

BRITISH CAPTURE ENFIDAVILLE

Roosevelt, Avila Camacho Cross Rio Grande into U.S.

Real Reason For Meeting Undisclosed

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN. April 21 (AP)—The conference of state which President Roosevelt and President Avila Camacho began in a gala setting at Monterey, Mexico, last night, continued north of the border today.

Avila Camacho was returning the only official visit ever made deep into his country by an American president, but security reasons forbade the immediate announcement of details.

Interrupting a lavish, seven-course dinner, the two continental leaders who delivered radio addresses at Monterey without disclosing in any manner the real reason for their dramatic meeting.

They spoke, instead, of differences between their two governments which already have been solved, of a joint solidarity in arms in a world at war, and of the values, now and for the future, of the good neighbor policy.

They dealt strictly in generalities, and words of friendship and Mr. Roosevelt promised that "the government of the United States and my countrymen, are ready to help Mexico toward greater progress toward the greatest possible measure of security and opportunity." He referred to the issue now apparently dead, created by Mexican expropriation of American-owned oil lands.

Mr. Roosevelt declared with studied emphasis:

"We recognize a mutual interdependence of our joint resources. We know that Mexico's resources will be developed for the common good of humanity. We know that the day of the exploitation of the resources and the people of one country for the benefit of any group in another country is definitely over."

A few minutes before, Avila Camacho had said in a conciliatory vein, that "neither your excellency nor I believe in negative memories."

Avila Camacho stressed the "solidarity" of Mexico and the United States in the common cause of destroying "the machinery of barbarism constructed by the dictators."

But he implied clearly that the continuation of Mexico with her relatively small army, would be made chiefly "at home."

"Circumstances will determine for each one of us," he said, "the degree of direct participation in active combat but there is no carrying on the fight immediately at home against those evils which offend and concern us in others."

Both he and Mr. Roosevelt took note of the way Mexico has been turning out materials on which American war plants feed men to work on farms.

They exchanged mutual expressions of friendship.

Precedent-Breaking Presidents

Points Reduced on Frozen Foods, Soup, Blackeyed Peas

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Blue ration coupons will buy about twice as much frozen fruits and vegetables and canned and dehydrated soups starting tomorrow. Dry black-eyed peas will be ration-free.

A slash in the point values of these goods was announced by the office of price administration to prevent warm-weather spoilage and relieve a clogging of storage space resulting from slow sales.

It was the second major change in coupon costs of rationed fruits and vegetables, and came as the OPA was considering an overhaul of some of its meat points, including possible reductions on luncheon and other items and an increase on beef hamburger. These meat changes, if made, probably will come at the end of the month.

Fanciers of frozen foods received what officials described as obvious "point bargains," primarily to clear commercial refrigerators of the remnants of last year's pack and make way for this year's. When the new crops come out, they are likely to be point-priced again at about the old levels.

The one-pound size of frozen fruit was cut from 13 to 6 points, one-pound package of frozen baked custards from 8 to 4 points, and the customary 12 ounce size of other frozen vegetables from a 6-10 point range to a flat rate of 4 points.

The customary 10 1/2 ounce can of tomato soup was cut from 6 to 3 points and other canned soups from 6 to 4 points. For dry or dehydrated soups, the new values are only a fourth of what they started out to be when processed food rationing began March 1. The points were cut in half March 29, and again approximately in half, effective tomorrow. The 2 1/2 ounce package will take a single point.

The South, where blackeyed peas are popular, will have point-freezing of these dry vegetable. Other varieties of dry beans, peas, and lentils were unaffected and remain at 4 points per pound.

Next month's blue coupons, which are Saturday and Sunday, may be used starting tomorrow. This, during the last week of the month, both April and May stamps will be usable simultaneously.

Distribution of War Ration Book No. 2—to be used as a replacement for Books No. 1 and 2—will be by mail instead of school house registration, price administrator Pren-tiss M. Brown announced yesterday in urging the public to "step hard" on any rumors that the book might be used for any new rationing.

Application blanks are to be left in mail boxes between May 20 and June 5 and mailing of the new books is expected to be completed by the end of July.

3rd Cadet Class To Get Wings Here Tomorrow

For the third time since the field was established in December, 1942, another class of graduates, 43-D, will receive their silver wings when graduation is held at 10 a. m. in the North American continent," according to the program will include the presentation of diplomas by Lieut. Col. Robert C. McBride and Capt. Charles D. Scott, administration of the camp by Capt. Paul Daugherty, inspection by Lieut. Maurice P. Gardner, chaplain, singing of the air corps song by the cadets and group singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Col. Daniel S. Campbell, commanding officer of Pampa field, will pin the wings on the graduates of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

An unusually large crowd was expected for the Texas coffee and informal reception to be held at the high school building starting promptly at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when graduating aviation cadets, their relatives, friends, and local citizens who are entertaining graduation visitors were to be guests of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Carl Benetel, president of the chamber of commerce, was to be master of ceremonies at the brief program. Dan E. Williams, chairman of the army hospitality committee, composed of Mayor Fred Thompson, Joe Gordon, H. E. Schwartz, Henry Ellis, Crawford Atkinson, and Lt. Harold B. Smith were on the reception committee along with a group of women under the leadership of Mrs. H. E. Schwartz.

Every hotel and tourist park room was filled last night and there were long waiting lists at all places. With one or two exceptions, however, no one has had to sit up yet.

The over-flow guests, were being assigned to Pampa homes by the chamber of commerce.

The big crowd is expected today and while early this morning the chamber of commerce had everyone who was expected to arrive lined up for a definite home in advance of arrival, a last minute influx of unexpected guests would be hard to handle, Williams said. Anyone who is expected to arrive today.

FDR Retained Power Although Both He, Wallace Out Of U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Constitutional lawyers of the department of justice are of the opinion President Roosevelt relinquished none of his power or office when he crossed into Mexico yesterday.

The question was asked by The Pampa News, with Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President Wallace both out of the country, whether the United States had an acting president for the first time in history.

In replying in the negative, the constitutional lawyers cited Article II, Section 6 of the Constitution, which provides for temporary succession only in the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the office.

Mr. Roosevelt's arrival in Mexico for his address last night at Monterey marked the first time in United States history when both the president and the vice president were simultaneously on foreign soil, either in war or in peace.

I SAW ...

Both banks closed here today but otherwise no sign that today is the day of days to Texans—the anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto. How about Pampans getting some Texas flags—and displaying them? From the lack of the state flags here, you'd think maybe those persons down-state who think the Panhandle is a part of New Mexico or Kansas might be right.

Deadlock Is Reported On Tax Measure

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Another pay-as-you-go tax discussion was arranged by republican and democratic leaders today after reports of a new deadlock contrasted with earlier word of a compromise.

Last night they had come forward with what was described as a virtually complete agreement, understood to provide for abatement of approximately 50 per cent of 1942 income taxes.

After a morning conference in Speaker Rayburn's office, the speaker told newspaper men that "there is no conclusion as yet. There has been no compromise arrived at."

A special bi-partisan compromise committee, composed of ranking democratic and republican members of the house ways and means committee, agreed to "try again" to find a middle ground at another meeting later in the day.

One member attending the morning meeting, behind closed doors, said that hopes for a compromise had "dimmed."

The house finance committee today unanimously approved a two-year extension of the $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund, but specified that control of it must remain with the president and the secretary of the treasury.

In so specifying, the committee said it had in mind possible post-war international stabilization efforts, perhaps including establishment of an international bank into which the stabilization fund might go, whereby direct control of it by the president might be lost.

The restricting amendment, offered by Rep. Reed (R-Ill), provides, such fund shall not be used in any manner whereby direct control and custody thereof passes from the president and the secretary of the treasury.

The effort was made by the committee in its action to include in the bill extension beyond June 30 of the president's authority to devalue the dollar. This provision was eliminated from the senate bill.

Grady Anglin Is Killed In Action

T-Sgt. Grady Anglin, a former announcer of Radio Station KPDR, Pampa, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Anglin of Wheeler, was killed in action April 15, somewhere on the North African continent," according to a war department telegram received in Amarillo yesterday by his wife, the former Juanita Johnson of Pampa.

No details were given in the telegram but it is known that Sergeant Anglin had been in action at Kiska, in Alaska. The sergeant was a radio operator and gunner on an army bomber. He had been in the army three years.

Death took Sergeant Anglin just 15 days before he was to have come home on furlough of Sergeant and Mrs. Anglin, in which figured a lost letter written by the sergeant and forwarded by a Pampa woman and forwarded to the girl who later became his wife, was the subject of a feature story in a recent issue of The Pampa News.

Besides his widow and parents, Sergeant Anglin is survived by four brothers, one of whom is in New Mexico, the other three in Amarillo.

Father-in-law of the sergeant is Clint Johnson, meat cutter at a local grocery store.

Have Correct Cash For Carrier Boys

Have your correct change ready each Saturday when the newspaper carrier comes around to collect.

That was the request made of subscribers to The Pampa News today by the circulation department.

Call-backs take time and cause a lot of waste money.

Carriers of this newspaper work on the "little merchant" plan. In other words, your carrier pays for your paper, then if you don't pay him, he's the loser. He has to check up with the circulation department weekly.

