

Soda-Water Paste Relieves Burn of Sun-Scorched Skin

MISS HALE: Soothes sunburn.

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Some of the most panicky trips to the bathroom cabinet for relief for sun-scorched skins come when a girl thinks she has become immune to a burn.

If you have to seek relief, the best remedy—because it's usually handiest—is a paste made of water and bicarbonate of soda. Or plain cooking soda, for that matter.

Using this remedy is no fun, so don't invite it by staying out too long. The treatment involves plastering your smarting skin with the paste, and keeping the application wet, all of which is pretty messy. But, according to Movie Star Barbara Hale, who claims she has saved her skin with this remedy, it works by stopping the action of the burn.

Of course, laundry starch, used to soften your bath water, serves as a dependable demulcent for a burning skin. It leaves an invisible film that stays on, if you'll gently tap yourself dry, and continues to soothe skin and reduce irritation. There are also unguents that will calm down an angry skin.

Serious burns, which cause you to run a temperature, is something else again. That's a danger signal run up by the body which says that you've stayed out too long and exposed too great a body area to burning rays. That's the cue to see a doctor. But quick. Don't try to palliate a serious burn with simple home remedies.

Doris Schoolcraft, Eugene Mattherus Married Recently

Miss Doris Schoolcraft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Schoolcraft, of Ralls, and Eugene Mattherus, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mattherus, of Mobeetie, were married at the Ralls First Methodist church recently.

The church was decorated in palms and cut flowers. Rev. Noel Bryant, pastor of the church, read the double ring ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. T. C. Lyle of Ralls and Miss Georgia Martin of Lorraine sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was dressed in a white slipper satin gown with a fitted bodice, full skirt, long and pointed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion. She carried white gladioli bordered with white ribbon. Her only piece of jewelry was a necklace of pearls which was a gift of the groom.

Mrs. J. W. Criswell, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. She wore a dress of orchid net with a matching tiara. She carried pink roses.

The bride's other attendants were Miss Janice Caffee and Miss Vera Lou Alired, who wore dresses of pink and blue net with matching tiaras and carried harmonizing bouquets.

Jack Riley of Brisco attended the groom as best man. Ushers were Eavid Hunt of Abilene and W. B. McSpadden of Rotan.

The bride is a graduate of Ralls high school and attended McMurray college in Abilene.

The bridegroom graduated from McMurray last may and will enter Southern Methodist university this fall as a ministerial student.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Schoolcraft home. After the reception, the couple left on a wedding trip.

They are at home at 4136 Hanover in Dallas.

Gracie Reports

Well, I see that a Detroit police precinct is going to enforce an old ordinance that makes a man liable to arrest if he ogles young ladies. I don't know why it's being limited to just one precinct unless they are planning to put there all the young ladies who don't like to be ogled, like we put buffaloes on reservations. If so they should put buffaloes in it. They're much easier to find than young ladies who don't like to be ogled.

According to the lieutenant of that precinct, ogling means "looking me over," but I think that's unfair. Goodness, they'll be arresting innocent men who stare at every girl approaching to see if she's the one sweetie-pie who's forty-five minutes late. To be fair, every policeman should carry a small tape measure and release any ogler whose eyes pop out less than an inch.

Daughter Of Mine

THE STORY: Corinna tells me that Cecily had been secretly engaged to Stevie Ralston. She gave him back his fraternity pin after a quarrel about Val. And Val is mad at Cecily because she took Stevie's pin in the first place.

XIII

ANOTHER new experience was awaiting Cecily at Della's. Stevie Ralston had gone home to pour his wrath into his mother's ears while Cecily was sitting in her coupe outside the Downs' being told by the president of her sorority that Val was not acceptable to the club as one of its "dates."

Myrtle Ralston, evidently afraid of the emotional dynamite of the inevitable reconciliation, got on the phone with no time lost.

"Mrs. Halliday," she said lightly to Della, "this is almost too childish to bother you with, but my son has just told me that he and your daughter have considered themselves secretly engaged this past semester."

Mrs. Ralston was in no position even to guess what great good news she had given Della. Let Myrtle Ralston try shutting doors now on Stevie's future mother-in-law!

"I can't say I'm surprised," Della said sweetly. "After all, they've been crazy about each other since they were babies."

