Final Balloting Set In Chamber Election

The first round of balloting in the election of the five-man advisory board to serve the Chamber of Commerce in 1947 ended this morning with a canvassing board comprised of members of the outgoing board, counting the votes.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The rush is on in Congress to shell out more billions to veterans. Lawmakers are tossing in bills and getting campaigns under way for such things as:

- 1. A soldier's bonus;
2. Immediate cashing of terminal leave bonds; and
3. A boost in government payments to veterans going to school or learning new jobs by working at home.

Group Outlines Law Enactments For Legislation

AUSTIN—(AP)—Enactment of a law requiring registration of all paid lobbyists and passage of a law requiring members of the legislature to file statements of fees received are among the items on the list of bills urged today by the annual Texas Social and Legislative Conference.

The conference suggested that the 50th Legislature enact a state wage-hour law similar to the national law, to submit a constitutional amendment removing the ceiling on welfare payments, and to put a minimum of $2,400 annually on teachers' salaries.

The conference—made up of pension, labor, farm and welfare groups—re-elected Glen S. Wilson of Austin, chairman, and Bob Eckhardt of Austin and Terrell Stedee of Kyle, vice-chairman. It named committees to make continuing studies of subjects covered in resolutions passed yesterday, and to urge their implementation during the general session starting a week from tomorrow.

The resolution on labor urged this legislation: To protect labor's right to organize into groups of their own choice; to protect all workers in their right to contract and bargain collectively; and to oppose legislation restricting the public to revise the Industrial Commission Act, to revise the fact-finding in labor disputes and to amend it to provide for equal representation of industry, labor and the public to liberalize the Workmen's Compensation Act.

On education, the resolution called for legislation to: Increase the present apportionment to $5 a year (it is now $3); provide better educational facilities for migrant farm families; appropriate immediately sufficient funds to provide a college of university grade for Negroes; generally improve the educational system; provide scientific vocational guidance for students.

The conference passed resolutions asking the legislature to increase substantially wages of state employees, making of the per-month increase no less than $50.

Jap Worker Takes Trimming Seriously

TOKYO—(AP)—This story filtered in today from the 28th General Hospital in Osaka.

The librarian announced one day before the holidays that "after lunch we'll all trim the Christmas tree."

She returned to find the Japanese assistant librarian already busy at work trimming it—limb by limb with a pruning shears.

Woman Held in Handsaw Slaying Of Her Husband

NEWARK, O.—(AP)—Laura Belle Devlin, 72, who collects old lace, was held without charge today in the handsaw slaying of her husband, whose dismembered body was found scattered in the backyard of their home here.

Police Chief Gail Christian said the mid-mannered "little" woman told her maid up 75-year-old Thomas Devlin last week in the parlor of their modest two-story home.

"He tried to kill me so many times that I decided to end his life," Mrs. Devlin was quoted as saying calmly.

"And now can I go home?" she asked the police chief after describing in detail how she first pounded Devlin into unconsciousness with her fists and tried to break his bones with a sickle. She then used the saw to dismember the body, Christian quoted Mrs. Devlin as saying. Burned parts of the body also were found in a stove, Christian stated.

Told she must remain in the Licking county jail, Mrs. Devlin shook her head but made no protest.

Clad in a stocking cap and an old coat, Mrs. Devlin went to police headquarters yesterday with a letter reporting that her husband had died in Philadelphia. Signed "Tom's cousin," the letter said: "We are going to Ireland" to bury him. The envelope bore no stamp and had a postmark which was drawn in black ink.

Christian and Coroner George Sapp went to the Devlin residence to investigate. There they found parts of a body in the backyard and in an adjoining field. In six other places they discovered piles of human ashes, including several pieces from a human skull.

Confronted with the findings, Mrs. Devlin readily admitted the slaying, Christian said.

Aged Man and Wife Victims Of Gas Stoves

PANHANDLE—(Special)—The ever-present danger of death by carbon monoxide poisoning was pointed out here when the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Ainsworth were found in their 4-room stucco home here yesterday afternoon about 4:30 p. m.

The worst accident was after being named to ten Senate posts as Senators Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, president; Kenneth S. Wherry, of Nebraska, new GOP whip; and Wallace H. White, of Maine, named Republican floor leader.

Double funeral services will be conducted from the First Baptist Church in Panhandle tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Officiating will be the Rev. Herbert Brown, pastor, assisted by the Rev. James Todd, pastor of the First Christian Church of Panhandle.

Burial will be in the Panhandle Cemetery under the direction of Blackburn-Shaw Funeral Home of Amarillo.

He was 65, she 60. They had been residents of the city for 30 years.

Harper, with his wife, was reported to have gone to the house to visit the couple but received no response to his knock. He looked through a window, saw Mrs. Ainsworth sitting upright in a chair near an open flame heater. Her husband was found on the floor of the dining room, leading to speculation

Weekend Mishaps Are Fatal to At Least 17 Persons

(By The Associated Press) At least 17 persons died in Texas in weekend accidents, with traffic collisions accounting for six of the total.

Three persons received fatal burns when fire destroyed their homes, one was killed in an automobile-train collision, two died from asphyxiation, one from a fall, and four from gun wounds.

A verdict of suicide and murder was returned by Justice of the Peace J. W. Patterson Saturday at Ballinger in connection with the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. J. Audie Reese, who were found dead at their home. Reese was a veteran postoffice employee at Ballinger.

In Dallas a suicide verdict was returned by Justice of the Peace W. L. Sterrett following the death of Miss Ethel Joy Hardin of Houston when she fell from the tenth floor of a skyscraper building.

A mother and her small son were killed Saturday in an automobile collision 16 miles north of Snyder. They were Mrs. Joe S. Brown, 30, and William Brown, 17 months, of Mineral Wells. The father and husband received injuries and is in a Snyder hospital.

Byron Hardin, 33, ranchman, died yesterday at Llano of injuries received last week in an automobile accident.

Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Ainsworth of Panhandle were found dead at their home there yesterday. Justice of the Peace Sam Lanning returned a verdict of death by asphyxiation.

The body of Miss Virginia Brown, 29, Magnolia Oil Company employe at Crockett, was found late Saturday night by J. Ernest Thompson, member of the Railroad Commission and Sen. Grady Hazelwood spoke briefly.

R. J. Kay, Amarillo oil man, presided at immediate post-mortem of the association. The president is Jake Phillips, royalty owner of Borger. Other Borger oil men and those from other parts of the Panhandle were present.

Although there was no business session conducted by the association, Commissioner Thompson made reference to prospective rises in the price of gas.

Speaking to the producers, he said "You're going into your best year since 1937, which he noted was a very good year from production and sales standpoint."

"The day of 10 cents per thousand for gas is coming," he added. A dog's love today closed and sealed the Soviet radio station in Shanghai. There was no immediate explanation.

CONGRESS SET FOR TOUGH JOB—Shown in their first pow-wow after being named to ten Senate posts as Senators Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, president; Kenneth S. Wherry, of Nebraska, new GOP whip; and Wallace H. White, of Maine, named Republican floor leader.

Five Die as Planes Crash in Blizzard

Five persons were killed and 21 injured in three plane crashes last night during a sudden blinding snowstorm that engulfed large areas of the East Coast.

The worst accident was at Carmel, N. J., where a Nationwide Air Transport Service, Inc. passenger plane crashed in a wooded area, killing the co-pilot and two passengers and injuring 19 other persons.

A small private plane bound from Mr. Pleasant, Mich., to Florida, crashed in Scott County, Va., killing its two occupants.

At Jones Beach, bathing resort near New York, 16 persons escaped serious injury as an American Airlines DC-3 two-motor plane made a crash landing on the beach a few feet from the water. Only the pilot and co-pilot were injured and the stewardess and 13 passengers were unhurt.

The freak snowstorm, accompanied by rain and sleet, covered an area estimated by the weather bureau in New York to extend as far as 250 miles from that city.

Only one person on the plane that crashed at Carmel escaped injury as the ship skidded over a farm house and ploughed through 50 yards of woodland, leaving sheared trees in its wake.

Passengers extinguished a small fire and the fuselage remained intact although the left wing was torn off and the nose crumpled in the crash.

The young couple killed in the Virginia crash left the Mt. Pleasant airport Saturday morning on an air tour sponsored by the Gulf Oil Company. They were enroute to the Miami Air Show.

The crash landing at Jones Beach came when the plane at only a five-minute fuel supply left. The pilot dropped flares and managed to spot the beach through the heavy storm. The pilot suffered a lip laceration and the co-pilot lacerations as a possible concussion.

The plane had left New York for Los Angeles but turned back when it was unable to land at Washington enroute.

Bad Weather Forces Search Plane Back

ABOARD USS MT. OLYMPUS—(AP)—A seaplane took off Sunday from the Navy's Antarctic expedition on the first search for nine missing fliers but was forced back by bad weather after a two-hour, 25 minute flight.

The missing fliers were aboard a two-engine Mariner seaplane which was last heard from a week ago while making a reconnaissance flight over the Franklin D. Roosevelt and Ellsworth land.

The search plane, piloted by Lt. Cmdr. John D. Howell, of West Orange, N. J., was sent out by the seaplane tender Pine Island in the expedition's Eastern task group. Capt. George Dulick, commander of the group, was aboard as an observer.

Howell's ship was unable to reach the coast of the Polar continent before being turned back by adverse weather. Fog had prevented search operations until Sunday.

Woman and Son Are Overcome by Gas

PANHANDLE, (Special)—Mrs. Fannie Williams, who, with her son, was overcome by asphyxiation Sunday, was back at her office as Carson County clerk today.

Mrs. Williams, son John and his wife, spent Saturday night at the home of friends at White Deer. Sunday morning they had complained of having headaches.

Mrs. Williams and her son lost consciousness shortly after they returned home. A physician said lack of oxygen in the air had affected the brain. The son is all right, also.

President Cautions Congress in Action

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman today called on the Republican-Controlled Congress to enact a four-point labor program designed to prevent strikes which stifle the nation's economy.

Appearing in person before a joint session of the Senate and House, Mr. Truman proposed:

- 1. Enactment of legislation outlawing the jurisdictional strike as "indefensible."
2. Enactment of further legislation prohibiting secondary boycotts which involve "unjustifiable objectives." He said boycotts which are intended to protect wage and working conditions should be distinguished from those furthering jurisdictional disputes.

3. Legislation providing machinery whereby unsettled disputes over existing collective bargaining agreements may be referred "by either party to final and binding arbitration" and extension of facilities within the labor department for assisting collective bargaining.

4. Provision by Congress for the appointment of a temporary joint commission to inquire into the entire field of labor-management relations and to make legislative recommendations not later than March 15.

Mr. Truman cautioned Congress against adoption of "punitive legislation" and added: "We must not in order to punish a few labor leaders, pass vindictive laws which restrict the proper rights of the rank and file of labor."

"We must not under the stress of emotion, endanger our American freedom by taking ill-considered action which leads to results not anticipated or desired."

Republican leaders of the new Congress already have proposed a number of labor bills ranging from reenactment of the CIO bill vetoed by President Truman last year to measures which would ban strikes in such essential industries as utilities and coal mining.

But the President said the prospect of disagreement between his Democratic administration and the Republican Congress on some domestic issues is not to be feared since it is "inherent in our form of government."

"The Congress and the President, during the next two years, must work together," Mr. Truman said.

Truman Sees Possible Extension of Draft to Maintain Strength of U.S.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman told Congress today "we are encountering increasing difficulties in maintaining with volunteers an Army and Navy capable of backing up United States foreign policy."

