Ickes to Fine Coal Miners $1 Day for Walkout Last Week

Money Will Be Donated To Charity

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Secretary Ickes said today that miners who participated in the June 1-7 walkout from government-operated pits would be fined in accordance with their contracts, which usually provide penalties of $1 per day if a miner fails to work without good reason.

Ickes acted as federal boss of the mines. Most of John L. Lewis' 350,000-odd United Mine Workers were out from June 1 through June 5, making them liable for fines of $5 each for the five-day absence from the mines. Under the contracts, the penalty money goes to selected charities. Ickes, adding that fines would again be levied if another walkout takes place before or after the present truce ends at midnight, June 20, declared that before last week's walkout "we told the miners we were going to fine them if they went out again."

The fines, he said, will be taken out of the next pay envelopes issued to the miners since, he reported, their latest wage payments already had been made when the walkout started June 1.

Although the UMW contends no contract was in force after midnight, May 31, Ickes said the fines would be levied under the terms of the contracts because he had declared in taking over the mines for the government April 1 that the contracts were being extended indefinitely pending agreement on a new contract.

The government mine boss declined at a press conference to say whether he would recommend an increase in price ceilings which reportedly would be called for to put into effect a tentative agreement on a new contract by Lewis and some Pennsylvania soft coal operators.

One group of coal operators broke from the readlocked Appalachian joint wage conference today and made a separate peace with John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers.

The agreement, between the central Pennsylvania producers association, employing 65,000 men, and the UMW, was reported to call for a wage boost of $1.30 a day for underground travel time. Lewis originally sought $2.

This sudden development tossed more confusion into the already complicated negotiations, which were described by both the operators and Lewis as "friendly." Each side accused the other of being too stubborn.

The war labor board reentered the dispute today, holding a public hearing. However, Lewis' miners sent no representatives.

East Texas Oil Wells Flooded

(By The Associated Press) Hundreds of oil wells in the East Texas field were flooded today as the Sabine river swirled out of banks in at least three counties—Wood, Van Zandt and Smith.

At Gladewater, the Sabine hit 39.5 feet at 9 a. m. This was two feet above the all-time record at that point, hitting 34.5 feet at the stream 24 feet. The crest of 41 feet was expected about 7 p. m.

Mayor C. W. Cumble of Hawkins said thousands of acres of farmland around Mineola, Gladewater and Hawkins were reported destroyed by rampaging waters.

Many oil wells had suspended production, Selby Oil company reporting that 100 of its wells were flooded and 50 to 60 shut down.

In the river bottoms around Gladewater, 200 people—mostly Negroes were evacuated. Livestock was removed from low areas yesterday morning.

Though falling at Dallas and Rosser, the Trinity continued to rise at Trinidad, hitting 34.5 feet compared with a flood stage of 28 feet. Water was spreading over cotton lands, the Dallas weather bureau reported. All livestock had been removed from threatened areas.

SERVICE MEN OPEN ZOOT SUIT OFFENSIVE

Service Men Banned From Zoot-Suit Areas

LOS ANGELES, June 10 (AP)—Nearly a dozen communities along the rim of far-flung Los Angeles were closed to U. S. seamen, marines and coast guardsmen today after navy officials expanded their out-of-bounds area in an effort to forestall future disorders between service men and zoot-suiters—clashes which have drawn the attention of the state department and the Mexican embassy.

Navy enlisted men—except when armed with special passes—have been barred from Los Angeles since the disturbances reached a climax Monday night, when 50 wearers of long coats and sausage-shaped trousers were dispersed by bands of soldiers and sailors who hold the zoot-suit genre responsible for recent alleged beatings, robberies and indignities inflicted upon service men.

Outbreaks had dwindled to isolated cases in outlying areas last night, police reported.

In suburban Watts a band of some 125 zooters and other juveniles clashed with approximately 90 service men, mostly sailors and marines, police reported. The fighting raged more than an hour, police said, and a member of the youths were "trousered before military police reserves succeeded in quelling the riot."

Trainmen on interurban cars passing through the Watts area said police their cars were stoned on nearly every trip. No one was reported hurt.

In nearby Azura a 15-year-old boy, said to have been tossing gasoline flares into a theater, was shot in the leg by a special officer.

In Los Angeles' Boyle Heights a Zoo suited mob assembled early today, and was dispersed without violence by police armed with riot guns.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron declared in a radio address that local governmental authority has not broken down.

Earl Warren, from Sacramento, urged law enforcement officers, citizens and service men to join in a movement to quell street fighting in which 500 zooters and service men have been jailed, and some 150 persons have been injured in the past few days. The majority of the zoot-suiters arrested, police said.

Gray Bond Quota Put At $106,600

Gray county's Victory bond quota for June is $106,600. Frank Scofield of Austin, state V-bond administrator, has informed Walter E. Rogers, county bond chairman. Scofield said that every effort should be made to make as many bond sales as possible before the close of the fiscal year.

He asked that Gray over-subscribe its quota by 10 per cent this month, said the national goal was $12,000,000,000 by the close of the fiscal year in E. F. and G. bond sales, and asked sale of $43,000 worth of P and H series bonds in Gray county this month.

The Gray county chairman received at the same time as the announcement of the June quota a certificate from the U. S. Treasury War Finance committee of the eleventh federal reserve district, a certificate in "appreciation of unselfish and patriotic volunteer participation in the national war effort" in conjunction with the Second Victory Loan campaign of April 12-May 1 this year.

Gray county residents whose greatest wishes are to ride horses are due for a disappointment, if all the horses and colts were proportioned out for their only $7000 for each of the county's residents. Horses and colts, over 3 months, in this county, number 1,723.

Curfew Law Is Invalid, City Learns

Pampa can't have a curfew law because it is not possible for any city in Texas to write a valid curfew ordinance, the League of Texas Municipalities has informed W. C. deCordova, city manager.

Enclosed with the letter from E. E. McAdams, executive director and secretary of the league, which has its headquarters at Austin, was the opinion of the league's legal advisers, Hart Peterson, Hart & Brown, signed by Jay H. Brown.

Answer of the league snags attempts here to have a curfew law enacted as a curb to increasing juvenile delinquency.

Brown cites a case that occurred in Graham where a city ordinance prohibited persons under 21 years of age being on the streets or alleys after 9 p. m., unless accompanied by parent or guardian, or in search of the services of a physician.

The state booted out this law, claiming it to be as "rigid as military law" and an "undue invasion of personal liberty of citizens as boys and girls have the same right of ingress and egress as adults" and branded the ordinance an "attempt to usurp the parental functions."

Attorney Brown claimed the decision was the first in the United States on this topic. It was contained in a legal volume under date of 1896.

Also enclosed with the letter from McAdams was a copy of Senate Bill 44 which provides for a new method of dealing with juvenile delinquency.

Under the bill such cases are to be handled as a civil matter rather than as criminal except in extreme cases.

County and district judges are to decide who is to handle these cases. The league secretary suggested that the first step in handling juvenile delinquency be the appointment of a juvenile officer, a step that has already been taken with Paul D. Hill named by the county commissioners to that position.

U. S. To Continue Daylight Raids

LONDON, June 10 (AP)—The current summer will find the eighth United States air force in England carrying its full share of the bomber offensive against Germany with multiple daylight raids. Major Gen. Ira C. Eaker, its commander, disclosed today.

Eaker told a press conference that the American heavy bomber force had doubled its size since March and would approximate the RAF's bomber strength by the end of the summer.

He said the American Flying Fortresses and Liberators would continue their precision raiding in daylight with relatively small individual forces rather than adopting the British mass raiding technique by night or day.

Eaker's disclosure following a statement from a reliable source here that a unit of Flying Fortresses had been assigned to undertake night bombing experiments from Britain with the RAF.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10 (AP)—A pianist and a saxophonist in Gray Krupa's dance band were mistaken for zoot-suiters and severely beaten by two unidentified sailors early today in a Broad street subway station.

The pianist, Michael Marmarosa, 17, of Pittsburgh, was taken unconscious to Hahnemann hospital and attended said he possibly suffered a skull fracture. The saxophonist, Boniface De Franco, 20, of Philadelphia, was treated for a cut lip.

Cattle And Calves In Gray County Outnumber People, Almanac Shows

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON There are more cattle and calves in Gray county than there are people, according to figures in the 1943-44 issue of the Texas Almanac and Industrial Guide.

"This means that every man, woman, and child could have an extra large meat ration if all cattle were proportioned out for their only $7000 for each of the county's residents. Horses and colts, over 3 months, in this county, number 1,723.

Aussie Chief Views Drive Against Japs

CANBERRA, Australia, June 10.—(AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin indicated today that the time is approaching when the Allies' strategy of defensive warfare in the southwest Pacific may give way to a policy of limited and perhaps full-scale attack upon the Japanese.

"The holding war imposed on us under circumstances of great difficulty has been an obligation under global strategy which has been discharged," Curtin declared. "I feel the pressure on this country to be thrown back on the enemy."

The prime minister's declaration was part of a formal statement issued on the basis of his meetings at Sydney June 7 with General Douglas MacArthur, Allied commander-in-chief in this theater of war.

The two conferred twice during the day—which Curtin described as a "good day" from the viewpoint of Australia. An announcement of the meeting made today in parliament said MacArthur and Curtin surveyed the outlook for the southwestern Pacific campaign in the light of general strategy agreed upon at Washington recently by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

HERE WE GO AGAIN, POP: Chances Are 1 to 6 Dads Will Be Drafted Before Next Year

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—A draft-age father's chances of being inducted into the armed forces before next year appeared today to be about 17 out of 100.