"I suppose we should have been warned," Mrs. Ralston agreed. "But I never dreamed they were taking their friendship so seriously! We've never allowed Stevie to go steady with any one girl, but of course he has dated Cecily more frequently than anyone else—"

"And if he has," said Della, nettled, "it was because he asked her well in advance. Cecily has always been able to take her choice."

Mrs. Ralston was no fool. She caught the hint of matters below the surface.

"Of course she has been popular, Mrs. Halliday," she said cautiously. "Cecily is a very attractive girl. And of course you want her to be sure that she's in love—"

"Apparently she's made her choice," said Della.

Mrs. Ralston asked incredulously, "You don't mean that you'd approve of Cecily's age?"

"Cecily is fully mature for 17," Della said. "I can trust her judgment."

"How fortunate you are!" Mrs. Ralston indulged in an injudicious feline laugh that rubbed Della the wrong way even more than her words had done. "All this wild talk about killing Val if he doesn't leave Cecily alone convinces me more than ever that Stevie is still an adolescent at 19!"

"I DON'T know why," said Della, spinning things out so that she might savor them to the full. "Older men fight when someone tries to cut in on their woman. She used the last word maliciously. 'It's quite natural.'"

"It may be natural," Mrs. Ralston conceded icily, "but you'd feel differently, Mrs. Halliday, if it were your son who was threatening another boy. I don't want him to mess up his life or Val's."

"I guess I should be thankful that I have a girl," Della said, trying to be as exasperating as possible.

"I'm sure you should," Mrs. Ralston returned, by this time every inch the enemy that Della had determined her to be. Long experience in women's clubs armed Myrtle for her next shot.

"Thank you, Mrs. Halliday, for making your stand so clear in this matter. I had hoped we could cooperate with each other but I see I shall have to handle the situation alone. And I am very thankful that Cecily did give Stevie back his pin. I am sure that her judgment is more reliable than her mother's!"

Her last remark, of course, was intended to make Della smart, but the information about the pin was the thunderbolt. Della was frantically telephoning me before the click of the Ralston connection ceased reverberating.

"I hope you're satisfied!" she railed. "Throwing the Marlin street brat at her every time she turned around. This is your doing! You've ruined her life!"

I SIMPLY couldn't help it. I burst out laughing.

"Oh, it's all right for you to laugh!" Della sputtered, even more enraged. "You never wanted anything better for Cecily. But there's only one boy in this town good enough for Cecily and that's Stevie Ralston. And if he wants him she's going to have him—whether you and Myrtle Ralston like it or not!"

"Apparently she doesn't want him," I pointed out.

"Certainly she does! Why would she want that gardener of yours? Stevie is better looking, he has more money—"

"Della," I cut in, "I'm not opposed to Cecily's marrying Stevie—I like him. But his mother is right. They're both too young—"

"I'd rather have her married young to the right boy than wait so long she has to grab anything she can get—"

I laughed again. "There's no danger of that—not with Cecily. Let her alone, Della. She'll be in love a dozen times before she settles down."

She cut me off without goodby just as Cecily came in to her, tear-stained and delectable. Della did not wait to hear her woes.

"Well, little Missy!" she greeted her. "Your great-great-grandfather who owned a plantation and was ambassador to France and never knew what it was to lift a hand for himself to the longest day he lived—he'd be very proud of you today—getting yourself mixed up with that playground flunky!"

Cecily, accustomed all her years to Della's approbation of her high-handedness, was beyond speech at this betrayal. She merely waited tensely, her eyes talking back to Della's, unprepared by any previous training to retract a word of what she had said earlier.

LOCAL POLITICAL LOYALTY

Democratic leaders in Rep. Andrew J. May's district are predicting that the Kentucky congressman will be helped rather than hurt in his re-election campaign by being linked with the Mead Committee's investigation of the Garsson munitions combine.

If that prediction proves correct, it will lend strength to the theory that a local candidate is seldom aided or injured by being the object of "outside interference." Of course there has been no mention of Mr. May's candidacy in the Garsson hearings. But the situation, as regards cause and effect, resembles some other recent and well-known instances.

American attacks on Gen. Juan Peron didn't prevent his being elected president of Argentina. Harold Stassen's support of Dwight Griswold in Nebraska and the President's good word for Burt Wheeler in Montana didn't stave off their defeat for senatorial nomination. A nationwide barrage of blasts at Sen. Theodore Bilbo only seemed to make him stronger at home.