He projected possible extension of the draft and adoption of universal training, and again called for establishment of a single department of national defense.

In his first message to the 80th Congress, Mr. Truman said: "When a system of collective security under the United Nations has been established we shall be willing to lead in collective disarmament, but until such a system becomes a reality, we must not again allow our weakness to invite attack."

On other questions of foreign policy, the President said: "Called for speed in working out German, Austrian and Japanese peace treaties with Russia and other nations. He said the United States is sticking to its policy of firmness and 'not consent to settlements at the expense of principles.'"

Said the recently completed Italian and Balkan peace treaties would be submitted for Senate ratification as soon as they are signed in Paris next month. While they have some 'defects,' Mr. Truman said, 'further dispute and delay would gravely jeopardize political stability in Italy, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria.'

3. Asked Congress to "find ways where by we can fulfill our responsibilities" to European republics by admitting persons by admitting more of all faiths in the United States.

4. Declared a good start had been made on world economic reconstruction but that "we should continue to strive for an international trade system as free from obstructions as possible."

5. Reported that the "shadow of fear" of atomic war still hangs over the peaceful uses of atomic energy but that in its peaceful uses "rest our hope that this new force may be harnessed for good."

Bert Stevens, VFW post commander, said today a party for members and auxiliaries, and for non-member veterans and their families will be held at the VFW-Legion Hall tomorrow night, beginning at 8.

'Dog's Love Remains Even to the Dead'—Puppy Keeps Watch Over Fallen Friend

And what has been written about dog, the perennial friend of man? There is that about the lowly dog which will bring the tear to a man's eye.

Spake the poet, Arsene Houssaye: "The more I see of dogs the less I think of men." And: "Whoever beats dogs loves not man."

This morning at the corner of Somerville and West Foster there sat shivering in an ice bank a small, nameless and masterless brown puppy, jealous of the curious eyes of those people who came by. He was guarding another puppy's body, apparently felled by a car. (There was blood on the ice).

The constant companion, who snarled when help was offered, had remained there so long that the warmth of his body had melted the ice about him, and he was sitting in a hole. He had snuggled his head up under the body of the dead puppy.

Both were males. The police were contacted, and they said the street department would care for the living—and the dead.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The House Military Committee today decision to defer action on President Truman's request for universal training.

The minority leader, Martin told the committee he believed the United States first should "work for the abolition of compulsory military service" through the United Nations, meanwhile maintaining "a strong army, and a strong navy, and a strong air force in being."

Now under Republican domination, the Military Committee is expected to give early consideration to Martin's 1946 resolution calling for international arms reduction and renoucement of conscription.

GOPsters Seeking Conscription Ban

WASHINGTON—(AP)—House Republicans under the leadership of Speaker Martin may soon launch a drive for an international ban on peacetime military conscription.

And, until such a drive meets either success or failure, the membership of the new dominant party is expected to oppose any kind of universal training program for this country.

It was Martin's opposition last year that weighed heavily in the House Military Committee decision.

The minority leader, Martin told the committee he believed the United States first should "work for the abolition of compulsory military service" through the United Nations, meanwhile maintaining "a strong army, and a strong navy, and a strong air force in being."

Now under Republican domination, the Military Committee is expected to give early consideration to Martin's 1946 resolution calling for international arms reduction and renoucement of conscription.

Saar Controversy Up to Foreign Chiefs

BERLIN—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy American military governor in Germany, said today that the Foreign Ministers' Council, and not the Allied control authority for Germany, would handle the Saar controversy.

Clay announced to a news conference that the United States state department had told him that the matter would be taken up on a government level by the Foreign Ministers at their meeting in Moscow next March.

NEW LEADER TO PILOT U. S. CAREER WOMEN

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Sally Butler was born on an Indiana farm—the youngest of 13 children. Her mother died in giving her birth. Her father, who was then 64, swept the motherless baby into the curve of his strong arm and—figuratively—kept her there.

As the years passed the dark-eyed little girl, and the broad-shouldered Hoosier farmer, trading a cornfield together or searching a hayrack for eggs, consulted and solved every problem that concerned her—from a broken doll to the pattern for work and life.

Gradually there grew in Sally Butler's mind the strong conviction that men understand some things better and women understand other things better and that the best thinking of both is needed to get the best solution of a problem. Gradually too she acquired the conviction of her father (who educated his daughters as well as his sons) that women should bear their share of responsibility in world affairs.

She has carried both those convictions through life and now they bid fair to influence the lives of others. After Sally Butler finished country school she was graduated from Indian State Teachers College, taught school awhile, entered civil service in World War I, got a law degree, sold war bonds for Uncle Sam in World War II, and now is a member of the Treasury Department staff contacting women's organizations.

Today Miss Butler—a tall vigorous woman with a million-dollar smile—is the new elected president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women and stands in a position to influence the thinking and activity of 102,000 American career women who might influence millions more.

"If we have another war, it will be women's fault," she said on a recent flying trip to New York from Indianapolis. "Women have not accepted the responsibilities that are theirs. We have all the advantages and none of the hard work. By the millions, we pay no attention to who is elected to represent us or what they do after they are elected."

"Women complain because they are not at the peace table. To get there you have to come up through the ranks by hard work. The door was opened to women 25 years ago, but few took the time and energy to qualify for the top positions that will make peace."

"But they are much needed in these positions. It will take the best thinking and influence of both men and women to build up a moral and social structure that will make peace."

Miss Butler has outlined a set of aims toward which the Federation will work. It includes:

1. Large numbers of women elected to Congress and appointed to service in United Nations Commissions.
2. Jury service for women.
3. Enactment of the equal rights amendment.
4. Further appropriation for the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor.
5. Legislation regarding child labor.

