Curator Getting Red Stamp Blues

Washington — American women needn't feel sorry for themselves over food rationing problems. Dr. William M. Mann could trade places with a woman with a dyspeptic husband on a diet, five finicky boarders and 13 hungry stepchildren, and still get the best of the bargain. As director of the National Zoological Park, his culinary problems begin with a hawk and go right through to zebra.

Little Mrs. Jones may get a roar of rage from her husband if she brings in a platter of beans instead of a steak. Just let Doc Mann try to slip a casserole of macaroni and cheese and a combination salad to a hungry lion if you want to hear a really professional roar.

The eight tons of meat consumed every month by the carnivores at the zoo aren't such a problem, at that. Long before beef went out of sight, the zoo switched to horse-meat. It doesn't seem to make any difference to the tigers.

Bananas are the scarce food around the zoo. They're getting less than 10 per cent of the normal supply. They're being fed to specimens that can't get along without bananas. Other animals and birds which normally consume bananas get a mixture of Irish and sweet potatoes, boiled, mashed, sweetened and rolled into balls.

Canned milk is the only canned food regularly fed to the zoo's star boarders. That isn't rationed yet, but like any other institution, the zoo is rationed on sugar. Normally they used 60 pounds a month in compounding diets for the animals, but they only get 40 pounds now. Honey is being substituted.

Otherwise, the wartime food problem at the zoo is still much the same old job of hunting weird and unusual calories for the furred and feathered gourmands. Such items as dried flies and ants eggs haven't been rationed. Dr. Mann doesn't expect these items to become so popular as human food as to affect the zoo's supply — not unless a lot of husbands get really desperate after a steady diet of creamed eggs and grated carrots.

Texas Divorcee Free Under Bond

TULSA, Okla., April 5 (AP)—Mrs. Ella B. Howard, a trim divorcee, was freed under $10,000 bond today after she was bound over for trial on a manslaughter charge in the slaying of a wealthy oil man's wife.

For the first time since her arrest at the fashionable Mayo hotel a week ago Thursday night, she smiled as she thanked one of the men who signed her bond. She had expected to be quickly and quietly displayed of emotion in court, at the end of her preliminary hearing Saturday.

Ms. Howard had been held in the county jail since the domestic tragedy which ended over for trial on a manslaughter charge in the fatal shooting of Mrs. T. Earl Simmons, 55, widely known horsewoman.

Common Pleas Judge Grady S. Cornett reduced the charge against the 44-year-old divorcee from murder to manslaughter at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing. The trial in district court will get under way on the next criminal docket, probably in early summer.

Ickes Shuffles Oil Distribution In Middle West

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes today ordered a drastic reshuffling of the petroleum supply and distribution system in the middle west to expand the flow of fuel to the oil-short east.

Midwestern consumers will not be visibly affected, aides said.

The major objectives of the order, affecting 15 midwestern states comprising petroleum District 2, are, (1) to secure maximum efficiency in the use of all transportation facilities in the area, thus releasing additional railroad tank cars to swell the number serving the east coast and (2) to increase supplies available for shipment to the east.

"What we are here directing," Ickes said in a statement explaining the order, "is the coordination of the supply and distribution of about 1,000,000 barrels of petroleum products per day (more than the peacetime consumption of all Europe) as though it were all distributed by a single company, x x x."

"While consumers will continue to order their requirements of petroleum products from their usual sources of supply, the industry, through exchanges, loans, sales and purchases among its members, will see to it that these requirements actually are filled from the nearest terminal."

To achieve nearest-terminal deliveries, a network of zones is set up in the 15 states—Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas, North and South Dakota, and Nebraska.

Ickes said he expected the zoning to also:

- 1. Shorten the distance any product is transported.
2. Eliminate most movements in a general southerly and westerly direction, substituting movements in a general northerly or easterly direction.
3. Eliminate back-hauling or oil products.
4. Substitute pipeline movements for tank car, truck, barge or lake tanker movements, in many cases.

Veto of State Labor Bill Is Seen at Austin

AUSTIN, April 5 (AP)—Off-record predictions that Governor Coke Stevenson would veto this state's first union labor control bill were highly current in Capitol corridors today, but it was likely that the governor himself did not know what action he would take.

He sent the bill to the attorney general's office for further study, and said he would not announce his decision before Monday. He may sign it, veto it, or let it become law without his signature.

There were not many who believed he would follow the latter negative course.

