Wage Orders Hanging Fire; Rubber Sliced

WASHINGTON (AP)—An imminent declaration of national wage policy still hangs in the air today, but government's control program marched ahead to regulate the whole range of civilian rubber products — 40,000 items in all.

An order reducing or eliminating the use of natural rubber in a list of items ranging from auto tires to baby pants and "falsies" will be issued by Thursday and will take effect that day.

The National Production Authority (NPA) announced the forthcoming order last night.

By limiting uses of natural rubber to percentages ranging down to zero, depending on the type of product, the order in effect will place a 30,000-ton monthly ceiling on civilian consumption of natural rubber. Imports beyond that amount will go into stockpiles or military goods.

Manufacturers will be required to mix synthetic with natural rubber. They will be permitted a 90,000-ton total consumption of both types in March, an increase of roughly 5,000 tons over this month. Rates for smaller passenger cars will average not more than 15 percent natural rubber, larger sizes 22 percent. White sidewalls will be banned, and passenger car tubes will contain synthetic only.

The permitted percentages of natural rubber in some other products include: baseball centers, 10 percent; golf balls, 85 percent; rubber tile flooring, most toys, and sponge rubber "falsies," no natural rubber; girdles, baby pants, and elastic thread, the minimum which manufacturers find practicable.

Milder than rubber controls of World War II, the order is designed to permit continued high-volume production while conserving natural rubber. Officials say they expected no noticeable decline in the appearance, performance or safety of the products controlled. In a number of cases, 100 percent natural rubber is specified, as for instance, in aircraft tires.

In another order issued yesterday, the government ordered most packers and other suppliers to fill the needs of hospitals, orphanages, asylums and prisons. The office of price stabilization directed the suppliers to furnish meats to their customers in quantities comparable to 1949, based on the number of persons to be fed.

American Troops Stop Five Savage Red Counterattacks

TOKYO (AP)—American troops smashed five savage counterattacks today on the wind-swept central Korean warfront. The allied battleline moved ahead steadily and cautiously.

The Red attacks were hulled back by the U. S. Second Division in pre-dawn darkness 15 miles southeast of Hoengsong. The fighting lasted more than three hours. A howling wind added to the din of battle.

Field dispatches reported it was one of the sharpest actions in the week-old renewal of the United Nations drive to kill, maim or capture Chinese and Korean Reds south of Parallel 38.

The drive — spearheaded by the U. S. First Marine Division — apparently has thwarted or delayed a Chinese counter-offensive by four to six armies.

A U. S. Army spokesman said 100,000 Chinese had been shifted into defensive positions. He added that it would require several weeks for the Reds to regroup for any drive against the allies.

A. P. Correspondent Nate Polowatzky reported "all evidence along the central front continued to point to a planned withdrawal" behind stubborn rearguard actions.

The disclosure that the First Marine Division is pacing the drive in the mid-section of the central front was the first report of the hardened Leathernecks in action since December.

At that time the marines wrote another vivid chapter in the corps' history with a fighting withdrawal from the Changjin Reservoir in the northeast coast port of Hungnam. They inflicted tremendous losses on the Chinese before boarding ships of an allied evacuation fleet.

There was no news about the marines after they landed in southeast Korea, but it was disclosed they have been mopping up bypassed Reds since early in January.

In Tuesday's action, the Leathernecks seized commanding hills south and southeast of Hoenngsong. The town has become a no-man's land with Communist dug-in on hills to the north, on the approaches to the Red stronghold of Hoengsong. Hoenngong is 16 miles northwest of Hoengsong.

Main field dispatches said a marine patrol entered the eastern outskirts of Hoengsong. A Chinese demolition team slipped through the fire-blackened town under covering artillery and blew a bridge spanning Amnok Creek on the south side.

Truman Last Chief Allowed Third Term

May Become Political Point

WASHINGTON (AP)—Although the new 22nd Constitutional amendment does not apply to President Truman, it may become a political talking point as the time approaches for choosing standard bearers for 1952.

The question already has been raised by some political observers as to whether Mr. Truman would feel bound by the spirit of the amendment limiting future Presidents to two terms.

There are two sides to the question: One argument is that, since the states have spoken in favor of a two-term limit, it would be questionable, though not illegal, for the President to seek another term. If he won election, that would give him almost 12 years in the White House.

The other argument is that the states ratified an amendment which specifically excepted the present incumbent of the White House and therefore it would be all right, morally as well as legally, to give him another nomination.

Here's how the new amendment to the Constitution reads: Section 1. No person shall be elected to the office of President more than twice, and no person who has held the office as President, or acted as President, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected President shall be elected to the office of President more than once. But this article shall not apply to any person holding the office of President when this article was proposed by Congress, and shall not prevent any person who may be holding the office of President, or acting as President, during the term within which this article becomes operative from holding the office of President during the remainder of such term.

Section 2. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states within seven years from the date of its submission to the states by the Congress.

New Amendment Is Seventh Change For Constitution

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new 22nd Amendment limiting future Presidents to two elective terms is only the seventh change to be made in the Constitution since the reconstruction era, after the Civil War.

Three amendments then abolished slavery, banned abridgement of the rights of citizens and guaranteed equal rights for members of white and Negro races.

Only four of the six ratified amendments since the 18th and 21st Amendments imposed national prohibition and repealed it, respectively. The 18th was ratified in 1919 and the 21st in 1933.

Other recent amendments: 16th: Gave Congress the power to levy income taxes, ratified in 1913.

17th: Compelled for popular election of all U. S. senators, 1913.

19th: Gave women the right to vote, 1920.

20th: Ended so-called lame duck sessions of Congress and changed the start of presidential terms from March 4 to Jan. 20, 1933.

Miami School Vote Set For April 7; 2 Terms Expiring

MIAMI (Special)—Voters of Miami will elect a mayor and two city aldermen at the annual election slated for Tuesday, April 3.

The terms of Mayor R. J. Bean and City Aldermen Frank Gracy and Wallace L. Locke will expire on that date.

Mayor Bean has stated that he would run for re-election, provided there are no other candidates interested in seeing more improvements made here. He was elected in a written campaign two years ago. During his tenure, many improvements have been made, including the paving of all major streets and the installation of street lights.

Attorneys Conceal Defense Of Collazo

WASHINGTON (AP)—Oscar Collazo's attorneys indicated today they will conceal as long as they can the strategy by which they hope to save the little Puerto Rican from the electric chair for his part in the plot to shoot President Truman.

As government prosecutors prepared to outline their case to a federal court jury, Collazo's court-appointed lawyers told reporters they do not plan to make any opening statement.

Ordinarily — but not always — the defense outlines its case immediately after the prosecution finishes.

Collazo is being tried for first-degree murder for his part in the Nov. 1 attempt to assassinate Mr. Truman.

The first day of the trial yesterday was devoted entirely to the selection of a jury.

After 166 prospective jurors had been eliminated for various reasons, ten women and two men were finally seated. Two alternates were selected. They will listen to the evidence, but will not take part in deliberations unless called upon to replace regular jurors for any reason.

The jury is composed of seven housewives, a waitress, a salesman, a woman administrative assistant for a telephone company, a janitor and a carpenter.

Collazo is charged with murder for the death of Panabe Leslie Coffelt of the presidential bodyguard. Collazo and an accomplice, Cruzelo Torresola, tried to shoot their way into Blair House. Coffelt and Torresola were slain in a fierce gun battle. Collazo told questioners he and Torresola hoped to kill Mr. Truman and thus set off a revolt in this country that would help Puerto Rico gain independence.

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough made the jurors promise not to listen to radio or television programs or to read newspaper accounts of the trial. They will be sequestered during the trial, but will be permitted to go home at night.

Doctors and nurses yesterday remembered Collazo as a spirited lad who wanted nothing more than to walk and truf like other boys.

The letter read: "Dear drs and nurses: I'm Chuckie van Fossen and two years ago you made me able to walk again and now I have a paper route. Saved up this dollar and want you to have it to help other boys walk. When I save more I'll send more to you. Thanks for being so good to me." The implication.

Amendment Places Limit On Presidents

WASHINGTON (AP)—From now on, no President of the United States — except for Harry Truman — may be elected to more than two terms.

Under the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution, which for all practical purposes became law last night, no man or woman may serve more than ten years in the White House.

The amendment, while limiting future Presidents to two elective terms, allows a person who has served two years or less of an unexpired term to be elected twice on his own.

As President at the time the amendment was approved by the Republican-controlled 80th Congress, Mr. Truman was specifically exempted.