Mr. May is making the most of his position as a hard-working local boy who's being kicked around. He has written his constituents that Sen. Jim Mead is "crucifying" him in the hope of getting elected governor of New York. He also gives an assist to "Reds and Pinks," who, he says, are out to get him for trying to keep atomic bomb secrets "from being given away to some foreign nation."

This is oversimplification, to say the least. There were bound to be war-profits scandals after this war, as after every war. They make fine political ammunition for the opposition—and some straws in the wind indicate that the republicans will gain control of the house in the next election.

So the smart thing for the democrats to do was beat the opposition to the punch and start the investigation themselves. The safe thing was to start them in the senate, where fewer seats are at stake and the democratic majority seems more secure.

A logical group to do the investigating was the wartime special committee to investigate the national defense program. It was Mr. Mead's political good fortune that seniority lifted him to the committee's top seat when Chairman Harry Truman went to the White House. A record of fearless, impartial investigation and examination would be a handy thing to carry into a campaign with former District Attorney Tom Dewey.

Maybe that's why Mr. Mead selected the Garsson case, complete with Congressman May, as a major production. Maybe not. After all, "Reds and Pinks" aren't the only ones opposed to Mr. May's favored plan of having military control of atomic energy, which his position as head of the house military affairs committee might help him put through.

Mr. May's present plight may be strategy or coincidence. But it will be interesting to see once again how regional pride and loyalty react to whatever cold, hard facts are brought out, when those facts concern a local boy who is getting a going-over from a bunch of strangers.

MACKENZIE'S Column

AP Foreign Editor Analyst Greece's bitter effort in the United Nations membership committee to keep Albania from joining the world organization is the reflection of a mighty dangerous Balkan situation. Vassili Demetriou, Greek representative to the U.N., charges that Albania is "not a peace loving state" as required for admission, and accuses her as staking 21 incidents on the border between Greece and Albania. The two countries, he maintains, have been at war since 1940.

On the other hand Dr. Ali Kuci, resistance leader in Albania's war-time underground, denies these allegations and says the Greeks are "waging a war of nerves" in efforts to Northern Epirus which Athens demands be returned by Albania. He asserts Greece has provoked such border clashes as occurred in the "Summer Holiday" set when Mani, an Albanian, in answer to Butch's query, said the grenades weren't loaded, disappointed Butch said he would think it over.

WASHINGTON HUNT FOR THE 3-MAN OPA BOARD NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

Common Ground

By R. C. HOILES Truman's Idea of Prices President Truman says that he doubts whether the present OPA law will enable him to stabilize prices. He implies by this that he would like to see a law that would enable him to stabilize prices.

The real price of anything is the human energy, the hours of labor, required to produce that human want. But Truman, of course, is talking about dollar prices. If there is some way that dollar prices could be kept down and the government could keep on issuing new credit and paper money as they have been doing for sixteen years, then why should we have any taxes at all to pay our government costs? Why should we not pay all our government costs with new credit or with borrowed, fiat money?

We have increased the volume of credit and fiat money used in this country as a medium of exchange by six times since 1933. We now have six times as many things called dollars as we had 13 years ago. Yet Truman would leave the impression that a law could be passed that would make a dollar now buy as much as when there were only one-sixth as many dollars. It is simply not possible. It is simply a matter of arithmetic. It shows that the President of the United States has not the least conception of the function of money.

Real money is a measure of human labor. But we have made it so easy to create a fiat credit dollar that it cannot be expected to buy as much other goods as it could when it represented the amount of labor required to find and mine a certain quantity of gold. When we were on the gold standard the politicians could not indefinitely change the quantity of money. When that was the case the public controlled the purse strings of government.

Now the President would leave the impression that the government can create fiat money; that the real cause of prices going up and still make it buy as much as when it was money with real value in itself. If the people elect such leaders as they will have to do with a lot of things because if this money is controlled by politicians it is controlled by things if it gets scarcer and scarcer because when we have no stable measuring stick of value, we cannot efficiently or economically divide labor. As a result production will go down and down.