And the chances next year may be even lower unless heavy casualties require unexpectedly large replacements.

Farmer fathers generally will be deferred for occupational reasons, but the outlook for others sums up like this on the basis of latest War Manpower Commission Selective Service figures:

Drafting of those with children born before last Sept. 15 is not expected to begin before August 1, and even if it starts then it is unlikely to become general and heavy for another month at least.

There are nearly 6,000,000 draft age (non-farm) fathers—only about 4,000,000 of them at most could be expected to be physically acceptable—and the armed services will take in but about 1,500,000 men in all between August 1 and Jan. 1, 1944.

Toward making up this 1,500,000, the services get around 70,000 of each month, and should net 350,000 from this source from August on, not counting the youths past 18 who were deferred to the end of the school year.

At least 150,000 more inductees will come from the ranks of single or childless married men, especially as occupational deferments expire for men in that class and the drafting of fathers increases pressure on the men without children out of the shops and into uniform.

With 500,000 or more inductees available from other classes, only 1,000,000 fathers at most will be needed in the ranks, although perhaps twice as many may be called for physical examinations.

The outlook for 1944 naturally is less certain, but if 150,000 men monthly would provide enough replacements for casualties on and off

Stimson Flays WAAC Rumors

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson said today that "sinister rumors aimed at destroying the reputation" of the WAACs through charges of immorality "are absolutely and completely false."

"I refer," Stimson said to a press conference, "to charges of immorality and particularly to the allegation that the war department has agreed to the issuance of contraceptives and prophylactic equipment to the members of this corps."

He added that "anything which would interfere with their recruiting or destroy the reputation of the corps and, by so doing, interfere with increase in the combat strength of our army, would be of value to the enemy. The reputation of any unfounded rumor concerning this corps lessens confidence in it and is actually an aid to the enemy."

The strength of the women's army auxiliary corps, Stimson said, has reached 65,000, releasing soldiers for front-line duty to the extent of four combat divisions. "As a yardstick" he added, "our combat ground force in the Tunisian campaign consisted of just four divisions."

"The authorized strength of this corps is 150,000 and since the objective behind the enlistment of the corps is to relieve able-bodied soldiers for combat duty, you can well see that we are speaking now of a sizeable increase in our fighting forces."

Tiny Island Undergoes 18 Days Of Raids

(By The Associated Press) Shattering new assaults on Italy's "Gibraltar" at Pantelleria, and a British commando attack on Lampedusa Island were announced by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters today, while in London the belief persisted that momentous operations were imminent.

The volcanic little island, athwart the trans-Mediterranean invasion route to Sicily and the Italian mainland, underwent its 18th successive day of aerial attack yesterday after rejecting an Allied ultimatum for unconditional surrender.

At the same time, American heavy bombers from the Middle East kept up the pounding of Italy's Sicilian stronghold, blasting the airstrip at Gerbini and the town of Catania, and RAF planes swept over the Aegean Sea to strafe Axis ships off Nazi-occupied Greece.

Italian headquarters listed 41 killed and 91 injured in an attack by multi-engine bombers at Catania.

Confirming previous Axis reports, Allied headquarters announced that British commandos raided Lampedusa Island, 80 miles south of Pantelleria, on Monday night, apparently as part of the "war of nerves" against invasion-worried Italy.

A communique said the commandos encountered fire from two field guns and machine-guns on the beach in Monday's attack, but suffered few casualties and withdrew after accomplishing their mission.

Other developments at a glance: RUSSIA—Moscow stresses violent air battles as prelude to 1943 summer campaign; Red armies beat off German attacks in two sectors, destroy two German infantry companies on Leningrad front.

UNREST—Yugoslav patriots battle tank-led Axis troops in Montenegro Mountains.

AIR WAR—RAF lists 874 planes lost in first five months of great Allied aerial offensive against Europe, 252 in last May.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—Australia's Prime Minister Curtin says hour near for Allied drive against Japanese.

BURMA—RAF planes bomb Japanese on upper Chindwin River; land front quiet.

Under orders from Rome, Pantelleria's bomb-dazed garrison continued to hold out in the island's volcanic hills, and an Italian broadcast, obviously seeking to bolster support on the Italian home front, said the defenders were "proudly accepting all privations and sacrifices."

Upon the garrison's refusal to surrender, Allied planes again dropped a great weight of explosives on the island yesterday, underlining Gen. Eisenhower's warning that the Italians "expect only 'bombing, bombardment and blockade' until they run up the white flag."

From the safety of un-bombed Rome, the Italian radio boasted: "As each hour goes by, we await

Nazis Admit Allied Bombings 'Serious'

STOCKHOLM, June 10 (AP)—The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Tidningen said in a dispatch today that Nazi official circles reported that Allied bombardment of German cities was having worse effects on the people of the Reich than "the invasion nerve war."

"It's a damned serious thing," Adolf Hitler's newspaper Volkischer Beobachter was quoted.

Informed military circles were said to have declared that they could no longer hide the fact that daily round-the-clock aerial strikes over Germany were "awful on the health and nerves of the people," whether bombs fell in their immediate vicinity or not.

Fair Progress For Texas Crops Cited In Report

AUSTIN, June 10—(AP)—Texas crops made fair to excellent progress in the week ended June 6, the USDA reported today.

In a review of crop conditions the agency said exceptions to the favorable outlook were north central Texas which received excessive moisture and parts of the panhandle and high plains which were exceptionally dry.

Wheat harvest started in north Texas and in the northwest plains, but peak operations were delayed by excessive moisture in these areas.

Oatman made fair to good progress during the week, but frequent rains delayed chopping and cultivation generally.

Canadian Woman Describes Work In Defense Plant

Special to The NEWS. CANADIAN, June 10—Mrs. Dana McMurray of Los Angeles is visiting her brothers J. L. Yokley and Otto Yokley, and families.

Mrs. McMurray has been a defense plant worker in California most of the past year, operating a machine which turned out bomber sites for airplanes.

In that particular plant, 38,000 persons were employed, working in three shifts, yet so perfect is the arrangement, so efficient the guards and gatesmen, so well trained the workers themselves, that only 30 minutes is required for the complete change between shifts.

Mrs. McMurray stated that, due to the multiplied numbers in the defense areas over prewar population, there had been an inconvenient shortage of meat, butter, eggs, and milk, especially from November to February. That even now, when one is lucky enough to find meat, there is little choice of cuts.

She stated that in many Los Angeles restaurants and cafes there were signs reading something like this: "Be kind to our help. We can get other customers, but we cannot get other help."

Dana Yokley McMurray was a Canadian girl, moving downstate with her parents when in her teens. She has visited relatives here many times. Her home was in Houston prior to going to California last year.

Indiana Visitors Laud Pampa's Hospitality

Letters of appreciation for Pampa's hospitality to the parents of aviation cadets graduating at Pampa Field have come by the score to the chamber of commerce, whose army hospitality committee arranges accommodations for visitors.

Usually, these letters are addressed to the chamber of commerce but today's mail brought one from Lafayette, Ind., addressed to both the chamber of commerce and this newspaper.

Claude A. Marshall and daughter of Route 1, Lafayette, Ind., close their letter, saying:

"I wish we had more people like the people in Texas."

Dated June 6, the Indians write: "I want to thank you for the hospitality shown us during our visit in Pampa during the graduation of our son and brother, Paul A. Marshall."

"I especially want to thank Mr. and Mrs. Chester Thompson, where we stayed. They sure are fine people and we met lots of other fine people while we were there. I know from what the boys in training say that they are treated the best."

SULTAN DIES
LONDON, June 10 (AP)—The death of Muley Abd-El-Aziz, 63, sultan of Morocco for eight years at the beginning of the century, was reported today in a Reuters dispatch from Tangier.

FINLAND FORGOTTEN
Three years ago it was Finland. It is now Finland forgotten.

Three years ago we were falling over each other to help little Finland—three million defending their homes against 160 million. President Roosevelt denounced Russia as a dictatorship as absolute as any in the world. House and Senate wanted not only to postpone Finland's payments on her first war debt but made it possible to loan her $5 million worth of food and clothing. Frank Knox, now Secretary of the Navy, wrote editorials about Red "cruelty and perfidy". He spoke of Finland's "Banner of Blue with its Cross of Gold. Long may it wave, ever victorious, in the prayer today in many an American heart."

That Finland is now forgotten proves that one day we are suckers for slogans, and the next day pay the bills.

Britain has now declared war on Finland; we have withdrawn our propaganda experts from the Southwest. And no doubt American tanks and planes are now being used by Russia to crush the little republic we once cheered to the skies.

Yet despite all this Finland, in the midst of a cruel war, has raked together $474,000 and paid it over to us on May 1 as interest on the loan made her in 1940! Is there anything in the world's history to compare with this deed of honor among nations?

Yet the State Department has refused to make this payment public! Apparently our propaganda experts think this is something that We The People ought not to know.

Truth is the first casualty of war. If Hitler had not turned on Russia, and Stalin were still supplying Hitler, this act of Finland would be rushed to the press wires, shouted by newsboys, and Congress and the President would have made a procession to acclaim this one brave and honest deed in a world of double-crossers.