Thus he would be permitted to run for a second full term in 1952 even though his White House tenure would fall within the ban set out in the new amendment. He has not said whether he will run.

Utah and Nevada legislatures acted in quick succession last night to approve the amendment. Nevada completed action at 7:30 p. m., becoming the 36th state to ratify the amendment.

The Constitution requires that amendments to it be ratified by three-fourths of the states — or 36 at present — to become law. A two-thirds majority in Congress is required to submit amendments to the states.

The new amendment could be repealed by the same procedure, of course, just as the 18th — prohibition — amendment was repealed by the 21st. It was ratified on Dec. 5, 1933.

Nevada legislators had stood by to grab for their state the honor of being the 36th state to ratify the new amendment. Minutes after learning that Utah had approved, Nevada senators voted 16 to 1 for ratification. The assembly had approved the 36th state ratification vote.

At least two other states were also near ratification votes — Minnesota and Maryland. The Minnesota legislature had suspended the rules to schedule a vote this afternoon in the hope of becoming the 36th and deciding state to act.

The amendment has been before the states since March, 1947. After an initial spurt of ratification votes, interest in the proposal apparently lagged and only 24 states had acted favorably by the start of this year.

Then came another rush, bringing approval by legislatures of a dozen states within the past few weeks.

When it submitted the amendment to the states, Congress predicted that to be effective it had to be ratified by the required number within seven years, or before March 26, 1954.

The amendment when proposed was generally regarded as a tribute to the late President Franklin Roosevelt, who won four terms in the White House. He thus broke a two-term precedent set by George Washington, who declined to run for a third term.

James A. Farley, who split with Mr. Roosevelt over the third term, said he was gratified that the amendment had been ratified. In a statement issued in New York, Farley recalled he had been the subject of "rather harsh criticism" when he opposed the third term.

"I held this view because it was my inner conviction that the presidency should be limited to two terms and that it was so intended by the founding fathers (See TRUMAN, Page 2)

Eight-Year-Old Boy Shows Gratefulness For Hospital's Care

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—An eight-year-old Iowa boy grateful for "making me able to walk again," last week addressed a letter to "all good Drs and Nurses" at the university hospital here enclosing a dollar bill.

With the dollar was a letter, printed in a neat child-like slant across duck-adorned stationery from Chuckie Van Fossen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Van Fossen of Davenport, Iowa.

The letter read: "Dear drs and nurses: I'm Chuckie van Fossen and two years ago you made me able to walk again and now I have a paper route. Saved up this dollar and want you to have it to help other boys walk. When I save more I'll send more to you. Thanks for being so good to me." The implication.

Senate RFC Investigation Turns To Steno's Fur Coat

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate investigation of alleged favoritism in the lending of government millions turned today to the story of a White House stenographer's fur coat.

Senator Fulbright, (D-Ark.), head of a banking subcommittee, conducted the inquiry, ordered the public barred from a session (10 a. m. EST) while the group explores with E. Meel Young, husband of the presidential stenographer, the story of the coat.

Young, whose name has figured prominently in the groups' inquiry into government loans has testified he bought the coat for his wife.

Fulbright's subcommittee stirred President Truman to wrath recently with a report to the Senate that Young, White House aide Donald Dawson and others have influenced huge Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) loans. Mr. Truman called the report insane.

Fulbright, insisting "we are not looking for any quarrel with the President," told reporters his groups revived hearings are being held only to "prove our report was not insane."

"We have gone a long way in telling the world that we are going to send four more divisions to join the two we already have there," Russell said in a separate interview.

"It we also disclose pledges of what the European nations plan to do, it won't be long until we have to say just where each division is going to be placed."

Texans In Washington

By TEX EASLEY
 WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Lindley Beckworth of Texas is keeping up his campaign for an overhaul of the cotton crop control law for the purpose, as he puts it, of giving the little farmer a better break.

Since he's not on the House agriculture committee, Beckworth airs his views largely in the Congressional Record and in conversations with colleagues. As a top-ranking member of another committee — that on commerce — he knows it's generally a futile gesture to sponsor an important bill not handled by the committee on which you serve.

So Beckworth is trying to sell his idea to someone on the committee involved. Therefore, he lets members of the agriculture committee and others know of such problems as that cited in a letter he received from E. E. Spivey of Bullard, about 15 miles south of Tyler.

"I produced one bale of cotton on about four acres in 1950," wrote Spivey, "and had to pay $31.84 to sell it. Why?"

"Because I didn't have a card couldn't get a little white selling card. This was a hard financial blow, a gross injustice at the hands of the production and marketing administration.

"I realize that it wasn't the intention of anyone in that department to work hardship on disaster proportions to a farmer anywhere. Still, because of red-tape regulations, I was compelled to suffer a serious financial loss.

"I operate a small farm on the cash-rent basis, and grew four acres of cotton to help pay the rent. I planted without an allotment because I understood you intended to help us get at least a minimum of five acres anyhow. But I guess the bigger growers got the extra allotments, because I never could get a permit to plant a single seed. Still, after I learned all this, it was too late, as I had planted four acres and I let it go on through and make. I didn't think it right at all for any farm regulation to say to a man that he couldn't plant any cotton, and to a neighbor just across the fence to go ahead and plant a sizeable crop."

There are to be no restrictions on the 1951 cotton crop. But Beckworth says a farmer is reluctant to buy new machinery to set up his production unless he has assurance that the next year he will get an adequate allotment if controls are established.

He wrote the Agriculture Department about the situation and received a reply which contained this paragraph:

"Therefore, if all farmers in a country should double their cotton acreage in 1951 over 1950, the 1952 farm allotments may be changed considerably or none at all or somewhere between depending on how farmers in the particular county vary their cotton acreage in proportion to crop-land."

Beckworth read this over a couple of times and exclaimed: "If that's not gobbledegook language, I don't know what is."

AROUND THE CAPITAL:
 Speaking of "gobbledegook" the man who introduced the term to Washington to describe bureaucratic phrasing has been back in town. Maury Maverick, one-time congressman and former San Antonio mayor, said his trip here was just private business. Other recent visitors from Texas:

President Law Sone of Texas Wesleyan College, Fort Worth, en route to New York on business for the Methodist school; former Undersecretary of Agriculture Grover Hill, who still calls Amarillo home though he is with the Farm Loan Bank in Wichita, Kan.; Dr. Paul Sims, Raymond Hays, E. Harvey Steinhagen, Fred Parsons, L. G. Chambers and O. E. Crozier, all of Beaumont; Lloyd Croslin and Carl Hensley, Lubbock; O. T. Freeman, Wichita Falls; Frank W. Wilson and R. G. Hughes, Pampa, and former Austin mayor Tom Miller.

The Defense Fisheries Administration is sending a man to the Gulf Coast area to help clear away the red tape, commercial fishermen may encounter in stepping up production.

Assigned to the task is Donald Y. Asks, a World War Two veteran and a graduate of the University of Washington, who has been with the Fish and Wildlife Service since 1938 except for time in the army.

Although his headquarters will be in New Orleans, he expects to spend considerable time along the Texas coast talking with shrimpers and others regarding their manpower and materials problems.

The Bureau of Mines reports that the El Paso area in 1950 produced 80 ounces of gold valued at $1,750; 2,597 ounces of silver valued at $2,350, 5 short tons of copper valued at $2,060, and 151 short tons of lead valued at $32,750.

Steelworker Finds Himself On RR Tracks

GARY, Ind. — (AP) — Steelworker C. E. Rust was driving his car along in a dense fog early Saturday at the west edge of Gary, southeast of Chicago.

Suddenly the going got tough. He stopped the car and got out. He found what made the road so bumpy. He had been driving astraddle the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

Before he could re-enter the car and drive off, a hot passenger train derailed the 1950 model car.

The Whistle Has Blown

If you saw the pictures of those New York basketball players who took bribes to "fix" games, you must have had a feeling of heart-sickness.

Commercialization of sport must take a good deal of the blame for these scandals. When you virtually professionalize a game, it shouldn't be too great a surprise to find some of the youthful contenders responsive to the money lure.

They Talk, But Do Nothing

The whirling dervishes used to be a bunch of nuts mixed up with the notions of Mohammed and an Oriental version of the big apple. Maybe some of them still are. But it looks as if a mighty parcel of them have changed their nationality and their fandango in the luxurious tax-supported halls of the District of Columbia.

Over here, we call them members of Congress, bureaucrats and, now and then a few other things not fit to print.

