Ground School Curriculum At Army Air Field Is Streamlined

A new and improved ground school curriculum, "streamlined" to fit in with America's stepped-up air program, went into effect last week at the Pampa Army Flying School with the arrival of the class of 43-E. Col. Daniel S. Campbell, commanding officer, announced yesterday.

Ground school at Pampa Field is under direction of Capt. Charles D. Scott, who is instituting the new program.

"This ground school program is new only so far as Pampa and other advanced schools are concerned," Captain Scott said. "It was started with 43-E when that class arrived at classification centers throughout the country last July, but has just now started to affect us."

The main idea of the program is to give Uncle Sam's fledgling airmen a maximum number of ground school hours, with each man taking like courses through basic training then branching off into

Beware of High Tension Wires Flying Kites

Go and fly a kite but not near a high tension wire.

This was the advice given to boys who like to fly kites by J. M. Collins, manager of the Southwestern Public Service company.

With March winds blowing and spring here, at least by the calendar, despite possibility of further cold snaps, kite flying is sure to be on the increase.

Biggest danger in flying a kite is the chance that a kite may come in contact with high tension wires, especially if a steel wire is used as string.

"Dampness often settles on a kite while it is in the air, and when it touches a wire a short circuit is effected and the fatal current runs right down through the string," Manager Collins said. "Fly your kite in the wide open spaces and you'll have nothing to worry about."

Another warning for youngsters to heed is flying kites with some light metal construction in them, either in the frame, or decorations, or in experiments with small cameras attached to the kites.

If the craft nears a tension wire, the atmosphere causes the current to jump from the wires and travel down through the kite without even touching the wires.

Kite-flying doesn't stop right there at the pleasure angle. History has proved it more important than it really seems.

The Chinese first used kites over 2,000 years ago to celebrate festivals and chase away evil spirits. Built into elaborate butterfly and dragon shapes and often done in silk fabrics, they were favorites with adults as well as with children.

Benjamin Franklin used a kite with a metal key attached to the string to discover electricity in lightning, and even years before his time, they were used by science to record temperatures in clouds.

Kite flying also developed into numerous feats in early aviation.

At present day, various types of kites are used by weather bureaus to measure wind velocities, predict weather, and for military purposes such as signaling and recording the weather.

fields that will correspond to pursuit or bombardment aviation, depending on which type to which he is assigned.

Here at Pampa's twin-engine flying school, one new course has been added, while two former courses have been revised to meet new standards. The new course is called "Pilot Information." Most of it deals with restricted military data, giving the cadets first-hand, authenticated accounts of the latest carburetors, de-icers, engines, technical orders and so on. It is expected to prove invaluable in reading these men, who will soon be winging over enemy territory, for combat duty.

The revamped courses are: navigation, which has been increased many hours, thus offering a more intensive study of the problems facing a pilot when he is without a navigator or finds himself in a situation where navigational data is necessary to win a fight or successfully complete a bombing mission; and bombardment and armament, in which the study of gunnery has been dropped in compliance with the "streamlining" program. Twin-engine advanced students are now leaving the gunnery up to the single-engine cadets, who, in turn, are turning the study of bombardment to the twin-engine boys. Both, however, will continue to study armament problems.

In addition to the three courses mentioned above (namely, navigation, pilot information, and bombardment and armament), the cadets study, while here at Advanced School, Aircraft Identification, Naval Identification and code.

In code class the men have attained a certain minimum proficiency, visual and auditory, both in sending and receiving. By the time they have reached advanced schools, they spend an unspecified number of classroom hours maintaining the proficiency they have acquired.

A new code room is being built in the ground school building, which will have "the last word" in sending and receiving devices. Benches are being built and divided into "stalls," where each cadet practices taking code as it is sent by an instructor. Receiving sets, with head-phones exactly identical to those used in combat planes, are being installed and will give the cadets the much-needed drill in an important part of instrument flying.

4th Grade Boys Tie in Oratory

Fourth grade boys at B. M. Baker school, located on E. Tuke street, go all-out for oratory. So good were Gerald Matthews and Ed Langford in the declamation tryouts held last Wednesday at the school that the result was declared a tie and there is to be a "run-off" this week.

