Pvt. Walter Buckel, former third-sacker on the Pampa Oilers, will graduate from the Chicago army air forces technical school on February 25.

Carver Will Meet Patton Cage Teams

Seeking a comeback, the Carver school of Pampa will send its boys and girls basketball teams against the teams of Patton school, Amarillo, in two games scheduled to be played there at 8:15 p. m. February 12 in the Amarillo Junior High School gymnasium.

It took everything the Amarillo boys had to defeat the locals in two games played there January 29. In the girls contest, the Carver team of Pampa had the score tied at 9 all up to the last two minutes of play, but the Patton quintet nosed out the Carver players 11 to 9.

Four times the Carver boys had the Patton cagers tied, at 12-12, 18-18, 20-20, and 26-26, but lost in the last few minutes of the tilt 26 to 28.

One side of the Amarillo gymnasium will be reserved for white spectators, the other for negroes, in the game next Friday night.

ODT Requests Cancellation Of Kentucky Derby

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—The government requested officially today that the Kentucky derby not be run this year.

If the request is complied with, it would represent the first break in the holding of the annual turf event in war or peace, since the first race was run in 1815.

Army, Civilians Split Twin Bill

Officers and civilians split a double-header in basketball games Friday night at the Pampa air base when the Mack-Diamond shop followed up two victories in games of the Pampa Junior High School Invitational basketball tournament, played at the junior high gymnasium, to make it three in a row.

The Mack-Diamond quintet swamped Officers Group 2 by a score of 40 to 24. Turning back their opponents, Officers Group 3 lambasted the Phillips cagers, 36 to 11.

Rev. R. L. Gilpin To Broadcast On "Within Chancel"

On the regular Sunday afternoon broadcast of the Pampa Ministerial Alliance, the Rev. R. L. Gilpin will present a new devotional entitled "Within the Chancel." Within the Chancel many knives have worn smooth the low benches under their feet, many tense hands have grasped the backs of the pews in agony of their souls' needs. Here they have brought their wounded hearts; here told their anguish. Here, within the chancel, God's mercy and grace in answer to prayer has brought assurance, earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal. Everyone is invited to come "Within the Chancel" this afternoon.

Miss Barbara Zigler, Lieut. John Heuer Wed

In a single ring ceremony solemnized by candlelight in the auditorium of the Presbyterian church Miss Barbara Zigler, daughter of Mrs. Alberta Zigler, became the bride of Lieut. John C. Heuer of Indianapolis, Ind. Saturday night at 8 p. m., the Rev. Robert Boshen officiating.

On the altar stood two Egyptian urns filled with white carnations and white tapers. In the background were synthetic palms. Mrs. Freda Barrett was matron-of-honor and Lieut. Jay M. Dickerson acted as best man to the bridegroom. The bride was given away by Lieut. R. T. Russ.

The bride wore an ice blue dress with a corsage of white gardenias. For her going away frock, she chose a brown dressmaker with matching accessories. The matron-of-honor wore a blue dress matching the color of the bride's and a corsage of white gardenias. Ushers for the evening were Capt. Phillip A. Mascoli, Lieut. Robert P. Patterson, and Lieut. Harold B. Smith.

Lieutenant Heuer is a graduate of Washington and Lee university where he received his B. S. degree. He is stationed at the Pampa Army Air Forces Advanced Flying school. Mrs. Heuer graduated from the Kluge High school and attended University of Texas. She is also a member of the Beta Gamma Kappa sorority.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was given in the home of Lottie Ochiltree, aunt to the bride, at 615 N. Gray. After the reception the couple left for a short wedding trip.

Mrs. Charles Allen Honored at Shower

SERIAL STORY

THE TERRIBLE EYE

BY EDWIN RUTT

COPYRIGHT, 1943. NEA SERVICE, INC.

Remarkable indeed is the device invented by Jonah Logan. He calls it "The Terrible Eye."