Blair House and the thousands-and-one government bureaucrats aren't the antics of a bunch of screwball dervishes with Truman as their prophet what brand of covertings are they?

After the President delivered his State of the Union Message for more tax money there were some noisy congressional talkers filled with brags about protecting the citizenry from political robbery.

Washington... by Peter Edson

By PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondence WASHINGTON (NEA) - An American three-year plan of defense mobilization is gradually taking shape in Washington.

Up to now the general consensus has been that there would have to be high taxes, controls and shortages for ten years or more - as long as the cold war lasts.

In case of a shooting war, all bets would be off, of course, but the Open Russian aggression in eastern Europe would mean all kinds of austerity and sacrifice for the duration.

By the end of 1953, the biggest peacetime armed forces will be built up and fully equipped.

Fair Enough-Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

As a reporter in the tradition of the great crusades which once were the pride of our journalism, I have gone bell-ing after all manner of miscreants. These vermin have a voracious appetite for scandal, and I have followed them to the ends of the earth.

But, putting the worst conceivable face on this affair, we learn that some worldly young amateur athletes had truck with professional gamblers and sold out their alma maters. But to view this with alarm we must think of undergraduates as idealistic young men and of a "varietal" as a medal of distinction from a grateful government.

To the naked eye, however, the college student of today is a very worldly fellow. He pitches woe in biological terms. He takes his vows with mental reservations, knows the statutory compensation for a sprained thumb suffered in football practice and regards a proposition from the underworld as an appeal to reason.

The idea surely must occur that his alma mater has a moral obligation no finer than the police and fire departments, which once maintained a formidable honor based on the supreme sacrifice but have fallen into bad repute. The majority always has been a post of contempt except for trifling intermissions of comparative respectability.

Privately, I can mourn the decay of ideals among the undergrads because our sports, even in the professional phase, have observed a standard of honor incomparably finer than that of our officials. Most sports are still superior. Yet sport is so petty by comparison that a thoroughly

Yet nobody does anything about it. Sen. Byrd has pointed out where billions could be pared from the budget without voicing anything. Most of the time, aside from a few squeaks here and there, has been like a voice in the wilderness. Sen. Taft shoots an arrow into the air about government waste then gets lost in a flock of arguments about something else - usually something that can be used to advantage in the 1952 national election money-business.

Thus the dance goes on. And the wage-earner, the businessman, and everyone who is helping to produce the things the nation needs pay the fiddler. They haven't even got to dance. They haven't got time. Only the whirling dervishes and their prophet have time to waste, along with money to waste - the people's money.

American arms aid to Europe will have been completed. U. S. defense production lines, on a one-shift operation, will be able to keep the forces then mobilized fully supplied.

If war should break out in 1951 or 1952, the going might be tough. But if war does come, these production lines will be geared so that they can be shifted into high for a two or three-shift operation to support all-out mobilization.

If war does not come, the outlook would be for maintaining what General Marshall has called "a posture of defense" on top of a normal, full-employment domestic economy. General Marshall has told Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, that the defense budget can eventually be leveled off at around $35 billion a year. This would be in place of the $50 billion military budgets foreseen for the next two or three years.

So far, the Truman administration has not done a very good job in explaining this program to the American people. So on, however, C. E. Wilson, director of defense mobilization, and Eric Johnston, director of economic stabilization, are expected to take the airwaves. Their radio reports to the nation are expected to indicate that the present emergency doesn't have to last forever.

rotten state in basketball should not perturb us. Having set our youth the example of Elliott and Jimmy Roosevelt cleaning up greedily through their old man's job in the White House and of traitors planted in State and Pentagon and honored in the White House, who can expect an athlete to spurn a dirty dollar or scorn him for disloyalty to his alma mater? Is treason to a college worse than the conduct of Alger Hiss, who enjoyed the patronage of Frankfurter, Acheson, Eleanor and the Washington Post?

If the varsity letter has become a meaningless swatch of colored felt, what of those pounds of medals which a crew of evil men conferred on one another? With ceremonies ranging from the White House to the remote office of some lieutenant colonel in a cranny of the Pentagon, according to the influence of the fraud thus honored. What of the counter-feit "Eg" that were awarded to contractors with gaudy rites by unknown major-generals on the shabby pretext that his gonfalon was a grateful government's salute to a faceless element called "Labor" which dragged its heels and was overpaid, anyway?

Many newspapers across this country, which have shrilled up this mean little episode, have yet to print their first word about Henry Wallace's association with Nicholas Roerich and the misuse of the Treasury and the Department of Justice to keep his guru out of the United States, under threat of false imprisonment of trumped-up charges. Roerich had seduced Wallace into idiotic correspondence and even worse. Roosevelt, Hopkins, Cham Michelson, Ed Flynn and a number of Republicans knew the disgusting truth, but kept it from the people for venal motives.

There is an appalling total of treasonous patronage and connivance within the very White House itself which has been low-rated as "witch-hunting" by custodians of high journalistic franchise who lacked the honor to do their duty.

Large areas of the country have never yet heard that Wallace had a guru, that Roosevelt carried on with an old flame who was with him when he died, or that a postwar persecution of the Germans, a savage course as cruel as the treatment of the South, was dictated by unseemly and unofficial influences.

Banned by historic enmities, most of which have been wilfully concealed from a people who trust the press beyond its deservings, I am insensible to the basketball scandal. Assume ten times the worse, what is that by comparison with treason in the Department of State?

by increased production in 1952. As more aluminum becomes available, it will be used as a substitute for copper, now 15 to 20 percent short. Steel, now 20 percent short, may take longer to get in full supply. Synthetic rubber production will be expanded. U. S. gross national product of goods and services is now running at the rate of $300 billion a year. The defense effort will take $50 billion of this for the next two years. But by the end of 1953 there is hope that gross national product will be $350 billion to take care of a $50 billion defense program on top of a normal $300 billion civilian economy.

Better Jobs

By R. C. MOLES

One Worldism

Since I believe that entering into a one world government would only impede our development and make it more difficult to have more and better jobs I want to reproduce an article from Analysis magazine written by its editor Frank Chodorov. I quote:

"Five years ago the organization of the United Nations was ushered into the world as the guarantor of peace. It has failed. Despite that obvious fact, there are many whose faith in some sort of a Super-State as an instrument of peace is unshaken, and who lay the failure of the UN to the limitations put upon it by the autonomy of its members. This is to say, they believe in peace through authoritarianism; the more authoritarian the more peace."

"History cannot give this faith the slightest support. The glory that was Rome did not prevent its parts from coming into conflict with one another nor from rising up against the central authority. Even our American coalition of commonwealths came near breaking up in war, and uprisings have all but disintegrated the British Empire. Centralization of power has never been a guarantor of peace. On the contrary, every such centralization has been accomplished by war and its career has been one long preoccupation with war."

"The best that can be said of any coalition of States is that it can keep smoldering fires from breaking out only so long as one of its members can exercise control over the others. It can maintain an armed truce. The UN has not done even that, simply because no one State has shown sufficient strength to take control. The two most powerful members have been in contention since its beginning and are now poised for a test of arms to determine the issue. Nothing is more certain than that the rivalry of these two powers will shortly reach the breaking point, that the UN shall collapse or shall be succeeded by another coalition in which one or the other will be on top."

"The UN-it is moonshine to think it consists of two hostile camps, one held together by the American dollar, the other by fear of the Soviet army. Neither law, morality nor ideology is a cementing influence. If the American dollar is withdrawn the West will break up, its members entering into new alignments dictated by expediency; if the Soviet power shows weakness, Titoism will splinter the Red Empire."

"In short, it is evident now-even as it was to any one with some familiarity with the history of alliances-that the high moral purpose written into the charter of the UN charter is but a fairy tale. World peace can never be achieved through this monstrosity. Like the League of Nations to which it succeeded, or the Holy Roman Empire, or any of the political conditions in the history of the world, the UN is incapable of giving the world peace simply because it rests on the unsound assumption that peace is a function of politics. The fact is that peace and politics are anti-thetical."

"When we look into the nature and substance of peace, and make comparison with the business of politics, we see how silly is this faith in the Super-State. It is as irrational as the religions of totalitarianism, animism or fetishism. It is another magic-religion, in which the hope of man for a better life rests on the mystic power of an inscrutable authority, which must be propitiated into seeing things as man sees them. Just as primitive man sought the answers to all his questions in the totem pole, so does modern man look to political power to solve the problems of life. In both cases we have the same flight from self-reliance, the same escape from individual responsibility, the same mother complex. That is the only way one can explain this blind faith in the efficacy of political power. The Super-State idea is the most advanced form of the religion. The psychological identity of primitivism and Statism is only obscured by the ritualism of charters, constitutions and protocol."