B. R. Nuckols, principal, said today. Winners of first place in declamation at Baker, one boy and one girl from the fourth grade and one boy and one girl from the fifth grade, will compete against corresponding winners from Sam Houston, Woodrow Wilson, and Horace Mann schools in the city interscholastic tournament to be held on April 16.

In the event that first-place winners of Baker are unable to compete then the runners-up will represent the school.

Results of the Baker tryouts: Fourth grade girls—Letha Mae Randall, first; Mary Ellen Hawkins, second; fifth grade—Charlotte Hays, first; Irvin Ruff, second; fifth grade boys—Max Holland, first; Jimmie Lee Tucker, second.

Tom McCoy, speaker; John Robert Lane, pianist; and the high school sextet composed of Betty Jo Holt, Wynliou Cox, Joan Hawkins, Anna Lois Alford, Joan Holden, Anna Barnett.

Principal speaker was Good, state director.

Good stressed the importance of the 16-year-old boy and girl and showed that more decisions were made by that age person than any other age of life, and that character is made by our choices and decisions. He explained that this is the most mis-understood age, and that parents must remember this when arguing with their boys and girls.

More homes are broken up at that age than any other age. He said that his clubs taught and practiced prayer and the teachings in Luke 2:52, where Jesus increased in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man.

In rehearsal at Pampa's Army Air Base is a 10-act variety show to be presented on the evening of April 9 at the field's recreation hall.

Talent for the show, drawn from among the regular personnel at the field, includes performers who in civilian life have been featured with name bands, on the concert stage, with Billy Rose, and in the New York World's Fair of 1939.

With these men as the core, a well balanced show has been put together.

Among the featured numbers will be a tight-wire act, tap dance rou-

Thursday, April 22 Is Date Set For Junior's "I'm In The Army" Now

Thursday, April 22, is the date set for the junior play, "I'm In The Army Now", Miss Virginia Vaughan, director, revealed Thursday.

The play will be given at 8 o'clock in the junior high school auditorium the day the Pampa schools will turn out for the Easter holidays, said Miss Vaughan.

Jeanne Chisholm, Katherine Robinson, and Ernest Miller will play the leading roles in the play.

Sixteen-year-old blonde Katherine Robinson's ambition is to be an opera singer. Majoring in English and mathematics, Katherine has been active in the glee club for the past two years. Her hobbies are dancing and skating. Before coming to Pampa Katherine attended school in Odessa.

Blond, curly-haired Ernest Miller has attended school in Pampa all eleven years, and his ambition is to graduate from high school. Majoring in English and math, he plans to attend Phillips University in Oklahoma. He is never too busy with other activities to box. Ernest's hobbies are horses and swimming. Chicken and homemade rolls are his favorite foods.

The rehearsals are progressing nicely," Miss Vaughan also said in the interview. The crews for the play include Earl O'Brien, business manager, June Lanham, property manager, Harold Bailey and Bob Curtis, stage hands, and Bobbie Lou Posey, make-up manager.

Jim Wanner plays the part of Mr. Robertson; Lilian Snow, Mrs. Robertson; Jeanne Chisholm, Deanna Robertson; Katherine Robinson, Betty Ashbrooke; Jean Gregory, Corina Duffin; Charles Mabel; Toby Robertson; Helen Crowley, who is taking the place of Joyce Taylor as Audrey Nayland; Dorothy Wilgus, Granny Robertson; Marceline Dinkin; Dale Morrison; Frank Prieauf; Ramon Valdez; Ernest Miller, Bronson Robertson; Kathryn Homer, Essie Knapp; Jimmy Berry, Prentiss Roper.

Wood Shop Class Builds Plane Models

Boys in the 6th period shop class under the direction of Mr. Paul Boyer have been making model airplanes which are sent to Camp Wolters, Texas, to be used in different air bases throughout the nation for instruction purposes.

There must be 10,000 planes for each of the 50 different types of models, and 30 models must be made for each set of planes. If the planes are approved by local inspection committees, they are then ready for shipment, Mr. Boyer said.