What has Finland done to forfeit her right to be known as a nation whose word is good at a time when faith in international promises is lower than it has been in centuries? Russia, I suppose, might be offended if our State Department acknowledged that we received a payment of an honest debt. But some are beginning to wonder if the time is not approaching when we would do better if we stopped bowing and scraping to Stalin and demanded that he, too, lay it on the line, man-fashion like so we would know what's what. If Russia grabs off Finland as a prize for our helping her beat Hitler and we say nothing, Finland's honor will be greater than ours.

The State Department recently got out a book entitled "Peace and War—United States Foreign Policy—1931-1941". Secretary Hull says the book is an introduction to a record of the policies and acts by which the United States sought to promote conditions of peace and world order and to meet the world-wide dangers resulting from Japanese, German and Italian aggression. The book does not contain a syllable about Russia's aggression against Finland.

Diplomatically, Secretary Hull may be right. I have been one of his admirers in days gone by, and do not pass judgment now. However, it is plain that we are not getting the full truth about our dealing with foreign powers. For that reason we should postpone final judgment on our place in the post-war world until the war is over and we know who is then our friend or foe. And let us hope when the whistles blow and confetti fills Broadway to the brim, that Finland will be not forgotten forever.

FDA Will Hold To Hog Pledge

CHICAGO, June 10 (AP)—With the average hog price slumping below $14 a hundred pounds for the first time in a month, a representative of the Food Distribution Administration, who asked anonymously, said today the government had "every intention" of holding to its pledge to support the market at $13.75.

The government support level was announced early this year, but it has never been brought into action because, until this week, hogs have sold well above the minimum. In the first three days this week, however, prices slumped about 40 cents and many head sold yesterday at $13.80 a hundred pounds. Average price was about $13.85.

The Food Distribution Administration said the support level was an "average price." Therefore, it said, some hogs could fall below $13.75, but the average price of all hogs sold on any given day would not be permitted to slump below that point. The $13.75 figure applies only to Chicago, with the support level of other cities based upon the Chicago price.

While the FDA could buy live hogs, it would have to turn them over to packers for slaughtering, it was pointed out, as the government has no killing facilities of its own.

In that case, the FDA presumably would pay the packers a fee to cover slaughtering and dressing expenses.

A more likely method, it was said, would be an increase in purchases of meat by the FDA, acting for the military forces and lend-lease. This would bring indirect support to the hog market. But it has been known for some time that the FDA has been taking all them eat it could get, and how it could expand purchases is a problem.

TEXAN, BRIDE HONEYMOON IN EGYPT

Back in pre-war days, Second Lt. James D. McKnight of Ft. Wynn, Texas, never dreamed he'd be spending his honeymoon in Cairo—but that was before he met Huguette Cofer, 18-year-old secretary at army headquarters in Cairo. Oblivious to the curiosity of three native boys, the newlyweds chat on a park bench. The bride's home is in Helopolis, Egypt. (NEA Telephoto).

Pacific Veteran Says War At Home 'Tough'

EDINBURG, June 10 (AP)—Maj. J. Hal York, commander of a heavy bombardment squadron in the Pacific, who has flown 100,000 miles over water and 6,000 hours over land and has helped bomb the Japanese scores of times, says: "You folks at home are fighting a tough war!"

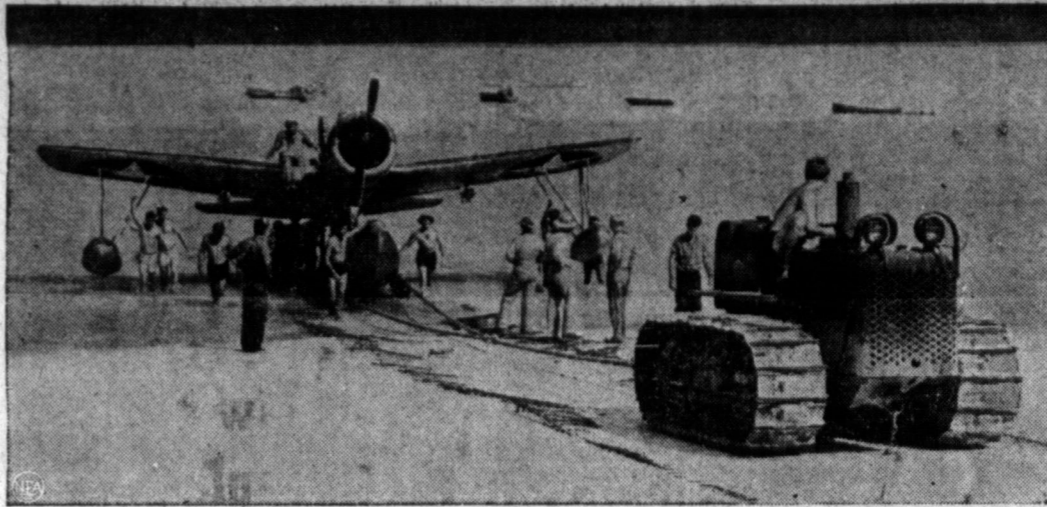

A veteran of seven months of unrelenting bombardment from bases in the South Pacific—he is now based on Guadalcanal—the major arrived home for a brief leave and planned to call for a double order of ham and eggs when he reached San Francisco, his first stop. When he got there they were having a meatless Tuesday. His first contemplated holiday when he got home to McAllen was a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico. He found wartime restrictions forbid the rental of a boat for fishing there.

He commented: "You're fighting a tough war over here."

SUCKER!

Woodall Denies Intimacy With Mrs. Dempsey

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 10 (AP)—"Mrs. Dempsey wasn't married as far as I was concerned, she was a friend," Benny Woodall, named by Jack Dempsey as a co-respondent in his divorce suit against Hannah Williams Dempsey, told the court today during heated cross-examination.

Woodall, who obviously maintained his temper with difficulty as Attorney Arthur Driscoll piled him with questions, denied that he had been intimate with Mrs. Dempsey as charged by the former heavyweight champion.

Q. "If you had slept with Mrs. Dempsey would you admit it under oath?"

A. "I wouldn't be here."

Q. "Would you admit it?"

A. "I don't know what I'd do."

Q. "You might deny it?"

A. "I would never have been here under those conditions. I have no idea what I'd do."

The former fighter and promoter, in answer to a question from Driscoll, said he might have telephoned the Dempsey apartment in New York two or three times a week as he frequently called the apartment to talk with his sister, Mrs. Jackie Griffin, who was there most of the time.

Q. "Was there any married woman you called more than once a day?"

A. "Mrs. Dempsey wasn't married as far as I was concerned. It made no difference to me. I wasn't interested in Mrs. Dempsey more than a friend. I was a friend of both Mrs. Dempsey and Mr. Dempsey."

Woodall, in response to another question, said former lightweight champion Lew Jenkins, was "an acquaintance" of Mrs. Dempsey. Jenkins also has been named a co-respondent by Dempsey.

Driscoll asked Woodall what he did for a living between fights when he acted as trainer for Jenkins.

"You don't do anything for a living between fights," Woodall replied. "Besides Jenkins would give me money anytime I needed it."

Woodall said Jenkins paid him $200 for training him for one fight and $150 for another contest, but gave him amounts up to $100 when he needed it.

Q. "It was in April 1941 that your wife was killed in Dallas (Texas) wasn't it?"

A. "I don't remember the date. That's a date I try to forget."

Q. "How did you get the news that your wife had been killed?"

A. "Babe Ritchie told me. I was out with Mrs. Dempsey at a restaurant." (Babe Ritchie wasn't further identified.)

Q. "The date was April 12, 1941, wasn't it?"

A. "It was Easter two years ago."

Woodall added that his sister obtained the money for him to go to Texas and that he borrowed more than $400 from a friend in Dallas to pay burial expenses.

Dempsey was absent from the court for the second day. He is a lieutenant commander in the coast guard and his leave expired today. His attorney explained that he hoped Dempsey would be permitted to return to court during rebuttal.

Mrs. Dempsey appeared more vivacious and interested than yesterday, when she began her efforts to refute testimony of her husband's witnesses in which they gave testimony seeking to show that she had been intimate with Woodall and Jenkins.

Hannah laughed occasionally during the heated exchanges between Driscoll and Benny. She fussed with her hair and conferred frequently with Gerald Donovan of her counsel.

Mrs. Dempsey wore a dressmaker suit of lightweight gray wool with blue silk blouse and starched white collar and cuffs. Her accessories were white gloves, red and white pumps and she carried a bright red wool sport coat and red purse.

Woodall, on the stand yesterday, testified that he "might have kissed Mrs. Dempsey on leaving or arriving on a train" but was not intimate with her.

Anti-Strike Bill Agreed Upon

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—An anti-strike bill so broad it might be used to outlaw walkouts in any war industry emerged today as a congressional challenge to labor controversies that interrupt production on the home front.

The measure goes today to a house that often has voted restrictions on organized labor only to see them languish and die in the senate.

The measure, in substance, would provide:

Authorization for the president to take over mines or plants in which a work stoppage has occurred or is threatened, outlawing strikes or lockouts in such cases.

Establishment of the War Labor Board (WLB) as a statutory agency with subpoena powers to settle disputes in all war industries.

Requirement of notice to the secretary of labor, WLB and National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) of a labor dispute, with a provision that no strike can be called until 30 days have elapsed and a majority has voted for that action on a secret ballot conducted by the NLRB.

