WHAT SAVED BRITAIN in the blitz of 1940? Some authorities say that the defeat of the Luftwaffe can be credited chielly to a difference of only 13 points in octane number!

While the Germans had only 87 octane aviation gasoline, the good planes and gallant pilots of the R.A.F. had 100 octane. This gave the Royal Air Force reduced fuel consumption, and greater horsepower for faster climbing . . . greater altitude ... extra maneuverability.

Phillips and the American petroleum industry are today supplying great quantities of 100-plus octane gasoline. This super-fuel increases enormously the fighting effectiveness of U.S. and all United Nations war planes.

Thanks to its long-range program of peacetime research, Phillips Petroleum Company was one of the first to take 100 octane aviation gasoline out of the laboratory and into mass production. The making of these American super-fuels is not merely a refining process; it is actually the synthetic production of chemicals!

That is why we say: Every time you see the Phillips 66 Shield, let it remind you that Phillips refineries, in addition to producing gasolines, lubricants, and fuel oils, are also gigantic chemical plants pouring out weapons for victory.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 - (P) -Congressional tax leaders today were reported ready to sidetrack consideration of a new and higher wartime tax bill until the house ways and mean committee has examined proposed changes in the system of renegotiating war contracts. The committee had set Sept. 8 for starting work on a new tax bill, but indications now are that it probably will take up the renegotiation issue first.

The war, navy and maritime agencies reported only this week that they had retrieved $3,555,174,-000 for the government through a review of contracts in which "excessive" profits were suspected. Issues involved include: 1 Whether allowances shall be made in renegotiation for postwar reserves, 2. The question of depreciation of plants and facilities; 3. Whether renegotiation is proper before or aft-er taxes, and 4. The general subject famortization of values of manuacturing properties. A tentative decision to give renegotiation precedence over tax considerations was reported to have been reached at a conference attended by ways and means Chair-man Doughton (D-NC), Disney, Randolph Paul, treasury general counsel, and Colin F. Side by side with this story one newspaper juxtaposes the headline "Motorists Flock to Beaches Again-Resort Parking Lots Crowded in Advance of Promised End to Driving Ban."

Almost the first act of Administrator Brown was to try out the honor system with motorists. It failed smally. There would seem to be no way of enforcing except to enforce. Why, then, should OPA investigators U.S. enforcement agents and local policing staffs not co-operate in seeing that gasoline is used first to win the war, before it is wasted on pleasure driving? That is not snooping.

Hopes Confirmed

The Axis' feeble stand on the beaches of southern Sicily would seem to confirm our hopes that Nazi resources are at low ebb. There can be no other explanation for Hitler's failure to give our invasion spearheads more of a battle.

True, we had bombed Sicilian airfields into bad shape and otherwise damaged defense installations. But the invasion points all are within easy flying range of mainland Italy and were far from unattainable from other Axis points. It looks as if the little corporal had tried to stretch himself a bit too far.

A STUDY IN REVOLUTIONS

I have just been reading Robert Hunter's book "Revolution, Why, How, When". Since we are changing our operation of the government so rapidly, this study of revolutions-or changing of governments-should be very useful if we are to avoid making the same errors that have been made many times before by people changing their governments.

Mr. Hunter is a man of wide experience, having for years been a Socialist and a delegate to many world-wide Socialist conventions, and later seeing the errors of Socialism withdrew from membership in the Socialist party. So he speaks with experience. From 1918 to 1922, he lectured on economics and English at the University of California, where he also conducted a seminar on the economic and political causes of the postwar revolutionary upheavals.

I want to quote a few statements made by Mr. Hunter which should be a guide to us at the present.

On the question of little minds over-estimating their importance, as seems to be the case with our political leaders, he points out Hamlet's explanation as to the cause: "conceit in weakest bodies strongest works." We certainly have plenty of conceit in making our laws which pay no attention whatever to man's right to be free; nor do they pay any attention to the lessons taught by history.

As to the government's wastefulness, Mr. Hunter remarks: "Compared to the politicians who go in for frenzied high finance which robs an entire nation, men like Insull and Kreuger are like little children stealing their neighbor's apples." The Socialists and New Dealers who are impoverishing the whole nation are holding up their hands in horror at little puny thefts like Insull and Krueger, which are merely stealing apples, compared with what the Administration is stealing to keep themselves in power.