The model planes are carved by hand, glued together and sandpapered. The bodies of the tail assembly, and landing gears are made from apple boxes. The material is furnished by the Lions Club of this city, Mr. Boyer said.

Some of the newest planes made by this class are world's fastest sea plane, Vaught Sikorsky F-40-1 Corsair, Gurnman Avenger, North American B-25 Mitchell Bomber, Bristol Beaufort British Bomber, Bristol Beaufighter, No. 2 British Fighter, Heinkel German Torpedo Bomber, and Fia B.R.-20, 2-96, an Italian plane being used by Japan as a bomber.

SOPHS UNFAIR TO SENIORS

In order to work up an appetite for their lunch some thirty or forty high school students find it necessary to race to the cafeteria at noon each day and then indulge in a little wrestling and fighting getting in line. It's sad, but nevertheless a fact, most of these are sophomores, the same ones every day. Maybe we should overlook it and consider that they just don't know any better, but when a horde of stampeding sophs knock the poor little seniors completely out of line, it ruffles their dignity.

To the credit of the sophomores, it must be admitted that the scarcity of seniors is partly responsible for the fewer number of that class who "crowd in"; but nevertheless I doubt whether if there were more seniors they would be able to compete with these "commandos."

It isn't only the race down the halls, we are in a way used to that, but when you "advance" backward instead of forward because of perfect straglers crowding in front of you, it's no wonder that each day some blaze forth with indignation about the unfairness of it all. If there were an enforced rule to prevent crowding in, there would be less risk of a fatal accident in the halls. Many of those who now run to the cafeteria would not do so if they did not know that unless they reached the counter before a certain few, they are pushed back so far that they have to eat leftovers.

Why doesn't someone do something about it?

Banquet to Be Given by Hi-Y Tuesday Night

A father-son banquet will be given by the Hi-Y of Pampa High school in the Methodist church Tuesday night of this week, Ray Thompson, president, said Thursday. The mothers of the boys will cook the food.

A visiting speaker of the local chapters of Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y was Grover Cleveland Goode of Dallas who is the area secretary of the southwest for the Y. M. C. A. Ray also said.

Mr. Goode, Ray and John Tom McCoy met with the Rotary, Lions, and Kiwanis clubs Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last week. Introduced by Ray, the president of the Pampa chapter of Hi-Y, Mr. Goode spoke on the work of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y. John Tom, representing a speaker for Hi-Y, spoke on the purposes and ideals of the two organizations.

On the program Wednesday was the sophomore sextet composed of Joan Holden, Wynilou Cox, Betty Jo Holt, Joan Hawkins, Anna Barrett, and Anna Lois Alford. John Robert Lane, sophomore, played the piano for the occasion.

Thursday, the program consisted of a solo by Wiladean Ellis and John Robert playing again. Friday, May 22, the group will give a reading. At the last meeting of the Hi-Y the boys voted to abandon meetings in the agriculture building on the junior high campus. They will meet at the high school building.

Mrs. J. B. Austin, at the resignation of Mrs. J. R. Holloway, will be the sponsor for the Tri-Hi-Y, Helen Alexander, president, said.

Students Are Found To Be Eager For Next School Day

Gee! What a beautiful April Fools Day! The snow is blowing around the corners in drifts. Inside the dilapidated school building two very good friends, Pat Lively and Carl Tillstrom, walk down the hall hand in hand. Down in the home economics room near my locker is Charles Boyles who just looked to me with him is Earl O'Brien who is the boy who just detests music, especially Jack Teagarden's orchestra. I see Mary Jane Davis standing in the corridor looking so neglected. She is such a timid and bashful girl and over in the other corner is Anita Andrews and all by herself. She never talks or laughs as is a genuine pessimist. Harold Bailey just returned to school from the hospital after a long illness. Harold was always such a frail little thing. Short Mack McCorkle and tall Dorace Jean Caldwell are discussing Saravon's "Human Comedy" in which Mack Rooney plays a drizzle (No kin to a puss). Bobby Curtis is in the English room really studying. He is such an intellectual thing. Well, the bright day finally came to a close. It was so short and delightful and the dreaded week-end is nearly here. Everyone quietly files out of the building without any noise and looking forward to the next school day.