Requirement that the WLB hold its decisions within the confines of the Labor Relations Act, a move sponsors said it designed to prevent the issuance of closed shop or union maintenance orders.

Provision for a fine up to $5,000 and a year's imprisonment for persons who instigate or conspire with others to bring about strikes in government-operated war industries.

Unique Design Of Mustang P-51 Is Responsible For Plane's Striking Success In Fierce Aerial War

The most revolutionary set of engineering ideas assembled in the framework of one airplane in the last 10 years is responsible for the phenomenal success of the P-51 Mustang, famous turret level fighter plane, according to an article in the current issue of Air Tech Magazine, published in the interests of the Army Air Force Technical Training Command.

Outlining principles behind the ship's construction, the article shows why and how the North American P-51 was able to win the distinction of being the first plane to succeed in knocking down a Focke-Wulf 190, current pride of the Luftwaffe.

"The first war plane to be built entirely from information gathered from the battlefields, the P-51 was designed to combat shock waves. It is a slim-lined, low-wing monoplane with a wingspan of about 37 feet, an overall length of 32 feet, 2 7/8 inches, and a height of 8 feet, 8 inches. It is powered by an 1150 hp. Allison engine, equipped with a ramming intake, and a 10 foot, 9 inch Curtiss electric constant-speed propeller.

"Main credit for the plane's ability to function while traveling 380 mph. at zero level goes to the unique design of its wings, the article claims.

In order to develop an airfoil which would resist shock waves and prevent destruction of the plane at limiting speeds, engineers designed a special laminar flow wing. While this type wing has had recognition, it had never before been applied to a war plane.

Although exact details about the airfoil which was perfected for this tail wheel. Armament of the P-51 Mustang varies with its use. Radio sets are placed in a unique spot—behind the pilot's seat in a series of sliding shelves, which not only hold them firmly in place, but render them accessible for inspection and repair.

Water Department To Use New Type Bill

Want to speed up the handling of your monthly water bill?

The city has adopted a duplicate plan of the telephone company for the payment of bills to the city water department, W. C. deCordova, city manager, said today.

Instead of the customer getting a statement, then coming to the city hall to make payment, he can, if he desires, have the statement sent to his bank, where it is accepted the same as a check.

The bill is paid to the city and the customer receives the statement along with his canceled checks. This procedure has been used by the telephone company for the past two or three years, the city manager explained.

In order for a customer to handle his water account this way, it is necessary that he first call at the water department and sign an order to that effect. One copy of the order is retained by the city, the other by the bank.

This method speeds up water bill payment, eliminates expense of mail and at the same time does not prevent adjustment of any possible errors. If a customer thinks the bill is too high, he still can make his plea for a refund.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

1—Card of Thanks
 Job's question, "If a man die shall he live again?" The question of every ardent Christian heart, is met by the words of Jesus: "Because I live, ye shall live also." Every death chamber is an anteroom of the infinite temple, every death hour a triumph hour of entrance through an arch of shadows to the eternal day. The grave is but the hyphen between two worlds. Death is the decree of a loving God. We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends and neighbors, and to the employees of Humble Oil Co., for the many acts of kindness, words of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father, Bert Shindell, Mrs. Bert Shindell and Margie Jean.

Cotton Things Are The Milliners Pets

With each new cut in the supply of felts, fabrics and straw milliners have to work with, they seem to generate just that much more ingenuity in turning out the smartest, gayest and most flattering hats to be had.

Cotton is their pet this season, and with such low-cost fabrics as denim, pillow ticking, pique, organza and gingham, milliners are making the most expensive-looking and exciting models in their summer lines.

Gay gingham and striped denim matchmats—hats with bags, gloves or belts of the same fabric—are proving to be the most popular of the cotton clan, for they have a way of making that one navy blue or black summer sheer look like a never-ending wardrobe.

Especially chic is a petite and pert sailor of pink and white striped denim, with a ruffled brim and open crown banded both inside and outside with a bit of black-ribbon. And another model made of the same material is fashioned after the so-becoming sunbonnet of grandma's day, and has a matching oversized envelope bag.

Up till now Uncle Sam has let well enough alone with millinery, but come Fall he may have something to say about just how big their brims may be, and how much material may go into them. So, if you've always wanted to wear a cartwheel or skimmer, now's the time to indulge that desire.

One of the prettiest picture hats of this sort is a shallow-crowned, scoop-brimmed cartwheel of white bird's-eye pique trimmed with rick rack braid, which not only flatteringly frames the face and pampers the pompadour, but stays "put" when a gust of wind comes along.

For a bit more formal wear there are doll-sized sailors of layer upon layer of starched organdie or shirred cotton lace, which are as light and airy as whipped cream. Team them up with lingerie blouses, gilets or collar and cuff sets for dainty, feminine effect.

And for those who want just an "excuse" for a hat, there is that little bit of nonsense—the baby bonnet. Shaped to hug the head and skirt the pompadour, it can be worn as natural with cotton frocks, as you would a beanie, or dressed up with jeweled clips or bunches of colored imitation flowers.

Daily Services Are Held At Central Church Of Christ

In evangelistic services conducted daily at the Central Church of Christ, the Rev. Mr. Floy E. Wallace told his audience Wednesday evening of the fall of man. He said: "Man had to forfeit all the happiness of the Edenic home. Later God sent a flood to cover the earth destroying every person, with the exception of those that obeyed God's word."

Rev. Wallace made several comparisons between the salvation of men in biblical days, with the salvation of present day man. There was to them the day of battle, and today there are many obstacles which we must overcome before complete and final victory is ours. The public is invited to attend daily services, and to tune in on KPND.

"Off Duty" Dresses Are Summer Favorites

By DEE LOWRANCE
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—Bright new street-length dresses, designed for use when work isn't on the schedule, give a welcome change from suits, plain workaday dresses and uniforms. They were dubbed "off-duty" fashions, and the name is carrying over into all rest-time and play-time clothes.

Biggest "off-duty" news is color—Bright, brash and beautiful. Novel contrasts have been worked out, with applique motifs a favorite of both designers and buyers. In the main, skirts are as full as WPB permits, with all emphasis on figure-accenting. It's the old femininity touch again.

An excellent illustration is the dress worn by Marguerite Chapman, featured in "Destroyer." The red blouse and separate skirt are of spun rayon, with gay applique flowers in white felt and green felt leaves. Smart contrast is achieved by a white felt vest on which is applied a red felt flower and green leaves.

Unusual new prints are runners-up to applique decoration among the new play frocks. They are generally geometric rather than floral, with stripes and dots in the foreground of the picture.

An interesting combination of the two is seen in a dirndl-style jumper dress, worn over a plain white blouse, and modeled by Betty Rhodes, whom you'll see in "Salute for Three." The body of the dress is made of gold crepe, coin-dotted all over in red, green and white. The same colors are used, in the form of Brilliant Roman stripes, to make a deep border around the bottom of the skirt.

Czech Guerrillas Asked To Fight

LONDON, June 10—The Czech-Slovak government in exile broadcast an appeal today to patriots conducting guerrilla warfare in the homeland to increase their struggles "so as to hasten the fall of the Nazi regime."

The occasion was the first anniversary of the destruction of Lidice by the Germans, but it also coincided with the reported arrival in Prague of Gauleiter Fritz Sauckel, who was said to be disturbed over Czech resistance to Nazi labor mobilization.

HOME FRONT FORECAST

By BETTY MacDONALD
NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington, June 9—Here's good news for the home front. Several government agencies, together with the Red Cross and WPB's Beverage and Tobacco Division, have worked out a system for relatives and friends to send cigars, cigarettes, smoking and chewing tobacco to U.S. war prisoners in Germany and Italy.

Every sixty days, the war Department will issue two tobacco labels to next-of-kin of each identified war prisoner and civilian internee. The next-of-kin or friend, (the labels are transferable) can forward them to a tobacco manufacturer, along with a money order for the tobacco, and the tobacco will be mailed, postage and tax free, to Europe. Each label is good for three cartons of cigarettes, or twelve 2-ounce packages of smoking tobacco, 100 cigars or approximately 24 ounces of chewing tobacco.

The plan, because communication facilities are not available, does NOT

SAVING THEIR SKINS

A boon to gals in war industries is a new "insulation" cream designed to prevent embedded grime. It's greaseless, like a powder base, and keeps complexions feminine despite masculine jobs.

ODDS AND ENDS

Despite more careful cooking, there's still a lot of fat being turned out into "Axis grease" by thrifty American housewives, according to salvage figures which show a sharp upturn in fats collections. Home-owners are urged by WPB to repair rather than replace, their precious inner-spring mattresses. Inner spring types aren't being made any more, and are being replaced by cotton padded mattresses, sparse of ticking and design, but practical.

Barrels For Scrap Collection Opposed

Placing barrels around town for the collection of scrap metal would only be a fire hazard, W. C. de Cordova, city manager, said today in response to an idea proposed by a Pampa woman.

He said the plan had been used in El Paso and in Stillwater, Okla., and had resulted in the collection of more trash than metal as residents used the barrels to deposit cigar butts, paper and matches, and had not been satisfactory.

Last year the ex-service men of Pampa used metal drums to collect copper, brass and bronze, but it required vigilance to keep the collection intact and the committee had to keep a constant check on the containers.