THE RUSSIAN GLACIER MOVES WESTWARD

(The Christian Century) Slowly but implacably, with the irresistible weight of a glacier, Russia moves westward across Europe. Not everything that happened at the foreign ministers' meeting in Paris is known, but enough has been told the world for it to know that the edge of the glacier is still advancing. One line of hills that is being leveled is the Allied supposition that the end of reparations for her own instance, Russia has been awarded $100,000,000 in reparations from Italy and $300,000,000 from Bulgaria and Hungary in amount not specified were agreed on at Paris; summary they also go to Russia. Now Mr. Molotov claims $10,000,000,000 from Germany and insists that Allied troops remain in that country until the last dollar is paid. The sum is large enough to chain German productive capacity to Russia for a very long time.

Another feature of the European landscape that is being ground away is the Allied assumption that British, French and American influence will predominate west of the Trieste-Settin line. Mr. Molotov now claims that the Ruhr must be ruled by a four-power commission. He has also changed his views concerning the deindustrialization of Germany. He now attacks the agrarianization policy agreed on at Potsdam and insists on German unity, Britain and the United States, cautiously backed by France, who sees Russia as about to exchange her support for that of a revived Germany, counter this move by talk of a merger of their zones of occupation. With eastern Europe from the Baltic to the Balkans frozen under the Soviet, with Italy and Germany linked to the Soviet economy through reparations, the Big Four dwindled at Paris to the Big One and the Little Three. No wonder Russia at last was ready for the convocation of a conference of nations to discuss the future of Europe!

DEFENSE—Fast aircraft carriers equipped with jet-propelled planes—landing and take-off of the new type of aircraft. The Navy will be relied on for defense against enemy machines carrying atomic bombs. Submarines may be smaller, faster and able to submerge to a greater depth than present. An auxiliary ships—transport, supply vessels, etc.—must depend for safety or swiftness rather than on convoy units.

Finally, the main fighting vessel must be a self-sufficient unit, carrying its own jet planes and military stores. In short, present indications suggest that it must be a combination of battleship, carrier and transport—bits of buldog and the speed of a greyhound.

IRRITATED—President Truman's severe attack on Senator Robert A. Taft mentioned the Ohio legislator seventeen times in the veto of the original OPA extension bill—has been attributed to a witty wisecrack uttered by Mrs. Taft in a speech at Philadelphia. The gifted speaker regaled her listeners with a gag that has been going the rounds of Washington for some time: "To err is Truman."

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Notebook

By RUSSELL BRINES
 TOKYO—(AP)—Toshiro Kagawa, 58-year-old Christian minister, is probably the most active Japanese of the occupation—vigorously pushing plans ranging from a great Christian revival throughout Japan to solving food shortages.
 Impartial observers say the energetic little man retains great influence although some of his wartime speeches were considered abroad as Jingolistic.
 Early in the occupation he told me in an interview that he hated the word "defeat" because "I am a Japanese."
 Intimates say Kagawa's dominant interest at the moment is his three-year "all Japan Christian evangelist campaign" which began Sept. 6 as a nation-wide attempt to spread Christianity.
 Kagawa currently is touring the country giving a series of Christian lectures, including a special Christian service in Tokyo.
 Simultaneously, he is furthering his long-held dream for a series of co-operative directly linking produer and consumer which he says is the only method of insuring adequate food for Japan.

Kagawa holds the position of adviser to the social democratic party, which he helped to found, and heads the "co-operative unions federation." He recently was appointed a member of the house of peers, the second chamber of Japan's diet.

The welfare ministry a short time ago adopted Kagawa's plan for unemployment insurance, and the Japanese Educators union recently named him as its chairman despite his protests that he was too old and ill.

He is editor and publisher of the Weekly Japan Christian newspaper and is president of the "International Peace society" which he also helped to organize.

Friends say Kagawa frequently has praised General MacArthur's policies in private conversations.

CRASHING INCIDENT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(AP)—A motorist mistook a street intersection for a car crashed through the large plate glass window of a shop operated by Paul Zintek.