The department is doing its utmost to give service to readers, despite the difficulties of operating in war time.

You can make the work of the carriers more pleasant and profitable if you will heed this admonition and it will make for a better relationship all around.

Nazis Fail To Gain Kuban Delta Height

MOSCOW, April 21 (AP)—A violent struggle for an important height marked the mounting battle in the Kuban Delta above Novorossisk today as the Germans threw in more troops in an attempt to regain lost positions, but nowhere did they succeed in gaining any ground, the Russians reported.

A dispatch to Red Star, the army newspaper, said that artillery action has increased and there are more and more bombings by the German air force.

Pravda, Communist party newspaper, printed a front page dispatch which said Rumanian troops were in the fight but that war prisoners complained the Germans had abandoned them.

On other fronts there was heavy artillery duelling along the Donets north of Chuguev, in the Sevsk district, and on the Volkhov front southeast of Leningrad.

'G.I. Varieties' to Feature War Bond Rally Here at 7:30 Tonight

A 1 1/2 hour fast-paced musical comedy, written, directed and presented by an all-soldier cast from Pampa Army air field, will highlight the "G. I. Varieties" movie rally to be held at 7:30 tonight at the LaNora theater.

Admission for children will be the purchase of $1 or more in Victory stamps.

The rally will be a salient part of the county-wide Victory loan campaign of which S. D. Steunis is chairman. Since April 12, the day the campaign opened to yesterday, April 20, Gray county residents have purchased a total of $407,424.25 in bonds, or $222,575.75 short of the county's $630,000 quota to be reached by April 30. Tuesday bond sales totaled $30,306.50.

At the Junior high school auditorium this forenoon a program of music and readings was presented with emphasis given the school's campaign to purchase Victory bonds.

Quota for the 1250 students is $40,000. At the program this morning, one room alone, Room 208, of which Mrs. Rex Rose is teacher, purchased $6000 worth of bonds.

In Roberts county, north of Gray, the county bond quota of $48,000 has been passed as of Monday, and Roberts is believed to be the first county in the Northeast Panhandle to claim this distinction. Bond sales to date in Roberts total $59,349.75.

Army Says Tokyo Raid Mild Taste of Future Bombings

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Tokyo could tremble again today in memory of the bombs which struck terror into Japan's vulnerable heart, a year ago today.

For the war department promised that those were just a gentle prelude to the pounding to come, and disclosed that the "Shangri-La" from which the bombers struck was a ship at sea—a floating base that could be multiplied to maul the isle of Nippon from almost any direction.

Ripping away at last the mystery that had cloaked the Pacific war's most thrilling aerial exploit, the official story of the raid disclosed:

That the base from which Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's 16 twin-engine bombers took off to blast war plants in Tokyo and four other Japanese cities was the Aircraft Carrier Hornet, later lost in the Pacific battle of Santa Cruz, October 26.

That the idea of the spectacular attack—a first installment on the Pearl Harbor debt—was conceived in January 1942, presumably by Doolittle and intense training in utmost secrecy preceded its execution on See ARMY Page 3.

MacArthur Warns Again Of Growing Jap Strength

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, April 21 (AP)—Japan's air and ground power in the South-west Pacific is growing "with great rapidity," a spokesman for General Douglas MacArthur warned today, and "the situation is now becoming more menacing on the Australian front."

"It is our hope that our force will grow to match his (the enemy's)," the spokesman said.

The warning was the latest in a series sounded from headquarters of the ranking military officials by the successes of General MacArthur's far-ranging bombers. One of those successes was the sinking yesterday at Wewak, New Guinea, of a 6,000-ton ship, presumably loaded with fuel, judging from the way it burst into flame.

U. S. Sub Bags Eight More Ships

PEARL HARBOR, April 21 (AP)—The submarine Wahoo has returned from its second adventure in enemy waters with another eight ships sunk for a total of 13 in two successive patrols.

Naval officials said the eight bagged in the second patrol was a record number for a single patrol, but Lieut. Commander Dudley W. Mason, skipper of the Wahoo, described the exploit as "just one of the many successes of the Wahoo."

"It was just sight, track, shoot and sink," said the 36-year-old Miami, Fla., officer.

Besides the eight ships, totaling 37,000 tons, the Wahoo damaged a ninth and wrecked a trawler and two sampans. The sinkings all were achieved within one week's time.

For the two patrols, the first in January, the total tonnage sunk was 69,000.

Morton admitted he got a thrill one night when a Japanese tanker's five-inch shell fell close to the Wahoo's bow, forcing the Wahoo to submerge. The submarine resurfaced later and sank the tanker within 45 minutes.

As soon as the Wahoo had cleared combat area, the crew tuned in on Tokyo radio.

"The Japs gave us a propaganda broadcast that the submarine menace had been erased," Morton said. "Then we got nine ships in seven days (eight sunk, one damaged)."

The ships sank so fast only four survivors were sighted. These were refused to be taken prisoner.

"One Jap just opened his mouth as we approached, gulped seawater and drowned," Morton said.

Two Of Harmon's Crew Killed

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—The army announced today that two members of the crew of the plane piloted by Lt. Thomas D. Harmon, former All American football player, died in the plane's crash in the South American jungles April 8.

They were Staff Sgt. James F. Goodwin, engineer of the flight, and Sgt. Leonard D. Gunnells, a gunner. Goodwin's father, Cecil C. Goodwin, lives at Texarkana, Tex., and Gunnells' mother, Mrs. Hermina K. Gunnells, at Dealville, Ala.

Harmon was shot at a base in Dutch Guiana, where he was taken after wandering four days in the jungle.

Three others, none from the southwest, are missing.

Mighty Drive Against Axis Corner Opens

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, April 21 (AP)—Dashing veterans of the Eighth army have captured Enfidaville, Axis coastal anchor 50 miles south of Tunis, in the first hours of an offensive to crack the enemy's Tunisian corner and have hurled back four counter-assaults in some of the fiercest fighting since the Nazis were thrown out of Egypt, the Allies announced today.

Accompanying Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's drive from the south, which was opened at 11 o'clock Monday night with a mighty barrage from hundreds of guns, the British First army has moved forward slightly in the Medjez-el-Bah sector west of Tunis, said a communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters.

The newest assaults, aimed at collapsing the mountain rim held by Marshal Erwin Rommel and Col. Gen. Jürgen von Arnim, were meshed with the northwest African army force's heaviest bombardments of Axis airfields the campaign has seen and by violent air battles in which 27 enemy aircraft were shot down yesterday.

Along with other planes shot down on previous days but not previously reported here, this score brought to 151 the total of enemy planes destroyed in the last three days.

"Enfidaville has been occupied and all initial objectives captured after fierce fighting," the communique said. "Four enemy counterattacks have been repulsed. Fighting continues."

The objectives were the Takrouna heights west and northwest of Enfidaville and about 4 miles south of Tunis, and the 1,200-foot Djebel Garel, which commands the plains region about 12 miles west of Enfidaville.

The infantry moved out in the moonlight Monday after an intensive artillery barrage—Gen. Montgomery's usual prelude to an offensive.

Berlin, Baltic Ports Pounded By RAF Planes

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—Heavy British bombers attacked the German battle ports of Stettin and Rostock last night while speedy Mosquito bombers pounded Berlin in widespread raids from which 31 planes are missing, the air ministry announced today.

The night's operations also included mine-laying in enemy waters and sharp attacks by fighters and fighter-bombers on enemy railways, barges and coastal shipping, a communique said.

The operations were favored by good weather and the bombing attacks on Stettin and Rostock, which were carried out by some of the RAF's mightiest planes—were still well concentrated, the air ministry said.

Rostock is the site of the Heinkel and Neptune works and the communique said the port and the Heinkel works were the specific targets in last night's raid.

While the heavy bombers were out against the Baltic ports and Berlin last night—the eighth night in a row that the RAF has attacked the German-dominated continent—other planes hit hard at German rail and water communications in France, Holland, Belgium and northern Germany, and attacked shipping off the Belgian coast.

The air ministry news service described the forays against the Axis transport as among the biggest such attacks of the war.

Heavy explosions from the French channel coast, heard in the Dover-Falkestone area after dawn today, indicated that the Allied attacks were continuing by daylight.

All in all, the RAF gave Adolf Hitler a party on the night of his 54th birthday that he can well remember.

Berlin's raid was its 61st. It was much heavier than the attacks on the Baltic ports and not comparable with the three heavy raids on the capital in March.

The night's raids followed late afternoon forays by Ventura bombers against the docks at Cherbourg railway targets at Boulogne and a factory at Zebrugge, Belgium, without the loss of a plane. The Germans hit back quickly with a night retaliation raid in which they dropped bombs on two London districts.

San Jacinto Day Observed In Houston

HOUSTON, April 21 (AP)—Texas was founded on the ideal of courage and loyalty to the cause of freedom, and this explains why Texas has had a larger percentage of men to volunteer for service in the war in proportion to its population than any other state, Judge John M. The convention was the first event of today's 107th anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto.