In Pampa this means that these apartments, which will be unfurnished and of the efficiency type, will be rented only to civilian employees of Pampa Field or to employees of the ordinance division of the Cabot companies. The project to obtain these housing units started last January and resulted from work done by the chamber of commerce housing committee, of which J. W. Members of the housing committee, besides Chairman German, are Henry Ellis, Charles Cook, R. G. (Dick) Hughes, Bob Robinson, and L. H. Johnson.

However, it was quite possible that instead of a direct assault, the Allied command might have decided to make Pantelleria the subject of an experiment by blasting it into submission from the sky and sea. The effect would be a formidable boomerang to any hopes Rome might have a making the island an "Italian Corregidor," emulating Gen. Douglas MacArthur's heroic stand in the Philippines, and would emphasize the fate in store for Italy herself.

On the Russian front, Soviet headquarters reported that the Red armies had crushed two more German feeler attacks as the Nazis continued to probe Russian defenses along the entire 1,500-mile battle line.

The latest German thrusts, foreshadowing the imminence of long-expected summer battles, centered around Lischansk on the Donets River and in the Smolensk sector. Hitler's high command again reported Russian sea-borne movements against the east coast of the Sea of Azov, north of Kerch Strait, and declared that German planes destroyed 16 more Soviet landing boats yesterday.

(Continued From Page 1) the central Pennsylvania group, formerly reported to the WLB their inability to reach an agreement on the miners' underground travel pay demand and the other unresolved issues referred back to collective bargaining by the board on May 25.

The piecemeal pact was affirmed last night by both Lewis and Charles O'Neill, spokesman for northern operators, who in this case was acting only for the central Pennsylvania group which operates in the Clearfield Belt.

Lewis said he was ready to offer the same terms to the other operators employing 450,000 men. The separate agreement must be approved by the war labor board.

Mosquito Planes Receive Plywood From U. S. Plant

OSHKOSH, Wis., June 10 (AP)—The birth of British Mosquito bombers in an Oshkosh woodworking plant was disclosed today.

Venerer from the finest birch and maple trees in northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan moves out of this factory direct to England where it becomes wings and fuselages for the speedy planes wreaking havoc on Hitler's Europe.

Simultaneously the company, Fluswood, Inc., announced production of a new plywood, half the weight of aluminum but stronger than many metals, used for propellers and other undisclosed wood parts of "Mosquitos."

Until last July the factory was an abandoned relic. Rehabilitated, it gave Ooshkosh a new 100 per cent industry employing several hundred persons of whom 85 per cent are women. But Dr. Monte M. Wladaver, chief laboratory technician, said the post-war uses of the resin impregnated, heat and pressure treated plywood are virtually unlimited.

FLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE—I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands...

No More Gertie From Bizerte Nothing, says the more or less official song, will stop the Army Air Corps. Sure, and that's cheering news...

Atlantic City headquarters, you remember, barred these two famous marching songs along with "Roll Out the Barrel," "I've Been Working on the Railroad," "How Dry I Am," "Oh, My Feet Hurt," "When the War Is Over" and "The Moron Song."

You remember some of the verses from "Mademoiselle From Armentieres," otherwise known as "Hinky Dinky Parley-Voo." Of course you do. We can't print them, anyway—no more than some of the reasons why "Around Her Neck She Wore a Yellow Ribbon."

These were real grass-roots soldier songs. Presumably they started from spotless Purty League lines, but they didn't stay clean long after the boys, when chasing rats, searching for body lice and whipping Germans, dressed them up to take their minds off their more pressing physical miseries.

Don't bet a plugged penny that the fellows won't find ways of making something interesting out of some of the new offerings. But honestly, now, what would you do if you were somewhere in North Africa, or on Guadalcanal, or perhaps in the Balkans or Norway or France or Germany, plodding wearily along a road in full battle equipment...

By the way, do you know any good new verses for "Mademoiselle From Armentieres"? The war is going to move into France pretty soon.

The Nation's Press EXPERTS FIRST (The Daily Oklahoman)

Borrowing one of Hitler's pet ideas the Hot Springs' 2400-pint conference now proposes that all our economic woes be cured by the simple process of moving people by the million from their chosen locations to sites chosen for them by a totalitarian government. There is nothing new in this proposal; it has been a pet scheme of the Nazi for 10 these several years.

Up to a given point this proposal has decided merit and up to a given point we are for it as strongly as a barroom brawl. If the enforced migration were to begin with the professional planners and be limited to those who are forever trying to make a name for themselves in their own image, we could halt the proposal as sufficient cause for a seven-year jubilee. By all means move the planners to some available Matanuska and there let them build for world consideration the kind of world they are forever trying to ram down the throats of everybody else.

There is widely extended and thinly populated Alaska fairly yawning and yearning for the reception of the bleeding hearts. Turn them loose in Alaska and let them fashion the kind of world they want. Give them a subsidy to support them, let them to their own efforts. Feed them and clothe them and house them and pay them, for national deliverance from the barrages of their pipe dreams would be cheap at any price.

FAREWELL TO THE REPUBLIC? (The New York News)

It may be, as some people believe, that our republic is gone, anyway, and that hereafter we can do no more than make pious gestures, indicating that we wish we still had a republic.

Certainly American democracy has taken a heavy blow in recent years from the gradual shrinkage of the middle class' total wealth and the resulting loss of its political voice. Small businessmen—service station operators, small storekeepers, salesmen, etc.—were being slowly wrung out before the war with practically no help from leading New Dealers beyond hollow cries of sympathy; and now the war has speeded up the process.

The middle class has been, if not the backbone, at least the balance wheel, of our democratic system. If it is ground to bits by the war and cannot be reassembled afterward, our social-economic system will have changed fundamentally, no matter what we may call it.

Perpetual President? Time will answer that question, however. Meanwhile, there is this matter of somehow limiting future U. S. Presidents to two terms and no more.

We think it should be done, and that our first experiment in scrapping the no-third-term tradition has proved that it should be done. Now that that tradition has been broken once, a standing temptation has been set for all future Presidents to try to break it "again, and again, and again." This temptation can be removed only by an amendment putting into the Constitution a flat decree that no President shall have more than two terms.

There is a good deal of talk about defeating Mr. Roosevelt via a coalition of Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats next year, by nominating a ticket such as, for instance, Gov. Bricker of Ohio for President and Senator Byrd of Virginia for Vice President. Of that, more when and if it comes to a head. Meanwhile we hope some kind of two-term amendment gets into the Constitution somehow, and soon.

"REMORSELESSLY ARMED WITH RIGHTFOUSNESS"

I have just been reading a little book, "Give Me Liberty," by Rose Wilder Lane. I wish every person in the United States would read it. It is only 62 pages. She says she nearly became a Communist; that it is only by accident that she did not become a Communist. Then she gives the usual arguments for collective bargaining and a collectivist state, how the profits dry up the purchasing power of the workers; that all the wealth goes into the hands of the few and the workers are thus out of work. She does not take the speed to directly answer these arguments, but she does show as clearly as any book I have ever read how it is impossible to have individual freedom and have the state do our economic planning. She recites some of her experiences in Russia. She points out that in Russia, the people controlled the national wealth, but let her speak:

"That is to say, in actual fact a sincere and extremely able and intelligent man was in power, devoted to the stuporous task of reducing multitudes of human beings to efficient economic order, for what this man and his followers most justly believed to be the ultimate material welfare of those multitudes."

"And what I saw was not an extension of human freedom, but the establishment of tyranny on a new, widely extended and deeper base. 'The historical novelty in the Soviet government is its motive. City governments have existed to keep peace among their subjects, or to amass money from them, or to use them in trade and war for the glory of the men governing them. But the Soviet government exists to do good to its people, whether they like or not."

"And I felt that, of all the tyrannies to which man has been subject, that tyranny would be the most ruthless and the most agonizing to bear. There is some refuge for freedom under other tyrannies, since they are less thorough and not so remorselessly armed with righteousness. But from benevolence in economic power I could see no refuge whatever."

"Every report I have since heard from the Soviet Union has confirmed this opinion, and I believe that Communists best understand what is happening there. 'For nineteen years (the book was written in 1936), the men who rule that country have toiled prodigiously to create precisely the society we have known since the beginning of time: a society in which insecurity, poverty, economic inequality, shall be impossible."

"To that end they have destroyed personal freedom; freedom of movement, of choice of work, freedom of self-expression in ways of life, freedom of speech, freedom of conscience. 'Given their aim, I do not see how they could have done otherwise. No man can so control the earth and the sea, making goods from assembled raw materials, and their storing, exchanging, transporting, distributing and consuming by vast multitudes of human beings, are activities so intricately inter-related and interdependent that efficient control of any part of them demands control of the whole. No man can so control the multitudes of men without compulsion, and that compulsion must increase."

"It must increase because human beings are naturally diverse. It is the nature of men to do the same thing in different ways, to waste time and energy in altering the shapes of things and experiments, in making mistakes and depart from the past in an infinite variety of directions. Plants and animals repeat routine, but men who are not restrained will go into the future like explorers into a new country, and exploration is always wasteful. Great numbers of explorers accomplish nothing and many are lost."

"Economic compulsion is, therefore, constantly threatened by human willfulness. It must constantly overcome that willfulness, crush all impulses of egotism and independence, destroy variety of human desires and behavior. Centralized economic power endeavoring to plan and to control the economic processes of a modern nation is under a necessity either to fail, or to tend to become absolute power in every province of human life."

