

Nips Applaud MacArthur But Fear Loss of U. S. Aid

TOKYO—(AP)—Japanese today acclaimed General MacArthur's press conference declaration as the strongest, most detailed expression of Japan's present position on the world has heard. But many of them voiced fear of being cut from United States financial aid and of losing the stabilizing influence of American military power.

All newspapers printed MacArthur's statement in full, with editorial comment. It was the major topic of conversation. The Supreme Commander's main points coincided with hopes which government officials have long expressed—an early peace, end of military occupation, prompt determination of reparations and more permanent economic assistance.

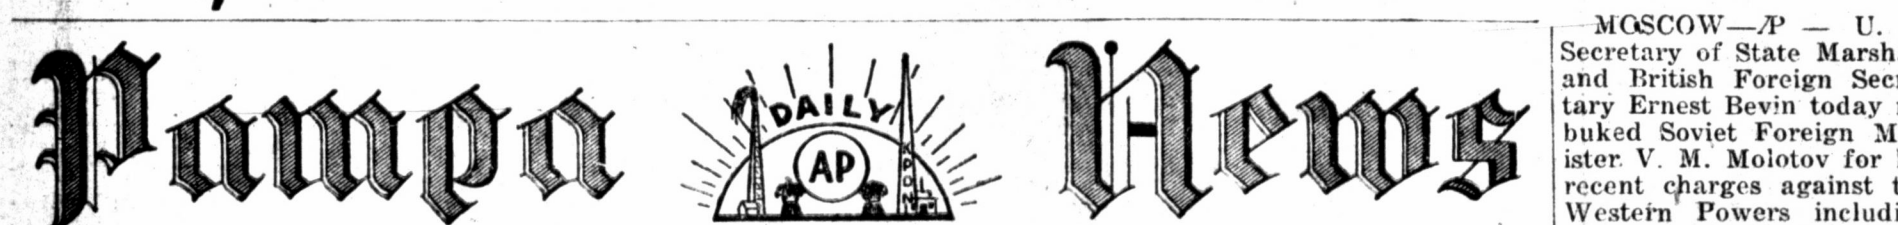

Some young intellectuals were concerned lest withdrawal of American occupation forces would stimulate stronger political activity by extremists and checkmate the growth of Democracy. These Japanese commented that a civilian administration might not have the same restraining influence on Communist elements that MacArthur and the occupation army have had.

Japanese generally are pessimistic about the authority of the United Nations. Reading of disputes in its sessions, they are inclined to think its control would subject Japan to inter-Allied friction. This generally has been lacking in Japan because of the dominant American influence. The Japanese feel themselves tied to Americans and that the United States is more willing and able to advance tangible financial and physical assistance which this country needs.

Governments, unable to speak officially, have been urging in private for months the obtaining of American loans as the sole means of solving Japan's crisis. MacArthur told the correspondents in his interview that Japan has been demilitarized and is nearing completion. But he said economic warfare "is still as bitter here as when guns were firing."

Some Japanese thought this reference to the economic blockade would give ammunition to new quiet Jingoists if they ever seek to rally the people against other powers. These sources acknowledged Japan's inadequate production is, as MacArthur said, a product of the country's poverty. But, they added, it is complicated presently by many other factors—including labor troubles, the black market, profiteering and industrial lassitude.

Federation Head Speaks to Area Sportsmen Friday

Doc St. Clair, Fort Worth, president of the Texas Federation of Wildlife Clubs, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of Panhandle sportsmen Friday night at 8 o'clock in the County Court Room.

The McClellan Lake Rod and Gun Club will be the host to sportsmen from Amarillo, Panhandle, Borger, Canadian, Perryton and other Panhandle cities.

Dr. L. J. Zachry, secretary of the McClellan Club, said today that St. Clair, who was originally scheduled to speak here February 16, had notified local club officials that he would make it to Pampa if at all possible.

Also, the local club has secured a motion picture on hunting and fishing. Dr. Zachry said he did not know the exact nature of the film, being procured from a large hunting and fishing publication.