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP)—Confiscation of 500,000 counterfeit "G" gasoline ration coupons and the arrest of 30 men was announced today by James J. Maloney, supervising agent of the Secret Service of the New York area.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 20 (AP)—Grain prices turned abruptly higher after mid-session today partly in sympathy with strength at Winnipeg, where the advance has amounted to 5 cents in the past two sessions.

Why Start With Aliens?

Agriculture Department agencies are bringing Bahamians to the United States to help solve our farm labor problem. Mexicans have been imported for work in the Southwest, for more than a year now. It is proposed to recruit Jamaicans.

There is no objection to those jobs in themselves. But one wonders why we are going to Mexico and to British Caribbean islands for farm help before we even try to utilize tens of thousands of jobless American citizens in Puerto Rico.

At latest reports there were 300,000 unemployed fibrous down there, and we have been spending well in excess of $25,000,000 a year out of the federal treasury — in addition to remitting all insular contributions to national income—to relieve the most pressing misery on the island.

Bolivar Pagan, Puerto Rican delegate to Congress, says that 100,000 of his people could be sent up here to help relieve the manpower shortage. Most of them would be agricultural workers.

Charles Goldsmith, Department of Labor representative in Puerto Rico, says the island could supply a minimum of 20,000 skilled and semi-skilled workers for industry—he has case records covering that number of mechanics, railroad laborers, roundhousemen, carpenters, and similar skills—and a greater number of cane cutters, citrus workers and agricultural field hands.

George Cross of the War Manpower Commission says we could bring a large number of skilled and farm workers, and could pay them from two to three times what they would earn in Puerto Rico if they had jobs there.

Nevertheless, we are going after Bahamians and Jamaicans, who suffer from every natural disability alleged against Puerto Ricans.

They have similar economic, social and racial backgrounds. They must leave or could bring their families, exactly like Puerto Ricans. They are accustomed to year-round climatic balminess and will not like our colder weather.

Moreover, they are aliens, for whose welfare we have no legal or moral obligation. The Puerto Ricans are citizens, and them we must support. We can keep the Puerto Ricans on relief, while we import Bahamians and Jamaicans, or we can give jobs to the Puerto Ricans first, reduce relief costs, relieve overcrowding and chronic starvation in Puerto Rico, train these backward brothers in our more progressive methods and generally improve their condition.

Probably, in the end, we shall need all the men we can get from all these sources. But why start with aliens? Why not give American citizens the first break?

Leased Land

War Department figures indicate that the Army has not purchased 12,000,000 acres of land, as had been reported, only 6,000,000 acres. The larger figure represents territory acquired by transfer, from other federal departments, of land already owned.

This correction is gratifying. It is easier to believe that the Army was forced to purchase 6,000,000 acres than 12,000,000. Nevertheless, the purchased acreage still exceeds that of New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts or New Jersey; it is greater than the combined areas of Rhode Island, Connecticut and Delaware; it is almost equivalent to that of Maryland.

The Nation's Press

When Mr. Wilson arrived in Paris in 1918 he had in his pocket a document which might have been thought to guarantee with certainty the success of his plans for a peace woven tendril by tendril into a new world order safe for democracy and safe from war.

The guaranty was a note signed by Great Britain, France, and Italy before the armistice accepting the fourteen points and supplemental conditions as a specific formula for the peace. It was a sort of a shotgun wedding, inasmuch as Lloyd George and Clemenceau had been told that Mr. Wilson might go to congress for a separate peace on that formula if they undertook to disapprove the hopes they had raised. Shotgun or not, the diplomatic rites had been solemnized and the pledge was holy.

In the exchange of vows the points had been accepted with only two reservations. Col. House told Mr. Wilson it was good the conditions had been written in the document. Thus it followed that for everything else the acceptance was without qualification. One reservation preserved without restriction the right to discuss and interpret freedom of the seas. The other recorded an agreement that German reparations should include compensation for damage done civilian property. That was understood not to include the war costs of the allies. In common sense it couldn't be so construed.

By the pre-armistice agreement the statements of the allied governments might reasonably have been supposed to cancel all their secret treaties and promises. But Mr. Wilson was no sooner landed in Europe than the pre-armistice agreement began to melt away in the glorious sun of victory and the prior and particular accords of the allies flourished again in the heat of self-interest. If Mr. Wilson had not been an austere, self-centered, and inflexible man he might have been astonished on learning how unpopular he had become over night and what names he was called—he, the great liberator and defender of democratic faith.

The signers of the peace formula almost immediately ganged on him. He was scorned as a British autocrat, a Presbyterian theocrat, a Methodist revivalist, a self-conscious saint, and —to top it off—what contribution to the war had his country made to justify his impertinent dogmatism? It required only the surrender of the Germans on Wilson's terms to bring about this change in spirit and intention. When neither he nor his country was needed any longer on the European scene he was interfering with the traditional procedure of declaring dividends after a successful enterprise.

Mr. Wilson was no man to tolerate contumacy in other men, or an intrigue against his purposes, or an indignity to his pride, but when he discovered what was going on his dilemma was agonizing. One impulse was to go home, denounce the bad faith, and make a separate treaty with Germany. He threatened to do so but was calmed.

Common Ground

I speak the plain-word principle. I give the sign of democracy. By God! I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms. —WALT WHITMAN.

Most everyone is horrified with the idea of Chinese Walls. They can see how it stopped the growth of China.

Few people, however, see the Chinese Walls that are stopping the growth in this country. There are several of them.

One of the highest of the Chinese walls in this country is labor unions that interfere with men freely exchanging their services.

A recent article in Barron's Weekly, showing how many extra men who perform no real service were required on trains and engines, is a nice example of the Chinese Walls built in this country by labor unions.

In fact, modern labor unions seem to have no purpose excepting to build walls that interfere with other people having a right to freely exchange their services. If these Chinese Walls are continued in this country, our standard of living will go down and down until we are on about the same grade as China.

The Wagner Law is another of the greatest Chinese Walls ever built in this country. The trouble with the Wagner law is that it prevents honest, conscientious, capable, efficient employees and employers from having the right to protect themselves against strikes, high costs, scarcity and mismanagement. They are helpless to protect themselves because they dare not show preference for each other, as against labor union agitators who would build Chinese Walls between men.

Pyramiding Bank Credit, A Chinese Wall Another Chinese Wall in this country is permitting bankers to pyramid bank credit and create bank credit money out of thin air, as they are doing in loaning to the government and loaning for long time capital loans to business. This banking practice we have had in this country has done much to build Chinese Walls between different groups of producers. They make it so the man who borrows money often either pays less back than he borrows in real wealth or more than he borrows. In either case it interferes with production and the free exchange of goods. It is a high Chinese Wall.

There is nothing in the country that can do more harm than beliefs that interfere with people having the right to use their own judgment in exchanging goods and services.

It is easy for people to see the absurdity of actual mountains between people or high walls between people, but these Chinese Walls of confusion can be infinitely more harmful to our country than actual mountains as high as the Himalayas or the highest wall that China ever built.

It will be remembered that Roosevelt said at the beginning of his second term that business men had "met their master."

Now it seems that not only the business man has met his master but the housewife also has met her master. They cannot buy what they know they need without the consent of their master—the President of the United States or his agents.

They cannot even conserve coupons beyond a certain period that satisfies the whim of their master—the President of the United States.

To have a President who is master of us is an experience that our forefathers attempted to eliminate. It is hoped that as food and other things get scarcer and scarcer, as they are bound to do with our people under bureaucratic control from Washington that we will come to believe that we want no man in the United States to be our master.

We want all people to be equally free. We want no discriminatory laws that sets anybody up as master of another.

Without Music Soldiers have been forbidden to play for weekly USO dances at Delray Beach, Fla., given exclusively for service men and their partners. Why? Because James Caesar Petrillo, the music czar, protested to the War Department.

There is no professional music organization in Delray Beach. These were free dances, for men preparing to risk their lives to protect the democracy which makes Czar Petrillo's union possible.

Who will volunteer to send a yellow feather to the adjutant general's office, with permission to pass it up higher if the A. G. was acting under orders?

The bitter reflection was that if he defended himself by denouncing his deceivers he would use the league of nations, which was uppermost in his thoughts and desires. Mr. Wilson did come home—to test the ground under his feet. He found it firm. A month before he sailed for the conference he had lost the congressional elections. Europeans could be forgiven for thinking that he no longer represented the people or the government of the United States.

Returning to fight the Battle of Paris, Mr. Wilson proposed amendments to the covenant in hope of disarming criticism at home, principally by making it clear that the league could not interfere in the domestic affairs of a nation. That would have helped him more than it did. Mr. Roosevelt might find it well worth his while to call, detail by detail, what happened to his commander in chief in 1919. Mr. Roosevelt has at as yet lost both houses of congress, but his small margin in the house of representatives will land very little leaning on. He is now in Mr. Wilson's shoes. He has been given a suggestion of what is coming. Mr. Churchill has been fairer than Lloyd George thus far. He hasn't concealed his strings on his promises. Mr. Stalin has been and/or itself regarding at least part of his annexation program. The man who speaks no English at all has been more explicit than the man who speaks it so well. All of the understandings and agreements may not be known now. There may be some surprises in store, but already there are many cancellations of the Atlantic Charter, which seems to apply only where it is not needed. Mr. Eden may have reconciled Mr. Roosevelt to these facts of life. Mr. Roosevelt says their minds have met.