Why Do They Stray?

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON - President Truman may soon duplicate his surrender in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation squabble by compromising his bitter controversy with the Federal Reserve Board over the inflationary use of billions of dollars of bank credit throughout the nation.

His more sensible advisers have warned him that his lending and credit policies were destroying the confidence of business and industry. The White House has been impressed - and shocked - by the way in which the banking community has rallied behind the Federal Reserve faction, which has been outvoted in interest rate on government issues to raise the cost of money generally.

There has been hardly a whisper of support for the earlier Truman-Snyder insistence on the relatively low 2 1/2 percent rate for federal securities. The extremists in both camps have been shoved into the background by the peace-makers. Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, who has been the chief champion of the inflationary policy, has been outvoted twice by members of the board and the Open Market Committee on the question of backing down to the White House demands.

With his group almost solidly behind him, Federal Reserve Chairman Thomas E. McCabe has sent two letters to Mr. Truman explaining the problem's implications in simple, elementary terms. COMPROMISE - The prospective compromise contemplates raising the interest rate to approximately 3 percent instead of 2 1/2 percent insisted on by the Treasury. Arranging the details for applying this figure to present, future and refunding issues may be difficult, but it is believed that it can be accomplished without too much trouble.

Sir Stuart Cripps made the changeover in Britain when he discovered that the 2-1/2 rate had a distressingly inflationary effect on the national economy - wages, prices, living costs generally. COUNCIL - It now develops that two of the backstage promoters of the Truman-Snyder theory of "cheap and easy money" were the ultra-liberal members of the President's Economic Advisory Council. They are Chairman Leon H. Keyserling, who wrote many New Deal reforms as secretary to former Senator Robert F. Wagner, and John D. Clark, a lawyer-professor from Wyoming.

They have long advocated the idea that the government should take advantage of its control of credit, money supply and rates to force business and industry to support its policies. Most spectacular instance was when they persuaded Mr. Truman to agree to finance expansion of the steel industry. If private interests did not increase capacity in accord with his specifications. Their insistence on a cheap borrowing rate for the government obviously would strengthen their long-range program for federal construction, operation and possible ownership of plants built under the rearmament program.

"BONANZA" - The Keyserling-Clark antagonism toward "Wall Street" was reflected in their discussions of federal interest rates with spokesmen for the Reserve Board and the O.P.A. Their suggestion of a 3 percent rate, Mr. Clark retorted: "All you want to do is to make money for New York and Chicago banks. A 3 percent return would be a bonanza for them."

"FEES" - "I don't care what the rate is," barked a prominent but angry banker of national repute. "All I want is a rate that will make banks, life insurance companies, investment trusts etc. hold their 'feds' instead of selling them to us so that they can get out and make more loans."

All Or Nothing

By DAVID BAXTER

A lady who has something to say writes: 'I have been a devoted reader of your column and enjoyed it very much but I think you are wrong in the Sunday column. Why shouldn't the 18-year-olds go to war as well as anyone else?'

Why also can't we have Universal Military Training and take the 17-year-olds and give them something to do besides chasing girls and driving japs and being smart? All the wolf packs and rapes and attacks are just a bunch of smart alecks who won't go to school and learn anything but just figure the world owes them a living and let the old man pay. It's not fair to the others that try to get an education and make something of their lives. These young guys also are the kind that won't enlist in anything either and know all the angles. I've heard them say all they have to do is act dumb and the army won't pass them. They are not dumb but too smart for their own good.

"I'm all for U.M.T. for all boys 17. Give them a years army training, whether they pass the IQ or not so they will make good soldiers when the year is up. They can be cured of this smart business and the army is the best cure. I'm not a cranky old maid, as I may sound. I have a son in the Army now. He was in the last war, too, and another in the 17 year class exactly as I've explained, so I know what I'm talking about. I'm not saying all youngsters are that way but the biggest percent that have joined some branch of the service are, unless they are in college-trying to be something."

Well, I'd say offhand that this lady has given us a piece of her mind and I sort of get a kick out of it, how about you? Reluctant as I usually am to disagree with anyone about anything, as readers of this column well know, it is just possible that our correspondent may be wrong. In principle, anyway. Her opinions about smart-alecky youngsters are well expressed. I know, I KNOW. Anything I might say about that might be getting pretty close to home. Now, when I was a boy - well, added years and experience probably cause us to forget some of the smart-alecky things we used to do in our gay, hilarious, get-it-out-of-your-system teens.

Kids will be kids. They've got to go to it while they're young and can enjoy youthful exuberance. If they go to far we have adequate laws to restrain them, providing those laws are rigidly enforced. By and large, though, I'm pretty tolerant of youthful caprices and growing pains - except that sometimes I give my kids a good dressing down when not in a tolerant mood.

As for the armed services preventing rapes, attacks, etc. it seems, from what I've read in the papers, that young soldiers are no more above that sort of thing, sometimes, than other young people whose minds turn to evil. As a matter of fact, you should observe a shipload of sailors who get shore leave after a long cruise if you think the armed services cool a young fellow off. I'm not forgetting that Admiral Halsey himself said, "I wouldn't trust a man who didn't drink whiskey." If there's anything about encouraging young sailors to drink whiskey that restrains them from rapes and attacks, I am badly in need of information. As a matter of fact, I think the member of the armed services who doesn't smoke, drink or fool around with women, is a member of a very small, socially ostracized minority. Morally, I can see much difference between armed forces personnel and civilians except that the former is handcuffed to a job while the latter is free to go and come as he pleases.

Why won't they fight? Because they have no real cause to fight FOR. To this very day I have never heard one good explanation of what we are fighting or seeking to fight for all over the world.

The Doctor Says

Written for NEA by EDWIN J. JORDAN, MD.

Tiny white worms in the lower intestines are usually pinworms or seatworms. These are only one kind of animal parasite which can lodge in the bowel, but like the others pinworms often interfere with the general health and are difficult to get rid of. Pinworms are children, especially among those in large families or in children living in institutions. They are comparatively rare in families in which separate bedrooms are used. This is because the worms get on the bed linen, pajamas and other clothing and are picked up by others who come in contact with such objects. When children live in an institution or dormitory or when several use the same bedroom the spreading of the worms from one person to another is easy. The eggs from pinworms are usually laid on the skin and mucous membrane near the outlet of the bowel. This causes severe itching. In fact the itching can be so bad that it produces nervousness, sleeplessness, and even convulsions. The exact diagnosis is made by taking swabs from the place where the worms are likely to be and examining the material under the microscope. Although infection with pinworms is common, it is frequently confused with other parasites and the diagnosis must be clarified by accurate examination. Once this has been done, proper treatment can be started. Treatment is reasonably satisfactory but should be given to all infected persons in a family or to all children in a dormitory. About nine out of ten are cured by this means although the treatment may have to be repeated several times. PLENTY OF SOAP As soon as an outbreak of infection with pinworms has been discovered, treatment should be prompt and thorough. Children who are exposed as well as those who have the worms must be given information on hygiene measures. Without care, the danger of reinfection is great. Careful and frequent washing of the hands with soap and water is the most important. With the improvement in knowledge of hygiene and how to take care of one's body and better methods of treatment, pinworm infections have become less frequent. Once established, however, pinworms rarely or never die off of themselves without treatment.

Pampa, Texas Feb. 24, 1951

To the Editor: May I take this means to express my full agreement with the article in the Clearing House Pampa News Friday by Christine Arnold. It really hit the nail on the head all the way. I feel we need more men of the type of Westbrook Pegler, and Fulton Lewis and a lot less of the Walter Winchell and Drew Pearson type. Without men like Pegler and Lewis, we would never hear of the hanging going on in Washington of which there has been plenty the last few years. Anyone might make one mistake but why turn right around and make a dozen more just like it. I am glad we do have a few watchdogs in Congress to look after our interest.

I refer to Senators Fullbright, Maybank, Lucas, and others on the committee investigating the doings of the RFC we are hearing so much about lately. Observe the pressure being put on them to get them to hushup. Ain't it awful? It was them old mean Republicans we could say it all to politics but you could hardly call Fullbright, Maybank and Lucas Republicans. Of course when it gets too tough, HARRY can run off to KILL WEST and leave poor old BILL BOYLE holding the bag. What we need is more DIGNITY and less LETTICE. WRITING from the White House. DON't you think? I notice BEN GULL is in Washington trying to get another Air-Base for the District. Where is our CONGRESSMAN, I thought that would be a Very Sincerely Yours W. J. CORNELISON 817 E. Scott Ave.