STORE SURPLUS TOYS CHILD PSYCHOLOGIST ADVISES

Child Will Enjoy Surprises During Lean Days Ahead

By RAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Store some of the toys that Santa showered on the children and you can stretch the feast of gifts over the lean months ahead. Dr. Grace Langdon, consulting child psychologist to toy manufacturers and New York educators, says:

"Children, already excited by the Christmas holiday, are surfeited by the deluge of new toys. Since they can't enjoy all the playthings at once, some are shoved aside and disregarded. It's better to put the surplus away and dole it out gradually when the child is sick, bored or tired of his other toys."

How to store toys to give types year-round pleasure from the Christmas bonanza? Here are Dr. Langdon's tips:

1. Encourage children to approve your storage campaign by having them select which toys to hold out. Let them help you rewrap and pack away the toys.
2. Don't discard Christmas wrappings—Rewrap the gifts as suggested and tuck extra sheets into boxes of toys for the two- and three-year-olds whose tiny fingers will find hours-long occupation wrapping and unwrapping a favored object.
3. Store together surplus toys that resemble each other in design or purpose (puzzles, pounding boards, plait toys, etc.). Put these into a "Rainy Day" box, where they'll be ready to brighten a gloom day. Into this box, too, might go old toys that will seem new when they're dug out again.
4. Tuck toys that seem too young for your child into a "Convalescent Box." When a child is overtired or sick abed he enjoys the simpler toys.

Why Not Resolve to Do Less This Year?

By RUTH MILLET
NEA Staff Writer

Even though the beginning of a new year is that time when most folks tell themselves they are going to do more in the year ahead than they did in the year just passed, one wise woman is resolving to do much less.

Her is that she—like most other women of today—is attempting to do too much. She is spreading herself so thinly over a number of interests and a hoard of acquaintances that she hasn't nearly time enough for her family and really good friends.

So she is resolving to simplify her life. To look at all her activities with a critical eye and the real question, "Is this really important or necessary?"

In every case where the answer is "No"—the activity is going to be thrown out.

It's a good idea, isn't it? Occasionally to sort out the activities, the assumed responsibilities, the associations that fill one's life, in the closet or the accumulation of possessions stored away in dresser drawers and trunks, in attics and basements—to see what is still serviceable and what is just so much excess baggage.

Interests should change with each passing year. And they usually do. But all too often women overlook that fact, and instead of getting rid of outgrown or useless activities just keep piling new interests on top of the old.

DISCARD THE OLD
That makes for a cluttered life and a hurried, harried individual—one who is always moaning, "I never seem to have time for the things I really want to do."

—So before we make any resolutions about taking on new jobs and new interests in 1947, perhaps, like the woman mentioned, we should sort out the old and see what can be discarded ruthlessly for once and all.

That is a system bound to make any new year a less hectic period of living.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui, many women say, has brought relief from the cramp-like aches and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, and help you get your "bite" back. It should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic distress.

Splendid Cough Relief, Mixed In Your Kitchen

No Trouble. No Cooking. Saves Big Dollars.

Yes, ma'am, right in your own kitchen, you can easily mix a cough medicine that is a wonder for quick results, and gives you about four times as much for your money. And it's no trouble—a child could do it. You'll need a syrup. Make it by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Now get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugstore, pour it into a pint bot-le, and fill up with your syrup. There you have a full pint of remarkable medicine for coughs due to throat irritation—children love it. And does it do the work! You'll say it's hard to beat, for real relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of dried pine—children love it, in concentrated form for quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Just mix it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Parent Education Club Will Meet

The Parent Education Club will meet in the home of Mrs. Julian Key, Tuesday afternoon at 2:45.

The Rev. E. Clyde Smith of the First Methodist Church will give a special talk on "Youth and Religion." Mrs. L. N. Atchison will discuss "Youth in Our Community," and the program will be followed by a business meeting.

Mrs. Robert Gordon will be nursery hostess.

Gene Stratton Porter wrote many of her books about nature at Limberlost cabin, Blyvan Lake, near Rome City, Ind.

FUNNY FEELINGS due to MIDDLE AGE

This great medicine is famous to relieve hot flashes, weak, tired, irritable, nervous feelings—when due to the "functional middle-age" period, peculiar to women. All drugstores.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Tired, "All-In" Listless Feeling Brought To Halt

As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, fed-down, and-out, all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wear down the red-blood-cells.

Every very hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat when it is non-organic, only too little or scanty—the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous as you ever were, throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better. Get better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh, full out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps build sturdy health.

WHEN I WAS YOUNG
On his return home from the UN session in New York, Field Marshall Smuts, South Africa's venerable prime minister, made a couple of speeches defending his country's racial policies and deprecating the idea of racial and religious equality.

In one of these speeches Marshal Smuts exclaimed, "At the United Nations I heard nothing but the word 'equality.' Equality! I have been a student of history, politics and philosophy, but this is a new word to me. When I was young we learned and spoke of fair play and justice, not equality."

That is a familiar line of reasoning which always has baffled us, along with a great many others. It is a line of reasoning at once boastful and apologetic, and usually illogical. Yet how often have we not heard—or used—such words as these to defend a position or terminate a discussion:

"When I was a boy (or girl) I was always taught to believe so and so."

The prime virtue always seems to be that the speaker was taught to believe so and so "when he was young." A changing world, the labor of scholars and scientists and a consequent advancement of knowledge, even the intellectual growth of the speaker seem to count for nothing.

The fact that a person has learned something at his mother's knee or in the primary grades of a country school lends a potency and almost a sanctity to the information in question. The possibility that this information might be inadequate or even false is beside the point.

Thus any assortment of antiquated ideas on ethics, politics, morals or what you will can frequently be defended by this maneuver. Logic may have the defender on the ropes. Present circumstances may end his position hopeless. But at the last minute he can always assume a look of superiority and announce, in properly reverential tones, "Well, all that may be so. But when I was young I was always taught to believe . . ."