"It doesn't matter what happens to individuals, the communists say. 'Individuals don't matter. The only thing that matters is the collectivist State.'

"The Communist hope of economic equality in the Soviet Union rests upon the death of all men and women who are individuals. 'This does not seem so incredible to me as it once did. There may yet be a human bee-swarm in Russia. It would not be unique in history; there was a Sparta."

"There was Sparta, unchanging in its rigid forms of standardized behavior and thought until it was destroyed from without. 'We see in our own country the first stages of what she has pictured in Russia. Unless we about-face, we as this column has repeatedly pointed out, will get so weak from centralized power that some government from without will destroy us, as Athens destroyed Sparta."

It is much better that we develop men by the Christian, democratic way than that we develop a swarm of bees that are only interested in being fed and clothed. 'Yes, the worst tyrants are those who want to control us for our own good and are remorselessly armed with their personal idea of righteousness."

TRUTH SEEKERS AND BLUFFERS

The Golden Rule does not seem to govern both truth seekers and bluffers. A truth seeker always wants other people to point out his errors. He is under obligations to those people who do it. But this Golden Rule does not apply to bluffers. When their errors are pointed out, they become offended.

Of course, their rule is a personal rule and nothing that does not temporarily benefit them satisfies them.

We need more than a personal rule. We need impersonal rules in order to have peace, tranquility, happiness and material and spiritual development.

Gasoline Shortage When there is a particularly serious shortage of gasoline on the Home Front, here are some thoughts:

A heavy bomber burns 200 gallons of gasoline, flying 250 miles in an hour. A medium tank goes only two miles on a gallon, so that the tanks in a mechanized division use more than 10,000 gallons to move slightly more than 100 miles. Although a jeep will go around 16 miles on a gallon, the average army vehicle—from tank to jeep and including everything between—requires a gallon for every six or seven miles. A destroyer would need 214,000 gallons of fuel oil for a straight line trip from New York to Casablanca—only they can't go straight.

All this must be transported from wells to the east coast and then to the war front, using facilities which otherwise would handle gasoline for Sunday drivers in the East.

RACIAL—Although Cordell Hull now handles great events which will affect future generations throughout the world, the Capitol Hill veteran has not lost his political cunning. Here is the inside story of how he saved his Reciprocal Trade Agreements program from "crippling" amendments that might have destroyed the President's prestige at the peace table:

Northern Republican Senators from industrial areas which dislike the Roosevelt-Hull tariff policy cooked up a backstage deal with members from below the Mason and Dixon's line. The Yankees agreed to vote against the Anti-Poll Tax bill, recently passed by the House if certain Southern members would support their proposed changes in the commercial treaties. The dicker was signed and sealed before somebody tipped off the Secretary of State about the logrolling.

He immediately got busy on the phone, dropping diplomatic affairs for the moment. The Tennesseean demonstrated that he wields tremendous influence in both legislative bodies. The plantation bloc under his persuasion ran out on their Massachusetts-New York-New Jersey-Pennsylvania colleagues and the demands for limitations on White House authority were defeated.

Hannah Claims Illness During Apartment Raid

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 10 (AP)—Testimony that Mrs. Jack Dempsey was sick in bed last Nov. 22 when a raiding party surprised her and Benny Woodall in her Los Angeles apartment was presented in a deposition Wednesday as Mrs. Dempsey answered her husband's suit for divorce.

Mrs. Jackie Griffin, a sister of Woodall, a fight trainer whom Dempsey had named a co-respondent, said in the deposition that the raiding party found only Benny and Hannah there because Mrs. Griffin had been called away by the illness of one of Woodall's daughters.

Mrs. Griffin said that Mrs. Dempsey suggested that Woodall leave with her sister, saying, "you and Benny go on, I'll be all right." "I told Benny, 'You'd better stay till Dot comes home,'" Mrs. Griffin said. She referred to Dorothy Gomez, Hannah's sister who she said left the apartment earlier.

Sometimes after she returned to her own apartment, Mrs. Griffin said Woodall and Mrs. Dempsey came to her home. "Benny had blood on him, and Hannah fell into my arms, hysterical," she said.

She quoted her brother as saying, "I'm not hurt," but she said that when he took off his coat she saw blood on his shirt and said he had been cut on the face and shoulders.

"Hannah said Jack didn't touch her. She was all right," Mrs. Griffin said. Witnesses testified previously that Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion and now a lieutenant commander in the coast guard, threw Woodall over his back when he saw him in the apartment. Another witness said that Dempsey hit Woodall twice.

Escaped Convict Is Recaptured

CLEBURNE, June 10 (AP)—Sheriff Oran Smith said Johnson County Attorney Jewel Baldwin was preparing several felony complaints today against Robert McEachern, 23, of Lubbock, who was captured yesterday.

A fugitive from a repressive state prison farm, for nine days, McEachern was caught when a posse and bloodhounds closed in on him in the brush country of this county between Egan and Keene. Smith said McEachern, who had been serving a life term, was unarmed and did not offer resistance when he was apprehended. He was sent to prison from Fort Bend county on a slaying conviction, Sheriff Smith said. Since his escape, officers have been seeking a man who held up a firing station at Alvarado, kidnaped a farmer and took a car from several women.

Rubber Strike Repercussions

By PETER EDSON Pampa News Washington Correspondent

It is recognized doctrine and practice of organized labor to make gains while business is good. Employees can't be expected to shut out while business is in the red or dangerously near to it. But when business is in the black, then is the time to ask for increases with every expectation of getting results and keeping them. That is what has happened in every major industry during this war period—in steel, auto, aircraft or what have you. It is happening right now in coal. It stands a good chance of happening in railroads.

In the case of the Akron rubber workers, however, it is perhaps permissible to raise the question of whether labor can't be too smart for its own good, can't push its war, boomtime demands to such a point that it will in the long run work to its own disadvantage. From the Washington angles on the story, this is definitely the prospect in sight.

You have to recall some of the recent Akron rubber history to get this one in correct focus. To relieve depression unemployment distress in Akron, a "share-the-work" program was instituted in 1930. It included provision for a six-hour day and at one plant—Goodrich—a maximum 1800-hour work year. From 1934 to 1937 employment in the industry was between 37,000 and 39,000, all working on the basic six-hour day. 1936 and 1937 were pretty fair years. Carrying out this idea that labor makes its greatest advances in good times, those were the years that marked the rise of the C. I. O. United Rubber Workers' Union and the consolidation of the social gains made during the depression.

EXODUS FROM AKRON SUCCESS of the union had an unusual effect on the industry. Wanting to insure a more continuous flow of production, not wanting all their rubber eggs in the Akron basket where labor disturbances were upsetting the basket too often, some of the rubber companies began a decentralization of their industry and moved plants out of town to find lower wages and better working conditions. There had been some decentralization of the industry in the 1920's, but this second exodus in 1937 left a good many of the rubber workers in a bad way. Employment dropped to an all-time low of around 26,000.

But the six-hour day and the five-day week, meaning the 30-hour work week, hung on. The Good year strike in 1939 was largely caused by fear that the companies were moving toward the 40-hour week. It was not until war demands really took hold that the industry was able to move away from the short week.

At Goodrich it was raised from 30 to 36 hours, finally to 40 hours, but time and a half is paid for all work over 36 hours a week, and the average work week still under 45 hours. At other plants, the basic week is 40 hours, overtime beginning after the 40th hour, with an average 48-hour week.

Following the accepted labor dogma of making gains while business is good, however, Akron rubber workers put in their demands for further increases in basic wage rates. But take a look at the long range implications of these demands.

During this year we will double the size of our fleet. We are building merchant ships four times as fast as they are being sunk. We are girding ourselves not for a single attack on a single front, but for many attacks on many fronts. —War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes.

There is only one hope of getting to Berlin without the slaughter which the land battles of the last war entailed. And that is by paralysis of German war power by the bomber command. —British Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair.

Today's War Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Writer

Whether the volcanic island fortress of Pantelleria has been occupied by Allied forces, as is rather vaguely reported in some quarters in London, the fact remains that the preliminaries to invasion not only of this small island but of Europe as whole already are under way.

Just as in the case of an offensive by an army on land, intensive bombardment of enemy positions precedes the zero hour when the men swarm "over the top."

The "liberties" are likely to be much greater in amphibious operations than in attacks carried out entirely on land. Landing operations may entail a terrible loss of life, ships and material unless most careful preparations are made.

Probably the Prime Minister doesn't know when the major action will take place. It must depend on developments. It might come quickly and it might drag on for months.

Probably a great deal will depend on what happens along the Russian front. If Hitler should launch a great offensive suddenly, that might easily send the Allied invasion machine into high gear. While the Allied strategy is directed along very certain lines, the hour to hour tactics of the fighting front must be controlled by circumstances.

Pantelleria stands right in the middle of the narrow channel between Sicily and the African mainland. It must be knocked out before Allied shipping can operate freely in those waters for the larger operations. Lampedusa, not far from Pantelleria, also is a thorn in the side of the water-borne traffic.

The great islands of Sicily and Sardinia are a particular menace to the narrow ship lane which runs between Sicily and Tunisia. In considering the question of time required for major amphibious operations, we mustn't overlook the vastness of the preparations required. It takes a huge fleet to move a moderate sized army to the scene of action, and keep it supplied with munitions and food. It also demands great aerial and naval support.

here is whether it isn't possible to force too much of a gain, spread the wage differential between Akron and other cities too much, force more of these rubber factories to get out of town where the labor is cheaper, and so put the rubber manufacturing capital of the world back into another period of despond.