Main topic of the meeting is expected to be the impending bill in the Legislature that would take hunting and fishing regulatory powers out of the hands of the Legislature and place them among the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission.

At present, the State Legislature makes practically all hunting and fishing rules, sets seasons, etc., leaving the Commission to the enforcement of these laws.

The Wildlife Federation, composed of over 200 Texas clubs, sponsored the bill now in the Legislature. A House Committee has already approved them and they will be placed before a similar Senate Committee about March 26.

Dr. Roy Webb, special representative for the local club, appeared before the House Committee to testify in favor of the bill and plans to go to Austin when the Senate Committee discusses the measures.

Don Martin, who was elected president of the local club last month, will preside at Friday's meeting.

The public will be invited to attend.

Training Camp Notes

By The Associated Press
Speculation was renewed today over the possibility of Mickey Vernon, American League batting champion and his hard-hitting Washington Senators teammate, outfielder Stan Spence, being traded to the New York Yankees.

Manager Bucky Harris of the Yanks announced that he would confer with President Clark Griffith of the Nats within a few days.

During the winter, Griffith stated emphatically and often that Vernon, who batted .367, would be traded under any circumstances, but the "Old Fox" has changed his mind in the past after equally emphatic statements when the right kind of a deal was offered.

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Dallas—(P)—The University of Texas, rated by many as the best college basketball team ever produced in the Southwest, has a chance to bring this section a unprecedented story this week in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tournament at Kansas City.

There's no use trying to convince anyone else that the Southwest is equal to other areas in basketball quality. The records won't bear that out. But this season Texas gave the first inkling that the Southwest is approaching that point. The Longhorns won six while losing one in inter-sectional play and among their victims were such worthies as Long Island U., Canisius and Oklahoma.

Southern Methodist helped by winning five against four losses in inter-sectional warfare and Arkansas broke even with six and six. Texas Christian, Texas A. and M., and Baylor also did well. A. and M.'s 83-18 defeat by Kentucky is a huge blot. The Aggies claimed they were travel weary but it's hard to explain such a beating as that in any other context.

But it's a shame Texas didn't get to match field with Randolph Rupp's great team.

For the season Southwest won 25 games and lost 37 in inter-sectional play. A poor record for the best all-around basketball this conference ever had.

In the NCAA Western Regional tournament, first round Friday night, Texas played Wyoming, a school that eliminated the Longhorns from the Kansas City meet in 1943 then went on to the national title.

Texas had the best record of any team in the NCAA play-off, either Western Regional or Eastern. It happens that the only other college quintets in the nation with a record of 22 wins and 4 defeats this season, the Westerners lost to UCLA, City College of New York, Temple and Utah, not very impressive—but best Holy Cross, the NCAA District 1 representative, and also defeated Utah in another game.

Oregon State has the third best record of the four teams in the Kansas City meet, with 20 wins against 4 defeats. Oregon State lost to Long Island but beat Canisius.

Your correspondent, used to getting out on a limb and having a sawed away (it's landing on your head that makes you this balmy) picks Texas to win at Kansas City and to be the best team representative for the national tournament. I ought to show them we mean business down here in the Southwest.

Charley Parker, the Texas speedster, and Bill Martinsson, the Bay or sprint bullet, are both very nice guys.

"They've been exchanging compliments like a couple of bargers. We wouldn't attempt to disguise their intentions but it looks from here like these very nice fellows would appreciate getting from under the hood meaning. They wouldn't want their sprint battling to be called 'feuding'."

Martinsson edged Parker at the Border Olympics. It was the first time since the year that Flynn Charley had tumbled before that Charley immediately told the world "Martinsson beat me fair and square" although Texas adherents howled that Martinsson jumped the gun and the Borger and Childress squads in the British and should have picked Parker as the winner anyway.