Lost Control Over Finances

It is usually the loss of control over finances that leads to revolutions. This is pointed out with the following statement:

"The desertion of the intellectuals, of the old leaders, of the armed forces and of the courtiers may be influential factors in revolutionary activity but lying back of all disaffection we usually find that the governments have lost control over their finances and the value of their currencies."

Does this apply to us? Any person who has any conception of money and bank credit knows that we have lost control of our money and bank ing system.

On the necessity of credit, Mr. Hunter points out what Cicero wrote at the time the Roman republic was destroying both credit and faith. Cicero declared, "Nothing so cements and holds together in union all parts of a society as faith or credit." The author continues, by saying, "No The Nazis, who love Nordics, have a new plan statesman before or since Cicero has pointed out for improving the Aryan race. They contemplate so clearly as he did, at the moment of their occalling up Norwegian children, beginning at 10 years currence, the causes of a nation's ruin. Every criticism he uttered at the time Caesar and his allies were crushing capitalism, democracy and republican institutions in Rome could be repeated with justice and without the change of a syllable in many nations of the modern world,"

I will quote further from this book later.

RATION TICKET MONEY

The government's use of the Federal Reserve to create new money has created so much bank credit, that our money now has become what might be called "ration ticket money." We have to have coupon tickets in order to make the government created bank credit buy things. We should "about face" and attempt to e PAMPA NEWSmagazine that, since things are now under control in North Africa, the allies have a healthy sized source of secondary metals there. Junked and wrecked planes, trucks, tanks, half-tracks, and the like-left by the enemy-are strewed all over the place. All good scrap.

This may prove to be an important source of such metals as aluminum, as well as steel and copper. The British have already worked out efficient methods of handling "crash" aircraft for salvage, Aviation says, and are providing a considerable portion of their aluminum supply from this particular source.

"Some battle scrap has been brought to Ha-waii," the story goes, "but it is understood that very little has come to the American mainland. . Assuming that there may be ballast space for such material, no one knows exactly where the ships will make port or that there will be scrap dealers available at their points of entry to care for the incoming metal."

The upshot is that aluminum scrap, at least that from Africa, is likely to be sent to Great Britain for some time to come, the Aviation editors opine.

NO FOLLOW-THRU

(The Chicago Tribune)

The tarmers of the country, thanks to the departed Joe Weiner and his affiliated nitwits in the war production board, are desperately short of machinery. Some brighter persons, in Washof machinery. Some brighter persons, in ington or out of it, conceived the idea that the shortage might be overcome in part, so far as the wheat harvest is concerned, by bringing Canadian combine threshers to American wheat fields.

The idea was sound. The wheat harvest moves northward, starting in Texis and moving up thru Kansas and the Dakotas into Canada. The wat food administration, according to W. Lee Marshall, its equipment director, made arrangements with the Canadians for reciprocal passage of harvesting equipment across the international border, with out payment of the usual customs duties.

Now, Marshall says, some 150 Canadian combine units are lined up north of the border, stopped by customs inspectors. The inspectors apparently knew about the waiver of duty on agricultural machinery, but they refused to let the Canadians bring across the border the big flatbed trucks on which they haul their threshing equipment. The Canadian machinery has already missed the southern harvests and unless the mess is straightened out quickly it cannot come to the aid of wheat raisers in the Dakotas and Montana, Marshall says.

The customs authorities are probably not to blame. They do a number of stupid things, from time to time, but usually because they are enforcing stupid regulations. They are honest, if un imaginative men, and they go by the book. The fault lies in Washington. When the reciprocal agreement was made, some one failed to follow thru and see that with the threshers we also arranged to admit the trucks needed to haul them about.

Early this spring the WPB announced that 300,000 pressure cookers would be made available to groups of war gardeners, that they might can their produce. Elaborate rules were made for rationing the cookers. Manufacturers were author-ized to make them. But no adequate provision was made for getting steel to the manufacturers. As lish money that is a real measure of value, that the politicians cannot change. Let a certain weight of gold or silver determine it. Until we do we will have more and more confusion, more and more inflation, and more and more poverty. Yes, our money has become "ration ticket money".

neither prestige nor acceptance, such agencies cannot lead the people in war.