LOVE AT FIRST LANDING

CHAPTER II DAY was parading in blue-and-gold attire over Connecticut. And, in mid-morning, Jonah Logan and Mahoney drove toward the estate of Henry L. Channing in a rattletrap Ford, vintage of 1935.

Between them on the front seat was a small square box finished in fawn leather. Save for this leather finish, it was an exact miniature of the big machine that stood in their converted barn. In the back of the car were two cumbersome black cases, obviously containing photographic equipment.

The country through which the Ford rattletrapped was superb. Undulating green fields, divided here and there by stone fences, stretched in all directions. Ancient trees lined the roadside. Over this lush landscape the sun was laying a golden wash and the light, glittering in on a million grass-blades, created the impression that they were passing through fields sown with emeralds.

"I understand," Jonah said presently, "that the Channing estate is quite something. The house is an exact copy of a French chateau."

"No kiddin'," Mahoney said, with interest. "Any marmalose around?" "Keep your mind on your work, Mahoney," said Jonah.

The car negotiated a fair-sized hill. At the summit Jonah pointed. "Unless I've been misinformed," he said, "that would be the Channing place."

Below they perceived a broad acreage surrounded by an ivy-covered wall. From almost the center of this hallowed ground there arose a huge house of weathered dune-colored stone, towered and turreted after the fashion favored by architects of Old France. Clustered about the mansion were a number of smaller outbuildings, so that the House of Channing had the appearance of being the focal point in a tiny village. In a corner of the property, but still enclosed by the wall, was something that looked like a large white circle.

"What's the round white thing?" Mahoney inquired. "Probably the fence around Mr. Channing's private race course," Jonah told him. "During my inquiries, I discovered that he's a great horse fancier."

Mahoney was impressed. "Look," he said, "where do the likes of us get off blovin' in on a guy that owns French chateaus and race horses? Hadn't we ought to phone him an'..." "Definitely not," said Jonah. "The phone's been a total loss. Furthermore, Mahoney, there will be a gatekeeper here, but we shall eschew him. I'll have no more dealings with underlings. I'm going to climb that wall and go straight to the Big Wind himself."

Mahoney whistled. "That's the nuttiest idea yet. They'll run you out by the seat of your pants, like Jimmy Durante in the movies."

"They will, eh? Not before I've told Mr. H. L. Channing a thing or two." "Jonah had been right. There was a gatekeeper who bestowed a fishy and disinterested glance upon the Ford as it chattered by. Jonah didn't even return the glance. He merely followed the road around the wall to a point at which a curve hid the gatehouse from view. Then he stopped. Mahoney's eyes measured the

He landed on his knees in soft earth. In a successful effort to save the Terrible Eye from disaster, he failed to guard his chin. The chin struck Earth. For a brief moment Mr. Logan knelt there, like a monk in natty tweeds at his devotions. And then, quite unexpectedly, a voice sounded.

wall. "You're goin' to have a climb, Chief. That's easy 10 feet high."

"Nothing to it," said Jonah. "I foregoing with a mixture of sultan and rose leaves, and voluta! You had the perfect face. So, for Jonah's money, had this girl."

"Ha, ha," he said involuntarily. "Ha, ha," said the girl. "You look as if you've been leading with your chin."

Jonah caressed the Logan jaw, noting meanwhile that ashblond hair with pin-dots of yellow fire in it was the only possible hair to go with a face like this.

"My chin?" he said absently. "Now don't tell me you've hurt yourself," the girl said. "And, by the way, what are you doing here? And, by another way, who are you?"

"Jonah felt a little like a viciously tackled halfback who is being walked around and questioned by the referee."

"Me?" he said, somewhat dazedly. "Why, I—I'm Jonah."

"I see." The blue eyes regarded him gravely. "And what's that?" The whole?

She pointed in well-bred fashion. The countenance of Mahoney was rising above the wall, like the moon over Miami.

Jonah got hold of himself. He was becoming aware of the reason why he stood here rubbing his chin, bewildered and inarticulate. With the realization he had a horrifying thought. In another second Mahoney would take off from the wall. And this, Jonah saw, mustn't be. The conversation that he hoped presently to conduct simply could not be cluttered up with Mahoney's.