Meanwhile, the legislature finished its twelfth week with its most difficult and tedious time-eating work still ahead: The major appropriations bills. The house voted out its first money bill, ordering a $800,000 economy for the judiciary during the next two years, but on the floor of the senate not a move had been made to knuckle down on appropriations.

Governor Stevenson's action in submitting appropriations bills as emergency matters emphasized this, and it was expected to result in some action.

The house made two passes at the question of Site D adjournment during the week, but got nowhere. Once it decided to quit May 11, and a few minutes later regretted it by voting to lay the matter on the table subject to 24-hour call. This means it may be brought up again anytime with two days notice.

Other significant action? Passage in the senate of an anti-OPA bill which would authorize prosecutors to enforce collection of interest in excess of 10 per cent. The bill now goes to the house.

Decision by the house to debate Tuesday the controversial liquor curfew bill, tightening restrictions on public consumption and sale of wine, beer and liquor.

Killing in the house, by refusal to print on minority report a bill creating a state liquor monopoly.

Favorable reporting by a house committee of a bill defining and restricting activities and powers of river authorities, strongly opposed by rural electric co-operatives.

Agreement by the house to horse-cannishness of the senate in difference over how the $1,194,000 unexpended balance in the old-age assistance fund shall be spent. The senate suggested it should be spread out over 24 months; the house said immediately. A conference committee will probably arrive at some figure somewhere between these extremes.

Increased Output Of Sour Crudes Is Predicted

AUSTIN, April 5 (AP)—Oil men in a position to know predicted today that the petroleum demands of mechanized armies on the offense will force increased production of West Texas sour crudes.

This increase should be from 100 to 200 per cent above the present allowable during the next nine months.

Oil men long associated with the industry asserted emphatically that 50 per cent of an anticipated 400,000-barrel per day increase in Texas' crude flow during the third quarter must come from West Texas.

Daily production in West Texas was set at 206,649 barrels in the railroad commission's April schedule.

The battle to break the transportation and equipment bottleneck, throttling full utilization of West Texas vast crude reserves will be decided not by Petroleum Administrator Harold Ickes but by the tempo of fighting in North Africa and the Pacific, supplies is declared.

Said one well known authority: "The Petroleum industry war council has stated that 400,000 barrels per day additional crude oil will be needed in the third quarter of 1943 and that most of this increase must come from Texas. West Texas will be called upon to produce at least 200,000 barrels of this amount, since the remaining Texas districts cannot produce this increase without waste."

Though no official announcement has been made, federal and state oil authorities in conjunction with West Texas operators have under consideration far-reaching plans to expedite the flow of sour crudes to areas where demand is increasing, and supplies is decreasing," one seasoned observer said.

Members of the railroad commission repeatedly have expressed concern over the inability of West Texas producers to meet the increasing demands for crude while the principal burden of filling increasing demands falls upon fields unable to boost production without waste.

Alleged purchaser discrimination against sour crudes is one of the most serious complaints of West Texas operators.

Commissioner Olin Culberson recently advocated construction of a 16-inch pipeline from Yoakum county to St. Louis or Chicago to foster transportation of West Texas crudes. He suggested that "the tremendous mid-continent market is the logical place for West Texas to shoot at."

Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson has plugged for a pipeline from West Texas to the Pacific coast, which is suffering from acute petroleum shortage.

SECOND FRONT—Reflecting German nervousness over prospects for a second front in Europe the German radio announced that three leaders of France, Edouard Daladier and Leon Blum, former premiers, and Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former Allied generalissimo, had been removed to a German prison as hostages to prevent the "establishment of a counter government" under Allied auspices. The three followed Paul Reynaud, another former French premier, into a German prison.

NEUTRAL FRONT—Gen. Salem Oumertak, head of a military delegation from non-belligerent Turkey, surprised Allied quarters by coming out squarely with the opinion that the United Nations would win the war and wishing them luck. He voiced the opinion in a press conference in North Africa.

Today's communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa said the Americans were meeting "strong opposition" as they attempted to solve the Axis defense.

They were said to have gained additional ground but the communique gave no specific details of the American position, last reported 12 or 15 miles east of El Guetar and about 40 miles distant from a junction with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces on the Gafsa-Gabes road.

The Tunisian front elsewhere was quiet, with Montgomery's men still feeling out Rommel's defenses along a 20-mile line about 20 miles north of Gabes and straddling the Gabes-Gafsa road where he was taking advantage of a deep wadi or gulch and a string of hills.

Dispatches from the front said the situation was about like that before Montgomery attacked the Mareth line, but said the new Axis positions were now as strong.