Moreover, right in the middle of the war, there has occurred an unprecedented debacle-the collapse of the political organization known as the New Deal. Let no one confuse this collapse with the collapse of America. America has not collapsed, and is not going to. Yet the collapse of the New Deal has left a political vacuum which must somehow be filled. In a parliamentary system such as that of Great Britain, the disintegration of a group that had governed the nation for a decade would involve the immediate formation of a new government. This we cannot do in 1943. let we must not kid ourselves that nothing needs to be done, because the need for government by a real consent of the governed is urgent, not to say desperate. Mr. Roosevelt and responsible leaders of both parties must at once set about building a new war administration And this administration however powerful, must command the political respect of people who are willing to die for liberty.

a result some pressure cookers are becoming available, but many home canners in the Chicago area won't see any pressure cookers until August, after all their early crops are gone.

Again, some one failed to follow thru. That is the besetting sin of burocrats. There are too many of them who consider a thing done because they have written a letter or filed a memorandum on the subject. They don't follow thru to see that a thing is done, not merely ordered done. Private business suffers, too, from this sort of stumbling, but people who practice it don't last long in private business. They shouldn't last any longer in Washington.

THE CONSENT OF THE GOVERNED

(Life Magazine)

Despair can cure nothing-nor can anger. Only those who deeply understand the American people can extricate them from the present crisis.

For instance, it is well to remember that Americans have always been difficult to lead in war George Washington never had the Continental Congress solidly behind him. Abraham Lincoln's war administration was almost torn to shreds, and Woodrow Wilson got an opposition Congress in 1918 when he pleaded for support. This American characteristic is not simple perversity. It arises from passionate devotion to a single principlegovernment by consent of the governed. To say that this principle must be laid aside in wartime is sheer political poppycock. From the American point of view, to lay it aside is to lose the war Every patriot wants the Commander in Chief to have tremendous power, but he wants to stamp have tremendous power, but he wants to stamp that power with his own sovereign approval. The tragedy of the present Administration is that it has flagrantly disregarded this truth. Not only has it kept the Congress on the outside of the war, hut it has set up dozens of baffling new agencies, which, while technically legitimate, exist

Accumulation of dust and dirt on lighting equipment cuts down the amount of light it can produce per kilowatt hour of electricity. The cleaning of this equipment restores lighting efficiency.

Clean EQUIPMENT

GIVES MORE LIGHT!

Therefore, regular cleaning of light bulbs and reflectors is important if you are to actually receive the light for which you are paying.

AT THE PLANT

Establish a program of periodic cleaning and inspection of all your lighting equipment. Lamps and reflectors should be thoroughly cleaned with soap and warm water. Dry thoroughly.

IN THE HOME

Pay particular attention to your directindirect reading lamps. Take off shade and dust it. Remove bulb and wipe glass clean. Remove reflector and wash in soapy water. Be sure both are thoroughly dry before replacing on lamp.

IN THE OFFICE

Fixtures used for office lighting collect dust. Wash them from time to time. Wipe bulbs clean. You will notice a definite improvement in the light!

CHICAGO GRAIN CHICAGO, Aug. 5-(47)-A good demand for oats, which advanced to within 2 cents of season peaks featured an other-wise listless trade in grains today. In view of the rapidly-breaking war develop-ments, many triders took to the sidelines an dactivity was light. Strength in oats was based upon a strong cash demand for this grain and a pripate crop forecast showing a smaller upturn in estimated corn production that many traders had anticipated. However, the forecast was made as of Aug. 1 and important areas received needed rains after that date. At the close oats were 3(-1%, higher, September 71-71%, wheat was 3% lower to % higher. The Germans were putting up a rea about Troina (Dispatches reaching Allied headquarters in North Africa three days ago said the Americans had taken Troina. Earlier, Prime Minister Churchill said they were reported to have entered Troina, but apparently heavy German counterattacks leveloped before the entry could be consolidated).

One military observer who saw the openings stages of the battle of Troina described it as "a major military operation." He said the Germans were there in force defending the town with every kind of weapon, particularly mortars capable of covering every inch of the hills and, valleys around the town with deadly fire.

"This is undoubtedly the most savage fighting which has yet developed in Sicily," he declared.