Well, there you are. Then why should ANYONE be exempted? Bernard Baruch doesn't think they should. He wants EVERYONE mobilized - conscripted. Fair enough. Either DRAFT EVERYONE or don't draft ANYONE. Be consistent. You can't draw any line without being unfair to someone. It is an all or nothing proposition. I am 100 percent against ANY conscription or any initiation of force by some citizens against other citizens which is what conscription is. As an American I hate the very word "conscript."

It was a term applied to slaves who were chained to their oars in the Roman galleys of war. It is exactly opposite the American principle of the independence and liberty of every individual as detailed in our priceless Declaration. No free man has a right to conscript any other free man, and whatever it is immoral for an individual to do it is equally immoral for a gang of individuals (or "government") to do. If it's wrong for me to steal the same principle is true of 375,000,000 folks called "the people" or "government." If it is immoral for me to kidnap a man and force him into involuntary servitude, it is equally wrong for 375,000,000 people to gang up and do it. That's the principle. Washington wasn't allowed to draft men, even during the Valley Forge days. Lincoln's administration started the idea in this country and it was improved upon by Franklin the Terrible, who first used the insulting word "conscript."

As for the so-called "practical" aspects of conscription, according to congressmen who recently questioned Anna Rosenberg, there are already more men VOLUNTEERING than the armed services can find a place for. Then why compulsory service? As for volunteering, that is the American way. Let this country be ATTACHED and you won't need a draft. The reason for drafting is that men won't fight otherwise. Why won't they fight? Because they have no real cause to fight FOR. To this very day I have never heard one good explanation of what we are fighting or seeking to fight for all over the world.

Wayland College Is Certified For State AAU Cage Meet

The AAU Basketball Tournament scheduled in Amarillo, March 5-10, exploded in this air Monday afternoon when the High Plains Commission of the Amateur Athletic Union declared all Panhandle AAU teams ineligible and cancelled its fifth annual tournament.

After declaring the AAU Panhandle teams ineligible, the committee then certified Wayland College of Pampa as the Plains Commission's official representative for the Texas AAU Tournament at San Antonio, March 8-9-10. The Plains Commission can certify two teams for the state tourney, but a second team wasn't selected at the Monday afternoon meeting.

SWC Basketball Title At Stake

(By The Associated Press)

This is the night when Texas A&M can win its first Southwest Conference basketball championship in 23 years.

The Aggies, already certain of a tie for the title, meet Texas in Austin and can take the pennant undisputed by licking the Longhorns.

Texas Christian looks hungrily on the Horned Frogs' only chance of getting even a piece of the title hinges on a Texas victory. In that event Texas also would share the crown and it would be a three-way affair.

Texas Christian kept its flickering hopes alive last night by journeying into the Ozarks and beating Arkansas 52-42. That snuffed out Arkansas' last chance of sharing the championship.

Today TCU has an 8-4 record, Texas 7-4 and Texas A&M 5-3. Rice and Southern Methodist also play tonight at Dallas but it means nothing. Rice is in the clear and will stay there unless it can win its next two games. Southern Methodist can't possibly wind up last. The Mustangs have a 5-6 record and tonight's game is the final for the Methodists.

Texas Christian took an early lead and never was headed by Arkansas which had its all-conference guard, D. L. Miller, trying to play on an injured knee. Harvey Fromme and Ted Reynolds paced the Frog offensive with 12 points each. Tom Hester was high point man for Arkansas with 10.

The committee included Les Kilgore, president of the AAU Plains Commission, Skeet Gibson, Commissioner of AAU Basketball, and Homer Cowan, director of the YMCA.

The afternoon meeting started out as a hearing for the Pampa Noblitt-Coffey Chiefs. Manager Jim Arndt received the hearing after the Plains Commission declared the Chiefs ineligible three weeks ago.

President Les Kilgore was in charge of the hearing for the Chiefs. The main AAU charges against the local independent quintet was that its roster included coaches, the Chiefs had played professional basketball, and that one of the coaches had signed a professional baseball contract.

When the committee pointed out each charge against the Pampa team, and backed it up with the AAU rule that cut a swath through the Panhandle teams was the one which reads: "Ineligible persons without having obtained as a condition precedent special permission to do so from the National Registration Committee."

This rule knocked out the Graham-Hoome Flowboys. The Flowboys competed against a Dallas team that had Kyle Role in its lineup. Role ended his amateur standing when he played in the Senior Bowl this year. Being paid for officiating basketball games caught a member of the Dowells Cafe team.

"The status of practically every independent team within our jurisdiction is clouded," Kilgore said. "They have used ineligible players, they have played against ineligible teams and they have violated the rules, whether or not intentional, in other ways."

Kilgore also stated that it was decided to make a clean sweep and wipe out AAU basketball for this season. This will serve as a warning to all to remain within the rules when organizing their teams for 1952.

"No further penalties will be inflicted, and groups which have been ruled ineligible may, of course, be reinstated after rebuilding with eligible players," the AAU prexy said. "We regret keenly that our action was necessary, but it had to come sometime."

Kilgore also said that by cleaning up now will mean more and better bona fide amateur basketball in the Panhandle and a successful tournament among eligible teams next year.

Seven teams had filed entry for the Amarillo tournament. They were:

Dowells Cafemen; Bradshaw Motor Company of Borger; Wayland College; Amarillo College Freshmen; Company G, 142nd Infantry, Texas National Guard; Tullis; Graham-Hoome Flow Company; and the Graham - Hoome Grain Company.

The DA then said that Gard was the intermediary between Sollazzo and the three CCNY players in the fixing of three games this season.

The three CCNY players, all members of the "Cinderella team" that won the national championship last season, are Ed Roman, Al Roth and Ed Warner, a player ranked in 1950 as one of the best players in the nation.

Harvey (Connie) Schaff, the NYU player, was accused of offering a teammate a bribe.

The district attorney's office did not say last night where the money allegedly given Miller by Gard came from. Sollazzo is accused of financing all the other fixes to the tune of at least $25,000.

However, Hogan is expected to give more details on the Miller bribery angle later today after the newest defendant is arraigned in felony court.

Miller, now a married graduate student at NYU, spent the night in jail.

Seven teams that played in the tournament last year are back. They include Harlingen, Highland Park (Dallas) and Texarkana in Class AA; Franch of Beaumont, and Canyon of Class A, and Cayuga, and Marfa in Class B.

First round pairings:

Thursday, Class B — Cayuga vs Woodboro, 8:45; Stanton vs Adrian, 10:10 a. m.; Marfa vs Sandy of Livingston, 11:30 a. m.; Blum vs Moulton, 1:45 p. m.

Thursday, Class A — Gatesville vs French of Beaumont, 2:10 p. m.; Coleman vs Bowie, 4:35 p. m.; Stinton vs Canyon, 7:15 p. m.; Van vs Brenham, 8:40 p. m.

State Tournament Opens Thursday

AUSTIN — (AP) — The state championship basketball tournament opens here Thursday with Cayuga playing Woodboro in a Class B game at 8:45 a. m.

Class A and B teams complete first round play Thursday. Conference AA teams make their first appearance Friday night.

Finals in Class A and B will be played Saturday afternoon and the Class AA title game is set for Saturday night.

Cage Bribe List Grows

NEW YORK — (AP) — College basketball's greatest bribe scandal has extended to another star player, another season and two more games.

The box score today stood at nine accused players or former players at three local schools and a total of 12 fixed games over three seasons, including the current one.

Nobody was sure whether the mushrooming tabulation was complete.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's office built up the all-star roster last night when it announced the arrest of Nathan (Nate) Miller, 25, of Brooklyn, a former key Long Island University player.

Miller was charged with taking $1,500 in bribes for fixing two games his team lost at the start of the 1948-1949 season, the last he played.

The charge said he received $1,000 after LIU's 97-66 loss to Bowling Green State University, Ohio, on Dec. 4, 1948; and $500 after his team's 83-58 defeat by Western Kentucky State College on Dec. 30, 1948. Both games were played at Madison Square Garden.

Miller allegedly received the money from a teammate, Edward Gard, who already is under arrest in the inquiry.

The latest defendant was a teammate also of the accused Sherman White, Le Roy Smith and adoptive Bigos, who were then sophomores.