Mr. Wilson was a good fighter, but it availed not. Part of the time he had the bull by the horns and part of the time by the tail. He returned to the arena each time he was tossed over the wall into the seats, but he could not prevail against the combinations raised against him.

Mr. Roosevelt is recommended to his recollections of what happened to his commander in chief in 1919. And he is advised to correct his memory. In discussing Mr. Eden's visit he told reporters that we entered the other peace conference without a plan. That would astonish Mr. Wilson if he were alive. He had a complete plan and, moreover, he had signatures to it before the armistice. The signatures were dishonored. The peace became merely a war breeding trough.

News Behind The News

NEEDED: At the peak of the coming summer's battle, when every scrap of equipment will be vital to our fighters, we may find the home front slowing down because there are not enough people to man the machines. The nation's leading industrialists through their New York research headquarters have just completed a canvass that reveals approaching manpower shortages of greater magnitude than those previously estimated by the government.

The survey discovered that the farmer's cry for laborers is not a propaganda bluff of the agricultural bloc. Last year favorable weather made possible an extraordinary output. We begin this crop season, when a new all-time high yield is demanded, with an agrarian force of eight and a half million, or more than six hundred thousand under the prewar average.

Efficiency has declined, owing to many replacements by inexperienced hands, elders, disabled persons and youths below draft age. We shall require three and a half million more tillers, chiefly seasonal employees, to reap the 1943 fields.

Already we have approximately seven and a half million soldiers and sailors, but we must muster three and a half million more. A million will be lost from the ranks through attrition, casualties and discharges for various reasons. Two and a half million extra factory toilers are needed. In all we must collect women workers to run the barn-bred barracks war plant.

QUOTAS: Businessmen warn that recently proposed Washington panaceas will not solve the problem. They say that if Mr. McNutt thinks he can fill the gap by corraling Turkish-bath operators and others from nonessential crafts, he will be disappointed because the entire list of personal service trades is limited. Imposition of the forty-eight-hour week has increased output anders are to reach their goals.

Unfortunately victory plants are not located where the remaining labor supply is plentiful. Of the ten big centers, nine are in the north-east and one is on the West Coast, but the pools of unemployment are in the South. Transfer costs have made from the tobacco and liquor fields, but these group cling to their men and are powerful in politics.

The private investigators discovered two great reservoirs—women and negroes. They are already thronging federal offices and workshops, and even the Pittsburgh steel mills. Many more are wanted. Some firms still balk at hiring colored people but personnel experts insist that this source must be tapped if we are to attain manpower quotas. Such action means mass black migration to northern cities and towns—with resulting social complications.

FAMINE: China's industrial war effort is lagging, partly because of inadequate railroads but chiefly due to lack of machinery. There is a dearth of parts which cannot be manufactured locally and this is trying iron production has been expanded, yet plants for turning out finished steel are insufficient to absorb the lower-grade metal. Scarcity of communication lines makes it difficult to feed millions of refugees and those in famine zones. The circulation of bank notes is fifteen times greater than in previous days and inflation has been found the most practical means of diverting purchasing power into the hands of the Chungking government. Prices have zoomed sixty per cent since 1937.

Around Hollywood

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON

A new executive at one of the studios quit his job in a huff the other day, checking off and forgetting his hat in his hurry. It's the most amusing story of the year. Seems the executive was one of those guys who was always taking credit for everything in Hollywood from Louis B. Mayer to Mickey Mouse. Mention the name of any star—and he discovered 'em. Mention a picture—and he helped write the story. Etc. etc. The routine was so slowly driving the studio boss nuts, so one day he went to the prop department, picked up a flock of medals and put them in a drawer in his desk. Next time the executive started boasting about his achievements, the studio boss said: "That's wonderful. You deserve a medal." Then he reached into his desk, pulled out a medal and pinned it to the executive's chest. After receiving three medals, the executive fled from the lot.

Jack Carson just turned down a $25,000 personal appearance tour. He'll tour army camps for the Hollywood Victory Committee instead.

Bela Lugosi is returning to the eastern stage in another revival of "Dracula" . . . Asked where he got all those ideas for his short subjects on dogs, Pete Smith said: "It's 50 per cent warp and 50 per cent wolf wool." . . . Bing Crosby was startled, but not speechless when Bob Hope asked his opinion of a new sport coat he was wearing between scenes of "Let's Face It." "Let's Face It," said Crosby, "those pants would make swell hangars for carrier pigeons."

COPS AND ROBBERS They, what ever happened to the gangster film? Why nothing. Once supposed to be permanently pigeonholed in the interest of the public morals, or something, the good old cops-and-robbers theme is flourishing with renewed vigor in freshly fertilized soil—the international scene. Take, for example, Paramount's dramatic story of Prague under the Nazi yoke, it boasts all the features of the gangster epic—the ransom money, the wholesale liquidations, the rival mobsters who rub each other out, the hand-in-the-pocket, pointing-concealed gun, the body discovered when the lights go on, the cars squealing around corners (not so much, on account of rubber) and the good old, dear old infallible chase. Instead of hailing from Chicago, the screen gangsters of today are now the Nazis, the Japs and Benito's boys. They may be wearing uniforms, but they're still gangsters in gangster films.

COMING UP Universal's film about American children too young for duty with the armed forces, but still active in the war effort, "John Doe, Junior," The Dead End kids gone straight? . . . Myrna Loy and M-G-M burying the hatchet after a two-year feud over the studio's choice of roles for her. She'll return as Nora opposite Powell in a revival of the Thin Man series.

Fred Astaire's bar dance in his latest RKO film musical, "The Sky's the Limit." It's the most spectacular of his celluloid dance routines. He performs atop a night club, and war ends to convert some of her newly conquered oil into 100-octane aviation gasoline.

The powder catalyst is exclusively American. Its secrets are not known to the Axis. It will produce the high power gasoline more continuously from a wider range of materials, and will, if necessary, carry the horsepower of gasoline up beyond 100 octane.

A Report On OWI's Reports

BY PETER EDSON Pampa News Washington Correspondent

Office of War Information's report on the food situation has stirred up quite a minor tempest in Washington's newspaper baskets. Fifteen star OWI writers have resigned in a huff because they say the report was doctored. OWI Director Elmer Davis has countered that his organization deals in only one commodity—facts the people need to win the war. You can take your pick.

But there may be something more fundamental to pick up in the wake of this handout typhoon than the differences of opinion over the details of accuracy in the food report, and that is the question of whether or not these reports should be made at all.

If the reports aren't accurate, as the 15 resigning writers contend, then they shouldn't be made at all. If they shouldn't be made at all, then Elmer Davis and OWI are both better off for having had the 15 talented temperaments resign, thereby having another government bureau eliminate itself.

So far, OWI has issued half a dozen of these reports to the nation, but there are that many or more coming up.

DOCUMENTS OR GARBAGE WRAPPERS? Already issued are the reports on drinking near army camps, on the first year of the war, on the doctor both better off for having had the 15 talented temperaments resign, thereby having another government bureau eliminate itself.

Coming up are reports on transportation, on civilian economy, on the quality and quantity of the stocking supply, on the Baltimore plan for handling manpower and related problems, on the wartime status of air transport, and others.

It must be admitted at the start that one of the reasons for setting up OWI was to create an agency which would see that the people were given the facts. How OWI goes about presenting these facts is a subject for debate.

The 15 resigning star writers had the theory that these reports should be put in pamphlet form to present them as more or less lasting documents that would look well on the library table or in among the stale literature in the doctor's office, and started boasting about his achievements, the studio boss said: "That's wonderful. You deserve a medal."

The pamphlet theory is pretty weak, for the American people are not tract readers, and 50,000 or 500,000 copies of a leaflet, besides costing a lot of money, won't in themselves put over a message. Presentation through the newspapers and over the radio makes a lot more sense.

The cost to the government of 18,000 copies of a mimeographed handout is around $25 and on a normal distribution that will reach every press association, every Washington correspondent, 2,000 counting newspapers, 7,000 trade journals, 5,000 commercial outlets, and 2,500 others. Redistribution by these agencies will reach darn near everyone interested.

NEWS OR HAY? The question still remains, are these reports necessary at all? Most of the reports issued so far have been too long—3,000 words and up—and full of hay. They repeat things that have already appeared in the newspapers and therefore may not be news.

Take any one of these reports and analyze it carefully and you will find that it is nothing more than what a good newspaper or magazine roundup of a given situation—food, for instance—should be.

Maybe the newspapers aren't doing this job the way they should. If so, then OWI is perhaps justified in doing it for them. Maybe the newspapers can't do the job. A lot of information is now held back from the newspapers under the guise of war secrecy. Much of this information is available to OWI as another agency of the government.

And when OWI issues its reports, they become authoritative, official,

Today's War Analysis

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Writer

Hitler's hurry-worry conferences with heads of states under his domination have brought him to the puppet Norwegian premier, Vidkun Quisling, whose name smells wherever there are loyal noses.