Yanks Down Seven Zeros In China

CHUNGKING, April 2 (AP)—(Delayed)—Seven Japanese Zeros definitely were shot down Thursday while attempting to raid an advanced American air base in Kiangsi province.

Nine Zeros were intercepted by 12 P-40's and, after the battle, unofficial reports said that only two damaged Japanese fighters got back across the enemy lines.

Several other waves of attackers attempted to reach the American airbase but turned back without engaging the United States fighters.

One P-40 was shot down and its pilot killed.

Capt. John Hampshire of Grants Pass, Ore., scored his sixth confirmed aerial victory. Other fighter-pilots who got one each confirmed included Verne Brewer of Fairview, Okla. It was Brewer's first air fight.

Amazing results in building STURDY BODIES!

Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach. Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

YOUNG people, especially those of grammar and high school age, are prone to be deficient in stomach digestive juices and red-blood.

A growing person who is operating on a 65 to 70% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped. In such cases Nature needs extra help. Organic troubles of focal infection, if they exist, must be corrected. Tissue foods must be digested and rich, red-blood must be present to build sturdy bodies.

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build-up blood strength when deficient and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so the body can make proper use of it in tissue building and repair.

These two important results enable the body to make use of the food as Nature intended. Thus you may gain a keen appetite... firm flesh... body energy... mental alertness!

Build Sturdy Health so that the Doctors may better serve our Fighting Forces. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." STILLWATER, Okla., April 5 (AP)—Three Oklahoma A. and M. college wrestlers, headed for the National AAU tournament in New York, will get their roadwork all the way.

They're hitchhiking despite the hazard of gasoline rationing.

They are Bill Landay, Paul McDaniels and his brother Joe. Joe, three-time national champion when he was an Aggie squadman, got a furlough from his army post in Arkansas so he could go along.

Their dogs can rest on the way home, though, a former Aggie athlete, Lieut. Phillip Adair stationed at an eastern airfield, wants to send his car back to Oklahoma. The boys will deliver it.

High School Taking over Sport Picture

Schoolboys Only Ones To Set Marks

AUSTIN, April 5 (AP)—When a coach goes after an athlete these days he doesn't bother too much about the boy's ability. The prime question becomes:

Is he over 18 years of age and how does he stand with his draft board?

In other words, sports in wartime will be taken over by the schoolboys and there was no better illustration of that fact than the Texas relay here Saturday.

High school participation in the relays was as heavy as usual, with more than 300 entries. But the colleges, universities and service teams combined had only 200.

The schoolboys took advantage of their increased importance and put on quite a show. Headlining their feat—their fact, headlining the entire relay carnival—was the great throw by Dewitt Coulter, shot putter.

Coulter pitched the 12-pound ball 59 feet 1 1/2 inches to smash the national scholastic record by three and one-half inches. This accomplishment brought the high school division of the relays country-wide publicity for the first time.

The only records broken were in the schoolboy class. Thomas Jefferson (San Antonio) ran the 440-yard relay in 43.4 seconds, just one second over the national mark, in addition to Coulter's feat.

The Texas relays are not run on a point basis but a recapitulation by counting first places five, second place three and so on would show 28 points. Oklahoma A. and M., principally through the efforts of the brilliant Ralph Tate, was second with 23.

In the service team class the Honda navigation school scored 10 points to lead the field.

In the high school division the Thomas Jefferson team made 23 points to finish ahead by a wide margin. Auburn was second with 13 points and John Reagan (Houston) was third with 12.

Pampa Grid Training Due This Week

Spring training for the 1943 Harvester football team will start at 3 p. m. Thursday when candidates for next autumn's squad report to Coach J. C. Prejean.

There will be only 30 days of spring training in conformity to state interscholastic rules. This means that spring training will end on Friday, May 7.

Meanwhile, Coach Prejean will continue work with the track and field squad. Pampa High school has been invited to participate in a track meet to be held Saturday at Claude and will possibly enter, although Coach Prejean said this had not been definitely determined to day.

Another event on the track calendar in which Pampa will likely be represented is the regional meet to be held at Canyon the middle of this month.

High school students and soldiers of Pampa air base will probably field a football team this season. Coach Prejean said the high school team would likely be drawn from gymnasium classes and that the army was anxious to start the games at once.

Ruth Drew $80,000 Year, Was Grossly Underpaid

BY HARRY GRAYSON

NEA Sports Editor

George Herman Ruth is down in history as the Sultan of Swat, but he also was one of the greatest of left-hand pitchers. Of all his records, Babe Ruth is proudest of having pitched 25 scoreless innings in the World Series—for the Boston Red Sox against the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1916 and Chicago Cubs in '18.