Then Taylor Bill, possibly a little alarmed about the fuss folks were making over him, came forward with: "I think that Charley Parker is the greatest sprinter in the world today. I feel that I was lucky indeed to win from Parker at Laredo to say nothing of my own teammate, Stonie Cotten. I am of the opinion that as the track season unfolds, I will be pushing Parker instead of leading him."

Now, as I said before, I would not attempt to fathom their motives. I am sure they are quite sincere in what they say. But if of this kind of business they must be new around here. It's the brightest spot to show in track and field in this section in a long time—if not for all time.

To Charley and Bill: This is a track feud. At least that's what the sports writers are going to call it.

A note on why Southwest Conference baseball doesn't attract the paying customers and it looked upon as minor sport:

Texas and Hardin-Simmons required 51 minutes to play one inning. Yes, 51 minutes!

Hardin-Simmons made 7 runs, Texas 15. There were 10 walks in the inning.

But maybe by 1949 this kind of baseball will be on the way out. You see, Texas high schools are going into the diamond game with both feet this year. Close to 600 schools will play the game. That's what's been needed all these years. That's why we're against the schools playing football all year. Get rid of spring training and let baseball have a chance. Then college baseball won't be laughing stock.

Borger, Childress Here' for Triangular Meet Tomorrow

Severely handicapped by lack of practice due to adverse weather, the Pampa Harvesters will meet Borger's Bulldogs and the Childress Boats in a triangular track and field meet here tomorrow afternoon.

Field events will open at the track layout at 3 o'clock and the track meet will join in at 3:30.

Pampa Coaches Otis Coffey and Jiggs Whittington are working with approximately 30 boys in an effort to get a suitable squad lined up before the district meet in April and tomorrow's meet, probably one of few that Pampa will have, will be a main factor in picking the squads for the top meets.

Harvester hopes in tomorrow's meet may rest mainly on less than a dozen boys, with Bill Speer and Carl "Red" Maves heading the list. Speer is improving rapidly in the discus throw, high jump and the hurdles while Maves' prowess as a dash man is unchallenged on the squad. Maves is also expected to collect points in the broad jump. He has hit 20 feet or better several times during practice.

Coach Coffey practices the Pampa squad as "average" now but adds that the last practice sessions have set them back considerably.

In the field events, Bob Boyles and Zeke Griffin are the top shot-putters, both of them having entered that event last year.

Kelly Anderson appears No. 1 in the pole vault with competition from Charley Lockhart and others, while Anderson is also keeping pace with Speer in the high jump.

The field events will present a varied array of runners, headed by Maves.

Brown will be fairly strong in the shorter events, but the distances and relays are still a problem to the coaches.

The hurdles will sport such candidates as Maves, Jackie Williams, Doug Mills, Jim Bill Windsor and others. Maves' participation in the hurdles will depend on whether he is entered in the relays or not.

Also in the relays, Jim Wilson and Paul Simmons are expected to be in the mile relay. With Maves and a fourth member, the Green and Gold baton-carriers might "show" against the unknown strength of the Borger and Childress squads. Jim Windsor has looked good in the mile run, as have several other first year candidates.

Coaches Coffey and Whittington were due to select their squad this afternoon and complete work on the track layout, but by "mud puddles" in some stretches of the oval north of the high school.

Columbus Fans Resent City's Being Called Brooklyn of College Football

COLUMBUS, O.—(NEA)—Columbus grid fans resent the appellation of "the Brooklyn of College Football" labeled on their fair city by outsiders.

The tag stems from the unusual coaching situation at Ohio State University, which recently hired its third football mentor in three years, its fourth in five years and its fifth in eight years.

Followers of Ohio State football point out that fans here are no more rabid than they are in Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee or any other hotbed.

One Columbus fan said: "Sure, we hate to lose—but who doesn't? You go to Detroit after Michigan has lost a ball game and the fans there will be griping. Go to Milwaukee after Wisconsin has dropped one and the fans there will be singing the blues. It seems to be an old American custom."

Although Ohio State has had a tremendous turnover of coaches since 1940, only one—the late Francis Schmidt—has been actually discharged. Schmidt was not retained after his '40 team won four games and lost four and Paul E. Brown was brought in from Massillon (Ohio) High School.