Even so learned a man as Prime Minister Smuts is a victim of this ancestor-worship and petrified consistency of thought. Nor is he alone among the UN delegates in his affliction. Such thinking, conscious or unconscious, is one of the great impediments to the achievement of a stable and trustworthy peace.

Too many of the men now entrusted with the world's fate seem to have been taught to believe when they were young that:

They were superior citizens of a superior nation;

All foreigners were a little peculiar and more than a little suspect;

"My country, right or wrong" was the ideal attitude in international relations;

Certain races and religions were inferior by nature, and hence it was right and proper to hate them and debase them.

World peace is not going to thrive on a diet of what Marshal Smuts and other oldsters learned and spoke of when they were young. What is needed is some thoroughly new, courageously original thinking, not quotations of childhood precepts.

MACKENZIE'S Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Your columnist took the occasion in last Saturday's article to emphasize that after all we do live in "one world" and that the interests of each nation are interlocked with those of all other countries.

We return to this thought today to remedy an oversight. It must be admitted that when I spoke of an interdependent globe I didn't have in mind our relations to the frozen wastes of Antarctica. Week-end developments, however, direct our attention to the highly important fact that an international race is developing to stake claims around the South Pole.

The National Geographic Society reminds us that "explorers have found it cruel and rugged, colder than the Arctic and swept by pounding, snow-laden winds, and that Antarctica as a whole is higher above the sea than any other continent, probably averaging 6,000 feet in altitude."

The National Geographic also reminds us that scientists believe Antarctica holds mineral resources valuable to man. Indications are that a million years ago this polar region had a climate favoring vegetation such as the United States.

A suggestion that the whole issue of conflicting claims be turned over to the International Court or be placed under the jurisdiction of the United Nations has been advanced in several quarters, but has been now has. Beneath the ice-cap may lie vast wealth, including minerals which can be utilized in developing atomic energy.

With America's big expedition under Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd well on its way to Antarctica, Argentina now has started one. With the Argentines are two Chilean observers, and it is stated that Chile will launch an expedition of its own at the end of this month.

Australia is said to be planning to dispatch an expedition to further her claim to some 2,500,000 square miles of territory. These four nations, however, are by no means the only ones interested. Besides them are Norway, Japan, Britain, Russia, France, Belgium and Germany.

Washington officials yesterday disclosed that the United States plans to claim the big share of the Antarctic Continent. Edward E. Bomar, of the AP Washington Bureau, in recording this development said the American right is expected to be based largely on the claims in the northwest sector of the continent advanced by Lincoln W. Ellsworth and Admiral Byrd. They said the United States could justly claim at least 1,000,000 square miles and perhaps 800,000 square miles more, extending to the South Pole.

A suggestion that the whole issue of conflicting claims be turned over to the International Court or be placed under the jurisdiction of the United Nations has been advanced in several quarters, but has been considered only in a general way. Washington officials say the proposals will be taken up in conferences during the coming spring.

INTERIOR ISSUES

WASHINGTON, (NEA)—How much restraint the victorious Republicans will show in dipping into the public bill will be a matter worth watching in the new Congress. While "Economy!" and "Stop Government Spending!" were two of the principal battle cries of the Republicans in the last campaign, every congressman likes to do something handsome for his home folks, particularly at government expense.

This activity will show up clearly when Department of Interior appropriations come up for action. In his message of a year ago President Truman came out strongly for development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway project, and for creation of Columbia and Missouri River Valley Authorities.

Democratic Sen. Hugh Mitchell of Washington sponsored Columbia valley legislation in the last Congress. It wasn't re-elected. But Democratic Sen. James E. Murray of Montana, who backed the Missouri Valley plan, and Republican Senator George D. Aiken of Vermont, who was the longest-winded speaker for the St. Lawrence project, are both back and are sure to be heard from.

While there are shortages of building materials and construction labor for housing, there is good reason to hold back on public works. Passage of authorization acts to put these projects on the shelf until building conditions improve is, however, a distinct possibility.

OFF YEAR FOR LOG-ROLLING
One of the big talking points for departments of Interior protests in Congress has been to spread them around, getting a number for each state. A national park or monument here, such project, there were there, a dam, forest or reclamation project out yonder. A little simple, old-fashioned log-rolling gets most of them passed.

But this year, under White House and Budget Bureau pressure for down-holding and general reluctance of the Democratic executive to ask the Republicans for anything they may not give, many of these pet projects may be scratched off the boards.

The legislation to be asked for on behalf of the Department of Interior is representative of the broad field of activities it covers. Most of it was requested from but not acted on by the last Congress.

Creation of an Evacuation Claims Commission to handle claims for property lost by U. S. citizens of Japanese extraction during their detention in War Relocation Centers here, such project, there were there, 100 Japanese-Americans evacuated between December, 1941, and January, 1945. Only about half were able to return to pre-war Harbor homes.

Now much damage they sustained through loss of business, abandonment of property, lapse of insurance and so on cannot be estimated accurately. If only $100 per capita, the loss would be more than $10 million. Present plans are to ask that all these claims be cleaned up within a three-year period, and adjusted without cluttering up the courts.

Common Ground

By E. C. HOLLES

Why I Oppose "Collective Bargaining"

The reason I have said so much about collective bargaining is that I am convinced that the workers as a whole would not only be happier and more contented if there were no collective bargaining but their annual wage levels would be much higher today than they are. It all seems very plain to me.

Now the Committee for Constitutional Government has just re-elected an interfered by Dr. Willford I. King, New York University economist and former president of the American Statistical Association, which gives the figures to show that the number of people belonging to labor unions has nothing to do with the increase in real wages that workers have received since the close of the first World War.

Dr. King points out that the reason we have had laws that bring on armed bands, called by courtesy "picket lines," that have persisted in their defiance of the right of supposedly free Americans to earn an honest living is that there is sympathy for those "under dogs." I quote from his article:

"The belief is almost universal that, in the past, wage workers have been ruthlessly exploited by employers and that this exploitation would be continued today were it not for the fact that labor has banded together into strong unions which have been able to meet the employers on their own terms. Everyone knows that not only nominal, but also real wages in all unionized industries have advanced sharply."