Most other pitcher-outfield converts made the change only after their arms failed—Smoky Wood, etc.—but with Ruth that, of course, was no consideration. The Bambino was still the best left-handed pitcher in the American league when Ed Barrow moved to the New York Yankees with him and made him an outfielder because of his slumping.

The Bambino played acceptably at first base, was a left-handed catcher in his youth.

Ruth never made a bad play, such as throwing to the wrong base. He wasn't a long thrower like Long Bob Meusel, but was remarkably accurate—a left-handed Joe DiMaggio in that respect. He was played the sun field, yet the only work of fiction suggested by his amazing career was written by the late Heywood Brown and called, The Sun Field.

In his younger days, Ruth was a crafty base-runner and an accomplished slider.

Ruth was baseball's most glamorous figure. He was the game's highest-salaried performer—$30,000, $52,000, $70,000, $80,000 in '30 and '31, $75,000, $50,000, $35,000.

Even at $80,000 he was grossly underpaid for he was the biggest bucks of the sport. Only last summer at the age of 48, he pecked Yankee stadium with 20,000 admirers—and hit a home run off Walter Johnson!

He remains the most popular man who ever played. He was also biggest ball hitter in the world, and his work in fiction suggested by his amazing career was written by the late Heywood Brown and called, The Sun Field.

Ruth became a home run specialist while pitching and pinch-hitting for the Red Sox. In the days of choke hitters, he gripped the bat 'way down at the end. He was looking for a concentration on home runs. He shot for the works. He instituted something new and sensational when—baseball was sadly in need of a tonic—following the Black Sox scandal.

Ruth had a double swing. He looked good striking out. He had perfect rhythm. It was the power in his wrists at the end of his tremendous swing that enabled him to uproot the ball and belt it for such remarkable distances.

SERIAL STORY

DARK JUNGLES

BY JOHN C. FLEMING & LOIS EBY

COPYRIGHT, 1943, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER I

"NIGHT SAILING," murmured Lila. The tall, dark girl in the fur coat dug her gloved hand deeper through the curve of her fiancé's arm and strained her eyes toward the blurry outlines of the freighter at the dock. "I used to love the words. It meant crowds, music, confetti, champagne..."

Barry Fielding tightened his arm against her hand as he paused to let some ship's officers by. "Now it means," he answered as they moved on toward the gangplank, "stealth, silence, darkness, fog—the kind of fog they once canceled sailings for. That's what war does—turns the world upside down."

The girl was pulling a letter from her smart handbag. She gave it to the officer blocking her way. When he had read it, he stopped aside with grudging respect and she went aboard with Barry. They found their way along the dark, wet deck to his small stateroom, carefully shutting the door and pulling down the blinds before turning on the lights. Barry was grinning with amusement. "You went to a lot of trouble, Lila, for five minutes on board."

"I just wanted to make sure you were going to be comfortable. I've heard some rather sordid stories about wartime travel and I thought I might be able to do some adjusting." She moved closer to him and added softly, "You will be careful, darling?"

Barry's grin widened as his arms went about her. "About being uncomfortable?" he said.

"Of course not. Please—this isn't any time for joking."

"You're telling me."

"I wish I had time to do your unpacking for you."

"I've been doing it for years. One more trip probably won't hurt me."

"You'll write every day?"

"No. As often as I can."

"If you need me, wire. I'll be down on the next plane."

"With the New York police force and the State Militia, eh?"

"Darling, I wish you'd be serious..."

They walked back on deck, drawn by a sudden commotion at the foot of the gangplank. Officers and plain-clothes men were dispersing a noisy farewell party on the dock. White shirts and evening gowns glistened through the fog. A girl was running up the gangplank, laughing, shouting, and the glare of toy horns pursuing her.

Out of breath and laughing, she whirled to stand beside Barry at the rail. Suddenly cupping her hands, she called back.

"Where's my aloha?"

A piping horn belligerently started a chorus. It was silence. The girl at the rail shrieked with laughter. A white shirt front leaned precariously over the water dividing boat from wharf.

"Come on back and finish the party!"

"Come and get me!" the girl taunted.

Lila moved back from the rail. "Of all the disgusting..." she murmured. She started off with Barry. But as they passed the girl an official was holding a flashlight on her. The beam cut past her hair—honey-gold hair, beautifully kept. Lila stopped short and took another look. The features below the hair were molded delicate as a cameo... and the slender white line of throat rose from a collar of sable.