These parleys have been regarded generally as politico-military in nature and designed to serve a double purpose: (1) To advertise the creation of a "new order" for the European continent, which would offset the Allied aims promulgated at the Casablanca conference and at the same time would (2) act as a bribe to obtain greater military assistance for the Reich at this critical juncture.

The Quisling confab is the fifth in line and it's interesting to note that all of them have concerned areas which not only are hot invasion prospects but are among the weakest links in Hitler's defensive chain. The previous talks have been with Mussolini, King Boris of Bulgaria, Dictator Ion Antonescu of Rumania and Regent Nicholas Horthy of Hungary. Greece is said to be next in order.

All these countries are in the doubtful class on the Nazi dictator's list. Italy is shaking like a leaf with a "new order" territorial rivalry among Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria, and on top of that both Hungary and Rumania are fed up with the heavy casualties suffered by their troops on the Russian front. Norway, of course, is being kept in order solely by force of arms.

It would seem that the worried Fuehrer is concerned very little with a "new order" and very much with lightening up his defenses against invasion. His task isn't an easy one because there are many possible invasion-points and he must guard every one of them, from Norway clear round southern Europe to the Balkans.

No wonder "our beloved Fuehrer" spent his unhappy birthday laying down the law to a gringing Quisling.

Friend—Always been a gunner? Wife—Yes. Ever since I knew him he's been "gunner do this" and "gunner do that", but he never did anything worth while!

government pronouncements, which makes them news. The catch is that OWI, being one government agency, can't criticize department of agriculture or office of price administration or any other government agencies on their food policies. In fact, before OWI can put out one of its reports, it must be cleared by every other government agency interested in the subject. OWI in that respect is more censored than the press. That's the basic difficulty of the present OWI report system.

And the newspapers still have a job to do.

Chief Of AP Praises Work Of War Writers

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—The great stories of the war have been told graphically, truthfully, and comprehensively by the greatest array of reporter eye-witnesses the Associated Press has ever had in war time," General Manager Kent Cooper said in his annual report to the Press Association's directors in session here today.

"The general manager called specific attention to the news exploits of AP's outstanding war correspondents, including 1941 Pulitzer prize winner Harry Allen, now a prisoner of war in Italy; Clark Lee of Bataan fame; Yates McDaniel for his "farewell to Singapore," and afterward his work in Australia; Vern Haugland, who wrote a dramatic diary while lost for 43 days in a New Guinea jungle, and was honored with a military decoration for his fortitude and stamina; and Henry Cassidy for his historic letters to and from Joseph Stalin in Moscow.

Paying tribute to all AP war correspondents, Cooper said: "They witnessed and wrote about the most dramatic episodes of the war, from historic Bataan and the bomb-battered decks of aircraft carriers in the Pacific, to the flaming scenes of North African warfare. They did their job with a combination of skill, courage and brilliance unsurpassed in the history of wartime reporting.

"Their work was not only a consistent source of inspiration to the entire staff and membership of the Associated Press, but demonstrated once again the capacity of AP men everywhere, under all conditions, to rise superbly to emergencies. XXXX.

"Notwithstanding barrages of propaganda from all directions, the truth has been told and written. It has not always emerged as swiftly as we would have preferred, or as completely, for reasons sometimes questioned but understandably due to military or naval necessities.

"Some concern has been expressed that governmental trends under the stress of wartime conditions would lead to restrictions upon editorial or photographic enterprise. . . . Actually, there have been as yet no unreasonable restrictions on the assignments of war correspondents or cameramen, or lack of opportunities for them to operate as freely as military security or due regard

Fortress Comes Home With One Good Engine

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—A flying fortress with only one engine working well and with only two guns and little ammunition left fought off two enemy planes and knocked down one of them in its fighting return to England after the raid on Lorient and Brest Friday, U. S. headquarters announced.

"I still can't believe we are here," was the first comment of the bombardier, Lt. James E. Montgomery of Maud, Okla.

Like other members of the crew, he warmly acclaimed the pilot, Lieut. James M. McDonald of Hamlet, N. C., who brought the craft over the channel only 20 feet above the water.

"We were well out to sea and on the way home," Montgomery said. "One engine was gone and two others were damaged. All but the two top turret guns had been jettisoned and there were only about 30 rounds of ammunition left.

"Then two Focke-Wulf 190's spotted us. Inside the ship, we were all set for a crash landing in the water. We thought it was curtains for us."

As the two yellow-nosed fighters rived at the apparently helpless bomber, Staff Sgt. J. E. Brunschater of Saginaw, Mich., turned the top turret guns on them and shot one into the sea. The other fled.

"The turret was so full of empty shells I could hardly move," the sergeant said, "but it was worth it

University Sweetheart Becomes Famous As Popular Pin-Up Girl

AUSTIN, April 21 (AP)—Film star Dorothy Lamour has competition as the most popular pin-up girl among service men.

She's Jackie McKay, 18-year-old sweetheart of the University of Texas, who has been working overtime trying to keep up with the postman, since her recent election.

Sailors in a Long Island hospital wrote that a picture of her would help speed their recovery. A Camp Hood, Texas, corporal admitted he'd like to have one "to add to my book."

A naval flier, once a Texas A. & M. student, said that he was willing to forget school loyalty if she'd send a photograph. He didn't know that Walter Wagner, the movie producer, chose Jackie as one of the eight beauties whose pictures will appear in the Aggie yearbook this spring.

Most of the service men will get replies to their letters, but no photographs. It's just impossible to supply the demand, Jackie has found. She's been getting requests for pictures since she was named sweetheart of North Texas State Teachers college at Denton last year.

One letter, however, didn't ask for a picture. It came from Miss Anne Bookman, Jackie's aunt, who teaches art at North Texas State. Weary of answering the questions of students who remember her niece, Miss Bookman wrote:

"I'll be glad when this is all over so I can quit being Jackie McKay's aunt and be myself again."

"The facts of the situation not only are that assignments of staff men to the war zones have been substantially increased during 1942, but that the utmost cooperation by both army and navy authorities has facilitated tasks of staff accreditation, transportation, and operation, both at home and abroad."

Discussing the news photo service, Cooper said it "quickly geared itself during 1942 for the most comprehensive picture coverage possible on all war fronts. Despite numerous wartime restrictions, this coverage was achieved. . . ."

The report brought out that upwards of 400 men from AP ranks had been called into the armed services, necessitating training of an unprecedented number of men and women new to press association work for replacements.

Attention was called to the increased specialized reporting developed in the complex Washington situation necessitated by war communications telling of participation of United States forces in the major fighting; the tremendous mushrooming of government agencies; laws and regulations dealing with the domestic areas; and the complexities with which the gathering and use of news became involved under censorship.

Loan Shark Bill Signed Monday By Governor

AUSTIN, April 21 (AP)—The house in session last night finally passed a bill amending the motor fuel tax law but amended it to strike out a proposed reduction in the levy on diesel fuel.

Also passed finally was a bill amending the unemployment compensation act, providing that corporations not be affected when control of stock changes hands.

Under original terms of the fuel tax bill, the tax on diesel fuel was reduced from eight to four cents a gallon. A committee amendment raised the rate to five and one-half cents; and a floor amendment attempted to boost it to ten cents, but this effort failed.

As finally passed, the section of the bill dealing with diesel fuel was completely eliminated. Other corrective features of the measure were retained.

Further consideration was postponed until April 27 on a bill which author said it would correct defects in the present pharmacy law.

In an afternoon session the house passed to final reading a flood control bill affecting the Dallas district; and after considerable debate postponed until April 30. Further discussion of a loan regulation bill.

While the house was arguing the loan bill, Gov. Coke R. Stevenson signed the "loan shark" bill passed by the legislature last week.

This bill provides for injunction suits by the attorney general or district or county attorneys against anyone habitually making usurious loans.

The senate in an afternoon session passed finally bills exempting returned soldiers from poll tax payments for one year after their discharge; appropriating $43,890 for an agricultural experiment station in the first senatorial district; remitting state ad valorem taxes to Fayette county; granting to the upper Colorado river authority ad valorem taxes collected in Coke and Tom Green counties.

Oil Price Jump Asked By Texas

AUSTIN, April 21 (AP)—The Texas legislature today was on record favoring an increase in the price of crude oil. The senate and house yesterday by resolution urged President Roosevelt and Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown to take action.

The senate resolution declaring crude oil is being sold below replacement value, pointing out that a price increase "will have a tendency to provide more adequate reserves and to enable the great oil producing state to better meet an ever-increasing war consumption of petroleum.

"An increase of 50 cents per barrel will enable operators to operate both exploration and production economically. This increase is more than justified X X X in order that the wide gap now existing between discovery and consumption may not be so great."

The house called on Speaker Price Daniel to telegraph Roosevelt and Brown to approve a 35-cent raise after Daniel had read a message from railroad commission chairman Ernest O. Thompson, who is in Washington to testify in favor of a higher price. Thompson messaged:

TRAIN LATE?.. BUT MAKING YOUR CONNECTION

We're glad, too, you thought of taking the earlier train.

We hate late trains, too! Punctuality is the very heart of railroading.