"The almost universal inference is that they have risen because of unionization.

"Were this assumption true, the existence of unions would probably be justified, for the excesses which they have committed; for, after all, laboring men and their families make up the largest segment of the population of our country. The avowed philosophy has been 'the greatest good to the greatest number.' It follows that the welfare of labor must be considered more or less synonymous with the welfare of the nation as a whole.

Examining The Facts
Not trained along scientific lines usually assume a matter of course that, when two things move in the same direction, one must be the cause of the other. The scientist, however, that this assumption is often contrary to fact. In many instances, the two variables may, indeed, be entirely unrelated. Therefore, before we can take it for granted that the great increase in the welfare of labor has been brought about by unionization, it behooves us to examine the fact rather than by politics.

"The best way to measure the general welfare of the employees in the nation is not to consider their earning per hour or per week, but to find out how much income they have received in the course of the year.

"This is true because, at times, people may work many hours, and, at other times, few hours per week. In some years, unemployment is widespread among those comprising the normal working force of the nation. When idle, their earnings stop and they must be supported by those who do work. Therefore, to see whether or not the employees of the nation are prosperous, the best method is to note the total size of the wage and salary bill of all employees in a given year."

Then Dr. King goes on to say that, at the same time, we should know the percentage of union members among employees habitually working and then see if the percentage of the total production going to employees changes when the percentage of unionization increases or decreases.

I will give in the next issue these percentages.

Those who operate our factories can reduce production at any time the market is glutted. The farmer can only reduce production by not planting at the beginning of a crop year.

—Sen. Richard B. Russell (D of Georgia)

considered only in a general way. Washington officials say the proposals will be taken up in conferences during the coming spring.

REGULATION—American Army officers in Germany Occupation Zone have been charged with looking alien property, black marketing and similar high crimes. But our commander in that area, General Joseph T. McNarney, in sending holiday gifts to Washington friends, has observed every regulation which he has promulgated.

Signed with his own hand, although his wife, Helena, makes out the description of the gift articles, he avers that their value does not exceed $50, meaning that he has not looked at the art galleries or museums. He even complies with our customs provisions for such imports.

Incidentally, General McNarney's favorite gift to old Washington friends who knew him when he was only a lieutenant is antique German wine coasters.

Progress will not come by violent operations in a world rife of violent operations, but by slow, steady accretion.

—Arthur Sweetser, UN Washington office chief.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, (NEA)—Humphrey Bogart finally signed that new Warner contract which will pay him $5,000,000 over a 15-year period—but it cost the Warner attorney 75 cents in cash, out of his own pocket.

For a minute the Warners almost had apoplexy. Bogart refused to sign, Bogie said he and Lauren Bacall had discovered that the contract had been changed from the one they originally approved.

The Warner attorney, Roy Obringer, said that was impossible.

Then Bogie turned to page 30 of the 68-page contract and said the studio, in breaking down the payments on a per-picture basis, had shortchanged him five cents per picture.

"And over a 15-year period," spoke up Baby, gravely, "that amounts to 75 cents."

"You'll have to rewrite it," said Bogie, starting to walk out.

Obringer, realizing it was a rib, tossed 75 cents into his desk.

Baby picked it up, and Bogart signed the contract — for $4,999,999.25.

The suggestion came from an eastern publisher. . . After struggling for years to lose her Texas drawl, Ann Sheridan plays a Texas gal, drawl and all, in "Unfaithful."

NO "LITTLE SISTER"
Rita Lupino doesn't want to be known as Ida's little sister any more and probably will change her name to Rita O'Shea for her film debut as the Goddess of Michler in "One Touch of Venus."

The Lupino tribe is yelling "murder," of course, because since Louis L. L'Amour's "The Wolf" hit in 1954 there has always been a Lupino enterprising somehow.

But Rita is adamant—she doesn't want to trade on Ida's name in Hollywood.

For the first time in the history of 20th Century-Fox, the studio is shooting a picture in script sequence. It's "Forever Amber" and as director Otto Preminger explains it: "We're going about it logically—lover by lover."

Betty Grable's reaction to being laced in with corsets to a mere 20-inch waistline for "Mother Wore Tights": "Maybe the fans will like it, but personally, I think I look like a bee."

But How Big?
SHERMAN—(P)—Approximately 3,000,000 bass are to be planted in Lake Texoma this year. Marion Toole, chief aquatic biologist for the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, has announced. An even larger number is expected to be planted by the state of Oklahoma.

Gracie Reports

By GRACIE ALLEN

Well, I see that Chicago's public librarian claims that murder mystery stories are losing favor with the reading public.

I suppose people can't work up much interest in fiction when they're busy trying to solve such a real mystery as "Where can I find an apartment?" or "How much higher can prices go?"

The mysteries I read were beginning to affect my life. It got so that I couldn't go to a house party without sneaking around behind the guests to make sure that nobody's back had a knife in it. And whenever I saw a Chinese gentleman, I could hardly resist hurriedly explaining that no member of my family had ever stolen a rub from the eye of his favorite idol.

But in another way, the passing of the "whodunit" would be quite a blow. What else in the world could I find to keep George awake in the evenings?

HOMES, FARMS, INCOME AND BUSINESS PROPERTY
If you want to rent a good business building, I have a party who wants to build one. Would start it just as soon as the weather is fitting.

I have a good home in the west part of town, close in, that I have been trying to sell for $500, and can't get it. The home, no. 1, have priced it at $500 as I must sell it. The owner lives out of town and is in need of the money. You could buy this home for $500, and you couldn't buy the lot for less than $500, let alone plant the trees, build the garage, fence in the backyard.