"I beg your pardon," Lila moved regally up to the girl as the officer left. "I'm Lila Harrison. This is my fiancé, Barry Fielding, who's sailing. Are you making the trip?"

Barry could see the blonde in-vation to the white shirt front swaying over the water's edge, then turned back to Lila. "Great Godfrey, no!" she cried. "I'm broke. I'm going to Guatemala and raise chewing gum!"

This was too much. Lila stiffened and turned away. But Barry pulled back, troubled. He said, "You don't mean that, do you?"

He could feel the fopping girl smiling at him. She said in a purring voice, deliberately goading Lila, "Sure, I do, Handsome. My papa left me a chicie plantation."

Lila was pulling his arm impatiently but Barry held his ground. He said with sharp urgency, "Have you ever been to Guatemala, Miss Topping?"

"No," said the blonde girl lightly.

"Take my advice, please," Barry said curly. "Don't go. Lila's pull on his arm relaxed. She moved back with sudden interest. The blonde's attention, too, was caught.

"Why not?" she demanded.

"You won't be able to stand it," Barry told her. "You're not the type. Whoever advised you to go ought to be horsewhipped."

"No one advised me," said the blonde. "What's wrong with a chicie plantation?"

"Nothing—if you like prostrating heat, malaria, scorpions, bush-masters."

"Snakes? Stop!" the blonde screamed.

They were ready to lower the gangplank. An officer tapped Lila's arm. "Everyone ashore who's going ashore."

Lila said to the girl with urgent warmth, "Barry's right. He's been there. I'll help you get your luggage off the boat."

The blonde took a quick breath of decision. Then she laughed. "That's too kind of you," she murmured, a flick of malicious laughter in her voice. "I am an awful scared cat... but I think I'll go. Somehow, I feel so protected with Barry on board."

There was a minute when Barry was sure his fiancée was about to attempt murder.

specting the tall, smart silhouette of his fiancée. Her voice was heavier than Lila's and seemed rough in contrast.

"You sound a little scared," she said surprisingly. Abruptly she turned a small flashlight up and down Barry's tall figure, holding it a moment on his face. She gave a gay whistle. "You do have reason—plenty. Thanks for the introduction, Miss Harrison. I'm Allison Topping. Be seeing you later, of course. Debutante. Darling of elite society. Spotted-brat. But quick on the uptake. He could feel Lila's rising fury. He was surprised she didn't leave. Instead she moved back up to the rail.

"Are you going to Cuba, Miss Topping?"

The girl finished a shouted interruption. "I'll stick right here until I know the program is a success."

Mountains rise to heights of 24,000 feet in Lisuland, on the border between Burma and China.

Barry was thankful the darkness hid his grin. So this was Allison Topping! He'd seen her pictures, of course. Debutante. Darling of elite society. Spotted-brat. But quick on the uptake. He could feel Lila's rising fury. He was surprised she didn't leave. Instead she moved back up to the rail.

Food Czar Says Gardens Needed

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Food Administrator Chester C. Davis said today that millions of residents in towns and cities must be food producers on their own account this year if the country is to meet wartime food requirements.

In his first public talk since taking over the job of administering the food production and distribution programs, Davis said the government has set a goal for at least 12,000,000 gardens in towns, cities and suburban areas and at least 6,000,000 on farms. The talk was given during the intermission of a Metropolitan Opera broadcast on Saturday.

All By Themselves

As one high congressman remarked, the relations between the United States and Russia are a "ticklish subject" on which "spouting off" interperately is out of order.

In the words of Vice President Wallace, it is highly desirable that these two great anti-Hitler nations shall "come to a satisfactory understanding before the war ends."

No loyal American, no sincere well-wisher for democracy, would gratify his desire for ideological self-expression by saying or doing anything that might prevent or delay such an understanding.

However, any international understanding needs to be bi-partisan. It is not enough for one nation to act in complete good faith. Both must do so.

Mr. Wallace was either ingenuous or super-diplomatic when he warned against the United States "double-crossing Russia." That we have not done and shall not do.

The statement of our ambassador to Russia, simultaneous with the vice president's talk, puts the shoe on the other foot. Admiral Standley said that Moscow is carefully hiding from the Russian public the extent of American assistance.

Lend-Lease Administrator Stettinius announced officially that already we have sent $1,250,000,000—a billion and a quarter dollars—worth of supplies to Russia, and are stepping up the pace.

Russian generals were said to have been telling war correspondents that the only American materials at the front have been trucks, though the ambassador says planes by the thousands have arrived, and we know that tanks by at least the hundreds have seen action.