More stars than in the heavens... The picture near this story is a similar facsimile of the same (meaning the oozy-drooly half-dro). Notice the ear bows. (That is not a misprint. I distinctly mean bows, not bobs.) Gad! What contraptions.

There is one consolation in the droopy collure. It does look better over some people's pans. Why not be different and go back to the good old-fashioned way of making your- self attractive. Remember the boys' favorite song "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl That Married Dear Old Dad!" In regards to the peek-a-boo bangs, let us have as our motto "Safety First! (Beauty Later)!"

TO THE STUDENT BODY

In leaving Pampa High School I want to say that nothing but this war could have made me leave this school. Like everyone, I regret leaving all my friends, but it is with one aim in mind that I leave—and that is to win this war and return once more to Pampa.

I hope that while I am gone the same school spirit will remain in the school that has prevailed in the past years. I know that the Harvesters will keep their name above reproach and beat the "socks off" of Lubbock and Amarillo next year. In the meantime I am confident that the school is being left in good hands and will continue to bring more glory to Pampa under the leadership of Dr. Osborne and Mr. Steele.

While I am in the navy I will always be eager for news of high school and will always remember that the Green and Gold will always be victorious just as Uncle Sam will be.

SENIOR WHO'S WHO

One of the youngest seniors is blonde Edith Colleen OGrady who is just 16. For this news hound, who is publicity chairman of the Student Council, feature editor of the Little Harvester, and area reporter for the Future Momenakers of Texas, there is nothing better than an evening of dancing or bowling. Born in Oil Hill, Kansas, she wants to go to Missouri University and to Baylor Medical school. She is an office assistant and immediate past secretary of the Quill and Scroll. A math and English major, Colleen can usually be found struggling manfully over this column each week.

Skate Basketball Outstanding Sport Craze at School

If any of you students crave exciting sports and something along this line that is out of the ordinary, go down to the gym the third or sixth period any day that skating is going on.

This skate-basketball game has the same rules that any basketball game has, only the personal fouls do not count so much.

To see someone almost get the ball, and then to have someone whip up and snatch it from you makes the game hair-raising at times.

The game is played more like boy's basketball than like the game devised for the girls in that they are allowed to dribble the entire length of the court.

Biology Students Make Individual Projects in Class

In Mrs. J. B. Austin's biology classes the students have been making individual projects, consisting of the work each student does. These projects are to be due Friday in class.

Mrs. Austin's classes have been studying snakes, poisonous and non-poisonous ones, and birds, their formation, all of their structures, habits, how they migrate, and how they construct their nests.

Approximately once each week the biology classes have one show on the different animals and their lives.

Peek-a-boo Bangs Draw Comments From Hayseed

From one extreme to the other you never know what the HAYSEED will say next. Since the girls haven't "let their hair down" I am going to jump on the girls who let their hair get in their eyes.

The peek-a-boo bangs around Dear Old Pampa Grind have caused considerable confusion. Because of the blind eyeing, the insurability of Pampa students has increased considerably.

In the eyes (my hair is not in them) of unprejudiced HAYSEED the picture near this story is a similar facsimile of the same (meaning the oozy-drooly half-dro). Notice the ear bows. (That is not a misprint. I distinctly mean bows, not bobs.) Gad! What contraptions.

There is one consolation in the droopy collure.

Lt. Tom Herod Leaves for Navy

Aubrey L. Steele, head of the high school history department, has been named the new assistant principal, it was announced last week. Mr. Steele replaces Lt. Tom Herod, now of the United States Navy.

Lt. Herod filled out his application on January 16 and received his commission on March 4. He will report to Columbus, Ohio, at the University of Ohio on April 1 for his initial training. However, Mr. Steele will take over his duties tomorrow.

Mrs. F. E. Leech is substituting as a history teacher at present; Miss Jessie Bumpass, modern history teacher, will teach one class, and Mr. Steele will keep two.

Although Mr. Steele has usually taught American history in his five years as a teacher here he has also taught both civics and modern history.