Here's another bargain in a duplex, I started in to sell this for $600, and I'm going to try and sell it for $500. It is really worth the money. There's quite a bit of furniture in it, in fact one side is furnished. It would rent for around 50 to 90 dollars, so investment as the thing goes would be around $500, and you could have it in one side and rent the other, and still have more than the payments would run, have some nice houses that can be bought with the money now, and I can even take in some good autos on the deal.

I also have some good farms, and some not so good. We can fix you up on nearly any kind of land that you would want. Of course, the price depends on what you buy.

Some of you people that want to get in the laundry business, I have just what you are looking for. I have a well equipped laundry that is ready to go. All you have to have is the building, and I will sell you the equipment well below what you could buy it for, even if you could buy it.

Gather Ye Rosebuds

By JEANNETTE COVERT NOLAN

XXVI

It was eleven-thirty when Jeff got home. The lamp in the parlor was lighted and Sidney was sleeping in a chair. Puzzled, Jeff stood over her, looking down and thinking that she was somehow very appealing so, he had back, the long line of her neck flowing into the rounded line of her breast, body inert, long legs graceful with strong, slim ankles. If he had not forewarned such things he would have liked to sketch her in this pose and call the sketch "A Sleeping Beauty." For Sidney was really beautiful—not, of course, as Rose was, all peaches and cream and perfection, but with a kind of lean, vigorous symmetry. She had good bones. Awake, she was often too vigorous, too emphatic for beauty; but softened by repose, her eyes closed—

She opened her eyes. "Hello!" Jeff pointed his thumb toward the ceiling. "Everybody else hit the hay?"

She nodded. "I've got something to tell you."

And without further comment she handed him a letter. He read in silence:

Dear Miss Cameron:

We are interested in your brother's pictures. We plan to launch in the near future a coast-to-coast campaign to publicize our products, not the least of which is Spanky Mule Plug, the tobacco your brother has so amusingly exploited. If, as you say, Mr. Jefferson Davis Cameron is seeking a position as a commercial artist, we suggest that he come to our New York office September 19 and confer with our advertising manager.

It is quite possible that we may have a place on our staff for a young man of such marked originality. . . .

JEFF looked up. "It's from the tobacco company."

My must have a little laid by, Papa."

"No, don't count him in. That's why I'm strapped. I did have fifty dollars, but I lent it to Papa."

"What?" Sidney said. "What?"

He told her, and couldn't see why Papa's borrowing should excite her, making her look worried and scared, sending her frowning down the room to the window where she stood with her back to him. "Listen, Sid—" He stopped. Rose was coming in. "Well, what do you want?" Jeff said rudely.

ROSE had on bathrobe and slippers, and was yawning. "I heard you muttering down here. It woke me. Hours of muttering. Is anything wrong?"

Jeff gave her the tobacco company's letter; she carried it to the lamp, stooping to read.

"Oh, Jeff, darling! You're going? I'm so glad!"

He grinned cautiously. "Don't be too glad yet. It may not pan out."

"It will pan out," said Sidney somberly, from the window.

"Of course, it will!" Rose's face was radiant. "But I won't say anything. Oh, Jeff, let me hug you!"

She hugged him, and he ruffled her hair.

"There's a hitch," he said. "Money. Have you got any money, Rose?"

She shook her head. "How much do you have?"

"I have a few. One way if I didn't get the job, I could earn enough in New York for a return ticket. Sweeping streets, washing dishes in a greasy spoon, some darned job or other."

"Couldn't you save up?" Rose asked him.

"No. You see, the letter says September nineteenth."

"But maybe the tobacco people would postpone it."

Sidney said, without turning around: "The nineteenth is ten days off. He has to go before the nineteenth—or never. So he couldn't save up."

"Anyway," Jeff said, "it would take months to scrape out railroad fare from my bank salary. Months!"

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLES

SOMEWHERE OVER BRIDGE-FORT, Conn.—Here I am 196 feet up in a helicopter in a cottony fog with nothing between me and the snowbound Connecticut landscape except a cold wind and the law of gravity.

And if Congress wants to repeal that law right now, I don't know of a better way for the people's representatives to earn their money.

What bothers me is that I ain't going nowhere—just sitting here in midair with a couple of kids on ice skates down below on a frozen pond waving "hello."

"It's the nearest thing yet to a hummingbird," says my pilot, Jimmy Viner, 38, who also admits that a hummingbird is the nearest the ornithological world and the Audubon Society have ever come to the hovering flight of the helicopter.

How did I come to be up here holding my breath at old Isaac Newton's Gravity Legislation? Ten minutes ago I had never even seen a helicopter. Now look at me.

"Come on up for a ride," said Jimmy, who has spent some 900 hours aloft in helicopters developed by his famous uncle, Igor Sikorsky, at the Sikorsky Division of United Aircraft Corporation here.

I said "sure" because I thought he was kidding. A 200-foot ceiling and low visibility had grounded all commercial airplanes in the East.

Now here I am. It seems Jimmy and Helicopters don't worry about the weather.

"Nothing to worry about," said Jimmy.

The thing started whirling—it has a whirling three-bladed main rotor overhead for the chief power and a smaller three-bladed vertical tail rotor to stabilize it.

I braced for the takeoff along the short runway. But instead of going forward we shot upward and back into the air.

Jimmy begins to feel the exuberance of his Russian ancestors. He does some more acrobatics with the stick and we slide through the air to port like a left-legged crab late to a date. He swings it the other way and we shift over to starboard. Jimmy makes it float backward, smooth as a rowing shell.

Up and down, backward, forward, sideways, Jimmy is making his S-31 do everything except sing "Mammy." Now the crowd is coming up again. Hello, Connecticut. Jimmy sets her down into the snow without jar as tenderly as mother putting her first-born into the blankets.