Why should Premier Stalin try to make his people believe that they are fighting alone against the Axis, unhelped in any way by their Anglo-American allies? Why should he be so completely reticent, from us who are doing everything in our growing power to help, about exchanging information on the military phases of the war?

MR. PETRILLO TURNS THE CLOCK BACK (The Chicago Tribune)

Mr. James Caesar Petrillo, the boss of the American Federation of Musicians, announces the formation of a humanitarian department and has opened up for business in competition with the New Deal.

The history of this conversation is as follows: About eight months ago Jimmy ordered his union musicians to cease making recordings and transcriptions to be played on radios and juke boxes.

As a matter of fact, Jimmy isn't thinking in terms of advancement at all. He wants the world to regress. Technological advance has made it possible for a machine to do, with some slight human supervision, the work that used to require the steady application of many hands.

Of course, there is a price for all this. It has to be paid in occasional periods of economic dislocation and unemployment. There isn't any ready-made solution. Hopkins and Roosevelt tried leaf raking, but the usual thing is just to damn the machine.

As an instance of how almost all economic planning is upset by the little gremlins of paradox, there's unemployment insurance. This promotes employment. There are thousands of persons who will not work if they can get the state—that is, the taxpayers—to keep them. I know of many instances where hale-and hearty men and women have deliberately walked out on their job with the remark, "I can collect enough from the unemployment fund to keep me for a while."

What ever became of Leon Henderson? asks the Detroit News. Hadn't you heard? He laid a lot of political eggs that the New Deal can't hatch so far and has been frozen until needed.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Common Ground

"I speak the same-word primer, I give the sign of democracy. By God! I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms."

ALL EMPLOYERS HAVE FOUR JOBS One reason why there are many employers who go broke and why there is a scarcity of employers is that every employer has four different jobs to do at the same time.

First, he has to satisfy his workers. He has to be sales manager for their services and market their services at as good a price as any one else will market them. He thus has to satisfy his workers.

Next, he has to be purchasing agent for his customers. He has to satisfy them that he is giving them as much for their labor as any one else will give them.

Then he has to satisfy those who furnish him the capital—the tools—with which to produce. He has to reward them as much for the use of their capital as anyone else will reward them.

Now, during the last few years, the employer has also to satisfy the government bureaucrats that he is not paying his workers too little or too much; that he is not working them too long for a uniform rate of pay; that he is not selling his product for too much; that he is not making too much profit; that he is not discharging or refusing to hire men whom the government says he should not discharge and that he should hire. Then he has to pay the government a lot of money if he happens to be successful in satisfying these four classes of people, that is of doing these four jobs.

One job seems to be about all most people care to undertake. It takes the exceptional person who can satisfy four different groups of people, as every employer has to do, who rents his capital, hires his labor and sells his product on the open market, and satisfies the arbitrary decisions of bureaucratic, man-made rules.

ROOSEVELT RUNNING OUT OF BRIBE-WEALTH

Roosevelt is beginning to run out of wealth with which to bribe votes. He used so much bank credit, or what might be called counterfeit pyramided credit money, that now it will not exchange freely for butter, meat, eggs, farm products and everything that has a ceiling price.

America has drifted far from the kind of a government our forefathers established, when a representative of the President will ask the hard-working farmers to stint themselves of the very food that they worked extra hours to produce.

It is hard to believe that the farmers will believe that they are not entitled to the fruits of the extra hours which they put in more than Roosevelt requires the collective bargainists to put in. Roosevelt has gotten himself in a nice mess by leading the public to believe that real wages can be increased and the living standards of the people can be improved by the arbitrary method of permitting certain groups of workers to combine and establish artificial wages.

As Jefferson said, "An elective despotism is not the kind of a government we fought to establish."

THINGS THAT NEED TO BE RATIONED

The two things that most need to be rationed are government questionnaires and the number of people on government payrolls.

CIO TO MOBILIZE COMMUNITY COUNCILS

All local members of the CIO are being rallied to enter politics under a plan announced today by the Greater New York Industrial Union Council, central body for 250 CIO unions in the city.

Support for the war effort. Support of the foreign and domestic policies of President Roosevelt.

Policing of price control and rationing. Aid to Civilian Defense volunteer services. Joint legislative and political activity.

Ohio Progresses Recently we mentioned the Franklin county (Ohio) plan to serve legal papers by registered mail.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

AMBITION: Wendell Willkie's friends advance a new and novel argument in favor of his renomination by the Republicans should Franklin D. Roosevelt head the Democratic slate.