"Stay where you are, Mahoney!" he ordered, extending a mandatory finger.

"But you says to folly you," began Mahoney, "bein' careful to..." "That's canceled. At ease, Mahoney."

The girl spoke. "We're making real progress. You're Jonah and that is Mahoney. Tarzan Mahoney, I presume. Well, where do we go from here?"

The familiar business of barking at Mahoney had restored Jonah's aplomb. He produced a card, with a flourish.

American Guns Turn City Into Suburb of Hell

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

WITH U. S. FORCES BEFORE FAID, Tunisia, Feb. 2 (Delayed)—American artillery turned Axis-held Faid into a suburb of hell tonight.

A thunderous barrage of several hundred heavy shells pounded the little French town, now an enemy stronghold, into broken ruins and started a great landslide in the mountain heights at the mouth of the pass south of Faid.

Thirty-eight pound shells, fired from 105 millimeter guns, drove a covey of Mark IV tanks from the town and blasted huge ammunition dumps which exploded for hours, tearing the Tunisian night with vivid towers of flame and muffled waves of sound.

Soldiers miles away forsook their blankets and stood shivering under the cold and starlit sky to cheer the spectacle.

After several hours the flame and flashes grew weaker until they were no more than glow-worm gleams on the horizon, and the noise of exploding Axis ammunition died away like the mutter of retreating thunder.

The greatest night show of the Tunisian campaign was over and with it glimmered out the Axis hope of extending a thrust through Faid pass, from whose hills the ill-equipped French were driven four days ago.

Earlier in the day I had ridden with Smith and another staff officer, Lieut. Col. George H. Suttlin, 31. of Alexandria, La., for a tour of front-line positions and talked with Maj. Norman W. Parsons, 32. of New Cumberland, W. Va., whose tanks popped away steadily at German strongpoints around Faid.

"My tankers have just been getting a little artillery practice today," Parsons smiled. "In this same area the day before yesterday one of our self-propelled batteries took one of the most concentrated counter-battery fires I have ever seen, followed by an attack by seven Stukas with 500-pound bombs. But they had no serious casualties—two men shelled and there was some minor damage to vehicles."

With Parsons in the tank was Corp. Wilson L. Gulaae, 23. gunner, of Eddy, Texas.

Cop's Plea Prompts Men to End Strike

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—After bidding his youngest son farewell as he left to be inducted into the army, Police Captain John Collins reported for duty at his Bronx police station. There was a sit-down strike, he was told, at the Acme Laboratory Equipment company, which manufactures medical supplies for the army.

Collins went to the plant. He talked to the idle employes. He spoke of young Americans fighting in Africa, in the islands of the Pacific, in planes over China, over Europe. He spoke of men still to be wounded in action, men whose lives might be saved by doctors using Acme equipment—if the equipment was delivered.

He promised that he, personally, would ask the War Labor Board for speedy action on the workers' complaints about wages and working conditions.

The employes marched to their benches and began to make medical equipment again.

States' Debts Remain Static,

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Obligations of states, when considered in the light of the rising debt, are practically static, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau told a house appropriations subcommittee.

Representative O'Neal (D-Ky.) asked for figures on the financial standing of various states "to show whether the states are almost as solvent as the federal government." Morgenthau submitted figures showing the debt in Texas had risen from $10,346,000 in 1931 to $21,675,000 in 1941. Corresponding figures for New Mexico were $12,095,000 and $26,747,000, and for Oklahoma, $11,532,000 and $43,223,000.

The secretary expressed doubt these figures would be "on a very current basis." A report on War Bond sales by states was presented by Harold N. Graves, assistant to Morgenthau. Graves said that from May, 1941, to November, 1942, sales at issue price of series E bonds, designed primarily for small investors, amounted to $12,009,000 in New Mexico, $61,152,000 in Oklahoma, and $226,496,000 in Texas.