Miller is accused of contriving "to lose and to limit the margin of victory." Limiting the margin — or fixing the point spread between two teams — makes it possible for gamblers who are in on the deal to clean up on bets.

This 1948 LIU team had a comparatively poor record, winning 18 games and losing 12. However, Miller starred both the previous season when LIU rang up identical 17-and-4 win-loss records. The 1946-47 team played in the National Invitation tournament.

Miller was considered one of the city's leading playmakers — the man who sets up scoring attempts — despite the handicap of a severe World War Two shoulder wound that won him a purple heart. He served in Germany.

Bigos and White, a center who was the leading scorer in the nation, are accused with Gard of accepting bribes to fix three games of the 1948-1950 season, including a National Invitation Tournament tilt.

Bigos, White and Smith are charged in the fixing of four games this season, including one with Bowling Green. Gard's playing eligibility had expired last year.

Gard was arrested nine days ago when the district attorney first disclosed the scandal with bribery charges against three City College of New York players, one from New York University, and Salvatore Tarlo Sollazzo, a gambler, jeweler and ex-convict.

Shamrock Boxers Meet Panhandle

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Coach H. W. Callan's boxers clash with the Panhandle beak-busters here Tuesday night, Feb. 27. The collision occurs at the high school gym at 8 p. m.

While there will be from 13 to 15 bouts, some of the standouts are listed below:

Barry Ward versus Maroney of Panhandle. Ward is classed at 65 pounds, but may have to look to his laurels in this combat.

Bobby Trimble, Irish 65 pounder, collides with Weldon Axe, also first class in the fighting ring.

Paul Hall, at 100, will bang gloves with Mitchell of the Panhandle crew in what promises to be an A-1 match.

Coach Callan is looking for someone to battle with Bobby Campbell, Irish 17 pounder with lethal fists. He has hopes of staging a battle in this field, but it is difficult to get fights for Campbell, considered one of the most deadly punchers in the area. He has had only half a dozen fights this season. Reason: no opponents. Most of whom hit for bombshells.

Others Callan seeks to match with the Panhandle team: Forrest Thompson and Kenneth Woods at 105; Wayne Smith, 118; Charles Payne, 128; Ed Carver, 135; Ronnie Settle and Billy Campbell, both 135; Jimmy Pennington, 155; and Billy Pavlovsky at 165.

Woods, Pavlovsky and Bobby Campbell were a Golden Gloves winners at the Shamrock area tourney and made a good showing at the Amarillo regional slugfest.

The Irish follow up with combat with the Pampa Boys Club would train with Jersey City. The Ten Years Ago — Billy Conn, 182, stopped Ira Hughes, 176, in fourth round of a scheduled 16-rounder.

The Pampa Reapers kept alive their chances for a first place tie with Horace Mann by handing Sam Houston a 31-28 setback in the junior high gym Monday afternoon. Horace Mann closed out its conference play Monday with a 48-34 win over Pecos College.

Coach Fernal Scoggin's blue-clad Pampans finish their season against Sam Houston at Amarillo Thursday afternoon. A victory for the Reapers will throw the Panhandle Junior High School Basketball League into a two-way tie. Horace Mann has a 21-3 record, and the Reapers are in second place with a 10-3 mark.

Jimmy Bond sparked the locals Monday, hitting six times from the floor for 12 points. Harold Lewis looped in eight tallies for the Reapers, and E. J. McElvain meshed six points. Swindell was high point man for Sam Houston with nine points.

The Reapers moved out in front 10-7 at the quarter mark and kept their three-point margin at the half, 17-14. Pampa outscored Amarillo, eight-six in the third period. Sam Houston narrowed the margin to three points in the final quarter but lacked the scoring punch to catch the sapers.

Early Morning Walk Is Good If You Could Keep Sleeping

By ED CREAUGH
WASHINGTON — (AP) — You needn't bother to circle the date on your calendar, or anything, but I finally got around to taking that early morning walk and— Well, maybe I'd better begin at the beginning.

Seems that last Christmas I went out to Kansas City with a passel of other newspapermen to keep an eye on the doings of President Truman.

This might have been a nice, restful trip but it wasn't. Reporters get to bed late on assignments like that and the President gets up early, to take a before-breakfast walk. When he walks, the newsmen walk, too. Don't ask me why. They just do. I never knew nights could be so short. We'd hardly hit the sack when the phone would ring and it would be time to race out to Independence, Mo., and fall in behind Mr. Truman on his morning walk.

Well, I finally got home — to the hills of Maryland, that is — dropped in to feel my pulse and beg for souvenirs and things, and then it was that I made my big mistake. I didn't have to say it. Nobody forced me. But I said: "You know, that morning walk of the President's is a good idea. Healthful. I think I'll start taking morning walks myself."

You could have heard the roar of laughter half-way to Kansas City.

"That'll be the day," chortled Freddy Mueller, who lives upstairs. "The longest walk I've ever known you to take is down to the corner to the mailbox and you hitch-hiked a ride back with me."

And the very next morning, being a man of iron determination, I would have gone walking if I hadn't overslept. The morning after that, it was raining. The third morning—

Anyhow, it seems to have become a neighborhood joke. Children stop me in the street, just as if their parents hadn't put them up to it, and titter: "Did you enjoy your morning walk—tee - hee - hee - hee - hee?"

So yesterday morning: I hadn't slept well, for some reason, and our cat Cleo applied the finishing touch. In one of her outbursts of affection, she perched on my neck at 5:30 a. m. and licked the tip of my nose.

Crooning non-endorsements, I got out of bed and gave Cleo the old heave-ho.

Then, since the front door was open and the morning smelled fresh, I held a debate with my self. I lost.

"Going to take a morning walk," I informed my sleeping bride.

"Rrrmph ubbleg rmmrs," She murmured encouragingly.

I dressed with remarkable swiftness and started walking. Upstairs. To the Muellers. They have a knocker on their door. I banged it. Hard. Often. Savage-ly.

Freddy came, at long last.

Pajama-clad. Squint-eyed. Groggy. "Wh—?"

"Just starting out on my morning walk?" I roared. "Thought you might like to come along, best thing in the world for you! Healthy!"

Sometimes you hit the jackpot. Not often, but sometimes.

SMILING THROUGH—Despite the pain and discomfort of slings and pulleys, that are stretching her spine into straighter position, Banoveris, 7½ of Salt Lake City, Utah, smiles bravely. She has at least six months of difficult treatment, including plaster casts, and a delicate operation before surgeons at Primary Children's Hospital will have straightened her crooked spine.

for pretty 20-year-old PFC Stella Banoveris from Racine, Wis. "The only girl on the base—wow!" was her reaction. The first hint the base had was when she showed up for work with the other radio mechanics. She had 14 months' radio training and soon showed she could tackle a repair job with the best of them. When she first appeared in the mess hall, there was a swelling murmur: "gee, a woman in the show line!" Now they politely wave her to the head of the line. Lt. Col. Lauren A. Howard, commanding officer of the 138th Fighter Squadron, was almost shaken out of his customary severity when Stella reported for duty. "A slippup somewhere along the line," he explained. He was going to open up one of the former WAC barracks for Stella. But rather than have her settling around in lonely apartments, he made arrangements to have her quartered off the field. In spite of what is practically her own personal stagine of 600 or more, Stella insisted she was not dated a single Grenier buddy. Stella affirms she is true to her boy friend at Scott Air Force Base, Ill. But she won't tell his name. Seven letters from him caught up with her here. She's busy packing up again to move to Otis Air Force Base, Cape Cod, Mass. "I understand there are Waf galore there," she sighed.

Henry And Jean Finding Out Things About The Romans

By HENRY MELEMORE
ROME — I got the surprise of my life when I flew in here from Germany today.

For the first time I realized that Rome is a city whose population consists chiefly of Italians, and whose predominant language is Italian.

I had gained the impression from earlier visits — all made during the summer, at the height of the tourist season — that Rome was largely an American city, most of whose inhabitants spoke English, carried cameras, and complained of sore feet as a result of walking from morn till night.

Rome in February and Rome in June, July and August are as different as you can imagine. And to my way of thinking, the winter Rome is around 100 percent the more enjoyable.

Not that I have anything against Americans, cameras, or sore feet, but there is such a thing as having too much of them. What a pleasure it is to go into a store and be served immediately without having to wait half an hour while a contingent of Americans haggle over the price of a hand-tooled leather box and an embroidered luncheon set.