A TRIUMPH FOR LIES

(The Chicago Tribune)
 Congress has resurrected OPA, restoring price controls for another year. The black market profiteer can rejoice and confidently book hotel suites for winter holidays. Honest business men fear another period of stagnation. Housewives can expect that prices will keep on going up and that the compensation of growing supplies.
 Lies, propaganda, and appeals to panic were chiefly responsible for the foolish action taken by congress. For the lies came from government officials who are more eager to retain power than they are to preserve the economic health of this country. Their predictions of doom scared the President into vetoing the first OPA renewal bill and stamped congress into accepting the second measure, which is worse.
 Secretary of Commerce Wallace qualifies as one of the leading semesters of lying propaganda. This department is the same one which put out a report during the General Motors strike finding that the auto industry had increased wages 25 per cent without increasing the cost of automobiles. Later Mr. Wallace was forced to confess that the report was a "mistake" and did not represent the official opinion of the department.
 Last Monday Mr. Wallace did it again. He sent a report to the President citing figures of the bureau of labor statistics that the prices of 23 basic commodities had risen 25 per cent since the end of OPA on June 30. Among the commodities listed was cotton, on which there had never been a ceiling price. Other commodities had disappeared from normal markets under OPA and could be purchased only on the black market—such as hogs, steers, butter, and copper. A portion of the increases since June 30 had been caused by the elimination of subsidies.
 Wallace was not content to let the statistics speak for themselves. He appended to the report a political argument that some sections of industry were wickedly holding the price lines as a means of lobbying against OPA legislation. Without the prospect of OPA restoration, he asserted, "price increases would most certainly have been greater or more general."
 In other words, Mr. Wallace accused business and industry of being reckless, unconscionable cheats who are out to promote inflation and ruin the welfare of the common man. He was carrying on the old demagogic Rooseveltian appeals to raise class against class.
 On the day following the issuance of the Wallace statement, Civilian Production Administrator Small reported on a survey of price increases on household appliances since June 30. Mr. Small found that the average increase had been only about 2 per cent and that manufacturers were not holding finished goods in the hope of getting higher prices later.
 "The manufacturers of hard goods have shown laudable restraint and made a pretty good record for themselves," said the civilian production administrator. "An amazingly large number of business men are afraid of inflation and reluctant to make price increases."
 Mr. Small thus demolishes Wallace's inference that business is determined to sabotage the nation's price structure.
 Mr. Wallace and his collectivist friends now have their OPA back again, all fitted out with a super-board of bureaucrats. It is fair baby. We can only hope that their messaging with markets will not be so ruinous that they will be able to come back to congress next year, crying for authority to continue controls another year.

market, brought Spain some meat scraps for his dogs. Spain waited until dark, then dumped the scraps in the pen.
 Next morning Smith missed $600 in checks and cash. His partner had put them in the box with the meat scraps Smith had given Spain. A hurried trip to the dog pen found the dogs still munching happily on five, ten and twenty dollar bills. All except about $100 in cash was recovered.

A shipment of South American skink was received by Snake King of Brownville. A reporter, covering the story, asked "skink or skunk?"

"Skink with an I," said King. The reporter turned in the story, and the editor asked "skink or skunk?" The reporter said skink. The copy went back to the composing room. The proof reader came trotting up: "Skink or skunk?" Skink, said the editor.

Despite all that double-checking, it came out "skunk" in the Brownville Herald.
 Speaking of snakes, and we were up there at the beginning, the Rev. Paul Thompson of Saint Jo, Texas, killed one 18 feet, 4 inches long. A mate is believed somewhere near. Some claim to have seen it.

The first straw hats in America were imported from England. The manufacture of straw hats in this country dates back only to the middle of the 19th century.

Tips for Teens

By ELINOR WILLIAMS
 Nobody likes to shake hands with a weak, limp clasp, but a bone-crushing grip doesn't win friends, either. Try for a happy medium when you shake hands. Girls merely say, "How do you do?" when introduced. Boys also say, "How do you do?" and always shake hands.

Remove your gloves before eating or drinking wherever refreshments are served. But it's no longer considered necessary to remove gloves before shaking hands.

Don't whisper when you have something to tell one of a group. Wait until you two are alone, then you can tell her or him in private without being rude to others.

At a party, it's not necessary to be introduced before speaking to those near you in the room. The fact that you're all guests in the same house serves as a general introduction.

(For tips on games for summer fun, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.)