Brown was really going places. His teams in '41 and '42 lost a grand total of exactly two games. It appeared Ohio State was embarking on a golden football era.

On Brown's '42 Western Conference and national championship eleven, there were only three seniors. The substitute guided the Bucks' stay in the limelight and in '43, his team riddled by draft calls, Brown could salvage only three games out of nine.

Brown, himself, was off to Great Lakes before the '44 season arrived and pinch-hitting for him at Ohio State was one of his assistants, Carroll Widener. The substitute guided the Bucks through an undefeated, untied season in '44, and it wasn't long after that it was revealed Brown had received an offer to coach the Cleveland club in the All-American Conference. Ohio State did not approach the Cleveland bid, so Brown elected to leave the collegiate ranks for the pros.

Widener then was made "permanent" head coach. His '45 team lost only two games but Wid chose to return to the role of assistant with the head job going to Paul Bixler, who until that time had been an aide first to Brown, then to Widener.

Bixler terminated his three-year contract this winter at the close of his first season. His club won only four out of nine games. He asked to be relieved of his commitment to accept the head coaching reins at Colgate.

A natural as Bixler's successor is the youthful Wesley Fesler, a two-time Ohio State All-American who obtained his release as Pittsburgh's chief scout, announced today. However, as one downtown quarter-back quipped:

"Why, the first thing we know outsiders will be calling Brooklyn 'the Columbus of Major League Baseball.'"

HOLLYWOOD—Olivia de Havilland won the Academy Award statuette for the best actress of the year for her performance in "To Each His Own," but her mother's some criticism after her mother's Lillian Fontaine said crisply, "I should say not. How utterly ridiculous. Olivia, you know I didn't have a line in my face at 46."

"And," said Olivia, "she didn't have a line in her face at 46. But I didn't think she'd call me on it." DOUBLE TROUBLE

But at least mama believed Olivia had played a friend about which Lou, didn't think she had played twins in "The Dark Mirror."

Lou came home after seeing the picture and told Olivia she had argued with a friend about which twin her mistress had played. Lou bet that Olivia played the one with "the black dress."

"I had to explain," Olivia laughed, about using split screens before I could convince Lou that I played both roles. Up to then she had quite a lot of respect for Hollywood's ability to find doubles."

But even in the beginning Olivia was right up there at the top in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," fresh from the Hollywood Bowl stage version.

"And don't think it was fun," she said. "I won't pretend I'd have preferred art parts. But, well—it meant everyone's eyes were on me. And the critics became one of my biggest problems."

There were some unpleasant notices which hurt, she confessed.

"It was because I was so young (17). I wonder if anyone could know how seriously a youngster takes life. How the small things seem gigantic. How, after a disparaging criticism, you go around, unable to take the philosophy needed to look at people. This is the end. I'll never be any good."

NOT JUST GLAMOR GIEG
"I took her five years," Olivia said, to gain the philosophy needed to say, "That critic was right. I'll watch that in my acting next time." But after five years Olivia didn't need the philosophy. Hollywood discovered she was an actress, not just a glamor girl.

Modesty, Olivia gives credit to good directors for Hollywood's good acting performances.

"Some," she said, "just throw in people, story, and camera like Hans Olivers, like Directors George Cukor, Henry Lesca and Victor Fleming, really help."

Her members as Melanie in "Gone With the Wind," she had to ask someone, "How are you today?" she's reminding said, "You assess it properly, Olivia, because I wasn't assessing for politeness sake, but because she was concerned, sincere."

"Suddenly," said Olivia, "I understand someone."

WE, THE WOMEN

Girls Don't Mature at the Altar

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

A 19-year-old California wife was granted a divorce from her husband, exactly twice her age, when she told a judge: "He told me to go home to mother for a couple of years and grow up."

That, of course, is what many women should have had before tackling marriage—a few more years in which to grow up.

But a man ought to think about that before, rather than after, marriage.