Walking about the streets is a whole of a lot nicer in February than it is in the summer. The ten thousand self-appointed guides, offering to lead you to a place where you can get it cheaper, are in hibernation, gathering strength to run summer tourists crazy.

Today we actually walked across the Square of St. Peter's, up the great steps, and into the basilica, without one single person offering to sell us a postal card, or to take our picture, or to guide us through St. Peter's itself.

As all who have been here in summer well know, Rome can be miserably, miserably hot and humid. Only the incomparable sights of the Eternal City would cause a man to walk about in the noonday sun.

But now, in February, the climate is a chamber of commerce man's dream. It's that delightful, coolish-warm weather, if you know what I mean, and the sky is a cloudless blue. It's the sort of weather that makes even the laziest man save taxi fare because he feels like walking for miles.

The one thing that remains constant in Rome, summer and winter, is the traffic. How the Italians survive it years in and out is one of the unsolved mysteries. It makes no sense whatsoever. There are lights and traffic cops, to be sure, but they are just a part of the mad scheme to see to it that life and limb is ever in peril from buses, passenger cars, trucks, motorcycles, scooters, bicycles, and horse drawn hacks.

For a pedestrian to be timid in Rome is for him to stand on one street corner for the rest of his life. To ever cross a street he must egg himself on by muttering the classic Marine phrase, "Come on you so-and-so's, do you want to live all your life?" and charge into the maelstrom.

The tiny Italian cars can turn on a dime and so are able to follow and run down a dodging pedestrian like a bird dog after a crippled quail. A little Fiat chased me two blocks today before a bus, scenting its natural prey, took care of the Fiat.

Really, Rome traffic seemingly follows the law of the jungle. The buses hunt the automobiles. The automobiles hunt the motorcycles. The motorcycles hunt the motor scooters. The motor scooters hunt the bicycles, and all of them hunt the pedestrians. Before I tackle Rome traffic again I am going to take a rapid course in Italian.

I want to be able to yell "Help! Help!" if nothing else. Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Cut in Use Of Metals Slated
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP) — The government plans a cut of 25 to 40 per cent in April 1 in the amount of basic metals going into automobiles, stoves and home appliances. Officials of the National Production Authority (NPA) disclosed this today, saying it will be necessary to save steel, copper and aluminum for defense purposes. The cut in actual number of cars and appliances produced may be somewhat smaller than the one in use of metals, these officials said. It will depend on the manufacturer's ability to substitute and conserve, using such things as plastics, for instance, in place of metals. The auto industry last month promised a cut in use of basic metals for the present quarter, but NPA experts said a hoped-for drop in automotive orders for steel apparently had not taken place. Consequently, the mandatory action is contemplated, affecting steel, copper and aluminum. Some other metals, such as nickel and cobalt, already are subject to curtailment as severe or worse. The curtailment will appear in about two weeks, giving producers at least a month to get set.

Manufacturers Fear Material Shortage
A growing steel shortage will boost bid offers and may seriously slow work on new plants.

Chrome Needed For Jet Engines
The American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics has urged the government to take steps to insure a sufficient supply of chrome for jet engines.

Civilian Production May Be Cut
The government is considering a curtailment of civilian production of certain metals to conserve them for defense purposes.

U. S. Needs More Copper
The U. S. needs more copper for defense purposes, particularly for the production of jet engines and other military equipment.

HEADLINES in the news!
Everyday headlines... found in newspapers in your town... in Dallas, in Clinton, in Lubbock and Amarillo... all over the nation! These headlines and news stories are convincing indications of an even greater shortage of refrigerators!

More Steel Needed For Defense
Building restrictions, a tight market for steel, and a shortage of supplies are expected to curtail production of defense equipment.

Rubber Outlook Unfavorable
Market conditions were unchanged, but prices of all major commodities are expected to rise.

Housewives Asked Not To Waste Food
Austin, Feb. 26 (AP)—Commercial and residential housewives are urged to conserve food.

National Sales Tax Proposed by Banker
Price rises continue. Wholesale prices have moved up 4.1 in Texas. Retail prices have risen 1.5 in the state.

Aluminum Plants
The government is considering a curtailment of civilian production of certain metals to conserve them for defense purposes.

Toss Salad Into Diet To Help Reduce: Make It First Course

By ANN WILLIAMS-HELLER
Written for NEA Service

Your salad bowl is an important part of your diet. In reducing, it's a good idea to have one or two servings of leafy salad greens every day. If you want to, you can take the sharp edge from your appetite by having your green salad as the first course of a meal.

You can, of course, buy greens all the year around in accordance with the seasonal supply. A wooden salad bowl, fork and spoon will handle the greens in proper fashion and give them better care than a metal bowl can.

Start a new bowl out right by rubbing it with oil and letting it stand overnight. Next, cut a clove of garlic and rub it into the bowl with a little salt. Then, wipe the bowl out with paper towels. Never wash your bowl; always rub it clean and dry.

In making any tossed salad, the French method is best. That is, break the greens into the bowl. Never cut them apart with a knife or scissors. Use a low-calorie dressing (I included a recipe for Mock French Dressing in the first article of this diet series) and toss lightly and thoroughly for two or three minutes. Always add the dressing just before you serve; never let your salad stand with dressing on it.

WHIPPED CANNED CREAM
When you are whipping chilled evaporated milk to use as a dessert topping flavor it with grated lemon or orange rind when lemon juice has been added to the milk. The lemon and orange flavor goes well with gingerbread, bread pudding, peach shortcake (made with canned or frozen peaches).

BEAUTY AFTER FORTY

"Please suggest an outfit to wear now and in the real spring weather. I have graying hair and I am 43.

Mrs. S. C.
There is nothing so fresh and "uplifting" as a spring print, a spruce navy and white ensemble. One that appeals to me as a happy choice was created by designer John Traina and smartly done to flatter, slenderize and lengthen the figure. It comes in sizes 14 to 42, 12 1/2 to 24 1/2. Isn't it wonderful to have such a smart outfit done in After Forty sizes and designs? The print is a youthful, modernistic one, called "Sticks and Stones." The white print is outstanding on the background of navy. The sheath dress is belted at the waist, the jacket is dramatized with lapels and cuffs of navy benbaline. The model I saw wore a tiny navy hat, sparkling white gloves and a very becoming wide choker of pearls. A white hat and opaque white beads, plus a white bag and gloves would, later on, give a springier air.

"I am so tired after a day at my office job. I am in my early fifties but look a bit younger. Fatigue is wearing me down. I live and eat alone, have a good job but a dull life. Any suggestions?"

Mary H.
Yes. Take time out to pamper yourself and do it NOW! Fatigue is a deadly enemy to health, happiness and good looks. Why not be completely sensible and have a physical checkup? Follow your physician's advice and also plan a beauty and relaxing program. Have some face treatments and scalp massages. Get a new hairdo, a new makeup, plus a new spring outfit. This will put you "in the pink." Then take a vacation and meet some new people and you will feel better.

"My hands are deeply mottled. I am 69. My daughter insists that I wear rose-colored nail polish. This annoys me because I prefer none. What is your opinion?"

Madame P. C.
It's a matter of personal choice. The rose shade would be becoming, so why not please your daughter, who seems to be very much interested in your appearance?

Credit Restrictions On Homes Show Mixed Effect Over U.S.

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK — Credit restrictions on home buying, calling for larger cash payments and shorter mortgage terms, are falling to check the home building boom in many parts of the country. At the same time, in almost an equal number of areas, the pinch of such curbs is being felt sharply and some home builders are going out of business. Some bankers are convinced that these restrictions, introduced in an effort to curb inflation, are having the opposite effect. A national survey by the Associated Press shows 34 major areas reporting credit curbs entirely ineffective to date in reducing the home building and home buying booms that are exceeding records set a year ago. On the other hand, 21 important districts, including most of New York state, report mortgage loans considerably tighter with home building off as much as 50 percent.

"If people need more money for down payments, they'll get it," says a New Mexico mortgage man.

"If a man can pay one-third down for a car, he can afford one-fourth down on a small house," declares a Raleigh N. C., banker. "Regulation X (the federal reserve rule limiting mortgage loans) hasn't and won't bother us," he adds.

George C. Johnson, president of the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn, N. Y., which holds $361,000,000 in home mortgages, calls Regulation X outright inflationary. He argues that money invested in homes is removed from circulation. When it can't be absorbed in that quarter, he says it is free to be spent in inflationary channels.

In Detroit both city and federal officials say credit curbs are "practically 100 percent responsible" for that city's drop of 80 percent in home building activity from January 1950 levels.