In spite of gas rationing, Mr. Steele managed to do quite a bit of duck hunting this year. But chicken, rather than duck, is his favorite food. Ping-pong and badminton are his other hobbies.

Dr. Roberts Speaks To Student Body On German Experiences

Dr. Herod Roberts of Iowa City, Iowa, a native of Australia, was the third speaker to appear in Pampa High school under the sponsorship of the Institute of International Understanding of the Pampa Rotary club. Dr. Roberts lectured at the Junior High auditorium at 8 o'clock Friday night on "Nations Cooperating in Wartime."

Dr. Roberts spoke to the Pampa High school assembly Friday morning of his exciting experiences in Germany, where he was under "protective arrest" for ten days by the Gestapo. After his talk a discussion was held and questions were asked. Dr. Roberts told of the Australian government during wartime, the time he spent in the Royal Air Force, and answered many other things of interest asked by the students.

Next Friday the fourth and last speaker to be presented by the Rotary Club will be Gerhart H. Seger.

Who is present is the editor of the German weekly newspaper, "Neue Volkstaktik," published in New York.

Mr. Seger spent three months in jail and six months in the first Nazi concentration camp in 1933, whereupon he escaped and came to the United States.

Vital Rationing Information

Gray county farmers may schedule their 1943 crops with the assurance that they will be able to obtain enough gasoline for all necessary truck operations, local fuel supplies permitting, Nettles F. Nelson, Amarillo, district manager of the office of defense transportation, announced today.

"The ODT's mileage control program for commercial motor vehicles is completely flexible," Mr. Nelson said. "Farmers may request adjustment of their certificates of war necessity whenever conditions warrant."

ADJUSTING POSSIBLE
Such requests for gasoline, local fuel supplies permitting, Nettles F. Nelson, Amarillo, district manager of the office of defense transportation, announced today.

"The ODT's mileage control program for commercial motor vehicles is completely flexible," Mr. Nelson said. "Farmers may request adjustment of their certificates of war necessity whenever conditions warrant."

FEW NEW TRUCKS
At the same time, Nelson pointed out, the increased necessity for farmers to carefully husband their present trucks and tires and to eliminate all waste mileage from their truck operations.

"There are very few new trucks and trailers left in the civilian stockpile," Nelson said.

"The rubber situation is equally critical and imposes similar responsibilities upon all truck operators to conserve their tires and reduce to the minimum the number of miles which they operate empty or partially loaded," he emphasized.

"The ODT recently moved to make it unnecessary for farmers to visit their ration boards in person to pick up quarterly 'T' rations, Nelson pointed out.

Under a procedure announced February 24, all truck operators holding single unit certificates of war necessity will have their third and fourth quarter gasoline ration coupons mailed to them, provided they bring their certificates to their local rationing board once before July 1, 1943, for recording of the correct gallonage of these two quarters.

Texans in Washington

By L. T. EASEY
WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—The very idea of putting price ceilings on cattle, in the opinion of several Texans here, is absurd and preposterous.

"Imagine, fixing the price the same on one of our skinny, big-bone Longhorn steers as on a fine 2-year-old fattened hereford," draws the Rio Grand Valley's Congressman Milton West.

"It just doesn't make sense, but it is in keeping with all the other things the OPA has been doing. It's not practical, and if it was ordered, it would create a terrible black market in meat."

The office of price administration has not ordered price ceilings on livestock, but has let it be known that it is thinking seriously about such a proposal. The OPA's program called first for ceilings on hogs, but vigorous objections were raised by growers at a hearing called here.

Judge Joe Montague of Fort Worth, counsel for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association, sat in on the hog ceiling discussions, giving the pork raisers support.

Here's the attitude of Representative Richard Kleberg of Corpus Christi, raiser of high grade cattle at the King ranch:

"I know of no man who can tell what is under the hide of a live animal and of no development—X-ray or otherwise—that will permit him to ascertain what is under the

Meat Rationing Slaughter Rules Are Explained

Letters will be mailed to farmers before April 1 from County Agent G. T. Hackney's office calling attention to new regulations regarding slaughtering and sale of livestock in connection with the new regulations for meat rationing.