The growing-up process isn't just a matter of years, either. Before a girl is ready for marriage she should have had all the education her family can give her, and then she should have been self-supporting for a year or so.

Education and experience in earning a living are almost as necessary today to a girl's growing up as they are to a man's doing so.

And yet a man will fall in love with a girl who is too young for marriage in years, education, and self-reliance, marry her, and then be unwilling to put up with her childish ideas and behavior.

WHY BLAME THE GIRL?
A woman could marry early because she was trained for marriage from childhood. But today's girls aren't.

All too often they step from the devoted careless boyboycatcher stage into a marriage partnership, and then get blamed because they aren't mature enough to meet all the responsibilities that marriage forces upon them.

The time for a man to send a girl home to mother to "grow up" is before marriage—not after it.

Modern Portias Seeking Uniform Marriage, Divorce Laws for U. S.

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Newsfeature Writer

The National Association of Women Lawyers will start soon a drive to get uniform marriage and divorce laws in every state in the Union.

That comes from Adelaide Kerr, Springfield, New York lawyer and the NAWL's president.

There is great confusion in divorce laws because they vary so in different states. "Forty-two states allow divorce on the grounds of cruelty. Twenty-two permit it on grounds of insanity, neglect and non-support. New York is the only state which has adultery as the sole ground, while South Carolina does not permit divorce at all. Massachusetts demands five years' residence for divorce; Nevada only six weeks.

"Suppose a woman who has lived two years in Massachusetts wants a divorce. She can't get it at home, so she goes to New York. Later, if she wants to remarry, she can't do so in Massachusetts because the state does not recognize her divorce. She can remarry in Connecticut, but Massachusetts will not recognize this marriage and the first husband can sue her for divorce on grounds of adultery.

"We have a nation-wide committee working on uniform divorce laws and it will decide whether we shall try to do it by constitutional amendment or through the 48 states individually. Personally I think the only way we shall get it is to follow the state by state method. And eventually I think it can be done."

The uniform divorce law campaign is only one part of an extensive program planned by the NAWL under the direction of its hard-driving president. She is a good looking woman, who wears long blonde hair brushed in smooth lacquered coils and works a day-and-night schedule to handle both her practice and her work as president of the Portias.

Under her direction the more than 2,000 members of NAWL are divided into 100 committees—on taxation, veterans affairs, workmen's compensation, American citizenship, child welfare, juvenile delinquency, legal status of women, and many other classifications.

They will study current legislation and make recommendations to Congress for legislation they favor.

NAWL also plans a big welfare program which includes giving free legal aid to the social service department for Women and Children, a hospital staffed entirely by women.

"Also we are going to work for more women on the bench," said Miss Kerr, as she ruffled committees in the NAWL's New York office. "We hope to get a woman on the United States Supreme Court bench—Florence Allen, now judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cleveland, Ohio.

"We want to see more women lawyers too. A woman lawyer is better than a man lawyer, because she is more thorough, takes more notes in detail, she also considers the human side of the case more than a man does. And she takes her work more seriously because she is still a minority in this profession and has to work twice as hard to go half as far."

"There are 10,000 women lawyers in the United States today and they are doing better than ever before."

Modern Portias Seeking Uniform Marriage, Divorce Laws for U. S.

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Newsfeature Writer

The National Association of Women Lawyers will start soon a drive to get uniform marriage and divorce laws in every state in the Union.

That comes from Adelaide Kerr, Springfield, New York lawyer and the NAWL's president. There is great confusion in divorce laws because they vary so in different states.

Under her direction the more than 2,000 members of NAWL are divided into 100 committees—on taxation, veterans affairs, workmen's compensation, American citizenship, child welfare, juvenile delinquency, legal status of women, and many other classifications.

They will study current legislation and make recommendations to Congress for legislation they favor.

NAWL also plans a big welfare program which includes giving free legal aid to the social service department for Women and Children, a hospital staffed entirely by women.