Birmingham, Louisville and New Orleans builders likewise blame credit curbs for decreased home building.

"The damper, of course, is credit restrictions," declares a Veterans Administration spokesman in New Orleans. "The speculative builder, who built from a half-dozen to 1,000 houses for sale, has disappeared from the scene. Too large a down payment is the reason." New Orleans home loan companies agree.

Baltimore finds credit curbs hurting only luxury type homes, for which buyers must raise as much as 50 percent cash. But the reverse prevails in Arkansas and Richmond, Va.

A Little Rock building firm, which erected 30 homes in the less than $10,000 class last year, is going into the $15,000 to $30,000 field.

Richmond lenders say credit restrictions have placed two-thirds of the low-priced buyers out of the market. The only

Farm Buying Loans Return

By OVID A. MARTIN WASHINGTON — About 18 years ago Uncle Sam started making loans to farm laborers and tenant farmers for the purchase of farms. This aid has been extended to farmers who can not get credit from banks, private individuals or other lending agencies because they are considered poor credit risks.

In 15 years the Agriculture Department has loaned nearly $400,000,000 to 84,073 farm buyers. In most cases the government put down the full cost of the farm. Few commercial concerns would lend more than 75 percent of the purchase price.

The department reports that one third of the loans already have been paid in full, although the borrowers were given 40 years to pay.

Of the borrowers with unpaid balances, almost six out of ten were ahead in their payments. Two out of ten were on schedule. Two out of ten were behind schedule.

The department says its probable net losses are less than $800,000 — about 15 cents for every $100 loaned.

Officials agree, however, that conditions have been favorable for payment of loans. The relatively high prices for farm products during the war and postwar period enabled borrowers to meet loan payments without undue difficulty.

Furthermore, the borrowers have received technical guidance from the department in good farming, marketing, family food production and preservation, budgeting and buying.

Loans were not made until the department had determined that the price of the farm was within its long-term earning powers.

The department says the results of this tenant farm-purchase program indicate many young farm families can make a success of farm ownership if they can obtain liberal credit based on the long-term earning capacity of the farm they wish to buy and if the credit is accompanied by supervision.

The department also is making loans for the enlargement of farms too small for efficient family-type operations.

Insurance Company Says Business Good

Southwestern Life Insurance Company today reported a record business year in 1950 as it released for publication the company's 48th annual financial statement. Local representatives of the company are D. C. Ash and Ed F. Cleveland.

Two new records were announced by company president J. Ralph Wood. The company's agency force produced $115,186,423, of new pair-for business, which resulted in an increase in the company's insurance in force to a total of $529,222,242 at the end of the year, both new records for the company.

About one-third of the company's assets are now invested in loans for construction or improvement of Texas homes, farms or business property.

Ray Lump and Vince Boryla of the New York Knickerbockers in the National Basketball Association, were roommates on the 1948 US Olympic basketball team.

New Wheat Rust Threatens '51 Crop

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

WASHINGTON — A new wheat disease threatens the 1951 crop. Scientists have reported it the worst of its type ever studied.

The disease is a rust, caused by tiny fungi. Rust is an ancient enemy of wheat. Older types have destroyed as much as 100,000,000 bushels of the American wheat crop in one year. These have been under control for years.

Department of Agriculture scientist considered whether the present outbreak might be spread by foreign agents but have concluded that it started from natural causes.

How much damage it may cause in 1951 depends upon weather between now and harvest. Given wet and warm weather, it could spread rapidly. The scientists say all wheat varieties grown on American farms can be damaged by it.

The government scientists are in a race with the disease. They are searching the world for wheat varieties resistant to the new rust. They must find these varieties and develop seed from them or the rust can spread widely around the world.

It will take at least several years from the time resistance types are discovered until enough seeds can be developed for farm planting. Agronomist B. E. Bayles of the U. S. Bureau of Plant Industry says the new rust, called "Race 15B," caused the loss of about one-fifth of the durum wheat crop in the Dakotas and Minnesota last year at the start of the outbreak.

Government experts say a short U. S. wheat crop this year would have its most serious effects in world markets. The U. S. is the world's largest exporter of wheat, providing about one third of the total wheat in world trade last year and as much as one-half in some other years.

Grains are needed desperately by some nations, such as India. If the international situation worsens the importance of a substantial American wheat crop this year would increase. The U. S. government has lifted all production controls to encourage plantings.

Rust was a plague of U. S. wheat crops until around 1925. Accidentally rust organisms cross-bred, producing a new "race" with new characteristics. One of these is the ability to attack all wheat varieties resistant to the older kinds of rust.

All evidence indicates accidental cross-breeding occurred while the rust lived on Barberry bushes, its "host" during one stage of its life cycle.

The disease apparently spread southward last fall. It was identified in 14 states besides the Dakotas and Minnesota—Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Rust is killed by cold weather but can winter on wheat in mild climates. Unfortunately the outbreak of Race 15B reached the mild climates of southern Texas and Mexico, where wheat is grown in winter.

Southern crops, infested with the new rust, will mature this spring. If the winter is mild, Bayles says, large quantities of the rust will survive.

Wheat crops mature one after another from south to north. Unless weather conditions are adverse the rust probably will jump from one crop to another, moving northward and multiplying as it moves, Bayles says.

The United States, Canada and

"These cowboy movies seem to be getting mushier all the time!"

Mexico are cooperating to fight the new rust. As soon as the outbreak occurred scientists began hunting for wheat varieties resistant to the new rust.

All commercial varieties were non-resistant, but fortunately around 600 experimental varieties showed resistance. About 12,000 wheats have been collected in 50 years from all over the world. These are being tested to locate the best parents in the new breeding program.

New varieties must resist rust and produce good wheat. These qualities must also be bred into the new varieties. Bayles says Mexico has about 500 acres of a new wheat that has resistance to 15B rust. If this stands tests now underway it could be used to produce seed wheat as the basis for new wheat varieties to be grown in the southern, mild climates.

If only resistance wheat is grown in the South, the new rust will have no place to winter. But it will take several years to produce seed in suitable quantities for commercial planting throughout North America.

Farmers are being advised to take unusual care of the 1951 crop. The department is urging them to plant spring wheat as early as possible and use fertilizers to make it mature early.

Kelly Will Hire More Employees

SAN ANTONIO — (AP) — Kelly Air Force Base will hire 3,666 more employees immediately, it was announced Saturday.

The expansion of the Air Force was given as the reason by Maj. Gen. Clements McMullen, commanding general of the San Antonio Air Material Area.

Kelly's personnel chief said workers will be employed through the central hiring agency of the civil service board here.

Shark Repellent Helps Fishermen

SAN PEDRO, Calif. — (AP) —

A chemical shark repellent developed to save fliers downed at sea is proving a boon to fishermen here. The repellent, which comes in small cakes, has proven effective in chasing the killer fish which destroys thousands of dollars worth of fishing nets by pursuing smaller fish into them.

One skipper of a tuna trawler reports that he lowered a net equipped with the repellent in waters infested with sharks. He said he caught 100 tons of fish without being bothered by a single shark. The repellent affects the shark's taste organs and robs the huge fish of the desire to bite.

Natives Dislike Change in System

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — (AP) —

Announcement that this province might abandon her unique time system and join the Atlantic Time Zone has brought a storm of critical comment from Newfoundland organizations and individuals. Latest to join the fight have been the Associated Newfoundland Industries and more than 100 employees of a department store here who sent statements to the government. The move would reduce Canada's time zones from seven to six.

74-Year-Old Woman Writes Poetry Now

HADACOL Supplies Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron Which Her System Lacked.

Did you ever feel so good that you wanted to sing about it? Mrs. Della Burrows, Route 1, Zionsville, Indiana, feels so good nowadays, that she's writing poetry about it.

Mrs. Burrows is feeling that way because she found that HADACOL with its Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron was just what her system needed.

Mrs. Burrows wanted everyone to know just how highly she thought of HADACOL and she expressed it in this little poem:

"Well, here is my age, if you must know, 74 years young. Hair white as snow. A great many times I've heard people say 'I'm taking HADACOL every day! Just try a bottle and you will find, it's what you've been looking for all this time.' So, I got me a bottle and drank it all up and soon felt as spry as a pup. So, now I'm on my fourth bottle of HADACOL. I feel so much better. I sleep like a baby, eat like a pig, and if anyone should ask me, I could dance a jig.

Only HADACOL gives you that "Wonderful HADACOL Feeling" — accept no substitutes. Buy the genuine HADACOL today.