TREASURER REPORTS

AUSTIN—(AP)—State Treasurer Jesse James today reported total cash in all state funds at the end of July at $114,985,547.  charges of inconsistency, read copiously from "the record" and challenged Molotov to see that the United States delegate's remarks were published in the Soviet Union. Molotov repeated his charges of inconsistency. He said Byrnes was speaking "in a serious and angry tone" and declared "we, almost alone, have to defend the agreed decisions" of the foreign ministers of the four principal powers, Russia, Britain, France and the United States.
 He accepted Byrnes' challenge to have the secretary of state's remarks published in the Russian press. The exchange took place in the second week of arguments as to whether the committee will recommend a rule that a simple majority or two-thirds majority vote will be required for the full conference to pass treaty recommendations on to the foreign ministers council of four for final action.
 The American delegate also challenged the accuracy of Molotov's statement before the peace conference rules committee yesterday when he accused Byrnes of inconsistency for supporting a proposal by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada that the foreign ministers council meet concurrently with the conference to speed the writing of peace treaties for five beaten countries.
 Interrupting debate in the rules committee on the hotly-argued two-thirds rule, Byrnes declared: "In the United States we have a free press. Therefore the Soviet representative can be sure his attack against me has been published in the United States. I challenge him to see that my following statement is also published in the press of the Soviet Union."
 "When the Soviet had its back to the wall, the United States promised aid and we came to their aid."

We have only admiration and respect for the people of the Soviet Union. And we won't let that admiration and respect be changed by any attacks by Mr. Molotov. Molotov's interpreter, N. V. Pavlov, followed the secretary's address closely, leaning toward the speaker and straining to hear, then bending over Molotov at intervals to whisper snatches of the address.
 Molotov, seated on one of six seats away from Byrnes, scarcely changed expression throughout the American's speech.

Workmen Will Take 'Kinks' Out of Car

The good looks of many cars on the road these days are ruined by unsightly dents on fenders, hoods and even hub caps.

In many of these places, the paint has been scraped off and rusty places appear, which not only take away from a car's appearance, but also add to its deterioration.

To rid your car of these defects, take it to Pete's Body Works, located at 806 West Foster street in Pampa. The telephone number is 1802.

An experienced staff of expert body repair men will straighten out those dents skillfully so that it will hardly be noticed that they were ever there.

Then, to if a fender, for example, has been dented, the repair men will straighten it and apply a new coat of paint on the fender so that it will look like new.

Speaking of painting, the shop has the reputation of offering one of the best automobile paint jobs in the country.

Paints used are only of the highest quality and are applied in a skillful manner, not haphazardly, but are put on so that your car is returned to you as shiny as the day you purchased it.

Also, if your car has been involved in an accident and is still repairable, the experienced crew at the shop will straighten the frame and axle, eliminating all dangerous and unsightly defects, caused by a serious accident.

Also included among the many services offered at the shop is the famous Bear wheel aligning service, one of the most famous wheel aligning services in the nation, taking in the use of only the finest equipment and well-trained workmen.

Besides causing your tires to wear out several times faster, wheels that are out of line can cause serious accidents that may result in death.

L. J. McCarty, owner and operator of Pete's Body Works, urges Pampa motorists to get rid of the "kinks" in their cars by bringing them by for a thorough going over by workmen who know how to repair a car.

For fast, economical wrecker service, too, call Pete's Body Works, telephone 1802. They will bring your car in and give you an estimate on the cost of repairs.

Remember—avoid those accidents—always keep your car in a safe driving condition.

Three Box Seats for Rodeo Remain on Sale

About three box seats are left for the Top of Texas rodeo and horse show next week, according to an announcement this morning from rodeo headquarters.

The boxes accommodate six people and are good for all performances of the rodeo. Box seats are selling for $15, an official pointed out.

Boxes may be had by contacting the local chamber of commerce, headquarters for the rodeo.

Walker To Support House in Run-Off

HOUSTON—(AP)—Turner Walker defeated candidate for lieutenant governor in the first democratic primary, has announced his support of Boyce House in the run-off campaign.

House, Fort Worth newspaperman and radio commentator, faces state sen. Allen Shivers for the lieutenant governorship.

Walker thanked the "many thousands in every part of Texas who voted for me," and urged his supporters to vote for House.

Night on the moon lasts for two weeks.

Court House Cafe Maintains Good Reputation Here

One of Pampa's most popular downtown eating establishments is the Court House cafe, located near the corner of Kingsmill and Russell streets, convenient to all public buildings and the entire downtown business section.