What the previous depression did to Akron, the inhabitants still make a lot of money, but the issue member with a shudder.

Spend a Day With Army Air Field Private

One of the most popular members of the 328th Aviation Squadron, composed of colored soldiers at Pampa Army Air Field, is Private William H. Cottman, 19, a former resident of Chester, Pennsylvania.

Prior to entering the army in February of this year, Cottman was employed by the Sinclair Oil Refinery in Chester, having the job of an oil checker—that is, the checking of vats of oil while in the process of refinement to see if they were too hot or too cold, and to pour the proper amount of sulphur in the oil.

Cottman, who was rejected the first time he tried to volunteer for armed forces, because of his age, was accepted for enlistment on February 3, 1943.

A big hit with audiences recently at Pampa Field's "G. I. Varieties" show with his tap dancing, Cottman says, "I like tap dancing, but when I'm home, I'm strictly a jitterbug!"

On the question of marriage, Cottman, who is single, replied, "I think getting married is a good idea for those that like it, but I don't want to get married till I get around a little more." He answers to the nicknames of "Pint Size Soldier," "Shorty," and "The Pet of the 328th."

Before accepting employment with the Sinclair Refining Company, Private Cottman served six months with the Civilian Conservation Corps, up in the Allegheny Mountains in Pennsylvania, where he had various duties which included camp carpenter, miller, Assistant Educational Advisor, library aid, and orderly for the lieutenant.

Cottman, who is 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 132 pounds, considers boxing and horse-back riding his favorite sports. He has boxed since he was twelve years old, fighting in the 112 pound class. He received his boxing training at the Central Boys' Club at Chester.

"Shorty," who has been in the 328th Squadron for about three and a half months, the "Salesman" for the organization—not a "high pressure" salesman for stock or various products, whose values rise and fall, but a salesman advancing the purchases of United States War Bonds.

It is his job to see that every man is contacted and given a "pet talk" about the importance of buying all the bonds he can afford," says Cottman. "They are a safe investment and are something worth having after this war is over."

He recently sold 21 bonds in two days and had his name mentioned in the Sunday Squadron Column of The Pampa News for that feat. Cottman has two brothers in the service, stationed at Camp Dix, New Jersey, and is looking forward to a furlough, which will start June 2.

"Shorty," "Pint Size Soldier," "The Pet of the 328th," or just Private William Henry Cottman, the tap-dancing bond salesman has proved himself well-known and liked, not only in his own squadron, but over the whole field.

Foss Promoted To Marine Major

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—To Joe Foss' other honors has been added a promotion to major in the Marine Corps, the Navy reported today.

The 28-year-old flier, whose home is at Sioux Falls, S. D., recently returned from Guadalcanal Island where he shot down 26 Japanese planes. This made him America's number one ace of the year with a record tying that of Eddie Rickenbacker in the previous World War.

For his feat Foss first was awarded the Navy Cross. Then President Roosevelt gave him the Congressional Medal of Honor. Now he has been promoted from captain to major.

Parachutes Are Vital In War Against Axis

Parachutes will play an important role in the coming invasion of Europe.

Parachutes have been frequently used in North Africa and the Solomon to drop men, food and equipment behind enemy lines. Parachutes have been employed to obtain meteorological information. Parachute flares are used to light up enemy targets.

Lt. Colonel Robert M. Bacher, commanding Pantex Ordnance Plant, one of the field establishments of the ordnance department, army service forces, revealed today that parachutes are now being used in conjunction with fragmentation bombs.

Block busters plunge to earth at maximum speed to blast enemy industrial, railroad, water power and port facilities. The parachute bomb is used for special missions. It drifts down slowly to explode accurately at any desired distance above the ground.

A cloud of fragmentation bombs... a particularly demoralizing effect upon the enemy.

Army ordnance parachutes were originally made of high tenacity rayon. But this material entered the critical class and became increasingly difficult to obtain. There was not enough of it to supply all branches of the army.

Ordnance engineers worked out a solution. Numerous field tests showed that semi-high tenacity rayon could be used satisfactorily. A serious bottleneck was therefore broken. Approximately twelve million pounds of high tenacity rayon was made available for other vital military uses. At the same time, by using a 56-inch loom, savings of material made it possible to manufacture an additional 92,000 parachutes for 1943.

This summer, our enemies will be acutely sky-conscious. They will undoubtedly see strange clouds, strange clusters of deadly parachute fragmentation bombs.

They Call It Pacific

by CLARK LEE

"Hirohito's Boys Will Die Where They Land"

Chapter 10

IN addition to their landings in Northern Luzon, the Japanese put troops ashore at Legaspi, Mauban and Antimonan on the south and east of Manila. Our own forces there were very small, they were quickly overwhelmed and the Japs pressed on toward the capital.

By then it was obvious that unless we had some planes, we could not win, and on December 22nd I determined to go up north to Clark Field and investigate for myself whether or not we still had an Air Force. I still thought we did—despite what had happened on the first day of the war—and couldn't understand why it wasn't attacking the Japanese transports and landing parties.

I arranged with a Spanish-Filipino university graduate in his early twenties, whom I shall call Carlos, that he drive me out in his automobile, a fairly new Ford sedan that was in good shape. He wanted to see the war and asked only money for gasoline. A Filipino reporter for Juan thought he wanted to come along too.

I went to USAFFE headquarters to pick up the morning communiqué before starting out. The communiqué was brief and startling. It said that an enemy flotilla of eighty transports and warships had been sighted early that morning off Lingayen Gulf, headed for the shore. Everybody breathed a little faster. We ran for our ears and rushed for the wireless offices to get off urgent messages to New York. But first I had a word with Diller.

In my story I reported that the Army made it clear "there was no doubt this was the beginning of Japan's major drive on the Philippines."

I WENT up to our office and told Ray Cronin, "The Japs aren't going to by-pass this flank after all."

"Well, at least," Cronin said, "they are hitting us where we are most ready for them. Our defense plan has been prepared for years. I understand that the south shore of Lingayen Gulf is strongly protected with barbed wire, trenches, and heavy field artillery. We have a lot of tanks at Stotsenberg. It is a defense in depth."

I said, "I'm going up to Clark Field anyway and have a look at our Air Force if any, and try to find out what chance we have of stopping them. If we don't have any planes left, we haven't got a home in hell."

Carlos and Juan and I finally got away shortly after noon. Just as we stepped into the car the air alarm sounded. We debated momentarily whether to stay and cover the raid or get going. We decided to go on. We drove out Rizal Avenue at fifty miles an hour, passing through the horse-drawn vehicles which had pulled over to the side of the street, and left the waiting siren behind. We saw the dive bombers plunging low over Zablan Field and then circling in straggling runs.

The Japs were wasting bombs and bullets, because as we already knew there were no planes left at Zablan.

Manila ended abruptly, except for scattered homes and small factories. We stopped outside the city and fastened a big cardboard placard with the word "PRESS" to the radiator with adhesive tape. But the wind soon blew the tape loose and we didn't bother to put it on again. The road headed straight north, through level rice fields. Up on the right loomed Mt. Arayat, with the mountains of Zambales on the left. That was the country of the tiny Negritos, whose king had brought in three trussed-up Japanese aviators to Stotsenberg a few days before and had sworn a blood feud against the enemy.

THOSE mountains looked reassuring. "The Japs can't land on the west coast there and climb over those mountains," I said. "They'll have to come right down the middle from Lingayen, through this flat country and the plains of Pampanga Province, and squarely into our defenses."

The Filipinos along the road had heard news of the landing at Lingayen and they apparently thought we were reinforcements for the front, because they waved at us and held up their hands, with their first two fingers separated in the V-for-Victory sign.

There were Filipino sentries every few miles along the road and air raid wardens in each village. Numerous times they stopped us by blowing whistles, and we got under the trees or sheltered in ditches as Jap planes passed overhead. The Japs strated various parts of the road throughout the day, but we missed all the attacks.

In an hour and a half we reached Tarlac, capital of Tarlac Province and the biggest Luzon city north of Manila. We drove down the wide main street and I telephoned Cronin from the Tarlac exchange. All the other public phones along the road had been closed and the buildings in Tarlac, like those in the villages, were boarded and closed.

THE telephone lines to the north have been cut but I'm going on up," I told Ray. "You probably won't hear from me for a few days but I'll get the story in as soon as possible. Where we will depend on how things look ahead. We'll probably spend the night in Baguio. I've always wanted to see it."

"Okay, but you better look out," Ray said. "Baguio is past our extreme right flank. Army communications seem to have broken down and we have no news here up to now."

We drove on, expecting momentarily to come to our third lines. I expected to see trenches like those in France in World War I. But there were no lines and only a few sentries. One of them stopped us and we showed him our press cards and went on, wondering now when we would come to our second line.

Cars from the north were speeding down the road. We saw one that had stopped to repair a flat tire and went over to talk. An American woman, with a baby in her arms, was weeping. "We went up to Baguio when the war started," she said, "thinking we would be safe. But they have been bombing all around us. Last night we heard the noise of big guns, over at Lingayen Gulf, all night long. This morning the Japs bombed Camp John Hay at Baguio again. It seems to be surrounded. What shall we do?" I advised her husband to keep going until he got to Manila.