WALTH: South Americans are saturated with diplomatic pledges which never materialize and visits of second-rate movie stars, grand opera singers and other stunts smacking of patronizing.

LAZY DREAMER: In the North Hollywood, Calif., a few years ago a happy-go-lucky young entertainer was sentenced to a 30-day sentence for a traffic violation.

FLAMING: A group of Democratic congressmen from Dixie were discussing and condemning F.D.R. policy. A member, who likes the President personally but detests his European doctrines, said, "Well, Mr. Roosevelt is his own worst enemy."

OFFICE CAT: Many persons smile at talk of "biting a better world," believing their part too small to be on any use... This is where they err... Just as many grains of sand form the seashore, so many little acts of kindness make life the happier for everybody.

GLAMOR-GIRL: She lived 5,000 miles from Hollywood but she knew everything about the town where motion pictures are made. She bought every American movie magazine, read them from cover to cover, and cut out the photographs of the glamorous ladies of the screen.

SO THEY SAY: Through all the vicissitudes of this hard and difficult life, under the heavy pressure of providing home and shelter for his family, the Irishman has clung tenaciously to his fundamentals. He has wavered many times in his actions as the weakness of human nature, but always he has rebounded to the faith. Employers Find Going Is Rough During Wartime

BY PETER EDSON Pampa News Washington Correspondent

Here is the plight of an employer concerned with his labor relations: 1. Wage and hour problems are under the control of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division of Labor, which administers the Fair Labor Standards, and Walsh-Healy acts.

2. His union labor contracts, if any, are under the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations board which administers the Wagner act and holds elections of employees to determine proper bargaining agent.

3. If he gets into a pickle with his unions over a new contract, he takes his troubles to the U. S. Conciliation service.

4. If the Conciliation service can't settle the issue, the secretary of labor may certify the case to the National War Labor board.

5. The War Labor board also has final authority over appeals for wage increases, although in the first instance these appeals are handled by regional WLB offices set up within the Wage and Hour Division.

6. Appeals for pay increases of salaried employees making more than $5,000 a year, however, are made to the Bureau of Internal Revenue of the Treasury department.

7. If the employer is in one of the critical labor areas which must go on the 48-hour week, come April 1, any appeal from the 48-hour mandate must be made to the regional office of the War Manpower commission.

8. It is recommended, though not absolutely compulsory, that all hiring be done through the U. S. Employment service, a branch of the War Manpower commission.

9. If the employer is in aircraft, shipbuilding or related industry, his conditions of employment are further governed by the stabilization agreements covering those fields set up by the War Production board and War Manpower commission.

10. His unemployment compensation payments, deducted from payroll, are paid to the treasury of the state or states in which he operates.

11. Old age and retirement, social security benefits which the employer must pay, are administered by the Social Security board in the Federal Security Administration committee, though voluntary and not compulsory in any way, are set up under the inspiration of the Labor Production division of the War Production board.

12. Conditions under which women and children may be employed are determined by state laws, and the codes vary in every state.

13. Any time an essential worker is about to be drafted, appeal must be made to the local board of the Selective Service administration, under the War Manpower commission.

14. The War Manpower commission, through its regional and local offices, also takes responsibility for assisting in the solution of labor recruiting, training and various manpower problems under the voluntary system of control now in operation.

15. Scattered Responsibility Maybe this list overlooks a couple of factors, such as state or municipal factory inspection codes, but it seems complete enough. War Manpower commission is responsible for five of those functions. Department of Labor two, and the other eight are scattered, independent agency controls.

The Truman Senate committee investigating the war effort is currently in the midst of hearings which are intended to bring out ways of increasing labor efficiency in wartime. A parade of labor leaders has been before the committee to give testimony.

The witnesses did not begin to bring out the multiplicity or complexity of agencies and functions enumerated above, but they did point up the issue by calling for the suspension of the Wagner act for the duration of the war, and giving the opinion that some reform was necessary in the present.

Today's War Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Writer

Viscount Halifax, British ambassador to Washington, who speaks what he thinks very freely, made the interesting prediction during the week-end down at Sheffield, Alabama, that "when the German war machine begins to crack, a great part of it may go at once, and the end may come more suddenly than some of us thought six months ago."

Right here it should be emphasized that Lord Halifax wouldn't venture a guess as to the probable length of the war, and I'm not commenting on his prediction for the purpose of suggesting that the end is at hand. On the contrary, we have a bitter struggle ahead of us.