Under the regulations everyone who slaughters for sale must secure a permit from the USDA war board and must keep actual records of his slaughter and sales. Buyers and traders of livestock must likewise have a permit and keep records of purchases and sales.

In order to secure these permits the persons must give a record of the number of animals and the amount of meat slaughtered during 1941.

In addition to the regular packers the new orders recognize three classes of slaughtering: First, local slaughtering including persons who in 1941 slaughtered more than 300,000 pounds. This type of slaughter will be given a quota of 80 per cent of the meat slaughtered in April, 1941, for April, 1943.

Second, butchers including all persons who in 1941 slaughtered less than 300,000 pounds. His quota for April, 1943, will be either the same number of livestock slaughtered in April, 1941, or the same number of pounds.

Third, farm slaughters including helping arrange the program, is Mrs. Fritz G. Lanham, wife of the Fort Worth congressman.

Stellar performers on a recent program were cowboy-billed singing Richard Kleberg of Corpus Christi, part owner of the King ranch, and Congressman Lanham, a magician extraordinary. Master of ceremonies was the eloquent, oratorical Senator Tom Connally.

Kleberg accompanied himself on the accordion. A picture of him in action, dressed in cowboy garb, was printed in Texas. He promptly received a message from a friend in Kingsville who teasingly remarked that in the picture his face seemed to have as many wrinkles as the accordion.

William R. Boyd, Houston oil man and head of the American petroleum institute and petroleum industry war council, also entertained the boys. He sang western ballads and accompanied himself on the guitar.

FORMER TEXAS secretary of state, William Lawson recently was offered a position with the manpower commission by regional officials in Texas, according to a report reaching here, but turned it down to retain private business connections in Austin and Houston.

Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, who appointed Lawson to the high state position several years ago, said he had not suggested Lawson's name to any government agency. He added: "I certainly would recommend him for any position, however."

RECENTLY A NEWS story appeared, quoting Major Harold R. Giblin, head of the overseas resale and issue procurement section of the quartermaster corps, as saying that 750,000 pairs of dice had been bought for American troops.

"We do not encourage gambling," said Giblin, "our job is to supply little things that keep morale high."

Representative Fisher received a letter from a constituent and friend, Henry Ragsdale of San Angelo, saying: "I hate to think that the 'powers that be' cannot think up something better for the money, to keep the morale high, than to keep more dice than the retail value for dice to be distributed among the boys."

Ragsdale is a business man; he built a large houseboat used by San Angelo Boy Scouts and other groups on Lake Navaroth.

Consequently, the quality of the meat can not possibly be judged before slaughter. Beef, to be prime, requires certain kinds of feed and feeding. An animal fattened on soybean meal or acorns or peanuts has a meat quality far inferior to an animal properly fed and finished on corn. Likewise, to add to the problem, who is going to say whether a given cow should be priced as a stocker or a butcher cow, and soforth and so on?"

Representative O. C. Fisher of San Angelo, a goat ranch owner, told the OPA:

"In my judgment, such would be a definite deterrent to the all-out production sought and so badly needed by the government.

It simply is not practicable to set ceiling prices on live animals. Breeds of animals, differences in shrinkage, varying labor and feed costs, types of feeds and methods of feeding, range conditions, age differences, and many other factors make arbitrary ceilings impossible of practical application."

In addition to the regular packers the new orders recognize three classes of slaughtering: First, local slaughtering including persons who in 1941 slaughtered more than 300,000 pounds. This type of slaughter will be given a quota of 80 per cent of the meat slaughtered in April, 1941, for April, 1943.

Second, butchers including all persons who in 1941 slaughtered less than 300,000 pounds. His quota for April, 1943, will be either the same number of livestock slaughtered in April, 1941, or the same number of pounds.

Third, farm slaughters including helping arrange the program, is Mrs. Fritz G. Lanham, wife of the Fort Worth congressman.

Stellar performers on a recent program were cowboy-billed singing Richard Kleberg of Corpus Christi, part owner of the King ranch, and Congressman Lanham, a magician extraordinary. Master of ceremonies was the eloquent, oratorical Senator Tom Connally.