Trucks were loaded with beds and chairs and many people who could crowd aboard. Filipino families told us they had seen the Jap ships in Lingayen Gulf that morning, and that many people had been killed in Lingayen City and the other towns along the south shore. We reassured them. "Our army is fighting in the west. Within a short time you will be back in your homes."

Approaching the gulf at about five in the afternoon we reached a fork in the road. The left-hand road led out to Da Moris, four miles away from Lingayen Gulf. The right-hand one went to Baguio. We could see the waters of the Gulf, but no ships. The Japs were further over to the west. An American soldier rode up and stomped his motorcycle.

"Those Japs are pretty smart," he said. "They made a feint at landing on the south shore of Lingayen, where we have strong defenses. Then they sent their main forces along the eastern beach from Da Moris, over here to Baugang, which is about twenty miles north. The Twenty-Sixth Cavalry is fighting them a couple of miles up this left-hand road. He advised us to turn back and then rode on, slowly, toward the fighting. We had about two hours of daylight left and had to decide fast.

Juan wanted to take the soldier's advice. Carlos was neutral. "Let's go on up to Baguio, where headquarters for this area are located," I said, "and find out what the score is. I want to see Baguio, and this might be my last chance. We'll have a good sleep in the cool air, and get going in the morning."

Juan objected. "But the Japs may cut this road in the night. I said, "Hell, amigo, they are fighting the American Army now and the American Army will hold them on the beach forever. Hirohito's boys will die where they land."

Aviation Cadet Drive Pushed By Air Forces

A chance to get into action fast and hit the enemy hard is being offered men between the ages of 18 and 26 during the month of June, according to Lt. E. K. Shelby, Pampa Army Air Field cadet recruiting officer. This month, the air forces is putting on an intensive nationwide campaign to enlist men for aviation cadet training.

Many inquiries regarding the qualifications for enlistment have been received at Pampa Field headquarters, both from enlisted men and civilians interested in flying against Hitler, Tojo and Mussolini. According to Lt. Shelby, soldiers stationed at the field should get their application forms and other particulars at their squadron orderly rooms. This applies to men who have previously been eliminated from pilot training and wish a chance to go back as bombardiers or navigators. These eliminations may make application regardless of previous qualifying scores, such applications being referred to air forces officials in Washington for action. Civilian young men between 18 and 26, who have not been notified of induction into the army under selective service, may report to Lt. Shelby's office at Pampa Field, take the cadet mental and physical examinations and should they qualify, may apply for air crew training through selective service. The same is true of young men 17 years of age, although these successful applicants will not be called for training as future pilots, bombardiers and navigators until they are 18.

Determined to produce thousands of new flyers each year, army air forces schools have cut down to a few weeks the waiting period between application for air crew training and action on such applications.

Applicants receive physical and mental examinations, the latter testing an individual's aptitude and "horse sense" rather than formal education, since formal educational requirements have been waived in the new and stepped-up program.

Our problem is still one of great distances in the Pacific area. Japan, on the other hand has reached the point where she is consolidating her gains. Japan might be willing to rest on her accumulation of resources and not attempt to extend her conquests any further. In that case her strategic policy would be to wait until we had worn ourselves out and try to negotiate a favorable peace. Should such a peace be granted her, by any chance, her ambitions would again inspire her to further conquests. We would then face the problem anew of defeating her under far more difficult conditions.

Today on the Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELE

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Scratch your head over the new tax plan but don't let it make you overlook what the War Labor Board has just said:

Henceforth for wage earners: No more than two merit raises or four automatic increases a year. The limits are tight.

This was a one-two punch on your pocketbook to stun inflation: The new tax takes money out of your pay envelope before you get it; the WLB puts a limit on the money going into the envelope before the tax takes.

Meanwhile the WLB tells the boss: Don't try to use raises as an excuse to jack up prices or production costs.

Remember: The WLB controls wage or salary payments where an employe earns less than $5,000 yearly if that employe is represented by a labor organization or is not engaged in an executive, administrative or professional capacity.

Otherwise, the treasury department at steps in. The treasury now is reported working over new salary controls of its own. These may be announced later, may tie in with WLB rulings.

The WLB's announced reason for issuing its new wage controls:

Some employes were dodging the wage stabilization program by granting wage increases on the ground that they were within an established wage or salary schedule when actually no real schedule existed.

The automatic raises permitted—if there was an agreement on them before May 31, 1943—can be granted together with merit raises. But all six must not exceed the total difference between the minimum and maximum rate of pay for a job.

The merit raises must not at any one time exceed one-third the difference between the minimum and maximum rate or, according to a

WLB explanation, a total of two-thirds of the difference.

Example on merit raises: A given job's minimum rate is 60 cents an hour, the maximum 90 cents. The difference is 30 cents. The first one-third merit raise then would not exceed 10 cents, the second would not exceed 10 cents. The two merit raises together would not exceed 20 cents.

Pantelleria Attack Is Dress Rehearsal

By PAUL KERN LEE
ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER OFF PANTELLERIA, June 8.—(Delayed) (AP)—A large British naval squadron and swarms of Allied planes attacked Pantelleria simultaneously today in the most powerful onslaught yet made against Mussolini's middle Mediterranean stronghold.

Not only for Pantelleria but for the Axis it was a dress rehearsal of inevitable doom—the most spectacular synchronized sea and air assault of enemy shores thus far conducted in this war.

Frequently since the fall of Tunisia, Pantelleria has been bombarded, but never with such concentrated fury as this.

Great guns of the fleet pumped screaming high explosive shells into the capital city's harbor works and batteries at practically point blank range for 45 minutes in a naval bombardment believed the longest of the war in the Mediterranean.

Before, during and after the naval shelling, aerial formations which seemed to fill the skies blasted the island with big, medium and small bombs. Within a few heartbeats the entire 2,700-foot high island was totally obscured by gigantic smoke clouds that billowed a mile into the blue Mediterranean skies.

Soldier Tells Of Wife Slaying

DALLAS, June 10 (AP) — Submission of testimony in the trial of Pvt. Norris J. Hughes, Dallas soldier charged with murder of his wife in an apartment May 26, was completed Wednesday before the martial of 11 officers hearing the case at headquarters of the eighth service command.

Hughes took the stand in his defense Wednesday morning, giving his sworn testimony of events leading to the fatal choking of his wife. He had the choice of giving his testimony without being sworn had he wished.

Hughes wept before taking the stand but appeared calm while testifying.

On examination he said that during a quarrel he grabbed Mrs. Hughes and that from then on he remembered nothing until he attempted to end his life.

The quarrel concerned a letter which Hughes said his wife had written a soldier at Fort Logan, Colo., and which he said he found on the ground adjacent to the garbage can at the rear of their apartment.

He said that when he confronted his wife with the letter and accused her of unfaithfulness she replied:

"You know I have been drinking — Men have been coming here — Why don't you go back to that damned army camp?"

Then, he said, he grabbed his wife.

Under questioning, Hughes said that he had never talked with any one here or made any investigation to determine if his wife had been immoral.

Flak Fails To Interfere With 'Hell's Angels'

AN AMERICAN BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, June 9 (AP)—After seven months of bigtime combat duty, the flying fortress "Hell's Angels" is still going strong with only a few patched-up Flak punctures and a lone bullet hole as battle scars from 28 passes at Hitler's Europe.

This is a record unequalled by any sister fortress in the European theater and all the more amazing because Hell's Angels has had to plough through some of the thickest anti aircraft fire ever tossed up. At a bomber and has fended off Reichsmarshal Goering's Yellow-nose fighters, which are some of the best in the air.

The Fortresses don't try to waltz through those walls of Flak. They just plunge ahead and take it. That is what "Hell's Angels" has done over such strongly-defended targets as Wilhelmshaven, Kiel, Bremen, Hamm, Vegesack, St. Nazaire, Lorient, Romilly and Paris.

In all 150,000 pounds of bombs have left her racks to churn up devastation in those and other targets.

Sometimes the bombers develop difficulties and have to turn back home before getting to their targets—but not once has this happened to Hell's Angels.

All but one of her original crew have completed their operational missions and are now slated for other assignments, and every one of them has lavish praise for the ship.

Every member of the crew came through all their raids without a scratch. Each has the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with three clusters for gallantry and exceptional achievement. The only member of the original crew which flew "Hell's Angels" across the Atlantic last October and who was subsequently lost was captain Harold Fulgham, 37, the navigator, who came from Lubbock, Texas. Fulgham had to bail out of another fortress in a raid on St. Nazaire last November, and letters have since been received from him saying that he is a prisoner of war.

Water Agreement Changes Asked

NEW MEXICO, June 10 (AP)—Modification of international agreements governing the use of waters of the Rio Grande was requested by the Chamber of Commerce of Ciudad Juarez, border city, in a message to President Avila Camacho.

The chamber contends that Mexico's allotment is insufficient to irrigate fields in that area.

It also requested early "ratification" of the course of the Rio Grande, and early conclusion of work on an interception canal.

Texas To Give Away 788,000 Acres Of Land

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—A couple of Texans are up here to give away 788,000 acres of land—slightly less than the area of Rhode Island.

Under an act of congress, the National Park service is authorized to accept that acreage in the Big Bend, paid for by the people of Texas through public subscriptions.

Texas Parks board chairman J. V.

Nash and assistant attorney general Frederick Ialey are here to make the transfer. Details are being worked out in a series of conferences with park service officials which Ialey said would require several days.
