed during the past fiscal year by Elmer J. Moore.

This investigation is likely to provide us with a test case of how far British Socialism is going to carry its program of nationalization which, ipso facto, tends towards totalitarianism. Prime Minister Attlee's government has declared itself against Communism and totalitarianism. Having talked with Mr. Attlee at length and having surveyed his government at close range, I am prepared to accept this as the honest conviction of his regime.

However, Mr. Attlee is performing a major experiment in Socialism. He feels that he can make it work, but there certainly is the danger that it may blow up in his face unless he handles it with extreme caution. His task is to demonstrate that there can be Socialism, with a degree of nationalism but without wholesale regimentation of the individual.

But to get back to our mittens, a free press has been one of the mighty pillars of British Democracy. And the press has indeed been free. Even in wartime the censorship has been voluntary. The only legal controls have been vested in laws such as those dealing with libel and an act which forbids newspapers during criminal trials to refer to any previous convictions of the accused.

The present investigation of the British Press is a matter of far greater moment than appears in the terms of the royal commissions assignment. Should this result in restrictions being imposed on the newspapers, it would render a tremendous disservice to the Socialism which the people of England are giving a trial. It also would be a warning to the rest of the world that Britain was swinging hard left.

Texas Today

By JACK RUTLEDGE
AP Staff Writer
June, in case you've overlooked this one—important—than-you-think fact, is dairy month.

In the past 20 years Texas has moved from 30th place to 9th place in the value of dairy products in the country. Texas ranks sixth in the production of ice cream, over 30,000,000 gallons being consumed in 1946.

Bryan Blalock of Marshall president of the Texas Dairy Products Institute, is touring the state making an average speech every other day in June. He says the Texas dairy industry is a hundred million dollar industry and brings out these potent points that may surprise a lot of Texans:

Twenty years ago there were no evaporated, powdered milk or cheese plants in Texas. Now, Texas produces all six of the major products of the dairy industry—flatt (bottle milk), ice cream, butter, evaporated (can) milk, cheese and powdered milk.

In 1946 there were 418,000 farms in Texas. Of these, 338,000 owned 1,400,000 milk cows valued at $138,000,000. These cows produced four billion 352 million pounds of milk, or two billion 50 million quarts. The producers received in cash $100,000,000 for the milk.

North East Texas has turned rapidly to dairying in the past 20 years. (By northeast Texas is meant east of the Red River through Gainesville but not including the city of Dallas.)

From Dallas through Tyler, Marshall to the Louisiana line and north of Dallas to the Red River through Gainesville but not including the city of Dallas.

Twenty years ago less than 100 farmers in the area sold milk. One week recently 13,000 farmers sold milk daily. It was gathered on 300 milk routes that traveled an average of 100 miles each or a total of 30,000 miles daily.

The 13,000 farmers daily sold 1,300,000 pounds of milk and received about $60,000 a day or $1,800,000 per month. The annual milk business in the area is a $20,000,000 project. From moo to you is big business.

The milk in the area goes to plants in Marshall, Sulphur Springs, Paris, Tyler, Winstboro, Mt. Pleasant, Bonham, Greenville, Seherman, McKinney, Denton, Gainesville and Denison.

Last year Texas made 25,396,000 pounds of butter, 13,669,000 pounds of cheddar cheese.