"Also we are going to work for more women on the bench," said Miss Kerr, as she ruffled committees in the NAWL's New York office.

"We want to see more women lawyers too. A woman lawyer is better than a man lawyer, because she is more thorough, takes more notes in detail, she also considers the human side of the case more than a man does. And she takes her work more seriously because she is still a minority in this profession and has to work twice as hard to go half as far."

"There are 10,000 women lawyers in the United States today and they are doing better than ever before."

Pajamas Needed At Boys Town

BOYS TOWN, Neb.—During recent weeks, many friends of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home have written to ask what they could do to help citizens of Boys Town.

At the present time there is a great need for pajamas for the children. It is difficult to obtain. Gifts of pajamas to fit boys ranging in age from 12 to 18, particularly the larger, or B, C and D sizes, would be sincerely appreciated.

BETTER THAN PILLS FOR CONSTIPATION

Find Famous Breakfast Cereal Most Helpful of All

Have you given up hope of being "regular" again? Then read this concise, uncolored letter:

"I am a registered nurse and I know what a problem constipation is, especially with patients deprived of their usual physical activities. When I brought Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, actually presented irregularity in more cases than I can mention. Your review is a great boon to our modern age." Miss Katherine H. Walsh, Town Hall, Newington, Conn.

Yes, eating ALL-BRAN regularly often brings lasting relief from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. For best results, eat it for breakfast every day—and drink plenty of water. Try KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for 10 days! If by that time you are not completely satisfied, send the empty carton to the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan, and get double your money back!

ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a wholesome food made from the vital outer layers of whole wheat. Eat daily either as a cereal, or in muffins. Ask your grocer for KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN.

Take the Laughter by Karen DeWolf

THE STORY: Sherry and Mona rent a cottage together in one of Hollywood's back alley courts. She is sleek and sophisticated. He is a naive insurance office man making a play for her married boss, George Brothers. Sherry keeps her own secrets.

"WHOEVER'S going out tonight better get a loaf of bread," Sherry told them, "or there won't be any toast for breakfast."
Sandro said, "Tony is going out with the blonde."

she told herself. She did not fancy herself in love with any of them. They were just good, kind, affectionate brothers to her.

Gradually Sherry had taken over the running of their house, and with the cleaning, cooking and sewing she kept busy. Of course the boys helped, too; they could all cook and insisted on doing the heavy cleaning. Sherry could not feel lonely when she was with them; although there were nights when she still cried herself to sleep in Hidden House.

Sherry looked up suddenly to see Kris staring at her. She said, "Why are you looking at me?"

Kris said, "I was thinking I'd probably marry you when you grew up."

Sherry laughed. "I'm quite grown up now. You three are the ones who need a mother!"

Kris smiled and would have said something only Sandro came out of the bedroom with a purple brocaded lounging robe over his pajamas.

Kris raised his eyebrows and held his underlip with his teeth. He said, "Whoops! Did somebody call me?" and slapped his own wrist.

Sandro said, "There is no use of me trying to sleep." He picked up his script again and sat down and began to read it studiously. Sherry watched him with a little smile.

He smiled faded when she remembered the night she and Sandro had rushed to the boulevard to see the picture in which he had spoken his first line. They had held hands and waited breathlessly for the scene. It had been cut out.

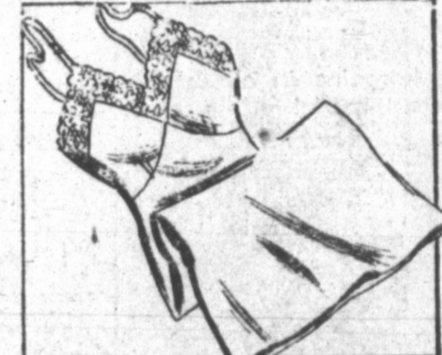

Sherry knew how heartbroken Sandro had been beneath his smile. She had told him, though, that since the line had been in French, it would not have done him any good with the producers anyway.

He had brightened at that, but Sherry had had her first taste of the tragedies of a career.

There was no silly romance now.