Lord Halifax knows his Germany well, and moreover past history supports his ideas. The German machine went to pieces suddenly in the last war. Then there was a crack of morale both in the fighting forces and among the civilian population.

The Nazi authorities have been showing uneasiness over public morale. Evidence of this is found in the broadcasts for home consumption which are picked up by listening posts in this country.

Hitler and his minions have been coddling public morale by withholding the truth. The people have no idea of their huge losses on the battle fields, because we've heard the fuhrer himself lie like a trooper about casualties in his speeches.

That same thing went on in the last war, until the people learned the truth and the balloon exploded. One of the clever morale builders of the first World War was the faking of pictures of the Kaiser in "front line" trenches. The pictures were taken at Spa, Belgium, far from the sound of the big guns. A trench was dug across an open field, then German soldiers staged a fierce battle, while the all highest swanked about in the trench, and even on the parapet, midst shot and shell.

The German people were fed all sorts of bunk in the last war until they learned the truth. Then they cracked. The same thing is happening now through the loud mouth of Propaganda Minister Goebbels.

But he can't make his lies stick forever. It's the truth that will crack the morale of the Germans—the knowledge that no matter how long they hang on they haven't a chance to win. There are some things Goebbels can't conceal—for instance, the fierce bombing of Reich cities which continued over the week-end.

TEXAS MASQUERADE As Woman Ends CLOVIS, N. M., April 5 (AP)—An eight year's masquerade as a woman ended for Red Lucian Rockey, 26-year-old Blossom, Tex., man, at an army medical center here.

State Police Investigator Roy Ver-Million said Dockery told him he had lived as a woman since he left home in 1935. He had worked as a shoe, he was picked up here and New Mexico towns.

Wearing long curling locks, a shoes, he was picked up here and sent to the medical center for examination.

His sex disclosed, city authorities filed a charge of failure to register for the draft.

War Labor board setup, to free its docket of accumulated cases. Aside from its Conciliation service and Wage and Hour administration functions which run themselves, the U. S. Department of Labor is today a dead letter, concerned with gathering statistics. All the functions which should be centered in a strong Department of Labor are scattered among a dozen agencies, or more, as listed above.

Some months ago, there was a move on foot to reorganize this sprawling mess, centralize it, head it up. The idea was abandoned, but maybe it's still a pious thought, to do away with all this typical Washington duplication and division of authority.

Around Hollywood

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON

She has Hollywood's No. 1 calendar girl. Although under contract to M-G-M as an actress, no one ever gave her a chance to act. She spent her time posing for publicity pictures. She was Lady Santa Claus in red satin shorts. She rode a broomstick for Halloween. She wrote "Happy Fourth of July" in the sands at Santa Monica beach.

Then one day M-G-M executives were looking at every available film in the vaults, finding an actress to play a role originally written for the late Jean Harlow. One of the tests held their attention. It was the girl they were looking for—the same girl the same studio fired five years previously. She was known as Harriet Lake then. But now she's one of the town's brightest stars—Ann Sothern.

LAZY DREAMER: In the North Hollywood, Calif., a few years ago a happy-go-lucky young entertainer was sentenced to a 30-day sentence for a traffic violation. He didn't even have enough money to pay the bail. He wasn't worried much, except that he wanted to get out and get married. Over at one of the film studios, the girl he wanted to marry was called into a producer's office. "I understand you want to get married," said the producer. "Take my tip, baby, and wait a while. You'll simply jeopardize your career and we have big things planned for you. And if you're going to marry the boy, I think you have in mind, think twice about it. He's never amounted to anything and he never will. He's strictly a lazy dreamer."

FLAMING: A group of Democratic congressmen from Dixie were discussing and condemning F.D.R. policy. A member, who likes the President personally but detests his European doctrines, said, "Well, Mr. Roosevelt is his own worst enemy." Up leaped "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina, his brows bristling and eyes flaming. "Not by a damned sight," he exploded. "That's not true so long as I'm alive."

OFFICE CAT: Many persons smile at talk of "biting a better world," believing their part too small to be on any use... This is where they err... Just as many grains of sand form the seashore, so many little acts of kindness make life the happier for everybody.

GLAMOR-GIRL: She lived 5,000 miles from Hollywood but she knew everything about the town where motion pictures are made. She bought every American movie magazine, read them from cover to cover, and cut out the photographs of the glamorous ladies of the screen. And because she wanted to be like some of the girls who posed like the glamor girls did in the American movie magazines, her father was a photographer and whenever he had nothing else to do, he photographed his movie-struck daughter in exact copies of the Hollywood glamor girl poses.