Sales of series F and G combined—designed for sale to large investors, such as corporations—totaled $12,091,000 for New Mexico, $28,395,000 in Oklahoma, and $103,732,000 in Texas.

Graves submitted a comparison of sales of series E bonds for the first 11 months of last year with the ranking of states by per capita income. This showed that New Mexico, with $9,700,000 in bonds sold for the period, ranked forty-eighth in sales while 39th in per capita income. Oklahoma, with $48,300,000, was thirty-eighth in sales and fortieth in income, while Texas, with $176,500,000, was twentieth in sales and thirty-seventh in per capita income.

Indians Want Army To Govern Them

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 6 (AP)—Accusing the government of mistreating Indian affairs, Henry Chee Dodge, hereditary tribal chief of the Navajos, urged that the problems of his people be removed from civilian bureaus and given to the army "where they will be understood."

The 63-year-old chief, one of the first Indians to learn English, asserted that bureaucratic agents who regulate life on the reservations have scant interest in his people's welfare and are "interested only in checks with the right numbers on them."

On the four occasions the army was sent to adjust Navajo problems, he asserted, they showed deep understanding. Chee Dodge emphasized that he did not mean troops, in referring to the army, "just officers who know how to handle our problems."

The aging chief presumably had in mind the army taking over Indian supervision after a United Nations victory.

Texas Gunner Shoots Down German Plane

WITH U. S. FORCES IN CENTRAL TUNISIA, Feb. 2. (Delayed) (AP)—A battle between an American artillery column and two German fighters during which two American machine-guns fought on with jammed guns was described today by Capt. Wilson C. McNamara, 30, of Plattsburg, N. Y.

So successful was the resistance that one of the two Messerschmitts was shot down and the other was believed destroyed, he said. "During the action, two of our five machine-guns jammed," Capt. McNamara said, "but the men stuck with them and continued to fire single rounds. I have recommended both gunners for citations."

Medal of Honor Given To Marine Commander

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt has presented the congressional medal of honor to Major General Alexander A. Vandegrift of the marines, for "outstanding and heroic accomplishment" under adverse conditions against Japanese forces in the Solomon Islands.

General Vandegrift, a native of Charlottesville, Va., thus became the first marine in this war to receive both the congressional medal and the navy cross, having received the latter last October at Guadalcanal from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet.

Here's How That Withholding Tax Works and You Can Figure Your Own

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—In order to allow for marital and dependency exemptions and other deductions allowed under the income tax law, the treasury has drawn up a tentative schedule of weekly exemptions to expedite the operation of its proposed 19 per cent income tax withholding system.

For a single person the weekly exemption proposed is $11, for a married person, $26, and for each additional dependent $8. Allowing for these exemptions here's how the 19 per cent withholding plan would affect your weekly pay check if adopted: If your salary is $40 a week, there would be withheld by your employer: Married, no dependents, $2.66 (19 per cent of $14, which is the amount subject to the withholding tax after $26 exemption).

War Workers Inspire Revolutionary Changes In Men's Clothing

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 (AP)—There will be revolutionary changes in the style of men's clothes this spring and summer, say the leaders in the trade, giving men relief from the severity of conventional attire.

They described the new styles being prepared for the masculine trade as "rugged, practical, comfortable" clothes—known in the male apparel world as "active wear."

Manufacturers, distributors and retailers at the men's and boy's wear clinic here say the "new aristocracy"—the nation's workers in war industries—are responsible for the change-over.

Clothing's said the most noticeable break-away from men's long fidelity to all-out subdued tones of grays, blues, and browns will be by way of slacks and jackets of contrasting colors. Many rainbow hues will be seen but the type expected to have the strongest appeal will be relatively plain slacks suits—"casually comfortable." Leather jackets will be in strong demand.

The trend in shirts is toward button-down collar attached end convertible collars. In accessories, striped belts, many with cowboy motifs, are coming in, as are all types of knitted sweaters and waist coats. New ties and hose will have more than the ordinary dash of color, while sports models, porkie shapes, and cloth hats are expected to gain favor in head gear.