Death Here

high with old newspapers, empty and full tin cans, locked boxes, chests. Refuse was stacked all over the little shack leaving only a few feet of floor space to walk. Hanley's bed was piled high with old cardboard cartons, boxes and other possessions. It was so loaded that Hanley, according to all appearances, had to make himself a bed on the floor between his coat and the west wall of the house.

For light he used a kerosene lamp as there were no signs of electricity or electric light bulbs in the house.

His partially clothed body was found lying close to the unlocked east door. He apparently had sat down on a box, took off his shoes and socks, and fell backwards on the floor.

Other friends of Hanley, questioned by sheriff's deputies, revealed that Hanley had worked as a pumpjack up until about seven or eight years ago and had lived in the shanty for some time.

Only close to any other outside friends or relatives was a Christmas card postmarked Dec. 12, 1945, from Monument, New Mexico. The card was signed by H. J. Lofland.

Editors to Discuss U.S. Foreign Policy

NEW YORK—American foreign policy will be discussed during almost three weeks of the American Press Institute's four-week seminar for newspaper editors and editorial writers, beginning Jan. 20. Floyd Taylor, Institute director, announced yesterday.

Taylor said the Institute's fourth seminar at Columbia University would be attended by 26 editors and editorial writers.

Those selected to attend the fourth seminar include:

Robert B. McCracken, managing editor, the Corpus Christi, Texas, Caller-Times; Richard West, editorial writer, the Dallas Morning News; R. O. Zoungier, chief editorial writer, the Austin Texas, American-Statesman.

ultimately be turned into a blessing for all nations."

Linking his military proposals to his foreign policy, Mr. Truman introduced that portion of his message by saying that "we live in a world in which strength on the part of peace-loving nations is still the greatest deterrent to aggression."

He added:

"World stability can be destroyed when nations with great responsibilities neglect to maintain the means of discharging those responsibilities."

The President said that by July 1, 1947, the Army would be reduced to 1,670,000 officers and men and the Navy through the fiscal years beginning on that date would average 571,000, including the Marine Corps. That gives an armed strength total of 1,641,000.

U. S. Settles Up With Philippines

MANILA—U. S. Ambassador Paul V. McNutt is due back in Manila from Baguio tomorrow to present a check to President Manuel Roxas for $25,000,000 as final settlement on an agreement between the United States and the Philippine Republic.

The U. S. already has turned over to the Philippines surplus property with a book value of $600,000,000, at various military bases in the islands.

Mr. Almsworth was a driver for the Panhandle Lumber Company. The couple leaves a son, William, of Tucson, Ariz.; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Slate, Berger, and Mrs. Verna Thompson, Las Vegas, N. M., and two grandchildren.

He was taken to Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home, pending further arrangements.

January 15 Tax Filing Deadline For Certain Group

Although only about one out of every five taxpayers need bother before March 15, January 15 is nevertheless an important date for some wage-earners, according to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

It is the deadline for filing, amending and paying 1946 declarations of estimated tax.

In issuing the reminder, the collector cautioned taxpayers not to confuse the January 15 tax date with the usual March 15 deadline for filing final 1946 income tax returns.

The largest group affected this month is the farmers, who were excused by law from estimating their 1946 tax early in that year, and, therefore, must file their declarations or final returns and pay the tax now.

Certain wage-earners and professional people are also affected. This group was supposed to have filed declarations of their 1946 tax last March 15, and generally will have only to pay the final installment on such declarations. However, those who failed to file should do so now, and those who wish to change their estimates to avoid the penalty for underestimating by more than 20 percent have until January 15 to file.

Those who also must file include wage-earners who, in addition to their wages, had more than $100 income from other sources, such as income from rents, dividends, sale of property, etc.

Also those whose wages, even though subject to withholding exceeded $5,000, plus $500 for each exemption except their own and domestic servants or farm laborers who had no tax withheld from their wages.

Duck hunters and anti-duck hunters alike will appreciate this bit of poetry put out by a sporting goods store in San Angelo:

The poor duck hunter in his Is chilled in front and wet behind. It's seven hours since he fed. And twenty since he's been to bed. It cost him near a hundred bucks. To hide himself from silly ducks, Which, presently, ere day dawns dim Will rise and hide themselves from him.

In Waco, though, geese are delivered by other geese and you don't have to hide in blinds.

Joe Harvey said he saw two wild geese carrying a third goose by holding his wings. They dropped the patient on the George Hueffner home.

That's what Joe said. This fact is definitely established: The Hueffners had the geese for dinner, with Christmas fixings. They said it had been shot, but was still alive when they found it. Mrs. Hueffner said meat was far too costly for them to overlook a goose so conveniently delivered.

And in Bonham, they have self-delivering quail. Bernice Cockrill, a Bonham farmer, said one flew into his kitchen to escape a hawk. It was killed as it crashed through the window. They ate the quail for supper.

It's common to look for lost dogs; but in Dallas they were looking for a "lost writer."

A dog bit six-year-old Tommy Rea Rodgers. The dog was taken to the city pound. An intensive search began for the owner, to determine if the dog had been vaccinated for rabies.

If not, they would have to give the child 14 to 18 injections.

volunteers. Within a few weeks after a survey has been made, he added, the department will make its recommendation as to whether it is necessary to extend the Selective Service law, now due to expire on March 31.

Saying the nation's goal is "collective security for all mankind," Mr. Truman closed his message on this solemn note:

"If we can work in a spirit of understanding and mutual respect, we can fulfill this solemn obligation which rests upon us."

"May the Lord strengthen us in our faith."

"May he give us wisdom to lead the people of the world in the ways of peace."

Steel wages have outstripped the Cost of living

Everybody's battling the high cost of living these days. On the average, steel workers' wages have kept ahead of the advance in the cost of necessities.

Since January 1939, weekly earnings of steelworkers have increased by 63* per cent. Meanwhile, according to government figures,* consumers' prices (cost of living) have gone up 45 per cent.

This means that there has been a substantial increase since 1939 in the buying power of the average weekly wage of steelworkers.