M. M. Munson and Loyse Caldwell assumed ownership of the cafe in January of this year and have striven to maintain its reputation as one of Pampa's oldest and finest restaurants.

For the convenience of travelers and Pampans who work night shifts, the cafe remains open 24 hours a day, and specializes in delicious breakfasts during the early morning hours.

The fact that the restaurant serves large amounts of coffee tends to keep the coffee fresh and hot at all times, whether taken with meals or during that "coffee time" each day when the customer wishes to relax and enjoy good coffee and companionship in clean surroundings.

The luncheon service, too, is excellent. The chef specializes in delicious steaks, served either on the dinner or a la carte. Each steak is cooked just as the customer wants it and a wide variety of delicious cuts is usually available.

Besides steaks, the chefs also prepare delicious sandwiches and salads and the vegetables for dinner orders are cooked just right.

Also served, in season, are fresh fish, including oysters, shrimp, trout and many others.

For the benefit of persons who wish to have private accommodations, there is a private dining room, attractively decorated and always clean, that is available making reservations and placing orders in advance.

The restaurant has recently been thoroughly inspected by public health officials and each employee and the restaurant as a whole have been given clean bill of health. The establishment is also a member of the state restaurant association, of which the standards are very high.

Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Munson invite their old and new customers to drop in often, where they will find good food, served swiftly and efficiently.

The prices are right, too. The whole family can enjoy a delicious meal at a very reasonable cost.

Pampans Can Kill 2 Birds With One Stone by Calling Your Laundry and Dry Cleaners for Better Service

"Steve and Oran" are wondering just how many Pampans ever stop to think that by picking up their telephones and calling 675, they can dispose of their dry cleaning and laundry problems at once.

That number—a good number to write in the little black book—is Your Laundry and Dry Cleaners, located at 309 East Francis in Pampa.

Both Steve Mathews and Oran Payne, co-owners of the company, are well-known Pampans and are as anxious to please their many old friends as they are the many new customers who are attracted every day by the fine services rendered at the plant.

Although their laundry service is still not as fast as they would like it to be, Steve and Oran take pride in the thoroughness of the work done on all clothing and linens.

As in the past, a pick-up and delivery service is maintained for all laundry and dry cleaning service by calling 675.

The equipment for laundering and dry cleaning at the plant is as modern as is obtainable, but the owners have promised their friends and patrons that more new equipment will be installed as soon as possible, so that service in both departments may be speeded up.

Specialists in the dry cleaning department take specific pains with all types of clothing, made of the finest types of material. Each article is inspected to determine what type of cleaning and pressing should be done and all clothing is returned in tip-top shape.

In addition, necessary alterations and mending can be done at the plant by skilled workers.

Besides its regular service for residents, the laundry maintains a linen and towel supply department as a service to Pampa business institutions.

Just remember the phone number—675—for specialized service on your laundry and dry cleaning needs.

The firm is located at 309 East Francis, just two blocks off Cuyler street.

J. V. New Applies for Building Permit Today

An application for a permit to build a two or three unit business house on Duncan street, was made to the city commission today by J. V. New.

The area in which New wishes to construct the building is now in a restricted zone, but the city zoning commission handed New a note to the city commission, recommending that he be granted the permit.

New told the commissioners he planned to install a dry cleaning plant and possibly a grocery store if his application was approved.

Although the commissioners agreed that the north section of the city needed a neighborhood shopping center, they informed New that further study would have to be made.

Market Briefs

WALL STREET
NEW YORK—(AP)—Quiet profit catching took place today as the stock market with motors leading a general decline of fractions to 2 points or so.

Trends began to give ground after a slightly uneven opening. Helpful to bullish sentiment, however, was the slackness of liquidation. The minus column was widely populated. Transfers ran to around 700,000 shares.

Stumblers included General Motors, Chrysler, Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, J. C. Penney, Texas Co., Southern Pacific and Pennsylvania Railroad (at a new 1946 low).

Virginia - Carolina Chemical preferred advanced on a few transactions in the wake of a good statement and an increased payment on dividend arrears. Resistant were International Harvester, Owens-Illinois, and American Smelting.

Many customers trimmed accounts on the idea the eight-session upswing might bring at least a temporary reversal.

The administration's warning that high taxes would prevail served to chill bidding enthusiasm to some extent. Bonds were spotty.