Senators Whip A's 7-5 to Open Season

Other Clubs Start Long Trail Today

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Spring is here! The baseball season is now open.
The Washington Senators subdued the Philadelphia Athletics, 7-5, yesterday in the nation's capital and took over first place in the American league for at least one day, leaving it up to the other major league clubs to do as well in their openings today.
The formal bow for the National and American leagues as a whole called for this program.
National-St. Louis at Cincinnati, New York at Brooklyn, Pittsburgh at Chicago and Philadelphia at Boston.
American-Washington at New York, Boston at Philadelphia, Detroit at Cleveland and Chicago at St. Louis.
In winning the inaugural in Griffith stadium the Senators confirmed the suspicions of many observers that play this season would be more slovenly, that the ball is "more dead" than crowds in midweek will be smaller and that Washington is improved over last year.
The urnout for the inaugural was the smallest in many years at Washington, 25,093, and the game itself was a stumbling affair with the Senators making three errors and the Athletics calling on four hurriers.
The game's longest hit was a two-bagger, but the Senators managed to push across six runs in a big six-inning rally.
For three years before this opener the Senators had been shutout and tradition was a handicap for Emil (Dutch) Leonard, who had pitched unsuccessfully in the 1940 and 1941 inaugurations. The new deal seemed in his favor yesterday when he caught Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt's throw of the first ball in ceremonies before the game.
But the Athletics combd him for six hits and three runs before he was removed for a pinchhitter in the fourth inning and Alexandro Carrasquel received credit for the victory.

Tinker to Evers to Chance - - - Names that Spelled Double

From Tinker... .. to Evers... .. to Chance.

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Staff Editor
Ruthlessly pricking our gonfalon bubble, Making a Giant hit into a double. Words that are weighty with nothing but trouble: Tinker to Evers to Chance.
Baseball writers of the period became lyrical about the most famous double play combination in baseball history-Tinker to Evers to Chance.
And Coakley, the old pitcher who has coached Columbia for 30 years, and many others who knew the club well consider the Chicago Cubs that were sparked by Joseph B. Tinker, John Joseph Evers and Frank Le Roy Chance the greatest that ever took the field.
Frank Chance, the Peerless Leader, guided them to four National league pennants in five years - 1906-07-08-10-and made Charles Webb Murphy rich.
Joe Tinker, Johnny Evers and Frank Le Roy Chance the greatest that ever took the field.
They captured the public's imagination, perhaps did more than any other trio to put baseball in the more important money.
Throughout one long spell, while they were knocking North Side fans out into the aisles, Tinker and Evers didn't speak, but that fact did not interfere with their brilliance. Tinker, who led all the league's shortstops in fielding in '06 and '08 stood 5 feet 9 and weighed 175 pounds.

A right-hander batter, Tinger sawed off the ends of Wildfire Schulte's bats. They appeared to be little more than a broomstick in his hands. He left a lifetime average of no more than .262, but was a clutch hitter, particularly effective against the great Christy Mathewson. He is especially renowned for breaking up games in which Matty appeared to be unbeatable.
Evers the Trojan was one of the most distinctive players of the game. He stood no more than 5 feet 10, weighed only 138 pounds, yet he played more than 120 games for nine campaigns.
In 1914, when he was thought to be through, he teamed with Rabbit Maranville to sweep the Boston Braves to the pennant and four straight victories over the vaunted Athletics in the World Series.
Evers the Crab was the nervous, hyper-aggressive type. One look at his lantern jaw and you knew he wouldn't hesitate to speak his piece.
A left-hand batter who could drag the ball well, he got to first base with the speed of a desert wind. He twice hit more than 300 when it was a distinction to finish in the charmed circle.
Evers covered a wide range, threw from any position, was a wonder on the pivot.
Head always up, it was Evers who,

in all the excitement, noticed that Fred Merkle did not touch second base in the celebrated bonehead play of 1908, called for the ball, threw the race into a tie on its final day and the Cubs into a playoff that led them to a third consecutive World Series.
CHANCE CAME UP AS A CATCHER
Chance was a big, rawboned, bowlegged man standing 6 feet 11 and weighing 195 pounds. Without the physical advantages of being left-handed at the position, he ranks with the top first basemen, and was the boss all the way along the line.
Chance came up as a catcher and the fact that he was so frequently injured undoubtedly had something to do with Frank Selee's switching him to first. Chance, perhaps, was injured more than any other player of the game. He repeatedly spiked himself. He was absolutely fearless and could not seem to get out of the way of a pitched ball. No batter was hit by pitchers oftener, and balls that struck him on the head contributed to his death long after impairing his hearing.
A strong right-hand batter, Chance left a life-time average of .297, and his 57 stolen bases in '06 give you a rough idea of how this fellow got around.
Tinker to Evers to Chance.
When the other side hit the ball on the ground, everybody was out.

Hope, Hogan Team Today To Sell War Bonds

DALLAS, April 21 (AP)-There'll be a wisecrack for every tuppah today as Bob Hope, film and radio comedian, makes a return engagement in Dallas golf for the benefit of the war effort.
Hope will pair with Ben Hogan, professional star, against Ed Dudley, president of the National PGA, and Jack Mungler, Dallas veteran.
The match was scheduled for 3 p. m.
Gate receipts, expected to approximate $10,000, will go to the Red Cross Motor Corps; Hope will conduct a war bond sale while playing in an attempt to bring Dallas golf's contribution to the war effort to $50,000.
The Texas Victory open, held here last week-end, brought in $235,000 in bonds.
Tomorrow, Hope will appear in a benefit match at Fort Worth. Hogan and Dudley also will play.

Sports Roundup

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, April 21 (AP)-Lew Fonseca has whittled out a series of instructive sequences from the various American league films shot since 1934 and will take them on a months tour of army camps to show Uncle Sam's soldiers the right way to play baseball. . . . Eventually he hopes to build up a "technical instruction library" which the league will lend to high school, college and service coaches. . . . The quarterly N. B. A. boxers' rankings will be out next week. No doubt they'll give Tony Galento's comeback the recognition it deserves. . . . Henry C. Paulsen, a Long Island railroad conductor, recently bowled two 300 games in 21 days. The second must have been a "re-lier" train.
64 ANSWER
When Fred Corcoran, former professional offer's association tournament manager, now working for the Red Cross in England, put on one of his popular sports quizzes recently, he asked: "What golfer made the grand slam?"
The answer came from a Negro soldier: "Sam Snead. I was caddy for him Atlanta when he last drive 350 yards. What a grand slam!"

FDR Wows The WAAC's

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN IN TENNESSEE, April 17 (Delayed AP) - President Roosevelt waved-d at the WAACs today and wow-ed them.
He paid them an unadvertised call at the third women's army auxiliary corps training center at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and some of the new trainees-even some of those wearing the arm bands of military police-forgot all about discipline as he started to leave the parade ground.
Across streets and lawns they rushed, with shrill feminine shrieks, trying to get up close.
"Wait until we tell our secret!" one of the khaki-clad lassies screamed.
"Gee," called another, "I got to touch the President's dog!"
Never before had Mr. Roosevelt inspected a WAAC center, and it was a decided novelty for him to hear military commands in soprano, and to see nearly 4,000 girls in smart uniforms stride briskly past him in a formal review.
"A perfectly grand show," the President exclaimed after it was over.
Approximately 1,500 recruits arrive at the training center every week to take courses which will enable them to release men for combat duty. There are more than 100 jobs they can perform once their instruction period is completed.

SERIAL STORY

DARK JUNGLES

BY JOHN C. FLEMING & LOIS EBY

THE STORY: Barry Fielding was stricken with malaria after his escape from the Quiche Indians, and his faithful Mexican guide, Joe, tends him until he is strong enough to make the trip back to Allison Topping's plantation.

TRIBAL SACRIFICE

CHAPTER XV

AS the days passed and the fever hung on, Barry was half wild with impatience. For hours—days sometimes—he would think it had run its course, only to be shaken with the cold chill that preceded another attack.

Renaldo had warned him of this that same afternoon Allison had read him Lila's letter. The Spaniard had knocked and come in, looking taller and handsomer in his fresh whites than Barry remembered him. He had towered over the bed, with his swift, engaging smile.

"You really picked yourself a stalwart mosquito, my friend," he said to Renaldo with amused camaraderie.

"You will, but it will be slow going."

Allison brought his medicine, holding up his head and tossing the tablets onto his tongue with deft motions. Barry gulped the water she held in his lips, and smiled his thanks.

"You were right about Allison," he said to Renaldo with amused camaraderie.

"Right about what?" Allison was gathering up tray and glasses for the servant to take out.

"We bet, Renaldo and I," Barry told her lazily, feeling all at once easy and comfortable, "on whether you'd make the trip."

"And how did you bet?" She paused beside him, her lashes almost touching her cheeks as she looked down into his face.

"I bet you wouldn't," Barry told her.

"Which proves," she laughed, "that Renaldo understands me better than you do."

"Oh, but it wasn't quite fair," Renaldo protested gallantly. "Because I knew your father, Mr. Fielding didn't. I gambled you had the jungle in your blood like he did. And I'm afraid you have."

He turned to follow her with his eyes as she walked to the hall and handed over the tray to the Indian woman. Barry watched him in deepening surprise. He realized abruptly that Allison was not the only one who had changed during his absence.