Kleberg accompanied himself on the accordion. A picture of him in action, dressed in cowboy garb, was printed in Texas. He promptly received a message from a friend in Kingsville who teasingly remarked that in the picture his face seemed to have as many wrinkles as the accordion.

William R. Boyd, Houston oil man and head of the American petroleum institute and petroleum industry war council, also entertained the boys. He sang western ballads and accompanied himself on the guitar.

FORMER TEXAS secretary of state, William Lawson recently was offered a position with the manpower commission by regional officials in Texas, according to a report reaching here, but turned it down to retain private business connections in Austin and Houston.

Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, who appointed Lawson to the high state position several years ago, said he had not suggested Lawson's name to any government agency. He added: "I certainly would recommend him for any position, however."

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE—Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones was a guest of honor at a reception held at the Girl Scouts' "Little House" here on the thirty-first birthday of girl scouting. He acted as official "cake-cutter" at the party.

all resident farm operators who in 1941 slaughtered not more than 10,000 pounds. His quota for April, 1943, will be either the same number of livestock slaughtered or the same number of pounds of meat slaughtered in April, 1941, or choice of 300 pounds of meat or slaughter of three animals only being in the cattle class.

Farmers are not limited as to slaughtering for home consumption but must secure a permit where any meat is sold.

To qualify for a permit certain sanitary conditions and facilities must be met including reasonable fly-proof and rodent-proof killing room with light and ventilation, concrete or comparable sanitary floor with adequate drainage system, available water, and other such facilities which would insure the sanitary handling of the meats slaughtered.

Beginning April 1 each wholesaler cut of meat must be identified giving the permit number of the slaughterer.

Violation of the provisions of the order, falsification of records, or willful concealment of material facts concerning any slaughter, sale, or delivery of meats will subject the offender to prosecution under section 35-A of the criminal code of the second war powers act, according to a letter from Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture.

Large scale 'black market' operations have made it necessary to control the slaughter of livestock for sale by licensing butchers, local slaughtering plants, and farm slaughtering beginning April 1," the letter from Secretary Wickard to Agent Hackney stated.

"With increased livestock numbers, it is estimated that some 25 billion pounds of meat will be processed in 1943. Of this amount 17 billion pounds are slated for domestic consumption, eight billion pounds being ear-marked for military and lend-lease use. Thus the entire meat output of federally inspected packing plants in excess of civilian meat quotas goes automatically for military use and to meet lend-lease requirements.

"The army has been able to purchase in the last few months only a fraction of its needed beef supplies.

"Rationing of meats cannot be effective if some of the supplies bypass the rationing program.

Share For All
The underlying reason for rationing and price control is to make sure that every American, rich or poor, can get his fair share of food. Rationing makes it impossible for the wealthy to buy large amounts at prices higher than the less fortunate can pay.

"Some violations of the meat restriction order have been more thoughtless than willful.

"By disregarding ceilings and operating at higher prices, some 'black market' operators have bought livestock which otherwise would have gone to legitimate slaughterers. Such meat could not be controlled under rationing and would thus create a shortage somewhere else.

Other 'black market' operators are paying farm slaughterers who do not know of their illegal operations, regular ceiling prices for meat and selling it to the consumer at exorbitant prices.

"Usually 'black market' operations are wasteful of important animal products. Some of the hides are either buried and never find their way to market, or are so damaged that their usefulness is seriously impaired.

"This means the loss of leather vitally needed in the war effort. Fats which ordinarily would be used for consumption or for the manufacture of munitions are not utilized. Edible offal such as hearts, liver, kidneys, tongue, etc., frequently are lost to consumers. America and her allies cannot afford waste of these critical foods, supplies and munitions.

"Meat purchased outside legal channels may present a health menace since many of the 'black market' operators are not operating under adequate inspection. The meat may be from animals that are tubercular or otherwise diseased. It may be contaminated because of unsanitary slaughter conditions. Need for smuggling the carcasses makes probable inadequate refrigeration and care."

We are not asking that the army be depleted. We are not asking that industrial labor be railed, but we do ask that agriculture be given consideration, essential as it is, equal to its importance in winning the war.—Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio.