Renaldo, too, was quiet—almost condescending—command in the Spaniard's manner. A subtle warmth had crept in, a tentative friendliness. He had used the same phrase that night on the trek—he feared the girl had been in her blood—but where there had been apprehension, antagonism in his voice that night, now there was something almost like pride. And in his dark eyes...

Barry controlled a sharp rising irritation. Why shouldn't the handsome Renaldo fall for a girl like Allison Topping? She was warm and vivid and delicate. Her blondness was a perfect foil for the Spaniard's dark good looks. And if she really wanted to stay here...

"You are looking very unhappy, my friend. I am sorry about your trip."

Barry's anger swept into another current.

"Sorry is no name for it!" he exploded. "I want to talk to you about it. Of all the dirty, double-crossing deals I ever ran into—!"

Allison was standing beside Renaldo again. "May I hear it, too?" she asked.

Barry hesitated. Then he said bluntly, "Sure, it's no worse than a Gossip Column."

Allison and Renaldo pulled chairs close to the bed while Barry talked. He told them in painstaking detail every step of the trip. The meeting with the chief, his cordial hospitality, his apparently sympathetic hearing of all Barry had to say, his honest indecision in the matter of revealing the miles. Turning to Renaldo, he added:

"Your letter to him seemed to make him our friend. He said a lot of complimentary things about you."

Renaldo nodded thoughtfully. "He's a great old fellow."

Barry grimaced with rueful humor. "But you should have seen him that night at the trial. He couldn't have been any colder if he'd been mated out of liquid air."

He told them then of his rude awakening by the angry natives, of the weird, frightful judgment scene in the chief's tent and of the death sentence of the girl. Finally of their imprisonment and escape.

Allison shuddered. "How perfectly ghastly! But the girl won't die, will she?"

Renaldo looked serious. "I wouldn't be surprised."

"But why," Allison cried, "would anyone want to frame Barry? Some Quiche, perhaps, with something against the girl or her family?"

"Perhaps," Renaldo said slowly, "but I don't think so. The Quiches are a united and peaceful tribe within themselves. I'm afraid it is even more serious than that."

Barry and Allison watched the young Spaniard as he paced the floor nervously. At length, unable to endure her curiosity, Allison burst out:

"What is it, Renaldo? For heaven's sake, tell us!"

Renaldo paused at the foot of the bed, flashing Allison a sympathetic half smile. His dark eyes were brooding and sorrowful. "For a number of years now," he began slowly, "the chief and I have been as close friends as a Quiche ever is with an outsider. I admire him. I am fond of him. That is why I know he is filled with a great anxiety."

Barry watched the Spaniard, fascinated. There was power in those black eyes. Small wonder he had gained the fear and respect of the Quiches as well as the Indians on the Topping plantation, he thought.

"Each month or so," Renaldo went on, "when the Quiches bring their clay jugs of quicksilver down to the coast to trade for bananas and salt, they have been buying more and more other things—bright ornaments, sometimes dresses or suits from the trading post, mingling more with other tribes, carrying back their stories. The chief has been struggling against this tendency. It is his duty to see this slow infiltration of foreign ideas does not betray their precious isolation. I have felt, during our last meetings, he was growing desperate over the situation, unable to stem the tide of his people's interests in the outside world."

Barry gasped. "You don't think the chief framed me?"

Renaldo's eyes were fixed on him, compassion in their black depths.

"The chief is a smart man," he said simply. "Can you think of a better way to impress his people with the danger of outsiders? The sacrifice of one of the tribe's most beautiful maidens has often been the shock which taught them the error of their ways."

"The logic of Renaldo's reasoning appealed Barry. In that case," he said hopelessly, "is there nothing I can do?"

Renaldo released a long breath. "The first thing for you to do is to get well, my friend. After that, we will see."

"But why," Allison cried, "would anyone want to frame Barry? Some

"The ward boys," as well as every one else in the hospital, work long hours, from 7 a. m. until 5 or 6 p. m. One week out of each month, the boys are on duty from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. All of these hours are subject to radical change in case of emergency, at which time the "ward boys" stay on the job until things are under control.

As for his future Private Kress wants to specialize in psychiatry, and with that in mind, has his eye on a transfer to the Walter Reed hospital in Washington, D. C., where he would have ample opportunity to work with mental cases.

His type of work hasn't given Private Kress much opportunity for hobbies, but he is interested in music and miniature railroading. After the war he hopes to devote his spare time to the piano and model trains.

"I joined up because I knew that men with nursing experience were needed in the army," he says, "and I feel sure that this will make my future more secure, since I intend to stay in hospital work after it is over."

But there's another reason why Private Kress leans towards hospital work. He is a registered nurse with his wife, who is also a registered nurse, while both were working for one of New York's largest hospitals.

"I'd like to have her with me here at Pampa," he says wistfully, "but she's needed back there. Besides, it would mean giving up the home we worked a long time to get."

The home she speaks of is at Queens Village, Long Island, N. Y., from where Private Kress enlisted. His first station was at Randolph Field, where he nearly became an aircraft mechanic. "They almost sidetracked me from the hospital to the line," he says. "I guess I wasn't so hot with a monkey wrench because when I was transferred to Pampa I was assigned to the hospital."

"The ward boys," as well as every one else in the hospital, work long hours, from 7 a. m. until 5 or 6 p. m. One week out of each month, the boys are on duty from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. All of these hours are subject to radical change in case of emergency, at which time the "ward boys" stay on the job until things are under control.

As for his future Private Kress wants to specialize in psychiatry, and with that in mind, has his eye on a transfer to the Walter Reed hospital in Washington, D. C., where he would have ample opportunity to work with mental cases.

His type of work hasn't given Private Kress much opportunity for hobbies, but he is interested in music and miniature railroading. After the war he hopes to devote his spare time to the piano and model trains.

Spend a Day With Army Air Field Private

There are a lot of important jobs in this man's army—jobs that you don't hear much about, but are nevertheless vital to the successful prosecution of the war.

One of these jobs is that held by Pvt. Minthorne Kress, who is known as a "ward boy" at the Pampa Army air field hospital. Private Kress is one of thousands who fill the position of male nurse to the bed-ridden soldier. It's a small job, as far as war-machine as big as the U. S. Army air forces is concerned, yet to the servicemen who are flat on their back in a hospital, a man like Kress is truly an "angel."

Private Kress is not exactly a stranger to a hospital. He is a registered medical nurse with the state of New York and was working in a New York hospital when he enlisted in the air forces last September.

"I joined up because I knew that men with nursing experience were needed in the army," he says, "and I feel sure that this will make my future more secure, since I intend to stay in hospital work after it is over."

Chiefs Of U. S., Mexico Outline Solidarity Plan

MONTERREY, Mexico, April 21 (AP)—A program for postwar universal peace and unity—patterned after Pan-American solidarity but planned only after unconditional surrender of the Axis—was projected around the world today from this south-of-the-border city by President Roosevelt and President Avila Camacho.

Speaking here last night on the occasion of the first meeting of United States and Mexican presidents in 34 years, the two chief executives:

- 1—Erected a barricade against any "negotiated peace" feelers that the Axis might direct through Spain or other intermediaries.
- 2—Credited international understanding and non-exploitation with success of American solidarity; and
- 3—Offered those points as bases for world postwar planning.

"Let us make sure," Mr. Roosevelt said, "that when our victory is won, when the forces of evil surrender—and that surrender shall be unconditional—then we, with the same spirit and with the same united courage, will face the task of building a better world."

Avila Camacho left no doubt that the meeting of the two presidents—climaxing Mr. Roosevelt's second major inspection of America's booming war effort—was dominated by a sense of continental strategy. "In order to contribute to the work of the postwar period the United States and Mexico are placed in a situation of undeniable possibilities and obligations," he said at a banquet in this northern Mexican industrial center. "Geography has made of us a natural bridge of conciliation between the Latin and the Saxon cultures of the continent. And free from the threat of the good neighborhood may be proved with efficacy, it is right here in the juxtaposition of these lands."

He added that primary responsibility of the two nations lay not only in their own "successes or failures" but rather in the example they set other nations.

Mr. Roosevelt said the meeting in Monterrey, capital city of Nuevo Leon state, was part of the whole game of getting to know each other better. He pointed out that—like the Canadian boundary—the border, 145 miles to the north, is unfortified and undefended and has been for 80 years.

Marked by the salute of booming guns, and a carnival spirit among the people, the handclasp of the two leaders represented the first time a United States president has traveled deep into Mexico, and the first meeting of chief executives of the two nations since 1909, when Presidents Taft and Porfirio Diaz shook hands at the international bridge between El Paso and Juarez.

President Roosevelt's pointed remark that surrender of "the forces of evil" shall be unconditional was seen as a direct answer to last week's peace proposal from officials of General Franco's Spanish government. Previously, diplomatic reaction in Washington and elsewhere among Allied nations had indicated only a scornful rejection of the offer—which at least had Berlin's approval, if not inspiration.

Swift seconding of that spirit came from Avila Camacho who said "our countries do not wish for a more strategic truce obtained simply so that the world may again tomorrow fall into the same faults of ambition, of imperialism, of iniquity and of sordid privilege."

The president of Mexico then swung into the non-exploitation theme as a basis for future peace: "We desire a living together free of the perpetual threats which derive from those who seek supremacy. Free from the supremacy in the domestic field which—as we were able to note during the period in which this war was prepared—led certain elements to place their class interests above the interests of the whole group. And free from the supremacy in the foreign field, the thesis of the good neighborhood, violence, death and the ruin of culture."

Avila Camacho made it clear that Mexico felt free to enter into collaboration with the United States without fear of dominance. In such dealings, he said, "the United States has not been obliged to seek a foreign model," and added that "your true greatness is not based upon dominance but rather upon the respect of sovereignties and on harmony under the law."

Projecting this policy further into the postwar planning sphere, Avila Camacho said "we know the only conquests which the United Nations will obtain will be the moral conquests of dignity in thought, of autonomy in conduct, and of the overthrowing of might by right."

And "Your Excellency understands all this especially well as the champion of the Atlantic Charter."

In a combined reference to the war and postwar program, President Roosevelt called attention to Axis attacks on the two nations, adding that the attacks "did not find the western hemisphere unprepared."

"The 21 free republics of the Americas during the past 10 years have devised a system of international cooperation which has become a great bulwark in the defense of our heritage and our future," he said. "That system, whose strength is now evident even to the most skeptical, is based primarily upon a renunciation of the use of force and the enshrining of international justice and mutual respect as the governing rule of conduct by all nations."

The scenes of the day stressed that mutual respect. With booming guns and a blizzard of confetti and roses, the Mexicans welcomed the United States president in true fiesta fashion as his train pulled in from Laredo, Texas, after a week on the road.

Mr. Roosevelt's entrance into Mexico at Nuevo Laredo brought to an even dozen the number of foreign lands he has visited since he became president. In addition to cruising around many tropical islands, he has visited Canada, Haiti, Panama, Colombia, Trinidad, Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, French Morocco, French West Africa, and Liberia.

He brought with him the expressed belief that United States troops have vastly improved since his tour last September. His impressions—picked up in visits to camps and fields in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Arkansas—were that the troops are more fit and turned out snappier, and that morale is very, very high. He also remarked that between military training and rationing, the nation will have a stronger race of people.

Head Of Editors Fights Ban On Food Parley

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP)—Roy A. Roberts, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, has issued a statement declaring that "daunting precedents" are being established by what he described as President Roosevelt's policy to restrict news coverage of the approaching United Nations food conference.

He said that a majority of the society's board of directors had approved the statement. Declaring that a special meeting of the board had been called to discuss the matter, Roberts said that since some of the members had not been able to attend, the statement was not being issued as a formal pronouncement of the society.

The society said in part: "President Roosevelt's declared policy denies reasonable access to original sources of information and progress of the forthcoming United Nations food conference."

The president's policy challenges the right of the American people to receive public information free of governmental restrictions or control, a pattern is being established which, if continued, will stifle the right of free inquiry and prevent continuous flow of full information to the public.

"Military information is not involved. Press and public gladly withhold information that aids the enemy."

"This policy should be abandoned. It promotes distrust of the government and denies the right of every American citizen to know what his government is doing and to form an opinion about it. Only as the public is informed can democracy survive."

Among those joining Roberts in issuing the statement was James M. North of the Fort Worth, Texas, Star-Telegram.

Vital Rationing Information

That's all there is, there isn't any more, was what the county rationing board was saying, in effect, today to Gray county motorists who use up their gasoline coupons before the expiration date, then want more.

The date stamped on the book is final, and if you use up your gasoline before that time—well, there are some Americans over in North Africa that really have places to go and they aren't foolin' when they say they need gasoline.

To conform to the new office hours which close the office at 12:15 p. m. on Saturdays, the tire panel has changed its meeting time from 1:30 p. m. Saturday to 10 a. m. Saturday.

Hens Producing Plenty Of Eggs

CHICAGO, April 21 (AP)—The hens on American farms are producing more eggs than they ever did before—and there's a good chance they'll keep on doing it if they can get enough to eat.

The department of agriculture reported today that the number of eggs each hen on farms produced in March topped all previous records for the month, totaling 15.74 eggs against 15.51 last year and a 10-year average of 14.18.

Add to this the fact that there are more hens on farms than ever before—16 per cent more in March, 1943, than a year earlier—and the total egg production in March soars to 17 per cent above last year, a record for the month.

While this barnyard fertility has prevented any shortage of eggs similar to that in many other foods, poultrymen said that hens have a food problem, too. They don't have any red or blue coupons, but they are nevertheless rationed.

Farmers give hens mixed protein feeds to supplement grains, and the war has created a shortage in such feeds estimated at about 20 per cent. Consequently, the industry is limiting the protein incorporated in mixed feeds.

One problem faced by farmers, poultrymen explained, is getting the right kind of mixed feeds for their hens. When hens get accustomed to a certain diet, they want to keep on that diet. Changing it because the dealers can't supply the same feed may leave hens in such a flustered state they won't produce as much as formerly.

Elliott's Work Is Important To U. S. Army

By RUTH COWAN

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA. (Delayed) (AP)—Col. Elliott Roosevelt sat at his desk in an out-of-the-way and strongly guarded building. He was studying an aerial photograph of the harbor at Tunis which showed the effects of a recent Allied raid.

Those sentries outside are not just protecting the son of President Roosevelt. They are there whether he is in or not, protecting the vital work within.

(Roosevelt's promotion to a full colonel on February 23, was announced in Washington last Saturday.)

In his outer office a few men were busy at desks. Colonel Roosevelt shares an inner office with his second in command, Lieut. Col. Frank Dunn of San Antonio, Texas.

It was not easy to get him to talk about himself, but he was enthusiastic about his work. He is in charge of photographic reconnaissance unit with very special and highly important tasks to do. He described his unit as the "first complete combined American and Royal Air force operation" because both British and American fliers work together. It is the job that counts whether it is a British flier or an American pilot using a piece of British or American equipment, he said.

The work is highly technical—and of course, highly secret—but Colonel Roosevelt's eyes brightened as he talked about its importance. A major part of all intelligence—that means in civilian talk knowing where the enemy is and what he is up to—is air intelligence obtained by reconnaissance flying. Colonel Roosevelt explained. "A photo-interpreter can move armies and air forces," he said.

One thing that distresses Colonel Roosevelt—he seems so much more serious than when last seen in Washington—is the failure of young American fighter pilots to realize the possibilities of aerial photography. The Americans consider it more daring to shoot with guns than with a camera.

Photo-interpreters in Roosevelt's unit are especially trained from selected personnel. Students of architecture are desirable, and all need the research type of mind. Both aerial photography and interpretation are specialized sciences. Aerial photographers are called upon to take more unrecognized risks even than fighter pilots, said Colonel Roosevelt. They must be in tip-top physical condition.

Although he wouldn't talk about them, Colonel Roosevelt, who holds a commercial pilot's license and is rated in the army as a navigator-bombardier, has had his adventures. He has been on photographic missions in the North Atlantic, the Pacific, and admits to having taken a look at Tunis from the air "a few times."

From a fellow officer it was learned that recently when Roosevelt was flying at high altitude over enemy territory with a pilot, something happened to the plane's oxygen equipment and he passed out. Colonel Roosevelt took over the plane and brought it back to base safely.

Louisiana Girls May Lose Dowry

PORT ALLEN, La., April 21 (AP)—Generations of fortunate brides today chortled a desperate SOS to cupid to come winging down to Louisiana girded with more modern combat equipment than his heart-punching darts.

They learned that future newlyweds may be denied the dowries left to Wesley Bator Rouge parish by a peniless Breton sailor who became the richest man in Louisiana

The parish police jury, after distributing this spring's "dots" to 19 new young brides, decided that henceforth a better investment can be made from earnings of the trust fund established by Julian Poydras—a peniless Breton sailor who became the richest man in Louisiana

Governor Is Looking For New Windmill

AUSTIN, April 21 (AP)—Anybody have an extra windmill?

The one on Gov. Coke Stevenson's ranch near Junction—creaking and bending after 35 years of service—breaks down about once a week.

Last week-end the governor hammered it back into shape with the help of a ranch worker.

He'd like a new one or a good second hand one. The new ones are frozen by W. P. B.

yet found his only romance in poetry.

Feeling modern girls need no dowries, the jury's sentiment is to devote the Poydras fund proceeds to schooling needy young girls, but before taking action, the body directed a legal survey of the benefactor's ancient will.

Regardless of the wisdom of the move, young couples expecting to receive the same financial assistance others have for some 120 years, take it as a distinct blow. Any girl married after having lived in the parish five years had been eligible to apply for a dowry.

AMERICA'S EYES ARE AT WORK

All the family are doing all they can on the home front in this war. It means hard work for eyes—because much of the work involves study for long periods of time—and good light is required.

Whenever eyes are used in your home for reading and other close work, be sure to have the proper lighting where this work is done. Use a good reading lamp, one that is designed to provide the adequate light without glare.

Good eyesight is a national asset. Protect your eyesight by using the right light where you work. Good light means good sight.
